the LORDE there is mercy and plen tious redemption. And he shal redeme Israel from all his sinnes.

The CXXX. A psalme of David.

ORDE, I am not byc mysed, I ha ve no prynces lodes. I do not equal my self in grece matters, which are thy forme. But I reseyne my soule and thy name, like as a child of his weaned from his mother, see my soule in care as a weaned child. Let Israel trust in the LORDE, for the tyme cometh for me more.

The CXXX. psalme

ORDE, remember David and all his troubles. So he swore vnto y LOR DE, y vowed a vowe vnto y mightie one of Jacob: I wil not come within the ta barnacle of my house, nor asynne up to my bedde. I wil not suffer myne eyes to sleepe, nor myne eyes to close to sleepe, de out a place for the LORDE, an habita ce for the mightie one of Jacob. Lo, we haue of the same at al phiata, y foreshew y word.

We wil go in to his tabernacle, y full do we before his forestie. Arise O LORDE in to thy restinge place, thou y arte of y ierich.

Let thy priestes be clothed with righteous nesse, and let thy saymes reioyse. For y hyer vaunce Dauid (ake name mai a waye the pre sence of thine anointed. The LORDE hath made a faithful oath vnto David, y he shal not shauke frame: Of the sure of thy body shal I sit vpon thy seate. If thy children will kepe my covenante, y my testamony y I shall reue the, their children also shal sit up thy seate for evermore. For the LORDE hath choson Sion, coke an habita ce for him self hath he choson her. This shalt thou reue, here wil I dwell, for I have a delice ther in. I will blesse his vyrcies to increase, y wil I suffice his soue with bier. I wil bee his priestes with health, y his saymes shal reioyse y be glau. There shall I dwell the house of Dauid to flourish. I have orde red a lancee for myne anointed. As for his enemies, I shal clothe the in shame, but v pon himself shal his crowne flourish.

The CXXXI. A psalme of David.

Behold, how good y ioyfull a thinge it is, but hal to dwell together in vni te. It is like y precious symment upon the heade, that raine downe into the beard, and into Darons beard, y into downe to the styrces of his clothinge. Like the beere of sermon, which fall upon the hill of Sion. For there the LORDE y promise his blessing, and life for evermore.

The cxxxv. psalme.

For I knowe yf LORDE is greace: & yf LORDE is aboue all goddes. Whatso euer yf LORDE pleasech, yf doth he in heauē & in earth, in the seer & all depelaces. He dryngeth forth the clowdes from the entee of the moūde, herurmeth yf lighteneth & sendeth rayne, bringeth the wyndes out of their treasures. Which sheweth the first borne of Egipte, both of man and beast. He hath sent colens and wonderes in to the myddest of the earth: to sende of Egipte vpon pharaos and all his seruantes. Which smote byrns & noones, & slewe myghtynges. Sion kynge of y Amozes, O y the kynge of Basan, and all the kyngdomes of Canan. And gaue thet lode for an heritage, for an heritage vnto Israel his people. Thy name O LORDE endureth for euer, so doth thy memoiall (O LORDE) from one generation to another. For the LORDE will enuice his people, & he geaues vnto his seruantes. As for the ymages of the heathē, they are but syluer and golde, the worke of mens handes. They haue moued, & speake not: yea he ure they, but they feele not. They haue eares, and yet they heare not: necher is there anyt in them moueth. They that make them, are like vnto them, & so are all they that putt their trust in the. Praise the LORDE ye house of Israel, praise the LORDE ye house of Aaron. Praise the LORDE ye house of Levi, ye that feare yf LORDE: praise the LORDE. Praise be to the LORDE out of Sion, which dwelleth at Ierusalem.

me, and with a trapper thou. Let the ungodly fall and let the righteous be thou.

The CXLII. A psalme of David.

Write unto the LORD with my voyce, yee are unto the LORD as the my supplication. I pour out my complaince before him, and shewe him of my trouble. When my spirit is in heavynesse, for thou knowest my path in the waye wherein I walke, haue they piersed & layed a snoore for me. I loke vpon my right hande for helpe, there is no man that wil knowe me. I haue no place to fle vnto, no man careth for my soule. Therfore do I cry vnto the LORD and saye vnto him, my hope and my porcion, in the lenes of the hyvinge. Consider my complaint, for I am brought very lowe.
O help me from my persecuters, for they are to stronge for me. Dyinge my soule out of prison, that I maye geue thanks vnto thy name, which thinge yf thou wilt graunte me, then shall the righteous reioyce vnto my company.

The CXLIII. A psalme of David.

Hear my prayer (O LORD) consider my desire, and answer me forth thy trouth & thy righteousnesse sake. And euen now in to indgement with thy seruante, for in thy sighte shall no man lyunge be iustified. For the enemye persecuteth my soule, he stretcheth my life downe to the grounde, he layeth me in the bare trust, as the dead men of the world do. Therfore is my spirit vexed with in me, and my hearte withen me to be solace. Yet do I remember the thymer past, I make vps all y voyses, yet I reioyce in my self in the wooken of thy handes. I stretch forth my handes vnto the, my soule crieth vnto the out of the thyne lande. Selah. Hear me (O LORD) and thou shalt, for my spirit waxeth faynt; hyde not y face from me, lest I be like vnto that go downe in to the graue. O helpe me before thy lownges, & bynde me byer me in the mountynge, for in this is my trust: shewe thou mercy vnto me, that I shoulde walke in, for I trust vpon my soule vnto the. Deluy me (O LORD) from my enemies, for I present vnto the.

Tech me to do the thinge that pleasest the, for thou art my God: let thy lounges spe-ce to be me forth vnto the lenes of righte-ousnesse. Quylt me (O LORD) forth thy name sake, and for thy righteousnesse sake bringe my soule out of trouble. And of thy goodnesse sende in my enemies a to be, and be stroye all them that were my soule, for I am thy seruant.

The CXLIII. A psalme of David.

Lessid be the LORD my refuge, which teacheth my handes to my fingers to fighe. My bow and my castell, my defence and my defence, my shield in whom I trust, which gouerneth loos of death.

The ix. Chapter.

Wherome hath buylded herfelf an house, and here in our faim p'ce: she hath flaughted, poued out her wme, and prepared her table. She hath fyn forth her mayden to crye vps the hyell place of the caue: Who fo is ignorant, let him come hither. A id to the wame she fayde: O come on your waye, eate my bryd, and byde my wyne, which I haue poued out for you. For fye ignorance, and ye fhally-fioninge.

Who do reproch a fcoupefull perfonne, lath the engodly, fo iuyeth himfelf.

uill and haue rubbe a wyfe man, and he wil losethe. Wuse a difference man but an occafion, & he wolle the wyferech a righteous man, and he wil increafe. The fente of the LORDE is the begynnynge of wyfedom, & the knowlege of holy thinge is vnderfountinge. For euer to me y dayes fhall be prolonged and the yeres of thy life fhall be many. If thou be wyfe, y eue to me fhall be rable is the face of the righteous, but yf he be of the vngodly is paff fham, and pre-much bablinge is, there must nedes be offenall. An ungodly conge is a noble treasure, but the herre of the ungodly is nothinge worth. The lippes of the righteous see a whole multitude, but foolis shal dye in their owne foly. The blessinge of the LORDE ma-keth rich me, as for carefull travaylers doeth abuyng of the righteous shal be turned to ne in the lorde. The mouth of the iust wil be them to the wast.

despayng of the iust shal lede them, but the unfaythfullnesse of the despayser shal be their vereth frō death. The rightmouthes of y innocent overth his in awe, but the ungodly his hope is gone, the confidence of rich shal perish. The righteous shal be delivered out of trouble, z the ungodly shal comin his snare. Thowm y mouth off byssinbler is his neyghboure destroyed, but thowm knowlege shal the iust be delivered. What is goeth well with the righteous, the iust meryand when the ungodly perish, there is gladnesse. When the iust are in weake-nesse, they prospereth: but when the ungodly have the rule, it decayeth. A foole byngeth y slander of his neyghboure, but a wise man will kepe it secret. A byssimlynge person wil discover pryncy thinges, but he that is of a fowch full heart, will kepe counsel. Where no good cometh in, there the people becayn: but where as are many that can geve counsel, there is weake. He that is fowch for a stranger, hurtech himselfe be the molech not with fawtleship peccat. A generous woman maynteyneth homifus, as for the mightie, they maynteyneth ryche. He that hath a gentle libellall stomacke, is mercifull, but who so hurtech his neyghboure, is a vyce.

The labour of the ungodly prospereth not, but he that soweth righteousness, shal receave a sure reward. Let a righteous man byngeth life, and so to cleue unto death, by good death. The LORDE abhorreth a fowch heart, but he hath pleasure in them that are unspoyled. He shal not be helpe y iust, though they laye all their homies together, but the sode of the righteous shal be purified. A fawch woman wiche as different mores, is like a ringe of golde in a fawch sout. The iust labourer for peace and atquyete, but the ungodly for byssimlynge.
Some man geuerth out his goodes, and the rich, but y nygarden hangeth y good: wil departe from nothinge, and yet is on in poortie. He that is byssimlynge in synne, shal have plenty and he that weareth shal be wanted also himselfe. Who so becometh up his come, shal be cursed amonge the cople: but blessinge shal lye upon his head that selleth it. He that labourch for good ry synnethe in his despayre: who so selleth his myghte, it shal hurte him. He that trafflech in his ryche, shal have a fall, but y righteous shal sofly as the grene lauf.
Who so maketh byssimlynge in his comhouse, he shal have wynde for his heritage, and the foole shal be shame to the wyl.
The frute of the righteous is as the frute of life, a wise man also wyntereth men les. If y righteous be receyved up, how much more the ungodly z y fowch

The XII. Chapter.

Who so loveth wisdom, wil be content to be reformed: but he that hath such to be reproved, as a foole. A good man is acceptable unto the LORDE, as a man that loveth wisdom. A man can be content in ungodly wealth, but a rove of a righteous shal not be moved. A stedfast man is a crown unto his husbande: but he that behaveth himself unbonestly, is a corruption in his bone. The thoughtes of a righteous are right, but the ymaginacion of the ungodly are disquietfull. The talkynge of the ungodly is, how they maye laye woe upon woe, but the mouth of a righteous shal deliver them. O ever thou constancie he bone, the ungodly shal be overthrown: but the house of the righteous shal stand. A man shal be commended for his wisdom, but a foole shal be despised. A simple man shal labour and resteth, is better than that is gorgeous and wanteth bread. A righteous man regardeth the life of his soul, but the ungodly have a cruel heart. He that alleth his lord, shal have plenty of good: but he that so loveth silence, is a fool. The desire of a ungodly man shal be in vain: but the rest of the righteous shal be in fruit. The wicked shal hurt to the state thereof: a malice of his own mouth, but the just shal escape out of perill. Every man shal enjoye good according to the innocency of his mouth, and as in the mouth of his labours shal he be rewarded. Let what a foole saith in his hand, he thinketh it well done: but he that is wise, will be considered. A foole uttereth his mouth in all the haile, but a discrete man keepeth his tongue. A just man will tell the truth, and knoweth things that are right: but a false witness will be considered. A slanderous personne speaketh like a sword, but a wise man is content in silence. A true mouth is ever content: but a dissimulatinge is soon charmed. They that ymagin evil in their mynde, will be hated: but the counselors of peace shal have love followinge the. There shal no mysfortune be open unto the just, but the ungodly shal be fylled with misery. The LORDE abhorreth disceitfull lippen, but they that labour for truth, please him. He that hath understandinge, can hide his wisdom: but an undiscrete heart telleth out his foolhardy. A diligent hand shal beare rule, but the idle shal be without rule. Every manne disceiteth his heart of man, but a good manne maketh it glad againe. The righteous calibrall unto his neighbours, but the waye of the ungodly wil disceale them selves. A disceitfull man shal fynde no woe, but he that is content in what he hath, is more worth than golde. In the waye of righteousness there is life, as in every other waye, is in the path unto death.

The XIII. Chapter.

Wise men will receive his fathers inheritance, but he that is scornfull, will not beare when he is reproved. A good man shal enjoye the fruit of his mouth, but he that hath a scornful mynde, shal be spoiled. He that keepeth his mouth, keepeth his life: but he that speaketh unadvisedly, synneth harme. The slobberer molde sayne have, out can yet get his desire: but the soule of the diligent shal have plenty. A righteous man abhorreth lyes, but the ungodly shal smeech both other and himself. Righteousness keepeth the innocent in the waye, but ungodlynesse shal overthrowe the just.

Some men are rich, though they have no change: againe, some men are poore by change of riches. With goodes every man buyetheth his life, and the poore will not be reproved. The light of the righteous man is in his daye, but the candle of the ungodly shal be put out. Amonge the proud there is ever strife, but amonge those that do all things with aduysment, there is wisdom. Hastely gather goodes or soonespent, but they that be gathered together with the hande, shal increase. Longe tarienge for a thinge that is offered, groweth in her rebote when the desire cometh, it is a cure of life. Who so despiseth the word, despoyleth himself: but he that feareth the commandement, shal have peace. The lawe is a woe of life unto the wise, that it maye kepe him from the snare of death. Good understandinge groweth fastore, but harden in the waye of the despoyle. A wise man doeth all things with discretion, but a foole wil declare his folly. An ungodly man shall bringeth himself, but a faithfull man shall be in himself. He that chideeth seeme to be reformed, cometh to powerte and shame: but who so receiveth coneccion, shal come to honoure. When a desire is brought to passe, it buyeth the soule: but fooler abhorre him that

Which euer chylde shall haue in possession, for the riches of the sinner is layed up for iust. There is plenteousnesse of yede in the sides of the poore, & shall be increased out of measure. He that spareth the robber, hazardeth his soules: but who so leaueh him, holdeth him ceter in nauoure. The righteous caseth, and is satisfied, but y dely of the vngodly hath neuer ynough.

The XIII. Chapter.

A wise woman uphaldeth hir house, but a foolish wyfe plucketh it downe.

Who so seareth the LORD, walketh in the right path: & regardeth not him that abhorreth the wayes of the LORD. In the mouth of the foolish is the boosling of foolishnes, but y lipps of y wise wil be murre of sodey. Where no open ore, there the crybb is empty: but where the open labour, there is much fruit. A faithfull witness wil not dyssemble, but a false recorde wil make a lye.

A foolcfull body setteth wyrdeme, & findeth it not: but knowlege is easy to come by, into him that wil understande. Se y thou medle not with a foole, & do as though thou haddest no knowlege. The wysdome of him that hath understandinge is, to take he to vnto his waye, but the foolishnesse of the unwise dyscuereth. Foolcs make but a spoete of synne, but there is sauourable lout amon ge the righteous. The herce of him that hath understandinge wil neither dyspasse for cure iore, nor be to presumptuous for any so dane iore.

The herce of the vngodly shall be overthowne, but the tabernacles of y righteous shall stande. There is a reye, which some men thinke to be right, but the ende thereof ledeh vnto death. The herce is for sofall euen in laughter, and the ende of synne is the ynnesse. An vnfaithfull personne shall be fylled with his owne waye, but a good man wil be murre of sodey. An ignorant body beleueth all thynges, but who so hath understandinge, ledeh well to his gouer. A wise man, feareth, and departeth from euill, but a foole goeth on presumptuously. An vnperceiuent man handeth foolishly, but he that is well considered, doeth other wayes.

Deu. 32.
Prov. 1. 6

The ignorant hath foolishnes in possession, but the wise are crowned with knowlege. The asell shall bene them selde before y good, and the vngodly shall waye at the ree of the righteous. The poore is harte of his owne neighbours, but the rich hath many frenthes. Who so despiseth his neighbour, doeth amysse: but blessed is he that hath pyre of the poore. They that vnginowd chyn, shall be dyspayned: but they that mure opo good thynges, vnto sodey shall happen mercy and faithfulnesse. Dilige labo' beyngeth chyn, but where many waye wordes are, truly there is scarcenes.

Riches are an ornament vnto the wyse, but the ignorance of foolcs is very foolishnesse. A faithfull witness belongeth to lites, but a lyar dyscealeth them. The feare of the LORD is a strong holde, for vnto he wil be asure defence. The feare of the LORD is a well of life, to asure the fount of death. The increase and profum of the cemens to the ynges honour, but because of the people in the confab of the pyrnce. Patience is a token of wisdom, but wrath and haiste displeasure is a token of foolishnesse. A many herce is the kynd of the body, but sauourable continueth vnto the bone. He that doth a poore man wege, blasphemeth his mercurit: but who so buyteth of the poore, doeth beneuolence vnto God.

The vngodly is a fayer of many paine, but the righteous hath a good hepe of death. Wyrdeme celsch in the herce of him that hath understandinge, and he teacheth them that are enlernd. Righteousness seareth vnto the people, but wyrdemes byngeth folke to destruction. A diligent is a pleasure vnto y ynges, but yf it not beneit, pious cleth him vnto wnt.

The XV. Chapter.

A soft answer turneth away wrath, but forward words pyneth vnto anger. A wise counsell cometh with knowlege, a foolish counsell blameth out nothinge but foolishnesse. The mouth of the LORD loke in every place, both of good and badde. A schollers tongue is a tree of life, but he that abuseth it, hath a far ken mynde. A foole dyspayneth his correction, but he y taketh hebe vnto him reproued, shall haue y made vnderstandinge.

In the house of the righteous are grette riches, but in the increase of the vngodly there is myshouer. A wise man prayeth out knowlege, but y herce of the foole doeth not so. The LORD abhorreth yf y aske a febe vngodly, but the prayer of the righteous is acceptable vnto him. The waye of the vngodly is an abhominat be reformed, that thou mayest be wyllyng a fere. There are many drunke in a man herte, nevertheless the coldest of a LORDE shal be. It is a mans wyllyngnes to goode, ⁊ beter it is to be a poore man, then a byfembler.

The fiere of the LORDE prenteth the lye, yet it groweth plesourous, without the vni-uersall of any plague. A slouthfull body sheweth his hounde in to his house, so yf he can pauke to his mery. If theu puereth a sto-uill personne, the ignorant shal take be-hebe: ⁊ yf theu repaureth one yf harte vnderstandynge, he will be a wysse. He that hunteth his sacher or sheweth out his mery, is a shamefull ⁊ an vnworthy soune. Wyllyngnes, he that remoueth the doctryne yf leadeth the awaye from the wordes of vnderstandynge.
A fals wysse laugheth wyllyngnes to sou-ne, ⁊ the mouth of the vngoodly catcheth vnto tebnes. Punysshmentes are ordeined for the fowlefull, and stripes for foolis backes.

The XX. Chapter.

Where is a vnderstandynge chynge, ⁊ defines causeth seditioun, who so defines hebetin, shal neuer be wysse.
The kynge ought to be feared as the vni-uersall of a lion, who so puereth him vnto a gawch, offender is agaynst his owne soule. It is a mans honoure to kepe himself from fere, but they yf haue pleasure in drunke, are fooles eueryone. A sleuthfull body wil not go to plowe for colde, therfore shal he go a-begge agayn in sommer, and haue no chynge.
Wyllyngnes is the herte of man is like a water in the depe of the earth, but he that hath vnderstandynge, beyngeth it forth.
Many there be that are called good doers, but where shal one fynde a true faithfull man?
Who so lechereth a godly and an innocent lyfe, happe shal his children be, when he lea-ueth behynde him.

A kynge that sheweth a iudgment, and lo-keth well aboute him, dryneth awaye all enill. Who can saye any where is cleane, I am innocent from synne? To vnto two maner of mighties, or vnto two maner of measure, both these are a byfembler vnto the LORDE.

A chylde is knowen by his conuersacion, whether his wordes be pure and right. As for the hearynge of the eare ⁊ the sight of yf eye, yf LORDE hath made the both. Delue not thou in sloupe, lest thou shalt come vnto poore vnto opeth thine eyes, ⁊ thou shalt haue treblyng. It is naughtie, it is naughtie (saye men) when they haue it, but when it is gone, they geue it a good word.

Job. 12

A mouth of vnderſtōdinge is more worth then gold: many precious ſtores, and coſtly jewels. Take his garment that is ſurety for a ſtranger, take n pledge of him for a unknowne mans ſite. Every mā lieth the bed that is gotten with diſceace, but n the laſt is mouth ſhalbe filled with grauel.

Thouow counsell theſe things that men deuise go forward: with diſcrecion ought matres to be taken in hand. Mchle not with him that beviayeth ſecrets, and in a ſlandere, and diſceauerh with his lippes.

Who ſo curſeth his father and mother, his light ſhalbe put out in the myddelt of darck neſſe. The heretage that cometh to hoſtely acohe fiſh, ſhal not be playd at the ende. Sine not thou: I will recompence well, but purſy truſt in the LORDE, & he ſhal deſende y.

The LORDE abhorreth thre maner of weigheyn, and a falſe balace is an ewill thinge. The LORDE ordereth eury miſe goings, for who is he, that vnderſtendeth his owne wayes? Is it n ſhare for a man to blaſpheme that which is holy, & then to go aboue ſo wordes. A wiſe kyng diſtreteth y vngodly, & byngeth the whole euer them. The laſterne of y LORDE is y bych of man, & goeth thow all in him nabe par-tes of the body.

Mercy & faithfullneſſe preſente the kyng, & with louyng pſonnes his ſeate is holden up. The ſtrength of yong men is their wiſhipe, & a gray hende, is an hond onto y aged. Woundes bynne cūwe neil, and ſo do ſtripes the mercurie parties of the body.

The XXX. Chapter.

A kynges hert is in the haute of the LORDE, like as are the ryues of water: he maye turne it whither ſo euer he will. Every man thinketh his owne way to be right, but the LORDE iudgeth y heeres. To be iehonouſieſſe and iudgme is more acceptable to the LORDE the ſacrifice.

A preſumptuous lobe, a proud ſtomache, & the laſterne of the vngodly ſyame. The deuices of ſone that is diligente, bynne preſon: but he ſo vnadviſed, cometh to ſo pouerte. Who ſo heauyeth up richen w y diſceafuſeneſſe of his conge, he is a ſoule, like unto them that ſeke their owne deatch.

The tobbies of the vngodly ſhalbe the owne deſtruction, for they wolbe nee to the ch myght that was right. The wayes of the ſtrawde are ſtrange, but y wordes of him y is cleane, are right. It is better to dwell in a corner vnder y houſe coppe, then with a beaulinge woman in a wybe houſe.

The ſoule of the vngodly iſteth well, and hath no pite upon his night ture.

When the ſounde ſhall be purghe, they nought cald y better hede: & when a wyman is warned, he wil receaue the more vnderſtōdinge. The righteous enſoundeth the houſe of the vngodly, but y vngodly on ſtill offereth their owne miſdebaſhe. Who ſo ſteppeth his ſare at the cryng of the tute, he ſhal crye himſelfe not be wite. I puniſh reward pacifiſh diſpleaſure, and a giſte in the boſome ſtyleth ſurroſneſſe.

The iuſt deſireth in doyng the thinge that is right, but the workers of wiſdom abhorre the ſame. The man that wendeth cur of the way of wyſdom, ſhal come in the congregacion of y dead. For y pleaſure in landes, ſhal bee poore man.

Who ſo deſireth in wyne and delicaſie, he not be rich. The vngodly ſhalbe gram for the righteous, & the wiſdome for the ſimple.

Is a better to dwell in a wyberne, w with a chynge and an angrie woman. In a wiſe mans houſe there is great treaſure and plenteouſneſſe, but a ſeelyſ body pall. Who ſo followeth iuſtice neſſe and mercy, ſhall bech both liſe, iuſtice neſſe and hond. A wiſe man wytheth ace of the myght, and an for the ſtrength they call it, he byngeth it downe. Who ſeeth his mouth and his tongue, he ſeek peth his ſoule from troubles. He ſo peth preſumptuous, is called a ſeafeſall which in much barre wote malice.

The deluſionneſſe of the ſleechful his owne death, for his hede a will not let.

The couerch and deſireth all the daye ge, but the righteous is a lyeare gemy ſeeth nothinge kynde. The ſacrifice of the vngodly is abhominacion, for the the charge y is gotten w wiſdom. A ſimyneſſe ſhal pleaſe, but he ſo wille come to heare, ſhal ſilence his power coſt himſelf. An vngodly man goeth forth ly, but the iuſt reſpoudereth his owne wite.

There is no wyſdom, there is no ſtōdinge, there is no counsell againſt the LORDE. The houſe is prepared agaynſt daye of battayll, but the LORDE ſeeth the merory.

The XXXI. Chapter.

riches, and louyng ſounde is better

So shal thine eyes loke vnto strange wo-but I fele it not. What I am wel makeled,

The XXIII. Chapter.

BE not thou gdelous ouer wicked men, & be thyne noc thou to be amonge them.

For they haue ymagined to do hurte, & they lippes calke of myghte. They knowe wysdomme an house shal be buyled, & w destructione it shal befall vpon. Their dis-crecion shal & chabere be fylled be all costly & pleisur: riches. A wyse man stryge, yea a man of vnderstonding is better, che he y is myghte of strenght. For with discrecion must warre beate in hande, and where as are many he can geue counsell, there is & victory. Wysdomme is on hyr things, yet cued to a foole, for he darre not ope his mouth in of grace. For y ymagined myghte, maye wel be called an vngodly personne. The thought of & foolish is synne, & & seene-full is an abhominacion vnto me.

thy strength be small. Deluyet che & go vnto deathe, & a leaue to be slaine, & be nat medicyn cheir. If thou wilt saye, I knowe not of it. Thyng che & he which made y herces, doeth not cōfesse it: & he which regardeth y soule, saith ienot: Shal not he receyue every man accordinge to his require? My sonne, chauce rest hony & & in chone ebbe, because it is good & in ceen in thy mouth. Quen so shal y knowe of wysdomme be vnto y soule, as soone as thou hast gette it. And there is good hope, yet y hope shal not be in vayne. Laye no puny waice wretched vpon & house of & righteous, & wiquete: not his resting place. For a iust man shal be iust in thyne, & thyself vpon agayne, but y vngodly fall in to wickednes. A loyce noer thou as y fall of thine enemies, and lire not thine herce be glad when he stonibled.

 wylful agaynst his neighbours, he is in devilspare, a fouler den in harnowme. The hope of the vngodly man of nede, is like a woman, and in slippery foote. What so frughe a yonger son wold here, cleo back bi-ger son dwille. If thine enemye dwille, he dwille. If he be thyght, geue him bypate: for he shall the hope coales of fyre vpp his dea-tils, and the LORDE shall reuenge him. The arch wynde byuere a maye che in tyme, euen so euen an earnest folow continuance a ba-tle byuenge. It is better to lye in a countre vnder the rof, then to a baulging woman in a yere house. A good repositi on of fure countre, is like colde water to a thursty soule. A righteuous man salvinge downe before the vngodly, is like a troubled well, and a springe is destroyed. Lite as it is not good to eate so much hony, euen so is it that it shal hardy one the thynges, it shal be to earful him, the that can not rule him self, is like a cite, which is beken downe, and hee

The XXVII. Chapter.

Wilke not thy booff of some othe, for then I knowe not what maye happen to daye. Let another man saye scape, & not thine owne mouth: yett thy selfe felle lippe, and noe rhyme. The stone is heuy, and the sorde weyghtie: but a foolis witt is heavier then theye both. Woe is in euill thinge, and furiously in any tyme past; yett he is able to abyde euill. An open rebuke is better, then a secret love.
Faithfull are the woundes of a lover, but Tyllen of an enemye are dyfficult fall. Be that is full, abhorreth an hony combe: but woo-him that is hōgry, euery thinge is sweete.
Be that of cymys sorrowe, is like a vybr & forsaketh her nest. The harte is glad of a sweete cymment and inuolunt, but a flo-made that can geue good counsell, relieueth a mans mischance. Thyne owne frende and thy farther frende se thou forsake not, but goe not in to thy brothers house in cyme of thyne able.

Better is a friende as hede, then a brother farr of. My sonne, bewyse and thou shalt make me a glad heart: for that I shall make an sweete to my rebukers. A wyse man sepeth the plague wythoute hym self, as for foolles they go on full, and suffer harme. Take his gacment: that is suretie for a stranger, & cale a pledge of him for the vntowen man take. He that is to haue to pouse his neygh-bour aboue measure, shall be taken as one that geueth him an euill expence. A hairemyne woman and the rest of the house droppynge in a daye daye, maye well be compited together. Soe that is frauerth her, refray-neth the wynde, and holoth oyle fast in his hede.

Eccl 10

The vngodly flyeth no man chaunge him, but the righteuous standeth stiff as a pyler. Because of synne y lord doth ofte chaunge his prynces: but the righteuous man endureth longe. One pow-erfull man oppresseth another by violence, as like a comynall as the thar destruction y frute. They that seke the lame, playe y vngodly: but sech as kepe the lawe, abhorre them. Wicked men dyscerne not the thinge y in eigne, but they that seke after the LORD, discusse all thinge. A poore man leuynge a godly life, is better then the rich that goeth in fro-ward wayes. Whoso keepeth the lawe, is a childe of vnderstandinge: but he y fooleth ryceous men, shameth his father. Who so increaseth his riches by wastage & wy-nge, let him gashe them co hope the poore from hearinge y lawe, his prayer shal be hoi. Whoso leueth y righteuous in an euill waye, shal fall in co his owne pore, but y iust shal haue the good in possession.

The rich man chyneth him self to be safe, but the poore that hath vnderstandynge, can pcecaunt him wyl ynough. Whynge rouer men see in prosperite, the godd be-re fionsh: but when the vngodly come vp, y state of men chaungeth. He that buyeth his synnes, shall not prosper: but who knowlegeth them and forsaketh them, shal haue mercy. Well is him that seeketh waye in awe: as for him that hardeneth his herte, shal fall in to mischefe. As a conaringe lyon and an hongry beere, whyn is an vngodly pryncce ouer the poore people.

Where the pryncce is without vnderstandinge, there is greates oppression & wronge but yf he be soch one as hath a vnderstandinge, he shal longe raigne. He that buyeth his synnes, shal be without maner: shal be a nagare vnto his geare, and no man shal be able to succor him. Whoso leueth a godly and an innocent life, shal be safe: whoso goeth from a good waye, shal enee haue fall. He y selleth his lande, shal haue no reconforte of barbe: but he that soloweth ydnesse shal haue powerte ynough. A rich full man is greatelye to be commended, but that maketh to much haist for co to ride, shal not be vnglous. To haue respect of persones in iudgement is not good: for why? he will do wronge, yet seen for a paw of biche. He that will be rich shal solem-nlye, hath an euill eye, and considereth not his powerte shall come vpon him. He that bucketh a man, shal fynde more fauour: last, the he that slayeth him. Who so beth his father and mother, and sayeth no synne: the same is like vnto a mortell.

He that is of a proube stomache, shal vp first: but he that paryeth his curse y LORD, shal be well fed. He that trusteth in his owne herte, is a foole: but he that trusteth in the LORD, shal be safe. He that trusteth in his eyes, shal be as a foole: but he that trusteth in the LORD, shal be as a wise man.

When the vngodly are come vp, we are sayne to hyde them: but when the righteous are increaseth.

The XXXV. Chapter.

What is stiffe & d'ed & will not be re-summed, shal s'berly be destroyed wout any helpe. Where 3 righteous hath the ever hant, 3 people are in prosperitie but where the ungodly beareth rule, the 3 people mourne. Who so loueth wysdo-manereth his father a glad man: but he 3 tapereth his lotter, 3 p'cedeth awaye 3 his hant.
Whereas iudgement 3 kynge setteth up the iust, but yf he be a man heareth giftes, he nurteth it vnto vnto domme. Who so flattereth his neighbor, layeth a nette for his feet. The fume of 3 waxeth is his owne snare, but 3 righteous shal be glad and reioyse. The righteous cons'oueth the cause of the poe-re, but the ungodly regardeth n'ot the iustice of the lawe. Wicked people bringe a curse in be-cayse, but the iust men set it up agayn. As a wise man go to lawe with a fool (whether he wale meth him fearely or enoughly) he getteth no rest. The bloudy physie hath the righteous, but the iust sette his soule. A fole p'cedeth out his sp'ite althowgher, but a wise man kepeth it in till a fterward.

As a pryncer deuynt in lyes, all his seruants are ungodly. The poore and the iustice b'come together: but the O R D E lightbreueth both their eyes. The state of the kynge 3 sachfully iudgeth the poore, shal continue in for evermore. The rodde and correction myghte wysdomme, but yf a childe be not lobed into, he bringeth his mother to shame. When the ungodly come up, r'one knoweth it not: but the righteous shal s'berly fall. Therefore thyfornie with corruption, and he shal com'f'ort he, yet he shal be the good at chynere. Where no iustice is, there the people perishe: but well is it him that feareth the lawe. A seruante wil not be the better for riches, soethowgh he vnto f'londe, yet wil he not regarde thine.

As thou seest a man that is haistie to speake unadvisedly, thou mayest trust a fool more then him. He that delicately bringeth up his seruants from a childe, shal make him his master as length. An angrie man stretcheth up strife, and he that beareth euill will in his mynde, both m'och euill. As thou seest a commeth a fall, but a lowly sp'ite bringeth greater wealth. Who so despeth company is a chiefe, but his owne soule be brought to blasphemy, & telleth it not forth.

As thou seest men, shal haue a fall: but who so putteth his trust in the LORDE, shal come to bond. Many there be that sette 3 p'ntes in euerye, but euery mans iudgement commeth from the LORDE.

The righteous abhorre the ungodly: but as for those that be in 3 right waye, 3 wicked hate them.

The XXX. Chapter,

The wisdom of Agur the sonne of Iak.

Ihe prophete of a true faithfull man, I shal be helpe, whom God hath comforted & nourished, for though I: as 3 leafe & fall, & haue no made vnder-stand; for I neuer learned wisdom: yet haue I not refused to be 3 am not enuoured in godly things. Who hath dynmed op' to heauen? Who hath come downe from chynere?

Who hath holden 3 wynde fast in his han-de? Who hath comprehended 3 matters in a gaine? Who hath set all che chynere of 3 world? What is his name, or his f'oun-taine? Canst thou tell? All the wordes of God are pure & cleane, for he is a shyde vnto all them, that put their trust in him. Put thou vnto chynere therefore into his wordes, lest he reioyce the, and thou be founde as a lyar.

Two thinges I require of the, that thou wilt not deny me before I dye. Knowe from whence and I require me neither pouce or merchies, only graunte me a necessary lyuynge. Lest yf I be to fall, I deny 3, & saye: what f'londe is 3 LORDE: And lest I bringe condemned thine pouce, fall into f'londing, and f'ortreace the name of my God.

Accuse not a seruant into his master, lest he speake euill of the also, and thou be hurt. He that bringeth up an euill reporte of 3 the generation of his father and mother, is not worthy to be commended.

The generation that rebueth them selues dearie, shal not be clensed from their syn-nes. There are people yf haue a predele of the, and cast vnto their eyelids. This prople rebueth thee & the earth, and with thee doth beuise they consume and denoure the temple of the earth, and the poore from amonge us.

The generation (which is like an heeleche) hath two daughters: 3 ear is called, f'ech h'cher he other, bringe hit her.

There be hitie changes that are neuer satisfied, and the f'ew that laste neuer h'ue.
The bella woman's wombe, and the earth hath neuer matter quenche. As for fyre, it sayeth neuer: hoo. Who so langbeth his father to f'one, and f'etcheth his mother's commandement as a naghe: the tanner p'cedeth his eye in the miller, and is deuoured be he of the yongle Begles.

There be hitie thinges so hye forme, and as for the f'ew that laste, it passeth my knowlege.

There be foure chūges in the earth, the which are very lile: but in wyfdom they excede the wyfe. The Lemmings are due a weakē people, yet gather they that meate togather in 3 haue.

The conys are but a feble folke, yet make they: their conches amonge the rockes. The grethoppers haue not a gyde, yet go they forth together by heapes. The spyder laboureth w hir house, 3 yn 3 bynges palace.

There be thre chūges 3 go swiftly, but the goinge of the fourth is the goodli of all. A 3on which is kynge of deafes, 3 giveth place to no man: A cocke read yea sighe: A rāme: And a byng 3 goeth forth w his people.

The XXXI. Chapter.

These are the wordes of Aysē Lammud, 3 3 lesson 3 his mother taughte him. My sonne, thou sonne of my bōdy: My beate beloned sonne, geue not ouer thy substance: 3 mynde vnto women, which are the destrueris of thynges. O Lammud, geue thyng to no wyfe, geue thynges 3 prynces no stronge dynde: lest they beinge dyonken forget the lawe, 3 regarde not 3 cause of 3 honour, 3 of all soch no be is aduersite. Geue thynges vnto soch as are condemnēd to death, 3 wynn vnto chōse 3 mournes: that they maye deynē us, 3 forget thei misery 3 aduersite. The chōan aduocate 3 stōbe in iudgment chūsties speake for all soch as be vnto 3 in courtes. With 3 mouth desende 3 chūge 3 is lawfull and right, and 3 cause of 3 poore and helpelesse.

Who so smyth an honest faithful wo-ma, she is moche more worth 3 be perice. Thē herse of her husbande maye safely trust in her, so that he shal haue no rebe of hye.

She wil do him good 3 not end all 3 daye of his lyfe. She occupieth wolle say, 3 laboureth gladly w hir handes. She wil be a marchauntes shippe, that bringeth in vntyles from farr. She is up in 3 night season, to praye meate for hir husbande: foode for hir maydens. She considereth de, 3 byeth it, and w the frute of her hand she planteth a vyngarde. She giveth hir loynes with strenght, and comageth hir oimes. And yf she perceaue that her huswifrie doth good, hir candle goeth oute by night. She layeth hir synges wth spynle, 3 hir hande taketh hold of 3 roche. She openeth hir hande to 3 poore, yn 3 stretcheth forth hir hande to soch as haue need. She stretcheth not the colde of wynter shal hure hir house, for all hir heulthelesse are dable clerke. She maketh hir self sauer ornaments, hir clothys are whytis 3 purple. Her husbande is moche by her gates, whē he stretcheth amonge 3 rāme of lombe. She maketh cloth off silke 3 silk, and belouereth a gyde vnto 3 marchaile.

Strenght and honoure is hir clothys, 3 in the latest do ye shē shal reioyse. She openeth hir mouth wth wyfdom, 3 in her geue the lawe of grace. She looketh vnto the waye of hir housholde, 3 teacheth her bed with ydles. Her children smile at hir blessed, 3 hir husbande maketh chō of her. Many daughter there be 3 gather chō together, but thou geest aboue thē all.

As for fowle, it is disseaful, and deathe is a wayne thinge: but a woman that stretcheth the LORD, she is worthy to be praised. Therefore of the frute of her handes, and let her come wnto a parst her in the gates.

The ende of the proverbes of Salomon.

So I thought in my heart, to wisdom in my flesh from wine, to apply my mynde to wisdom, and to comprehend foolishness until the tyme that (amonge all) thinges which are vnder the Sonne, I might see what were best for men to do, so longe as they ly-ue vnder heauen.

I made gardens and sayre woddes, I buyl-de me houses, and planted vnytyctes: I made me orchardes and gardens of pleasure, and planted trees in them of all manner fru-tes. I made poles of iowere, to water my gesse and fructifull trees withall. I bought si-cquiers and maydes, and had a greater hous-holde. I had camels and sheeps, I had more substance of cheym, then all they were before me in Ierusalem. I gathered siluer & golde together, euen a treasure as thynges in Ierusalem.

I prouided me syngers and women which coude playe of instruments, to make me mirth and pastime. I gat me dymynges cuppes also and glasses. (Shortly) I was greater than all my worshippe, then all my pre-decessours in Ierusalem. For wisdome remayned with me: I loste what was euer mynes eyes desyred. Let them haue it: I reueren so euer my better bodye as had any pleasure, I wish he be as I am. Thus my heart reioysed in all I dyd, and this I rote for the portion of all my trowaile. Wherein I considered all the woordes of my handes had wrought, and all the labour that I had taken therein: lo, all was but vaine and vexacion of myn-de, & nothinge of any value vnder the Sonne.
The evening I me to considere wisdom, er-roure and foolishnesse (for what is he among men, that might be compared to me? I yn-ge in such weyloar) and I sawe, that wis-dome excelleth foolishnesse, as a farre as light doth darkness. For a wise man beareth his eyes aboue in his heade, but the fool geeth in the darkness. I perceived also that they both had ende.

Then thought I of my mynde: If it happen vnto the fool as it doth vnto me, what niddeth me then as labour any more for wis-dome? So I confessed within my heart, that this also was but vaine. For the wyse are e-uer as a litle in remembrance as the foolish, and all the doo yes for so cometh to be forgo-uen, yet the wyse man dyeth as well as a fool.
Thus began I to be weery of my lyfe, in so much that I coude awaye with nothinge that is done vnder the Sonne, for all was but vaine & vexacion of mynde. For I was weery of all my laboure, which I had taken vnder the Sonne, because I shoulde be le-ne to leave them vnto another man, as I mech a fter me: for who knoweth, what he shalbe a wyse man or a fooler? And yet he be lorde of all my labours, which I had toch wyddome haue taken vnder the Sone. So not this a vayne thinge.

So I turned me to cōsagme my mynde from all such trowaile, as I rote vnder the Sonne: for so much as a man shalbe wyse him self with wisdom, with vnderstandge and oportunitie, and yet be faine to laue his labours vnto another, I neuer saw for him. This is also a vayne thinge and grete misery. For what getteth a man of al his labe trowaile of his mynde, if he may vnder the Sonne, but he maye, I sawe it quyte all. I daye of his lyf: In so much that his herie can not rest in the night. I not this also a vayne thinge: For it reioyce then for a man to care and bynde, and be foole to be merry in his labour: For I saw that this also was a gyfte of God: I maye eate, drynke, or I maye say thynges of pleasure to him: And why the greuous man maye, what is pleaser to him: he hath not deme, vnderstandinge, or glabour. For to the synner he geueth his trowaile and knoweth that he maye gather and heape together thinges, if afterwarde shalbe geuen vnto whom it pleaseth God. This is now a vayne thinge, yet a veyt dysquietnesse and wepyl of mynde.

The iij. Chapter.

Very thynge hath a tyme, yet all the is vnder the heauen, hath his tyme to come and season. There is a tyme to be bone, and a tyme to dye. There is a tyme to plant, and a tyme to plucke vp the thinges, & a tyme to reape, and a tyme to brynke whole: A tyme to breake downe, and a tyme to builde up: A tyme to wepe, and a tyme to laugh: A tyme to moune, and a tyme to dance: A tyme to cast awaye stones, and a tyme to gather stones together: A tyme to embrace, and a tyme to refrain frendshipp: A tyme to wyne, and a tyme to fast: A tyme to spare, and a tyme to spende: A tyme to reue in pees, and a tyme to some contriuise: A tyme to kepe sylke, and a tyme to parte it: A tyme to loue, and a tyme to hate: A tyme to warre, and a tyme of peace.
What hath a man els, that doth any thyng, but wearynesse and labour: For as to thinges the trowaile and carefullnesse which God hath geuen vnto us, if we do not geuen it to hym, so be exersise in it. All the with be endured marvellous goodly, so every thing has due tyme. So hath placed God maner alioin the heros of men, & they shal never fynde one's grounds of his workes, which be doth from's beginninges to's ende. So I perceived, in these things a the unchangeableness betwixt for a man, that he come to the end, so well so longe as he lyveth. For all a man careth & desireth, yet what so ever a man desireth of all his labors, & saith to himselfe God. I considered also & what so ever God doeth, it is cōmynly for ever, & no change can be put vnto it neere he from it: & God doth it to's intent, & man shal be as a vapor. The thinges & hath bene, is now: in things & is for ever come, hath bene a foire tyme, for God restoreth agayne the thinges that are past. Moreover, I sawe under's borne, ungodlynesse in the steade of laboure, & iniquity in steade of righteousness.

Then thoughte I in mynnde: What shal I seeke the righteousness from the ungodly, & deserveth he the tyme & wage of all countlesse workes. I considered & myne owne tyme also concerninge the childen of men: how God hath chosen them, and yet lurcheth the spere, as they say they were beasts: for he hath ben vnto men as it doth vnto beasts, as the one dyeth so doth & other: yet they hear both one maner of breath, so & in this I sawe hath no premyence abene a beaste: all are subdued vnto vanite. They go all vnto one place, for as they be all of dust so shal they all turne vnto dust agayne.

Who knoweth the space of man's goeth vnto, and the death of the beast & goeth downe in to the earth? Wherefore I perceived, there is nothinge better for a man, than he be full in his laboure, for that is his portion. But who wil bringe him to his thinges, that shal come a farr him?

So I turned me, and considered all the violence revenge that is done under the Sonne: and I beheld, that as the of such as were oppressed, and there was no man to comfort them, so that wolde be vnto me and defende them from the violence of their oppressor. Wherefore I was grieved that that are dead, so be more haplesse then such as be alive: yet him that is yet vnto borne to be better at ease, then they be, because he seith that the miserable workes that are done under the Sonne. Agayne, I sawe that all workes require diligence of labour, none hath of easy man. This is also a vaine thinge, and a vexacion of mynde. The foole fol-loweth his handes together, & careth up his owne flesh. One hand full (saith he) he hath care, the other full of banes full with laboure and care. Moreover, I turned me, and behelde yet another vaine under the Sonne. There is one man, no mo but himselfe alone, havinge rather childen mer brothe: yet is there no ende of his carefull travayle, his eyes can not be satisfide with riches, yet doth he not remember himselfe, & saye: For when do I take such travayle? For whose pleasure do I thus consume away my lyfe? This is also a vaine and miserable thinge. Therefore two are better then one, for they maye well enjoye the profit of their laboure. If one of them fall, his companion helpeth him up agayne: But wo to him that is alone, for if he fall, he hath no other to helpe him up. Agayne, when two sleepe together, they are warmed: how can a body be warme alone? One maye be our cover, but two maye make resistance: & the folde table is not lightly broken. A poore childe beyng wofull, is better then an olde childe, that doth, and can not be woe in tyme to come. Some one commeth out of prison, & is made a kynge: & another which is borne in the kynge's dome, commeth vnto poverty. And I perceived, of all men lyvinge under the Sonne, go & the seconde childe, that commeth up in the steade of the other. As for the people that have bene before him, and that come after him, they are innumerable: yet is not their daye the greater then his. This is also a vaine thinge and a vexacion of mynde. When thou comest in to the house of God, kepe thy foot, and beware, that thou mayest heare: that is better then the offeringes of foolen, for they knowe not what well they do.

The V. Chapter.

Do not hastie with thy mouth, & let not thine heart speake any thinge rashly before God. For God is in heaven, & thou upon earth, thas thou let thy words be sure. For when thou carest in this, there are many dreamers: & where many woe do are, there men maye beate foolen. If thou make a vowe vnto God, be not slacke to performe it. As for foolishly othes, he hath no pleasure in them. If thou promise any thinge, paye it: for better it is that thou make no vowe, then that thou shouldest promise, and not paye. Ofte thou mayest be caused by fleshy & so syne, if thou saye not before the angel, my foolishnesse is in's sight.

1. Reg. 14. c

1. Pet. 1. 6
1. Cor. 13. a

For the God will be angry at thy wayes, and destroye all thy workes of thine handes.
And whytether be as many diuines as many riches, there are also diuines wari-ces: but loke y thou feare God. If thou seyst the poore so to be oppressid and wrongeously deale withall, so y equite & the righte of the lawe is manifeste in the londe: mat will not thou asfuch iudgme, for one greater mā kepeth touch with another, and the mightie ke the feble together. The reholde lode also with the fildes and all that is therein, as in subiection and bondage vnto y Kinge.

Behold that louch money, wil neuer be iustfied with money: and who so deuyeth in riches, shal haue no profit therof. Is not this also a wayne thinge? Where as many riches are, there are many also that spende them awaye. And what pleasure more hath he that possideth them, sayng that he maye take vpon them with his eyes? A labouringe man shapeth sweetly, whether it be lute or much that he eateth: but the aboundance of the rich wil not suffice him to slepe.

There is there a foure plague, which I haue sent vnder the Sonne: namely riches keepe so the hate of him y ha bi them in possession.

For oft a man they pershe with his grea-ten fery and trouble: and yf he haue a childe, it groweth nothinge. Like as he came naked out of his mothers wombe, so geeth he thither a gayne, and carrieth nothinge awaye with him of all his laboure.

Chis is a miserable plague, y he shal goe awaye when he come. What helpeth it him then, y he hath labored in the tymor: All the dayes of his life also must he eate in the daidit, with greates care fulnesse, sicknesse & sorow.

Eccl. 1. d. Therefore me thinke it a better and a fayre-re thinge, a man to eate and drynke, and to be reioysed of all his laboure, y he eateth vnder the Sonne all the dayes of his life which God geueth him, for this is his por-cion. For auno when so eate God geueth riches, goodes and power, he geueth it him to enioye it, to take it for his portion, and to be reioysed of his laboure: thus is now the gifte of God. For he thinketh not much how longe he shal lyue, for so much a: God fylleth his hart with gladnesse.

The VI. Chapter.

A there is yet a plague vnder y Sonne, it is a generall thinge amonge men: when God geueth a man riches, good-des & honour, so that he wanteth nothinge of all that his hart can desire: and yet God geueth him not leze to enioye the same, but another man spendeth them. This is an exchange & a miserable playge. If a man get an hundred dallants, and lyue many yeares, so that his dayes are many in number, and yet can not enioye his good, such he iudges as for him? I saye, that as way-ly byth is better then he. For he enioy-eth naught, & geeth his waye in to harden-e, and his name is forgotten. What y seyth not the Sonne, and knoweth of na-ther here nor there: For though he haueth thousand yeares, yet hath he no good life. Let me not all so one place: All that doeeth a man rashly, is for himselfe, and yet his benefite is not fylled of it: this wo-de. For what hath the wyse man when he feeleth? What helpeth it the poore, that knoweth to walke besous the wayne? Is sight a sight yes is better, then that which is shulde so departe a waye. What is it also a wayne thinge and a despitous mynde. What is more excellent then yet can be not in the lawe get the wisdom him that is mightier the be: A wayne is it to cast out many wordes, but that hath a man else.

The VII. Chapter.

For who knoweth what is good in a mans sayng, in y dayes of his life, which is but a shadowe?
Who wil tell a man, what shal he spende him vnder the Sonne? A good name is more worth then a precious oymment, and dayes of death is better then y dayes of lyth.

Is it better to go in to an house of mourning, then in to a banckete house. I saye, it is the ende of all men, and he that is happie, rather to go here. Is it better to be chained to laghe, for whiche the countenaunce, the heart is ioyfull. The harme of a wyfe is in the mourninge house, hartie of the foolish is in the house of mirth.
Is it better to geue ease to the chastitee a wyfman, then to beate the fange of les. For the langhing of foolen is an exchange of theenes vnder a poore, and it is but a wayne thinge.

Who so doeth wronge, maketh a man to goe out of his witte, and destroyeth gentle hart. The ende of a change is better then the begynnyng. The pacion spore is better then the hie mynde. Be not hastily angry in y mynde, for aughteth in the besyme of a soule. Saye thou: What is the cause that y dayes of olde tyme were better, then they y be not for that were no wyse question. What is better then riches, yee much more worth then the eye sight. For wysdome defendeth as well as money, and she excellēt knowle ge and wysdome geueth life vnto him that hath it in possession. Considre the worke of God, he wth that no man can make the chynge strayge, which he maketh creted. Of well thynges of prosperite, and remember the ty me of myffortune: for God maketh the one by the other, so that a man can fynde nothin gein.

C These things also haue I considered in myne of vanitie: y^e the iust man persheth for his rightwysnes sake, & the vngodly flourish in his wickednesse. Therfore he shoulde rather be to righteous: ner oute wyse, y^e he persh not: he rather to righteuous also ner to foo lish, lest thou die before thy tyme. It is good for the to take helde of this, & not to let y^e go out of thy hande. For he y^e feareth God shal scape them all.

Wysdome geareth more courage vnto the wyse, then tē manerlic men o fche cause: for there is not one iⁿ of vps earth, y^e doth good, & sinnech not. Take not heide vnto every wor de y^e is spoken, lest thou beate thy seruante with the rod: for heime, come here knowech, that thou thy self also hast o fte tyme spokē euill by other men. All these chynge haue I pro uoked of wysdome: for I thought to be wyse, but she wente further fro me then she was before, yae & so depe that I myght not reach vnto her. I applied my mynde al so vnto knowlege, and to seke oute seile, wis dome and vnderstandinge: so to enure the foo lishnesse of the vngodly, and the erreure of deceiue foolcs. And I founde, that a wo man is bytterer then death: for she is a very angle, but here is a nett, and her hardes are sharpes. Who so pleak: y^e God shal escape from her: but he synner will be taken wth her.

Wisdomē saith y^e y^e seecher: this haue I wisely searched out: & proued, y^e I might come by knowlege which so yae I seke, and further not. Amonge a thousande man I ha ue founde one, but not one woman amonge
all. So, this onely haue I founde, that God maketh man iust & righte, but they seke byuys nesse, where o no man hath wysdome & vnderstandinge, to geue answer there vnto.

The viii. Chapter.

Wysdome maketh a mā face to fry ne, but malice putteth it out of fa uoure. Repe the kynge's commaun demēt: I wote thez the ooth y^e thou hast made vnto God. Be not pascie to go out of his sight, & thou shewest in no euill thyn ge: for whae so curie pleaseth him, y^e doeth he. Likē as when a kynge geueth a charge, his commaundement is myghte: & then so who maye saye vnto him: what doest thou?

Who so respect the commaundement, shall sile no harme: but a wyse mane heret bi cometh tyme and maner: for every thinge wil haue opportunitie and iudgement, and this is the chynge that maketh men full of care fulness & for ouer. And why: a man knoweth not what is for to come, for heo wylth ham: & ether is there any mē y^e hath po wer ouer y^e spere, so depe shal y^e spere, ner to haue any power in the tyme of death: for it is not he all othe e can make an ende of the battell, ne ther maye vngodly men deliuer him y^e med deth wth hall.

All these chynge haue I considered, and applied my mynde vnto every worke that is vnder the Sonne: how one man hath leu dship vpon another to his owne harme. For I haue ofte sene y^e vngodly brought to their graces, & not fallen downe from the hye and glorious pla ce: in so much y^e they were so gotten in the cite, where they were had in so hye & greates reputacion. This is also a wyse thinge. Because no man shal euill worke ace not hastily purgshed, the heart of man geueth him self ouer vnto wth donesse: but through of wylde domē: for I thought to be wyse, but she wente further fro me then
angle, but here is a nett, and her hardes are

all. So, this onely haue I founde, that God
vnderstandinge, to geue answer there vnto.

The viii. Chapter.

Wisdomē maketh a mā face to fry
uoure. Repe the kynge's commaun

reach vnto the: yet though a wyse man wol be moderate to knowe them, yet might he not fynde them.

The XI. Chapter.

All these thinges purposed I in my mynde to seeke out. The righte waye and wyse yea and their woikes al so are in the hande of God: and there is no man that knoweth ether the loue or hate of the thinges that he hath before him. He hath power vnto one as vnto another: He hath wylth the righte waye as with the wygedly: with the good & cleane as with the vncleane: much him that offereth as much him that offereth a vnto a: so he geeth with the vnto a: so he geeth with the fennel: As he hopneth vnto the penured, so happeneth it also vnto him that is strayed to be man fownde. Amonge all thinges that come to passe vnto the Sonne, this is a mistery, that it happeneth vnto all alyke. This is the cause also that the heretes of men are full of wile craftes, & thus so elphinesse in their hertes as in geat as they lyue, vntill they dye.

And why? As longe as a man lyueth, he is careles: for a quyet dogge saye they hee bee as the a deede lion: for they hat be iuyng, & knowe if they shall dye: but they if he deede, knowe no thinge, nether desire they any more. For this reason all is forgotten, so if they be neither louch, hated nor enuyed: nether haue they any more parte in if woulde, in all that is done vnder the Sonne. For thou if wylth that, take thy deede with ioye, & buye if wylth me so gladnesse, for thy woikes please God. Let thy garments be all wylth wylth, & let if be as wylth no dyemmer. Of thy selfe so lye ioyfully in thy wylth: when thou lye, all if daies of thy life: which is but vayne: if God hath geuen the vnder the Sonne, a lye daies of thy vnto: for if thou portion in this life, of all thy labor & trauaile if thou takest vnder the Sonne. What so ever thou takest in hande to do, that do wylth thy port: for amonge the deede whyles as thou geest vnto: there is nether woike, counsell, knowledge nor vnto.

So I turned me vnto ether thinges vnder if Sonne, and I sawe, that in turnyng, it helpeth not to be swifte in buye, it helpeth not to be strenght to fynd, it helpeth not to be wylth to riden, it helpeth not to be swifte to be had in fauoure, it helpeth not to be comynges: but that all if yeth in vnto & fortune. For a man knoweth not his tyme, but like as the fysh are take with the angle, and as the byrdes are caught with the snare: thus so are men taken in the perilsome tyme, when it cometh suddenly vpon them.

This vnto haue I sawe also vnder if Sonne, & me thoughte it a greace thinge. There was a lude cote, & a fewell wylth in it: so there came a greace bynge & defiged it: & made greace bulwikes agaynst it. And in the cote there was founde a poore man (but he was wylth) which in his wylthome deuyred the cote: yet was there no body, if had any respect vnto such a symple man. Then saye I: wylthome is better then strenght. & wylthome, a symple mans wylthome is despyed, & his woikes are not herbe. A wylthmans arm calleth that is folowed in sylenes, in sette about the criege of a captaine amonge folowes. In wylthome is better then herbesse: but one in thynf: alone & despyed much good.

The X. Chapter.

And syne if corrupe sweete of mine & make it to syncke, are thinges more wylth then the wylth me & domo of a foole. A wylth mans herbe vpon the right hande, but a foole he is vpon the left. A domo foole thinketh, if any man doth as foolishly as himselfe: if any capall seeke be geue the deere rule, but negligeth the in thine office: for so shall geue wylthness be put to wylth, and wylth do me deyne. Another plague is there, which I haue sene vnder the Sonne: namely, if igno: once if is commonly amonge paynes: in if a foole syncketh in geat dignite, & the wylth are set to wylth beneath: if he seruantes open hoys, & paynes goinge vpon the wylth as a wylth seruantes. But he if syncketh vpon a pyre, shall fall therein himselfe: wylth he deede to wylth the herbe, a serpent shall bite him. Whoso if cometh stones, shall be trauaile wylth: and be that he wylth wylth, shall be hurt therewith.

When an yon is blame, and if paynes sharpened, it must be wylth againe, and that wylth might: then so wylth wylthome folow diligence. A habler of his conge is no better, then a serpent that syncketh wylth byssing. The wylthome of a wylth mans mouth are gracious, but the lippen of a foole will dystroie himselfe. The begynnyng of his calyng is foolishnes, and the last worde of his mouth is greace matrisse. A foole is so full of woikes, that a man can not what ende he wylth make: who wylth him me him to make a conclusion: The laboure of if foolish is greene: vnto the wylth, knowe not how to go in to the cite.

Who be vnder the? O thou realms and lon-gely whos kyng is but a childe, and whose prynces are early at their banckettes. Doe mell is the? O thou realms and longeth whose longe is come of nobles, and whose prynces are in the season, for strength and not for last. Thouen stouffynesse the halles full beare, and chydren yde bydes it in mych in at the house. I leave maketh men to laugh, and wyne maketh them mery: but vnto mo-nery all thinges obedient. Whyd the tyngyns mell in y thought, and speak no harm of y cyche in chy prey charyte: for a byt te of the syne shall betwaxe thy voyce, and the fischer shall be betwaxe thy wordes.

The XI. Chapter.

Seeke thy wayles out of the wateren, and so shall thou fynde the after many yeares. Sece it is awaye amonge the righte, for thou knowest not what must ynfall come vpon a synner. Whe the cloudes are full, they poure out raine vpon the earth.
And whe y are fullen, whether it be comen westwysch or northwysch what place so euer it fall, there it lyeth. So the regardeth y wayes in, shall not sorrow: and he that hath respect vnto the cloudes, shall not wepe, I know like-lye thou knowest not the wayes of the wynemen: how y bones are fylled in a mothers wombe. Euen so thou knowest not the worke of God, which is the workman of all.

Cast not thouther fyre with thy han-des: soeue thy fyre, whether it be in y mastyng or in the eveninge: for thou knowest not whether the as at that shall prosper, y thy bodye eate it is the better. The light is swete, y a pleasant thinge so is for the eyes to looke vpon the Sonne. If a man lyue many yeares, and be glad in them all, see him remember the dayes of darkness, which shall be manye when they come, all thinges shall be thus vnto. Be glad then? O thou yonge man in thy youth, and let thine heart be memory thy yonge dayes: folow the wayes of thine youth here, and the last of thine yea-re shall be then sure, that God shall bringe thee in to indignation for all these thinges.

The XII. Chapter.

Awaye displeasure out of y heart, y trowne out from thy body: for shal the yde and youth be but vanitie. Remember thy maker in thy youth, or euer the dayes of aduersite come, and in the yeeres bitter ny, when thou shalt saye: I have no pleasure in them: before the Sonne, y lighte, y lltone and the starres be darkened, and oi the cloudes turne agayne as for the dayes when the repers of the house shall crumble, and when the stronge man shall bowe them selfes: when the myllers stones shall because they be so fowle, and when the sight of the windedones shall make y yme: when the dores in the stretes shall be shute, and when y voyses of the myllers shall be layed downes when man shall crye up at the voyces of the wyde, and when all y dongers of muskyt shall be brought lowe: when man shall fyre in hye place, and be a waye in the stretes: when the Almonde be shute despyed, the greshopper borne out, and when greates poultre shall beate in: when man goeth to his longe home, and the mourners goe abow-te the stretes. O raze the silver lace be ad-den awaye, and on the golden benche be broken: O the pore be broken at the well, the whele vpon the Chyrene: O the be turned a gyfte vnto earth from whence it came, and oi the spere retorne vnto God, which gaue it. All is but vanitie, sayeth the preacher: all is but playne vanitie.

The same preacher was not wysse alone, but taughte the people knowlege also: he ga-ue good halm, taughte out the grevill and ad-versite many parables, is diligent was to fynde out acceptable wordes, righte scripture, and the wordes of trouth. For the wisdom of y wysse are like spickes and nales that gethowen, wherewith men are kepte together for they are greuen of one shephard be wylly.
Therefore be warye (my sonne) when thou be sethdowne maketh the not many y innumerable boles, nor take thyselfe doctrynes in hande, to mery thy bodye withall.

Let us heare the concludon of all thynges: Praise God, and lape his comendemen-tes, for that teacheth all men: for God shall iudge all wordes and decesse y thinges, whether they be good or euill.

That thy mouth wolde geue me a Kysse, for y brestes are mo re pleasaunt then wyne, & that because of the good and plea saunt fauoure, Thy name is a sweete smellingye dymme, therfore do the maydens loue the yet that same moneth me shalt to come after the.

The kynge hath brought me into his pre ty chamber. We will be glad to enioye in the, we thynke more of thy brestes then of wy ne, well is them that louethe.

I am black (o ye boughtees of Iherusalem) like as the tennes of the Cedarnes, and as the hanginges of Salomon: but yet am I sure & well fauoured withal. As well noe as me I am black & why? I Soune hath shyned vpon me. For when my moother chil dren had euill will ar me, they made me I kee per of the myrroure. Thus was I sayne to kepe a myrroure, which was not myne owne.

Tell me (o whom my soule loneth) where thou dwellest, where thou restest we the noone daye tell I go amonge, and come in to the flockes of thy companyons.

If thou knowe not thy self (o thou sayest among women) cha no y maye forth after y foresayde of the shepe, as though thou woldest fede y goates beside y shephardes remes. There wil I carry forth (my lone) my myne doost & with my charmes, which shal be no fewer then Pharaos.

E Then shal thy desires & thy need be made saye, & hangeth vpon spayre & goodly ierusalem a net of banded golde and we make y a sil uer doore. When the kynge shal see the table, he shal smell my Lincens: for a bodeil of lityres (a my beloved) lyeth betwixt my brestes. A cluster of grapes of Cyprus, or of the vynyardes of Engaddi, are thou unto me, O my beloved.

O how saye are thou (my lone) how say re are thou: thou hast bounde vpon O how say re are thou (my beloved) how well fauoured art thou: O how good is because with flowers, y synges of our house are of Cedre tre, & ou er ballies of Cyprusse.

The II. Chapter.

I Am the flower of the felde, and like of the valley: as the rose among ge the thornes, so is my lone among the hanging trees.

Like as the apple tree amonge the trees of the woodd, so is my beloved amonge the son nes. My desire is to sit vnder his shadowe for his face is sweete vnto my sight. He has geue me in to his wyne seller, and I drinke specially well. Refresh me with grapes, of me much as ppyles, for I am sicke of lone. O left ha de lyeth vnder my heade, & his right hande embraceth me.

I charge you (o ye boughtees of Iherusalem) knowe the Rose & hyndes of the felde, y wake nee vpon my lone not sooth yet, all ha be content her self.

We thynke I heare the voyce of my hel medo, there cometh he hepinge vpon y mountaynes, and leapinge ouer the lide hi les. My beloved is like a Roe or a young hart. Beholde, he standeth behynde a wall, he looketh in at the wyndow, & peepeth the tow the grate.

My beloved answered & so hee wnto me O stide vpon my lone, my boue, my beare full come: for lo, the wynter is now past, & my me is awake & gone. The flowers are come in in the felde, the cryingnges of cytus are come, the voyce of the turtle doore is hearden come in be. The syngers bynging forth his syng, the vynde beare blisfome, and haue god finell.

O stide vpon my lone, my beare full, and in me (my beare) out of the caues of the rockes, out of the holcs of the wall. O let me sit comen vnto me and heare thy voyce, for me is thy voyce and saye is thy face. O me the voyce, yee the litle fowles that haue wynes, for oure vynde beare blisfome.

My love is mynne, and I am his, (which sithen an idge the lyke) small the bayen te, & ad tell the shadowne by gone. Come a young hart vnto the mountaynes.

The III. Chapter.

I mighte in my bedd, I songe him, whom my soule loneth yee belon ly songe I him, doe I founde him not, I ned get vpon (thought) and go abou the thre: vpon the mart crone: I will y see him I see him whom my soule loneth but when I songe him, I founde him not.
The watchmen: that go aboude y out de me. Sawe ye not him, whom my soule loneth?

sayest amonge women : Or, what can thy love do, more then other lovers, that thou chargest vs so straitly?

Is for my lorde, he is whyte and reade coloured, a singular personne amonge many thousande : his heade is the most fyne golde, the lockes of his haire are kufshed, brown as a the euenynge : his eyes are as the eyes of doves by the water beddes, washed with mycke, and remainynge in a plentiful place : his chokes are like a garden bedd, where in the 2 peccaries plante all manner of sweete springes : his lippes droppe as the founteyne of the most princypall Myrie, his haddes are full of golde ruynges and precious stemes, his do bys as the pure yew, deare ouer with Saphyres : his legges are as the pilers of Moabell, sette upon founteynes of golde : his face is as Libanus, and as the beauty of the Cedre trees : his thow is a flower, yet he is altogether lovely. Such one is my lorde o ye doughty cete of Jerusalem such one is my love.

Whither is thy love gone thet thou sayest amonge women? whither is thy love departed, that we maye see him with thee?

The vii. Chapter.

In love is gone downe in to his garden, vnto 3 sweete smellinge beddes, that he maye refresh himself in the garden, and gather flowers. My love is myne, and I am his, which steech amonge the lilies.

Thou art pleasant to my low women as is my selfe : I see them as sayes an Jerusalem, glorious as an armye of men with their banners (Turne awaye thine eyes fro me, for they make me to proude) Thy haysie lockes are like a flocke of goates vpon 3 mount of Galaad. Thy teeth are like a flocke of sheepe 3 be cypped, which go out of the washing place : there eury one beareth two cupes, 2 not one withoute a widge then. Thy chokes are like a peece of a pomegranate, beyden 3 which I saye hys was pin. There are the soie quenes, foure score concubynes, and yenge women withoute nombre. But one is my boue, 3 my bedfynge. She is the only beloued of my mother, 2 deare vnto her that haue her. Whē the daughters shue her, they saye she was blessed 3 the quenes and concubynes pray for her. What is she thet, that perpech out as the morning : in yue as the lillies, excellent as the some, glorious as an armye of men with their banners.

I wente downe in to the nutt garden, to see what grew by the beddes, so lets yf the wynter be fionshed, and yf the pomegranates were shue forth. Then the daughters of the prynces of my people made me feidly theye. Turne a gaine, turne agayne, O thou lillie, turne agayne, turne a gaine, that we maye loke vpon the.

What pleasure haue yemen in this lillie, then when she daunceth amonge the men of warr? 3 what pleasure are thy readinges with thy lord, then prynces daughthers? Thy necke is like a fayre well, which is woude by a mynyng water master : Thy well is like a rubie goblet, which is neuer withoute wyne. Thy wombe is like an heape of wheate, so aboute with lillies : Thy two breasts are like two ewynes of yonge doves : Thy necke is as wren a tower of yew : Thy eyes are as lillie water pelen in the sydon, besyde the poore Bathshebam : Thy nose is like the tower of Libanus, which lokech towarde Damas : Thy heade thine sheweth vpon the lillie Caamel : The haysie of thy beddes is like ruynges purple solden vpon places.

O how saye and lovely art thou to my linge : a pleasure : Thy stature is like a myrtle, and thy breasts like the grape. I prayde : I will clymme vp in to the banyers, as the holde of hys banndages. Thy banyer shalbe as the vynes grapes, the smell of which shal be like the smell of apples, and thy stature like the best wyne.

Thou shalbe pure 2 cleare as my lillie, his lippes and teeth shal haue the price. There wil I come and vnto my lillie, and shal carye him vnto me. O come on my waye, let vs go forth in to the silde, and vnto the lodginge in the villages. In the morninge we wil ryse by cymes, and go forth 3 yarde : yf it be spongye forth, yf the grapes be growne, 2 yf the pomegranates be shewen. There wil I geue the my best : thou shal the Maridagoras geue thei sille be oore doves : There, in my lillie haue I to vnto the all manner of fowles, both new and olde.

What I mighte fynde the withoute 3 I saye I loue as my lillie which sucke my mothers milke : that thou woldest not be offeinded, yf I hit the and thoughte the in so my mother for her that thou mightest teach me, and thou mighte geue the drinke of the red wyne of the sweete sappe of my pomegranates. As lillie hardy I saye vnto my heart, 2 thou shalste auouch me.

Salomons Balcees.

The viij. Chap. Ho. liij.

I charge you (o ye daughters of Ierusalem) ye wote not wth my loue net coude her, she came herself. What is she thus, I charge you from the wilderness, and lea-uen her here: I am the same that washed up amonge the apple trees, where thy gettome I, where I mother broughte is to the woodes.

O howe as a scale vps thine heere, and as a vpon thine arme: for love is mightie as death, & greedie as the hell. His con-ancyng, and a very flamm of the LORD
 : his many waters are not able to quench it, wher maye I streames brenne it. For as we knowe all the good of his heusen, he shalde counte it nothinge.

Wher my love is calde doore yonge sister, his bushe are not yett growne, what shal the vna be? If she be a wall, we shal hys sister bellowre there vpon: If she is a tower, we shal fisten her with bowes of arrowe.

If I be a wall, & my bushe be growne, then am I as one that hath founde sauoure in his sighte.

Salomon had a wyrrynde at Baal Hamon, whiche wyrrynde deliuered he vnto the kepers: I enery one for the frute therof shalde geue him a thousand pecuns of syluer. Thus my wyrrynde (o Salomon) geueth the o shou fande, and two hundred is I expecte of the frute.

Then that dwellest in the garden, O let me heare thy voyce, that my company-ons maye heere to the same. O gett the arrowe (my love) an

The prophet Esay.

This is the prophecy of Esay the sonne of Amos, which he shewed vpon Iuda and Jerusalem. In the tyme of Osi-as, Iosaphat, Ahaz, and Ezechias Kinges

of Iuda.

The first Chapter.

Heare ye heares, hearken eares, for the LORDE speaketh: I haue notified & brought vpon children, and they are fallen away from me. An oxe knoweth his lord, and an asse his masters stall, but Israel knoweth not henge, my people haue not understandinge. When seest thou synfull people, which doe appeare in blasphemies, a fra-moure generation, unwarlike children. They have forsaken the LORDE, they haue picked the holy one of Israel vnto anger, and are gone backward. Wherefore shalloe ye be plaged my reue? For ye are euer fallinge away. The whole heade is sick, and the bre-st is very heuy. From the sole of the foot moeth the heade, there is no whole parte in all y^e body: for all are wounden, berthen, fiss and strepes, which can nerther be helped, nor heale, wyldest; nor eased with any mynture.

Your londe lieth wast, your cities are brent vp, your enemies desoure your londe, and ye must be sayre to stonde, and loke vpon it: and it is desolate, as it were with thornes in a banel. Moouest y^e daughter of Syon like a towne like a cottage in a wynde and like a towne in tyme of warre, like a besieged cite. And excepte the LORDE of hostis had left me a few alque: it shoulde haue bene as Sodoma, & like vnto Gomora.

Heere the word of the LORDE ye eynemes of Sodoma: and hearken vnto the lawe of our God, thou people of Gomora.
Whye steepe so many sacrifices vnto me? I am desirous for the burnt offringes of ree-

The i. Chap. Ho. ij.

there, and with y^e fatnesse of oblationes. I haue no pleasure in the bloude of bullockes, lambs and goates. When ye appeare before me, who requyreth you to craue withyn my parches? Offer me no oblationes, for it is but lost labour. I abhorre your incense. I maye not awaye with you: a newmoone, your Sabbathes and solemne dayes, your fastinges are also in wayne. I hate your new holy dayes and fastinges, when so my wey haue. They make me wery. I can not abeyr them. Though ye holde out y^e boardes, yet turne I awaye eyes from you. And though ye make many prayers, yet heere I needinge at all, for your benedes are full of bloude.

Wast thou, make you cleane, put awaye y^e euell throughtes out of myghte, cease from doinge of euell and violence. Learn to do right, apphe your selues to equyte, deliuer the oppressed, helpe the fatherlesse to his righte, let the widowes complainte come before you. When goe together the LORDE shal will calke together. Is it not so? Though your synnes be as red as scarlet, shal they not be whiter then snowe? And though they were like purple, shal they not be like whye well? Is it not so? If ye belonge to obediens, ye shal enioye the best thinge that groweth in the londe. Because ye be obstinate and rebellious, ye shal be deuided with the sword: for thus the LORDE hath promised with his owne mouth.

So to happeneth it then that the righteuous cite (which was full of equyte) shal become unfaithfull as an wharfeighen on the dome in it, but more narether. Thy silence is turned to boasting, and thy wyne myce reuolce. Thy prayces are crayones and companyones of chereus. They lone giftes alrogether, and solowne remarke. As for the fatherlesse, they helpe him not to his righte, nether wyl they liue the widowes cause: come before them. Therefore speaketh the LORDE God of bestis: the mighty one of Israel: Why I must take me of mynt mimies, and a vengeance vpon the. And therefore shal I laye my hand vpon the, and barre out thy ydellnes from the synfull land, and put out all thy leade, & fetch thy iudges agayne as they were from ym. And thy Senate as they were from y^e bygmynge. Then shal the cite be called the righteous cite, the faithfull cite. Because Sion shal be reborned with equyte, and hye capte y^e with righte of iustice. For the transgressours and ungodly, and ydell shall be.

for that no man shalbe able to cumber them.

The seconde Chapter.

Downer this is the word that was e-sped unto of Iay the same of Amon, vpon Juda and Ierusalem. It will be also in proofe of tyme; That the hall where the house of the LORD is layd shall be vdefaced wth hilles, and exalted about all li-le hills. And all the spiritual preast men him and the multitude of people shall goe see him, spitting thus one to another; yee see us go to the buld of the LORDE, and see the house of J God of Jacob; yee maye see us his waye, and yee maye welke in his pathes. For yf lawe that come one of Syon, and the worde of Goe from Ierusalem; shall geue sentence amonge the heathen, and shall reforme the multitude of people: So that they that breake their sworde and speare to make riches, shall as I saye therof,

O my people, thye leuen becaune the, and made out the waye of thy footsteppen.
The LORD is here to comen of beniamin, reward shal geue to geue to geue with the people. The LORD shal come forth to be against the Senatours and prynces of Ihusa, and shal sitte them vnder them: It is ye that haue borne a p my wyngarde, the robbery of the poore in your house. Wherefore ye oppress my people, and marie y them of beniamin: thus shal the God of hostes reuenge them.

Wherein I haue met y of LORD: Seinge the doughters of Sion are become so pre-cie, and come in with stretched out neckes, and with wayne withouten eyes: seinge they were trippinge for nyght with their feet.
Wherefor shal the LORD shame the headen of the doughters of Sion, and make their haire breake as they dy. In that daye shal the LORD make arentes the goyg of iustice of their apparel, and spanges, i hermes, parlettes, and colours, blaceleres and hoones, y goodly floweres, wyde and brode raymes, basshes and heabbandes, rynges and garlandes, holy daye clothes and waies, ker-ties and pyrmes, glasses and smokes, bonet-tes and sadnes.

And in steade of good smell there shal be stink amonge them. And for there gyddes there shal be lawfe bondes. And for iustice there shal be baldnesse. In steade of a stamacher, a iack cloth, and for the robbery wyndrowesse and somelawnynges. Their holondes and there mightie men shall y-nith with the sword in batall.

The fourth Chapter.

O ye that ryne shal cheir gaues meane and complayne, and they shal fey as be solate sold a pen therrate. Then shal se-mentures sale hoide of our mane, and saye: we will haue all our meate and drinke together in comon, onlye that we maye be called chyryues, and that this shame full reproff maye be take fromme. After that ye shal the banne of y LORD be beautifull and mightie, and y fene of the earth shal be fayne and pleassme for i ioseph. Iacob then shall saye: I praye the. When shal the remaine in Sion and the remaunt at Jerusalem be called holy: namely all such as are remaunt amonge the yungene: Jerusalem rethie: yme no i the LORD shal wylly nrye the desolation of the doughters of Sion, so pounges th blonde out from Jerusalem, w y wynde of his smete and fyre.

Wherefor upon all the dwellinges of the hill of Sion and upon their whole congregacion, shal the LORD praye a clonde and smete by daye, and the slymynghe of a flammynghe fyre by night, for all their glory shal be profaned. And Jerusalem shal be a tabernacle for a shabowre because of there in the daye tyme, a place and refuge where a minnynghe keppe him for wecher and tyme.

Yow well than, I will syng my beloved sende a songe of his wyngarde.
My beloved frende hath a wyngarde in a very frutefull place: non greunde. Thin he hedged, this he walled rounde aboute, and planted it with goodly grapes. In the myddest of it he dyld be a tower, and in the wyne pisse therein. And a fere warden when he loled y it shal be dring him grape, he be dring forth thomen. I shewe you now my cause: O ye Cytizens of Jerusalem and whole Iuda: Judge I praye you be-twixte me: and my wyngardinge. What more coude haue bene done for it, that I haue not done? Wherefore then hath it geuen thoume, where I loled to haue had grapes of it?

Well, I shall tell you how I will be of my wyngarde: I will take the hedge from it, that it maye be penyly, and beate downe y wall, that it maye be troden vnder foot. I will in ye it wast, that it shall neither be tympled nor cut, but beare the me and be are. I will also sedyd y cloudes, that they shal not saye vpon it. As for the wyngar-te of the LORD of hostes it is the house of Israel, and whole Iuda: he saye plantinge of the: he loled for euer, but theye be in wengne: for righte iusticse, lo, it is a mystery.

Wo to you that saye one hanse to another, and bringe one londe syngh wro and ther, till ye cate geue no more greunde. Well ye well vpon the earth alone: The LORD of hostes owne the me: I praye: are: shal forasmuch the ciues be verily without walls, and yf houses without men, which shal be also desolate, and be buryed for the LORD shal take the men for none, so that the loude shal cry waight forerethers, the tenth parte shal remayne, for the shal conuerse and be saved. And likewise as the Trebyren and others bunge forth their stones, so shal the helydes haue frere.

The seventh Chapere.

It happened in the yere of Ahas the sonne of Ionathas, which was the sonne of Iosephau kynge of Iuda: that he came the kynge of Siria, and Posa Rome his sonne, kynge of Israel: wente up to ward Jerusalem to besiege this walled cite: For when the herse of Dauid (that is Ahas) heard thereof, hee of Siria and Ephraim were confederate together: thus herequested yet and yet to also of his people like as a tie in the felde, that is nowt with the wynde.

Thus sayde God vnto Esay: go meet Ahas (thou art thy sonne Seir Jafin) at the house of yf deer pelle, in the fore part by the fullers ground, and saye vnto him: take heed to thyself and be still, but stande not neether be sayn nor charged, for these eyes tales: that is for these two synners yf synners, the reuolt and furiosities of Ahas the Syrian and Romeles sonne: because that the kynge of Siria Ephraim and Romeles sonne haue wickedly conspired against the, sayenge: We will go downe into Iuda, weze chyl, and bringe them vnto us, and sit a kynge there with the sonne of Tabal. For thus saith the LORD God thereto. It shall not so go forth, neither come so to passe, for the head of the of Samaria is Damascus, but the head of Damascus is Rezin. And after synne and chyl, for yere, shal the phryni be remore a people. And the chyl of the phryni in Samaria, hath the head of Samaria is Romeles sonne. And yf ye beleue me, there shall no pious be together with you.

Wherupon, God spake vnto Ahas, sayen. I requyre a token of the LORD the God, wherby he becomare the depty heareth of cowardice hyge aboue. The sayde Ahas: I will requyre none, neether will I compe the LORD. The LORD answered: Then he aro, ye of the house of Dauid: so it not enough for you, that ye be greuous vnto me, but ye must greue my God also? And therefore the LORD shal geue you a token of him self: Beholde, a virgin shal conceaue and beare a sonne, and shal call his name Emmanuel: But ter and bonyshall he care, yf he maye be receyued, and thos yf good. But it came that childe came to knowlege, to chylde the end and chylde the good: The lorde (that thou art so saye for) shal be delectate of beeh his fuges.

The LORD also shal sende a sygne vpon the, vpon thy people, and vpon thy synners: howe (soch a synner came since the sygne of Ephraim departed from Iuda) chylde w yf kynge of the Assyrians. For at the same yere shal the LORD whyle for the sygne yf are aboute the reuer of Egipte, and for yf Beres in the Assyrian leade. The chylde shall come, and shal light all in the voley, in yf women of sient, vpon all greue thynge, and in all cerners.

At the same yere shal the LORD shane the hayre of the heads, and vpon the chylde the cleme of with the consuer that he shall paye theas with all beyond the water: namely, with yf kynge of the Assyrians. At the same yere shal a man syne with a corne, and two shepe. Then because of the abondance of myld, he shal make butter and eate. So that every one vnto the maye in the lode shal care butter and bony. At the same yere all synners (though there be a thousand synners in one, and were sold for a thousand silver linges) shal be curren a bitare and chomies. Like as they shal come in to the lode with cornes and banes, so shal all the lode be come beare and chomies. And as for all hilles that are cut between downe, they shal not come vpon the, for feare of beare and chomies. But the cattel shal be dryen thither, and the shepe shal fete there.

The viij. Chapere.

Wherupon the LORD sayde vnto me: Take the a greace leaf, and wryte in it, as men do with a penne, that he spee him to robbe, and haue him to spoyle. And immediately I called vnto me farchil wrytesses: Dnas the prest, and Zacharias yf some of Zacharias. A feer that wnt I vnto the prophettisse, wher now had conitane and bouie a sonne. Then sayde the LORD to me: geue him this name: Mahech shall he be called, that is a speider robber, as he shal speale. For why, ouer the childe shal haue knowlege to saye: Ahi and Ihi, yf is father, and mother: shal yf riches of Samaria and yf synners of Samaria be curre awaye, thow wiche kynge of yf Assyrians.

The prophet Esay.

both they like the LORD of hostes. Therefore the LORD shall come out of Israel both by heart and tale, and twygge in one day. By the heade, is understood the Sanctuare and honorable man, and by y tale, the prophet that preacheth lye. For all they which ensnare the people that they be in a right case, soch be discerner. Such as men thynke alld to be perfect a monge these, are but cast awaye.

Therefore shall the LORD have no pleasure in their yonge men, neither favour the cheacherlesse and wydowes. For they are altogether ypocrites and wiche, and all their meetings speake fey. After all this shall not the LORDs wrath cease, but yet his honde shall be stretched out still. For the wogodly burne, as a fyre in the beyers and thornes: And as it were out of a fyre in a wood or arbore, so ascenbeth the smoke of their pyres.

For this cause shall yf wrath of the LORD of hostes fall upon the lande, and the people shall be consumed, as it were with fyre, so man shall spare his brother. If a man do carie him to the ryght honde, he shall fynd him, or so he shall fynde him to eat, he shall not have ynough. Every man shall eate the flesh of his owne arme: Manasse shall eate Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasse, and they both shall eate Juda. After all this shall not the LORDs wrath cease, but yet shall his honde be stretched out still.

The tenth chapter.

Woe be unto you yf make unrighteous labours, and devyse chinges, which be wharls set to kepe; wherethrough the poore are oppressed, on every syde, and the innocens of my people are there with robes of judgement: that wyddowes may kepe your paye, and that ye may robbe the fatherlesse. What will ye do the yme of the vntion and destruction, that shall come from furte: To whom will ye come for helpe: for whom will ye geue your hennoure, that may kepe: that ye come not amonge the presens, as lye amonge the dead? After all this shall not the wrath of the LORD cease, but yet shall his honde be stretched out still.

Woe be also unto Assur, which is a staff of my wrath, in whose honde is the rod of my punishment. For I shall send him amonge those ypocritish people, amonge the people that have deserved my diffauour: I shall I send him: that he may utterly wite them, spoyls them, and treade them

downe like the myre in the strete. Howbeit his meanynge is not so, neither shal he have hate of this fashion. But he ymagineth only, how he maye overthrowe and destroye much people, for he shall use not my pynnes all thyng. In net Laine as canstoe wyne, as Chacham: Is it harder to conquer Antiochia then Arphad: Or is it lighter to overcome Damascus then Samaria? As who say: I were able to wynn the kingdome of the Idolaters and their goddes, but not Jerusalem and Samaria. Shall I not do unto Jerusalem and their ymages, as I do unto Samaria and theie ymages?

Wherefore the LORD saith: As soon as I have performed my whole worke upon the hye of Syon and Jerusalem: the will I also wite the noble and stouce kynge of Assiria, with his wysdome and pryde. For he stendereth thus in his owne conceite: Thus do I, choise the power of myne owne honde, and thow my wysdome: For I am wys, I am he that remove the lordes of the people, I robbe theie pynnes: and take one of the wretched: I bringe them from their hie seates, they honde hath fallen: be out the hostes of the people, as it were a nest. And like as egges, that were layde here and there, are gathered to gether: So do I gather all countreies. And there is a woman, yf darre be so bolde, as so sandy a sifter, that darre open his mouth, or once rebulke.

But both the eye hoste itself, agaynst him yf he wite the truth, or both the same make any tynge, agaynst him that rebulke: That were quenlike, as yf the reb dyderalke it self agaynst him, that beareth it: as though yf staff shoulde magnifye it self as who saye it were no wood. Therefore shall the LORD of hostes sende him power in his rydes, and burne up his power, as it were with a fyre. But the lye of Israel shal be fyre, and his Sanctuare shal be the flame, and it shall smole, and burne up his chozen and beyers in one daye, yet all the glory of his ryddes and sildes shal be consumed with body and soule. As for him self, he shal be as one chased awaye. The trees also of his silde shal be of such a nombre, that a chyld maye tell them.

After yf be yf shal the remnant of Israel, and such as are escaped out of the hande of Jacob, see no more obforce at him that smyte them, but shal confesse them selfe as with faith fulnesse and truth in the LORD.

DE, the holy one of Israel. The remnant, yet and the posterity of Jacob, shall come to me, God the mighty one. Yet, though they people of Israel be as the sons of freethy, yet shall but the remnant of them only continue unto him. For he in the beginning of him, shall flower in righteousness; and therefore of the LORD, of his people, shall perfectly fulfill the promise, that he hath determined in the in yoke of the whole world. Therefore thus saith the LORD God of hosts: To them my people, that dwell in Zion, I have a way for the finger of the Almighty: The shall wage his staff in the, yet and because the wrath thereof, as the lightning yet some time. Therefore, shall my wrath and my indignation be fulfilled against their iniquity.

biae, Moors, Lamites, Carayes, Turcochians and Iudees of the see. And hee shall see a rebellion among the Gentiles, and they together y gathered of Israel, yea and the ouerfall of Iuda from the seat carnall of y world. The bared of Ephraim, and y eunice of Iuda shall be cleared out. Ephraim shall be no more called Iu-da, and Iuda shall be called Ephraim they both together shall flye vnto the borders of the Philistines toward the West, and people there together shall be ward the East. The Ioudyes and the Moabites shall see their heeds fall, ambly Ammonites shall be obeyed vnto them.

The LORD also shall cleave the wings of the Egyptianer, and with his mighty despall brisfe vs his hande euer till, and shall smyte his fewe streames and make men go euer dry shod. And thus shall he make a waye for his people, y^e come y^e out from the Assyrians, like as it happened to y^e Israelites, at the tyme they departed out of the lande of Egypt.

This is the heuy burthen upon Egypte:
Behold, the LORD cometh vnto the gods of Egypte, and come in to Egypte. And the goddesses of Egypte shall crymble as hie cōmyng, and the best of Egypte shall quake within her. For thus saith the LORD: I will streue up the Egyptians one agaynst a nother amonge them selues, so that one shall be cure agaynst his brother and neghbour, yet one cure agaynst a nother, and one by agone agaynst another. And Egypte shall be choled in his self whē they are eun-cal at their goddesses, at their prophetes, at their sorcerers and witches: then will I binge the counsel so as weh.

Mat. 23. 1.

Let them tel the sythens the, wha the LORD of hostes hath talen in home agayn Egypte. Ioule are those prynces of Ioon proue: and the prynces of Egypte: yet the dyces of Egypte much the nobles of the stocke. For the LORD hath made Egypt beond & with the spere of error, and they shall vse it in all auerence: and lye as a ma goeth sprenges abente. For I will lode good counsel, so f they shall see to cause of the counsel, which f LORD of hostes hath bewyld agaynst them. Then shal the fyre cities of Egypte speake with the nauies a range, and sweare by the LORD of hostes, & the heliepolis shall be one of them.

As the same yme shall the LORD of hostes have an auiser in the mydd of synles of Egypte, with this vicle they by: Can the LORD. This shall be a ceter of synny vnto the LORD of hostes in the lode of Egypte, wha they shall crie vnto him cause of those that oppresse them: that shall seade them a capce yne and a synner to deliuer them.

Moreover, Egypte shall be booght vnto the LORD, and the Egyptians also shall we the LORD as be saine yme: they to him euenen as with peare offerings, with meat offerings: they shal puer him offerings, yet & paye him also. The LORD shall synne Egypte, & heale it agayn.

And they come to y^e LORD, and he also shal haue mercy vpon them, and saue them. Then shal there be a cōsumr waye our of Egipt, and Assiria. The Assirians shal come in to egipt, and be egiptians in to Assiria. The egiptians also and the Assirians shal both haue one God to seruaue. Then shal Israhel much honour be the thirde to egipt, and Assir. And the LORD of hostes shal bless them, sayenge. Blessed is my people of egiptians, Assir is the work of my hōd, becaus Israel is myne inheritance.

The xx. Chapter.

Then saye the LORD: what an myser name I saye gauchinated and barefote, it was to me and y^e sūmme of the thynge, that after the yere shal come vpon egipt, and Achiaia. For euen thus shal the kunge of the Assirians brayn both yonge and olde, as prisoners naked and barefote, one of egiptians and egiptians, And shal dyscomt y^e shayn of egipt. They shal be alidat their wise men, and assamed out of another: the egiptians of the Morians, and the Morians of the egiptians, at the sight of the glory.

Moner they that dwell in y^e Iles shal forment the same day: behold, this is our hope, to whom we fled to sette helpe, that we might be deliuered from the kunge of Assirians. How will we escape?

The xxiiij. Chapter.

1 I have beene upon Titus, (Mow) yf shippes of Tharsis, for theye thow nede cometo the grounde, and conquest of them, that are come from Citibus. The Jewellicies of the Ilandes, the marchandise of Sidon, and they that occupied the fe (of whom thou wast full many tyme) are a poppie. For by se were theye fraces brought into the, and all maner of come by water. Thou wast the comos marchet of al people. Good is forie, yett not all y power of the se copleace, and saith: O y I had neuer traded with childe, that I had neuer boine any, y I had neuer consyld by, ner brought up dongher. As for as I Egypte percauecher, the wylde an sory as Tien is itself. So once the se, Mow ye y dwell in the yce. Ye are that the glomeric, which hath bene of long antiquite, wher natyues dwellinge farre, comen to herse greatly: Who hath benyfysh things upon Titus the crowne of salomons, wher marchantes and capaynes were the highest and principal of the world. But the LORD of hostes hath benyfysh that he maye put downe al pompe, and minis all the glory of the world. For he hath thy honde (o thou daughter of the se) as men go once the water, and there is nore gyble more.

2 Thus the LORD the remoneth the kingdoms, and hath taken in hande agaynst this mightie Chanaan to rote it out: hath stretched out his hande over the se, and sayde: From hence forth shal the sea be as a miry pocke: thou o daughter Sidon, for thou shal be put downe of the earth. Woe miserably shal yf woulde be waisted & cleme destroyed. For yf the LORD hath so determined in himself. The earth shal be heape & decaye: The face off earth shal pershye & fall away, the proud people off yf woulde shal come to naught, for yf warr is comynge off her is dwellece.

¶ For why they have offended yf lame, they wylde the chynallces, and made the euallunge & clamor of noose effect. And herfore shal the earth be dwelt the earth: for they yf dwelleth, have synned wherfore they shal be wylde also, and those that remaine, shal be very few. The swete wyne shal moune, the grapes shal be weake, and all yf have bene me in yf harre, shal slythe. The myrth of a barrennes shal be layde downe, the chere of the ioyful shal cresse, and the pleasure of stunes shal bene as cinbe: there shal so moie wyse bewrite with myrth, & the beer shal be bytter to the the dweller, & the wylde cities shal be broken downe, all houses shal be shor, that no man maye come in.

In the streets shal there be lift up a crye because of wyne, all mens ephers shal vanishe away, and all ioy of the earth shal pershe. Disolaces shal remayne in the cities, and the gates shal be smytten with wastefesse. In a shal happen unto all lentes and to all people, like as when a man smyteth downe yf olives, yf are left upon the tree: of which a few grapes, when the wyne gatheringe is over. And those same that remaine, shal lift up their voyce, and be glad, & shal magnifie the glory off the LORD, even from the sea, & praye in the name of the LORD God of yfrael, in the valeys and yfides. Wherefore songe son grece the praye of the night owes, & frale be mdes of the woulde. Therefore yf must speate: O my myrthfulnesse, so my powerte, woe is me, all is ful of synners, which offend be of purpose and malice. And therfore, & thou that dwellest upon the earth, there is o: hōde for the, share, pye and snare. Who so seeketh the terrible crye, shal fall in to the pye. And yf he come out of the pye, he shal be take into the snare. For the wyndomes aboute shal be opened, and the foundation of the earth shal moue.

The earth shal geue a greete crack, it shal heve a fure ruyn, and take so horrible fall. The earth shal stander like a broken mas, and be rakte & maye like a tent. For my debes shal lise heave up her, yf must fall, and so ever rise up & geue me. In the same wyne shal the LORD muste together the his hostes aboute, and yf kynges of the woulde upon the earth. These shal be coupled together as pūdners be, and shal be shure is o: ne warde and pūnished innumerable daies. The Moone and the Sonnes shal be aslamed, when the LORD of hostes shal rade them so: Jerusalem upon the mount Sion, before and with his excellent comed.

The xxij. Chapter

¶ The LORD, thou art my God, yf must praye & se the, and magnifie yf name: for thou bringest marvellous thynges to posshe, according to thine olde counceles, truly and stedfastly. Thou makest of to come, heape of stone, and of head cities, brodes wallen: The palaces of the wylde desire putt thou out of the cite, & have they shal neuer be bylde agayne. Therefore the very rude peopple must magnifie the, and the cities of the cruel behem must feare the. For thou art the poone mane helpe, & strength for the needful in his necessite. Thou art a defence & geuynce end weether, & shal be agayne yf he be. Thou art the presumptuous, thou art like a stronge whylle wynde, that casteth downe the boosynge of the mygthy, thou trespast men from heare with the shadow of the cloudes, thou cuttest off the branches of cyrances. Wherefore the LORD of hostes shal once prepare a feist for all people upon the hill. 25

he hath made it playne, he sowereth it with siches or cornyn, the sowerch of wheate and barley in their place, Milium and Rye also in their place. And if he maye do it righte bes God teacheth him and sheweth him.
For he receiveth not the siches one such a wayne, ne if he bringeth he the cart here into there out of the cornyn, but he chofe siches of siches out of which a flote, and the cornyn with a rod. As for the wheate, he gryndeth it to make bread therof. In as much as he can not bringe it so passe w' reavinge out. For nether the blisping that the cart rebeles ma-sich like thinges come of the LORD of ho-at in might and mighte. The xxix. Chap.

When the Lord shall saye, thou shalt be as a man. Take yet some years, and lee downe thyselfe yet passe over: then shall Ariel be besieged, so shall he be heavy and sorowful, and shall be unto me even as a lyen.
For I will lye in wait to the rounde aboute, and kepe if in such towne, and grabe up by the agaynst y. And thou shalt be brought lowe, and speake out of the earth, and thy wordes shall go humbly out of y greumbe.
Thy voyce shall come out of the earth, like the voyce of a wyche, and thy talkinge shall growe out of the myre. For the multitude of thine enemies shall be like mead dust. And the number of Tyannets shall be as y dust that the wynde scatterth nynyete stony.

Thou shalt be visited of the LORD of hostes with reboude, carch quate, and with a greuous carch, with the whyle wynde, compell, and with the finne of a conspice myne yre. But now the multitude of all the people, that went one agaynst Ariel, the whole hoste, the stronger holdes, and sich like thinge became which a peache in the nyght. It is like as when an hungrie man dreameth: that he is earynge, and when he awaketh, he hath nothinge like as when a thirstie man dreameth: that he is drinkinge, and when he awaketh, he is thyrstie, and his soule concient.

So is the multitude of all people, that mustre them selfen agaynst the hill of Sion. But ys shall be at yowre wryte in the ye shal be a bafled: ys shall strake and release, and fra. Ye shall be distressed, but not of my-

ne. Ye shall fall, but not thorow dednesse.
For the LORD shall geve you an hard slepinge spere, and holde do wnt yowre eye namely y' prophetes and heades which shall be, them shall be cover. And all y' op-one shall be unto you, as the wynde that stonde in a scaled leete, when one offeth it to a man that is lemed, and sayeth he as this leete. The he as a nyghtingale, I can rede, four is short. But ys he be gualone y' is not lemed, or sayde unto him: he this leete. Then ys y' he. I can not rede.

Therefore shall sayeth the LORD. In so much as this people draweth hymne of their mouth, and playeth me highly with their lippes: wher as there here a man in so farr fro me, and the farr which they owne me to me, that cometh they to mens-ures and doctrynes: yet for all this they owne unto this people, a marvellous terrible and greates thinge. I amdy this: I will strengthen the wilde of their wylde, and the bestidunge of their lende men shall perish. We be unto them that sette so depe, to be be their ymagination be foue the LORD, which reboude thei cooless in y' hart, and saye: who seith we, or who knoweth we

Which ymagination of yowr is com-when the pecters clays scatterth aduise, as though the wynde might saye to y the master: make me not, or as when an eaten vessel saith of the portee: he under-standeth not. Se ye not that it is hard by the Libanus shall be turned in to Cher-mel, and that Cheremel shall be taken as a wodde: Then shall deaf men understand the wordes of the wynde, and the eyes of the blinde shall se without any cloude or har-nes. The oppressed shall holde a very fall in the LORD, and the poore people shall reioyse in the holy one of Israel.

Then shall the furious people ceasse if meares shall be put away, and all they if do wronge shall be roccer one, such as boure do bid we me unto synne, and if I owne him, which reioyced them in the port, such as came good perfonnes to yowr.

And therefore the LORD. Hence the befender of Abrahams: saith thus unto the house of Jacob: I towe shall not Jacob be as shamed, nor his face as founde, wher seich amonge his children: (whom my hand

At the xij. yeare of kinge Ezechias, in heaue. Art thou able to sit me there vpr?

Singe me to chate thou canst not resist the power of the smallest prince of heaue. LORDE hath, how darest thou trust in thy charottes and horse men of Syria? Moreover, thinkest thou of I am come downe to haue, to destroye this lande with out the LORDE: will? The LORDE sayde vnto me: go downe in to that land, chate thou mayest destroye it.

Then saye Eliachim, Gobaa & Johah two Rabshachs: Speake to us thy seruants in the Syriane language, for we vnderstande it well. And speake not in to the Iewes tongue, lest the folke heare, which lath vpon the wall. Then answered Rabshachs: I thinke ye, y the kinge sent me to speake this vnto you: & hath he sent me to chate also, & hath he apointed the wall: they they be not expelled to eate their owne worpe, and drinke their owne skale with you?

And Rabshachs stode stiff, & cried with a loud voice in the Iewes tinge, and sayde: Remember heere how the greates kinge of the Assyria geuech you awayinge. Thus saith the kinge: Is not Eschias diseane you, for he shal not be able to deliuer you? Moreover, Is not Eschias comforte you in the LORDE, when he saith: The LORDE with out doubt shal defende us, & shal not geue ouer this land to the hondes of the kinge of the Assyria, beleachin not. But thus saith the kin-ge of Assyria: to pteyne my fauoure, m clyne to me: & maye euery man enioye his wyngard and figgetree, and drinke the water of his citike: into the tyme that I come my self, & kinge you in to a lande, y is like your owne: where in is wheat and wyne, which is both so me with fide, and planted with vngardes.
Is not Eschias diseane you, when he sayth vnto you: he LORDE shal deliuer us.

Altheghe goddes of the Gentiles remouen longe, from the power of the kin-ge of the Assyria: Where is the God of Be-luch & Zaphad? Where is the God of Beluchamain? And who was able to defende Babylonia out of my hondes? Or which of all the goddes of the iddes, hath deliuered there a countre out of my power, so that the LOR DE shoulde deliuer Ierusalem from my hondes?
Moreover, Eschias messaungers helde the tongues, and a sworne not one worde: for the kinge had charged them, that they shul be geue him none answer. So came Eliachim & some of the preside, Gobaa the scribe, and Joah Zapha the scribe of the treasury, vnto Eschias with rence clothes, & tolde him the wordes of Rabshachs.

The xxxij. Chap. Ho. xiiij.

The xxxij. Chapter.

When Eschias herde that, he remembered his clothes, & put on a sack cloth, & went in to the temple of the LOR DE. But he found Eliachim the preside, & so-na the scribe: & the eldest prestes clothed in sack, vnto the prophet Esay the scribe of Amos, & they sayde vnto him: Thus saith Eschias as this is the daye of our deliuance: of which I was as a childe cometh to the byrth, but the woman hath no power to bringe it forth. The LORDE thy God (o douce) hath well considered the wordes of Rabshachs, whom his lordes y kinge of the Assyria hath sent, to defu & blasphemethe thyng: & God with such wordes, as the LOR DE y God hath herde right well. And the few lift up y prayer for the remanens, that ye are left. So the seruantes of kinge Es-chias came to Esay.

And Esay gaue them this answer: Saie thus vnto your lordes: thus saith the LOR DE: Be not a frayde of the wordes that thou hast herde, when with the kinge of Assyria seruantes haue blasphemed me. Wherefore, I will cause a wynde go ouer him, as fone as he heareth it, he shal go agayne in to his countre, there will I destroye him with the sword. How when Rabshachs remember, he founde y kinge of Assyria laynge fuge to Libna, for he had vnderstande, that he was departed from Libna. For there came a rummour, y Tarach: kinge of Ethiopia was come forth to warre agaynst him.

And when the kinge of Assyria herde y, he sent ether messaungers to kinge Eschias, with this commaundement. Saye thus to Eschias kinge of Iuda: Is not thy God diseane the, in whom thou hopest, & sepest?
Ierusalem shal not be geue in to the hondes of the kinge of Assyria. For thou hast well knowe the kinges of Assyria haue hardel to the landes, that they haue subuerted, & ha-pest thou to escape? Were the people of the Gentiles (whom my progenitors conquest) deliuered at: my cyme chide their goddes?
As namely, Bosan, Haran, Keeph, & the childe of Iethu, which dwell at Tbalassar.
Where is the kinge of Hamath, & the kinge of Zaphad, & the kinge of the cite Sepharnaim, Lena and Ana? How when Eschias had receaued y letter of the messaungers, he rebid, he went up into the house of the LOR DE, & opened the letter before y LORDE. And Eschias prayed before the LORDE in this manner: O LORDE of hostes, thou God of Israel, which dwellest vpon Eschias. Thou art the God, that only ye God of all the king-domes of the world, for thou only hast created haue & reach, (I incline thine ear O LORD 23 & I will hearken to thy voice.) O LORD, & I will ponder all the wordes of Sennacherib, which hath sent his embassage to blaspheme the, the living God. For I saw (O LORD) that the kinges of Assiria haue conquered all king-domes & landes, & cast their goddes in the fy-re. Whom they thought they were no goddes but the wordes of mens handes, of wood or stone, therefore haue they destroyed them. De-lyer we then (O LORD our God) from the handes of Sennacherib, of all kingdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou only art O LORD. Then Esay the sonne of Amos sent unto Sennacherib, sayinge: Thus saith the LORD God of Israel: Where as thou hast made thy prayer vnto me, as touching Sennacherib, thine ear shall heare, that the LORD hath given concerning him: Despisid art thou, & mested O daughter of Sion he hath shaken his head at the, O daughter of Jerusalem. For thou Sennacherib, whom hath thou defied or blasphemed? And a gawayt whō hast thou lifted up thy voice, & exalted thy proude lofes? & then agaynst the holy one of Israel. Then so the yherusalemites haue blas-phemed the LORD, and thus holdest thou of thyself. I censure the haughtynesse, & sy-des of Albasia with my house. And the re will I cut downe the hie Cedar tree & the fayrest sytter tree. I will up in to the toppe of it & in to the chiefe of his simle woodde.

If there be no water, I will grane & drynke.
And as for waters of defence, I shall drie them up with the sicke of myne booste. For (saith thou) hast thou not herbe, whae I haue taken my hande, & brought to passe of olde time? That same will I do now also: I will destroye, & bringe the stronge cities vnto hea-pe of stone. For their inhabitants shall be like lame men, brought in feare & confounded.
They shall be like the grasser & grene herbe in the fildes, like the hay vpo house toppes, that we berech, as soon as the greene up.

The xxxvii. Chap.

And sothe as the house of Iuda as an establed, shal come together, and the remnant shal eate & be drinke, & bringe forth fruitous. For the captiues shal go out of Babilo-ne, & the remnant from the mount Sion.
And this shal the gelousy of the LORD of hostes dunge & passe. Therefore he shal reche the LORD, & cōueryng the kinges of the Assirians: He shall not come in to the cite, and shal shure no arrowe in to it, there shal no shile hurt it, neither shal they grane downe. The same waye that he came, shal he returne, and not come as this cite, (saith the LORD.) And I will reape and I will recite (saith he) for myne owne, & for my wante & vnto sake.

Thus the angel went forth, and smote of the Assirians booste, an & xxxv. thousand of them. And when men arose up against Asa-hah, he holde, all laye ful of deeth & deues.
Sennacherib the kinge of the Assirians kept up, and dwelt at Nineue. Afterward he thought, as he played in the Temple of Nerah his god, that Adramalech and Sarsahis owne sonnes sette him with the sword, and fled in to the lande of Ararat. And Esarhadon his sonne reigned after him.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

After longe asen time, when Esachias was sick. And the prophet Esay the sonne of Amos came vnto him, and sayde: Thus commandeth the LORD. See thou wilt live in order, for thou must dye, and shal not escape. Then Esachias turned his face warde the wall, & prayed vnto the LORD, and sayde: Remember O LORD, that I haue walked before the in truth and a sinful heart, and haue done this chynge that is repente to the. And Esachias wepte fast. And sayde God vnto Esay: Go and speake vnto Esachias: The LORD God of Dauid thy father (saith he) thus saith: I haue heare thy prayer, and consyded thy wretched herte, I will put x. yeres more vnto thy lyf, and I will reche the cite also, from the heauens the chynge of Assiria, for I will defende the. And take the this token of the LORD, I will do it, as he hath spoken: Behold, I will reche the shadowe of Ahas Dail, I now is layed out with the Sonne, and hage it ten degrees backward. So the Sonne turned ten degrees backward, the which was descended afore.

And Esay the seuyng, which Esachias the sonne of Iuda was sick, when he had bene sick, & was recovered.

The prophet Esay.

I thought I shoulde haue gone to the gates of hell in my best age, and haue wanted the residue of my yeares.

I take vnto my selfe: I shal neuer visite the LORDE God in this life: I shal neuer see him, amongst the dwellers of the world. My image is folded vp together and cast awaye like a stone, like a superfluous cottage: my life is broken of itselfe as a rotten cartereth of his webbe.

Why I was yet eatinge my rest, he bemeane make me an end of me in one daie.

I thought I shoulde haue layed vnto the mount, but he banded my bones like a lyon, and made an end of me in one daie.

Then charged I like a violence, and like a leane, and murmured as a dove.

Lift up mine eyes in to y^e hight: O LORDE, (saye I) violence is done vnto me, he doeth iniurie for me.

Whye shal I speake so say, that he maye chide me: y^e I maye lye out all my yeares, yett in the byternesse of my life?

Verily LORDE, men must lye in byternesse, & all my life must I passe out therein: for thou hast me vp, and wastest me. But lo, I will wel contente with this byternesse.

Then the Lord my conseruation hath so pleased y^e, therefore wouldest not make an end of my life, so that thou hast cast all my synnes like ynde thy backe.

So I held my speech not the death doeth not begrudge the.

They that go downe into the graue, praye for thy trauell: but the lyinge, yett the lyinge and no megre the, like an I do thou daye. The father telleth his children of thy faithfulness.

Deliver vs (O LORDE) and we will syng praises in thy house, all the dayes of our life.

And Esay sayde make a pilgrimage of synners, to laye it upon the stone, so shal it be whole. Then sayde Esay: O whiche a greace thing was this, that I shal go vp in to the house of the LORDE.

The xxxij. Chapter.

AT the same tyme Merodach Baladan, Baladins sonne kinge of Babilon, sent letters and presents to Esay. So he receiuede, howe that he had bene sick, & was recovered againe. And Esay thus wroote thus of, & shewed them the comendation of his treasure of gold, of siluer, of spices & incense, of precious oyle, all that was in his gold houses and treasure houses. There was none thinge in Esayns house, & he shew-

Then came Esay the prophet to Kinge Esayias, and sayde vnto him: What hast y^e men sayde, and from whence came they vnto the? Esayias answered: They came out of a foure countre vnto me out of Babilon. Esay sayde: what haue they looked vpon in thine house? Esayias answered: All that is in myne house, haue they seene: and there is no thinge in my measure, but I shewed it them.

Then sayde Esay vnto Esayias: Under stande the word of the LORDEs spooles. Be holde, thy eyne will come, that every thinge which is in thine house, and all that thy progenitors haue layde vp in store vnto this daye, shal be caried to Babilon, and be hidde left behinde. This sayeth the LORDE. See and parte of thy synnes that shal come of the, and whom thou shalt get, shall be caried hence, and be come golden chamberlaines in the Kinge of Babilons countre: Then sayde Esayias to Esay: Knowest thou prospereth his owne counsel, which thou hast tolde me. He sayde moouer: So that there be peace, and faithfulness in my tyme.

The xl. Chapter.

AL of good there my people, be of good chere (saith your God) Conforte Jerusalem, and call her: that birrational is at an end, that her offence is pardoned, that her byternesse of the LORDEs hande is sufficient correction for all her synnes.

A voyce cryeth: Prepare y^e waye for the LORDE in the wilderness, make straight y^e path for our God in the desert. Let all valles be exalted, and every mountayne and hill be layde lowe. What so is crooked, let it be made straight, and let the rough places be made playne fildes. For the glory of the LORDE shal appeare, & all flesh shall seie, for whych mouth of the LORDE hath spoken it.

Then saye ye spake: I trowe one. And I saye what shal I crye? Then spake it thus, all flesh is grass, and that all the beeste of the feld, is as the floure of the reed. When the grasse is withered, the floure fallith awaye. Euen so is the people as grass, as hath the breath of the LORDE bloweth vpon them, & it withereth: as hath the grasse wither, so the floure fildes awaye. Let the voyce of our God endure for ever. Therefore the voyce crieth: Thus is it vnto the hill of Si on upon that bringeth good tidings, lift vp thy voyce with power, & thou preacher Jerusalem. Lift it vp with a voice, and say vnto the cities of Iuda: Beholde, your God is

Who hath founded the mynde of the LORD? Or who is of his counsel to teach him? He whom hath he of old counsel, to make him understode, and to declare him the way of iudgement, to teach him sentence, and to instruct him in the waye of understanding? He holdeth all people as in a copation of him, as a deepe to a bucker fall, and are counted as the licters in y the balance weyeth. Beholde, y Iles are in comparison of him, as the shadowe of the Sonne beame. Libanus is not sufficient to minister fyre for his offerings, and all the beastes thereof are not ynough to one sacrifice. All people in comparison of him, are reckoned, as nothinge, yett as vaine vanitie and emptinesse.

Beholde now therefore, this is my ſer. I ſaunt whom I will kepe to my ſelfe in my clece, In whom my ſoule ſhall be pacified. I will geue him my ſpice, that he maye ſhewe forth iudgment & equyte amonge the Gentiles. He ſhall not be an ouerſer, nor an hie mynbed perſon. His voyce ſhall not be heerde in yf ſtreets. A buſſed he ſhall be not hearde, & the ſinginge ſhall be not quenched: but ſaithfully & truly ſhall he geue iudgment. He ſhall a cher be our ſene are baſſie, that he maye ceſſe our righte ouſſe vnto the earth; & the Gentiles alſo ſhall kepe his lawes. For than ſaith the LORD vnto him: When he that made the heauens, and ſped them aboue, & ſet forth the earth with his increaſe: which geueth breath vnto the people that is in it, & to them that dwell therein: I the LORD haue called yf in righteouſneſſe, I led the by the hande. from the east, and gather the together from the west. I will go to the north, let go, and to the south, I will be with thee: But bringe my seruice from fere, and my boughes from the endes of the world: I am thy theist that be called after my name: I shall haue I created, fashioned, and made for my at heuene.

Bringe forth that people, whether they haue eyes or be blynde, deaf or haue eares, all nations shall comen in, and be gathered in one people. But which amonge you doit goddes shall be as such thinges, and as what is to come: Let them bringe their menesses, so shall they be se: for the men shall be se, and so ye: it is truch. But I bringe you menesses (saith the LORDE) that shall be as my seruantes, whom I haue de-fered: to the meane that ye might be car-ph, as no geue me faithful credence: yet and so shalt, that I am he, before whom there neuer any God, and that there shall be after me. I am only the LORDE, and with me is there no Saviour. I gaue warninge, I make whole, I teach you, that there shall (saith the LORDE) that I am God. And quere he am I from the begynnyng, and there is none, that can take any thinge of my hande. And what I do, can no man chaunge.

Thus saith the LORDE the holy one of Israel your redeemer: For your sake I will sende Babylon, and bringe all the strongest of them from thence: I am thy God, the Cal-deas that beest them of shippping: I am I the LORDE your holy one, which haue made Israel, and am your Kinge in tyme, dernes, and streame in the desert: that I may geue drinke to my people, whom I chose. This people haue I made for my self, and they shal shewe forth my praise. For thou Jacob wast called nes-call vpon me, but thou hast said: I will not come towarde me, o Israel.

Thou wast called nes-chy yong: beastes for tunecooffinges, neither wilt thou honour me with chy sacrifices. Thou boughtest me no drinke: spece weth: thymone, neither pourest the face of chy iacification vpon me. So wast

The prophet Esay.

Now go to thy couriers, and to the multitude of thy merchants, (whom thou hast become acquainted withal from thy youth) if they maye helpe thee, or strengthen thee. Thou hast hitherto had many counsels of them, for as the heauyns are in the beholders of starres, so come on now and destroy thee: yet and seeke shewe, when these new changes shall come upon thee. Beholde, they shall be like strawe, which if it be kindled with fyre, no man maye rydde it for the vehemence of the flame: And yet it reacheth no synners to warme themselves, nor cleaue fyre to synners. Euen so shall they be vnto thee, whom thou hast used to occupye from thy youth: Every one shall shewe of his error and waye, yet shall none of them defende thee.

The thirteenth Chapter.

BEARE this, O house of Jacob: ye are called by the name of Israel, and are come out of some stocke in Iuda which sweare by the name of the LORD, and beare witness by the God of Israel: but none is true, and right, nor are they called by the name of the holy one, as they that be for comfort in the God of Israel, whose name is the LORD of hostes.

The thing is that I shewed you since for the beginning: howe I now broughe the to passe, immediately as they came out of my mouth, and declared them: And they are come: wherefore I knewe that thou art obstinate, and that thy neck hath an yron vane, and that thy brow is of brass. Therefore I have euersince the beginning shewed thee of things for to come, and declared thee vnto thee, if ever they came to passe: that thou shouldst not saye: myne I haue done it, my caried or I stymage hath shewed it, &c. are to confound all these things, whether it be now or hereafter: prophecies that I haue spoken, I told thee before at the beginning, now I secrete things, yf thou knowest not of it: And some done no more of old times, when of I haue neuer heard of, before they were brought to passe: that thou canst not saye: I knowe of them. Wherefore there be some wretches of whom I haue neither heard nor knowe, neither haue they bene opened vnto thine eares afore tyme, for I knowe that thou wouldest maliciously offende, therefore I haue called thee a transgressor, euen from thy mothers wombe.

Wherefore for my names sake, I haue withdrawen my wrath, and for myne honoure sake I haue quenched thee, so that I haue not feared thee now. Beholde I haue pangs, and not for money. I haue chosen the in the fire of power, and that only for myne own sake, for I great myne honour to none other, that thou shalt not despise me. Herken vnto me O Jacob, & Israel: whi I haue called, I am euen he that is, I am first and the last. My house is the foundation of the earth, & my right hand spannes ouer the heauens. As soone as I called the, they were there. Whether you all together, or herken: Whiche of yonder goddes hath declared this, that the LORD would do by the king of Babilon, (whom he loueth & fauoureth) and by the Caldees his arme? I maye tell as he haue tolde you this before. Bec I shal call him and brynge him forth, & geue him a glorious countrey. Come nye & heare this: I haue spoken, my thyng shall be done, & I will see it done: wherefore the LORD God hath said the beginning, I am that I am.

Wherefore the LORD God hath said the beginning, I am that I am. And thus saith the LORD: thine anger, the holynesse of Israel: I am the LORD thy God, which teach the profitable things, and lede y the way, that thou shalt best go. If thou wouldest now reuenge my wrong, I will requyte thee: thou shalt see the water streame: & thy righteousnes as the newe flowing in the see. Thy seed shall be as the sonne in the see, & the fruite of thy byre, like the grauel stones thereof: Thy name shall not be reued out, nor destroyed before me. Ye shall go a waye from Babilon, and scape the Caldees with a merry voyce. This shall be spoken of, declared abroad, & go forth vnto the ende of the world: for thus saith the LORD: I haue defended his cause, vnto Jacob, that he suffred no thrust, neither was heauen in the middest, as the earth is a sonde, and the water gusheth out. As for the ungodly, they haue no peace, saith the LORD.

The xliij. Chapter.

WHEN vnto me, ye Iles, and eate herby: & people from furre. The LORD hath called me from my byrth, and made me an other name to my mothers name: he hath made my mouth like a sharpe sword, vnder y the dome of his hand he hath ben sende me, and byd me in his quayer, as a good arrow, and byde vnto me: Thou art my forname, I will be denoued in thee. Therefore I shall fill my laboure, I shall spend my strength in vayne. Therefore I will not saye my cause, and my worke vnto the LORD my God: And no more shall the LORD be that fashioned me from my mothers wombe to be his seruante, that I maye bring I stone, for I am sure, that I shall not come to confusion. Myne aduocate speaketh for me, who telleth me go with me to lawe: Let vs stand one agaynste another: yf there be any that we reason with me, let him come here forth to me. Beholde, the LORD God standeth by me, whar is he that can condemne me? lo, they shall be all like an olden cloth, which yf moethes shall cease vp.

Mal. 1. 11

¶ Therfor whoso faueth the LORD among you, let him heare the voyce of his seruau. Who so walketh in due directiō, and lighe shyneth vpon him, let him hope in the LORD, and holde himself by his God. But take heed, ye haue all synned a fyre, and greved yauw selues with the flame: Ye walk in the glistreyng of youre owne fyre, and in the flame that ye haue kindled. This cometh vnto you fro my hande, namely, yf ye shall slepe in sorowe.

The li. Chapter.

¶ Enten into me, ye that holde of righteuousnes, ye that seke the LORD. Take heed vnto the stone, wherout ye are hewn, and to the crasse wherout ye are digged. Considre Abraham yeres father, & Setur his bare yowher that I called him alone, who perswaded him wylt encrasse hym: be the LORD comforted his, and repayed all his beyng makinge his desire as a Paradyse, and his wilbernesse as the garden of the CRUDE. My ysh and ioys was these, thankes geyng and yf maye as praye, haue respect vnto me then (my people) and laye thine care to me: for alwaie, and an ordynance shall go forth fro me, to lighten the Gentiles. It is hard by, that my health & my righteuousnes shall go forth, and the people shall be ashy with myne arme.

¶ The Iherusalem (that is of Gentiles) shall hope in me, and put their trust in myne arme. Lift vp youre eyes toward heauē, and loke vpon the earth beneath: for the heauens shall vanishe awaye like smoke, and the earth shall be as a clothe, & they that dwell therein, shall perish in like manner. But my health endureth for euer, and my righteuousnes shall not cease. Therefore hearken vnto me, ye that haue pleasure in righteuousnes, thou people that bearest my lawe in thine heart. Feare not the cause of men, be not a frayde of their blasphemie: & remynging for woundes & moethes shall cease vpon like clothe & wolle. But my righteuousnes shall endure for euer, & my lawyng health fro generation to generation.

mes past, care and sence the worlde began. And of thou be, that hast wounded the proude Lucifer, and heauen the vngod in peace: And not thou canst he, which hast bud vpon the depe of the sea, which hast made the me the see grounde, that the deluyment shal be of honours: That the redemed of the LORD, which turned agayne, might cometh ioys vnto God, there cometh sence. That mych and gladdnesse might be with them that sence & was in alle thes graue. I am eue the that in alle thes graue you consolation. What act thou then, the firstest a monall mē, yf childe of manhood goeth awaye as doeth the flower: And ingreest the LORD that made the, that span out the heuens, and layde the foundacion of the earth. But thou art euen a synner in the sight of thyne oppressours, which inuoy to do harme: Where is the wrath of thy oppressours? It cometh on fast, it maye haist to apeare: It shall on penish, yf it shal be not be able to destroye, neither shall it be for faute of nouryng. I am the LORD thy God, that made the see to be full, and is in whose name is the LORD of hostes: I shall put my word a lyf in thy mouth, and sende the with the turnyngs of my hande that thou mayest plant the heuens, and laye the foundacion of the earth, and saye to Sion thou art my people.

¶ Awake, awake, and stonde vpon Iherusalem, thou that from the honde of the LORD, hast dyent out the cuppe of his wrath: thou that hast sapped of, and sucked out the slomburging cuppe to the botome, for amonge all the sonnes whom thou hast begot, there is not one that maye hold the vpe: and none to lede the by the honde, of all the sonnes that thou hast nourished. Both the thinges are happened me in the, but not for me: Yes, destruction, and synning, but not I: I sinned: but in who hath comforted the? Thy sonnes he comforted as yf haue of my strength like a cattle venyson, & are full of myrte: woe of yf LORD, & punishment of thy God. And therefore thou mayest be a wylde (hombe as noe wylde) & care thou: Thou seest thy LORD thy LORD & God, yf befor of his people: Beholde, I multate yf I hange cuppe out of thy hande, and yf cuppe of the drynges of my mouth: yf I be for I shal thou shal neuer dymme it more, & I will put thee in trouble that trouble the: rebuyl thou I shal to thy shule: soupe downe, thou maye gaunt the made thy bodye care with the grounde, and as the seece to go vpon.

I Wp ston up, take thy strength vnto the: put an armour honeste a yment. O Ierusalem, thou child of the holy one. For from this tyme forth, when shal no vncircumcised ner vncircumcised come to the. Wherfor hee shal the wnter, wnter stonde vpon, O Ierusalem, plucke out thyne from the bode, or thou captiue vnto grier Sion. For thus saith the LORD: He that shalde for naught, therfore shal ye be redeemed also without any money.

For thus hath the LORD sayde: My people shal be redeemed afore tyme in coe of giper, the n to be strangled. And herafter vnto the kinge of the Assyrians oppresseth the, for naught. And now what profit is it to me: (saith the LORD) if my people in frey caried awaye, & brought in to beaynes by their rulers, and my name ouer still blasphemous: (saith the LORD) But if my people maye knowe my name, I my self will speake in that daye. De hold, here am I. O how beautiful are the se of the (vncircumcised), y hangeth the messenger of the mountayne, & no clamour peac: y biggish the good cydingen, & preachteth health, & saith vnto Sion. Thy God is the kinge. Thy watchmen shal lift up their voyce: & loude voyce shal they preacht of him: for they shal be him preache, wher the LORD shal come agayne to Sion.

I De glad, O thou desolate Ierusalem, & reioyce: for the LORD will comfort his people, he will deliuer Ierusalem. The LORD will make bare his holy arme, & shewe it so vnto the sight of all the Gentiles, & all the endes of the earth shal see the saunges health of ouer God. Amaye, & reioyce, get you out of thence, & touch no vncleane thinge. Be out from amonge gods, & make cleane, yet that beate the will of the LORD. But ye shal not go out with seioles, & make haile as they that fle awaye: for the LORD shal go before you, & the God of Iuda shal kepe the watch.

Beholde, I will rouse shal beate myself, & shon shal be demagnified, exalted & greatly honoured. Like as y multitude shal vnto upon him, because his face shal be demagnified: & as a mans face, & his beate like a man: & as shal the multitude of the Gentiles lobe vnto him, & y kinges shal haue this mouth be before him. For they y haue not wote of him, shal be humbled: & they y haue not wote of him, shal beholde him.

before the LORD like as a brailch, & as a ree in a drie ground. He shal haue neither beauty ner sauoure. When we lye upon him, the re shal be no saynest: we shal haue no lust vnto him. He shal be the most simple & despised of all, which yet hath good experience of sorrowe & infirmities. We shal ree him so simple & so vile, that we shal hyde oure faces fro him. Whom be it of a treme he only rather awaye care infirmity, & beate oure payne: yet we shal inuoye him, as though he were plague and cast downe of God: & were as he (not with fildinge) shal be moued for oure offence, & synner for oure dedes. For the payne of oure synners shal be layde vpon him, & so his stripes shal we be healed.

As for we, we go all as rayphs (like sheep) every one taweth his own waye. But thereto him, the LORD pardoneth all of synners. He shal be payned & wounded, & shal not aple his mouth. He shal be led as a shepe to be slayne, yet shal he be as still as a lambe before the shearer, & not open his mouth. He shal be had awaye, his cause neeherde, & not one maye yugme: whose generation yet no man maye nombe, when he shal be care of the ground of the lyinge: Which punishment shal go vpon him, for the transgression of my people. His graue shal be gaue him with the cumbered, & his crucefinge with the thomas, & there as he byd neuer violence: & thereright, neither hath there bene any defecfulnesse in his mouth.

Yet hath it pleased y LORD to synne him with infirmity, & that when he had made his soule an offeringe for synne, he might be a savinge lastinge se. And this device of the LORD shal prosper in his hande. With cranye & laboure of his soule, shal he opene greates riches. My righteous seruants shal much his wisdome iustice & beloye the maker thereof: he shal beate awaye their synnes. & therfore will I gaue him the multitude of his paine, & he shal deuoye the stronge sporde because he shal gaue ouer his soule to death, & shal be ree amonge the transgressours, which menneries shal saue awaye y synnes of the multitude, & make much intercession for the my doers.

mea word. What said do ye saye one y^e another, for the thinge y^e seerch not, and spende youre laboure aboute the thinge that fasteneth you not: But heere rather wende, do ye shall care of the best, & youre soule shall be in hir pleasure in p^{er}fection. Therefore your cares, & come vnto me, take hirde: & your soule shall yue. For I will make an euell thinge, couenaunt with you, & the sure mercies of David.

Beholde, I shall geue him for a weneff ainge y^e folke, for a pynce & captayne: to the people. & a people that had no knowledge of the, shall runne vnto the, because off the LORD thy God, y^e hely one of Ihsa, which glenfieth the. Behold the LORD in this heaue ye be founde, call vpo him whiche is n^ore. Let the righte godly man forsake his wayes, & the righte godly man ymaginacione, & come againe vnto the LORD, so shall he be mercifull vnto him: and so ouer the, for hee is ready to forgeue.

For the sake of the LORD. Why though? because not your thoughts, & ye are woe are not my wayes: But as farre as the benedictione are hye than the earth, so farre do my wayes excede yours, & my thoughts yours. And like as the rayne & snowe come thowme from heauē, & reuenerth not the earth, & my wayes are not the earth, & my thoughts are not the earth, but watereth the earth, & maketh it fruitful & grene, that it maye geue come & bring vnto the sower: So the word also that cometh out of my mouth, shall not returne agayne vnto me, but shall accomplish my will, & p^{er}fecte in the thinge, where I sende it. And so shall ye ge forth w^orye, & be led w^oth peace. The mountaynes and hilles shall rege with you for ioye, and all the trees of the felde shall clappe their bondes. For the thornes shall growe. Iyue & reue, & y^e thornes in the state of burde. And this shall be done to the praye of the LORD, & for an euell thinge to the, that shall not be taken awaye.

fit into the girdles of kespeth my Sabbath: I am thy that holdest greatly of the things that please me, and kespeth my covenant: And thou wilt I give in my household and with my widdow, a better heretage: I name the of the which had bene called sonnes & daughters, I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not perishe. Againe, he saith ento the that are disposed to sicker to the LORD, so forme him, & to touch his name: That they shall bene bode mt. And all they, which kepe the salue, that they vnhalowe not the Sabbath, namely: that they fulfill my covenant: Then wilt I bring into my holy mountayne, & make the as full in my house of prayer. Their burnt offerings and sacrifices shall be accepted vnto myne altar, for my house shall be an house of prayer for all people.

Then saith the LORD God which ga-thereth together the scattered of Israel: I will bring yet another congregation to him. All the beastes of the felde, all the beastes a f-wold, shall come to deuour thei. For his watchmen are all blind, they haue all together no vision ondinge, they are all deeme do-ge, not beinge able to barke, they are slepery: slothfull are they, & lie slouing: they are soundlesse do ge, & be neuer satisfied. The sheperdes also in like manner haue no vision: slouing, but euenly man curmeth his owne waye, euery one after his owne conceytinge, & all his power. Caght saye they: I will seche myne, as shall we fynde ure felawe, that we may be content. And so come to us, like as we do yet, and meddome.

The LVII. Chapter

Behold the meane season of righteousness, which, & no man regardeth it in his heart. Good goodly people are taken away: & no man considereth it. Namely: what the righteous do, come yet awaye thow of me knoweth he himselfe: might be in rest, in quiet, upon his bed, & lyue a fere his owne pleasure. Come hither, that I maye charmers children, ye sonnes of the aduocater & the widow: Whom take ye your pleasure: vnto whom sape ye with yd' mouth, & bleasome yd' con-ge: Anye one child of aduocatur, & a bleasof himselfe: I will take your pleasure vnder the oaks, & vnder all greene trees, the chalde beinge slaine in the valley, & vnto of fone.
 Why parte shall be parte, the stony rocken by the river: & see euen thei shall be by parte.
 For there thou hast parte meate and drinke: & thou shalt be as a childe. I ouerfer that:
 Thou hast made thy bed vpon his mountayn, & thou wast vnto thei, and therewith thou slayest sacrifices. Behynde the doores & postes, hast thou set up thy remembrance: When thou haddest covered thyselfe another childe, when thou wast doome made by thy wyden (that is) when thou detest curue the certainty of yonder. To do, & to be: thou candest, where thou wast: & to Thou wast straight to thynges, & thy dyuise: & thynges, that is) thou hast sent thy messengers fere of, and yet are thou fallen into the pye theby. Thou hast had trouble for y mulatude of chyme come way-es, yet saydest thou neuer: I will leaue of.

 Thou wast intrest to haue life, or health: of thy selfe, and in hore thou becomest non part: thou art sick. For when wilt thou be a despoiled of fere, singe thou hast broken thy promise, & remembre not me, neither hast me in thine heart: That is) thou, that I also will helde my peace: (as a fere) & I thou shalt me not. & see vnto y I will be clare of goodness & of woe, but they shall not profit. & when thou criest, let y thei heape delmer the. But the wynde shall call them all awaye, & carry the in eo of ayre. Fewer thei, they y carry their trust in me, shall inherite the londe, and haue my holy hill in possession.

And the fere shall be saith: I made thy mate reb, and dense y fere, & vnto what ye can out of the waye, that shall be to my people. For thus saith the lorde, & excell: men be that dwell in euil lastingnesse, whose name is the holpene: I will be aboue and in the sanctuary, & reach him also, y fere of erice and hable spere: y I maye heale a crewbled mynd, and a cetera here. For I chide not euer, y am not: & I will out ende. I will blasphege geeth fro me, though I make the breath. I am not: & I will for his ceure: & loss. I synce him, I synce me, and am angrye, & he earned him selfe, and so forth: y by waye of his owne heart. But y I maye his right waye agayne, I make him whole.
 I lide him, and restouch him vnto them whom he maketh iofull, & that were sory for him.
 I make the frutes of chatefing: I geue peace vnto them that are fere of, and re-chum that are nye, saye I the LORD.

And thei shall be whole. Dure thei shall be like the vagin geeth, that can not rest, who is water so much with the myre & gravel, & as y I will be hane no peace, & I will my God.

The liij. Chap.

Es. liij. a Beholde, the LORDE honde is resteyned: y it can not helpe, nether is his eare so stoppeth y it maye heare. Thus ye myfdebes haue separateth ye from y God, ye synners haue his face from you, y he heareth you not. For ye haue weyled with blowes, and ye synners righteousnesse: y lippen speake lyinge ye longe stretch out mindes. To manners righteousnesse, y no man will ge-ly. Every mon hopeth in waiteing bones, and ymagineth wilicate, y couereth wyllynglye forth euell. They bnde co-uene, y weene y synners reth. The scarpeth their egges, dyeth. Thus y bours of robbes, y y moke of robbery is a their hiders. Their face runne to wall, they make haile the y innoce bloude. Their eels are wiled cooledge, harme y are in their wayes. Thus y waye of peace they knowe not. In their goinge is no quyet, their wayes seele crooked, y who goeth therein, knoweth nothinge of peace.

And this is y cause y equete is so farre fro, y y righteousness cometh not vnto the. We lete for light, lo, it is darkness: for y synners, we walke in y darke. We lyde y lynde upon y wall, we gope one y hath none eye. We stembeth y we do ye, as the nghte were one and deade. We are all like deces, y mortue for deces. We lete for equete, but there is none for healeth, but it is farre fro we. For y offe-ces are many before y, y y synners gagyneth us. We we must ch fast y y knowe, y we do anyfyll: I amly, we gagyneth y dysmble agayn y LORDE, y we first y God: y synge pssalms with thy wonderous strange woordes, that shalbe the hillis nill at thy presence.

For since the begynnyng of the woordes be cause was none: except thou o God: that ber de or percaued, neether hath any eye seene what thou dost for the, that purchase trust in the.

Thou helpest him that doth righte with cheerfulnesse, and them that thinke vpon thy woe yea. But lo, thou art angrie, for me offende, and haue bene eue in synne, and the re is no one whole. We are all as an uncle neath thinge, & all our righteounnesse are as the cleane claye: & as the flower of a we man: we shal decaye as the leaf: for our synne cause us a weage like the wynde. There is no man that can stand before thy face, that shal stand vnto the face of thy face.
Therfore bydest thou thy face from vs, and confu mess vs, because of our synne.

But now LORD, thou sacker of foun tayne: we are the claye, and thou art our potter, and we are all as the worke of thy hande. We are not to the displeasure (o LORD) and we perceiue not our offence in goinge in our iniqui tie, but consider that we are thy people.
The ciues of thy Sanctuarye we wast, Si on is a wilderness, and Jerusalem a deserte.
Our holy house which is our beauty, where our fathers prayd the, is burnt up, yet all our commodities and pleasures are way ed awaye. What thou hast not beneate: (o LORD) for all this: What thou holdest thy peace, and seuerge vs so sore.

Thou shalste me, that hitherto haue not cryed for me: they shal fynde me, that hitherto haue not soughte me.
Then shal I saie immediatelye, to the people that neuer called vpon my name: I am here, I am here. For thus long haue I been holde on my knees to an vnfaithful people, that gonore the righte waye, but after their owne imagination: To a people, that is euer despyng me to my face. They make the ir oblations in gardens, and their smoke is vpon altars of liues, they luffe amonge the graves, and lie in the venues all night. They eate swete flesh, and vnclene beeches in the te vessils. If thou comest vnto them, they shal teach me not, for I am holier then they.

All these men whom I am angrie, shalbe burned to sinne and fyre, that shal burne the nor she suffice the payme of the bych and anytyll of y^e t^ramoye. Whoe euer herbe or floure such thinges: both the grounde beare in one daye: or are the people beine all accuse, as Sion beareth his sinnes. For thou saist the LORDE: Am I he that ma-keth ether to beare, and beare not my selfe: Am not I he that beareth, and maketh hamles: saith the God. Reioyse with Jerusalem, & be glad with her, all ye that loue her.

Be ioyful with her, all ye that mourned for her. For ye shall sucke comfort out of his busines, and be satisfied. He shall easie, and haue reuer in the pleasantnesse of his power. For thou saist the LORDE: beholde, I will peace I to her, like a water founteyne, & I will be the shepheard like a flowing streame. Then shall ye sucke, ye shall be beene upon his syde, and be ioyful vpon his knees. For like a a childe is comforted of his mother, so shall I comfort you, and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. And when ye se this, your hearte shall reioyse, and your bones shall flourish like an herbe.

Thus shall the bonde of the LORDE be known among his seruantes, and his in-ignacion among his enemies. For beholde, the LORDE shall come wth fire, and his charre shall be like a whelke wynde, that he maye recompence his vengeance in his wrath, and his indignacion with the flame of fyre.
For the LORDE shall indige all flesh with the fire, and with his sword, and there shall be a great nombre of slayne of the LORDE. Soch as haue made them selfe holy and cleane in the garden, and those that haue eaten fow-re flesh, myce, and other abhominacions, shall be taken away together, saith the LORDE.
For I will come to gather all people and con-these shall come, and se my glory. And then shall I giue a colt, and steebe cartes y^e of she to Celiicia, Africa and Libya (where men can handle bowes) in to Italie also, and vnto Iudea.

The Ies saith of that haue not herbe preach my praise among the Gentiles, and shall bringe all your burnt offringes vnto the LORDE, out of all people, vpon his feet, charrettes and horse litters, vpon horses and cartes to Jerusalem my holy hill: saith the LORDE) like as the children of Israel bring the offringes in cleane vessels, so the house of the LORDE.

And I shall take out certayne of them for to be priests and leuites, saith the LORDE.
For like as the new beate and the new carey rebaich I will make, shall be fast fastified by me: saith the LORDE) So shall your seed and your name continue, and there shall be a new Moene for the other, and a new Sab-offende agaynst me. The prophete dostrye e vnto Dauid, & foloweth such thynges as shall bunge them no profit.

Why for I am constrained (saith the LORDE) to make my complaine vpon you, and vpon your children. Be in eorthe Iaa of Lebanon, and loke well: sende vnto Lebanon, be diligent heere: and so, whether such thynges be done there, whether the Gentiles them self use beale so falsly & vntruly with their god-des (which yet are no goddes in deed). But my people hath given euer their be honore, for a change that maye not helpe them.

Be ashamed (o ye heauens) be ashaied, & abashed as for a thyng, saith the LORDE.
For my people hath done two uncles.

They haue forsaken the well of the water of life, and begged them piers, yee wile and broken piers, that holde no water. As I Iaa a benedictiō, or one of the benedictiōs.

Why is he thus spoiled? Why do they re-are and crye then vpon him, as a lyon: They haue made his lande wayle, his cities are so hent up, that there is no man dwelling in them. Hee the children of Toph and Taphna haue despoiled thy necke.

Some yet neede a vnto the, because thou hast forsaken the LORDE thy God, and since the lech the by the waye: And what hast thou now to do in y flasse of Egypt: to drin-ke foule water? There, what maketh thee in the waye to Assyria: To drinke water of the floodbe: Thine owne wisdomme shall reproue thee, and thy returne waye shall con-fute thee: that thou mayest knowe and vnderstande, howe euil and hurtful a thyng it is, y thou hast forsaken the LORDE thy God, and not feared him, saith the LORDE God of hoostes.

I haue euer broken thy yod of olde, & bursten thy bondes: yet saiest thou, I will not returne, but like an harlot, the nunneth aboute vpon all the hilles, & amonge all greuous places: as I planted the out of noble grapes and good trees. How art thou turned euen in eo a bytter, vnfruitfull, and straunge place: And that so sore: that though thou wast first the rich Nitroa & wastest thyself to sauoure with that sweet smelling herbe of Banch: yet in my sight thou art slayned with thy wickednesse, saith the LORDE thy God.

Say not now: I am not vnclene, and I haue not folowed the goddes. Loke vpon thy neighbour: what waies in the woddes, walleis & benes so shalt thou knowe, what thou hast done. Thou art like a swift Dromedary, that

The ii. Chap.

goeth easily his waye: and thy waye is like a wilde Ass: that vseth the wil-dernes, and that shiftech and bloweth as he wil.
Who can tame the? All they that stande, shall not saye, but synde the in thine own vncleannes. Thou despisest yfote from mannes, and thy chaine from churche, and thou dest thou in thy (illicitly). I will take me me, I will take the strange goddes, & be ge vpon them.

Like as a cheate that is taken with che-de, commeth to shame, and so is the house of Israel: cometh to confusiō with the comen people, their thynges and rulers, their prieses and priphetes. For they saye to a stout, thou art father, and to a stout thou hast begotten me: yet they haue turned their back vpon me, not their face. But in the tyme of their vnible, when they saye: sende up, and helpe us, I shall answer the: Where are now thy gydes, that thou hast made the: thy chaine be up, and helpe the in the tyme of snare: I loke how many cities thou hast (o Iuda) & many goddes hast thou also.

Wherefore shall I not go to laue with me, seinge ye all are synners agaynst me, saith the LORDE: Ye is breake labour, thou synner your children, for they receaue no correction. Your owne inward desire your priphetes, like a deuouring lyon: y ye be the people of the LORDE, thou hast me to his worde: Am I the become a wil-dernes vnto the people of Israel: or a lande that hath no light? Wherefore saith my people then: we are full of, and we will come nee-re vnto the: Wech a mayden forget hit remit, or a byrde his stomacke: And both my people forget me so longe: Why be ofst thou thy wayes so hyllie, & opraue fauour the chordow: when thou hast yet salued them with blisphemes.

Vpon thy wynges so founde the blood of poore and innocent people, and thou art in corners and holes only, thou oply in all the se places. Hee barreth thou saye: I am guil-tlesse: Tush, his mouth can not come apone.
Beholde, I will reason with y, because thou barrest saye: I haue not assented. O howe well wilt be for the, so a byrde in her nest be. And now, how o the thou hast gone become: For thou shalt be confounded, as we of Egypt, as of the Assyrians: & yet thou shalt go thy waye from the, & synner ye be bound together vpon thy heade. Because the LORDE shall bunge that confusiō and hope of thyne to nought, and thou shalt be as poore with all.

The prophet Hieremy.

Onely, when a man putteth away his wife, and she goeth from him, and marries with another, then the question is: Should he refuse unto her any more after that? So now this seldo be defiled and refused: But so for the, thou hast played the harlot with many lovers, yet turne againe to me, saith the LORD. Lift up thine eyes on every side, and loke, yf thou be not defiled. Thou hast reuersed for them in the street, and as a murderer in the wilderness. Thou thy whoredome and shamefull blasphemies, the lorde defiled.

This is the cause, that the rayne and eueninge dew hath ceased. Thou hast gotten thee an whore for thy bedde, and causest not to be ashamed. It is well said thou sayest vnto me: My suster, thou art he that hast brought me up, and led me from my youth: Wilt thou then put me away, and cast me off for euer? Or wilt thou say: I will be made as if I were not. Therefore, thou speakest such wordes, but thou art euer doinge worse, and worse.

The LORD sayde also vnto me, in the time of Iosiah the king: Hast thou seen whanbas hauntinge? Israel hath done: how she hath turned vp vpon all her hilles, and amonge all chiefe trees, and there played the harlot: hast thou seen also, when she had done all this? how I sayde vnto her: that she should turne againe vnto me, and yet she is not returned. Iuda that vnfaithfull sister of Israels also sinned thus: I namely, that after I had well seen the aduocates of the hauntinge harlots of Israel, I put her away, and gave her a bill of deuicement.

For all this, her vnfaithfull sister Iuda was not ashamed, but wente backe and played the whore also. And she the night of her whoredome, hath defiled the whole side. For she hath committed her aduocates with stones and stones.

Therefore saith the LORD, her vnfaithfull sister Iuda will come vnto me, and she will say: I will be chaste, but sayest thou, saith the LORD. And the LORD sayde vnto me: The house of Israel is more righteous, than the vnfaithfull Iuda: and therefore go preach the wordes toward the north, I saye: Thou shalt bringe Israel, turne againe (saith the LORD), and I will not turne my face from thee, for I am merciful, saith the LORD. I will not all waye deale displeasure againe: for thus on this contention, that thou knowest grace blasphemy: I namely, that thou hast vnfaithfully forsaken the LORD thy God, and hast made thyself partaker of strange goddesses: vnder all grasse trees, but hast had no will to heare my voyce, saith the LORD.

O ye shunninge children, turne againe, saith the LORD. And I will be married with you. For I will take one out of the cite and two out of one generation from amonge you, and bringe you out as Sion: and will give you by name a far myne some mynde, which shall see you with leauinge and wisdom. Moreover, when ye be increased and multiplied in the lorde, then (saith the LORD) there shall accome bootes be made of the ark of the LORDS Testament: I mean shall churche vpon it, neither shall any man make mention of it: for from thence forth it shall neither be visited, nor honoured with gifts.

Then shall Ierusalem be called the LORDS siene, and all that therein shall be gathered vnto it, for the name of the LORD shall be there, which shall be set up at Ierusalem. And from that tyme forth, they shall followe none other imagination of theirs: nor shall we be there.

That those yf be of the house of Iuda, shall go vnto the house of Israel: And they shall come together out of the north, in to the same lorde: that I haue geuen your fathers, I haue shewed also, how I cooke the vberne ge be a childe, and gave the a pleasaunt lorde for their heritage, yet and a goodly possession of the children: and how I commanded the, that they should call me father on ly, and not of synners for me.

But like as a woman forsaketh her lorde, so are ye euershall vnto me: O ye house of Israel, saith the LORD. And therefore the voyce of the children of Israel was herde on every side, weeping and mourning: for they had vnfaithfully their waye, and forgotten their LORD.

O ye shunninge children, turne againe, (saith the LORD) for ye are mine, for thou art the LORDE my God: And so shall I beal you, and becomen myne. The hilles full, and all the be prayde of them: yea, and the house of Israel sheweth only vpon Gods our LORD.

Confusion hath deuoured our fathers laboure from our youth up: yet thou speest and hallocest, that sinner and doagheuer. So be we also sleepe in our confusion, and shame couereth us for we and our fathers from our youth vnto this daye haue sinned agaynst the LORD our God: and hahane not obeyed the voyce of the LORDE our God.

2

Jherai, if thou wilt turne the, thou shalt turne mee, sayeth the LORDE. And if thou wilt put away thy abominacions out of my sight, thou shalt not be moved: And shalt saue: The LORDE lyeth: in strength, in equite and righteoufnesse: and all people shall be forsaikable and is shall nymt. For thus saith the LORDE, to all Juda and Jerusalem: plow your lone de, and sowe not amonge the thornes.

here a. b and y. a

here a. c

Be circumsided in the LORDE, and cut awaye the fourt hynde of your hermes, all ye of Juda, and all the iherowellers of Jerusalem: that my indignacion breake not out like fyre, & tymbre, so that no man maye quench it, because of the multitude of your ymaginacions.

Preach in Juda and Jerusalem, crye out and speake: blewe the trumpet in the lode, crye that every man maye heare, and saye: Heare ye ourge the, and we will go in to stronge cities. Set up the token in Sion, speeke you, and make no change: for I will bringe a greate plage, and a greate destruction from the north. For the spoyler of the Gentiles is broken up from his place, as a lyon out of his den, that he maye make the londe waste, and destroye the cities, so that no man maye dwell therein. Wherefor gyide your selues abowte wth sack cloth, mournt, and wepe, for the fearfull mach of the LORDE shall not be with you men from you.

At the same tyme sayeth the LORDE: the heart of the kinge and of the princes shal be gone, the iustices shal be astonishyd, and the prophetes shal be for a fraue. Then sayde J: O LORDE GOD, hast thou then diseaued this people and Jerusalem, sayenge they shall haue peace, and now the sword is betwixt them?

Then shall we saye to the people of Jerusalem: there cometh a warre wynte from the north thatowen the waye of my people, but neither so farre, nor so close. After thus shall there come unto me a strange wynde, and then will I also greuosenance upon them. For lo, he cometh downe like as a clowde, and his charities are like a stormy wynde: his hostmen are as swift as the eagle. Wo vnto vs, for we are destroyed. O Jerusalem, wash thy face here from reidnesse, that thou mayest be helpe. How longe shall thy noyome thynges remaine with the?

After thus shall there come unto me a strange wynde, and then will I also greuosenance upon them. For lo, he cometh downe like as a clowde, and his charities are like a stormy wynde: his hostmen are as swift as the eagle. Wo vnto vs, for we are destroyed. O Jerusalem, wash thy face here from reidnesse, that thou mayest be helpe. How longe shall thy noyome thynges remaine with the?

For a voyce from Dan and from y hills of Ephraim speake out, and teler of a destruction. Beholde, the northen gate of Jerusalem warrynge, and watch vnto her, that he destroye are of mynges from farr countrees. They tell the citie of Juda the same also, they shall geue them warrynge in every place, like as the watch men in the fild. For they haue picuolded me to watch, sayeth the LORDE.

Thy wayes and thy thoughtes, haue broughte the vnto this, thus in thy me wickednesse and disobedience, that hath possessed thy heart: Ah my body, ah my lode, (shalt thou crye) how is my heart so sore? no here paynest myn herte, I can not be helpe for I haue herbe the enemye of myne compates, and peales of warre.

They crye murdres upon murdres, the whole londe shal perishe. Immediatly my cennes were destroyed, and my hongringe a chawlinge of an eye. How longe shall I se the tokens of warre, and heare the noyse of the trumpet?

Timethes this shall come upon them, because my people is become foolish, and hath weari no vnderstandinge. They are children of foolishnes, and withoute encrease. To do euill, they haue mit mynde: but to do well, they haue no wisdom. I haue loked vpon the earth, and se, it is waste and voyce. I loked towards heauen, and it had no shewe.

I behelde the mountaynes, and they were hid, and all the hills were in a steare. I behelde the bones, and there was no body, and all the rydes of the aye were awaye. I behelde well, and the plowed fild was become wast: yet all their cities were broken downe at the presence of the LORDE, and indignacion of his wrath.

For thus saith the LORDE sayde: The whole londe shal be desolate, yet will I see then haue done. And therefore be the my mount, and let the heauen be seeyd as the things that I haue purposed, and it shal be as I haue purposed, and I will not go from it. The whole londe shal be, for the noyse of the doynen and becomen: they shall runne in ce dennes in the woods, and clymme up the stony rodes. All the cities shal be voyde, and no man will linge therein.

What wilt thou now do, thou hauege stroue? For though thou cleuest thyself with scilke, & deckest y with golde, though thou paynest thy face wth coloure, yet shal thy enemye thy self in payne.

The prophet Ieremy.

For those that haue to haue bene thy grace sanctified, shal adoure the, and go a-boute to saye y. For me thinkes I heare no ys, like an ic wote of su women tennings, or we labouinge of her first childe: When the wyf of the daughter Sion, that casteth out her armes, and stoumtyeth, sayinge: Ah we are we, howe sore weped and saynte is my heart, for them that are slayne.

The V. Chapter.

I O Jerusalem, beholde and sit: Seke thou out her streets also with this, yf ye can fynde one man, that bech equal and ryght, or that labourer to be fully full, and I shall spare him: (saith the LORDE) For though they can saye: the LOR DE I myght, yet do they swaie to discaue: Whereas thou O LORDE I lokest only vpon such and treach.

Thou hast scourged them, but they take no repentance: thou hast corrected them for iniquities, but they refused thy correction.
They make their faces harder then a stone, and wolde not amende.

Their face I thought in my selfe peraduentured they are so simple and foolish, that they might haue nothyng of the LORDES word, y. and iudgment of oure God. Therefore will I go vnto their heades and rulers, and take wch them: yf they knowe the waye of the LORDE, and the iudgmentes of oure God, doe these (in like maner) haue broken the yoke, and bursten the bondes in sonder.

Wherfore a lyon out of the wood shal hur-tethen, and a wolfe in the evenyng shal de-stroye them. The cat of the mountayne shal be lunge by their crye, so teare in peeces all them, that come therout. For their offences are many, and their departinge a waye is greue.

Shalde I: then for all this haue mercy vpon the: Thy children haue forsaken me, and sworne by them that are no goddes.
And albeit they were bounde come in manner, yet they filled adououte, and haunted hairenes houses.

In the desire of vncleynly lust they are become like the stoned howe. every man neyeth his neyghbour as his. Shalde I not corre-cten, saith the LORDE.

Shalde I not be a venge of every people, that is like vnto this: I clymme up vpon ther wallen, beate them down, but despoyten not vnto y: out of theire bananches, because they are not the LORDES.

So in such fully hath the house of Israel

The v. Chap. Fo. xxvi.

and Iuda forsaken me, saith the LORDE.
They haue denied the LORDE, and sayde: it is not he.

Tush, there shall no mys fortune come vpon vs, we shall se neither sweate nor hunger.
As for the manyng of the prophets, they take it: but for wynde, yet there is none of these, which will tell them: that such thyngen shal be ppen vnto them.

Wherfore thou saith the LORDE God of hostes: because ye speake such wordes, beholde: The wordes that are in thy mouth will I turne to fyre, and make the people to be woth, that it maye consume them.

Lo, I will bunge a people vpon you from fart, o house of Israel: (saith the LORDE) A myghtie people, an olde people, a people who se spech about knowest not, neyther vnderdest what they saye.

Their armes are sodeane death, yet they them seluas be very graunte. This people shal eate vp thy frute & thy meate, yet they shal deuoure thy sonnes and thy daughters, thy shepe and thy bullockes.

They shall eate vp thy grapes & figes.
As for thy stronges and well fenced cities, wher in thou vider trust, they shal destroye them with the sweade.

Euen therfore I will not then haue done with you, saith the LORDE. But yf they saye: wherfore doth the LORDE oure God all this vnto vs?

Then answer them: because, that like as ye haue forsake me, and swared straunge god-des in youre owne londe, euen so shall ye ser-ue other goddes a lye in a straunge londe.

Preach this vnto the house of Jacob, & crite it out in Iuda, and saye thus: Seate this (thou foolish and vndiscerne people.) Ye haue eaten, but ye serued: eate haue ye, but ye be-re not.

Seate ye doe me, saith the LORDE: Are ye not a shamed, to loke me in the face? which bynde the see with the sande, so that it can not passe his boundes: For though it rage, yet can it do nothyng: and though the wates thereof do swell, yet maye they nee go ouer.

But this people hath n list and an chis-tine herte, they are departed and gone awaye fro me. They thinke not in their hartes: O let us feare the LORDE oure God, that groweth w ryme and ynd late, when nebe is: which depeth coe still the haunce for vs yearly.

Leuer therfore youre misdeeds haue turned these siven you, & youre synnes haue robbede y.

Alas, the daye goeth awaye, & the night shadowes fall downe: Aft, let vs go up by myght, and destraye hir stronge holdes, for thus hath the LORDE of hostes com manded.

Let vs downe his trees, and set vp bulw kes agaynst Jerusalem. This is the cite that was the punished, for in her in all malice nes like no a cōdyce aboundeth in water, e so this cite aboundeth in wichefnes. A ob bery and manicheousnes in herde in her forow & woundes are cur then in myghte.
And so the Jerusalem lest I wrythe diuine myghte from the, and make the desolat ez thy londe also, y no man dwell in. For thus saith the LORDE of hostes: The cēstie of Iherusalem shall be gathered, an the remnant of asapes.

B And therfore turne thine honbe agayne in to the bayse like the grape gatherer. But unto whom shall I speake, whom shall I war ne, that ye maye take heed? Their eares are so vncl. cum cisid, that they maye not heare.

Beholde, they take the worde of God for a scoine, and haue no lust there. And therfore I am so full of they indignacion LORDE, that I maye suffer no longer. Sh one thy wrath vpon the children that are without, and vpon all yonge men. For the man must be taken prisoner with the myght and the yged with the crepel. And I with their londes and wares shall be turn into straungers, wht I wrythe vnto the te vpon the inhabitaours of this londe, saith the LORDE. For from the lest vnto the most they hangenll vpon couetousnes: and fr the prophet vnto the prest, they go all a re with falsite and lyes.

And besyde that, they heale the hurt of my people with fowle wordes, sayinge: pe ce, peace, when there is no peace at all. Ther fore they must be ashamed, for they haue admitted in the minacion. But how shall they ben shamed, when they knowe nothing, wh ether of shame nor good nature. And the is they shall fall amonge the playne, and in the houre when I shall visit them, they sh be broughte downe, saith the LORDE.

Thus saith the LORDE kyng in to the ten, confesse and make inquisicion for the deceit: and yf it be the good and right we, then go therein, that ye maye fynde rest in yomer soules. But they saye: we will not be cheyn, and I will set watchmen ouer me, and therfore take heed vnto the voyce of the rempes. But they saye: we will not take heed. Heare therfore ye Gentiles, and the gregacion shall knowe, wher I haue sayd for them. Heare thou earth also: be hold, I will cause a plague come vpon the ple, such the fūce of their owne imagi cations.

For they haue not bene obedient vnto my wordes and to my lawe, but abhorred them.
Wherfore I haue yeme in curse from Sion I wrythe smellynge Calamus from ierusalem te. Your burnt offerings are displeasid, and I wrythe need in your iustificacions.

And therfore thus saith the LORDE holde, I will make this people fall, and shall fall from amonge them the iust of the children, an euerghood shall perishe in nothe.

Moreover thus saith the LORDE: Beholde there shall come a people from the North a greaue people shall arise from the entrie of earth, no bowmen & no darres shall they be puned: Ie ienough & fowle people, an merciful people: chey woyce shall be heard, they shal be vnto hostes and apointed in the

will agaynst the, o daughter Sion. Then shall this cry be heard: Our enemies are false, hypocrites and seeme in come upon vs, as upon a woman trauelling with child. We may go forth in to the felde, no man come upon the by the streete; so the sworde and feare of the enemy shall be ouermy side.

Wherefore, gyve a sad sleep aboute the (o thou daughter of my people) spemle thy self with a slythe, mourne and wepe bitterly, as upon thy only beloved sonne: for the destroyer shall suddenly fall upon vs. The haue I for a prouer of my harde people, to seke yet and to trye their wayes. For they are all unfaithful and fallen awaye, they hang upon shameful laces, they are cleut blasse and ven, for they haue and destroye euery man. The belous are bent in the fire, the leaue is consumed, the milke melteth in wayne, for the milke is not calen awaye from them. Therfore shall they be called nantheys syluer, because the LORD hath cast them out.

The VII. Chapter.

I These are the wordes, that God spake vnto Hieremy: Stande vnder the gates of the LORDES house, and crye out these wordes there, with a loud voyce, and saye: Heare the wordes of the LORD, all ye of Iuda, that go in at this doore, to honour the LORD. Thus saith the LORD of hostes, the God of Israel, I amende your wayes and your counsels, and I will see you dwell in this place. Truste not in false hynges wordes, sayenge here in the temple of the LORD, here in the temple of the LORD, here is the temple of the LORD.

For yf ye will amende your wayes and counsels, yf ye will iudge right betwixte a man and his neighbour: yf ye will not oppresse the stranger, the fatherles & the wyd borne: yf ye will not sleye innocent bloude in this place: yf ye will not cleue to strange goddes to your owne destruction: then will I see you dwell in this place, yee in the londe that I gaue afor euer tyme vnto your fathers. But make heere, yee truste in counsels, that begyle you and do you no good. For when ye haue stoll, murdered, committed adoultre, and perjury: Whiche ye haue offred vnto Baal, to euerye stranger & vnto newe goddes: Then come ye, and stande before me in this house (which hath my name geuen vnto it) and saye: Tuffy, we are absolved quyte, though we haue done all these abominacions.

Where I thinke you this house that beareth my name, is a dormouse house. And these thinges are not done purely, but before myne eyes, saith the LORD. So com my place in Sile, where vnto I gaue my name afor euer, and loke well what I do vnto the same place, saith the wisdome of my people of Israel. And now, though ye haue done all these dedes (saith the LORD) and I my self rose up euer by tymes to waite ye and to comon with you: yee wolde ye not heare me: I called, ye wolde not answer. And therfore I haue done vnto Sile, so will I do to this house, that my name is ginen vnto, (and that ye put your trust in) yee vnto the place that I haue ginen to you and your fathers. And I shall trust you out of my sight, as I haue cast out all your brethren the whole seede of Ephraim.

Therefore thou shalt not praye for this people, thou shalt neither geue praye, nor by prayer for them: thou shalt make no intercession to me for them, for in no wise will I heare thee. Seest thou not what they be in the cities of Iuda, and without Ierusalem: The children gather sticks, the fathers kille the fyre, the mothers breake the doore, to bake cakes for the quene of heauen.

They poure out bawtoffringes vnto strange goddes, to please me: vnto reach: how be it they hurt not me (saith the LORD) but rather comforte, and shame them selfes.

And therefore thus saith the LORD God: beholde, my wrath and my indignacion shall be pouced out vpon this place, vpon men and cattell, vpon the trees in the felde and all fruite of the londe, & it shall burne so, that no man maye quench it.

Thus saith the LORD of hostes, the God of Israel: Deceape vp your burntoffringes with yener sacrificies, & ease yf flesh. But when I bringe before your fathers out of Egypte, I spake no wordes vnto them of burntoffringes and sacrificies: but the I commaunded them, sayenge hearken and obeye my voyce, and I shall be your God and ye shall be my people: so that ye wolde in all the wayes, which I haue commaunded you, that ye maye prosper.

But they were not obedient, they disobeyed not their eares these vnto, but were after their owne ymaginacions and after the motions of their owne wilde heere, and so turned them selves awaye, and committed all vnto me. And this haue they done, from the tyme that your fathers came out of Egypte, vnto this daye.

The prophet Jeremyp.

The ix. Chap. Fo. xxviii.

herbs from Dan, the whole londe shall be shaved at the edge of his stronge hoes: for they shall go in, and deuoure the londe, with all that is in it: the cities, and those that dwell therein. Therefore, I will make Cedracies & stirpes amonge you (which will not be charmed) and they shall bite you, saith the LORD.

Sorrowe is come upon me, and beweepe with my bones for so, the voyce of the cri-ge of my people is heard from a same country. Janoe the LORD is in Sin: I no be hanged in her. Wherefore then haue they granted me (saith the LORD) with their images and foolish straunge fashions?
The harnest is gone, the Sinner hath an ende, and we are not helped. I am fore vexed, because of the hure of my people: I am he-wied and abashed, for there is no more Crio de at Gabaon, and there is no Physician, that can heale the hure of my people.

The IX. Chapter.

Who will giue my heade water enough, & a well of teares for my-ne eyes: that I may wepe night ad-day, for the languishing of my people? Wol-de I od that I had a cottage some where far re from folk, that I might leaue my people, and go from the: for they be all a deuourer and a spred of inges. They deuore theires bones, so theye curlew: As for the truth, they maye nothinge a waye with all the world. For they go from one wicked-me to another, and holde nothinge of me, saith the LORD.

As one must kepe himself from another, so man maye safely trust his owne brother: for one brother betrayeth another, & one neighbour begyleth another. See one distinct with another, and they deale with no truth. They haue perced to their tongues to be so wicked great paynes to doo my selfe.
They haue set their stole in the wynde of disseme, and for very dissimulation fals-ly they will not knowe me, saith the LORD.
Therefore thus saith the LORD of hoostelheloe. I will smite them and cut the up iniquitie shalde I doo to my people: The tongues are like sharpe arrows, to speake disseme. With their mouth they speake peaceably to their neighbour, but secretly they haue made for him. Shalde I not punish them for thei things, saith the LORD. I shalde I not be auenged of euy such people, as they? Upon the mountaynes will I take up a lamentacion and sorrowfull crye, and a mourninge upon the sayre playnes of the wildernes: Namely, howe they are so deuore up, that no man can geth thence any more: For a man shal not heare one beast crye here.

Bydes and cattell are all gone from the-ce. I will make Jerusalem also an heape of stones, and a denne of venymous tomes.
And I will make the cryes of Iuda swaite, that no man shal dwell therein. What man is so wise, as to vnderstande this? What man hath the LORD spoken by mouth, that he maye shewe this, and saye: O thou londe, rehyphenst thou for? Wherefore art thou so deuore up, and like a wildernes, that no man goeth by the way? See the LORD himselfe: I ode the same vnto them, that sought his name, and kepe not the thynges that he gouerneth in commaundment, neither lyed thei for the hor folowde the wickednes of their owne her-tes, and sarch straunge godden, so their fathers taughte them.

Therefore, thus saith the LORD of hoostes, the God of Israel. Beholde, I will sede this people with sorrowe, and gepe the gall to drinke. I will scatter them also among the heathen, whom neether they nor their fathers haue knowen: And I will sette a fire arde amonge them, so percuter them, vntill I bringe in them to nought. Moreover, thus saith the LORD of hoostes, the God of Israel, I will sette a signe vnto them, and sende for me men: that they come speedily, and singe a mourninge songe of you: that the teares maye fall out of oure eyes, and that our eyes ly-den maye guffe out of water.

For there is a lamentable noyse he-de of Sion: O howe are we so fore de-cayed? O howe are we so piteously con-founde: Whomust seigne our owne naturall countie, and we are shut out of oure owne lodgings. See heare the moode of the LORD DE (O ye women) and let your eares regard the worde of his mouth: that ye maye knowe your deuourers to meane, and that every one maye teach his neighbour, and make la-mentacion. I namely thus: Deceitful chymie up in our mynbowes, heu come in to ourne houses, to desire the childe before the dow, & yongeman in the streete.

But tell thou plainly, thus saith the LORD DE: The dead bodies of men shal lye apon y ground, as the donge vpon the filde, and as the hay oster the mower, and there shal be no man to take them up. Moreover, thus saith the LORD DE: I will make the wile man as a foyle in his wyndes, as the stronge man as a bowe.

in his strength, neither the rich man in his riches. But who so will reioyce, let him reioyce in this, that he vnderstandeth, and knoweth me: for I am the LORD, which doe mercie, require and require vnto a earth. Therefore haue I pleased in such thinges, saith y^e LORD. Beholde, the tyme cometh (saith the LORD) that I will visite all them, whose faulte is in vncircumcision: The Egyptians, the Iewes, the Edomites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, and the Shauan Moabites, that dwell in the wilderness. For all y^e Gentiles are vncircumcised in the flesh, but all the house of Israel, are vncircumcised in the heart.

The x. Chapter.

Goate the wordes of the LORD. Y^e he speaketh vnto the, o thou house of Israel. Thus saith the LORD: Ye shall not leane after the manner of the heathen, and ye shall not be dismayed for the rebukes of him: for the heathen are a frayd of such: kee all the customes and lawes of the world: are nothinge, but vanitie. They haue deuoted a tree in the wood with the bondes of the reule man, and fashion it with the ax: they couer it ouer with golde & silver, they fasten it wth nales and hammer, that it moue not. It is as stiff as the palm tree, it can neither speake nor goe, but must be borne. We doe ye a frayd of such, for they can do neither good nor euil. But there is some like vnto y^e (o LORD) that are grace, and greater in the name of y^e power. Y^e ho wolde not feare the LORD? He that feareth the LORD, shall not obey the:

20 For amonge all the wysemen of the Gentiles, and in all that kingdomes, there is none, that maye be likened vnto the. They are all together vnlearned and vnwise. All their counsaile is but vanitie, namely, wood, silver, which is brought out of Tharsie, and beate to places: and golde from Opphe, a worke y^e is made with the honde of the craftsman & the carter, clothed with yallow syle and scarlet: so in the troile of the wylde men all together. But the LORD is a true God, a lyving God, and an euerslasting kinge. If he be wroth, the earth shall tremble: the Gentiles maye not abyde his indignation.

21 As for the heathen, it maye well be sayde of the: they are goddes, that make wither by: and therefore shall they perish fro the earth, and from all thinges vnder heauen. But as for our God, he made the earth with his power, and with his wisdom he hath framed the whole compass of the world, with his discretion hath he spred out the

heauen, & he voyde the waters gather together in the ayre, he hath much vnto y^e from the westmost partes of y^e earth: he hath lighthearted to the ayre, and digged out the wyndes out of their treasures. He hath made naked all men footles, and consumed be all castles of strength, for that they call, is but a vaine thinge, and hath no life. The wyne craue a man with their woordes, the they in their vanitie haue made, shall perish out with another in the tyme of iudgement. Let them beles, Iacob perishe in north: but it is he, that hath made all thinges, and I shall to the rebuke of him in heretics: The LORD of hostes is his name. That amonge the vndermoste out of the lowe, thou shalt see in the stronge citie. For thus saith the LORD: Beholde, I will newe chuse out the house of this house: a greater waye off, I will trouble them of such a place, that they shal no more be founde.

22 Alas, how am I borne: Alas, how painful are my sorrowes vnto me? For I complain, thus saith my kins: I must suffer it. My tobernaclis destroyed, and all my comforte is broken. My chylde are gone from me, I can no where be founde. I am alone: I am to speede out my cenere, or to sit vpon my baggage. For the hyemen haue done falsly, that they haue not sought the LORD. Therefore haue they dealt vnwisely with the reuel, & all are feared abroad. Beholde, the newe is harde at hande, and greates sithis one of the north make the citie of Ierusalem a wilderness, and a dwelling place for Beasts. Now I knowe (o LORD) that thou art in this power to orde his owne word, or to rule his owne steppes & gonges. Therefore chaste thou me (o LORD) but with final ure, and not in thy wrath, change vs not wth cally to naughte. Pour out thy indignation rather vpon the Gentiles, that knowe y^e not, and vpon the people that call on the name: And that be cause they haue conspired, deuoured and destroyed Iacob, and haue not set out his glory.

The XL Chapter.

2 This is another Sermon, which y^e LORD commaunded Ieremy for to preach, sayinge:

Heare the wordes of the conuener, and speake vnto all Iuda, and to all them that dwell at Jerusalem, And saye vnto them: Thus saith the LORD God of Israel: I will be enemye one, that is not obedient vnto my wordes of this conuener: which I commaunded vnto your fathers, when I saye (o LORD)

The prophet Jeremy.

bringethem out of Egypt, from the yron fence, sayenge: Ye obedient vnto my voyce, and accordinge to all that I comma-nde you: shal ye be my people, and I wil be your God, and will kepe my promise, y I haue sworn vnto your fathers: I namely, that I wolde geue them a lande whiche floweth with mylke and honny, as yet this is come to passe vnto this daie.

Then answered I, and sayde: Amen. Ieremsai the LORDE, as thou sayest. Then the LOR-DE sayde vnto me agayne: Preach this in I-erusalem, and saye: the wordes off this co-mynment, that ye maye be derced. For I haue diligently espied youe fathers, euer sin-celye: that I broughte them out off the lande off Egypte, vnto this daie. I gaue them worshippinge by cymes, sayunge: hearken vnto my voyce: I haue theles, they wolde not heere me, nor encline their eare vnto me, but followed the word of ymaginacions of their owne heres. And therefore haue I accused them as transgressours of all the wor-des off this comynment, that I gaue them to kepe, in which they (notwithstandynge) haue not kepte.

And the LORDE sayde vnto me: It is for tune, that whyle Ierusalem and all the ciuities off Ierusalem are gone backe. They haue tuned them silens to the blasphemies off their fore fathers, which had no lust to heare my woide. Of an like wise haue thes also silens: theye forsake goddes, and worshipped them. The house off Ierusalem and Iuda haue broken my comynment, which I made wth the israhelites.

Therfore thus saith the LORDE: Beholde, I will sende a plague amonge you, whiche ye shal not be able to scape: and though ye come vnto me, I will not heare you. The shal the comynment off Iuda and the ciuities of Jerusalem, and call vpon their goddes, vnto whom they made their oblacions: but they are unable to helpe them in tyme off their trouble. For as many ciuities as thou hast (o Iuda) so many goddes hast thou also: And how many streets there be in the (o Jerusalem) so many shameful altars haue ye made: soffer vpon them vnto Daal. But firste noteth for this people, bye neither promyse power for them: for though they come me in their trouble, yet will I not heare them.

O thou beloued, why dost thou so shame thy grace: blasphemies in my house: men as though that holy slyght absterbe the,

The xij. Chap. Eo. xxij.

specially when thou hast made thy booke off thy imaginations. The LORDE calleth the a greue off thy tre, a fyue one, a frute full one, a geodly one: but no tre that there is a contrarye pore off the abode, he will burne the vp, and bestro ye thy bryanches. For the LORDE off bootes that planteth the, hath deuyd a pla-ge for the (o thou house off Ierusalem) Iuda: for I saie: that ye haue done, so puerse him co-much, in that ye byd seruyce vnto Daal.

This (o LORDE) haue I learned of the, and vnderstande it, for thou hast shewed me the-ur ymaginacions. But I (as a mcke lambe) was caried awaye to be slayn: nor knowyn-ge, that they had deuyd such a counceil agayn-st me, sayenge: We will destroye his meate with wood, and drye him out of the londe of the luyng, that his name shal neuer be cheught vpon. Therefore I will besite the now (o LORDE) off bootes: thou righteous iudge, thou that tryest the cyties and the derces: let me se the awngeb of them, for vnto the haue I committed my cause. The LORDE therefore sheweth of the ciuities of Zio-the, that I oughte to slaye me, sayenge: preach vnto vo in the name of the LORDE, or else thou shalt dye a foure deuce. Thus I saye: that the LORDE off bootes: Beholde, I will wite you. Your yonge me shal perishe with the sword, ye sounes and your daughters shal verely dye of hunger, so that no ne shal remayne. For vpon the ciuities off Zion: thou wilt bringe a plague, and the yere of their visitacion.

The xii. Chapter.

THE LORDE, thou art more righteous, then that I shalde dispute with the:
I neuer theles, let me talke wth the in thynges reasonable. How happeneth it, that the waye off the vngely is so persperous: and that is goodly so wel wth them, which (methought) in thame yeffe and lyue in twi-foldinge: thou plantest them, they take roote, they growe, and bange forth frute. They do ostendow off the, yet dost thou not pynish them. But thou LORDE (to whom I am well known) thou that hast fyne, & proved in thate, cardest them awaye, like as a flock is caried to the slaughter house, and a poynt them for the daie off slaughtynge.

How longe shall the londe mourn, and all the herbes off the filde perishe, for the wickednes off them that dwell therein?

The cawell and the byrdes are gone, yet saye they: wth God will not destroye us peruerly.

The xiiij. Chap.

Searcheth out every man in connyngs with the face men, how wile thou then runne thou hoile? In a peaceable sure loner thou mayest be safe, but how wile thou to in the furious pyre of Jordan? For thy brethren addressed thee, and thou hast despised them, and cried out upon me in thine absence. Behold them now, though they shall saye wordes to thee, No for me I have forsaken my neighbour dwelling place, and left myne here eage. My life also for that I lost so much, have I given in to the hands of myne enemies. Myne heritage is become unto me, as a flyon in the wood. Ye cried out upon me, therefore have I forsaken it. Myne heritage is unto me, as a speckled hyde, a hyde of dyverse colours is upon it. So hence, and gather all the heathen of the fildes together, that they may raze it up.

Dyverse byrdes have broken downe my wylgarde, and crouden upon my portion. Of my pleasant portion, they have made a wil-dernes to deserte. They have layed it waste: and now the waste is wast, it sigheth unto me.
Yet the whole londe lach wast, and no man regardeth it. The destroyers come once the hath every waye, forthi swearde off the LORDE shal consume from the one ende of Isle to the other, and no flesh shal haue rest.
They shal sow wheat, and reape thornes.
They shal take bryccage in possession, but it shal be them no good. And ye shal be confounded of youre owne wyngynge, because of the grente wrath of the LORDE.

Then saith the LORDE upon all myne encl neighbours, that laye honde on myne heirage, which I haue given my people of Israhel. Behold, I wil plucke them (saith the LORDE) out of their londe, and pue out the chow-se of Iuda from amonge them. And whi I haue doerch they out. I wil take at one tyme the agayne, and wil haue my ey upon them: and bryngge them agayne, every man to his owne heirage, and in to his lode. And yf they (namely the terrible my people) wil turne y no yea of them, so sweare by my name: The LORDE I lye h: as they lered in y people to swear by Baal, thei shal they be reuened amonge my people. But yf they wil not obeye, the wil I rote out the same folke, and destroye them, (saith the LORDE).

The XIII. Chapter.

When thus said the LORDE unto me, go thy waye & get the a synner bueche, and gyve it aboute thy loynes, and lett not be woe. Then I got me a bueche, according to the commaundment of the LORDE, and put it aboute my leyne. After this, the LORDE spake unto me agayne.

Take the bueche that thou hast prepared put aboute the, and get the up, and go to Euphrates, and hyde it in a hole of the rock. So wit I, and hyde it, as the LORDE commaunded me. And it happened longe after this, that the LORDE spake unto me, Dy-and get the to Euphrates, and see the bueche from thence, which I commaunded the to be there. Then went I to Euphrates, and dugged up, and toke the bueche from the place where I had hyd it: and beholde, the bueche was corrupte, so that it was proficable in nothinge.

Then sayde the LORDE unto me: Thou saist the LORDE: Euen so wil I corrupte the pyde off Iuda, and the hie myke of Ierusalem. This people is a wicked people, they wil not heare my word, they wil not wiche ymaginacie off thir owne chyn-dange upon strange goddes, thei haue sawed & worshipped, and therfore they shal be as chyn bueche, that stureth for nothinge.
For as straelly as a bueche lych upon a millstone, so straelly dyd I bynd you, whyle ye of Iuda, and the whole house of Iuda, to me, (saith the LORDE) chaunge the myke my people that they might haue a glorious name: yf they might be in honoure; but they woulde not obeye me. Therefore laye the re-belle before them, and saye: Then saith the LORDE God of Israhel, every pers shal be filled with wyne. And they shal saye: Whi thou we haue not, yf every pers shal be filled with wyne? Then shal they saye unto them: Thus saith the LORDE: Whi haue I shal fill all the inhabitants of this lode

Therefore will I make you yete as y' stubble: that ye take awaye with y' south wynde. This shal be your portion, and the portion of your measure, wher with ye shal be rewarded of me, saith the LORD: because ye haue forgotten me, and put your trust in y' deceitful thynge. Therefore shall I turne my doctes ouer thy heade, and discover thy chere, that thy prynces maye be sene: y' abominable, thy deceyfullnes, thy beastlynes, and thy shame full rebornance. For upon the sides & on hills I haue sene thy abominations. We be into the (Jerusalem) wher wilt thou come be clensed any more?

THE XIIII. Chapter.

The worde of the LORD shewed unto Jeremij, concerninge y' deth off the princes.

1. Who shal mourne, when shall not go vnder more the o're the gates: the son of Iuda shal be no more had in reputation, & the citie of Ierusalem shal be shate out. The leaders shal sene the strumantes & seducers, when they come to the welles, they shal fynde no water, but shal carie their vessels emptye. They shal be a shamed & confounded, & shal cover their heades. For the grevouse shal be covered up, because there is no water upon ye. The plowman also shal be shamed, & shal cover their heaves. The hymn shal forsake the yonge samens, the selfe bulgish fashions y' false, because there shal be no graffe. The wylde Asses shal stonde in the wastte, and bawne in their wynde like chydren, & their eyes shal saye for weste of graffe.

The xiiii. Chap. Fo. xxx.

1. Doubte cure ourne wickednesse & make us due. LORD: by thou according to y' name, though our transgressions and synnes be manye. For thou art the comforte & helpe of Iherusalem in the tyme of trouble. Why wilt thou be as a stranger in the Lande, and as one that goeth ouer the fildes, ad cometh in only to remayne for a night? Why wilt thou make thy selfe a conuener, and as it were a graue, that yet maye not helpe? For thou art our (LORD) and we beare thy name, therefore forsake we not.

2. Then spake the LORD, concerninge this people: y' haue pleasure to go so nembly w' chare face, and laue me of, and therefore displeaseth the LORD in so much, that he will no longer agayne to remember al the tyme in his harte, all their synnes. Therefore saith the LORD vnto me: Thou shalt not praye to bechis people good. For though they fast, I will not heare their prayer. And though they offer burnt offrynges & sacrifices, yet not I as accepteth. For I will destroye them with the sword, hunger and pestilence. Then answered I. O LORD: God, the prophetes saye vnto them: Tush, ye shal be no more, and a bonnyer shall come upon you, but the LORD shal geue you continuall rest in this place.

3. And the LORD saith vnto me: The prophetes praye thus vnto them in my name, I haue not spoken with them, neither geue I them any charge, neither do y' knowe: yet they preach vnto you false willes, chauncyng, vntre, and vndeceitfulnesse of their ome here. Therefore thus saith the LORD: As for those prophetes that prech in my name (whom I neuer heles haue not sene) and y' saye: Tush, there shal no more beal nor hunger & in this Lande: We shal be ad with hunger shal those prophetes perishe, and the people to whom they haue preached, shal be cast out of Ierusalem, & y' shal be slayn with the sword, and there shal be no man to carie them: both they ad their wyues, their synners and their doughters. For thus wil I p'ce their wickednes upon the. They shal the, & y' all a vnto hem: theye eyes shal wepe without ceasinge daye & night. For my people shal be shayed with greafe harme, and shal perishe with a greafe plague. For y' I go in to the fildes, so, it lieth all full off slayne men. All I come in to the cite, lo, they be all famished of hunger.

4. Then saith the LORD: Therefore shall ye be led into an unknowne Lande.

The xvi. Chap.

D Shall thou then utterly forsake Juda? (saye J) No: I forsake not: Shall thou forsake Sion? Wilt thou be played vpon, that we can be healed no more? Wilt thou forsake peace, and there cometh no gooder for the tyme of health? Lo, here is no change but trouble. We knowe (o LORD) all our mysdoes, and the synnes of our fathers, that we haue offended y. Be not displeased (o LORD) for thy names sake, for geue not thy louenge tynnea: Remember yeaons of thyne honoure, bute not the comendation, that thou hast made vnto vs. Are the reuenging gods the goddesses of the Gentiles, that sende rayne, or geue the showres of heauen? Doest not heauen is o LORD Euer God, in who we trust? The LORD, thou dost all these things.

The XV. Chapter.

When spake the LORD vnto me, and sayde: Though Hiesai and Samuel stood before me, yet haue I no heere to this people. Wythein awaye, that they maye go out of my sight. And yf they saye vnto the: Whyther shal we go? The answer is: The LORD geueth y thus answer: Some vnto death, some to the sword, some to honoure, some in to captaiuite. For I will bringe foure plagues vpon them, (saye the LORD). The sword shal strangle them, the dogges shal deuoure them, the fowles of the ayre and bestes of the earth shal eate them vp, and destroye them. I will scatter them aboute all in all kingdomes and londes to be plagued, because of Manasses the sonne of Iechias king of Iuda, for the thinges that he dyd in Ierusalem.

Who shal then haue pite vpon the, o Ierusalem? Wha shal be for y further? Who shal make intercession, to opene pece for the thinge thou goest fro me, do earnestly backwards, (saye the LORD): Therefore I will stretch out myne hande agaynst the, to destroye the, and I will not be intreated. I will scatter the abroad with the same on every side of the londe: I will worke my people and destroye them, for they haue had no lust to turne from their owne wayes. I will make the: wyddowes ma in nombre, then the sonnes of the ser. Vpon y mothers of their children, I shal bringe a destroyer in the noone daye. Soe only and vnwarres, shal I sende a sarme vpon the cities. She that hath borne my children, shal haue none, she that hath been full of sorrowe.

When shall I see thee in the cleere daye, when shal be comforted and saye: For very heynesse. As for those y remaine, ne, I will deliuer them vnto the sword of their enemies, (saye the LORD). O woe, alas that euer thou dyest before me, in myne and based of the whole londe: Though I neuer haue receaved vpon the, yet wey man speake euill vpon me. And y (LORD) answered me: Leade not I the then no good: Come nee I to the, when thou art in trouble: and helpe y, when thine enemyes possess the: And one yon haue another, a one in all that cometh from the north: ether. As for yowre riches and treasure, I will geue them out into a pray, not for my money, but because of all yowre synnes, that haue done all yowre counsels. And I will geue yowr yowre enemies in to a londe, yf ye be not: for the fyre that is in brynde my indignacion, shal burne yow.

O LORD (saye I) when thou shaldest chynge, therefore remember me, ad when, deliuer me fro my persecutors: Because my cause is yf I see woe, yet thou hast made the for y sake I suffer trouble. When had founde y woe, I see them vpon the: they haue made my best sayll y. For I call open thy name, o LORD God of hostes. I dwell not amonge the fowles, neither in my deloye: for I dwell in the face of thy house, for thou hast made me with bycames. Shall my synnes eate me for euer? Are my plagues then so great, y they maye neuer be healed? Will thou be in a wacer, that shal the, and can not come out? Vpon these wordes, thou saydest the LORD vnto me: If thou wilt turne agayne, I shal see the in my seruyce: and yf thou wilt not, I shal see the in the place of the peccator from the y. Then shal be euen as myne owne mouth. They shal conuerse vnto the, but come not vpon the: and so shal I make the a stee wall of stele agaynst this people. They shal fynde agaynst the, but they shal not see y. For y myself will be with the, and the, and deliuer the, (saye the LORD). I will deliuer the out of the bondes of the y, and deliuer the out of the hande of the y.

The XVI. Chapter.

Moore, thus saye the LORD to me: Thou shalt eate y of the children that are borne in this place, of their mothers that haue borne them, and of their fathers that haue begotten them in this londe, thou shalt eate the (LORD). Who shall then know it? Euen I the LORD wipe out the ground off the face, and search the eynde and remove euery man according to his wayes, and according to the fruit of his counsaile.

The wise shall make a nest, but bringeth forth no yonge. He committeth by rides, but nothing shall profit. In the myddest off his life must he leave them behynde him, and at the last be founde a very foole. But thou (O LORD) who of cōtrone in most glorious, excellent and off most antiquite, which dwellest in the place of our holynes: Thou art the comfort of Israel. All they that forsake the, shall be confounded: all they that departe from the, shall be written in earth, for they haue forsaken the LORD, the very comfort of the ryghter of life.

Heale me O LORD: and I shall be whole: save theame, and I shall be saved, for thou art my prayse. Beholde, the se men saye vnto me: What is the word of the LORD? Let it come. Where as I neuertheles letinge the fied in they wayes, haue compelled none by violence. For I neuer desired any mans death, this knowest thou well. My wordes also were righte for the. Denoe now terrible vnto me O LORD: for thou art he, in whom I hope, when I am perill. Let my persecutores be confounded, but no me: let them be a shamed, and not me. Thou shalt bringe vpon thei the eynde off their plage, and shalt destroye them right. For,

I saye, thou hast the LORD sayde vnto me: So and stonde vnto the gate, where choate the people and the kinges of Iuda go out, and in ye vnder all the gates of Ierusalem, and saye vnto them: Heare the word of the LORD, ye kinges of Iuda, and all thou people of Iuda, and all ye ciuities of Ierusalem: that ye go to the wyche gaze: Thus saye the LORD commanndeth: Take heed for yourselues, that ye come no burthen vpon you in the Sabbath, as beinge choate the gates of Ierusalem: ye shall heare no treade: altho out of your houses in the Sabbath: Ye shall do no labour there in, but halowe the Sabbath, as I commaunded you to do. For, how be it they obeyed me not, neyther hearken they vnto me, but were obstinate: so that I sawe, and neede obeyed me, neyther ceased my correction.

I neuertheles, if ye will heare me (saith the LORD) and heare no burthen in so ye are choate the gate vpon the Sabbath: If ye will halowe the Sabbath, so that ye do no worke therein: then shall there go the rowe the gates of this cite, kinges and princes, that shall sit vpon the skale of Iouda: They shall be caried vpon charrettes, and be vpon horses, both they and their pynce: The whole Iuda and all the ciuities of Ierusalem shall go here choate, and this cite shall cease to be the more and more inhabited. There shall come men also from the cite of Iuda, from aboute Ierusalem, and from I londe of Ben Iamin, from the plaine sides, from the mountaynes and from the wilderness: which shall bringe burnt offerings, sacrifices, oblationes, and incense, and offer vnto the house of the LORD.

But if ye will not be obedient vnto me, I halowe the Sabbath, so that ye will burne your burthen: the gates off Ierusalem vpon the Sabbath: Then shall I set fire vpon the gates off Ierusalem, and it shall burne vnto the houses off Ierusalem, and no man shall be able to quench it.

The XVIIII. Chapter.

This is another communication, that God had with Jeremie, sayenge:

Arise, and go downe in to the potters house, and there shall I tell thee the word of my mynde. Now when I came to the potters house, I founde him makinge his worke vpon a whele. The vessel that he potters made off claye, braks among his wyche: So he beganne anew, and made another vessel, according to his mynde. Thus sayde the LORD vnto me: Likewise I doe to you, as this potters doeth. I will make off Israel: saith the LORD: Beholde, the house off Israel: ye are in my bonds, as is the claye in the potters hande.

When I teate in bonds to mee one, to destroye, or to waite awaye any people: I teate: if that people (I saye) in whom I haue thus deuyded: Obeyeth from their wickednes. Immediately, I repent off the plage that I deuyded to bringe vpon the. I saye: Woe to I teate in bonds, to bryde, or to place a people in a kingdome: if the same people do as will befoire me, and heare no my word: Immediately, I repent off the good, that I deuyded to do for them.

I speake now whether I will: I will make Iuda, and cochem: but I will not at Ierusalem: Thus saith the LORD: Beholde, I am deuyding a plage for you, and am callinge a thinge: I haue agaynst you.

Therefore, let euery man tyme from his of this, we will followe our owne ymagina-cions, and do euery thinge accordinge to the wil-

¹³ Therefore thus saith the LORD: As I am amonge the heathen, yf any man hath herde such horrible thinges, as the boughers of Sion haue done: Shall not I shewe (I shal-teph) vpon the fony rockes of Libanus (Libanus) my shu-tayne be so greden awaye, that they runne no more: growe mynstrells, nor make futefull: But my people hath so forgotten me, yf they haue made sacrifice vnto vayne goddes.

And whyle they followed their owne wayes they are come out of the hie street, and gone into a fere waye soe vnto to be troden. When these wayes haue brought their sonde in voyses of myn enemies. Do they not recommend call for good, when they drygn yre fury for me? Remembre, howe that I stood beside the, to speake for the, and to turne awayche wynd from them.

¹⁶ Their fort let their chylde be of hunger, and let them be oppressed with the samite.
Let their wyues be robbed of their chylde, and become wyrdowes: let their husbdons be slaine: let their yongue men be kylld with the sword in the fildes. Let the mayde be har-doure of their honours, when the marthures dismemberly vpon them: for they haue bygged a pic to cate me, and layed snare for my feet. Yet I LORD: I knowe well all their coketh, that they haue deuyed, to slay me.
And the foregatherers now their wilde done, and let not their synne be put out of thy sight: but let them be iudged before the, as the gylte. This shall then do vnto the in y synne of thy indignacion.

to Jeremij: Go thy waye, and bye forth the. Then account no chere poytes in to the valley of the chylde off Ennon, which lyeth before the porte that is made of brasse, & shewe there the wydes, that I shall woorde of the LORD, ye kinges of Iuda, and ye cite of Ierusalem: Thus saith the LORD: I haue the God of Ierusalem: Beholde, I will bringe such a plage vpon this pla-

we. And that because they haue forsake me, and vnbalowed this place, and haue offred in it vnto strange goddes: and necher they, their fathers, nor the kinges off Iuda haue knowen. They haue filled this place also wth the bloods of innocents, for they haue set up an altar vnto Baal, to burne their chyldren: for burnt offeringes vnto Baal, which I necher commaunded, nor charged them, nether thoughte on it there vpon.

Beholde ther fore, yf come cometh (saith the LORD) yf this place shall no more be cal-there by, shal be ashy: & graue vpon her, because of all hir plagis.

I will fow the also wth the fowls; of chey

In Tophet shal they be buried, for they shal haue none other place. Thus wth I do vnto this place also, saith the LORD, and eoche yf dwell them in: yf I will do to this city, as vnto Tophet: for the houses of Ieru-salem & the houses of the kinges of Iuda are defiled: as Tophet, because off all the

The xxi. Chap.

the LORD had sent him in prophcie, and stood in the court off the house off the LORD, and spake to all the people. Thus saith the LORD off his selfe the God off Israel: Beholde, I will tynge upon this cite and upon every towne aboute it, all the plagies that I haue denounced agaynst them: for they haue bene obsequious, and wolden not obeye my voycinges.

The XX. Chapter.

When Pashur the priest, the sonne off Immer, desce in the house off the LORD, herde Jeremys preach so fastly: he smote Jeremys, and put him in the stocks, that are by the hye gate off the Iamyn, in the house off the LORD. The next daye following, Pashur broughte Jeremys out of the stocks agayne. Then sayde Jeremys to him: The LORD shall call thy name Paschur (that is excellent and increasing) he shall saye: thou art fearful and afraid: every where. For thus saith the LORD: I beholde, I will make the afraid, the thy selfe, and all that sauer thee: which shall perish with the swordes off their enemies, as was before y face.

And I will gear whyle Iuda vnder the power off the kynges off Babylon, which shall carie them vnto Babylon prisoners, and slaye some with the swordes. Moreover, all y substance off this londe, all these precious and gorgeous wares, all costyness, and all the treasure off the kynges off Iuda: will I geue into the habites off their enemies, which shall spyle them, and carie them vnto Babylon. But as for the Paschur, thou shalt be caried vnto Babylon with all thine household, & the Babyls shall thou come, where thou shalt die, and be buried: thou and all thy seruantes, to whom thou hast preached lye. The LORD, then made y man a beere, but thou refrefhest me, & makest me stronge agayne. All the daye longe am I depyed, and laboured to some off eury man: because I haue now punished londe agaynst malicious Tynnyng, and shewed them off destruction. For y which sayd they cast the wordes off the LORD in my teeth, and calte me vnto the word.

Wherefore, I thoughte from hence forth, neuer to speake off him, nor to preach any more in his name. But the worde off the LORD was so very buynge fyre in me: that I wold not in my bones, which when I wold haue stoped, I might not. For why, I herde so many derisio and blasphemies, yett euery man was in company, and off soch as were conuersaunt with me: which were abhorred, so make in a frayd sayinge, upon him as he go upon him, so feare him, and make him holde his tongue: yf we maye ever come here, and be so enged off him.

But the LORD stode by me, like a wyttie glasse: thei fore my persecuters fell, and coude do nothinge. They shal be for confuted, for they haue bene trustfuly, they shal haue an euill change of hym. And now, the LORD off his selfe, thou shalt see and seest thou shalt knowe the reysen and the very heuyn: let me se them punished, for into the Ierusalem my cause.

Synge vnto the LORD, and praise him, for he hath vetyen the soule off the oppressed, from the honde off the violent. Cursed be the daye, wherein I was borne: wretched be y daye, wherein my mother begot me forth. Cursed be the man, that brought my father the tidings, to make him glad, sayinge: thou hast gotten a sonne. I reuenged vnto that man, as to the cite which the LORD turned upside downe: when he had longe herde the wofull rumour off thy cause: for I sawe me not, as soon as I came out off my mothers wombe, and became my mother was not my geue my selfe, but the byrth myge not haue come out, but my selfe still in her. When thou came I found off my mothers wombe: to haue experience of laboure and sorrow: and so I went into the shame.

The XXI. Chapter.

Before the worst herde the LORD I spake vnto Jeremys, when came the kynges off Media, and Sedorus the kynges off Media, and Sedorus the kynges off Media, sayinge: I will reuenge the LORD: (we saye the) off thy behalf, for I laboure for the kynges off Babylon: I saye to you, yf the LORD (in punishment) will deale with us, according to his marvelous power, and take him from us.

Then spake Jeremys: Behold, thus saith the LORD: Behold, I will come with the weapons, that ye haue in your handes, whether ye fight agaynst the kynges off Babyl & the Caldees, whether ye fight agaynst the kynges off Media: & I will bryge the kynges in each the myddle off this cite, and I myselfe will fight agaynst you, with an ouercome, and with a myghtie arm, in great pleasure and terrible wrath: and will saye

The prophet Jeremy.

Terher shall they saye unto h me: Alas sy, alas for that noble peynce. But as an Asse shall he be buried, corrupted and cast wch ouer the gates of Ierusalem.

D Clyme vpon the hill off Libanus (o thou daughter Zion) sit vpon thy weyes vpon Safai, one from all parces: for all thy towres are destroyed. I gae the warninge, whyle thou wast yet i preserue, But thou saydest: I will not heare. And this manner hast thou vsed for thy youth, that thou woldest neuer heare my voyce. Whiche hyrdmen shal be deuen with the wynde, and thy deuelgros shal be caried awaye in to captiuyte: The a shalke thou be brought to shame and confuon, because of all thy wickednes: thou shalt dwellst vpon Libanus, so makest thy nest in the Cedars trees. O how great shal ymour nyngbe, when thy shame come upon the, as a woman manulange with childe.

As truly as I lyue (saith the LORDE) Though I should see the foune off Joachim dinge off Iuda were the signe off my richte hande, yet will I plucke him off: And I will geue the in to y power off the ches: sette to slaye the, and in to the power off them that thou trustest in to the power off Nabuchodonosor the kyng off Babylon, and in to the power off the Caldees. Moreover, I will see the, and thy mother that bare the, in to a strange londe, where ye were not borne, and there shall ye dye. But as for the londe that ye will desire to returne vnto, ye shall neuer come aue agayne. Thus saith Iehonias shal be late as miar e robbed and come in peeces, which pleasest no man, for all his apperall. Wherefore both he and his seed shal be for a waye, and cast out in to a lode, that they knowe not.

E O thou earth, earth, earth: heare the woe off the LORDE. Write thus man amonge the conclaues, for no preserue shall this man have all his life longe. Terher shall eny of his seede be so happye, as to lye vpon the seate of Dauid, and to beare rule in Iuda.

The XXII. Chapter.

W O be vnto the shepherdes, that bes traye, and scatter my flocke, which the LORDE. Wherefore, thus saith the LORDE God of Israel, vnto the shepherdes that feede my people: Ye feare and shrink out my flocke, and leke not vpon them. Therefore, now will I vset the wickednes of yoma ymaginacions, saith the LORDE. And will gather together the rymys one of my flocke, from all londes that they depur them vnto, and will bringe them agayne to their pastures, that they maye grow and increase. I will see the shepherdes also and them which shall feede them. They shall no more feare and dree, for they shall knowe of them be lost, saith the LORDE. Beholde, the tyme to mineth: I saith the LORDE that I will raise vnto the righteous brendys off Iuda, which shall beare rule, and dispossesse man with wysdome, and shall set vpon equitye and righteousness agayne in the earth.

In his tyme shall Iuda be saved, and I will cast shal dwell without feare. And the name that they shall call him: man of the LORDE oure righteous maker. And the name of the tyme cometh (saith the LORDE) that I shall no more be sayde: the LORDE Iynch, which brought the dwym off Israel out of the londe of Egypt; But the LORDE Iynch, which brought Iechab the seide of the house off Israel, out of the north londe, and from all countre where I had feared them, and they shall dwell in their owne londe agayne.

My herte breakech in my body because of the falshe prophetes, all my bones shak: I am become like a dromedarye than: (that by the reason of reynes can take no rest) for every part of the LORDE, and of his body wotes: because the londe is full of adulterers, when thei come in to be destroyed and consumed, and y pleasant pastures of the defense are trod vpon. And the waye that men take, to wither their gouernance in to a chage like the waye of the LORDE. For the prophetes and the prestes them selues are pained wpon the, and their medet nee beare. I fount in my house, saith the LORDE. Wherefore, thou maye shall be slippery in the darkest, when they maye shadder and fall. For I will bringe a plage vpon them, euar the year of the iudgement, saith the LORDE. I haue feely amonge the prophetes of Samaria, if they preach for Baal, and disceused my people off Israel. I haue sent all amonge the prophetes off Ierusalem foule auerous, and presumptuous lies. They take the word of the LORDE in to a lie, and saye: I haue seen a vision, and I haue heard a voyce. Therefore, thus saith the LORDE of Israel, because I will vset the wickednes of yoma ymaginacions, saith the LORDE. And will gather together the rymys

And the spirit of the LORDE of hostes geneth you this warning: heare not the wodes of the prophetes, that preach unto you, and disceane you: for they speake the measuring of thies come herce, and not one of the meash of the LORDE. They saye unto them, that despyse me: The LORDE hath spoken: Cusly, yshal prosper yghewell.

And thus all them, that make a feare the lust of their owne herce, they saye: Cusly, there shall no my fortune happen you. For who hath spoken in the counsell of the LORDE, that he hath heere and everywhere, what he is shewen to do? Who hath march'd his wayes, and herce is? Beholde, the so my wayes of the LORDE. Eche in his indignity shall goe such, and shall fall downe upon the brayke of the myghy. And the myghy of the LORDE shal not turne agayne, untill he be perswade, and fulfill the thoughtes of his herce. And in the latter dayes ye shall knowe him in a myghy.

I have now sent these prophetes, (saith the LORDE) and yet they raine. I have not spoken to them, and yet they perswade. But if they had comen in my counsell and have my wordes: they had turned my people from their euill wayes and needed no punishments. Am I the God that seeth but the thyngs, which are nye at hande, and not that is farr off? saith the LORDE. Wlaxe any man saye him self so, that I shal not se him?

saith the LORDE. Do not I fulfill beauen and earth: Is it the LORDE? I haue herce and ynough, what the prophetes saye, that preach in my name, saye ge: I haue deceayned. I haue deceayned. How longe will this ceyme in the prophetes herces, to tel lyes, and to preach the crafty sorcery of their owne herce: Whose purpose is, (with the dea-me) that every one shall no make in my people fugit my name, as their fore fathers byd.

Why shall I come up. The prophet that hath a deume, let him tel it: and he shall understand my wordes, let him shewe it faithfully.

For what hath chaffe and wheat to do together, saith the LORDE. Is a comyn worke as fyre, saith the LORDE? and like an hammer, that breaketh the harde stone?
Therefore thus saith the LORDE; beholde, I will vpon the prophetes, that esteale my worde: I will be perswade from every man. Beholde, here am I (saith the LORDE) agaynst the prophetes, that take vpon their tongues to speake

The LORDE hath so saye it. Beholde, here am I (saith the LORDE) agaynst the prophetes, that take prophesy lyes, and disceane my people with their vanities and mada-nes, whom I haue sent, not commaunded them.
They shall do this: people greate harme, saith the LORDE.

If this people, take any prophete or past or the, and saye: what is the burthen of the LORDE? Thou shalt saye unto them: What? burthen? Therfore will I cast you fro me (saith the LORDE) be cause ye your selues are a burthen. And the prophet, prest or people that wish this teeme (the burthen of the LORDE) him will I visite, and his house also.

But thus shall ye saye, every one to another: What auisore hath the LORDE geuen or, what is the LORDEs commaundement?
And so for the burthen of the LORDE, ye shal speake no more of it: for every man owne word is his burthen, because ye haue altered the wordes of the living God the LORDE of hostes our God.

Thus shall every man saye to the prophetes: what auisore he the LORDE geuen the? Or, what (saith the LORDE) And not once a name the burthen of the LORDE.
Therfore thus saith the LORDE: So so much as ye haue used this teeme (the burthen of the LORDE) where as I haue not standinge sine vnto you, and forbade you to speake of the LORDEs burthen:

Beholde therfore, I will repute you as a burthen, and will cast you out of my presence: ye out the cite also. Thus I geue you out your faith: and will bringe you to an enueilinge confusion, and in to such a shame, as shall neuer be forgotten.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The LORDE shewed me a vision. Beholde, there stode two mo wordes of figges before y. Temple of the LORDE a fiery Tabudodenis for hynde of Babil had led a waye capteve Jechonias the sonne of Joachim kinge of Iuda, the myghy men also of Iuda, with the workemasters and chynnyng men of Jerusalem, vnto Babilon. In the one moude were very good figges, and like as the first cap. In the other moude were very vngood figges, which might not be eaten, they were so euill.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto me: what seest thou Jerem? I sayde: figges, where of somme are very good, and somme are euill, that man maye cate them.

The xxv. Chap.

But first the cite of Ierusalem, & all the cities of Iuda, their kinges & princes: come to the beleagure, & assault, & bysted & wasted, & brought as it is come to passe this daye. But Pharaos of kinges of Egypte, his seruants, his princes, & his people also gather on another and all kinges of the land of Syria, all kinges of the Philistynes, & Iobab of Cush, & Accaron the remanent of Egypte, the Edomites, the Moabites & the Ammonites: all the kinges of Tirus & Sidon the kinges of the Iles, that are beyonde the Eudan, Themia, & the streynes of Imdan, & all the kinges of Arabie, & generally all the kings of the Thabee, all kigen searwde generch; whether they be sette on nye) eue-ryon with his neighbours: Xee and all the kingsdomes that are upon the whole earth.

The kinge of Sefech (suyde he) shal dwelte with them also.

And saye thou vnto them this is the commandement of the LORDE of hostes the God of Israel: dwelte and be dronden, spe-we, and fall, chat ye neuer cyle: and chat the row the sworde, which I wil sende among-ye. But yf they will not receaue the cup of chy bonke, and chy knyte, then tell them: Thus doth the LORDE of hostes the Gode of Iuda saye, ye shal, and chat shortly. For la, I begynne to plage the eere, chat my name is greued vnto: chynke ye then, chat I will haue you vpon my shod: ye shall not gecye. For why, I call for a sworde vpo all the inhabitaunts of the earth, saith the LOR-DE of hostes.

Therefore tell them all these wordes, and saye vnto them: The LORDE shal crye from sheen, and let his voyce be heerde from bably habitaunt. With a greates noyse shall he crye, for hee haue couer regall. He shal geue a greates voyce, (like the grape gatherers) and the thymre thereof shal be heerde vnto the endes of the world. For the LORDE hath a testymennte geue vpon all people, and will holde his courts of iustice with all flesch, and purge the vnawdy, saith the LORDE.

For the sayeth y LORDE of hostes: He holde, o mistakable plage shal goe from one people to another, and a greates stormy ware shal arise from all the endes of the earth.
And the same daye shall the LORDE himself slayethem, from the ende of the earth to enother. There shall no more be made for e-ny of them, none gathered up, none buried: but shal lie a dunge vpon the grounde.

It shal be so yf shepherdes: one: spynke the yre slayn with a flesshe, o ye rammes of the flocke: for the yme of youre slaughter is fulfille, and ye shal fall like vessels consumed: made for pleasure.

The shepherdes shall haue no waye to fle, and the rammes of the flocke shall not scape. Then shal the shepherdes eue be bomby, and the rammes of the flocke shal moue ne for the LORDE shal consume their passyon, and the best folden shal be dede because of the boynle mouth of the LORDE. They shall forsake their foldes like as a lyon: for their foldes shal be wast, because of the much of the destroyer, and because of his fearfull indignacion.

The XXVI. Chapter.

At the begynnyng of the reigne of Joudah the sonne of Josias kynge of Iuda, came this word from the LORDE, sayenge: Thus saith the LOR-DE: Stande in the counte of the LORDES house, and speake vnto all them which enter of the cities of Iuda) come to do worshippe in the LORDES house, all the wyues of Jcemma and the re saye. Lete that thou be-pe not que woede bad, yf I spake vnto them: they will heere it, and euen every man in his mynted maye: that I maye also repens of the plage, which I haue determined to brynge vpon them, because of their wyded inuenicions.

And after this maner shalt thou speake vnto them: Thus saith the LORDE: yf ye will not obeye me, to walke in my lawes, which I haue geuen you, and to heare the wordes of my seruantes the prophetes, whom I set vnto you, ryngyng ap cymely, and shill sendyng: yf ye will not folowe the (I saye) then will I do so the house, as I do vnto Sodo, and will make this cete to be abshured of all the people of the earth. And the pestes the prophetes and all the people herde Jeremy prayde these wordes, in the house of the LORDE.

Then when he had spoken eue all the wor-des, chat the LORDE commaunded him to preach vnto all the people, then the prestes, the prophetes and all the people the holde vpon him, and saye: thou shalt dye. How darest thou be so bold, as to saye in the name of the LORDE: that shal happen to the house as it was vnto Sodo: and this cete shal be so wast, chat no man shal dwell therein.

And when all the people were gathered about Jeremy in the house of the LORDE, the pryces of Iuda herde of this rumour, z they came. Soone one of the kigen palace vnto the house of the LORDE, and the kete was borne before the newe toic of the LOR-DE. Then spake the prestes and the proph-etes vnto the rulers z to all the people, these wordes: This man is worthy to dye, for he hath preached a gyst this cete, and ye yourselues haue herde with youre eares.

Then saye Jeremy vnto the rulers and to all the people: The LORDE hath sent me to preach agaynst this house z agaynst the cete all the wordes that ye haue herde. They saye amende youre waye, and yeuer do y gements, and be obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD your God: so shall the LORD repel the plague, & he had deuyd agaynst you. How as forme: I am in your handes, be watch me, as ye thinke: expecte and good.

But this shall ye knowe: yf ye put more de-ach, ye shall make your selues, thus cite 7 all the inhabitants here of, guile of innocen-bloud. for thus is a treach: that the LORD DE hath sence me unto you, to speake all the se wordes in your eares.

Then saye the rulers and the people under the prestes and prophetes: This man maye not be condemned to death, for he hath pieced vnto vs in the name of the LORD our God. The Elders also of the londe stode vp, 7 saye thus vnto all the people: I Iudges the Wicarsse, which was a prophet vnder Ezechias King of Iuda, spake to all the people of Iuda: Thus saith the LORD of hostes: Ezechias hath plotted like a seld. Iudas shall be an heape of stones, & the hill of the LORDES house shall be turned to an hie wood.

By Ezechias 7 King of Iuda 7 the people of Iuda put him to death for this: To we-ry, but rather feared 7 LORDE, 7 made their prayer vnto him. for the which cause also 7 LORDE repented of the plague, yf he had deuy-d agaynst them. Shalde we then do such a shamefull deede agaynst oure hailes? There was a prophete also, that persuaded stiffly in the name of the LORD, called Vnias the sonne of Semas of Carathiam: this man persuaded also agaynst this cite 7 agaynst this lode, as coudingers all as Jeremysaith. To re-when Ioudah the king with all the estates 7 princes had herde his wordes, the kin-ge wente aboute to slaye him. When Vnias perceaued that, he was affrayed, 7 fled, 7 departed in to Egipte.

Then Ioudah the king sent emissaries in to the lode of Egipte, namely: Elnath the sonne of Achob, 7 ozerai synem wth him in to Egipte. which fetchen Vnias out of Egipte, 7 brouge him vnto king Ioudah that stode him with the swordes, 7 cast his dead body in to 7 coms peoples grave. But Zibarn the sonne of Saphan helpe Ieremy, that he comen in to the handes of the people to be slayne.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

At the begynnyng of the reigne of Ioudah the sonne of Josias kynge of Iuda, came this word vnto Jeremy from the LORD, which spake thus unto me: I have bene 7 charyte, and put them a booke thy mth, 7 sende the to the kin-ge of Egipte, the king of Moab, the king of Ammon, the kinge of Tyre, 7 to the king of Sidon: that as by the messengers, which shall come to Ierusalem vnto Ezechias kinge of Iuda, and by the which ye wote the maisters: Thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Israel, speake thus vnto ye masters: I am by the which made the earth, the mth 7 of all that are vpon the ground, whi-my greace power 7 onstretched arme, the yeauen is vnto whom is pleased me. I knowe well I deliuer all the londes in to power as I Abudodon of the kinge of Ba-bilon my seruante. The desires also of si-lde shall I geue him to do him swyre. In all people shall I serue him, 7 his seruantes chylde chylde, vntill the tyme of the last be he come also: for many peoples gunkinges shall serue him.

Moreover, that people 7 kingdome which shall not serue Abudodon of the, and that not put their needes vnder yf y^e of the che of Babilon: the same people will I with swordes, with hunger, with pestilence, I have consumed them in his londe. saith the LORD. And therefore, I wote as your prophetes, for by this yare, repentaunt becomes, charyte 7 watches, which I wote to you: ye shall not serue the kinge of Ba-bilon. for they praye you, to buye sa: as from your londe, 7 that I might you out, 7 best ope you. But the people put their needes vnder the yoke of the kinge of Babilon, 7 serue him, that I will maye still in their owne lode, saith the LORD. 7 they shall occupie it, 7 dwell therein.

All these thinges wote I Ezechias kinge of Iuda, and saye: For your need vnder the yoke of the kinge of Babilon, as serue him 7 his people, that ye maye live.
Why wilthou and thy people perish the swordes, with hunger, with pestilence as a the LORD hath deuyd for all people, that he not serue the kinge of Babilon.
Therefore geue no heare vnto those prophetes (that tell you): for they shall not serue the kinge of Babilon: for they praye you, as I sent them, saith the LORD. For he they are bolde, falslye fore to put them my name: that I might yf I soner byre y^e 7 that ye might perish with y^e perdition.

I spake to the prestes also and to all people: Thus saith the LORD: I have the wordes of those prophetes, that praye vnto you, 7 saye: Behalde, the vessils of the LORDES house shall shortly be brought the agayne from Babilon: for they praye as lies vnto you. I have them not, but DE be close, that the remanens of the emence (which are in the house of the LOR DE, and anyne yem in the house of the kin g of Juda and of Jerusalem) benot caried in Babylon also. For he hath the LORDE of heofen spoken concerninge the pylme, the king, the state and the captivite of the o ma king of yemayeluz in this kinde, which I shal shew you of the king of Babylon so that he benot caried awaye. Jehonah is the son of Joachim kinge of Juda, much all the power of Juda and Jerusalem, from Je rusalem into Babylon, captivite.

And thus hath the LORD of ho often the god of Israel spoken, as couchinge the resence of the ornaments of the LORDES house, the temple of Iudas house, and of Jerusalem: They shall be carried into Babilon, and there they shall remaine, until I visit them, saith the LORD. Then will I bring them backe againe. And this was done in the same yere, and in the beginning of the reigne of Sedechas king of Iuda.

The XXVIII. Chapter,

of Sebachian King of Iuda, in the fifth moneth, he happened, that a mass of foule of Aijur the prince of Gah, came to me in the house of the LORD, and presence of the priesten 7 of all the people. Then saide the LORD of hoosts the God of Ijmel, I haue breake the yoke of the king of Babilon, and after two yeare will bringe you againe to this place, all the inhabitantes of the LORD ES house, 7 I will restore you the king of Babilon caried away from this place unto Babilon, yee 7 I will beare you. Then las the semit of Iuda came the king of Iuda himselfe, with all the priesters of Iuda, (ye are caried unto Babilon into this place, which I LORD ES will breake 7 youd the king of Babilon.

when the thinge came to passe, which that moneth tolde before.

And Samanias the prophet note the chary-ne from the prophet Jeremias need, & waite it: & teach this Iudee & samaria, that all the people may be healed: Thus saith the LORD prophet: Euen so will I breake the yoke of Caluadon from the kinges of Babilon, from the neck of all nacions, yee & that within this thre year. And so the prophet Ieremy witten this was y. A fewer now that Samanias the prophet had taken the charyne from the prophet Jeremias need, and broken it: he was one of the LORDS came unto the prophet Jeremy sayinge: Go, and tell Samanias a the word he: Thus saith the LORD: Thou hast broken the charyne of woodd, but in steate of woodd, thou hast made charynes of yron. For I thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Ierach: I will put a yoke of yron vpon the neck of all this people, that they maye serue Caluadon son of the Kinge of Babilon, yee ye shall saye yo. And I and gent men of beeloe in the felde. Then saye the pphr Jeremy vnto y prophet Samanias: Heare me I praye the Samanias: The LORD hath need of thee, one thou hast giuen this people a false behau. And therefore thus saith y LORD: behold, I will send thee one of the felde, & within y years the shall be, because y hast falsly spokin agaynst the LORD.
So Samanias ebie pphr: did the same yere in the fowenth Ierach.

Com. di. ye maye enjoye the frutes thereof: talke you to yrus, to heare you sonnes and daughter: proude to wyues for yeur sonnes, & husbonds for yeur daughters: that he maye see sonnes & daughters, and that ye maye malei-plie there. A boone not to be seene, but like a fere peace & prosperite of the cite, where in ye be prisoners, & praye vnto God for it. For in the peace there o' shal ye' peace be.

For thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Israel: Let not these prophesies and forseisures yf be amonge you, because you: z belesue not yours owne dreames. For why, they prouch you hea in my name. & I haue not sent them, saith the LORD. But thus saith the LORD: When ye haue fulfilled 157 yeare in Babilon, I wil bringe you home, and of myne owne goodnes I will carie you higher agayne vnto this place. For I knowe, what I haue sayd for you, saith

the LORD.

My thoughtes are to geue you peace, z not troubl: which I geue you all re-dies: that ye might haue hope agayne. Ye shall crie vnto me, ye shal go z call vpon me: z I shal heare you. Ye shal se me, z syme me: &e, yf so be that ye sit: me with yore holde berne, I will be forde of you: saith the LORD. And will deliuer you out of prison, z gather you together agayne out of all places, where in I haue scatterd you: saith the LORD: And wil bringe you agayne to the same place, from whence I caused you to be carryd a waye captyue.

But where as ye saye, that God hath tray-sed you vp prophesies at Babilon: Thus hath the LORD spoken: concerninge the kinge charissey in the stote of Dauid, and all yf people that dwell in this cite, yeur brethren that are not gone with you in capauitye. Thus I saye: speaketh the LORD of hostes: Beholde, I wil sende a streake, of hunger z pestilence vpon them, z wil make them like vnto my fyges, that maye not be eate: for theye are dead. And I wil persecute them with this streake, with hunger z deatch.

I wil deliuer them up to be wred of all kingdomes, to be caued, abhorred, laughd co' storne, z put to confusion of all the people, amonge whom I haue scatterd them: z that because they haue not bene obediens vnto my commaundement, saith the LORD.

which I sent vnto them by my seruants the prophetes, I stode apertly, and sent vnto them, but they wolde not heare, saith the LORD. Henceforthe the worde of the LORD, all ye prisoners, whom I sent from Ierusalem vnto Babilon: Thus hath the LORD

DE of hostes the God of Israel spoken vnto you of Calcia, z of Seidun the some of Massia, which prophesies he vnto you in my name: Beholde, I wil uer them in to the honde of Nabodonosor for the kinge of Babilon, that he maye lay them be fore yore eyes. And all yf prisoners of Iuda that are in Babilon, shal heare them the terme of carynge, and saye: the God do vnto the, as he dyd vnto Seidun z Nabab, when the kinge of Babilon was in the fyre, because they synned against in Israel.

For they haue not endy desired thair vices to yrus, but also prayd hym vnto in my name, which I haue not com-mendeth them. This I testifie, z assure, saith the LORD. Because for Semear the Uthlate, thou shalt speake vnto him: Thou hast the LORD of hostes the God of Israel.
Because thou hast seide letters vnto me, vnto all the people that are at Ierusalem, z to Sephonias the some of Mathe prest, ye and sent them to all the people where in thou yest thus vnto him: the LORD hath ordered the to be prest in the of Iouda the prest, that thou shouldest the chiefe in the house of the LORD: these prophetes, z preachers, z that thou shouldest purch them in prison, as in yf stockes, thou ye peneth it then, that thou hast not repaid Jeremy of Anathor, which neuer launch his prophetiengs. And beside all this, hath sent vs worde vnto Babilon, and be vnto plainly, that our captyues shal ge endure: that we shalde buyde vs to dwell therein, z to plante vs gardens, that we might enjoye the frutes thereof. And I sent Sephonias the prest by rote, vnto Jeremy the prophet heare it.

Then came the worde of the LORD vnto Jeremy, sayinge: Sende wordes althe that be in captyue, on this manner: the hath the LORD spoken concerninge the maie of Uthelamite: Because that Sam-hath prophesied vnto you without my mission, z broughte you in to a felle hope: for he haue the LORD both curse vnto holde, I wil wysse Semear the Uthelamite: z his sebe: for he none of his shal remain amonge this people, z none of them shal the good, yf I will do for this people, saith the LORD. For he hath preached falsly
the LORD.

Jer. 24-2

The prophet Iheremy.

The xxxi. Chap. Ho. xxxvij.

^{al} saith the LORD God of Israel: Why ye sp diligently all the wordes, that I haue spoken vnto the, in a booke. For so, the cyne cometh (saith the LORD) that I will haunge agayne the prisoners of my people of Israel and Iuda, saith the LORD: For I will ressure them vnto the lande, that I swore vnto their fathers, and they shall haue it in possession.

Agayne, these wordes spake the LORD, cōcernyng Israel and Iuda: Thus saith the LORD: We heare a terrible crye, feare and iniquiteste. For what dooeth this signific, that I si: I namely, that all stronge men syn, eury man his honde vpon his fynne, as a woman in the payne of hir tra-uayle. Who ever sene a man trauayle with duddes? Inquire the first, & se. See all their fayces are maruelous pale.

^d Also for this cause, which is so dredefull, that none maye be lictened vnto it: and also for the tyme of Iacob trouble, from the which he shall yet be deliuered. For in that day saith the LORD, I will take his yoc from of thy neck, & I will make thy boundes. They shall nomore sene straunge goddes vnder him, but they shall be swayed vnto God the LORD, and so shall they thinke, whom I will raise vp vnto them. And as for the, my seruant Iacob, feare not saith the LORD DE) and be not a fayer. O Israel, For so, I will helpe the also from synners, & by side from the lande of their captiuitie.

And Iacob shall turne agayne, he shall be in rest, and haue a prosperous life, and no man shall make him a praye. For I am with the, to helpe the, saith the LORD. And though I shal destroye all the people, among whom I haue scattered the, yet will I not destroye the, but correcte the, and that with discression. For I knowe, that thou art no man withoute sinne. Therefore thus saith the LORD: I am busy for thy hurt and wounde.
There is no man so meble withoute sinne, as to bynde vp thy woundes: there maye no man helpe the.

^{al} And thy louers haue forgotton the, and care nothinge for the. For I haue geuen the a small sheke, and chastened the roughly: and thou for the multitude of thy mysdoes, for thy synnes haue had the oter hande. Why mailest thou me for thy harme? I my self haue pitie of thy sorrowe, but for the multitude of thy mysdoes and synnes, I haue done thus vnto the.

¹⁴ And therefore all they that dwonde the, shall be deuoured, and all thyne enemies shall be led in to captiuitie. All they that make the wast, shall wast themselves: and all those that robbe the, will I make also to be robbed. For I will geue the thy health agayne, and make thy wounde to whole, saith the LORD: because they troubled the, as one case a waye and despised, O Zion.

For thus saith the LORD: Beholde, I will sit vpon Iacob as a gyfte, and I will be his dwellinge place. The one shall be buy-ded in hir olde estate, and the house shall be the eight foundation. And out of thence shall goe the blessinge, and the voyce of ioye.

I will multiplie them, and they shall not mynish: I shall enriche them with honoure, and no man shall subdue them. Their children shall be as a fore tyme, and their congregacion shall cōtinue in my sight. And all those that vse the, will I visit.

A captiuitie also shall come of them, and a poynce shall spange out from the myddes of them: whom will I cholege to my self, and he shall come vnto me. For what is he, that geueth ouer his herde, to come vnto me: saith the LORD. He shall be my people also, and I will be your God. Beholde, on the other syde shall the wrath of the LORD beate out as a stormy water, as a mighty rhyde vnto the: and shall fall vpon the heades of the raggedly.

The terrible dyspleasure of the LORD shall not leaue of, vntill he haue done. & pre-soured the intent of his herde, which in the latter dayes ye shal vnderstande. Be the same tyme, saith the LORD: I shall I be the God of all the generacions of Israel, & they shall be my people.

The XXXI. Chapter.

^{al} Thus saith the LORD: The people of Israel which escaped in of water-fynne from the sword, shal be grace to come in to their rest. I knowe that the LORD will also spare vnto me from face, and saye: I loue the with an euersustaining loue, therefore I shal be my mercy vnto the. I will repaie the agayne: O thou daughter of Israel: that hast becomen yfyll as a iure.
I haue shal take thy tabernacles agayne, & go forth with them, that led the to banne.

Thou shalt plante vynes agayne vpon hilles of Samaria, and the grape gatherers shall plante, and synge.

And when it is tyme, the watchmen vpon the mount of Ephraim shall crye: A ye. Let vs go vp vnto Zion to ouer LORD God,

Agg

for thus saith the LORD: Reioyce with gladnes because of Jacob, cri unto the heade of the Gentiles: speake out, singe, and saye: The LORD shall deliuer his people, the remnant of Iſrael, make them whole Behold, I will bringe them agayne from our of the north side, and gather them from the endes of the world, wch they blind and lame that are amonge them, with the women that be grate with childe, and such as be also deliuered: and the company of them that come agayne, shall be great.

They departed from babilon in bennes, but with force will I bringe them hither agayne. I will lede them by the ryuers of weccer in a straighe waye, where they shall not ſtumble: for I will be Iſraels father, and Iſraim shall be my firstborne.

Heare the word of the LORD to ye Gentiles: prechy in the Iſle, that he ſaith of, and ſaye: he that hath feared Iſrael, shall gather him together agayne, and shall kepe him as a ſheperde doth his flocke. For the LORD shall rebuke Jacob, and ryb him from the hande of the violent. And they ſhall come, & reioyce upon the hill of Sion, & shall haue plenusnes of goodes, which the LORD shall geue them: lamely, wch are, wyne, oyle, yonge ſhepe and calves. And then conſcience ſhall be as a well watered garden, for they ſhall no more be hungry.

C Then ſhall the mayde reioyce in chadmauce, yee both yonge and olde ſolters. For I will sume their ſowes in co goodneſſe, and will conſort them, and make them ioyfull, euen from their burres. I will poure plenusnes upon the herres of the pſtes, and my people ſhall be ſatysfied with good thinges, ſaith the LORD.

Thus ſaith the LORD: The voyce of hymnes, wepyng and lamentacion came vp in to becauſen of Rachel mournynge for her chyldren, and wolden be comforted, becauſe they were awaye.

But now ſaith the LORD: I leave off from wepyng and crying, withholde thine eyes from teares, for thy laboure ſhall be rewarded, ſaith the LORD. And they ſhall come agayne out of the landes of their enemies: yee when thy poſſeſſes ſhall haue conſolation in this (ſaith the LORD) that thy chyldren ſhall come agayne in to their owne lande.

Moreover I berde Ephraim, (that was led awaye captiue) complaine on this manner: O LORD, thou haſt corrected me, and thy chaſtitynge houre I receaved, as an vn-learned calfe. Convert thou me, and I ſhall be converted, for thou art my LORD. Hee as I done an chourmeſſe, I ſhall ſeue me my ſelf: and when I ſinced, I ſhall mye upon my ſee. For merdy I haue committed ſhamefull thinges: O LORD, thou beare thine reproſe and confuſion.

Upon this complaine, I thought hym by my ſelf: in noe Iſrahaim my deare ſonne: for he was the childe, with whom I haue had all mynch and paſſyme: for ſince they me that I ſiſt comened with him, I haue him cuer in remembrance: therefore my ſonne berde & reuerſe me unto him: glably and leuſgly will I haue mercy upon him, ſaith the LORD. Hee the watchmen, pſonye the watches for theſe chine herre upon the right ſeaes: haue thou ſhaldeſt make, and come agayne: o thou daughter of Iſrael, turne agayne to theſe cities of thyne. How longe wilt thou go a ſtraue, o thou ſhytlinge daughter: for the LORD will make a new thyng upon earth: A woman ſhall compaſſes man.

For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſtes the God of Iſrael: I will comethen, when I haue broughte Iuda out of captiuee, theſe wordes ſhall be in y I ſonnes in his cities: The LORD, which is the ſpice bydegreme of righteouſneſſe, made the ſiſterfull, o thou holy hill: And there ſhall dwell Iuda and all his cities, the hebrewes and iuſt bow be men: for I ſhall ſee the hongre ſoule, and reſtreſh all ſayne becauſe. When I berde thus, I came agayne in my ſelf and muſed, like as I had bene wch out of a ſweete ſlape.

Beholde ſaith the LORD: He that buyes or maeth, I will ſow the houſe of Iſrael and the houſe of Iuda, with men and much cattell. yee it ſhall come there, that liſe as I haue gone a bowe in synne paſt: co reuerſe our ſee ſaith them, to breake them downe, to deſtroye them and chaſte them: Then ſo will I alſo go diligently a bowe, co buye them up agayne, and co plant them, ſaith the LORD.

Then ſhall it no more be ſayde: I ſiſen haue eaten a ſomer grape, and the chylde ſiſen ſiſen on edge: for every one ſhall by in his owne myſtore, ſo that who ſiſen eateth a ſomer grape, his teeth ſhall be ſiſen on edge.

Beholde, the daye cometh, ſaith the LORD: I will make a new covenante with the houſe of Iſrael & with the houſe of Iuda: a ſei the covenante that I made with thy fathers, when I coſe them by the hande.

will drive them out of the lande of Egypt: which comeneth they desire, wherfore I pursheth them for, saith the LORDE. But thou shalt see the comeneth that I will make with the house of Israel after those dayes, saith the LORDE. I will plant my lawe in the inward partes of them, and write it in their hearts, and will be their God, and they shall be my people.

And from thence forth shall no man teach his neighbour on his bocher, and say: knowe the LORDE. But they shall all knowe me, from the lowest into the highest, saith the LORDE. For I will forgive their iniquities, and will neuer remember their synnes any more. Thus saith the LORDE which gaue the sunne to be a light for the daye, and the moone and starres to shyne in the night: which meash the see, so that the fliedes thereof maye flourish: his name is the LORDE a shoofte. Like as this ordinance shall neuer be taken out of my sight, saith the LORDE. So shall the side of Israel neuer claiffe, but all waye be a people before me.

Moreover, thus saith the LORDE. Like as the brauen above can not be measured, and as the foundations of the earth demeth maye not be sought out: So will I also not call out the whole stee of Israel, for that they have comyn yed, saith the LORDE. Behold, the dayes come saith the LORDE, if the cite of IERUSALEM shall be enlarged from the wynde of Hananeel, unto yf gate of the inner wall, from thence shall the right measure be taken before her unto the hill of oppres of Garib, and shall come aboute Chaacha, and the whole valley of the deed carcasses, and of the ashes, & all Samoth, unto the toke of Lebanon: and from thence unto the citie of the house of warde yf east, wher is the Sanctuary of the LORDE also shall be. And when it is now buried, & the up of the fishon it shall neuer be broken, nor will be any more.

The XXXII. Chapter.

Thus moore as saith the LORDE unto Jerem, in the tenth year of Sedechias King of Iuda, which was yf my year of Nabuchodonosor, what tyme as the King of Babilons hostes laye siege unto Jerusalem. But Jerem the prophet laye bounde in yf court of the prison, which was in the tinge of Iubas a house where Sedechias the King of Iuda caused him to be layd, because he had prophesied of this maner: Thus saith the LORDE. Behold, I will deliuer this cite in to the bondes of the King of Babilon, which shall take it. And for Sedechias the King of Iuda, he shall not be able to scape the Calouse, but surely he shall come into the bondes of the King of Babilon: which shall speake with him mouth to mouth, and one of them shall lase another in the face. And Sedechias shall come into Babilon, and there shall he be, until the tyme that I wylt him, saith the LORDE. But yf thou takest in hede to fight agaynst the Calouse, thou shalt not prosper.

And Jerem saith: Thus hath the LORDE spoken unto me. Behold, Hananeel the sonne of Sillum thine Oncke sonne shall come unto the, and requyethe thee redeme yf londe, that lieth in Another unto thy self: for by reason of yered is thy power to redeme it, and to bye it out.

And so Hananeel myne Oncke sonne came to me in the court of the prison, (according to the word of the LORDE,) and saye unto me: By my lord (I pur yethe) that lieth in Another, in the countre of Beniamyn for by heretage thou hast righte colowse it out for thy self, therefore redeme it. Then I persued, that this was the commandement of the LORDE, and so I bought the londe from Hananeel of Another, myne Oncke sonne, and wrote him ther the maner even then yf I do, and even yf I do not.

I caused him also to make me a writing, and to seale it, and called recorde there by, and wrote him there the maner upon the writing. So I took the writinge with the capte (when it was a newly seale) and red omer) and I gave the cyfence unto Baruch the sonne of Nerias the sonne of Maasia in the sight of Hananeel my cosen, and in the presence of the witnesses, that he named in the cyfence, and before all the Jewes that were ther by in the court of the prison.

I charged Baruch also before them, sayinge: The LORDE of hostes the God of Israel commaundeth the, to take this seale cyfence with the copie, and to laye it in an earthen vessell, that it maye longe continue.

For the LORDE of hostes the God of Israel hath decreed, that houses, fields and vineyardes shall be possessed agayne in this londe.

Now when I had deliuered the cyfence unto Baruch yf sonne of Nerias, I thus saye the LORDE, sayinge: O LORDE God, Jonathan that hath made heaven and earth with thy greates power and thy arme, and the 11 is no blynde to hard for y. Thou shalt 120 36 a nely upon thowlandes, thou shalt com-the multitude of the fathers, in to the be-nity of the children that come after them.

Thou art the greates and myghtie God, whose name is the LORD of hostes: greates in counsell, and infinite in thought: Thine eyes loke vpon all the wayes of men: chil-180 4 a dren, to rewarde every one after his waye, and according to the frute of his inucions: Thou hast done greates tokens and wonders in the lande of Egypte (as we se thys daye) vpon the people of Israel and vpon thesē men: so make thy name greates, as it is come to passe this daye: Thou hast brought thy people of Israel out of the lan-de of Egypte, with tokens, with wonders, with a myghtie hande, with a stretcht arme and with greates terriblesse: and hast graced them this lande, like as thou haddest promysed vnto thy fathers: Tame thy cher-190 5 a chen, that thou wouldest geue them a lōde, that shouldest reue thy mylke and honye.

v. 4

Ten when they came cherin, and possessed it, they followed no thy waye, and walked not in thy lawe: but all that thou com-maundedst them to do, that haue they not done, and therefore come all thesē plagues vpon them.

Wherfore, there are holynesses made new agaynst the cite, to take it: and it shal be won ne of the Caldees that besige it, with sworde, with hunger and death, and loke what thou hast spoken, that same shal come vpon them.

For lo, all thinges are past vnto the:
yet sayst thou vnto me (O LORD God) and commaundest me, that I shall lose a peece of thine vnto my self, and take woe-nesses threfo: and yet in the meane season the cite is deliuered in to the power of the Caldees.

Then came the wordes of the LORD vnto me, sayenge: Beholde, I am the LORD God of all flesh, Is there any thinge that thou shalt saye to me: Therefore thus saye the LORD: Beholde, I shall deliuer this cite in to the power of the Caldees, and in to the power of Nabuchodonosor the kinge of Babylon, they shall take it: for the Caldees shall come, and wylde this cite, and seeke vpon it, and burne it with the gouena house, in whose pillers they haue made sacrifice vnto Baal, and poured drinke offerings vnto strange goddes, vpon the me and vnto mych.

See i. b.
v. 15

For sakinge the children of Israel and the children of Iuda haue wroughte vnto me before me euer from thy youth vnto, whā haue they do done, but promysed me wch the wordes of their owne hartes: I am the LORD.

Or, what hath this cite bene do, but promysinge of my wrath, euer since thou yesthat I buylded it, vnto this houre: W-thm I cast it out of my sight, be cause of thy greates blasphemies of the childen of Iuda and Iuda, which they haue done to proke me: yet they, thesē thinges, thesē wordes, their pities, thesē prophesies, thesē Iuda, and all the carynges of Ierusalem.

When I spode vpon early, and taught them and instructed them, they turned them backe to me, and not their faces. They wylde not heare, to be reformed and come.
They haue seet their goddes in y wood, the is balowed vnto my name, as by this. They haue bylde the places for Baal in the vley of the children of Ebron, to women sonnes and daughters vnto Moloch: whā I neuer commaunded them, neither came euer in my thought, so make Iuda sūwith such abhominacion.

Therefore thus saye the LORD God of Israel spoke, concerninge this cite, whā (as ye seene selues confesse) shalbe deliuered in to the hande of the kinge of Babilon, when it is wome with the sworde, with hunger and with pestilence. Beholde, I will gather them together from all lōdes, whā I haue scattered them in my wrath, vnto full and greates desolacion: and will gather them agayne vnto this place, wher they shal dwell so sely. And they shal be my peple, and I will be their God.

And I will geue them one hearte and one waye, that they maye feare me all the daye of their life, that they and their children after them maye perseue. And I will geue an euell sakinge couenaunce vnto them, to mylde: that I will neuer assest to do them good, and that I will put my feare in the heartes, so that they shall not moue away frome.

Yet I will haue a lust and pleasure in them good, and faithfully to plant them in this lande, with my myghte here, and with all my soule.

For thus saith the LORD: I haue broughte all thesē greates plagues vnto this people: so will I also bringe vpon them all the good, that I haue promysed them.
And men shall haue their possessions in the lands, wherof ye sayenow, that it shal nether be inhabited of people ner of cattell, but be delivered into the hands of the Caldees: ye shalde haue boughte for money, & yete made them upon & solden be solden in the centre of Ben Iamim, & counte abou in Jerusalem in the cities of Iuda, in the cities that are upon the mountaynes, & in them that lie hertby, yete in the cities that are in the desert. For I will bringe their prisoners hither agayne, saith the LORDE.

The XXXII. Chapter.

1 When the worde of the LORDE came vnto Jeremie on this maner, whē he was yet bounde in the coute of the prison: Thus saith the LORDE, which fulfilleth the thinge that he speaketh the LORDE which performeth the thinge that he teacheth in wordes: euen he, whose name is the LORDE: Thus hast thou wrotten, and I haue heretofore: I haue shewed ge-nations and heretofore, which were unknowne vnto you.

Thus (I saye) saith the LORDE God of Israel, concerninge the houses of this cite, and the houses of the kinges of Iuda: that they shal be broken downe the ordinance and weapens, when the Caldees come to besiege them: and they shal be fylled with the bad carcases of men, whom I will slay in my wrath and displeasure: whē I turne my face from this cite, be cause of all his wickednes, Be holde, (saith the LORDE) I will heale their woundes, and make them whole: I will open them the treasure of peace and riches.

3 And I will requite the captiuitie of Juda and of Israel: and will sit them vp agayne, as they were afore, from all myrdes (whe they had committed agaynst me) I will disc them: And all their blasphemies which they haue done agaynst me, when they regarded me not, I will forgieue them.

And this shal ge me a name, a prayse and honour, amonge all people of the earth, which shall heare all the good, that I will shewe vnto them: For they shall be a fayeth and a comforte to all the good debes and be-nefices, that I will do for them. Moreover, thus saith the LORDE: In this place, whe of ye saye that it shal be a wildernes, whener people nor cattell shal dwell: In like maner in the cities of Iuda, and withoute Jerusalem, which a lye shal be (so voyce, that they people nor cattell shal dwell there) Shal the voyce of gladnesse be herde agayne, the voyce of the brydcome and of the bryde, the voyce of them that shal synge (saye the LORDE of hostes, for he is la-uyng, and his mercies endureth for euer) and the voyce of them that shal offre a piffen in the house of the LORDE. For I will receyue the captiuitie of this lande, as it was afore, saith the LORDE. Thus saith the LOR-DE of hostes. It shall come yete after, that in this lande, which is a vythe syemmen and cattell, and in all the cities of the lande, there shal be set vp shepherdes cottages: in the cities upon the mountaynes, and in the cities that lie upon the playne, and in the deserte.

In the lande of Ben Iamim, in the felde-of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Iuda shal the shepe be nombred agayne, vnder the hande of but, that celseth cum, (saith the LORDE. Beholde, the cyme cometh) (saith the LORDE) that I will performe that good thinge, which I haue promysed vnto the house of Israel and to the house of Juda. In those daies and at the same tyme, I will bringe forth vnto Dauid, the branch of righteuousnes, and he shal be equer and righteousnes in the lande. In the sixe daies shal Iuda be helpe, and Jerusalem shal dwell safe, and he that shal call her is euen God our righteous maker. For thus saith the LORDE promyseth: Dauid shal neuer want one, to lye upon the stole of the house of Israel: neither shall the prestes and Leuites want one to offre all wayes by fire me, burnt offerings, to bryble the meat offerings, & to prepare the sacrifices.

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto Jeremie after this maner: Thus saith the LORDE: What is the conuolunt which I haue made with dauid and with his seed, that they shalde not be dauid and with his seed in this season? Then maye my conuolunt al-be broken, which I made with Dauid my seruant, and so he neede to haue a sonne to rege in his throne. So shall also the prestes and Leuites neuer faile, but I will me.
For like as the starres of heauen maye not be nombred, neither the sonde of the see measured: so will I multiplie the seed of Da-uid my seruant, and of the Leuites my ministers.

Moreover the worde of the LORDE came to Jeremie, sayinge: Cōsiderst thou now what the people speaketh? Tuo kynnedes (saye they) had the LORDE chosen, & these same two hath he cast awaye. For so thine is my people come, if they haue no hope to come to gether any more, and to be one people again.

Therfore thus saith the LORD: If I hate make no covenant with you 2 night, and send no father into heaven and earth: then will I also cast away the seed of Da-uid my servant: so that I will make no prayer for his line, to rule the posterity of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. But yet I will name again their captivity, and be mercifull unto them.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

These are the words which the LORD spake unto Jeremy, when he came out of Iahud to denounce the king of Babilon, that all his posses (out of all the kingdome) were under his power; and all his people, fought agaynst Ierusalem and all the cities therof. Then saith the LORD God of Israel: God, I speake to Sedechias the king of Iuda: I will bring the LORD Iehouah before thee in Bethlehe. I will deliver this cite into the hand of the king of Babilon, he shall burne it, and thou shalt not escape his hand, but shalt be led away prisoner, and delivered into his power. Then shalt thou let the king of Babilon in the face, and he shall speake with the mouthes mouth, and then shalt thou go to Babilon. Yet heare thou the voice of the LORD, O Sedechias king of Iuda: Thus saith the LORD God of thee: Thou shalt not slay me with the sword, but shalt die in peace. Aske as for thy brethren, the kinges, thy progenitors &c. here bidden: so shalt thou be bidden also, to in the mourninge they shall saye: Oh leida, for thus haue I bereyued thee, saith the LORD.

Then spake Jeremy the prophete all these wordes unto Sechias kinge of Iuda in Ierusalem: the name of the kinge of Babilon: hee he beleved Jerusalem, and the name of the citie: I namely, & adan & Beldas, which yet remained of the stronge besieged citie of Iuda.

These are the wordes that the LORD spake vnto Jeremy the prophet, when Sedaias was agreed with all the people at Ierusalem, that there shoulde be proclaimed a liber- tie: so that every man shoulde let his son his vntownd and handmaies, & his wifes & his iu- stice, & his Jewes & his hebrees as a bond- man. Now as he had concluded, then so they were obedient, & let them go free. But af- terward they repented, & toke agayn the seruantes & handmaies, whom they had letten go free, and so made them bond- maies.

c. For the which cause the work of the LOR

DE came vnto Jeremy from the LORDE thus sayinge: Thus sayeth the LORD EGE of Iuda: I sawe a covenante made wchare, when I broughte them out of Eg-ypte, (that they shoulde not be bounde) sayenge: When seven yeares are out, the man shal see his brethren the seruantes of Iehoue, if he haue serued him six years.
But ye saye: hee obeyed me not heretofore in this. As for you, ye were not bound, ye dyngd he before me, in yf ye proclaimed ye in a dole for his neyghbours go fre, and ye made a covenante before me, in the temple that beareth my name: But ye ye haue not ye refused a gayne, and blasphemed my name: In this, yf every man hath a quoth for seruante and handmaiden a gayne, when ye had leete go quyte and fre, and compelled them to serue you a gayne, and became bondmen. And therefore thus sayeth the LORD: Ye haue not obeyed me, every man to proclaim freedom vnto his brethren neighb: therefore, I will call you mine a freedom, saith the LORD: when times shal be, to the persellance, and to longer, and I will make you to be playd in all the byngdoms of the earth. And those men that haue not my covenante, and not kept the word of the appointme, which they made before me: when they heard the call in time, I will there make them the true halles of the princes of Iuda, the princes of Ierusalem, the garded men, the justes and altho people of the land: which will be thers two sayes of the call. I those men will I use in to the power of their enmitie, and to be the honours of them that folowe upon in laue.

And their deed bodie shall be made the fruites of the ayre, and besties of the soyle.
So for such sinners the kinge of Iude his prophesie, I will deliuer them in the power of their enemies, and of them that swe to slay them, and in to the hande of the kinge of Babilone to possesse, which now is passed from you. Such prophesie yet remaineth demaine (saith the LORD,) they shall come ayn before this cite, they shall fight gainst it, they will burne it downe. Men will lay the citie of Iude to waste, and man shall dwell therein.

The XXXV. Chapter.

Let me nowe reade the I. ORDE Disposed vnto Jeremy, (in the sighte of Josiah the sonne of Josiah Kinge of Iuda) in this: Go vnto y^e house of the Rechabims, call them out, & bunge thei wth house of the LORD In to some commodious place, and put them in yeece byrke. Then saith J Ja siah the sonne of Jeremy the sonne of Ja haziah, and his brethren and all his sonnes, and the whole householde off the Rechabites: and brought them to the house off the LORDE, in the close of the children off Sion: the sonne off Igobiah the man off Socoth was by the close off the priuie of the house above the close of Maasia the sonne of Sellum, which is the close off the treasury. And before the houses of the hymen of the Rechabites, J set pottes full of wy ne, and cuppes, and sayde vnto them: drynke wyne. But they sayde: we drynke no wyne. For Jonadab the sonne of Rechab ou erthar commaunded vs, sayenge: Ye shal not drinke shall neuer drynke wyne, byr ken houses, howe so be, plunke no wyne, ye shal haue no wyngardes: but for all your cyne ye shall dwell in cities, y yernaie ye shall be in the lode, wher ye be siting.

¶ These haue we obeyed the commaundme of Jonadab y sonne of Rechab our father, in all y haue charged vs, and so we drynke no wyne allome I haue longe tyme, oue wyne, of sonnes & oue of daughters. Lether I haue meany houses to dwell therein, we haue also a mange we make wyngardes, ner come lode to lode: but we be in cenes, we obeye, & do accordinge vnto all, that Jonadab our father commaunded vs.

But now y Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon came up in to the lode, we sayde: cames vs go to Ierusalem, y we maye esch pe the booke of the Caldees and the Assirians: tho we dwel now at Ierusalem. Then came y wordes of the LORDE vnto Jeremy, sayenge: Thus saith the LORDE of heouen the God of Israel: So I will wholye Iuda & all the la ndes of Ierusalem. Will ye not be resour ced, & obey my wordes: I saith the LORDE.
The wordes which Jonadab the sonne off Rechab commaunded his sonnes, y they shal be drynke no wyne, are fast & surely kepte: for vnto this daye they drynke no wyne: but obe y the other fathers commaundment. But as for me, I haue sode vs early, I haue spokt vn to you, & giuen you charge: I haue sayde: & ye haue not ben off this wyse me. For I ha ue sent my seruantes, all the prophete vnto you, Ioseph early, & Ioseph your wordes, sayin g: I will come, & I will sende a man from his wynded waye: and he ys I Iuda. & ye not after strati geydes, so we shalpe chi: y ye maye es cape in the lode, which I haue geuen vnto you and y your fathers, but ye wolde ner heare me, ner folowe me.

The childe of Jonadab Rechab son ne haue sode sofly & kepte their fathers comma ndment, y he gaue egeyn, but his people is not obediunt vnto me. And therefore thus sa ith the LORDE of heouen y God of Israel Behold, I will bringe vps Iuda & vps eue ryone y dwileth in Ierusalem, all the crooble y I haue deuyed vga ynto chi. For I haue spokt vnto chi, but they wolde not folowe: I haue called vnto echem, neuer heies they wolde geue me so answere. Jeremy also spu ke vnto the householde off the Rechabites: Thus saith the LORDE of heouen the God of Israel: So I haue sode so ye haue obeyed y commaundment of Jonadab y father, & kep te all his preceptes, & done accordinge vnto all y he hath bydden you: Therefore thus sa ith the LORDE of heouen the God of Israel Jonadab the sonne of Rechab shal not saye, but haue one out of his sode, to sode all ways I eschape me.

The XXXI. Chap.

In the fourth yere of Iosiah the sonne of Josiah kynge of Iuda, came y wordes of the LORDE vnto Jeremy, sayenge: Take a booke, & write therein all y wo des, y I haue spokt to the, so I saith, so I do to all the people, fro the tyme y I began for to speake vnto the, in y reigne of Josiah vnto this daye. Then speake I house of I uda heareth of the plage, which I haue deuy sed for the, & they maye peract nature turne, & ryman shal his wynded waye, that I maye see geue their offences and synnes.

Then vnto Jeremy call Baruch the sonne of Nerias, & Baruch more in the booke of y mouth of Jeremy, all the wordes of the LOR DE, which he had spokt vnto him. And Je remy commaunded Baruch sayenge: I am in prison, so that I maye not come in to the house of y LORDE: but thou go thou thither, to the booke, that thou hast writen at my mouth: I saith, the wordes off the LORDE, to the in the LORDES house vnto the fol linge daye: that the people, whole Iuda, & all they that come out of the cite, maye hea re I prauntme they will paye me selfe be fore the face of the LORDE, and euen, euery one from his wynded waye. For geace is the much and displeasure, that the LOR DE hath taken agaynst this people.

So Baruch the sonne of Nerias byd, a ccordinge vnto all that Jeremy the prophete commaunded him, readinge the wordes off the LORDE out off the booke in the LORDES hou se. And this was done in the fyfth yere off Iosiah y sonne of Josiah kynge of Iuda, in xxxij

the ix. month when it was commanded, that all the people of Jerusalem should fast before the LORD, and they also that were come from the cities of Juda into Jerusalem.

Then reb Baruch the wordes of Jeremy out of the booke which he wrote of the LORD. Out of the treasury of Gamaras the sonne off Saphan the scribe, which is before the hyer loffe off the new doore of the LORDS house: that all y people might heare them. And whereas the sonne off Gamaras the sonne of Saphan had herde all the wordes of the LORD one of y booke, he wrote downe vnto kinges palace in co y scribe chaub for there all y princes were se: Elisama the scribe, Daltas the sonne of Sema, Elanath the sonne off Achbas, Gamaras the sonne of Saphan, Sebedias the sonne of Gamaras, with all the princes. And whereas toberham all the wordes, y he herde Baruch rede out of the booke before the people.

Then all the princes sent Jehoi y sonne off Achamas the sonne of Salama the sonne of Chusi, vnto Baruch, sayenge: Take in thine honde the booke, wherout thou hast red before all the people, and come. So Baruch the sonne off Terias the scribe of booke in his honde, and came vnto them. And they sayde vnto him: Se y doone, and rede the booke, y we may heare all. So Baruch red, y they might heare. Now when they had herde all the wordes, they were adashid one upon another, and sayde vnto Baruch: We wil certifie the kinge of all the wordes. And they esamined Baruch, sayenge: Tell us, how dost thou wyte all the wordes out off his mouth? Then Baruch answered them: he spake all the wordes vnto me with his mouth, and I alone was with him, and wrote them in the booke.

Then layde the princes vnto Baruch: So thy wyte, and hyde the wyth Jeremy, so that no man knowe wher y be. And they went in to the kinge to the court. But they kept the booke in the chamber off Elisama the scribe, ad tolde the kinge all the wordes, that he might heare. So the kinge sent Jehoi ro sedy him y booke, which he broughte out off Elisama y scribes chamber. And Jehoi reb it, that the kinge and all the princes, which were a doore him, might heare. Now the kinge sat in the wyner house, for it was in the ix. month, and there was a good frey before him. And vnto Jehoi had adrepe of foure leaues therof, he cat the booke in peeces with a pome knyfe, and cast it in to the fyre vnto the berch, vntill the booke was all incense in the fyre vpon the berch.

Yet no man was adashed therof, at this his clothes: neither the kinge himselfe, ne his seruantes, though they herde all the wordes. Nevertheless Elanath, Daltas, Gamaras, beough the kinge, that he wold not burne the booke: not withstanding y kinge wolde not heare them, but commaund Jeremy the sonne off Analeh, Sebedias the sonne of Eliel and Sechem y sonne of Abdiel, to laye hondes vpon Baruch the scribe, and vpon Jeremy the scribe, beche the LORD kepe them out off sight. And now that the kinge had but neede both, ad y sermo which Baruch wrote at y mouth off Jeremy: The wordes of the LORD came vnto Jeremy sayenge: Take anechaube, and write in it all the foresayde sermons, that were written in the first booke, which is ad in the kinge off Judas bach booke.

And rell Joachim the kinge off Juda. Thus saied the LORD: thou hast becom y booke, and thoughtest thyselfe full. Why hast thou warren them, that the kyng of Babylon shal come, y make this lode more so that he shall make bech people and all to be out of it: Therfore thus the LORD saied, of Joachim the kinge of Juda. The spiritual none of his generacion shal upon the name of Dauid. I ad bech confesse out, that the heat off the daye, and the floure of the night maye come vpon him. And I will vnto the wretchednes of him, of his kin, and of his seruantes. And vnto all the chere that I have promissid the (though they be men of) will I bunge y pon them, vpon y inhabitants of Jerusalem, and openall y da. Then tolde Jeremy ane cher booke, and put it Baruch the scribe the sonne of Niias, which wrote them out of the mouth of Jeremy: all the sermons that were in the first booke, which Joachim the kinge off Juda had burnt. And there were ad bech vnto many more sermons, then before.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

Sebedias y sonne of Josias which was made kyng ebo one Eliaha bonifid kyng of Babylon) regent in the lombe of Juda, in the feate off Judas ma the sonne of Joachim. But when he ner his seruantes, ne the people in the lombe adrepe the wordes of y LORD, which he spake by the prophet Jeremy Temeleas Sebedias the kyng sent Jachiel the sonne of Salama and Sophomas the sonne of Eliaha the priest to the prophet Jeremy yeingd praye thou vnto the LORD our God for us. Now Jeremie walked the among the people in that tyme, and was not put in prison as yet. Pharaos house also was come out of Egypte; whiche when the Calde as that be sieged Jerusalem, perceaued, they departed from thence.

Then came the worde of the LORD vnto Jeremie the prophet, sayinge: Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, This answere shal be giuen to the kynge of Iuda, that sent you to come for counsell. Beholde, Pharaos he ofe which is come forth to helpe you, shall returne to his owne lande. But the Caldeas shall come agayne, to fight agaynst this cite, wylne it, and sit vpon it. For thus saith the LORD: Because ye haue not yet turned from this waye on this manner:

For ye haue not gone home by their waye, as saith the LORD: ye shall not go their waye. For though ye had sayne the whole hoste off the Caldeas that besiege you, and every one of the sayne lay in his tent, yet shulde they stande up, and sit vpon this cite. Now when the house of the Caldeas was builde up from Jerusalem for feare of the Egyptians at mye Jeremie wente out of Jerusalem towarde the lode of Ben Iamnia, to do certayne buy sell there amonge y people. And when he ca me vnder Ben Iamnia, there was a power called Iemas the sonne of Selamias of the Ammonites, which fell vpon him, & toke him sayng: mynde is so runne to the Calde es. Then sayde Jeremie: This no so, I go wre to the Caldees. For the lesa Jerias woul de not beleue him, but brought Jeremie bound to before the princes. Wherefore the princes were angrie with Jeremie, causinge him to be beaten, & to be layed in prison in the hou se of Jonathan the scribe. For he was the ru ler of this prison. Then was Jeremie put in to the dungeon to prison, and so laye there a longe tyme. Then Sedechias the kynge sent for him, & called him, & asked him quietly in his owne house, sayinge: how best thou this business: that now is in thine hande? Cometh of the LORD? Jeremie answered: yee & so he & the kinge saye he shal be deliuered in to the hande of Babylonian power.

Nowe, Jeremie sayde vnto kynge Se dechias: What haue I offended agaynst y, agaynst thy seruantes, or agaynst this peo ple that y haue caused me to be put in prison?
Where are your prophetes which haue pro phesied vnto you and sayde, that y kynge of Babylon shulde not come agaynst you & this cite. And therefore haue now, o mye lord: he kyng: let my prayer be accepte before the, & sende me to them in to y house of Jonathan the scribe, that I dwelle in there. Then Se dechias the kynge commended to put Jer emie in the fore entrie off the prison, and day ly to the geuen him a cake of bread, and elan dighee meate, vntill all the tyme in the cite was eaten vp. Then Jeremie remayned in y fore entrie off the prison.

Sedechias the sonne off Nathan, & Se bolias the sonne of Pashur, Ischiah the sonne of Selamias, & Pashur the sonne of Malchias perceaued the wordes, y Jeremie had spokē vnto all the people, ayme ly on this manner: Thus saith the LORD Whoso remayneth in this cite, shall perishe, either with the sword, with hunger, or with pestilence. But who so shall go vnto the Cal dees, shal escape, wylne yge his soule for a paye, & shall lue. For thus saith the LORD This cite (so dooeth) must be deliuered out of y power of the kyng of Babylon, & the heald shal wylne it. The kyng the princes vnto y kyng: This ye desyd you lett this maye be put to death, for thus he discouereth the hodes of the swordes y be meche cite, & the hodes of all the people, wyl he speaketh such wordes vnto the. This maye wylne let us wylne not for pryce of y people, but maye se. Sedechias the kyng answered and sayde: lo, he is in y hodes, for y kinge maye denye you he bringe.
Then ceter they Jeremie, and cast him in to the dungeon off Malchias the sonne off A malch, that dwelleth in the fore entrie off the prison. And they let downe Jeremie w oar des in to a dungeon, where there was no w ter, but mye. So Jeremie stode fast in the my re. Now when Adermelech the Mesian be yinge a chamberlaine in the kynges court, was thus, that they had cast Jeremie in to the dungeon: he came out off the kynges house, and spake to the kyng (whiche the saw vnder the porte off Ben Iamnia) these wo des: My lord the kyng, where are these men meete with Jeremie? he prophete, & hee him two age: Namely, in that they haue put him in prison, that hee do ye of hunger, for the re is no meat in the cite. The kyng commended Adermelech the Mesian, and sayde: Take ye me xxx. men whom thou wilt, & dwelle vpon Jeremie the prophete out of the dungeon, before he dye. So Aderme lech rekech men to him, & meate of y house off Amalech, & there vnder an alme he gat euerdagges & wine droure, & hee hee to nedy a coarde, in to the dungeon to Jeremie.

The prophet Jeremyp.

The xxxix. Chap.

And Abdenlech the Moſian ſayde unto the poeple: Jeremyp: O pierce the eargen and clowen under thine arm holes, be ſure the and the coardes: And Jeremyp ſo. So they darre vp Jeremyp with coardes and toke him oue of the dongeon, and heremayned in the ſore emrie of the priſon. The Sebedias the kynge ſaw and cauſed Jeremyp the prophete be called unto him, in to the thebe emrie, that was by the houſe off the LORD. And the kynge ſayde unto Jeremyp: I wil aſſe the ſomwhat, but hyde nothinge frome me. The Jeremyp anſwerde Sebedias: If I be playne unto the, thou wilt cauſe me ſuffre death: yf I geue the counſell, thou wilt not ſolowe me. So the kynge ſware an othe ſecrely unto Jeremyp, ſayng: As truly as the LORD liueth, that made we theſe ſoules, I wil not ſlaue the, ney geue the in to the handes of them, that ſeke a ſtrechlyſte.

Then ſayde Jeremyp unto Sebedias: Thus ſaith yf LORD off hoſtes the God of Iſraell: If caſe be, that thou wilt go ſorthe unto the kynge off Babylons prynces, thou ſhalt ſaue thy liſte, and this care ſhall not be bite, yee deeth thou and thy houſholdes ſhall eſcape with your liues. But yf thou wilt not go ſorthe to the kynge off Babylons prynces, then ſhalt thou eie be deliuered in to the handes of the Caldees which ſhal ſterre vpon it, and thou ſhalt not be able to eſcape them. And Sebedias ſayde unto Jeremyp: Jam aſſe the ſoure Jewes, that are ſled unto the Caldees: Iſt come in their handes, and ſo they ſhall haue me in derſion.

But Jeremyp anſwerde: No, they ſhal not betraye the: O haſten unto the voice off the LORD: I beſide yf which I ſpeake unto the, ſo ſhalt thou be well, and ſaue thy liſte. But yf thou wilt not go ſorthe, the LORD hath tolde me this plainly: Diſſide, all the women that are left in the kynge of Judas houſe ſhal go out to the kynge of Babylons prynces. For they chylde, yf thou art diſſeuered: and that yf men in whom thou diſſeuered by thy wiſe, haue gotten the vnder, and ſee they ſet ſaſt in the myn, and gone chey waye frome the. Therefore all thy wyues with their children ſhall ſle unto the Caldees, and thou ſhalt not eſcape theſe bonden, but ſhalt be yf kynge of Babylons priſoner, & this cite ſhall be deſtroyed. Then ſayde Sebedias unto Jeremyp: I have knowen off theſe wordes, and thou ſhalt not dye. But yf the prynces perceiue, that I haue talked with the, and come unto the, ſayng: O ſpeake, what ſayde the kynge: that hyde it not from vs, and we wil not put the to death. Tell we what ſayde the, what ſayde the kynge to the: And he geue them this anſwere: I haue humbly ſought the kynge, that he wold ſee me ſet more in Jonaſas houſe, that I dye not there: Then came all the prynces unto Jeremyp, and aſſe him. And he ſaide them, aſſe the manner as the kynge bad him. Then they bidde here peace, for they perceiued nothinge. So Jeremyp abode ſtill in the ſore emrie of the priſon, untill the daye that Jeruſalem was taken.

The XXXIX. Chapter.

When the cite off Jeruſalem was taken: ſo in the ix. yere of Sebedias the kynge of Juda in the tenth yere, came Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylons and all his hoſtes, and beſieged Jeruſalem. And in the xi. yere of Sebedias the fourth Moneth yf (the daye off yf Moneth he biſt in to the cite). Then all the kynge of Babylons prynces came in, & ſaſt the wene vnder the porte: Nerigall, Sareser, Sanſarib, Sarſchim, Rabſaris, Nerigall, Sareser, Rabmag, with all the other prynces of the kynge of Babylons. And when Sebedias the kynge of Juda with his ſeruyes ſaw them, they fled, and departed out off cite by nyghte to ſerue the kynge of the walle, and thowen the porte that is betwene the walle, and the they wenes toward the walle deſſe.

But the Caldees hoſtes followed ſaſt of cer them, and toke Sebedias in the ſite off Jericho, and brought him priſoner to the chodon of the kynge off Babylons unto Belſaſar, that lieth in the ſonde off Hamath: where he gaue iugment vpon him. So the kynge of Babylons cauſed the children of Sebedias and all the nobles off Juda to be layned before his ſace at Belſaſar. And thus Sebedias cye be put out, and biſt by warch charymes, and ſent him to Babylons.

Moreover, the Caldees biſt vpon the kynge palace, with yf ether houſes of the poeple, and built downe the walle off Jeruſalem. As for the remanent of the poeple that were in the cite, and ſo no more come to helpe them: what ſo euer was left of the comferte Nabuzaradan the cheſe captaine caught them to Babylons. But Nabuzaradan the cheſe captaine ſet the reſtall poeple (and theſe that had a ſorbinge) well ſtill in the ſite off Juda, and gaue them vnyardes and ſelfden at the ſame yere. Nabuzaradan ſo the kynge of Babylons gaue Nabuzaradan the cheſe captaine a charge, ſo comynge many sayings that he said unto him, and made much of him: for thou do him no harme, he will forsake him after his owne desire.

So Nabuzardan the chiefe captaine, & the chiefe of the chiefe chamberlaine, & the chiefe of the treasurer and all the chiefe of Babylon's lordes, sent for Jeremij, & caused him to be put off the foue entree off the prison, and committed him vnto Godolias the sonne off Achicam the sonne of Saphan: that he shoulde carie him home, and so he dide amonge the people. Now while Jeremij laye in bonds in the foue entree of the prison, I wrote off the LORDE came vnto him sayinge: O, and tell Abdonemelech the Eliazan: When I seeth the LORDE off hostes of God off Ihsai: Zibbador, the cruel and sharpe plager that I have deuised for thee: wilt thou bringe vpon them, that thou shalt se it: I will deliuer the sayeth the LORDE: and thou shalt not come in the bonds off thofolmen, whom thou fearest. For boundes I all see the, for thou shalt not perish: which he saith: be cause thy life shalbe sau'd, and thou because thou hast put thy trust in me saith the LORDE. The XL Chap.

Thus was the manner, how the LORDE increased Jeremij, when Nabuzardan the chiefe captaine had let him go from Babilon, together as he had led him bounde, amonge all the prisoners, that were caried from Ierusalem and Iuda vnto Babilon. The chiefe captaine called for Jeremij, and sayde vnto him: The LORDE thy God hath spoken mightily before off the misery vpon this place: Now the LORDE hath sent I, and performed it, as he had promised: for ye haue sinned agaynst the LORDE, and haue not bene obedient vnto his voyce, therefore I haue sent this plague vpon you. Beholde, I haue sent the bondes from thy sides this daye: if thou wilt not go with me vnto Babilon, up to the, for I will se the, and proue the false. But if thou wilt not go with me to Babilon, then remaine here: Beholde, all the kinde is at thy will: I will see where thou thinkest convenient: it good for the, so I will see the. If thou canst not be content to dwell alone, then remaine w Godolias the sonne off Achicam the sonne of Saphan, whom the kinge of Babilon hath made gouernour ouer the citie of Iuda, & dwell w him amonge the people, & serue him, where so euer he shall send thee. So the chiefe captaine gaue him his papers to write, & let him go. Then went Jeremij vnto Godolias the sonne of Achicam, & dwelt there w him amonge the people that were left in the kinde.

Now when y captaynes of the hostes of Iuda, which w their felowes were feared abroad on euery side in y lorde, under the kinge of the kinge of Babilon had made Godolias the sonne of Achicam gouernour in the lorde, & y man, wife & child, yete & the poore man in the kinde (y were not led captaynes to Babilon) shoulde be vnder his Iurisdictiō. They came to Godolias vnto Masphar Landy, Ihsai the sonne of Achicam, Iohāna the sonne of Carai, Serai the sonne of Canhorath, the sonne of Ophne, & the sonne of Ezechiel, Iesaias the sonne of Achicam, & their companyones. And Godolias the sonne of Achicam the sonne off Saphan, seate vnto the & their felowes on this manner: We are not afraid to sear as the lorde, dwell in the lorde, & do the kinge of Babilon's waye, so shall ye prosper. Beholde, I dwell at Masphar to be an officer in the Caldees behalfe, & assisteth such as come to vs. Therefore gather you wyne, some and oyle, and let each man in yourne wares houses, and dwell in yourne cities, that ye haue in keepinge.

Now all the Iewes also y dwelt in Moab vnder y Ammonites, in Ithinia & in all y collicies, whē they heerde, y the kinge of Babilon had made Godolias the sonne of Achicam the sonne of Saphan, gouernour vnto the y were left in Iuda: All the Iewes (I saye) returned out off all places where they were fled vnto: & came in to the kinde of Iuda to Godolias vnto Masphar, & gathered wyne and oyle, and dwelt in their cities.

Now y Iohanna the sonne of Carai, & all y captaynes of y hostes, y were feared vnto euery side in the kinde, came to Godolias in Ihsai, & sayde vnto him: Knowest thou not y Babilon kinge of y Ammonites hath sent Ihsai the sonne of Achicam, to slaye the? Beholde, y sonne of Achicam hath sent the. The sayne Iohanna the sonne of Carai vnto Godolias in Masphar: these wordes secretly. Let me goe I praye the: I will slaye Ihsai the sonne of Achicam, so y no body shall knowe it. Wherefore wilt thou saye, y all the Iewes which resort vnto the, will be hastened, & the remnant in Iuda perishe. The sayde Godolias the sonne of Achicam to Iohanna the sonne of Carai: Thou shalt not do it, for they are but Iuda, therefore saye of Ihsai. The XLIIII Chap.

Now in the seventh Moneth it happened, y Ihsai the sonne of Achicam, as y sonne of Ihsai (one of y synners) came to the kinde, where were gathered write the trouble that I have done to you. Sure not the kinge of Babylon, off whom ye stande in awe: O be not afraid of him, saith the LORD: for I will be with you, to helpe you, and deliuer you from his hande. I will pced on you, I will haue mercy vpon you, and bringe you agayne into your owne lande.

Tearetheloe, if ye purpose not to dwell in this lande, nor to followe the voyce off the LORD your God: but will saye thus: we will not dwell here, but go in to Egipte; where we shall neither see warre, heare the noyse off battell, nor fauce hunger, there will we dwell. Wherefore heare now the wordes of the LORD, o ye remnant of Iuda. Thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Israel: If ye be whole purposed to go in to Egipte, so to bethe as a stranger, the swearmethas ye feare, shall overtake you in Egipte, and the hunger wheroff ye be hute a feare, shall hang vpon you into Egipte, and there ye shall dye. For all they, that off set purpose undertake to go in to Egipte, they receiue them selues off their misery, shall perishe with the swerde, with hunger and pestilence: not one off them shall remayne, that shall not escape the plage, that I will bring vpon them.

For thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Israel: like as my wrath and indignacione come vpon the inhabitants of Ierusalem, so shall my displeasure go forth vpon you also, if ye go in to Egipte: for there ye shall be reyled, abhorred, brought to shame and confusion, and no foerther place, ye shall neuer see me. The LORDE forbiddeth you, ye remnant of Iuda: that ye shall not go in to Egipte. And forget not that I haue warned you earnestly thes dayes: so shall ye begyle youre selues. For ye sent me into the LORDE your God, and sayde: O praye for vs the LORDE our God for we haue sinned: wherefore the LORDE our God geueth us this, that bringe vs agayne, so we shall do the same. I told haue I shewed, and be dared mee your voice off the LORDE your God, for the which cause he hath sent me to you. If ye will not followe me, be sure, ye shall perishe with the swerde, with hunger & pestilence: and in the same place, wher ye dwell, there ye go, and dwell.

The XLIII. Chapter.

Now when Jeremyp had ended all y^e wordes of y^e LORDE God vnto y^e people, (for thus saith the LORD God had sin: him) Asaia the sonne of Obias, & Johania y^e sonne of Carea, with all the prioude persones, sayde vnto Jeremyp: Thus hath the LORDE our God heryd not sin: if to speake vnto vs, that we shaloe not go in to Egipte, and dwell there: But Baruch the sonne of Nerias prouoceth the agaynst vs, that he might bringe vs in to the captyuite off the Caldees: that they might slaye vs, and carie vs awaye prisoners into Babylon.

The xliij. Chap. Ho. xliij.

So Johania the sonne of Carea, and all the captyues of the doofe, and all the people folowed not the commaundement of the LORDE: Namely, to dwell in the lande off Iuda: But Johania the sonne of Carea & all the captyues of the doofe, caried awaye all the remnant in Iuda, that receiue come together agayne from the Chaldean among whom they had bene scattered, so dwell in the lande of Iuda: Men, women, childen, cheyngon brought: all the cheyngon Taphnia: for then the cheyngon had left with Gedolias the sonne of Ahicam. They caried awaye also the prophet Jeremyp, Baruch the sonne of Nerias, and so came in to Egipte: for they receiue not obedient vnto the commaundement of God. Thus came they to Taphnia.

And in Taphnia the worde off the LORDE happened vnto Jeremyp, sayenge: Take greatesones in thine hyde, and hyde them in the breck wall, vnder the doore off Pharaos house in Taphnia, that all chenten of Iuda maye see, and saye vnto them: Thus saith the LORDE of hostes the God of Israel: Beholoe, I will sende and call for Tabudonemo for the kinge of Babylon my seruante, and he shall feare vpon these stones that I haue hyde, and he shall speake his sente our them.

And when he cometh, he shall smyte the side of Egipte with slaughter, with prison, and with cheyngon. He shall set fire vpon the temple of the Egiptian goddes, and burne them up, & take them selues prisoners. Moreover he shall araye him self wth the side of Egipte, like as a shepherde pasceth his cote, and shall departe his bone ye from thence in peaci. The pillars also of the temple of the Sonne that is in Egipte, shall be breake in pecen, and burne the temples of the Egiptian goddes.

The XLIII. Chapter.

Now when Jeremyp was shewed of Jeremyp concerning all y^e Iemen, which breake in Egipte: as in the goal at Egipte

The prophet Jeremy.

phnia, at Memphis, & in the londe of Para. Thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Israel: Ye haue sene all y^e misery, y^e I haue brought vpon Ierusalem, and vpon alle the cities of Iuda: so that this day they are desolate, and no man dwel lenger therein: & y^e because of the greace blasphemies, which they committed, to provoke me vnto anger: In that they wente to doe to do sacrifice vnto weythe vnto straunge goddes: wheris ether they, nor ye, nor yo^r fathers haue knowe, ye wote it, I sent vnto them my seruantes alle the prophetes: I rose vp early, I sent vnto them, and gaue them reuerenge: Do no soch abominable thinges, & thinges that I haue. But they wold not slowe ner heere, ye came from thence wicheones, and doo no more sacrifice vnto straunge goddes.

Wherefore my indignacion & wrath was kindled, and it bent vpon the citie of Iuda, the silder with the silder off Ierusalem: so that they were made waiste and desolate, as it is come to passe this day. Now therfore thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Israel: How happeneth it, that ye do so greace euill vnto youre owne soules, thus to despoyle the men and women, child and ba-bee of Iuda: so that none of you is left, because ye provoke me vnto wrath with y^e rootes of youre owne hondes: wher y^e offre vnto straunge goddes in the londe off Egip-se, wher as ye be gone so dwelle. Thus ye magine vnto y^e perishe, and that ye might be reueyled and shamefully merced of all na-cions. O, haue ye now forgotten the wickednes off yo^r forefathers, the wickednes off y^e kings of Iuda and their wyues, y^e wiche-dnes that ye your selues & youre wyues haue done in the londe of Iuda, in the cite and in the londe off Ierusalem:

Here are ye now in this daye, ye sate nor, neither walke ye in my lare and in my cymmer: wheruntoe, that I haue geue vnto you and yonce for such thers.

Thus saith the LORD of hostes the God off Israel: I am sired fully and wysed and determined, to punissh you, and to rete oue all Iuda. As for the remnant off Iuda that purposly wente in to Egipce, I the re ease them off theu misery: I will take them, and they shall all be destroyed. In y^e londe off Egipce shall they perishe, beyng consumed with the siccard and with heu-gen. For I sene y^e lest vnto y^e most, they shal perishe with the siccard and with heu-gen. Therefore they shal be reueyled, abhorred, shamed, and confounded. So: I will visit them

The xliij. Chap.

that dwell in Egipce, as I haue visited Ie-rusalem: with the siccard, with heu-gen, with pestilence: So that none off the remaunt off Iuda, which are gone to dwell in Egipce, shall be left to come agayne in to y^e londe off Iuda: all though they chyn to come thither agayne, and to dwell there. In none shal come agayne, but such as are stanary.

Then all the men which knewe that Jeremye had offered vnto straunge goddes, & a greace soe off wyues that stode there, y^e and all the people that dwelle there in Egip-to in the cite of Patara, answered Jeremye sayde: As for the wyues that chyn be hoden vnto vs in the name of the LORD, we will in no wyse heere them: but what do we geeth oue of oure owne mouth, that wil we do: We will do sacrifice, and offre oblatione vnto the Quene off heauen, like as we haue done here. and chynge and oure yobes haue bene in the cities off Iuda, and in the streets and felles of Ierusalem. In this had we plentyousnesse off vyuals, then we were in prosperite, and no mysfortune to me open vs.

But sene we lest, to offre, and to do sacrifice vnto the Quene of heauen, we haue had sorowes of all thinges, and perishe of the siccard and heu-ge. Last of all, when we women did sacrifice and offered vnto the Quene of heauen, did we make her calles & perit vnto her dwelle offeringes, so do her yet, with one oue husband her wyke:

Then sayde Jeremye vnto all the people, both the men, to the women and to all the ki-nges, which had geuen him that answere: Dynethe LORD remembereth the sacrifices that ye, yo^r forefathers, youre kinges & rulers of all the people haue offered in the cities of Iu-da, in the streets and londe off Ierusalem: and haue he not considered this in his rember. In so much, that the LORD mynno longer suffre the wickednes off your inventions, and the abominable thinges which ye byd. In noe yartelent & disolue woyde, yet and a dyced, so that no man seeth therein any more, as it is come to passe this daye.

Dyde not all this happen vnto you, because ye made such sacrifices, and stode agayn the LORD. Ye haue not sene me here ye, so walke in his lare, in his ordinaunce and statutes.

Here then is the cause, that all mysfortunes happened vnto you, as it is come to passe this daye.

The prophet Jeremey.

Moreover, Jeremey spake vnto all the people vnto all the women: Heare the worde off the LORD all Iuda, ye that be in the lande off Egypte. Thus saith the LORD off hoopes the God of Israel: Ye and your wyues haue spoken with youre owne mouth, the thinge that ye haue fulfilled in bede.

16 Yerthas haue ye faide: We will not saye, but do the thinge that pleaseth vs: we wil sacrifice and pour out drynkeoffringes vnto the Quene of heauen. Purposely haue ye set ap your owne good meanynges, & hastily haue ye fulfilled your owne intent. But herfor, heare the worde of the LORD all Iuda, ye that dwell in the lande off Egypte.

17 Behold, I haue sworn by my great name, saith the LORD, that my name shal not be despised: I shal not wryte any mans mouth of Iuda, in all the lande off Egypte: to saye: The LORD God lyeth, for I wil watch, to plague them, and not for their word. And all the men of Iuda thebe in the lode off Egypte, shal perishe with the sword and with hunger, until they be utterly destroyed.

18 Yerthas, those that fled awaye for yfomard, shal come agayn in to the lode off Iuda: but there shal be very fewe of them. And all the remnant off Iuda, that are gone in to Egypte, thees to dwell, shall knowe, whose wordes shal be founde true: thees to mynne. Take this for a token, that I wil vi sit you in this place, saith the LORD, and that ye maye knowe, howe that I (without deute) wil performe my purpose vpon you, to paynsh you. Beholde (saith the LORD) I wil deliuer Pharaos Ophraim kynge off Egypte in to the handes of his enemies, yf he after this life: as eneo I gaue Sebednias the kynge off Iuda in to the handes of Nabuchodonosor kynge off Babilon, which soughte after his life.

The XLV. Chapter.

1 I shew the wordes of Jeremey the prophet spake vnto Nabuchodonosor the sonne of Nerias, after that he had sent vnto him letters in a bolle at the mouth of Jeremey. In the fourth yere of Iachaim the sonne of Josias kynge of Iuda.

2 Thus saith the LORD God off Israel vnto the, O Baruch: In so much as thou thoudest thus, (when thou wast young) do to me, the LORD hath geuen me payne in my cradle: I haue wearied my self wif singinge, and shall I fynde no rest: Therefore re tell him (O Jeremey) yf the LORD saith thus: Beholde, the thinge that I haue boyled, wil I breake downe agayn, and reue out the thinge, that I haue planted, yee his whole leude. And sekest thou yet promociō: Lookenot for it, and desire it noe. For I will bringe a miserable plague vps all flesh, saith the LORD. But thy life wil I gaue the for a pray, where so euer thou goest.

The XLVI. Chapter.

1 I shew the wordes off the LORD to the prophet Jeremey, which he spake vnto the Gentiles. These wordes solemynglye preached he to the Egyptians concerninge the hoofe off Pharaos Tycho kynge off Egypte, when he was in Chama in the byde the water off Euphrates: what tyme as Nabuchodonosor the kynge off Babilon flew him, in the fourth yere off Iachaim the sonne off Josias kynge off Iuda.

2 He make rebys backler and shyde, ye go forth to fight: Hee harnesseth your horses, & set you on places vpon them: He set your felices fast on, ye bringe forth speares, ye set on your swordes, & put on your lust plates.

3 But alas, howe happeneth it, that I see you so a wayed by shrike ye backe: where fore are your wordes layne? Yet they run we so fast awaye, that none off them lotheth behynde him. Fearfulnesse is fallen vpon euery one off them, saith the LORD. The lightest off feet shal not fle awaye, and the wordes shal not scape.

4 Toward the north by the water off Euphrates they shall stembie and fall. But wher is he thos, that swelleth vp, as it were a floude, roaringe & raginge like the streames off water: It is Egypte theer ryeth vpon the floude, and catcheth out the waters with so greuous ye.

5 For they saye: We will go vp, and will couer the arch: we wil destroye yf cities, with them that dwell therein. Yet you co boue backe, tell forth yf Charettas, come forth ye twoe thas ye Moians, ye Libeans with your baiders, ye Libeans with your bowes: So shall they haue be meo the LORD God off hoopes, a daye of vengeance, that he maye avenge him off his enemies. The swordes shal deuoure, it shal be satysfied and bated in the blood: So the LORD God off hoopes shal haue a slayn offeringe toward the North, by the water off Euphrates. So vpon o Galand he bringe made into the bougher off Egypte:

But in rage shalt thou go to surgery, for thy wounde shall not be stopped. The heaven shall heare off thy shame, and the londe shalbe full of thy confusion: for one stronger man shall stumble upon another, how then shalbe they not fall both together.

E These are the wordes that the LORD spake to the prophete Jeremij, concerninge of hoost of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Ba-bilon, which was to destroye the londe of Egypte: Picaue out choise of the londe of Egypte, and cause it to be proclaimed at Migdal, in Temphias and in Caphtais, and saye: Secunde fall, make the captiue, for the sworde shal consume the countrie aboute.

How happeneth it that thy mightie reedies are fallen why stode they not fast: Even because the LORD thrust them do-wne. The slaughterer was a geate, for one fell euer full upon another. One crie upon another: O pitee go agayne to oure owne people, and to oure owne maine all countre, from the sworde of oure enemyes.

E One crie other: O Pharaos kynge of Eg-ypte, thy ynn will bunge for a snare. As traly as Tyre (saith the kyng, whose name is the LORD of hoostes) it shall come a f moure of Tybalon, and as Libanus yf it doe in the cite. O thou daughter of Egyp-te, mater of thy geite to flye. For in Temphias shalbe voyde and desolate, for Pharaon shal dwell therein. The londe of Egypte is like a goodly fayre caiste, but one shall come out of the north to destrye her forwarde. Her wagers and yeres shal be with her, as like as cal-nea.

They also shall slea waye together, and not abyde: for the daye of their slaughter and the crye of their desolation shall come upon them.

The crye off their enemyes shall make a noise, as the blast of a trempe. For they shall come in with their hoostes, and come in ayes, as it were betwene to some of wood.
And they shall cut downe hit tree (saith the LORD), with out any discretion. For they shal be mo in number then the greshoppers, so that no man shalbe able to tell the.
The daughter of Egypte shalbe comforted, why she shalbe deliuered in to the handes off the people off the north.

E Moreover thus saith the LORD of hoost the God of Israel: Beholde I will vyse that restlesse peep' off Alexandria, Pharao and Egypte, yee both their godes and their kynges: euen Pharaos, and all them y liken vnto him. Yee I will destrye them into the bandes off chafe, that like as thou Iqua: Namely, into the power off Nabuchodonosor the kynge off Babylon, and in to the power off his seruantes. And after all this thinges, it shalbe inbaked as afore tyme, (saith the LORD).

But denounce thou a curse (o my serua-nt Jacob) cease not thou, O Israel, Gilead, I wil helpe the from farre, and thy sede from the londe of thy captiue. Jacob also shal ame agayne, and be in rest: he shall be rich, and no man shall do him harme. I denounce not (o Jacob my seruante) saith the LORD, for I am with the: and will destrye all nacione, amonge whom I haue scarded the.
Tremble the: I will not consume the, because thou art my people: I will chasten the and correcte the: yee are the which with discretion: neither wil I spare the, nether haue I mercie.

The XLVII. Chapter.

E These are the wordes, that the LORD spake vnto Jeremij the prophete agaynst the Philistines, before that Pharaos smote the cite off Gaza. Thus saith the LORD: Beholde, there shal moue a riue out off the north, and shal growe to geate floude, cunnyng euer and cunnyng the londe, the cities and them that dwell therein.

And the men shall crie, and saye that they dwell in the londe, shall moue as the wyse and stampyng off their stronge handes hoist, at the shapyng off their charmes, and at the cumberlyng off the wheels. The sathers shall not loke to their dyston, is stable and wery shall their handes be: at the same tyme, when he shal be there, they crye the whole londe off the Philistines. he shall make waite both Tyens, Sidon all other that are sworne vnto them.

For the LORD wil destrye all Palestina, and the other Iles, that be bounde to the countre. Balonesse is come upon Gaza, Ascalon with hit ocher valles shal de-pe hit peace.

How longe wilt thou lye, O thou sinner de off the LORD: Turne agayne in to thy rest, and leaue off. But how canst cease, when the LORD hunteth hard men it a charge agaynst Ascalon, and my sed is up agaynst the curre off the sea off.

The XLVIII. Chapter.

E Thus saith the LORD of hoost the God of Israel agaynst Iacob: Beholde I will cutte off the hope, for it shalbe in

The prophet Ieremy.

The xlviii. Chap. Fo. xlv.

And he brought to confusion and taken. And y shalbe due a Carthagean shalbe broughte to shame, and it shalbe: Moab shall nemore be had in honour: And thou canst call shal-be taken up on Sodom. Come shall they sa-ye for we have seen our shame they may be called and singe the name of the Gentes, ye that they maye name be thoughte vpon: Thus the foule the first persains ya veyr shall the first from Sodom: And great destruction, is Moab made desolate.

And the cite shalbe herde in all his cities.
And he goinge up vnto a hill there shall be a lamentation and bitter weerde for women, there shall be herde a cruel and a dearly cry: For you are ye, save your ly-ues & be like vnto the heeth in y wilderness.

In, because thou hast trusted in thy strength, and thou shalt be taken. And because thou hast trusted in thy strength, thou shalt be taken. And because thou hast trusted in thy strength, thou shalt be taken.

The destroyer shal come upon all cities, and shall escape. The valley shalbe desolate, and the field shalbe layed waste, as the LORD hath determined.

Make a cry vnto Moab, that she be awaye: For her cities shalbe meddled with, and no man shall dwell therein.
And because she hath despised the word of the LORD her enemy, and caused to be that because she hath despised from shoddyng off blame.

Moab hath ever bene rich and careless from her youth up, she hath sycen and rate her with her treasure. She was as yet yet put out off one vessel in to another: y the maner wente awaye in to captivitye, because her cast rema ynto, and his service is not yet changed.

But lo, the yme cometh (saith the LORD) that I shall sende her trusters to wite her up, to prepare and season her vessels: yet her trusters shall be taken, and shalbe to ye. And Moab shalbe ashamed off Chama, like as Israel was ashamed off Babel, when she put her trust.

Therefore to yehinte thus we are witeth, and singe men off wate: Moab shal be destroyed, and her cities be wate up: y for yong men shal be slaine, saith the LORD.
The destruction off Moab cometh on a pace, and her fall is at hande.

All her neighbours shall mourne for her, and all they that knowe hir name, shal saie: O how happeneth it, that the strong staff and the goodly rod is thus broken? And thou dost here Dib, come downe from thy glory, and sit in pouerte. For the destroyer Moab, shall come up to the alto, and keate downe thy strong holdes.

And thou shalt dwell in Zion, yet the to y street, & loke aboute the cite, then thou art fled and escaped, and saie: what chynge is happened? Moab is confounded and overcome.

Mourne and cry, tell it out at Arnon, that Moab is destroyed. And myserie shall come vpon the playn londe: Tancay, up holon, and Jela: vpon Mesphar and Dib, vpon Dibon into the house of Elphatham, vpon Carthagein and Beth-gammal, vpon Bethsion and Carioth, vpon Dofe: and all the cities in the lode off Moab, neyther they lye safe or wate.

The house off Moab shal be synner done, & his name broken, saith the LORD. Make his dencke: for he was gnysh his self aboue the LORD: that in maye claspeth it herde at his borne, and that he also maye be layed herde to son. O Israel shal be not wite him to come, when he is taken among heathen: He because off hym was that thou hast spoken agaynst him, thou shalt be wite a maye. And Moabites shal leue the cities, and dwell in rocke of stone, and become like dones, that wate the it nestes in holes.

As for Moab a pyde, we have herde off it, she is wite his enemyd. I knowe his stout-ness, his doctinge, his arrogancy and the pyde off his stomack, saith the LORD. For his furydnes maye neither vphel be he wstingeth her belt. Therefore shal there moue nyng to take for Moab, and every man shal die for Moab sake: a lamentation shalbe made, as when the flower vpon the wall.
As will I grieve for the alfo (Jaser) and for the, O thou vnto off Sybma.

Thy wme has liden shal come over y se, and the bunniches off Jaser be wite into the steepe y hyer shal be wite in to thy har-nest and grape gatherer y Myrrh and chere shalbe taken awaye from the synne side, and from the whole londe off Moab.

There shall be no sweet wme in the presse, the crader shall have no affermade to crye, ye when shall be none to crye vnto him: which a fore tyme were herde from hebeon to Israel and Joas, which liden up their voce from Jozan vnto Sodom, that bullock off che year elde. The wme also off Carmen shalbe wate up.

Monow I will make Meab crasse & take the LORDS from the stringes and cut singe that his harp made unto his goddess in his place. I her for my herte mourneth for Meab, like a crowde playenge all heay singe and for the mens sake off the beilde wail my herte mourneth also, asen as a pye, that pipeth a dolefull songe: for they shalbe very faule, and defiled.

All heauers shall be shapen, and all bedes clipped off: all hendes bounde, and all knyes gytted aboute with fild cloth. Vps all the house coppes and steeles off M^loob, these shall mouer mynre: For I will breake M^loob like an vnpreyable briffill such as the LORDE O how fearful is he: O how meane nash he: O how deelyt is he hange dem-ne his heade, and is aflymed: O how shall M^loob be a langingh stocke, and had in demyon off all chemen, that be coude aboute her.

For thus saith the LORD: Beholde, the enemy shal come flyenge as an Eagle, and spiede his wynges vpon Iſſach. They shall clymme ouer the walles, and wynter the strongeholde. Then the mighty men hereof in Iſſach, shall be like the heere off a woman trauellinge with childe.

And I Teab shall make so desolate, that she shall none be a people, because she hath set up her selfe against the LORD. I se re, yet, and sure shall come vpon the abundance of the LORD. Who so feareth the feare, shall fall in the yet, and who so great out off the yet, shall teccen in the more.

For I will bringe you off captiuitie upon Mount Sion, saith the LORD. They that are able to fle, shall stande vnder the shad-we off Geshon. For there shall go a fyre out off Iherusalem, and a flame from Sion, z shall burne vp that pride people off Moab, both before any behynde.

Woe be unto the (all Moab) for their people as Chamosh shall perish: See thy son-nes and daughters shall be awaye captyue. Yet at the last will I bringe Moab out of captiuitie againe, saith the LORD.
It has saide of the place of Moab.

The XLIX Chapter

S concerninge the Ananionics, thus the LORDE saith: Each Iſraelite ſhall own, or ſhall be author of one yeer. Why hath your tongue then taken ſad in ſer-vice, doth his people dwell in his cities? Be-holdes the ſea, the ſtrome cometh (ſaith) LORDE) that I will bringe a wife of waite like Zabab off the Ammonites.

Labell haire of silace, and bur ciues her up; and shee the Assemales shall be heere on theis charchar in the position of aose, which the LORDE ascriben shall moune, first he be rotes out off the gronnde, saied the OR DE. The ciues off Zabab shall crie me, and gyde them (clines wish) that they shall moune, and came about the waller for cheir byrge shall be layd awaye pfect re he piendes and priues wish him.

Wherefore trustest thou in the wrath of men, that flowe to and fro, o thou fea-boughter: and thyne riches are so lightly reason off thy treasure: that no man shall me to be."

Beholde, I will bringe a flaxe vpon the, saith the LORDE God off heouen, from thou: that be aboute the: so that ye shall be scattered every man from anoother, and no man shall gather them together agayne, that be fled. Doe a feere that, I will bringe the menims also out off captiuitie awaye.

Upon the Ebormites party the LORD of horses spoken on this manner: "Ye shall be more wise than in Chanaan: Ye shall be more good counsel among his people: Ye shall be wiser than turn of dew to grain: Ye shall have your backs to be turned into the dew, & ye shall not be ruined."

For I will bring destruction upon them, ye and the boys off his villicacion. If the grape gatherers came vpon the, haik they not leaue some grapes? If the night robbers came vpon the, shulde they not take so much, as they the night more wounsh?

But I will make Esau bare, and discover his secrets, so that he shall not be able to hide them. His side shall be manured ever ye, yet his birthright and his neighbours, as he himself shall not be left behinde.

Thou shalt learne by fatherlesse children behinde the, and I will tepe them and of anyones shall take their comfort in me.
Sei thus hath the LORDE spoken: Behold, they that maner thought were in mine house of the cuppe, have broken the vessel and therefore shal they be fire.

To, neither shall neither he quene ha but thou wast dynt also: For why, He re sworne by my selff: swerth the LORD that Dofia shall become a wisdomess: & an open shame; a laughing stocke and conyngwand his eyes shalbe a continual deserte.

The prophet Hieremy.

The l. Chap.

As their goddes shall be broughte to shame, and their ymagis shall stande in feare. For one of the northen shall come a people agaynst her, which shall make her londe so waste, that no body shall dwell therein: neither manner best, for they shall sit and departe from thence. Therefore saye ye at that tyme (saith the LORD) the child of Israel shall come, the y^e the children of Iuda, weeping & in a strange haile, they shall see the LORD their God. They shall see the wayes of Zion, wher they shall they see: their faces, & come, and hang upon the, in a covenante: that neuer shall be broken.

My people hath bene a lost flocke, my shepherds have desceaved them, & have made them go as fiers y^e upon the hilles. They have gone from the mountain to the leile hill, & forgoon their folde. All they y^e came upon them, have conquered the: & their enemies say be: We have made no fauour agaynst them, for they have displeased the LORD, yee euen the LORD Emphath is the bewtie of their righteousness, & y^e befouled their fachers. Yet shall ye flee from Babilon, & be parte out of y^e londe of the Caldees, and ye shall be as the rammes that go before the flocke. For lo, I will waite vpon a host of people from y^e northen londe, & bringe them vpon Babilon: thes shall laye siege to it, & y^e will be: Their arrows shall not misse, like as a connyng archer sheweth not wronge. And the Caldees shall be spoiled, & all they that spoyle them, shall be scitified, (saith the LORD) because ye were so deare full & glad, to treade downe myncheteage, & fulfilled your pleasures, as the calves in the grass: and triumphed ouer them like the bulles, when ye had gotten the victory. Your mecheris shall be sore confounded, and they that bare you, shall come to shame. She shall be the leest set by amonge the nations, wyde, wast, & dned vp. To man shall be able to dwell there, for the feare of y^e LORD: but she shall be whole desolate. All they that go by Babilon, shall shew it still, & be astonished, & shall wounde at all her plagis.

Go forth ye awaye agaynst Babilon rounde aboute, all ye that can handle bowes: shute as her, spare no arrowes, for she hath sinned agaynst the LORD. Crie out: vpon her, vpon her, agaynst her to the aboute: she shall y^e be her selfe, her fountaines shall fall, & her wallis shall come downe, for it shall be the vengeance of the LORD. Her vengeance shall be taken of her, & so she hath done, so shall she be deale withall. They shall ree out the fower from Babilon, & him y^e hanleth the sickle in harvest. For feare of the sounde of the enemie, euery man shall forsake his owne people. I currey man shall forsake his owne londe. Israel is a sacred flocke, & y^e have dispersed them. Therefore of the Affirians drawe out the, all of this Iudahodonosor kynge of Babilon hath busied all this tyme.

Therefore thus saith the LORD of hostes the God of Israel: Beholde, I will ke the kynge of Babilon & his kynge, as I have visited the kynge of the Affirians: & will bringe Israel againe to his pleasse pasture, that he maye see upon Chemot: Basan, and be satisfied vpon the ryne of Euphrat & Galad. In chos do ye see: & the same tyme (saith the LORD) off the fence of Israel be sought for, then shall I knowe the founte: & men enquire for the syn of Iuda, there shall be none: for I will be mercifull vnto them, whom I suffice to mynch one.

Go downe (o thou avenger) to the mines londe, & visit them that dwell therein: downe with them, and smyte them vpon the backes, (saith the LORD): & according to all, that I have commaunded the. Thus gone aboute the londe a crye of allinghe & greace murmur, namely on this man: How happeneth it, that the hammer of the whole world be thus broken & busied in sinde? How cometh it, that Babilon in her mea redemes amonge the heathen in this manner? I myselfe have layed wayes for the, & thou art calme: & warres are thou triumphed & shawd: for why, then hast thou sold y^e LORD unto anger? The LORD hath punished his people of old tyme, & broughte forth the weapons of his wrath. For the thinge that is done in the londe of the Caldees, is the LORD of hostes wote.

These thinges shall come vpon her: & last, they shall breake into his priuy chym, they shall leane her so bare as stones, that be layed together vpon heape. They shall so destroye her, y^e nothinge shall be left. They shall slay all her mynchines, & slay, and put them to death. Woe be woe, for the tyme of their visitacion is at hande. We thinke I heare already a crye, of them that be fled & escaped out of the londe of Babilon, which shewe in Zion the vengeance of the LORD ouer God, the vengeance of his temple: & a voyce of them that crye agaynst Babilon: Call up all the aduersaries agaynst Babilon, pryde your vences vnto aboue her, that none scape. her, as the hath desired: and according as she hath done, so deale with her againe: for she hath stre up her self agaynst the LORD, against y holy one of Israel. Therefore shall her youngemen fall downe in the streets, and all the men of warre shall be rooted out in y daye, saith the LORD. Beholde, I speake vnto the: O thou proude! saith the LORD God of hostes: for thy daye shall come, and the ry me of y offencours. And the proude shall stumle fall, no man shall helpe him vp. I will come nphysa cities with scie, and it shall consume all that is rounde aboute him.

¶ Thus saith the LORD of hostes: The nation of Israel, and Iuda suffer violence together. All they that haue them in captiuitie, kepe them fast, and wil not let them go: but they wil get a redeemer is myghtie, whose name is the LORD of hostes: he shall manumyte their cause, he shall make the londe shak, and geue them that dwell therein, one to another. The swerde shall come vpon the Caldees: Ierich the LORD vpon them that dwell in Babilon, vpon their princes, and vpon their strength: he shall smite vpon their strong armes, as full bowe, they shall become foales. The swerde vpon their mouthes, so that they shall stonde in feare: The swerde vpon their breast and charottes, and vpon all the common people that dwell vnder the: so that they all shall become like women: The swerde vpon their treasure, so that it shall be stolne awaye. The swerde vpon their waters, so that they shall be dried up: For he londe will shooke many a, and destroye in strange wordes full of things. Therefore shall wolde be his, as Ipea 2. The stridges dwell therein: for there shall no man dwell there, neither shall any man haue his habitation there for euer.

¶ As for God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, with the cities that laye there aboute, saith the LORD: So shall no man dwell there after, neither shall any man haue there his habitation. Beholde, there shall come a people from the north, with a greatesse bonde of iron, many shalles shall stonde up from the mids of the earth: They beate downe and buelers, they are they that vnterfall.

¶ Their voyce shall be like the rarynges of the wynde vpon hostes, and come as a panyer to fight agaynst the: O Babilon. As soone as the wynde of Babilon heareth tall of them, the bondes shall make feable: Sorowe and bewma shall come vpon him, as a woman weeping with doiler. Beholde, like as the lyu cometh up from the pleasant meadows of Iordane vnto the green pastures of Esdra, so will I drye the fowles, and make them runne agaynst her. But whom shall I chese out, and ordeine to fowle things? For who is like me, or who wil stryue with me? wher shall the pether maye stonde agaynst me? Therefore beare the counsel that the LORD hath geuen vpon Babilon and the deuysers that be hath taken vpon the lentes of the Caldees. The leest amonge the people shall reare them in peace, and toke what pleasaunt thing they haue: they shall laye it wast. The noyse of y weynynge of Babilon shall be, as the earth, and the crye shall be herde amonge the Caldees.

The li. Chapter.

¶ Thus saith the LORD of hostes: Beholde, I will raise vp a perilous wynde agaynst Babilon, and her curfewes, y beate euill will agaynst me. I will sende also in to Babilon summer, to fayne her out, and to destroye her: for in the daye of hir trouble they shall be aboute her on every syde. Moreover, the LORD hath sayde vnto the bones men, and to them y dwynne over the wallis in burst places: Ye shall not spare his youngens, till I bowe all his hoste. Thus the lyu shall fall downe in the londe of the Caldees, and the wounded in the streets. As for Iherusalem, they shall not be forsake of their God, of the LORD: of hostes, of the holynes of Iherusalem: though they haue filled all their londe full of synne. Ie awaye from Babilon, every man save his life. Let no man holde his tongue to his wickednes, for the tyme of the LORDS vengeance is come, yet he shall rewarde her agayn. Babilon hath bene in the LORDS honde a golden cuppe, y makyng all londs drunken. O f his wyne haue all people drunken, therefore are they eue of their wities. But soerely in Babilon fallen, and destroyed. I wonne for her, by yngre plaster for her woundes, y f she maye peruenient be healed agayn. We weledebaue made Babilon wretched: saye they but they are not recovered. Therefore wil wele her alone, and geue maine to her owne countres. For he no dynt is come in to beauen, and gone up to the cloudes. And therefore come on, we will shewe on the worke of the LORD our God.

¶ Make sharpe the scowes, and fill the quyners: for the LORD shall raise up the spete of the kynge of the Medes, which hath already a desyre to destroye Babilon. Thus shall be the vengeance of the LORD, and he will geue knowe of his temple.

¶ Set up tokens vpon the wallis of Babilon, make your watch stronge, for y watch men maye ye, yet holde your watch: for y

The prophet Jeremij.

The li. Chap.

for all that shall the LORDE go forth with the dea yee, which he hath taken upon them that dwell in Babylon.

O thou that dwellest by the yere waters, o thou that hast so great treasure and riches, thine end is come: the rekenyng of thy traynynges. The LORDE of hostes hath sworn by himselfe that he will ouerthrowe like the which men like grasshoppers in number, which with a conge shall crye Alarum Alarum agaynst the. Therefore the LORDE of hostes, that with his power made the earth, with his wisdom prepared yee count of warre, and with his discretion spied out the heighte. As soone as he leaue his waye he herde, the waters in the ayre were feared: the waters up the cloudes from the endes of the earth. The earth with lightnesse to rayne, he bringeth the wayes out of the secret places. By the reason of wisdom, all men are become foole. Confounded be all the castles of ymagines: for yf thinge that they make, is but deceipt, and hath no breache. Vayne is it, to worship to be laughed at: in the time of visitacion it shall punish.

¶ Therefore, the promise of Jacob is as now: but he hath made all things, whose name is the LORDE of hostes, he is the eode of his experiaunce. Thou breakst my weapons of warre, and yet thou to the I have feared the nations: I have feared the kinges: I have feared the hostes: I have feared the horse man, yet the chariots, and such as are upon them: Thou to the I have feared man and woman, olde and yonge, blades and mayden. Thou to the I have feared the shepherde: and his flocke, the husbandman and his cattell, the pynner and the ruler. Therefore and I remembre the cite of Babylon, and all her castles, the Caldees, with all the craft which they have done unto Sion: that ye your selves shall see it, saith the LORDE. Beholde, I come upon the cheynyng some hill I search the LORDE, thou that: butt yeist all lordes. I will stretch out my hande over the, I cast the downe from the stony rocke: I will make the a dente hill, so that neither a corner for corner, nor pinnacles, nor foundacion stones shall be taken any more out of the: butt waste of desolate shall thou lie for evermore, saith the LORDE.

¶ Set up a colde in the lande blowe the trumpet among the heathen, proude he nations agaynst her. call the kinges, o f Alarum Alarum: I will come agaynst her, bringe a great a host of hostes agaynst her, as yf they were grasshoppers. Prepare agaynst them yf people of the heathen in their kinges, yee can: and all the chiefe rulers, yee and the people: loade that is under them.

The lord also shall saye: I be ashy, when the dewe of the LORDE shall come: such as yf Babylon to make the Caldees, Babylon is wast, that no man shall dwell in more thens. The Worthies of Babylon shall leave the battell, and kepe hem selves in strong holdes, their strenghts hath is yobben, they shall be the women. Their dwelling places shall be burnt up, their barres shall be broken. One pursuante shall meete another, in one poste shall come by another, to bringe the kinge of Babylon to rynging: that he shall be eaten in a chery fyre, the fire shall occupie, the flames beate up, and the sulphure shall as trayed.

¶ Therefore saith the LORDE of hostes the God of Israel: The daughter of Babylon hath bene in his yeme like an a chesnyng floure, but shortly shall her harvest come: she buched on oyle, the kinge of Babylon hath wounded and distressed me, he hath made an empty vessel. He swallowed me up like a Dragon, and filled his belly with my dectes: he hath cast me out, he hath called my sinners awaye, and he chynge that was left me hath he caried unto Babylon, I am my daughter, that dwelleth in Sion: I am my bloudes ally, vnto the Caldees, saith the Lord. Therefore thus saith the LORDE: Beholde, I will defende thy cause, and avenge: I will drynke up his se, I drye up his watersprynges.

Babylon shall become an heape of stonnes, a dwelling place for dragons, a fastnesse and stronginge, because a man a dwelling place. They shall roade together like lions, as the yonge lions when they be angrie, shall they bite them selves. In their hearte shall be drynke before the, they shall be downe forrye: Then shall they slepe an euery one the slepe, a neuer wake, saith the LORDE. I shall carie them downe to be slayne like shepe, like weethers and gootes. O how was I sayd woe: O how was the glory of my house detaken: how was my power in the Babylon is so wounded at: amonge the heathen. Therefore cryen over Babylon, and hath answered her with his great and woe. But cryen layd wast, the lord hath woe: where is a lorde, where no man dwelleth: where no man dwelleth: thou art. Therefore I will saye: Woe to Babylon: the chynge, he hath swallowed up, the same shall he be out of his mouth. The Gentiles also shall am like unto death.

E They heare my mourninge, but there is none that wil comfort me. All myne enemies haue herbe of my trouble, and are glad therof, because thou hast done it. But thou shalt blyng forth the tyme, when they also shal be like unto me.

From the shall come all theie aduersite: thou shalt plague them in waye, euens thou hast plagued them, because of all my wickednesse. For my sorow is very greate, and my heart is heuy.

The ii. Chapter.

Q uia, how hath y^e LORDE hardened the daughter of Sion so sore in his wrath: As saith he house of Iſrael. he hath casten it downe from heauen: he w happened it, that he remembred not his ewe ne fece sole, when he was angry.

The LORDE hath cast downe all the gla-ry of Jacob without any fauour: All the stronge places of the daughter Iuda hath he broken in his wrath, & thowme them downe to the ground: his kynngdome & his pray-ces hath he suspended.

In the much of his indignacion he hath broken all the hope of Iſrael: he hath withdrawn his right hande from the enemy: yet a flame of fyre is kindled in Jacob, & hath consumed vpon all round aboute.

He hath bent his bowe like an enemy, & he hath fastened his right hande as an aduersary: and in every thinge that was pleasaunt to se, he hath smitten it downe. He hath poned out his wrath like a frye, in to the tabernacle of the daughter Sion.

The LORDE is become, like as it were an enemy. he hath cast downe Iſrael & all his places: yet all his serones helde hath he destroyed, and filled the daughter of Iuda w much sorow and benyffite.

His tabernacle which was like a garden of pleasure hath he destroyed: his hie salu-pne scapes hath he put downe. The LORDE hath brought it so to passe, that the hie salumpne scapes and Sabdaches in Sion, are cruellye destroyed. In his heuy displeasure hath he made the kynge & pastes to be despised.

The LORDE hath forsaken his anntowter, & is smoth with his owne Sanctuary: & hath puen the walles of cheur town into the handes of the enemy. Their enemies mude a noise in the house of the LORDE, as he had bene in solempne feast daye.

The LORDE though hee breake downe the walles of the daughter Sion, he spard not his kyng, & diuene not in his hande, all he had destroyed them. Therfore mourne the town ee and che broken wallen together.

His portes are casten downe to the groude, his battes are broken & synner in footen his kynge & prayces are carried awaye to the Gydes. They haue neither lawe nor people there, yett any vision from the LORDE.

The Senators of the daughter Sion sit upon the grounde in silence, they haue strewed ashyes upon their heades, and prayed them selues with fast dayes. The wydow of Ierusalem hang downe chearlessely to the grounde.

Myne eyes begynne to faile muche in prayng, my body is disquized, my heart perced vpon the earth, for the greatesore of my people, sayng the children and the wy-dowes weete in the streetes of the cite.

Euen when they speake to theiue mechewhere is meate and drynte: for whyle they so saye, they fall downe in the streetes of the cite, like as they had bene wounden, and so me they in their mothers bosome.

When shal I saye of the daughter of Ierusalem: to whom shal I liſte the To whom shal I compare the daughter of Sion? a com forter theiue shall. They haue to like a mayne ſte, who maye beale the.

Thy prophets haue led out wordes lysh thinges for the, they haue not the of thy wickednesse, to kepe the from crueltye: but hee onerlad the, and thou fulfild the streetes of the cite.

All they that go by the, clappethem beate the: blessing and waggynge their heades vpon the daughter Ierusalem, and they saye: the cite that men call so sayre, is now the whole lande reioysed.

All cheine enemies gaue vpon the, m-ring and bytinge their teeth, sayinge because, for the tyme that we loled ſe, we were haue founde and ſene it.

The LORDE hath fulfilled che ch-thene he was purposed to do: and he pur-posed that he had deuysed longe agoon: he hath ſiroyed, and not ſpared. he hath con-ſeue aduersary to vrgueme che ear the, and vpon the home of cheine enemye.

All cheine hee are into che LORDE, thou cite of the daughter Sion: in chei no res tyme downe like a ryuer daye night not, & let not the apple of cheine eye be lost.

Stande up, and make thy waye in the ſuſt march of the myghty, pene out cheiue hile water before the LORDE: liſt vpon hendes, for cheiue of thy yong children cheiue of thyng in che ſtrete.

The Lamentacions of Ieremy. Chap. iij. Fo. l.

Behold O LORD: & confide, why hast thou gathered me vpon so close: Shal the women catche each their owne frute, euen children of a fawmefull age? Shal the pfectes and pfectes be slayne thow in the Sanctuary of the LORD?

How getteth they behinde the streetes vpon the ground, my maydens & yonge men are slayne: much the fawmefull: whom thou in the daye of thy wrath full indignacion hast put to death: yett enenere thou hast put them to death, & not spare them.

My neighbours that are rounde aboute me, hast thou called, as it were to a feast daye: so that in the daye of the LORDS wrath none of the good, neither was any left behinde. Those that I had brought vnto thee I haue, hath my enemye desired.

The iii. Chapter.

In the morninge I have thow the rodd of his wrath: I haue experyence of misery. He deuore me forth, and leueth in my mouth: but not is so light.

Laughe me only he turneth his honde, & laughe euen vpon me.

My flesh & my flayme hath he made of: and my bones hath he knitteth.

He hath buried me in the dust, & clothe me in much gall and cro waille.

He hath set me in barenesse, as they that be dead forever.

He hath set his bowe in me, & the I can not get out, & hath layed beny lynes vpon me.

Though I crye & call piteously, yett heareth he not my prayer.

He hath stopp'd vpon my wayes with fouersquare stones, & made my pathes crooked.

He hath waite for me like a Beere, and as they in the hole.

He hath marred my wayes, & hid my hope, he hath layed me with ailes gather.

He hath bent his bowe, & made me as a mortall shute at.

The arrowes of his quyer hath he shote, and into my kynde.

I am laughed to scorne of all my people, they make songes vpon me all y daye longe.

He hath fylled me with bytternesse, & gotten me wisdom to dyne.

He hath synnered my teeth in peeces, & tolde me the best.

He hath put my soule out of rest, I sought all good thynges.

I thoughte in my self, I am vnbene, there shal be pe forme in the LORD.

O remember yett my misery and my tribulation, the wimwood and the gall.

He hath set his bowe in me, & the I can not get out, & hath layed beny lynes vpon me.

Why I confide: these thynges in my hart, I get a hope a gayne.

Truely, that the mercies of the LORD are not close gone, & that his longyte remembrance ceaseth not.

His faithfulness is greates, and remember himself as the maynyngs.

The LORD is my portoun: I seeke my saluacion in him.

O how good is the LORD vnto the, that putteth their trust in him, and to the soule that seeketh after him.

O how good is it with faithlesse to waite, and care, for the health of the LORD.

O how good is it for a man, to take the yoke vpon him from his youth vnto.

He sitteth alone, he holdeth himself, and dwelleth quietly by himself.

He launth his face vpon the earth, yf (per case) there happenes be any hope.

He offereth his cheeke to the smiter, he will be content with repones.

For the LORD will not forsake for ever, butt though he be cast off, yett (according to) y multitude of his mercies, he recovereth to grace a gayne.

For he doeth not plague, & cast out the children of men from his herite.

To create all the pfectures of the earth vnder his feete,

To knowe the indyngment of man before the most highest.

To conderme a man in his cause: The LORD hath no pleasure in such thynges.

What is he thatin that faith: there shal be somethinge he done withoute the LORDS commandement.

Out of the mouth of the most highest goeth oute well and good.

Wherefore thou man: remember the saynges of the LORD: let him remember each his owne synne.

Let us loke well vpon oure owne malice, & remember our felices, and eyme a gayne of the LORD.

Let vs lift vpon oure hartes with oure hartes vnto the LORD, that is in heauen.

We haue bene dyssembled, & haue offended, whiche thou therfore not be interceded.

Thou hast couered vs in thy wrath, & thou hast secured vs, thou hast slayne vs withoute my fauoure.

Thou hast hyd thy self in a cloude, that oure prayer shoulde not go thow.

Thou hast made vs our castles, and to be despyed as we gette the chychen.

the people, not pined their elbers.

Wherefore yet our eyes saye vs, why are we late for your helpe: crying we be euer wrayne vpon a people, that can do vns good.

They laye so sharpe noide for vs, that we can not go so far vpon the straites: for our enemies come, our dayes are fulfilled, our ende is here.

Our persecuters are swifter then the Ae-glos of the ayre: they folowed vpon vs ouer the mountaynes, and layed wait for vs in y for the cuppe shal come vnto the alse, which wylt thou suspect of, thou shalt be dronke.

Thy synne is wel punished: O thou dought in Zion he shall not suffice thee to be caried awaye any more. But thy wildenesse (O daughter Edom) shall be wyse, and for thy frownsale, he shall be thy into captiuite.

The V. Chapter.

Alto rememberaunce O LORD what we haue suffered, cōside and se our comition. Our enchaunce is turned to the strangers, & our house to the assembly. We are become carefull and facherlesse, and our mothers are as the wydowes. We are fayne to drynke our owne water for money, and our yonge wyl muste we bye with money. Our children are vnder persecucion, we are weary, and haue no rest.

For yme we yelded oure selves to the Egyptians, and adored the Assyrians, only that we might haue bried ynough. Our sa-uours (which now are gone) haue synned, & we must beare their wildenesse. Strangers haue the rule of vs, and as man belyngeth in out of their hidden. We must get of ly arage wath the parrell of oure ryues, because of the mouth of the wildernes.

Our synners as it had bene hente in an oven, for verye for longer. The wyues are rauished in Zion, & the maydens in the cities of Iuda. The prayces are hanged vp with the hymes of the enemies, they haue not spered the elde sage men, they haue taken yon-gers awaye from them, and the boyes are hanged vp vpon trees. The alderes syn no more vnder the garn, and the yonge men the no more playnge of Maske. The joyce of oure herbs is gone, our merry queres turned in to mourninge. The garlande of oure heade is fallen, alse, that our mynnes so sore.

Therefore oure here is full of heynesse, & oure eyes dymme: because of y hill of Zion that is destroyed, in so much, that the fores runne vpon it. But thou O LORD, that re-maynest for euermore, and thy fierc woulde with our ende: Wherefore wilt thou still forget vs, and forsake vs so longe. O LORD is Turne thou no more, & so shal we be turned. Rem: & daies as in older tyme, for thou hast now larnished vs longe ynough, and be no sore disleased as vs.

Chap. VI. A copie of the epistole, that Ieremy sent to the Iewes, which were led awaye into Babylon.

These are the wordes of the boke, that Baruch the sonne of Nerias the sonne of Masias, the sonne of Gedechias, the sonne of Sebia, the sonne of Guldala, wrote at Babylon in the fifth yere that such boyes of the moneth: w hat tyme as the Caldees wonne Ierusalem and burnt it.

The first Chapter.

AND Baruch sayde be the wordes of this booke, that Iehonias the sonne of Iosiah kynge of Iuda might heare: and in the presence of all the people, that were come to heare the booke: yee and be foue all the noblesinges somes, before y leues of the counsell and elders: and before the whole people, from y lowest unto the hyest: desce all them that dwelle at Babilon, by y wordes of God. Which when they hearde it, wepte, fasted, and prayd befoe the LORDE.

B They made a collection also of money, according to euerymans power, and sent it to Jerusalem unto Iosiah the sonne of Seldas the sonne of Salen prest, with y other pisyse: and to all the people which were at Babilon as Jerusalem, what tyme as they had not come the ornaments of the temple of y LORDE: that were taken awaye out of the temple: that they might buyge them agayne in the lande of Iuda, the daye of the month Siban: namely, y floure vessell, (which Seldas the sonne of Iosias kynge of Iuda had made.) After that Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon had take Iehonias, with all his prynces, lordes, and all the people, and led them captiue from Jerusalem unto Babilon.

C And they sayde: Beholde, we haue sent you money, to buye you burnt offeringes and incense withall: make you vncumbered hart, & offre for synne upon the altare of the LORDE oure God. And praye for the prosperite of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon, and of Balshazar his sonne: y their dayes maye be vpon earth, as the dayes of heaue: that God also maye geue us strength, and lengthen our eyes: that we maye lyue vnder the defence of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon, and vnder the protection of Balshazar his sonne: that we maye longe do them seruyce, and synce fauoure in their sight. Praye for vs also vnto the LORDE oure God, for we haue synned agaynst the LORDE oure God, and vnto this daye is not his wrath turned yet awaye from vs. And seebat yerede this booke (which we haue sent vnto you to be rehearsed in the temple of the LORDE) vpon this by daye, and at euerye comenient.

D Thus that yee saye. The LORDE of God is righteous, but we are worthy of confusion & shame: like as it is come to passe this daye, vnto all Iuda, & to euerye y dweller at Jerusalem & of Kinges, prynces, prestes, pri-etes & to oure sachens. We haue synned befoe the LORDE oure God, we haue not put oure trust in hym, nor geuen hym obedience: we haue not obeyed hym, we haue not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE oure God: we walke in the commandementes that he geue us. Sene this daye that he brought us forfathers ones of the lande of Egypte: and in this present daye, we haue bene entred in beleuyng and an vnfaithful people vnto y LORDE oure God: despyrge oure sinnes vterly, and shewinginge backe, that we shal be not heare his voyce.

Wherfore there is come vpon vs great plague & byrres & curtes, like as the LORDE hath sayd by Moses his seruante: which broughte vnto oure sachens out of the lande of Egypte geue vs a lorde, that sheweth with might and honny, like as it is to se this daye. Iam the son, we haue not hearkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE oure God, accordinge to the wordes of the prophetes, whom he haue sent vs and to oure rulers: but eueryman hath loved his owne mynde and made ymaginacions to offre vnto strange goddes, and in euerye the sight of the LORDE oure God.

The ii. Chapter.

E Which which cause the LORDE our God hath persecuted his daye, wherof he certifieth vs, and our habitation chartered in Jerusalem: yee and our byrgen, & our princes, with all y Israel and Iuda. And such plagges hath y lord brought vnto us, as neuer came to passe vnder the heauens: like as it is fulfilled in Jerusalem, accordinge as it is written in the lawe of Moses: that man shalde eate y flesh of his owne daughter. I am sure, I hath deliuered them in to the handes of all the Kinges, y are regardous vnto the comforted and desolate: & sene the shewes all londes & nacions. Thus are we brought in nath & not abate, for we haue synned agaynst the LORDE of God, & not tane obedience vnto his voyce. Therefore y LORDE of God hath tane us, & we with y fathers (as reason is) broughte to open shame, as it is to se this daye. And as for these plagges y are come vpon us already, y LORDE hath denyed the fowr yet: vnto we not praye vnto y LORDE our God, y we might eueryman taine his life to go only maye. So y LORDE hath caused plagges to come vpon us, for he is righteous in all his wordes, which he hath comanded vs: which we also haue not done, nor hearkened vnto his voyce, for we walke in y commandementes of y LORDE, y he hath geue us the

The prophet Baruch.

The iiij. Chap. Ho. liij.

And now O LORD God of Israel, thou hast brought thy people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, with thy arm and wisdom, with thy greater power and stretched arms: and hast gotten thyself an name, as it is come to passe this day: O LORD God, we have sinned, we have wronged thee, we have behaved our selves unrightly in all thy righteousnesse. Turne thy wrath fro vs (we beseeche thee) for we are now a few like amonge the Gentiles, where thou hast scattered vs. heare o' prayers O LORD: O LORD, our precious thinge vs oute a scape waye, for thyne owne sake: get vs fauour in the sight of the, which haue led vs awaye: y all these maye knowe, that thou art the LORD our God, and that Israel and his generatione shall be called by thy name.

O LORD, lette downe fro thy holy house upon vs: enclume thine care, & heare vs. For thou thy selfe be gone downe to their graue, & whosoulles are out of their bodies, as for the LORD: heere praye ner righteously: for he the soule that is wept for the multitude of the finnes, which growe on her as much as meate, where euer begynn to say: as for such a soule as cryed praye and sigh: thus wast thou unto the LORD. O LORD, we beseeche our prayers before thee, and requyre mercy of thy sight. O LORD our God: not for any goodnesse off our forefathers, but because thou hast sent our thy wrath & indignation upon us: according as thou dydest threaten vs, by thy seruantes the prophete, saying:

Thus saith the LORD: Come downe from shilber, and nedea, and strue the tympe of Babylon, so shall ye saye: we shall in the land, that I gaue vnto your fathers. If ye will not do this, nor heare the voyce of y LORD your God, see forwarde the kynge of Babylon: I shall beseeche you in the citie of Jerusalem, I will take from you the voyce off my mouth and the voyce of wyse, the voyce of the hyde me oute the voyce of the hyde, and there shall men dwell more in the lande. But they will not be pert vnto thy voyce, so do the kynge of Babylon saye: we are not for our fathers: thou performed the wordes, that thou spakst by thy seruantes the prophetes: name the house of our kynge and the house of our fathers shall be translated out of their place.

And lo, now are they layde out in the heath of Sennar, in the caldes of night, and in graue mystry: w' hunger, w' thirst,

w' pestilence: & are cleane cast forth. As for the people to whom thy name was called upon: thou hast layde it wast, as it is in case this day: & for the wickednes of the house of Israel, & the cause of Jude. O LORD God, thou hast increased vs after all thy goodnesse: & according to all y greater & more mercy of thine, like as thou spakst by thy seruante Mesias, in the day when thou wilt send a child to him, so maye thy name before the children of Israel, saying: If ye will not heare I into my voyce, the shall this greates multitude be turned into a very small people, for I will scatter the abode. Not withstandinge I am sure that this folke will not beare me: for I am an hardened to people. But in y lode of their captiuitie, they shall remember them selves, & come to knowe, y I am the LORD: the God which I gaue the an here to number: & sores to beare. Then shall they praye me in the lode of their captiuitie, & thynke upon my name. Then shall they to me: heere fro the charde backe, & from their wretchednes: Then shall they remember the thynge, y happened vnto their forefathers, which sinned agaynst me. So will I bringe them agayne into the lande, which I promised vnto an ooth vnto their fathers: Abraham, Isaac & Jacob: & they shall be lordes of it, yet I will increase the, and not minish the. And I will make another covenant with them: so shall endure for euer: namely, y I will be their God, and they shall be my people: and I will multiplye my people the children off Israel, out of the lande y I haue sent the.

The iiiij. Chapter.

And now O LORD Almightye, thou God of Israel: o' soule y is in trouble, & o' spere y is wept, crye vnto thee: heare vs O LORD: & haue pite upon vs, for thou art a mercifull God: be gracious vnto vs, for we haue sinned before y. The vnto rest for euer, shalbe me the eternallye praise O LORD Almightye, thou God of Israel: heare now y prayers of y deed Israelites: & of the children, which haue sinned before y, & were hardened vnto the voyce of the LORD their God, for the which cause the plague hange now vpon vs. O LORD, I mince not y wickednes of o' forefathers, but thurst vpon thy power & name more at this tyme: for thou art y LORD o' God, & y O LORD, we praye for thee: for thou hast put y fear of heare, so y inter y we should call vpon y name, & praye y in our captiuitie: and y we mighte turne from the wickednes of our forefathers, y sinned before the.

When she saues that the mouth of woe commeth vpon you: she sayeth o ye that dwell about Sion, saye hrought me into greates heavynesse: do not fite the capeyarts of my people, of my fines and daughter, which the malice of God will bringe vpon them. With teares theye shall doe now thus: I leaue the with weeping and howling.

And now I see you are mine wyddowes and fatherles for the synes off my children, are defolace of every man. For why, they departed from the lawe of God: they were not without his eyghenousnes, nor will I have theye maye off his charyte and mercies: and so for the synes off the treuth and godlynes, they had no lust to go in thern.

O ye dwellers aboute Sion: come, and let us call to remembrance the captivitee, that the everlastinge God hath broughte upon us synes and my daughter. He hath broughte a people upon them from sarr, an uncomen people, and of a strange language, which neither regarde the olde, nor pte the yonge.

They have carried awaye the deace beloved of my wyddowes, leavynge me alone, both defolace and childlesse. But alas, what can I helpe you? To me be yf hath broughte the plague upon you, but yet you also sit in the handes of your enemies.

O ye my wyddowes (O my children) go your wayes: I am defolace and forsaken. I have perished the desynges of peace, and put uppon me the sack cloth off pnyer, and for my synes: I will call upon the most byest. Be off your dreare, O my children: come nysse the LORDE: and he shall deliver you from the power of syn prynces, your enemies.

For verely, I have entred a good hope off your prosperous health: yee a very gladnesse: come uppon me from the holy one, because if of the mercy that ye shall have off our everlastinge Saviour.

With mourning and weeping dyd I see you go frame, but with ioye and perpetual gladnesse, shall the LORDE bringe you agayn unto me. Like as the neyghbours of Sion sawe your captivitee from God, and so shall they also shortly your health in God, which shall come on you with greatesse honour and everlastinge worshippe.

O my children, suffere patiently the wrath that shall come upon you. For the enemye hath persecuted you, but shortly thou shalt see his destruction, and shalt recede upon his necke. Thy besynges have gone rough hard wayes, for they are led awaye as a flocke that is feared abrode with the enemyes.

Be off of good consence (O my children) & cry unto the LORDE: for he that led you awaye, hath you in remembrance: and like as ye have bene mynded to swarne from yo^r God, so shall ye now endeavour your felicitye: receive the mercy and dayne, and to sit them. For he that hath broughte these plagges up pon, shall bringe you everlastinge ioye agayne with your health. Take a good harte unto the, O Jerusalem: be which game of thate name, excepte if the fore do.

The which doeth the new part the to double, shall perill and such as have rejoyced with you, shall be punished. The cities whom thy children serve, and that have carried awaye: by synners, shall be converted. For like as they be now glad of yf decaye, so shall they mourn in their owne destruction. The ioye off their multitude shall be taken awaye: and their chaire shall be turned to sorrowe. For a fyre shall fall upon them from the everlastinge God, longe to endure: and it shall be inhabited of straungers for a greatesse season.

The V. Chapter.

Jerusalem, loke aboute the towne to the east, and beholde the waye, that cometh unto the from God. For lo, thy synes, (whom thou hast forsaken, and that were scattered abroad) come gathered together: from the east and west, in ioyes in the wordes of the holy one, unto the honoure off God.

Put off thy mourning and cloth: O Jerusalem: and by synners, and deathe the waye the worshippe and honoure, that cometh unto the from God, with everlastinge glory. God shall put the cloake off righteounesse upon the, and set a crentice off everlastinge worshippe upon thine heade: for upon the wall God declareth his bighenes, that in vnder the heaven: For an everlastinge name shall be given the of God, much peace of righteounesse, & yf honoure of Gods feare.

Arise O Jerusalem, stande uppon thy lode aboute the towne to the east, and beholde thy children gathered from the east unto the west: which ioyes: in the holy wordes, haue theye God in remembrance. They departed from the waye, and were led awaye of their enemies: but now shall the LORDE bringe them caried with benediction, and children off yf kyngdomes. For God is purposed to bringe a domes all aboute mocha yee, and all bye redde, so fill the valleyes, & so to make them eadun with the gyounde: yf I find maye be blisful to lye unto yf honoure of God. The wooddes & all pleasaunt trees shall overshadowe me: I find, at the commaundement of God. For he that shall God bringe I find with ioye full mych, and in the blisful of his magnety, with the mercy and righteounesse, that cometh of himselfe.

The prophet Baruch.

Isaiah is the epistle that Jeremy the prophet did write unto the Jews, which were led away prisoners by the king of Babel. wherein he comforteth them of the things that was done unto them of God.

The VI. Chapter.

BEcause of the sinnes that ye have done against God, ye shall be led away ye captive unto Babel, even off Nabuchodonosor the king of Babel.
When ye be come in to Babel, ye shall remain there many yeares, and for a longe season namely, six generationes: & after that will I bringe you a waye peaceably frome Babel. I will shal ye in Babel, goddes of golde, of silver, of woodd and of stone: beare upon mans shoulders, to cast out a fearfulness before the children. But loke that ye do not as the other: be not ye afraid, and be not the feare of them overcome you.

BTherefore, when ye see the multitude of people worshippinge them behinde & before, sit ye in your houses: O LORD, it is thus, that cometh only to be worshipped: My nus angel also shall be with you, and I myself will care for your soules. As for the tyrannie of these goddes, yf cause they polifhed them: ye gylted be they, & layed out with silver, yf are they but vayne thinges, & can not speake. Like as a wench yf loneth precious things, can she beare them? she make & hangd w golde. Crownes of golde we rely haue their goddes upon their heades: so the priestes them selves take the golde and silver from them, & put it to their owne use: ye they make of the same vnto harlots, & do tyrannye their widowes withall. If anye, they take it from the widowes, and becke their god-des therewith, yet can not these goddes de-liuer them frome rust and mothe. While they haue covered them much clothyng of purple, they wype their faces for the dust of the temple, wherof they are much amonge the.
One hath a scepter in his hande, as though he were lord of the countrey: yet can he not save him as offende him. Another hath a shewerde as an axe in his hande, for all thoe, is he neither able to defende him selfe from bataill, nor frome herce.

E By this ye maye understande, that they be no goddes: therefore if ye neither worshippe them, nor feare them, for like as a vessel yf a man useth, is no thinge worthy when it is broken, even so is it with these goddes.
When they be set up in the temple, their eyes be full of dust, thow in the face of these that

The vi. Chap.

come in. And like as yf some are shewing be a boote vnto him, yf hath offendid the ge: O as it were a dead body lying in the grave: Alas so the priestes knowe these things barres and lockes, lest they be spoiled with robbers. Theyre eyes be as if they were dead, and yf thow of they can not see one, but even as blacke sinde they in the temple. Is it sayd, yf serpentes and moones, which come off in earth, gnawe out their herbes, eatinge of their clothes also, and yet they sit in it. Their faces are blacke, thow in the face is in the temple. The owles, sinclowes & by-des sit upon them, yf and the catowes over their heades.

By this ye maye be sure, that they are goddes, therefore feare them not. They that they have, is to make them beautiful all that, excepte some body digge off the rust, they will geve no shyne: and when they were cast into a furnace, they feele not the heat: as he that is in a furnace, and have no life within them. They must be borne up on mens shoulders, as they that have no strength: by they be clare vnto men, that they not yfinge in with. Conforted be they, that they worshippe them. For yf they fall grounde, they can not rise up againe: if scare: They though some hope them see them right, yet are they not able to be alone: but must have pioppes to them, like deed men. As for the thinge offred vnto them, their priestes fill it, with fear: yet the priestes wayes take them, in unto the side and poore they geve nothing of it, the women with child & the men laye handes of their offeringes. By this ye maye be sure, that they are no goddes, the for be as ye a praye of them. From the ce clemeth it, that they be called golde.
The women se before the goddes of golde and woodd, and the priestes stand in the temple, havinge open clothes, wher by they be shewen, and have ge upon their heades, to bringe in vnto their goddes, as men do when one is dead.

The priestes also take awaye the garments of the ymagis, and becke their wayes burn withall. Wherfor it is good, that city maye do vnto them, they are not able recompencc it: they can neither stop ye ge, nor put them downe. Unlike manner maye neither geve riches, nor reward and though a man make a vowe vnto these, he can not, they will not paye it. They manne a wynde ma to his sight, ner hel per my ma in his need. They ca shewe no mer the my doore, nor do good to y farther.

The goddesses of wood, stone, golde & syl uer, but sum o other stonre, y be hewe of y marmere. They y worship the, shal be spedde. So they shalbe they that be taken in goddesses. yee how doore men call the god des. And though the call us worship the us, hearing y they were but demme. & cou not speake. Yet they chym selues offre mu nd, and wolde so yie hurtum to speake: why saye, they comde sele, y maye net mo re. But when the same come to vnderste nd, they shal fufle them, for their goddesses haue no sillinge. A grea soue off women spedde with coards, yie in the street, & bur n ayme vntill they be consumed off them be con sumed away, & lyce any fisch as come by the casell, but ne gliblytelle in the teth, be cause he was net so worshippe, ner be come broken. What soeuer is done for them, it be in wayne, id last how maye it not be thought to sayde, y they ore goddesses.
Caperna & goldmythes make the, ner be any other thinge, but euen what the wode man make of y lum. Yes the gold smiths them selues that make the, ore of no large clemencye: so y shulde then the thi ngs that are made of them, be goddesses. Do y thei for othe thinges (ye very shame is to saye) they leaue be himde the for their possi tes. So it shone as then cōmeth any warre to plage vpon the, then the paster ymagine, when they maye hyde the selues with the.
how can men thynke then, that they be god des, which nerther maye defende them selues from warre, ne deluyet thei from y fortune.
In ymage they be but of wood, of stone, of siluer, and of golde: all people & kynges shal bode beate for, that they be but wayne thin ges: yee shalbe openly declared, that they be no goddesses: but euen the wry worke off his hand, & that God hath nothinge to do with the. They can ferno kyng in the londe ne geynt vnto men. They can geue no succour of a warre, nerther defende the londe fro anyeinge. For they ore noble & do so much as a crowe, that stych beuēt the heuen and earth.

When he happeneth a fyre into the hou se of those goddesses of woodde, of syluer, and of golde, the paster wil scape & sauer the siluer, but the goddesses burne as the halles therin.
They can not withstode any fyngre or batell: ye maye it then be thought of grounde, that they be goddesses. Moreover, these god des of woodde, of stone, of golde & syluer ma ye nerther defende the selues from the warre robbers, ne y very wiche be stronger the they. These slype them oue off their ap parell, that they be clothed withall, thei ta ke their golde & syluer fro the, and so ge the awaye: yee cā they ner helpe the selues. There fore it is much better for a man, to be a fange & so to shewe his power: or to a prestable vessell o house, wherein he y owerth, mighte haue plesure: yee vnto be a dorein a house, to kepe such thinges so se so be therein: the to be soch a wayne god. The Stone, the Stone & all the stonres when they geue thei slyng to light, ore obedient, & do men good: When the lighten yng glustreth, all is cleare: The wynde bloweth in every countre, & whi God clowd vntill the clowdes to go rounde abou te the wholl worlde, they do as they are hye dome: when the fyre is sent downe fro aboue to cōmande, it burneth vpon helles & wodes: But as for these goddesses, they ore no like one off these thinges, nerther in demy ner strenght. What fore ma shulde not thynke, ne so y that they be goddesses, semyng they cā ner geue sennens in iudgment, ne do men good. For so much now as yee sware, that they be no goddesses, then feare them not: For they can nerther speake nall ner good of kynges. They cā shewe no redene in beate for y hether, nerther shyne as the Stone, ne geue light as the Stone: yee y vntreasonabill beas tes are better then they: for they can ge the vnder the se, and do them selues good: So can ye be curried by no maner off mannes, that they be goddesses: that fore feare them not.

For like as a fyre y geueth in a garden off Cucumbers kepeb noething, euen so are the y goddesses of wood, of syluer & golde: ore like as a whyte cheste in an echord, that euen y hyde stych vpon: yelike as a deed body that is cōsumed the dard, & euen so is it with these goddesses of woodde, syluer & golde.
By the pntle & of fardie which they hane vpon the, id soone fureth o waye, y maye vnderstonde, that they be no goddesses: yee they them selues shal be consumed at the last, which shal be a grea cōfession of the lond. Blessed is the goodly man, y hath no ymages & worship peyde, for he shalbe farr from re
prose.

The first Chapter.

I Chasid, in the xxx. yere the fifth daye off the fourth Moneth, that I was amonge the prisoners by the ryver off Cobar; where the heuens opened, & I sawe a vision of God. From the fifth daye off the Moneth unto the out the ffifth yere off Kinge Iouchim captyvite. At the same tyme came y word off the LORDE unto Ezechiel the sonne off Buzi parr, in the lonew off the Caldees by the water of Cobar, where the bonde off the LORDE came vpon him. And I lokyd: & beholde, a stormy wynde came outt off the north with a greete dedde full off fyre, which wth his gylfste lighthe all rounde aboute,

And in y mydd off the fyre it was all deare, and as it were the lid nese off foure bestes, which were fashionyd like a man: a fyre, that every one had foure faces and foure wynges.

Their legges were stryght, but their feete were like bulles feete, and they gylfsted, as it had bene so yett scoured metall. Under their wynges vpon all the foure caryers, they had many bandes. Their faces and the fynges were toward the foure corners: yett with the wynges so, that one ever couched another. When they wente, they cryed and them not nbeate: but ech one wente straight forward.

Vpon the right side off these foure, their faces were like the face off a man and the face off a Lyon: but vpon the left side, they had the face off an ox and the face off an Elefant.

Their faces also and their wynges were vpon one another: so that two wynges off one couched ever two wynges off another, and with the other two they covered the face. Every one when it wente, it wente straight forward.

Whereas the space led them, thither they wente, and turned nott aboute in their fynges.

The fashion and countenance off the bestes was like hore cooles off fyre, men as though burninge: cross beates had bene amonge the bestes: and the fyre gave a glister, and outt off the fyre there were lightnings. Whi y bestes were forward & had warde, one wolde hane thoughte it had lightened. Now whi I had well considered the bestes, I sawe a woulde off synners upon the earth with foure faces alls like the bestes.

The fashion & worke off the wheles was like the see. The foure wheles were ioyned and made (so lode vpon) as it had bene one whele in another. When one wente forward, the y wente all sonie, and turned the nose aboute i char goinge. They were large, great and horrible to lode vpon.

Their bodies were full off eyes rounde n beate them all foure. Whi the bestes were, the wheles were also with them: And when the bestes lift them selues vp from y earth, the wheles were lift vp also. Whycher so ever the space wente, thither wente they also, & y wheles were lift vp & followe the, for y space of life was in the wheles. When y bestes were fowr, stode still, or lift them selues vp from the earth: then the wheles also wente, stode still, & were lift vp, for y lyth off life was in the wheles.

Above euer y heade off the bestes there was a firmament, which was fashionyd as it had bene off the most pure Christall, & that was spred ouer a bone vpon their heades: vnder the same firmament were their wynges layd abroad, one to mane another, and two wynges covered the body off euer y best. And when they wente forth, I behelde the noyse off their wynges, like the noyse off grace waters, as it had bene the voyce off the greates God, and a rushing together as it were off an host off men. And when they stode still, they lett downe their wynges. From when they stode still, and had lett downe their wynges, it thondred in the firmament, that was aboute their bodies.

A bene the firmament that was ouer their heades, there was the fyfth son off a state, as it had bene made off Saphir. Vpon the state there was one like a man. I behelde him, and he was like a cleare light, as it had bene all off fyre with in from his loynes vward.

And beneath when I lokyd vpon him vnder y loynes, methoughte he was like n flynyng fyre, that gylfste lichte on euer y side. As the hyne and glister y lighthe rounde be aboute, was like a raynbower, which in a rayne daye aperech in the cloubes. And so was the similitude, wherein the glory off the LORDE aperech. Whe I sawe it, I fell upon my face, and harkened unto the voyce off him, that spake.

The II. Chapter.

Ezechiel sayde he unto me: Stande uppon thy feete (O thou some of man) and I will talke with the. And as he was communynge with me, the spere came in come, and stode ap upon my feete: so that I narched the thinge, that he sayde unto me. And he sayde: Beholde, thou art man: I will sende the to the chaldeen off Israel: to the strangers and chaldeen people: for they have cast thee agaynst me, and accursed awaye fro me: both they, and their forerethers, unto this daye.

And I will make yf unto a people yf have rough wysages and stiff stomaches: unto whom thou shalt saye on this manner: Thus saith the LORDE God him self hath spoken, yf whether they be obedient or no: for it is a fraunce of householde, they maye knowe yet that there hath bene a prophet amonge them.

Therefore (thou some of man) feare the word, neither be asayed off their wordes: for they shall rebell agaynst the, and despise yf. And thou shalt dwell amonge strangers: but feare not their wordes, be not abashed at their looks, for it is a fraunce of householde.

So that thou speake my wordes unto them, whether they be obedient or not, for they are abhynate. Thei feare (thou some of man) obeye thou alle thinges, that I saye unto yf, and do not thou synne, like as they are a stiffnecked householde. Open thy mouth, and eate that I geue the.

So as I was lokynge up, beholde, there was sear unto me an haube, wherein was a clofed boke: and the haube opened it selfe: and it was written upon and within, full off carefull morninges: alas, and we.

The III. Chapter.

Ezechiel sayde he unto me: thou some of man, eate that, which I geue the: be thou as a watch man, and geue the wordes, and geue them warninge to my commaundment.

Then some of man, why bely I shall see, wherby I shall be filled with yf boke, that I geue the. Thei sayd yf I eate that boke, what was in my mouth stronger than hony.

And he sayde unto me: thou some of man, eate that boke, that I geue the: for I sende the to a people that hath a strange, entremene of hard speeches, but to the house off Israel: to the many nations, which have diverse speeches and diverse languages, whose wordes thou understandest not: Therefore, yf I sent the to those people, they wolde slowe the: And the house off Israel wil not slowe yf, for they wil slowe me: And all the house off Israel wil stiffen their faces and harden their hearts: therefore, I will make thy face as a stone agaynst their faces, and harden thy forehead agaynst their forehead: so that they shall be harder then an Adamite: so that thou mayest feare them yf, and be lesse asayed off them, for they are a fraunce of householde.

He sayde moreover unto me: thou some of man, eate diligent here with thy wordes, so yf wordes that I speake unto the, feare them in thine heart: and geue the wordes off thy people, speake much, and saye on this manner:

Thus saith the LORDE God hath spoken: whether ye heare, or heare not. With that, he spake unto me up. And I hardened my selfe of a greates rustling and remoyng off the most blessed glory off the LORDE out off his place.

I herde also the noyse off the wynde off the bestes, that rustled one agaynst another, yet the rustling off the wynde, that was by them, which rustling it was, was very great.

Now when the spere toke me up, he carried me awaye, I wenech with an hart and a sorrowfull mynde, but the hoobe off the LORDE comforted me righte soon.

And so in the begynnyng off the thirde night, I came to the prisoners, that dwelt by the water off Cabat, and camped in that place, where they were: and it continued I amonge them seven dayes, beinge very fey.

And when the seven dayes were ended, the LORDE sayde unto me: Thou some of man, I have made the a watch man over the house off Israel: therefore, geue the wordes, and geue them warninge to my commaundment.

And he sayde unto me: Beholde thou sonne off man, I will mynyshe all the prouision off beed in Ierusalem, so that they shall see: the beed, and eate it with gladnesse. And as for water, they shall haue a verry litle measure thereof, so drynte. And when they haue nomore beed ner reaser, one shal be destroyed wich an ocher, and furnish awaye for their wickednesse.

The V. Chapter.

21 And he then a sharpe knyfe: O thou sonne of man, and say, a reassure. Take that, and haue the haye off thy heade and beed: Then take the scales and the waighe, and deuyde the haye a souder. And burne the beed parce thereof in the fyre in the myddest off the cite, and cut the ocher the beed parce in pecen wiche a knyfe. And for the ocher parce that remaineth, cast it in the wynde, and then shewe the bare knyfe.

Yet afterwarde eate a litle off the same, & drynte in the yee: oer lappe. Then eate a curfew off it, and cast it in the myddest off fyre, and burne it in the fyre. Out of the same fyre shall there go a flame, vpon the wyche house off Israel.

25 Moreover, thus sayde the LORD God: This same in Ierusalem, I set her in the myddest off the heathen and nations, that are to ende aboute her, but she hath despised my iudgement more then I Gentiles the felow, and broken my commaundementes more then the nations, that lyer rounde aboute her: For they haue cast out myne ordinaunces, and not walked in my lawen. Therefore, thus saith the LORD God: For so much as ye wyl your wiche dwelle fyre: eate the beed, that shall rounde aboute you: For ye haue not walked in my lawen, neither haue ye kepte myne ordinaunces. Therefore thus saith the LORD God:

Wherefore, as truly as I lyue (saith the LORD God) I sye in iugment haue befor in Sanctuary, wiche all manner off abhominacions and wiche all thy shamefull offensis. For this cause wyl I also destroye the, for my eye shall not owtece the, neither wyl I sye the.

Once the parre wiche in the, shall be off the pestilence and off hunger: Another the be parre shall be slayne be me: neither aboute the, neither the sword: The ocher that parre that remaineth, wyl I caste aboute to make all the wynde, and beate the sword after them. Thus wyl I perswade my indignacion and sye my wrath agaynst them, and ease my self. So that when I haue fulfilled myn anger agaynst them, they shall knowe, that I am the LORD, when I a feruent gelysh haue spoken it.

Moreover I will make the waist and shouder, be fore all the heathen that dwell aboute the, and in the sight off all them, they go by the: so that when I pursey the in my wrath, in myn anger, and wiche they shal off my whote displeasure: the shal be a very abhominacion, shame, a gailing and woundinge to all, amonge the heathen that lyer aboute the.

Then I the LORD haue spoken it, and it shall come to passe, when I sye amonge them the peroumptuous off hyer, wiche shal be but brach: For they shal I shal them, be cause I wyl destroye you. I wyl increase hunger, and mynyshe all the prouision off beed amonge you.

Your layr men shall lie amonge you, that ye maye lerne to knowe, how y I am the LORDE. They y amonge you haue escaped the swar be, will I leane amonge the Gentiles, for I will seare you amonge the nacions. And they that escape from you, shall shunke upon amonge the heathen, where they shalbe in captiuitee.

As for that whorish and vnfaithfull her usifiers, wherewith they runne awaye from me, I will bicate w: yee: I put out those y ees off them, that committe fornicacion with ther Idols.

Thm shall they be ashamed, and displica for muche it shalbe, for the muchenesse ad abhominacion, which they haue done: and shall come to no more, howe that it is not in waye, as that I the LORDE spake, to bringe sod wny upon them.

The LORDE sayde moreover vnto me: Smyte thm together, and stampe with thy fete, and saye: Wo worth all the abhominacions and vnfaithnesse of the house of Israel, for because of the, they shal perishe with che swar be, with hunger and with pestilence. Who so is fere of, shall dye off the pestilence: he that is nye at hande, shall perishe with che swar be: and y other that are bygh, shall dye of hunger.

Thus wil I satisfie my wrathfull displica fur upon them. And so shall ye lerne to knowe, that I am the LORDE, whē youre slaynment is amonge youre goddes, and aboute ym: and I will seare upon all the hills and copes off mountaynes, amonge all grene trees, amonge all the cotes: euen in the places, wher they by sacrificie to all ther Idols.

I wil strech myn hande out vpon them, and will make the londe waste. So that it shall be desolate and voyde, from the wilderness off off desolate southe, to all ther habitacions: lerne then for ou knowe, that I am the LORDE.

Thus saith the LORDE God: Beholde, our mytyr and plage shal come after another: che ende is here. The ende (I saye) that woireth for the, is come already: yf home re is come agaynst the, that doubteth in the londe.

The tyme is at hande, the daye of tribis is hard by, it no glad thinges vpd the most tayne. Therfore, I will straitly poure out my fure displeasure ouer the, and fulfill my wrath vpon the. I will iudge the after thy wayes, and recompence the all chy abhominacions.

Beholde, the daye is here, the daye is come: the houre is ronne out, the robbe floushet, wylfulnesse wayeth grone, maliciouse violence is growne up, and the vngodly manent to a staff. Yet shall there no complaynte be made fur them, nor fur che terrible thae shal come off these thinges.

The tyme cometh, the daye is neth nyet: Who so b weth, let him not reioyce: he that selleth, let him not be sorry for why. Trouble shall come in the myddest off all rest: so that the killer shall not come agayne to the byer, for neither off them both shall lye. For the vision shal come so greacyouer all, yf it shal not be hyndered: to ma also w his wickednesse shall be able to saue him owne life.

The troympetes shall ye blowe, and make youn already, but no man shall go to the battal, for I am wrath with all the whole malice.

The swarthe shalbe without, pestilence and hongr: twichin: so that who so is in the felde, shalbe slayne with che swar be: and he that is in the cite, shall perishe with hongr and pestilence.

And so chaunce escape and fle from amonge them, shal be vpon the hills, like as the doone in the felde: every one shalbe as a yob, because off his owne wickednesse.

The viii. Chap.

Ez 17:4 All hennes shall be letten downe, and all hiecks shall be made as the waters: they shall growe them selves with sack cloath, hence shall fall upon them. Their faces shall be comforted, and their headen shall becher: hence shall be in the streetes, and their golde shall be defiled: hence their syluer and golde maye not be sate: hence, in the daye of the fearfull wrath of the LORDE.

Ez 18:2 They shall not satisfie their hungrye soules, neither sell their emper beles: hence why? for it is become their owne decaye: hence they are not obediēt: because they make thes of, not only costly Jeweles for their pompe and pryde, but also abhominable ymages and idoles. for this cause will I make them to be admond. Moreover, I will geue it into y handes off thes strangers to be spoiled: and to y wicked, for to be robbed, and they shall be destroyed.

Ez 19:1 My face will I turne from thes, my Treasury shall be defiled: for the cheues shall go into it, and suspende it. I will make den rydounke, for the londe is whole defiled with vanytyous iudgment of innocent bloude, & the cite is full off abhominacions.

Ez 20:1 Whenfore, I will bringe the most cruell tyrannies from amonge the heidenes, to take their houses in possession. I will make the pompe off the prydes to ceasse, and they shall take in their Sanctuary. When this trouble cometh, they shall see peace, but they shall have none. One myshete and sword shall followe another, and one rumoure shall come after another. Then shall they see visions in wayne at their prophetes. The lawe shall be gone from the priestes, and wysdome from the elders. The byngre shall mourne, the paines shall be docted with heaynesse, and y blydes off the people in the londe shall resemble for sike. I will be unto them after their owne maner, & accordinge to their owne iudgements will I iudge them: to lerne them for to knowe, that I am the LORDE.

The viii. Chapter.

Ez 24:1 It happened, that in the sixte yere, the fifth daye off the sixte Moneth, I was in my house, and the LORDES off the counsell off Iuda with me: and the honde off the LORDE God fell vpon me.

Ez 24:2 And as I looked up, I sawe as it were a likenesse off fyre from his loynes vponward: it shyned marvellous cleere.

This semblance stretched out as a bowe, and rode me by the heynic loeces off my hebe, and the spere liene up betwixt mine hande and earth: and God broughe me in a way to Ierusalem, in to the court off the temple: hence tharlier toward the north side: a ymage, with whom he thus had all chinges in his power, was very much.

And beholde, the glory off the Godd off Israel was in the same place: as as I beheld, it was as it were in the fyre. And he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne off man, rise up vpon thy eyes, and loke toward the north. Therfor I vpon my eyes toward the north, and beholde: Beside the porte northward, there was an aulec made vnto the ymage off ymocation in the very entreeing in.

And he sayde further vnto me: Thou sonne off man, cast thou vpon the fyre do: For the house off the great abhominacions that the house off Israel commyt in this place: which ought not to be done in this sanctuary.

Then turne the aboute, and thou shalt see yet greater abhominacions. And with that he brought me to the contre gate: and as I looked, beholde, there was an hole in the wall.

Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne off man, bygge thou the wall, beholde, there was a bore. And he sayde vnto me: go thy way in, & loke what wicked abhominacions they do there.

So I wente in, and sawe: and beholde, there were all maner ymages off women & bestes, all idoles and abhominacions off y house off Ierusalem: as as ymages were made aboute the wall.

There stode also beside the ymages, the lordes off the counsell off the house off Israel: and in the myddest off them stode I sawe as the same off Saphan: And with one off them had a censure in his hand: one off the mens, there wrote a scribe, as it had bene a cloude.

Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne off man, hys thou sawe what the Gouernours off the house off Israel do secretly, and one in his chambere? for they saye: Caste the LORDES off ymages, the LORDES regard not the woulde. And he sayde vnto me: Lerne the yet agayne, and thou shalt see the great abhominacions that they do.

And with that, he broughe me to the pore off the porte off the LORDES house, toward the north. And beholde, there men mourn ye for Thomas. Then say-ye unto me: hast thou seen this, thou son of man? Turne yf aboute, & thou shalt see yet greater abhominacions. And so he bad ynge men to the inward court of the LORDES house: he helde, as the poure of the LORDES house, because he fore cam to the altar, there more fire and went ymen, hat turned that backe vpon the Temple of the LORD, I, that face comarde the east, and the spirit spoked the Some.

And he saye unto me: hast thou seen this, thou sonne of man? Thinke the house of Israel, that it is but a crasse, to do these abho-minacions here? Shalde they fill the temple full of wickednesse, and vnder take to prouoke me to anger? Yee & purposely to cast vpon me to vnder mine? Therefore will I also do some thinge in my wrath full displeasure, for they my eye shall not ouersee them, nether wil I spare them. Yee and though they are my people with loud voyce, yet wil I not heare them.

The IX. Chapter.

I And also with a loud voyce in my meares, sayenge: Come here ye soulders of the cite, every man with his weaponned honde to the slaughter. Then came they men out of the strette of the vpper pouce toward the north, and every man swaigen in his honde to the slaughter. The man one amongst them, that had on him a lynnyng garment, and a wyre yach hon-de in his fute.

They went in, and stode beside the brakenaker: for the glory of the LORD was somewhere vpon the Cherub, and was comede to the threshold of the house, & he called this man, that had the lynnyng garment vpon him, with the wyre yach hon-de in his fute, and the LORD saye unto him: Rise myn vpon the cite of Ierusalem, and let this man & thou vpon the feet hea-des of them, that moue, and are sory for all the abhominacions, that be done therein.
And the other, he saye that I might heare his voyce after him thow in the cite, saye, o ye men, spare none. Yll, & do ye both them and yonge maydens, children, and men.

And as farthof, that haue this man & thou vpon them: so that ye touch them not, and begynn as my Sonnetary. Then they begyn at the doers, which were in the Temple: so he had saye meo him: When ye haue filled the Temple, and filled the court with the slayne, then go youre wayes forth.

So they wete out and stode downe the way of cite. Now when they had done yf sloughter, & I yett eke ped: I fell downe vpon my face, & cried, sayenge: O LORD, make thou euen destroye a lictre of yone of Israel, in thy fore displeasure, that thou hast pouced vps Ierusalem.

Then saye he unto me: The mid chesse of the house of Israel and Jude is very great: so that the lide is full of cloudes, and ysa full of vniuersal humilnesse. For the yf saye: Enth, yf LORD regardeth not the earth, he seeth no man. Therefore will I vpon them, my eye shall not ouersee them, neither wil I spare them, but will recompence their wickednesse vpon their heades.

And beholde, the man that had the lynnyng garment vpon him, and the wyre, yach honde by his fute: tolde all the matter how it happened, and sayde: LORD, as thou hast commaunded me, so haue I done.

The X. Chapter.

I And as I looked beholde, In the firmament that was aboue the Cherubim there appeared the similitude of a sole of Sapphir vpon them: Then sayde he that sat therein, to him that had the lynnyng garment vpon him: Crepe in betwene the rebe-les that are vnder the Cherubim, and take euen honde full of hore coales out from betweene the Cherubim, and cast them ouer the cite. And he crept in, that I might see.

Now the Cherubim stode vpon the right syde of the house, when the man went in, and the cloudes filled the ynnner court. Now the glory of the LORD remoued from the Cherubim, and came vpon the threshold of the house: so that the Temple was full of cloudes, and the court was full of the shyne of the LORDES glory. And on the fountain of the Cherubim a wyre was herbe in to the four courts, like as it had bene the wyre of the slaughter. And when he spake these wordes, he had bydden the man yf was clothed in lynnyng, to go and take the hore coales from the myddes of yf wheles, which were vnder the Cherubim: he went and stode besyde the wheles. Then the one Cherub reached forth his honde from vnder the Cherubim, vnto yf fute that was betwene the Cherubim, and take thereof, and gaue it vnto him: that had on the lynnyng garment in his honde: which toke it, and went out. And vnder the wyrges of yf Cheru-bins, there appeared the likeness of a man having also four wheles besyde the Che-rubs.

rubies, so that by every Cherub there shode a whele. And the wheles were (so loke upon) after y^e fashion of y^e precious stone of Charsis: And unto the righte were they fastened 218. as y^e one whele had bene in another.

When they wente forth, they wente all iiij together, notwithstanding aboute in their goinge: 219. And when the first wente, the other wente they a feet also, so that they wente not aboute ce in their goinge. Their whole bodies, their backes, their hibes & wynges, y^e & the wheles also, were all full of eyes rounde aboute them all four. And I herde hym call y^e wheles, Galgal (that is) a rounde boull. Every one of them had foure faces so that the one face was the face of a Cherub, the seconde of a man, the thirde of a lyon, the fourth of an Aegle, & they were lifted vp aboute. This is the best, that I sawe at the water of Co-bar. Now when the Cherubine wente, the wheles wente with them: when the Cheru-bim shode their wynges to lift them selves upward, the wheles remayned not behynde, but were with them also. Shortly, when they shode, the wheles also: And when they were lift up, y^e wheles were lift up also with the. For the spere of life was in the wheles.

Then the glory of the LORDE was lift up from the threshold of the temple, and remayned upon the Cherubims: And the Che-rubims flatted with their wynges, and lift the selves up from the earth: so that I sawe when they went, and the wheles with them.
And they shode at the east syde of the porte that is in the house of the LORDE: So the glory of the LORDE was upon them. This is the best that I sawe under the God of Israel, by the water of Cobar. And I perceiued, that it was the Cherubims. Every one had foure faces, & every one foure wynges, & under their wynges, as it were men hondes.
Now the figure of schair faces was, euen as I had seene them, by the water of Cobar, & so was the countenance of the: Every one in his goinge wente straight forward.

The XI. Chapter.

21 When, the spere of the LORDE lift me up, & brought me unto y^e east poynte of the LORDES house. And beholde, there were xx. men under the dore: among whom I sawe Jaasaniah the son ne of Azur, y^e Phelisia the sonne of Bamanah, the rulers of the people. Then sayde the LOR-DE unto me: Thou sonne of man: These men y^e imaginmy thes, and a wicked counceile they in this case, sayinge: Tush, there is no destruction at hand, let vs buye the house:

This Jerusalem is the candle, & we buye filled the streets full of the slayne.

Therefore, thus saith the LORDE: 22 The slayne men that ye have layd in the grounde in this case, are the flesh, & this is the candle: But I will bringe you out it: ye have burned out y^e fire, and so also bringe shal come your flesh y^e LOR-DE God. I will bringe you out of the anand deliuer you in to your enemies hande, & will condemne you. Ye shal be slayne all the coastes of Israel. I will be a of you: to lette you see to knowe, that I the LORDE. This case shal not be your dicion, neither shal ye be the flesh there: but the coastes of Israel: and I purifye you ye maye knowe, that I am the LORDE.
These commandmentes ye have not keept, nee kepe ye in mee: but have done the commandmentes of the heathen, that he a done you.

Now when I preached, Phelisia the ne of Bama: dyed. Then said I to me my face, & cryed with a loud voyce: O LOR-DE God, make thou then wearily destroye all the remnant in Israel: And so the word of the LORDE came to me on this maner: Thou sonne of man: Thy brethren, they dyed y^e whele house of Juda, which wasten Jerusalem, saye: They be gone farre from the LORDE, but the lande is geuen as is possi-sion. Therefore tell them, thus saith the LOR-DE God: I will sende you sure of amonge Gentiles, & I will geue you amonge the nation, & I will halowe you but a litle, and the where ye shall come. Tell them also, thus saith the LORDE God: I will gather you out of the nations, & bringe you from the countreys where ye be scattered, & will be you the lande of Israel againe: & the shal ye come. And as for all impenitents all youre abominacions: I will take awaye.

And I will geue you one herte, & will te a new spere within y^e bowels. Then my herte was Iake out of your bowels, & be you a fleshy herte: that ye maye knowe my commandmentes, and kepe my naunce, & do them: that ye maye be my peple, and I your God. But loke whos hermes are disposed to followe their abominations and wicked hynges: Those men be they will I bringe vpon them some heuies, such the LORD God. After this word the Spirit lift up their awage a, and the robes were with them, and the glory of the LORD was vpon them. So the glory of the LORD was up from the myddest of the earth, east vpon the mount of the ciety to the east. But the wynde toke me up, & was vpon which came by the spere of God) & through me agayne in to Caldea amonge the paysoners. Then the vision that I had seene, was shewed a waye to me. So I spake vnto the paysoners, all the wordes of the LORD which he had shewed me.

The XII. Chapter.

The worde of the LORD came vnto me, sayenge: Thou sonne of man, thou dwellest in the myddest of a faunmer in babilone: which haue eyes to se, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house. I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house. I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house. I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

Bynges that were wall, that they maye stand before the face of the sonne, & haue their light vpon their sight. An for thy self, thou shalt go forth in the darcke. & yet thy face shall be as the face of the house of Israel. Thus saith the LORD God: I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

And in the morning, came the worde of the LORD vnto me, sayenge: Thou sonne of man, if I will, I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house. I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

you, shall take his shield in the darcke, and get him awaye. He shall beate downe the wall, & come forth there: for he shall cover his face, that he se not the ground, with his eyes.

My lyne will I spreade vpon him, and I will catch him in my net, and come him to Babilon, in the lode of the Caldees: which he shall not se, & yet shall he be byed. As for all his helpers, and all his hoostes that be about him: I will scatter them amonge the wyndes, and I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

Moreover, the worde of the LORD came vnto me sayenge: Thou sonne of man, with a fear full trembling shall they come thy by, with a carefullnesse: & I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house. I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

Thus came the worde of the LORD vnto me agayne, sayenge: Thou sonne of man, when I will, I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house. I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

But saye thou vnto them: The daies are at hand, that euery thinge which hath bene prophecied, shall be fulfilled. There shall no vision be in you, neither any prophesie saye amonge the children of Israel: for so is the LORD God. I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

And euen in youre dayen (O ye faunmer householde: with I beaue some thinge, & then it is passe, saith the LORD God. And the worde of the LORD came vnto me sayenge: I will be to them as they are: I will be to them as they are, & yet se not; eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate house.

God: All my wordes shall come to passe: I passe. Thus saith the LORD.

The XIII. Chapter.

24 The wordes of the LORDE come vnto me, sayinge: Thou soune of man, I speake vnto thee propheticall agaynst the people that preache in Iherusalem: I saye vnto thee, that thou shalt heare one of their owne prophets, and he shall saye the wordes of the LORDE, thus: I saye the LORDE God: I do be vnto thee, fals prophecies, that folow theirowne fancies, and I heare, when they se nothing. O Iherusalem, thou prophetess, art like the foxes upon the dun hille. They saye stand on in the gap pace, rather make they an hedge for the house of Iherusalem, that mighte abyde the pailin the dayes of the LORDE. Many thinges they saye, yett lye, they remayne their puttings

God. My handes shall come upon the prophets, that loke out waite things, and preach that they shall not be in the counsel: of my people, nor musten in the booke of the booke of Israel, neither shall they come in the bond of Israel: at ye may knowe, howe ear-he came to denounce, and commeth to a prophet, to enuoye any thinge to me by him: as with a man wil I be the LORDE myselfe geue answer, according to the multitude of his sinnes: for the house of Israel may be sinners in their owne hearts, because they be denied from, for I haue Idoles false.

When I sawe, all the house of Israel thus sayinge the LORDE God: He cometh, forsa-kinge Idoles, and turne youre faces from idols, and from images. For every man, who was be the house of Israel, as a stauing chariot, so cometh in Israel, which depart my selfe, and carrey Idoles in his heartes, purposinge to go still stumblinge in his owne way, and commeth to a prophet, for as a counsell as the LORD huiusmodi of me wil I the LORDE geue answer, by my counsell.

I wil fix my face agaynst that man, and make him to be an example for othe, yet not a counsell by word: and wil receiue him out of my people, that he may knowe howe I the LORDE. And yf that prophet be de-ceyved, when he telleth him a word: then I the LORDE myselfe haue sinned: and that prophet, and wil I strictly for his myne handes vpon him, receiue him out of my people of Israel: as they doo shall be punished for their wickednesse.

Accordinge to synne of him that a prophet shale synne of the prophet but that yf he of Israel be led nomore from his house, as was, and be named by synne in their wickednesse: that they may be my people, and I their God, saith the LORDE God. And the wordes of the LORDE came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, when the loud smith an anvilme, and goeth forth in wickednesse, I will stretch out myne hande vpon e, and destroye all the punishment of their deed, and sende death vpon them, so destroye I be in the londe. And though I doe, David and Iob these he men were among them, yet shall they in their righteuousnes-se depart, but their owne soules, saith the LORDE God.

As I bringe many forms bestes in to the londe, as I make it up, and is so desolate, that man maye go therein for bestes: yf these bestes also were in the londe, as truly as I thus saith the LORDE God, they shall sauethen somen, not doughbeers, but be onely delivered them selues: and as for the londe, it shall be wast.

Or, yf I bringe a swerde in to the londe, and charge it to go thow the londe: so

The xv. Chap. Ho. ix.

thee I say: do man and bestes in, and yf these the men were therein: As truly so I thus saith the LORDE God, they shall deli-uer neither somen, nor doughbeers, but only be saued them selues.

As I sende a pestilence in to the londe, and peare out my face indignacion vpon in bloud, such as I receiue of in both man and best, and yf I doe, David and Iob re-ue therein: As truly as I thus saith the LOR-DE God, they shall deliuer neither somen, nor doughbeers, but save their owne soules in their righteuousnesse.

Moreover, thus saith the LORDE God:
Though I sende my face troubles plagues vpon Ierusalem: the swerde, the hunger, the pestilence, and the pestilence, so destroye man and bestes: and yf I thus saith the LOR-DE God, they shall deliuer a remnant be saued therein, which shall bringe forth the children and doughbeers. Behold, they shall come forth vnto you, and ye shall see their way, and what they rate in honde, and ye shall be confounded, as touching all the plagues that I haue brought vpon Ierusalem.

They shall confute you, when ye see their way, and not without cause, ye shall knowe, howe ye is not without a cause, that I thus doe agaynst Ierusalem, as I doe, saith the LORDE God.

The XV. Chapter.

The mode of the LORDE came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, What cometh of the vine among all other trees: and of the wyne stocke, among all other cymbe of the groue: Do me take wood of it, so make eny worke withall: Or maye there a nalle be made of it, so change a nythinge vpon: Behold, it is cast in the fy-re to be burnt, the fyre consume it, both the wood of it, and the myddle it is burnt to ashyes. I remember then for eny worke: etc.

George then, that it was mete for no more to be, beinge whole: much lesse mo ye there any thinge be made of it, when the fyre hath consumed and burnt it. And therfore thus saith the LORDE God: Like as I cast the vine in to the fyre, so shall be burnt, as other trees of the wyne: Thus wil I do with the people dwelling in Ierusalem, and for my face agaynst them: they shall go out from the fyre, and yet the fyre shall consume them. Then shall ye knowe, that I am the LORDE, when I see my face agaynst them, and make the londe wast: because they haue so sore offended, saith the LORDE God.

The XVI. Chapter.

¶ Hagia, the words of L O R D E spake unto me sayinge: Then forme of sinne, Meane the case of Jerusalem their abominacions, and saye thus saith the L O R D E God vnto Jerusalem: Thy progeny and thy meane came out of the lande of Canaan, thy father was an Amorite, thy mother a Chitizite. In y daye of thy birth when thou wast borne, y stringe of thy navel was not cut off: thou wast not bathed in water to make thee cleane: Thou wast neither rubbed w salt, nor facced in clowes: I to man ragardes the so much, as to do any of these thinges for y, as to shewe the soch sinners, but thou wast verily wast ouer upon y felde, yest bespird wast thou in the daye of thy birth.

Then came I by the, and sawe the croden downe in thine owne bloude, & sayde vnto the: thou shalt be purged from thine owne bloude, fro thine owne bloude: I in yeshale thou be cleuid. So I planted the, as the blossome of thy silde: thou art greuen vp, & wast greare: thou hast gotten a marvellous pleasant beate, thy bushes are come vp, thy bayes in goodly greene, where as thou wast naked and bare a fore.

¶ Now when I came by y, & looke vpon the: beholde, thy crime was come, yett not the crime to weare the. Then spake I my clothes ouer the, to couer thy dishonour: yee I made an ooch vnto the, & married my self wth the: saith the L O R D E God: & sathan became my meane. Then washed I the wth water, & poured thy bloude from the. I anoynted the wth oyle. I gave the chaunge of raiment, I made the shewe of Tarsus leather: I girded y aboute w white sycle, I clothed the wth beechus, I decked the w costly apparell. I put rynges vpon thy fyngers: a chayne aboute thy necke, spages vpo thy forebade, eare rynges vpon thyne eares, & sic a bracelet vpon thyne hande. Thou wast houndecked wth syluer & golde, & thy raiment was of fyne tulle, sylke, of noble woyle & of dyuers colours.

Thou diddest eate no change but symmels, honny & oyle: maruelous goodly wast thou & beautifull, yett euen a very Queene wast thou: in so much, that thy beauty was spoken of amonge the heathen, for thou wast excellent in my beauty, whan I put vpo the, saith the L O R D E God. Whereupon hast put confidence in thine owne beauty, & played the harlot, when thou haddest gotten the name. Then hast committed whoredome, wth all that wente by the: hast fulfilled their desire: yett thou hast casten thy garmentes of dyuers colours, & decked thine ankers therewith, when thou mightest fulfill thine whoredome, as such a fashion, as neuer was bene, yett be. The goodly ornaments & Jewels whiche I gave the of myne owne golde and syluer, hast thou sold, & made the into moneye of, and committed whoredome wthal.

Thy garmentes of dyuers colours thou hast eaten, and decked thy meane wth oyle: & in case hast thou set before thy meane wth whiche I gave the, as symmels, & harry: (to feede the which) that hast thou before them, for a smale sentence. But thou came also to passe, saith the L O R D E God. Thou hast caste thine owne clothes wth tere, whan thou haddest begotten name, and these hast thou offered vp vnto thine be thine meate. In this was a small portion of thine: (thou hast thou) casten thou my children, and graust them ouer to him vnto them: And yett in all thy abominacions and whoredomes, thou hast not remembred the dayes of thy youth, how naked wast thou wast as the acorne, & thou wast in thine owne bloude. After all this I wold haue seen (and so vnto the, saith y L O R D E) thou hast buylded thy steepe as in the house in euery place: yett at the head of euery steepe hast thou buylded the an altar. Thou hast made thy beauty to be abhorred: thou hast layed out thy legges to crye as that came by, and multiplied thine whoredomes. Thou hast committed fornicacion wth the Egipcians thy neighbours, in which much fleshy: & thou hast thou used the same home, to anger me.

Beholde, I will stretch out myne hande over the, and wil rymn I thy steepe of off, and deliuer the ouer in to the wylles: I will philistynes thine enemies, which are the meane of thy abominable waye. Thou hast played the whore also wth the Amorites which mightest not satisfie the: yett thou hast played the harlot, & not had ynough. Thou hast thou still committed thy fornicacion in the lande of Canaan vnto the Amonites, yett thy lust not satisfied. Gomorrah & Sodomide thine betters: saith the L O R D E God. I haue seene thou dost all these thinges, thou art auous whore: buyldinge thy steepe at the head of euery steepe, and thy whoredomes in all places: Thou hast not bene in any other whore, y much boote of thy whoredome: but as a wife y haue had wthouth, wth or in steade of her husband: thou art geynto all other whores, but thou wast rewarded vnto all thy lovers: & thou thou givest, to come into the out of all places, to committe fornication with thee. It is come to passe with thee in thy whoredomes, according to the use of other women: yet thou hast no fofa fornication bene committed after thee, finge that thou prefest giften em in other, & not to committe to geuen thee this in a certain thinge. Therefore heare the worde of the LORD, o thou harlot: Thus saith the LORD God: So fo much as thou hast fpectatione, & difcounted thy fhame, thou art thy whoredome with all thy lovers, and with all the Toole of thy abhominacions in the name of thy children, whom thou hast ge-nered: Beholde therefore, I will gather together all thy lovers, unto whom thou hast made thy self comen: yee & all them whom thou favoureth, and every one that thou hast loved: and will difcount thy fhame before the,

that they all maye feethy fylehynes.

Moreover, I will indyte thee as a breaker of murther, and a murtherer, and recompence the thine owne blode in wrath and glorify: I will geue thee over in to their power, that shall make domaine thy fterce, and deftroye thy blood: but they shall ftrike thee out of thy clothes, all thy fayne & beautifull Jewels that they take from thee, and fole the fte-nall bare: &ee they shall bringe the comen people upon thee, which shall ftone thee, & faye decree with their fwearde. They shall burne up thy houfe, and purify the in the figne of many women. Thus wil I make thy whoredome craffe, for that thou shalt generate no more remede.

Ezechiel I make my wrath to be still, take my glory from thee, be content, and no more to be displeased: finge thou art murtherer the bryde of thy youth, but haft provoked me to wrath in all these thinges: Beholde therefore, I wil bringe thine owne wayes o-pon thine head, faith the LORD God: how be it, I came vnto thee, according to thy wickednes, and all thy abhominacions. Be-holde, all they of use comen promethe, shall with promise also agaynst thee: Such a murther, fuch a daughter.

Then are certyn mothers owne daughter, that hath caft of hir houlfe bonde and hir children: &ee then are the fifters of thy fifters, which fifters they have bedded and. her children. Nowe mother is a Corbite, and youre fifters an Amorite. Thine eldest fifters is Samaria, she and hir daughters that dwel vpo thy left bonde.

But thy youngest fifters that dwelleth on y right hylde, is Sodom and hir daughters.

The xvi. Chap. Fo. lvi.

Yet haft thou not melted after their waye, nor done after their abhominacions: Doe in all thy wyse, & thou hast bene more compuncten then they.

As truly as I fyve, faith the LORD God: God: Sodom thy fifters with hir daughters, hath not done so euill, as thou and thy daughters. Beholde the synnes of thy fifters Sodom were these: Pryde, fulnesse of mea-te, a bountiance and Iouefte: these thinges had she and hir daughters. Befydes that, they reached northward toward the poore and needy, but were proud, and byd abhorminable thinges before memberfaie. I toke then awaye, when I had fene it. Whether hath Samaria done half of thy synnes, yet thou hast exceeded them in wickednesse. In fo much that in comparifon of all the abhorminacions which thou hast done, thou hast made thy fifters good women. Therefore be-are that owne fhame, thou that in synne haft outcome thy fifters: finge thou hast done fo abhominably, that they were better then thee. Be afhamed therefore: I faye, and be-are thine owne confufion, thou that makest thy fifters good women.

As for the captiuite, namely the captiuities of Sodom and hir daughters: the captiuite of Samaria and hir daughters: I wil bringe them agayne, fo well I also bringe a-gayne thy captiuitie amonge them: that thou mayest take thine owne confufion vpon thee, and be afhamed of all that thou hast done, and be comforte them.

Thus thy fifters (namely) Sodom and hir daughters: Samaria and hir daughters with y felf & thy daughters, fhall be brought agayne to youre old estate. With thou wast in thy pryde, and before thy wickednesse came to figne: thou woldest not heare fpeake of thy fifters Sodom, until they come to the Sittim with all their reuenies, and the Philitynes with all their fyue rounde about the, brought the to fhame and confu-fion: that then mightest beare thine owne fylehynes and abhominacion, faith the LORD.

For thus faith the LORD God: I fhall debynghe deale with thee, as thou hast done. Thou hast defpyed the oath, and broken the covenant: I remember it. I wil remember the covenant, that I made with thee in thy youth, in fo much that it shall be an eter-nall finge: covenant: So that thou shouldest remember thy wayes, and be afhamed of that then fhalt thou receave of me thy due: and younger fifters, whom I wil make thy bough ere, and that beside thy countenance. And so I will raise my countenance with thee, & thou mayest know, that I am the LORD: that thou mayest think upon it, be ashamed, and excuse thine own confusion sometime: when I have forgiven thee, all that thou hast done, saith the LORD God.

The XVII. Chapter.

D. 23

The word of the LORD came unto me, saying: Then sonne of man; pue forth a barde speakinge and a paele, unto the house of Israel, and say: Thus saith the LORD God: There came a greate Eagle with greate wynges, yet wth many longe wynges, and full of feathers of dyvers coloure, upon the mount of Libanus, and toke a bough from a Cedre tree, and brake of the topp of his wyngge, and caried it into the lombe of Canaan, and set it in a cec of marchantes. The toke also a bough of the lembe, and plantedit in a frutefull ground, he brought it into greates waters, & set it in a willge trecherby. Then by it grew, and was a greate wyne stocke, but longe by the ground thus ther came of it a wyne, and it brought forth blossomes, & spied out boughes.

But there was another Eagle, a greate one, which had greate wynges and many feathers and beholde, y^e rotes of this wyne had an hanger a free him, and spied out his boughes toward him, so water his frutes: Whereby it was placed upon a good ground beside greates waters: so that (by reason) it shalbe have brought out boughes and frute, and have bene a goodly wyne. Spake thou therfore, thus saith the LORD God: Shal this wyne prosper: shal not his rotes be plucked out, his frute broken off, his grene boughes withered and save away: yet witherether stronge arms of many people, shal it be plucked up by the rotes, beholde, it was planted: shal it prosper therfore? Shal it not be dryed up and withered, yet even in the shewing out of his blossomes, as some as y^e cast wynde blauech?

Moreover, the word of the LORD came unto me saying: Speake to the souldiers of the house of Israel: Know ye not, what these thinges do signifie. Tell them: Beholde, the kinge of Babylon came to Jerusalem, and toke the kinge & his princes, and led them to Babylon.

The toke of the kinge seke, and made a covenant with him, on dole an oath of him: The princes of the house toke the with him also, that the lombe might be holden in subjection, and not to rebelle, but to kepe the countenance, and fulfill it. But he fell from him, for his embassidors in to Egypt, that he might have houses & much people. Shal the kinge prosper? Beholde he be kept, shal the doers of these thinges? O shal he be kept, that breaketh his covenant?

As truly as I live, saith the LORD God: he shal by in Babylon, in y^e place whiche the kinge dwelleth, that made him thus: whos oath he hath despised, and whose covenant he hath broken. Whether shal he live with his greate hoost and multitude of people, maynteyne him in the warre: wher they cast up dykes, and set up bulwarkes before: much people. So shal he be kept by the oath, and broken the covenant (whereas he yet gave his honde thereupon) and done all these thinges, he shal not scape.

Therefore thus saith the LORD God: As truly as I live, I will bringe him and that he hath despised, and my covenant that he hath broken, upon his remembrance. I will cast him out aboute him, and catch him in my yarme. To Babylon will I carry him, there will I punish him, because of the multitude of offences that he made me. As for the y^e fle from him out of y^e host, they shal be kept with the freewylle. The residue shal be reserved towarde all the wynde: and y^e shal be me, that the LORD have spoken.

Then saith the LORD God: I will also take a bough from an hie Cedre tree, and will plant it, and make it the uppermost wyng, that yet is but certie, and plant it upon his hill: Namely, upon the hill of Sin will I plant it: that it maye bringe forth wynges, and geve frute, and be a greate bough: so that all maners of fowles maye be in it, and make their nestes under the shadowe of his boughes.

And all the trees of the feld shal knowe, that the LORD have brought downe the hie tree, and set the lower upon his hill: I have dryed up the grene tree, and made the drye tree to flourish: Alen the LORD y^e spake it, have also brought it to pass.

The XVII. Chapter.

The word of the LORD came unto me, on this manner: Beholde, I will bringe this comon prynces, that y^e are in the lombe of Israel, sayinge: The fowles shal be eaten fourte grapes, and the children shal be set on edge: As truly as I live, saith the LORD God, y^e shal use this by the word in Israel.

The prophet Ezechiel.

4 Beholde, all foules are myne. & like as the father is myne, so is of some myne also. The father hath fowls, that vnto x^p a man be godly, and be the thinge that is equal vnto righte, he cometh vpon the hill: he belisteth me, he set vnto the Table of his life: he defendeth me his neighbours: he healeth the medicines of many women: he groweth a body: he groweth his decter his pibers: a gayne: he catcheth more other mans good by wilde, he putteth his mers: he beeth his hongrie: he clo-theth the naked: he belisteth nothinge vpon a wry, he healeth nothinge out: he belisteth with his hande from doinge wronge: he had lent faith fully betwixt me & z^u me: he wakeneth my conscience: he keepeth my lawes, & performeth the faith fully: & he is my neighbour: he shall surely live, faithfully. L O R D E M O D.

3 If he be not a forme, that is a murderer, a flanderer of bloud; if he be one of these sinners (though he be not all) he eateth upon the hills: he defileth his neighbours wife: he grattereth the poorer and needy: he rebucketh and perpleth; he teacheth not the better to playe a game: he is filthy up his eyes to jellay; he maketh much abhorment his glorie: he leacheth upon a iury, and taketh money. And so shall hee man and iure: The shall a lye. Singe he hath done all these abhominations, he shall dye: his bloud shall be upon him.

How if this man get a fowle also, the fithall shal the fathere synne, which he bath donat and fathere, neether doth he like: To fathere he neether not upon his own synne: he lyfeth not his eyes up to the doole of Iu-dith: he doeth not his neighbours wif: he wepeth no man: he doeth no mane plover: he neether petheth, neether doeth any man: he doeth his meate with the hawgrie: he cloatheth the naked: he oppresseth not the poore: he receaiveth no wary, net or any thinge again: he doeth my lawes, and is alwaies in my commandementes: This man shal not bye in his fathere synne, but shall live without feyle. As for his fathere: because he oppresseth and spaketh his brother, and bys wyrd is amonge his people: to be in heere in this synne. And yet saye ye: Wherfore shal he be in this forme beare his fathere synne?
The fowr: because the same hath done equiall right. Hee kepeth all my commandmentes, and doeth them: therefore, shall he live in due.

⁴² The same soule y^e symeth, shall dye. The ⁴⁴ soule shall not beare the fathers offences, ne-

rather than the father beare the sinnes offence. If the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon himself, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon himself also. But if by thy wickedly will turne away, from all his righteousness that he hath done, and keepe all my commandments, and do nothing like unto it, shall I set right: Doubtes he shall yue, and not by. As for all his righteousness that he hath done, they shall not be charge upon: but in his righteousness shall he be righteous, he shall yue. So haue I my pleasure in the heart of a sinner, saith the LORD God: but rather that he connect, and lye.

Againe : if the righteous turne awaye from his righteousness, and doo iniquitye, a condempnation to all the adhominationes, that y^e wiselords haue dooed: shall be layed: All the righteousnes that he hath done, shall not be thoughte vpon: out in the same sort that he hath offended withall, and in the same sort that he hath done, he shall dye.

And yet, say ye: Tush, the wayes of fLOR D are not to be feared. Heate therefore yett ye of ffeare: Is not my waye righte? Or, are not your wayes rather wicke? When a righteous man turneth awaye from his right wey, and setteth up himselfe, he shall be cast downe: and immediately with an engellyng: he shall be destroyed. And the waye of the wicked man shall be made straight: and he shall be cast downe.
When the wicked man turneth awaye from his wickednes, he shall be saved: and the wickednes which he hath done, and the thing which he hath done, shall be forgiven him. And the waye of the righteous man shall be made straight: and he shall be saved: and the thing which he hath done, shall be forgiven him.

And yet saith the house of Israel: Call, the name of the LORD is not equal. Are my wayes might, & ye house of Israel: not your wayes rather unequal? As for me, I will indue my garment of righteousness, I will gird me with the robe of holines, I will be clothed with the robe of the LORD God. Wherefore, be converted, and turn ye to a cleane from all your wickednesse, so shall there as I hymne do you harme. Call a new ye for you all your ungodlinesse, that ye have done: make you new hearted and a new spirit. Wherefore will ye dye, O ye house of Israel? seyme I have no pleasure in y^e death of sinners: but ye, saith the LORD God. Turne you then, and ye shall live.

Abstract

U.S. v. B.

EÖM-ny. táj.

13-5
13-6

whilke 7 One of hir whelpes she brought up, & he came a Lyon: he learned to spaye, and to devour folke. The shepherds heede of him, & toke him in their nettes, & brought him in chaynes into the londe of Egypte.

Now when the damme sawe, that all hir hope & comfort was awaye, she toke another of hir whelpes, and made a Lyon of him: which wente amonge the Lyons, & became a fierce Lyon: learned to spaye, and to devour folke: he destroyed their palaces, and made their citie waste: In so much that the whole londe and eury thing therein, were verily desolate, chowthe wry voyce of his rean-ge.

Then came the heithen together on eu-ry side out of all countrees agaynst him, laid their nettes for him, and toke him in their pyres. So they bounde him with chay-nes, and brought him to the kinge of Babil-lon: which put him in prison, that his voyce shoulde nomore be heerd vpon the mountains of Israel.

B As for thy mother she is like a wylde thye bloude, planted by the water sy-de: her frutes and braunches are growen out of many waters: hir stalkes were so stronge, that men myght have made staves of hir for officers: she grew so hye in hir stalkes.

So when men sawe that she exceded of hyth and malitiae of hir braunches, she was rodd out in displeasure, and cast downe to the ground. The East wynde dried up hir fruite, hir stronge stalkes were broken of wyndes and bent in the fyre. But now she is planted in the wildecnesse, in a drye and churle ground. And there is a fyre gone out of hir stalkes, which hath biter up hir braunches and hir fruite: so that she hath no more stronge stalkes, to be staves for officers.
This is a pitious and unstable thinge.

The XX. Chapter.

In the xiiij. yeare the xij. dayes of the moneth, it happened, that certayne of the elders of Israel came vnto me for to aske counsell at the LORD, and sat euen by me. Then came the worde of the LORD vnto me in this maner: Thou son ne of man: Speake to the elders of Israel, and saye vnto them: Thus saith the LORD God: Are ye come hither to aske any thing of me? As truly as I liue (saith the LORD God) I will geue you no answer. Wilthou not repune them (thou sonne of man) wilt thou not repune them? Shewethem the ab-ominacions of their fathers, & tell the:
Thus saith the LORD God: In the daye when I chuse Israel, and lift up myne hande upon the heade of the house of Jacob, I hawed my self vnto them in the house of Eg-pte: yet when I life up myne hande vnto them, and saye: I am the LORD your God, I will in the daye that I lift up myne hande vnto them, to bringe them out of the londe of Egypte: in to a londe that I had promysed for them, which shal be with my chere and oy, and is a pleasure to be amonge alle the.

Then saye I vnto them: Cast awaye from you man the abominacions that he hath be-hauyn, and dyslye not your names with the Idols of Egypte, for I am the LORD your God.

But they rebelled agaynst me, and wo-lde not do as I commanded: they would not forsake the idols of Egypte. And I made my indignacion ouer them, and to-cast off my wrath vpon them: yet coulde my wrath of the londe of Egypte. But I wold not do it, for my names sake: that I shoulde not be dishonoured before the heithen, among whom they dwelle, and among whome I shewed my self vnto them: that I would bringe them out of the londe of Egypte. Vnto whom I had carryed them out of the londe of Egypte, and brought them into the wildenesse. I gaue them my commaundment, & I shewed them my lawes: which they did not keepe. I gaue them also my lawes dayes, to be a token betwixt me and them, and that ye knowe, that I am the LORD, which haue covenanted with them. And yet they rebelled agaynst me in the wildenesse, they wold not walke in my commaundementes, they haue cast awaye my lawes (which ye so keepe) shalde I see in them, and my Sabbaths daies haue they greatly dishonoured.

The I made me to poure out my iniquity vpon them, & to consume them in the wildecnesse. Yet I wold not do it, for my names sake: lest it shoulde be dishonoured before the heithen, from the which I had carryed them awaye. But I knowe vnto them in the wildecnesse, that I wold not bringe them into the londe, which I gaue them: a londe that shoulde be with my chere & oyle, & a plaine of all londes: & because they refused my lawes, & walked not in my commaundementes, but had dishonoured my Sabbaths, & there was gone after their Idols: I will chuse myne eyes vnto them, so y I wold not see they shal be, & consume them in the wildecnesse. I will see vnto them in the wildecnesse, & will not see the lawes of The prophet Ezekiel.

fathers, kepe not their ordinances, and make not your selves such their Idols, for I am the LORD & your God. But walk in my statutes, kepe my lawes & do them, halowe my Sabbaths: for they are a token between me & you, that ye may knowe, he m y I am the LORD. And when I bringe, the sonne rebelleth against me also: they walke not in my statutes, they kepe not my lawes to fulfill them: whiche he that doeth shall urge in them: when I have led them my Sabbath to rest. The I have me againe to pour out my indignation ouer them, and to sanctifie my name upon them in the wilderness. The nations I will haue my honde for my name sake, lest I shalbe unbalanced amonge the heathen, be fore whom I had broughte them forth. I will up myne honde ouer them also in the wilderness, that I wolde scate them amonge the heathen, and strowe them amonge the nations: because they had not kepe my lawes, but cast asyde my commandmentes, unbalanced my Sabbathes, and lift up their eyes to their fathers Idole.
Wherefore I gaue them also a commandement not good, I lawe to them the which they shalbe not yare, & I unbalanced them in their own giftes: (when I appoynted sa-my self all their just doings to make the measure: that they might knowe, homethat I am the LORD.)

Then said (O thou some of man) tell the house of Israel thus saith the LORD God: Behold all these, your fathers haue yet blasphomed me more, and greatly offended against me: for after I had broughte them in to the londe, y I promysed to geue them, when they sawe every hie hill: all the chie-fenes they made thei offringes, and promised me with their oblations, makinge sweat saures there, & poured out thei beliefingges. Then I ased them, what haue ye doo wuthall, that ye go thither? And they saye: it is called the hie place vnto this daye. Wherefore, speake vnto the house of Israel: Thus saith the LORD God: Ye are a nation vnclene as youre forefathers, & commanded to come also with their abominations. In all your Idols, where vnto ye bin go yore oblationes, & to whose honoure ye burne youre delictes: desyle youe selues, even in this daye: howe daire ye be come, and er my question ac me: O ye house of Israel! Ye truly as I haue saith the LORD God: ye geue no answer to me: as fer the thing that ye go aboute, it shal not come to pass, where as ye saye: we wil be as the heathen, & do as other people in the londe, woth to stow milne woth shap.

As truly as I live (saith the LORD God) I will rule ye with a mighty honde, with a stretched out arme, and with indignacion poured out ouer you: & will bringe you out of the nations and londes, wher ye are scattered: and gather you together with a mighty hode, with a stretched out arme & will indignacion poured out upon you & will bringe you into the wilderness of the people, & there I will reason with you face to face. Aske as I punished ye for fathers in the wilderness, so wil I punish you also, saith the LORD God. I will bringe you to see my manifestation, and enter the donde of the covenant. The fathers also and the teyn generations will I take from amonge ye, & bringe them out of the londe of youre habi-tacion: as for the londe of Israel, they shal not come in it: wher they may knowe, homethat I am the LORD.

So now then (saith the LORD God) ye house of Israel, cast away, and destroye every man his Idols: when shal ye beare me, and nomore blaspheme my holy name with your offringes and Idols. But upon my holy hill, and upon the hie hill of Israel shal all the house of Israel and all that in the londe, make thyme me: and in the same place will I sawe them, and there will I cary re youre beane offringes, and the first-lings of youre oblationes, with all youre holy things.

I will accepte youre sweete savoure, when I bringe you from the nations, and gather you together out of the londes, wher ye be scattered: that I may be halowed in you before the heathen, and that ye may knowe, that I am the LORD, which haue broughte you in to the londe of Israel: ye in to the same londe, that I swore to geue vnto youre fathers. There shal ye call to remembrance ce youre ome wayes and all youre ymaginations, wher in ye haue bene desyled: and ye shal be displeased with youre consciences, for all youre wickednes, that ye haue done.
And ye shal knowe, that I am the LORD in when I cōtente you after my name, not after ge miste woth ye, not according to your corrupte mentes: o ye house of Israel, saith the LORD.

Moreover, the worde of I LORD came vnto me, sayinge: Thou some of man, seethy sace to write the sech, & to speake to the sech wynde, and saie to the wood to come to the soult: haue the worde of the LORD, thus saith the LORD.

The xxii. Chapter.

21 Ex wordes of the LORD came to me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, thus saye unto the Sanctuary, & prophesie agaynst the londe of Irael, saye to the lorde of Irael: Thus saith the LORD God: Beholde, I will open the, & will drawe my swearde out of yf shech, & will cut out of yf berch the righteous & the wicked. Saigethen that I will reue out of the bech the righteous & wicked, that fore shal my swearde goe out of his shech, a-gayn: all fleshy fram the north to the south: that all fleshy knowe, howe that I the LORD haue drawen my swearde out of the shech, & it shal neede be put in agayne.

Now thus saith the LORD: O thou sonne of man, yf thy lawes are all withall, yet moure they ly for them: And yf they saye, wherefore moure nest thou: I then tell them: for the exposition is: I commaund, & they which all heres shall mell, all bondes shal be taken downe, all flo-wethen shal sayne, and all entres shall waye fable. Beholde now, & commaund & shal be fulfilled, saith the LORD God.

22 Agayne, the wordes of the LORD came unto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, prophesie, and speake: Thus saith the LORD God: speake, the swerde is sharpened & wel geared. Whan pered is it for the slaughter, & secured yf it maye be bryght. O thou trefore ge staff of my sorow, shal bunge downe all wedde. & hath purhis swearde of duntange, yf good holer maye be take of it. This swearde is shal pered & bryght, yf it maye be geuement to the honde of the neamslayer.

Enc: O thou sonne of man, and howe, for this swerde shal synne my people, & all the rulers in Irael, which with my people shal be layne downe to the grounde: who reuolue fremer. Since thou opdesth thee, for, wter for shal be the place & staff of myrme come: Prophecy thou sonne of man, & synne ehynches togeat: make the fir enbe two ged, yet inate the obged, yf man layne fremer, that swerde of the grette slange ter, which shal synne them, euen in their pre-my chambra to make: them all afresh & synne at the heres, & in all gares to make: syn of them fall. O howe bryght and sharpe, is howe wel bryght & myre for yf slaughter: & to the some place alye, ether upon the nigh hence or in the felle, & ether so euer they turneth. I will synne my bondes togeat also, and sauffie my myre full in myrme Linn: I the LORD haue saide.

The wordes of the LORD came yet to me agayne, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, make hit eue strokes, that the wordes of yf kinge of Babilis maye come. Both the strokes shall goe out of one londe. The first shal be up a place, at the heade of the street shal chole him euen a cener. Make yf a stroke, & hit shal be maye reme to the heade of the Ammonites, and to the strengs of Ierusalem. For the kinge of Babilis shal fence in the tanyngs of the waye, and heade of yf the two strokes: to eue cener the fourt sayne, castinge the letters which are in, to eue cener: as the Iudo, and loft in the Iynr: And the fourth sayne poynt to the right syde upon Ierusalem, that he maye set syn of warr, to synne with a grette noyse, to eue cener: Almas for: Babilis ammes agaynst the gares, to ge-ue up byde, & to make bulwokes.

Enc: O thou sonne of man, yf shal synne shall holde it but for synne, euen as though a nest were tolde them: & eue they shal synne remembre their wyl chynse, is the byrighthe: they must be take and wome. The fourth saith the LORD God: For so much as ye youre synne synne your offense, and be ue opened youre wyl chynse, so that all ye reuolue men maye be yf ure synne: & inso much (I saye) that ye youre synne be ue made mension therof, ye shal be in my violence.

O thou shamefull wicked gyde of Irael, whose daye is come: euen the cener hit felle: shal have an ende: I the LORD God: eue a wyl chynse: the myre, and of the croune, and so in it away: & them is equalled, and the poente bryght nes. Punyshe, punyshe, yet punyshe them all, & destruye them: and they shal be fulfilled, until he come, to whom they belong: & to whom I haue saide it. And thou sonne of man: prophecy, as saith: Thus saith the LORD God: eue dunt of Ammon, & eue their blasphemys, & ther: I the swerde, the swerde, is drawe synne alied yf the slaughter, & eue the is glifed: & eue the synne shal be synne, & prophecy: yf it maye re out my cruel displeasure upon them, and burne them in the fire of my wrath: the it owne was so will I recompence vpon their brades, saith the LORD God.

The XLIII. Chapter.

Ezechiel the sonne of Buzai came vnto me, saying: Thou sonne of man, there were two women, that had one mother. These (when they were yonge) beganne to playe the harlots in the gyces. There were their besties, and the pappes off their mayden brades destroyed. The doer off them was called Oola, and hir yongest sister Ooliba. These two were myne, and bare samia and donghete. Their names were, Samaria, and that was Oola: and Jerusalem, that was Ooliba. A soti Oola, she beganne to go a whoringe, when I had talle her to me. She was set on fire vpon hir louers the Assyrians, which had to do with her: came the paynes and lordes, that were drede in costly arraye: fyre yongemen, lusty ryders of horses.

Thus thou whir whosome, she cleued into all the yongemen off Assyria: these she made vpon them, and defyled herself with all their dole. Then she caused she fro the fornicars, that she used with the Assyrians: for in hir youth they laye wth her, they buyed the besties of hir mayden brade, and poured their whoredome vpon her. Wherefore, I deliuered her in to y^e hodes of hir louers, euen the Assyrians, whom she followed. They se discovered hir shame, rote hir sonnes and daughters, and slew her with the swearde: And euill name gat she of all people, as they punished her.

Her sister Ooliba sawe this, as best reueth herself wth inordinate love, more then she, & repeated hir sister in whoredome: she leued off Assyrians (which also laye wth her) mainly, the paynes & greates lordes, that were clothed wth all manner of gorgeous apparell, all lusty boymen and fyre yonge performers. Then I sawe, that they both were defyled alike. But she increased still in whoredome: for when she sawe men paymed vpon the wall, the ymagines off the Caldees set forth with fresh colours, with sayre gyddes aboute them, and goodly ketnettes vpon their heades, led yng all the paynes (after y^e maner of the Babylonians and Caldees in their owne londe, where they be dome) immediately, as soon as she sawe them, she brow in lous vpon them, and she was allured for them in to the londe of the Caldees.

Now when the Babylonians came to her, they laye with her, and defyled her with their whoredome, and so was she pained with them. And when her lust was done from them, her whoredome and shame was discovered: & then when my heart soughte like a my heart was gone from her sister also. These things she used her whoredome the longer she more, and remembered the payes off hir youth, wherein she had played the harlot in the londe off Assyria: the time a lust vpon them, whose flesh was like the flesh of Assia, and their side like the side off Assia. Then thou hast turned the filthynesse of thy youth, when thy louers besties payes, and married thy besties in the gyces.

Then for Ooliba she saith y^e LORD God. I will rayse vp thy louers (which thou hast satisfied thy lust) in garment, and gather them together rounde aboute the: I namely, the Babylonians, and all the Caldees: peccod, Schoa and Coa, with all the Assyrians: all yonge and sayre louers: payes and lordes, dryghtes and gentles, which be all good boymen: These shall come vpon the with houses, charaxes, & many multitude of people: which shal be bestowed aboute the on every syde, wth busshes, sheldes and helmettes. I will punish y^e best of them, yet they shal stand: I will purge the, according to their owne iniquities. I will put my gyltynesse vpon the, so that they shal beale cruelly with the. They shal cut of thy nose and thine eeres, and the remnant shal fall thow in the swearde. They shall carrye thy sonnes and daughters, & thy virgin shal be diem in the fire. Thy shal strip the out of thy clocher, & carrye thy costly reles awaye with them.

Thus will I make an ende off thy filthynesse & whoredome, which thou hast brought out of the londe of Assyria: so that thou shalt turne thine eyes nomore after them, & call thy mynde nomore vpon the gyces. For thus saith the LORD God, Beholde, I will burye in to the hodes of them, whom thou hast receiued in to the bondes of them, with whiche thou hast filled thy lust, which shall be cruelly with y^e Assyrians: thou shalt talke with them, and leaue the naked and bere, and thou shalt shewe of thy filthynesse: when I shal come to light. All these things shal happen vnto the, because of thy whoredome, which thou hast used among the Gentiles, whiche thou hast used among the Caldees: thou hast walked in the waye of thy sister, & thou wilt I yeme the hir cuppe in thy hand.

The prophet Ezechiel.

Thou saiest the LORD God: Thou shalt write it in thy fifteenth cuppe, howe euer it shall come to be the bottom. Thou shalt be singed as scumme, and hab as greatly in desolation, as is possible. Thou shalt be full off tormentes and sorowes, for the cuppe of yll for Samaria is a cuppe of destruction & wastage: the same shalt thou drinke, and stopp some out to yf bagges, yet thou shalt set up the stone in peeces off it, and so teare thou some beside: For thus I haue spoken a, saye the LORD God.

Therfor thus saith yf LORD God: For so much as thou hast forgotten me, I cast me away, so haue now thus some fylling in it: therefore, the LORD saye moine uer unto me. Thou haue of me, while thou not repute me: O Saba: Sheweth their abominations, yf they haue hid their wickednes, & they haue hid their blood: yet euen in their Iodei haue they committed abominations, & offered them their own children to be burned: yf they had borne into me. And thus haue they borne into me also: they haue defiled my Sanctuary in the same daye, I haue not hated my Sabaach, for when they had slain their children for their Iodei, they came the same daye into my Sanctuary: by this I do, this haue they done in my house. Where all this, thou hast sent yf messengers for men out of farre countries: and whil they came, thou hast bathed, crymmed and sit fast thy self off the best fishion: thou hast up a goodly bed, & a table spread before thee: when upon thee thou hast set my incense and myn oyle.

Therfor thus saith yf LORD God: O women yf were the first farre countries out the before: into these they gaue bicalectes upon their houses, & see gloriations crowne upon their heads. Then thoughte I: no doubt, these will use their bacloery also wth yfder thee when. And they wente into her, as into a common bawle: Euen so wente they also in Saba & Oliba, those filchy women.

O ye all that loue veruety and rightuousness, I will thus punish them: as aduocates and intercessors ought to be iudged and punished, for they are bicalectes off wickednes, and the blood is in their houses. Wherefor thus saith the LORD God: I will bring a greaue multitude off people upon them, and make them be scattered and spayed: these shall come from, and geare them with their swordes. They shall slay their sonnes and daughters, and come up their houses with fyre.

Thus will I destroye all such filchy men out off the land: that all women may learne, not as doo after your wickednesse. And so they shall laye your filchyngs upon your own filthes, and ye shall be punished for the synnes, that ye haue committed with your Iodei: & ye shall knowe, that I am the LORD God.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

At the 15. yeare, in the 5. Moneth, the 10. daye off the 11. Moneth, came the word of the LORD vnto me, sayinge: Thou Ionno art man, write up the name off this daye, yet eue yf house of this present daye: when the King of Babilon sit himself against Ierusalem. Shewme yf I bytane house be a parable, & speake unto Ibi: Thou saiest the LORD God: See the a pot, fecen, & poure water in to it: as all the peeces together in it, all the good peeces: the loynes and the shulders, & yll it with the left benes. Take one off the best shepe, & an heape off bones withall: let it be yll well, & let the bones seeth well therein.

With that, saith the LORD God on this manner: Wo be unto the bloody cite of yf pot, wher upon the rustynesse hanger, and is not yet scoured awaye. Take out the peeces that are wit, and a fier anner there: there noo lootes be cast therfor, for the bones yce in it. Upon a playne daye stone hath she poured it, and not upon the greynde, that it might be covered with dust. And therfor haue I leuen her poure hir bloude upon a playne daye stony rocke, because it shalbe not be had, and thus I might bringe my wrathfull indignacion and vengeance upon her.

Wherefor, thus saith yf LORD God: O, wo be unto that bloudy cite: for wo be I will prepare a heape off wood: be it a thow yf bone together, & yll it about the first bones the fleshye all be well fobbed, that the bones may be fished out. Moreover, for the pot empie upon the coales, that it maye be warme and the meat all hot: that the fleshye and rustyne maye be consumed. Thus will noe go off, it shall so much off it: the rustynesse must be burnt out. Thy filchyngs is an abominable, for I will be haue chyned the, but thou shalt not be clenched. Thou canst not be pouged from thine wickednesse, all I haue poured in yf wrathfull indignacion upon thee. Euen I the LORD haue so benyfyd: Thus is come I hereto allready, that I will do it. I will noe go backe, I will not spare, I will noe be intreated: but as I do in thy yf mynes and ymaginacions, thou shalt be punished, saith the LORD God.

C And the worde off the LORDE came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, beholde, I will eate awaye the pleasure off thine eyes wth a plague: yet shalt thou neither mourne nor wepe, ne water chy chereken therefore. thou mayest remaine by thy self alone, but use no deadly lamenteacion. Holde on chy doore, and put on chy shus upon chy face, couer not chy face, and eate no mourners bierd. So I spake vnto the people by meynes in the meynynge, and at euen my wyfe dyed: then upon the nexte morow, I byd as I was commaunded. And y^e people sayde vnto me: wherfore tell we, what that signifyeth, which thou dost? I answered them, the worde off the LORDE came vnto me, saynge: Tell the house of Israel, thus saith y^e LORDE God: beholde, I will suspende my Sanctuary: and the glory of youre power, the pleasure of y^e eyes, and the thinge that ye loue: youre seruice and donghters whom ye haue left, shal fall throughe the swerde.

D Lite as I haue done, so shall yee do also: Ye shal not byde yome face, ye shal eate no mourners bierd: y^e youre honours shal ye haue vpon youre beades, & shus vpon youre feete. I shal neither mourne ne wepe, but in youre symes ye shal be fouen full, and one repete with another. Thus Ezechiel is youre shew colde. For lte as he hath done, so when thus commeth ye shall do also: that ye maye lerne to knowe, that I am y^e LORDE God. Thus beholde, O thou sonne of man: In the daye when I take from them their power, their loye and honoure, the lust off their eye, the burthe of their bodies: namely, their sonnes and donghters: There shall there one escape, and come vnto the, for to shewe the. In the daye shal y^e mouth be opene to him, which is escaped: hee shal mayest speak, and be namede domme: Yee and thou shal be their shew colde, that they maye knowe, howe that I am the LORDE.

The xxv. Chapter.

E In the twelue of the LORDE came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, set chy face agaynst y^e Ammonites, prophcy vpon them, and say vnto the Ammonites: heare the worde off the LORDE God. Thus saith the LORDE God: Sois much as thou speakest out my Sanctuary: I ha, I erowe it be asore suspended: and ouer the londe of Israel, I erowe it be now desolace: yee and ouer the house of Iuda. I erowe they be now led awaye y^e prisonere: Beholde, I will deliuer y^e to the people of the east, y^e they maye haue the in possession: thes shal see that east vella and houses in the. They shal eate the frute, and drynke the chy mylke: As for Nabath, I wil make of it a stall for camels, and of Ammon a shepefold: and yeshul knowe, that I am the LORDE.

For thus saith the LORDE God: Sois much as thou hast clapped with chy handes, and stamped with chy fyfte, yee myght in chine herre ouer the londe of Israel my despyte: beholde, I wil stretch out my hande ouer the alld, and deliuer the, to be sold off the heathen, and rote the out frum amonge the people, and cause the be deliuered out off all londes yere: I wil make the layed wast, that thou mayest knowe, that I am the LORDE.

Thus saith y^e LORDE God: Sois much as Moab and Seir do saye: As for the house off Iuda, it is but lte as all other heathen be: Ther fore be holde, I wil make the an off Moab weaperdesse, and take awaye y^e strength: their citie and chiefe cosse off their londe, which are the pleasures off the countrey: As namely, Bethesimoth, Bethel and Cariachaim: these wil I open vnto off the east, y^e they maye fall vpon the Ammonites and will geue it them in possession: so that the Ammonites shal no more be in remembrance amonge the heathen. Thus thus wil I punysh Moab also, that they maye knowe, howe that I am the LORDE.

Moreover, thus saith the LORDE God: Because that Edom hath avenged himselfe vpon the house off Iuda, thus saith the LORDE: I wil reach vnto my honde vpon Edom, and take awaye him and best off it. From Theman vnto Dedan wil I mal it desolace: they shal saye with the swordes: Thot on my people if Israel wil I avenge me agaynst y^e they shal haue him, accordinge to my wyl and imigneis, so that they shal knowe my vengeance, saith the LORDE God.

Thus saith y^e LORDE God: Sois much as the Philistynes haue done this: namely, taken vengeance which be y^e full shewes, and off an olde euill wil set them shew to destroye: Therfore thus saith the LORDE God: Beholde, I wil stretch out my hande ouer the Philistynes, and destroye the byn yre, and cause all the remnant off the castles to perishe. I greute vengeance wil I take vpon them, and punysh them: and that they maye knowe, howe that I am the LORDE, which haue avenged me off them.

The xxvij. Chap. Ho. lxxi.

IT happened, that in the xij. yeare, the first daye off the thirteenth, she worde of the LORD came vnto me, sayen-g thou sonne of man, because that Tyre hath spoken vpon Ierusalem: A ha, now I knowe the portes of the people be broken, and I haue destroyed my city full. Therefore sayeth y LORD God: Beholde I Tyre, I will vpon the, I will bringe a greete multitude off people agaynst y, & will breake the citye with his armes: & they shall breake the walles off Tyre, and cast downe hit downe: I will scrape the grounde frome her, and make her a bare stone: yee and the bygginge place, where the fishers honyrtaken netes by the sixtye. Then I haue spoken in sayeth the LORD God. The Word shall speake her: her bougheuen vpon the shall fall penh with the sword, & they shall be destroyed, howe that I am the LORD.

Behold, I will bringe hither Nabuchodonosor (which is the kynge off Babylon & a kynge off Egyptes) from the North, vpon Tyre, with his charrettes, & horsesmen and with a great multitude of people. They bougheders there at the house, shall be laye with y sword. And agaynst y, he shall make bulwokes & rampes vpon the aboute the: & lift vp his shield agaynst y. His shynge & bacelarma shall be put for thy walles, & wth his weapons heate becomee thy cownes. The bannys off his house shall cenn y, they shall be so many y walles shall shake at the noise off y horsesmen, charrettes & weapons: when he cometh to thy people, as men do in an open care. At the hoiffes off his horse feet, shall he make downe all thy stretes.

He shall laye thy people wth the sword, & breake downe the pilers off thy strenght. They shall make awaye thy riches, & speyke y macth off the. Thy walles shall they breake downe, & destroye thy houses off pleasure. Thy stones, thy tymber & foundations, shall they cast in the water. Then wil I bringe in the multitude off thy synners, & the noise off thy synners shall be heard, so that they shall nomore be. I will make a bulwoure off the, & a bygginge place for neten, and shall neuer be wadded agayne: For wil I y LORD have spoken in, sayeth the LORD God. Thus haue I spoken the LORD God. I haue spoken concerninge Tyre: The word shall be heard at the noise off thy fall, & at the crye off the slayne, y shall be marred with the. All synners off the sea shall come downe from thence: & shall saye: they shall laye a waye for their roades, and put off their offshy alachinge: The rich reman-ginge shall they be clothed, they shall sit vpon the grounde: they shall be ahyed at thy sword, and be wadded off the.

They shall mourne for the, and saye vnto the: I thou noble cite, y hast bene so greatly occupied off olde, thou that hast bene the strongest vpon the sea: wth thine inhabitants off whymull men stode in stare: howe are they now so wretchedly destroyed? I will be the kynge off thy fall: the inhabitants off the shall see, yee and the Itebene selus shall stonde in feare at thine ende. For thus sayeth the LORD God: when I made the a desolate cite, as other cities be, there no man dwell in, and when I bygginge the bepe vpon the, y great woodes maye couer the: Then wil I cast y: he downe vnto them, theye desende in so y pyere: into a people that hath bene lgedeed, and set the in a londe y is beneth, like the olde wilderness, with them which downe the their genues, so y nomall shall dwell more in the. And I wil make the so beno more in bone, in the lode off the kynge. I wil make an ende off the, & thou shalt be gone.

Though thou be sought for, yett shall thoue be founde for euermore, sayeth y LORD God.

The XXVII. Chapter.

The worde off the LORD came vnto me, sayen: D thou sonne off man, make a lamentable coplaunce vpon Tyre, & saye vnto Tyre, which is a poire off the sea, & occupieth with much people, and many Iles thus speaketh y LORD God: D Tyre thou hast sayde: what, I am a noble cite, thy borders are in the myddes off the sea, and thy buyders haue made the maruolous goodly. All y cables haue they made off Cyprus trees off the mount: Sene. Fro Libanos haue they take Cedre trees, to make the masts: & the Ores off Basen to make the compasses.

Thy buyders haue they made off rary, & off costly wood out off the Ile off Cethim. Thy saleman off whyte small noble wote out off the londe off Egypte, so haue vpon thy masts & thy hanginges off yallow sylke & purple, out off y Iles off Elissa. They off Sidon & Arad merchymasters, & the myfist in Tyre merchymasters. The closest and wys-est in Galil were they, that mented & stopped thy shippes.

All shippes off the sea with their synners occupied in their macth countries in the. The Perses, Lybians and Lybians were in thy-ne house, and helped the to fight: theye hanged vpon the shildes & helmetes with the, the faste feth thy beare.

The xxvii. Chap.

They off Arvad were much like hooff roude aboue thy wall, & were thy watchmen upon thy towne: these hanged up the shield: & were aboue thy wall, and made the maraudes goodly. Tharfo occupie with cloth in all manner of towne, in siluer, yon, yme and lead, and made thy mar-chaunce. Javan, Tibal and Metch were thy marchaunces, which brought che men, & ornamentes off metall for thy occupenge.
They off the house of Togarmas brought much as the yme off thy Mares, hoise, hoisler and milke. They off Dedan were thy marchaunces: and many other Iles that occupied with the, brought the muchees, elephas bones and paycockes for a present.
The Syrians occupied with the, because of thy byrres wolke, and increased thy marchaunces, with Smaragdes, with scarlet, much els worke, wth wythe lynnynge cleeth, much sylke and much Chusall.

Juda and the londe off Israel occupied with the, and brought into thy markettes, wheates, balme, hony, oyle & tracle. Damascus also a set marchaunces with the, in the be syne and byrres well: because thy occupenge was so grece, and thy wares so many. Dni, Javan, and Musul have brought into thy markettes, ynterby made, much Casia and Calanue, according to thyne occupenge. Dedan occupied with the, in say-crops, sitty wode and quiffhyme. Arabia & all the pynces off Cedar have occupied wth the, in shep, in ches and goates.

The marchaunces off Seba and Arma have occupied also with the, in all costly spices, in all precious stones and golde, which they brought into thy markettes. Saron, Chene and Eden, the marchaunces off Saba, Zifera and Chelmad, were all doers wth by now occupied with the: In costly sayment, off yallow sylke and nedle worke, (very precious, & tharfor pacce & boude together wth scaups) were in Cedre wode at the yme off y marchas. The shippes of Thar bear the in to the myddest off the see: so y thy wares, thy marchaunces, thy ryches, thy maynere, thy shippmasters, thy helpers, thy occupiers, thes brought the thynges necessary the me off wai: & they are in cheyee and all thy comons shall perishe in the myddest off the see, in the waye off thy sell. The sub-urges shall shake at the londe erie off thy shippmen. All wherry men, and all way-ners & so the see shall leape out of the wates, and set them felous upon the londe. Thy shal liff a pether voyce because off the, as the, the sea then gawest all people mough. The tynges off the earth hast thou made, & thow the mularube off thy wares, & occupenge: But now art thou a cast towne to the depe of the see, all thy ryche of peple is pershed with the. All they that walin the Iles are abashed at the, in all the tynges are astoyned, yet their faces have not unged eloure. The marchaunces of the seas woundre at the, in charchon art so ne brought to naught, & comest now to the.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The words of the LORDE come to me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, tell the prynce of Tyre: Thus sayeth the LORDE God: because thou hast a poudre and hast sayde: I am a God, I have my sere in the myddest off the see: I am a god: where as thou art but a man & not God: & restandest in thine owne chere, that thou art God: Beholde, then chymest thy self wth set then Damiel, that there is no fawne from y. With thy wysdome & thy wyldedunge, thou hast gotte the greates richyns, se, and gathered treasure of siluer & golde.
With thy greates wysdome and occupynge, hast thou increased thy power, and become of thy greates riches thy here is poudre.

Therefore thus saith yf LORDE God: So so much as thou hast liff up thine here, as though thou wost God: Beholde, I will re-ge enemies upon the, even the ryment of the & chet thes shal in aore out then thou was upon thy here and wysdome, and shal defile thy glory. They shal cast the downe to the pette, so that thou shalt be in the middest of the see, as they that besleme a shipp: then wilt saye the nent chet the chet say-y I am God: where as thou art but a man and not God, in the handes of them that se the. Dye thar chet, even as the man slede in the hilde of y enemies: for I have haue spoken in sayng the LORDE God.

The prophet Ezechiel.

Moreover, the wordes off the LORD came unto me, saying: Thou sonne off man, make an lamentable complaine ouer the kynge of Tyre, & tell him: Thus saith the LORD God: Thou art a scale of a helme, full off mynes & excellent beary. Thou hast bene in y pleasurable garde off Gods house: because with all manner of precious stones: rubie, Ruby, Topas, Chrysolite, Jacynth, Onyx, Jasper, Smaragde, Carbuncle, & zafire. Thy beauty & y holles y ben y mete for soules: in the way off creation. Thou art a fayre Cherub, stretched oute for to couer.

I haue set the vpon the holy mount off God: there hast thou bene, and walked amonge the fyre glisteringe stones. From the ryne off thy creation thou hast bene right excellent, till wylde brasse was founde in the.

Because off thy greace madechaundis, thy heare full off wylde ironesse, & thou hast offended. Therefore I will cast the from the mount off God: I will coueringe Cherubim with desolacye amonge the glisteringe stones. Thy base was proude in y fayre beary, & thou row thy haire: thou hast desired thy mynes. I will cast y downe to the grounde, & y in y sight off mynes. Thou hast defyled thy Sanctuare, & the greace wylde conser off thy ongracious occupyng. I will bringe a fyre from the myddel off thee, so consume the: and wil make thes off thee, in the sight off all the y lye vpon the. All they that haue bene a c quainted with the amonge the Cherubs, shal be affolshed at the: for thou art so cleane broughte nange, and comest no more vp.

And the wordes off the LORD came unto me, saying: Thou sonne off man, see thy face against Sibe, prophete vpon it, and speake. Thus saith the LORD God: Beholde a Sibe. I will vpon the, & get me honoure in the: that I maye be knowne, homethat I am y LORD: when I pynish the, & get me honoure in her. For I will sende pestilence & blood & shal bringe me her streets, so y those which be layn with the sword, shal lye counde aboue in the myddel off her: & they shal knowe that I am the LORD. She shal no more be a pryncinge house, & on huringe breere mee the house off Iseal, nor wyl the that be rounde aboue her and haue her: and they shal knowe that I am the LORD.

Thou sonne off the LORD God: when I ga the householde off Iseal together agayne, from the nacione amonge whom they be scaterd, then shal I be sanctified in the, in y sight off the Gentiles: & they shal dwell in the lye, & I gaue to my seruaut Jacob. They shal dwell safely therein, buyde houses, and plantes & ymgarde: & safely shal they dwell therein, when I haue pynished all the off the: that despyse them rounde abouen and then shal they knowe, y I am the LORD that God.

The XXX. Chapter.

At the 5. years, vpon the 5. daye off the 4. of the 11. month, the wordes off the LORD came unto me, saying: O thou sonne off man, see now thy face against Pharaos the kynge off Egypte, prophete agaynst him and agaynst the whole house off Egypte: Speake, and tell him, thus saith the LORD God: Beholde, o Pharaos the kynge off Egypte: I will vpon the, thou greace rebell fith, y lye in y waters: Thou y sayest the water is myne, I haue made it myself. I wil put an hole in thy chaunces, & hysge all the fish in thy waters vpon thy scales: after y I wil drawe the oute off thy waters, yee & all the fish off y waters that charge vpon thy scales.

I wil cast the oute pon the dryside with the fish off thy waters, so that thou shalt lye vpon the selde. Thou shalt not be gathered neraken vp, but shalt be meate for the beestes off the selde: & for the foules off the ayre: chare oil they which dwell in Egypte, maye knowe, that I am the LORD: because thou hast bene a staff off rebelle the house off Israel. When they take holde off y me they hysge thou biakest and pyndest them on euery syde, and yff they cleane vpon the, thou biakest, and huredest the remes off their bodies. Therefore, thou sayest the LORD God: beholde, I will bringe a swarde vpon the, and teete oute off the both man and beest. & the londe off Egypte shal be desolate and wast, & they shal knowe, that I am the LORD: Because I be sayest the water is myne, I my self haue made it. Beholde thes off, I wil vpon the, & vpon thy waters: I will make the londe off Egypte waste and desolate, from the conne off Syene unto the bawern off the Moyses londe: so that in xl. yeres there shall no fyre off man walke there, neither fyre off cattell goe there, neither shal it be inhabited. I wil make the londe off Egypte to be desolate amonge other waste countrees, and her cities as the wydes xl. yeres, amonge other wydes cities: And I wil sacre the Egyptians amonge the Gentiles and nacione.

Agayne, thus saith the LORD God: When the xl. yeres are expyied, I wil gather the Egyptians together agayne, out off the nacione, amonge whome they were scaterd, and wil bringe the posseders off Egypte agayne in to the londe off Parthanes: & reme na.

hath Tyne gaine number humer his boiste-ment, w^{ch} he grenter than anye y^e hath carren there. Therefore thus saith y^e LORDE God: behold, I will giue the lode of Israhel vnto Ty. And thus saith the LORDE God: Da-uid, y^e demayre take awaye all his iustiaice, to beth the cokerie, and spoyle his substance, to paye his boiste his wardenes word. I will giue him the lode of Israhel for his laboure, that he coker for me before Ty. Heche sa-

I will make an ende of the people of Egypt him, and the cruell eyntaynes of the heathen shal be broughte to deffoye the house.

Thou shalt see one thie friende set upon

And thus saith the LORD God: I will destroye the Idols, and bringe the multitude of Aegypte into bondage. There shall men be put in of Aegypte, and a fearfulnes will be in the heart of the Egyptians hence. As for Pharaohes, I will make it desolate, and I will destroye it. Alexandria will I punish, I will reare my wrath full indignation upon it, as is the strength of Aegypte. All the substance of Alexandria will I destroye, and I will be in Aegypte.

Sin shall be in greater busyneſſe. Al-

It be happend in the yere, upon the wode came unto me, I saye, I shold haue some of me, I will beate if ayme of plaine lynge of the eyre: and thus I shold not be layd up to be healed, neither that any pils layd upon, for to caufe it, as to make it stronge, as to be helpe a fowerde. Therefore I saye the LORDE Gode be helpe, I saye thus as if ayme of the eyre, thus I shold aye ayme, yette it be a broken me: and the fowerde an of a hie haue.

As for the Egyptians, I will scatter them amongst the heathen, & throw them in the deserts about. Agayne I will strength y^e ante de in his hōde: but I will breake pharaos me, so y^e he shal helde out for him pūnish like a drunken man.

The prophet Ezechiel.

The xxxij. Chap. Ho. lxxvij.

For I will stablish the kinge of Babylon and the kinge of Pharaos shall fall downe: and I will make them knowne, that I am the LORDE, which geue the kinge off Babylon my sentence in his hnde, that he maye dye for ever the lande of Egypte: and that they shall see the Egyptians amonge the heathen, and shewe them in fildes about the mayne shore, y I am the LORDE.

The XXXI. Chapter.

In that it happened in the xij. yere of first daye of the thirde Moneth, that the wordes of the LORDE came unto me, sayenge. Thou sonne of man, speake unto Pharaos the kinge of Egypte, say to all his people. Whom ye shoulde have great reverence. Wherfore as a Cedre tree upon the mounte of Libanus, which saye be rich in fowles, that he gave shadowe, and for ever very hye. His toppes reached unto the cloudes. The waters made him greete, and the depe feth him up an hye. And about the trees of him came there fowles of many kinds, he sent out his lide rivers unto all the side of the fildes. Therefore was he hyer than all the trees of the felde, and thow he mul titude of waters that he sent feth him, he oc cupied many and lowne beauiden. All fow les of the ayre made their nestes in his boughes, under his boughes abode all the bestes of fildes, under his shadowe dwelt all peo ple. Fowles and beauiden man he in his great nest, and in the lough of his boughes, for his rest: for he gave greates waters; no Ce dre tree might hyde him. In the pleasant gar den of God, there was no fyre tree like his boughes, the playn trees were not like fow les of him. All the trees in the garden off God might not be compared unto him in his bushes: so saye and goodly had I made him with multitude of his boughes: In Mo nach, y all the trees in the pleasant garden of God haden vnto. Therefore, thus saith the LORDE God. For so much as he hath lift up himselfe so hye, so I will clype his toppes in to the cloudes: and thus hee is proude in his highnesse. I will delayer him in to y boughes of y mayntie amonge y heathen, which shall roote him out. According to his riches will I cast him awaye, the enemies shall destroye him, the enemyes men of the heathen shall for ever burne his boughes: and his lide will in manye y in all vnto him be broken downe to the grounde about the lode. Then all the people of the lode shall go from his shadowe, and for sake him. When he is falle, all y fowles of y ayre shall flye upon him, and all wilde bestes of the felde shall go aboute amonge his boughes cheerfull that from hence forth, no tree in the water shall attayne his hyenesse, nor reach his toppes unto the cloudes, neither shall any tree off the water stonde so hye, as he hath do ne. For unto death shall they all be dede under the earth, and go downe to y grave, like other men.

Moreover, thus saith the LORDE God:
In the daye when he goeth downe to the grave, I will cause a lamentation to be ma de. I will cover the depe upon him, I will flaunt his fowles, and the greates waters shall be restrained. I shall cause Libanus to be sorrowfull for his sake, and all the trees off the iobbe shall be myne. I will make the hea then hate at the sounde of his fall, when I cast him downe to hell, with them y disce ndem to the pyre. All the trees of Libanus, w all the chosen and bestes of Libanus, we and all they that are placed upon the wa ters, shall mourne with him also in the lower habitation. For they shall go downe to hell w him, unto the that he slayn with the swea re, which dwelt a fore under the shadowe of his nest amonge the heathen. To whom shall thou be likened, that art so glorious & grea te, amonge the trees off Eden? For art thou cast downe under y earth amonge the trees off Eden? where thou must lie amonge the uncircumcised, with them that he slayn w the swea. Euen thus is in the word Pharaos all his people, saith the LORDE God.

The XXXII. Chapter.

In the xij. yere, the first daye of the xij. Moneth, the wordes of the LORDE came unto me, sayenge. Thou sonne of man, take up a lamentation vnto Pharaos the kinge of Egypte, & saye vnto him. Thou art reputed as a Lyon of the heathen, & as a whilfish in the ste. Thou castest y waters aboute the, thou troublest the waters w thy fete, and stampst in their fowles. Thus sa ith the LORDE God: I will speake myner o ver y, namely, a greates multitude of people: they shall byrme the in my yere, for I will cast the vnto the lide, and let the lide vnto the felde, that all the fowles of the ayre maye flye vnto the: I will geue all the bestes of the fel de y enough off the. They shall wll I cast vnto the hilles, and fill the valleyes with thy hyenesse. I will water the lode with the abundance off thy lode: vnto the most tayne, & y valleyes shall be full off the.

When they are put out, I will cover the heaven, and make his starres byrme. I will spede a clowde ouer the Sonne, and the Moo ne shall not geue her light. All the highest of heauen will putt out aueche, and bin ge harden vpon theyr clouds, surely I LOU DE GOD: And trouble the horses of many people, when I bringe thy destruction and the children and countesse, whom they knowe not. See I will make many peo ple with their Engines as they saye that they will, that they haue that floride vp, wher I shall make their faces. Surely shall they be astonied, euen as in him self, as I ha ue said before.

So thus saith the LORD God: when I of Zed house ferre ad shall come: upon I, reath I succoure of the worshipers will I my rebeate thy people. All they that be my re: might the Gentiles, shall assest the pre-re pompe of the temple, and bringe downe all the people. All the reare all of the temple Ierusalem, that they shall come to morrow the water: so that they shall see the water the clowes, shall see them cry more. Then will I make the waters cleare, and cause the flowe to runne like oyle, sayth the LORD God: when I make the londe of the temple to be late and rechea I come with all that is therein, shall laye to waste: and rebe I will all the which dwell therein: shall be they more more, that I am the LORD. Who is the more myne, that he be the more off the Gentiles shall make: hee a sower and lamenter: shall they take up, upon the temple and all her people, sayth the LORD God.

In the xij. year, the xij. daye of the 1170. next, came the wonder off the CROWE in some sayng: That heuene of aua. That vs a lamentacion vpon the people of Egipt, and cast them downe, yea ad egiptiagine people of the earth also, such wch they the ad will benche and with them that goe downe to the quare. Downe he saye (so uerthout) and laye the wch the vn at cummald. A michehoj that be the nort the swidars, shal they lye. The swidars in grum alady. he shal ben nort a forth and all his people. The miche ho moches and his helpe, yf ge ge downe and lye miche the vn cum mald and with them that be laye with yf sweor be shal sprate him out of the hell.

As he is there also with his company, ad their graues rounde aboute, which were slayne ad fell all with the sword, whose graues he begetteth in the lower pyete. His cemes are buried rounde aboute his graunt: allege the wounde in his flayme with the sword, which men: a face tyme he ouer the face into y londe eff' a'ch'yu' m'g'e.

There is Ham also with all his people and their graues round about: wher all beinge requied and flayne with swords, are gone downe into the under the earth, which neuertheles flayne broughte ferre in ea the lande of Lyttle: for the which they beate off me, with the other that be gone downe to asie.

Their buryall is giuen them and all the ie people amonge christ that be slain. The graues are rounde houses all them, beple on circumcised, and with them that be without the lawe: for seeinge that they was past they made the lonbe off the lawe as they sayed, they must now beate the thaine, with christ that goe to come to the the. And soe amonge them, that be same.

There is in the schayss and Tubal, among it people, and their grante rounde about.
These all are among the uncircuised, as them that beslaye with the sworde, how is a four tyme they make the londe off thair inuaunce a frayd.

Shall we not they then lye also among wretches, and vicariously die; which which wth their true penes are gone down hell: whose souls bee are layd under the heavens, whose wills bee set upon the new? because that as wretches, they haue bought the curse in to y^e 100^e of y^e living among the vicarified; shall thou be de-torced, and sleepe with them, that passe thou the fireward.

There is the lode off Edom which he lay-ges and pynnes also, which we then shal laye by them that were slayne with swords, yee amongst the unarmourde, and them which are gone downe to depythe. Moreover, there be all the pyres of the north, with all the Syrians, which are gone downe to the flayne.

With their flutes and stringed instruments and confusion, and by their voices and, among those that be flayed with the sins: and bears their name shame, with them that be gone down to y^e pyres. And when Pharaoh seeth this, he shall be confounded over all his people, that is flayed with the sinners: both Pharaoh and all his doers. saith y^e LORD God. For I haue gentlenesse reint in thee of the saying. And Pharaoh all his people shall be amazed at the wonder effe, and among them that be flayed with the sinners, saith the LORD God.

Agayne, the worde off the LORDE come vnto me, ſo ſainge: Thou ſomme off man ſpeake to the childre of chyped pis, and call them: When I ſende a ſwearde vpon a lande, yf the people off the lande ca-ſe a man off their countrie, and ſee him to be their machynman: yf ſome man ſay he ſeeth the ſwearde come vpon the lande: ſhall blame the trumpet, and blame the people.

Aff a man now heare the noyſe off the trumpet will not be warned, nnde he ſwearde come ad take him awaye: his bloude ſhall be aſ his owne heade: ſo he herbe the ſou-de of the trumpet, and wolde not take hebe, the ſwe his bloude be vpon him. Dot yff he will eſcape mornyng, he ſhal ſaue his liſt.
Agayne, yf the machynman ſe the ſwearde come, and ſee he is not with the trumpet, ſo yf the people is not warned: yff the ſwearde come then, and take eny man from amonge the, the ſame ſhall be taken a waye in his owne ſinne, but his bloude will I requyre off the machynman done.

And now (O thou ſonne off man) I haue made thee a watchman vnto the houſe off Iſrael: where as thou heareſt eny thinge out of my mouth, thou mayeſt warne them on my behalf. If I ſaye vnto the wicked: thou ſhalt dye, thou ſhalt ſurely dye: and thou gaueſt him not warninge, that he maye bewarne off his vngodly waye: then ſhall the wicked dye in his owne ſinne, but his blou-de will I requyre off thy bonde. Twaethiles yf thou warne the wicked off his waye, to come from it, where as he yet wil not be turned from it: then ſhal he dye becauſe off his ſinne, but thou haſt deliuered thy ſoule.

Therefor (O thou ſonne off man) ſpeake vnto the houſe off Iſrael. Ye ſaye thus: Our reſſonnes and ſynnes lye vpon vs, and we be corrupte in them: how ſhalbe we then be reſtored vnto a liſe? Tell them: So truly as I liue (ſaith the LORDE God) I haue no plea-ſure in the death off the wicked, but moche rather that the wicked turne from his waye and liue. Turne you, turne you from yo^r vngodly wayes, ye off the houſe off Iſrael.
O wherfore wilt ye dye?

Thou ſonne off man, tell the childre off thy people: The righteouſneſſe off the righteous ſhall not ſaue him, when ſo euer he turned awaye vnto fauſtfullie. Agayne, the wi-ckedneſſe off the wicked ſhall not hurte him, when ſo euer he connecteth from his vngod-linneſſe.

And yf righteouſneſſe off the righteouſ ſhal not ſaue his liſe, when ſo euer he ſyn-ned. If I ſaye vnto the righteouſ, that he ſhall ſurely lye, and ſo he truſt to his owne righteouſneſſe, and do ſynne: then ſhall his righteouſneſſe be nomore thought vpon, but in the wickedneſſe that he hath done, he ſhall dye.

Agayne, yff I ſaye to the wicked: thou ſhalt ſurely dye: and ſo he turne fro his ſyn-ne, and do the thinge that is lawfull and righte: In ſo moche that he ſome wickednes getteth the pledge agayne, reſtoreth that he had taken a waye by robberie, woulde in the chauncementee off liſe, and doeth no wi-
ge:

Then ſhall he ſurely lye, and not dye.
Yet the ſynne that he had done, ſhalbe be thought vpon: ſo in ſo moche as he doeth now the thinge that is lawfull and righte, he ſhall lye. And yet the childre off thy people ſo ye: Tuſt, the waye off the LORDE is not righte, where as their owne waye is rather vngate.

When the righteouſ, turned from his righteouſneſſe, and doeth the thinge that is wicked, he ſhall dye therfore. But yf the wicked turne from his wickedneſſe, doinge the thinge that is lawfull and righte, he ſhall lyue therfore. Ye ſaye: he maye off I-ORDE is not equal. O ye houſe off Iſrael, I wil indgemente one of you a ſer his wayes.

In the xii. yeare, the v. daye off the xii. mo-neth off oure captynye, it happened, that one which was fled out of Ieruſalem, came vnto me, and ſayde: I cite to be deſtroyed. Now the hande off the LORDE had bene vpon me the euenyng, afore this man (which man efcaped) came vnto me, and had opened my mouth, vntill the mornyng that he came to me: ſee he opened my mouth, ſo yf I was nomore demne. Then came the morie off yf LORDE vnto me, and ſayde: Thou ſonne off man, theſe that dwell in the waſted lande off Iſrael, ſaye: Abraham was but one man, ad he had the lande in poſſeſſion: now are we many, and the lande in geuen us to poſſeſſe alſo.
And thou ſaieſt them: Thou ſaieſt the LORDE: In the bloude haue ye eaten, youre eyes haue y^e liſt vnto Iſrael, and haue the bloude: ſhal yet then haue the lande in poſſeſſion?

Deleate vpon youre ſwearthes, ye worke a bberminations, every one deſtroyeth his neighbours wife: and ſhal ye then poſſeſſe the lan-de? Saye thou theſe wordes vnto the: Thou ſaieſt the LORDE God: An truly as I liue, all yet that dwell in this wildeſſe, ſhall be ſlayne wth the ſwearde: where ſo is vpon the felde, will I geue vnto thei bestes to be deuoured: those that be in stronge holden and donnes, shall bye off the pestilence. For I will make: yclonde desolate and waste, and y pe off his strength shall come to an ende. The mountaynes in Israel shal be so waste that no man shall traueyle theryn.

Eze. 39 c
Then shall they leane to knowe, that I am the LORDE, when I make the lorde waste and desolate, because off all their abhominacions, that they haue wrought. And thou sonne off man, the children off thy people yf talke off the, by the wallen in in the bones off their houses, sayenge one to another: come, let vs heare, what worde is gone forth from the LORDE. Then come vnto the, a free y man of a greates people: yet my people yet downe before the, and heare thy wordes, but they do not theare thee: For in their mouthes they speake thynselues, as though they were feruents, but their hearte hath a free their owne cownseil. And as a valse y heart as frece tume, ad is pleasant to synge, so shalt thou be vnto the: thy wordes shal they heare, but they will not do theare after. Why thus cometh to passe (so lo, it cometh in dede) when I al the; knowe, that there hath bene n prophete amonge them.

The xxxiiii. Chapter.

Unto the worde off the LORDE came vnto me, sayinge. Thou sonne off man, prophete y agaynst the shepherdes off Israel, prophete y, and speake vnto them: Thus saith the LORDE God: Wo be vnto the shepherdes off Israel, that feede my felnes. Whilbe not the shepherdes sode y flocekes?

Eze. 41 c
Ye haue eaten up the fatte, ye haue clothed you with the woll: the best felde haue ye slayne, but y flocke haue ye not nourished: The weak haue yene holden vp, the sick haue ye not healed: the broken haue ye not bounde eger the, the ouercast haue ye not brought agayne: y loss haue ye not sought, but chauntyly and cruelly haue ye ruled the. Thus see they (each here and there without a shepherde: yet all the brastee off the felde becomen clem, and the yge as traye.

My shepe go wanderinge vpon all mooraynes and vpon every hye hill, yet they be starved aboue in all feldes, and there is no man, that careth for them, or seeketh in fer them.

Eze. 42 c
Therefore o ye shepherdes heare the worde off the LORDE. Thus saith the LORDE God: Truly so I saye, for so much as ye shepe are robbed, and deuoured off all the wyde bestes off the filde, hauinge no shepherdes: and seuerge harme shepherdes: no regard off my shepe, but see that I use only, and no my shepe. Therefore haue I, worde off the LORDE, o ye shepherdes: Thus saith the LORDE God: Beholde, I myself will be ponth the shepherdes, and requyre my shepe from their donnes, and make the and se from seduyngs of my shepe: yet the sheperdes shall see them selues nemore. I will deliuer my shepe out off their mouthes so that they shall not deuoure them the shepe.

For thus saith the LORDE God: Beholde, I will loke to my shepe myself, and visit them. Likens a shepherde amonge the fildes, seeth a free the sheperdes one (each aboue, even so will I see a free my shepe, and pether them together one off all place, where they haue bene scattered in the cloudy and hard daye. I will bringe them out from all people, and gather them to gather out of all lentes. I will bringe the in to their owne lende, and feede them vpon the mountaynes off Israel, by the yncens, and in all the places of the countrey. I will feede them in right good pastures, and vpon the hie mountaynes off Israel shall there felde be. There shall be in a good felde, ad in n fat pasture shall they fede: euen vpon the mountaynes off Israel.

I will feede my shepe myself, and bringe them to their rest, sayeth the LORDE God. Soch as be lost, will I see: soch as go astray, and I bringe agayne: soch as be wandring, will I bringe vnto: soch as be waste, will I make stronge: soch as be fat and well, the shepe, the shepe will I preferre, and feede them with y things that is ioufull. And so for you (my shepe) sayeth the LORDE God: I will put a difference amonge the shepe, amonge the whichen ad the goace. Wo is ne yough for you, to see up the good pasture, but ye must treade downe the residue of your pasture: wo your fare al daye. Wo is ne yough for you to brynke cleare water, but ye must trouble the residue also with your feet.

Thus my shepe must be thyme to take y thinge, that ye haue troden downe with y feet, and to brynke the, that ye with your feet haue defiled.

Therefore, thus saith the LORDE God vnto them: Beholde, I will smite the fat shepe from the leane: for so much as ye haue slayn the weak shepe as y fildes (sheperdes, and more vpon them with you:

The prophet Ezechiel.

herde, I long will ye haue utterly scattered them aboute. I wil helpe my shepe, so y they shal nomie be spoiled: yet I wil rescue one shepe from another. I wil raise up into them one only shepherde: even my seruante David, he shal feede the, and be shal be their shepherde. I the LORD will be their God, and my seruante David shal be their prince: thus I the LORD have spoken it.

Moreover, I wil make a covenant of peace among them, and breake all euell beasts out of the land: so that they maye dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleepe in the weddes.
Good fortune & prosperitee wil I geue them, and into all that be rounde aboute my hill.
A prosperous shewe and a grene hill I shal showe in due season, that the trees in the wood maye bringe forth their frutes, & y ground be increase. They shal be safe in their lan-de, and shal knowe, that I am the LORD, which haue breke their yoke, and deliuered them out of the bonden of thofe, that helde them in subiectiōe.

They shal nomie be spoiled of the hashon, ne deuoured with the beasts of the lēd: but safely shal they dwell, & no man shal fayrethin I now for up an excellent place for them, so y they shal suffre no more hurt in the land, ne be the reioyce of y heuenly armye. Thus shal they vnderstonde, that I the LORD their God am w them, & y they turn the house of Iherusalem my people, saith the LORD God. Ye men are my fleshe, ye are the shepe of my pasture: and I am your God, saith the LORD God.

The XXXV. Chapter.

Moreover, the worde of the LORD came unto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, turn thy face toward the mount Seir, prophesy upon it, & saye vnto it: Thus saith the LORD God: Behold, o thou mount Seir, I will vpon the, I will teache myne yddols out the, yet wil I be slow w I make the. Thy cities and y bui-ldinge, & thou shalt lye vnder: that thou mayst knowe, howe that I am the LORD.
So forsooke thou beaust an olde enemye against the children of Israel, & with a cruel booke hast made them afraid, wherby as they were troubled & punished for their synne: Therefore, as truly as I liue, saith y LORD God, I wil prepare the vnto bloude, ne bloude shal folowe vpon the: for thou layest waste for bloude: for thou shalt bloude possesse the. Thus wil I make the mount Seir desolate & wast, and bringe to passe, that there shall no man go thither, ne come from thence. His mountaynes wil I fill w his slayne men: thy hills, dales and valleys shal be full of them, that are slayne with y inward. I wil make the a perpetuall waste nesse, so that no man shal dwell in thy cities: y yet maye knowe, howe y I am the LORD.

And because thou hast sayde: wher, both these nations and both the landes must be myne, & I wil haue them in possession, wher-as is the LORD was there. Therefore, thus saith the LORD God: As truly as I liue, I will haue the according to thy wrath and geloosy, like as thou hast dealt cruelly with the: that I maye be knowne among them, howe I haue punished the. Now and that thou shalt knowe yet be sure that I the LORD haue herbe all thy despitfull wordes, which thou hast spoke against the mountaynes of Israel, sayinge: Lo, they are made wast, and geuen vnto yewe.

Thus with your mouthes ye haue made your boote against me, yet I multiplied your reproche vnto yewe against me, which I haue herbe altogether. Where vnto, thus saith y LORD God: when the whole waste is wasteth, then wil I make the wast. And like as thou I nowd me Seir wast glad, because the heretage of the house of Israel was destroyed: euen so wil I do vnto the alfo, that thou and whole Seir shall be destroyed, & knowe, that I am the LORD.

The XXXVI. Chapter.

In forme of man, prophesie vpon the mountaynes of Israel, & spake heare the worde of the LORD: Ye mountaynes of Israel: Because ye enemye hath sayde vpon you: A ha, y his euell sayinge place are now become ours: prophesy therefore, & speake: thus saith y LORD God: Geinge ye be raised & erect vnto us on every syde, & become a possession vnto y residue of y Gentes, which haue brought you in comēd mauch: ye were an euill name among y people. Therfore, heare the worde of the LORD God, o ye mountaynes of Israel: Thus saith the LORD God vnto the mountaynes and hills, valley & dales, & the voyde wilderness & desolate places, which are spoiled, and habundant synne on every syde, among the residue of the Gentes: Heare thus saith the LORD God:
I haue lye of myr geloosy haue I taken a burge, against the residue of the Gentes, and against all Edom: which haue calked my lēd vnto the synne for a possession much alfo reioysed in the whole heretage of a despitful synne, to wast it, and to spoyle it.

D Prophecy therefore upon the sonde of Israel, speaks unto y^e mountaynes and hilles, to valleys and dales, thus saith the LORD God: Ezechiel, thou hast Iowryed in my lowly and terrible wach: for so much as ye have suffered repaie of the heiden, therefore thus saith the LORD God: I have freyne, that the Gentiles which lyt aboute you, shal beare youre confusion themselues. And as for you (o mountaynes of Israel) ye shall shute out youre dauidyes, and bring forth ye are frute to my people of Israel, for it is harde by, that it wil come.

Ezechiel, I come vnto you, and vnto you will I turne me, that ye maye be trylled and sowne. I wil sende you moche people, which shal be all of the house of Israel: the cities shal be inhabited, and y^e decayed places shal be repayed againe. I wil multiplye you with moche people and cattell, which shal increase & bringe frute. I wil restore y^e old to youre olde estate, and shewe you more furours the way ye had before: whereby ye shal knowe. I am the LORD. See people will I sende vnto you: (o my people of Israel) which shal haue the in possession, and then shal be their inheritance, so that then shal nomore be

C reachen them. Agayne, thus saith the LORD God: for so much as they saye vnto you: thou art an eater vp of men, and a waister of thy people: therefore thou shalt eate no man, neither destroye thy people any more, saith the LORD God. And I wil not suffre the, forso here thine owne confusion amonge the Gentiles from hence forth. Then shal not beare the reproche of the nations, ne cast any thinge owne people anymore, saith the LORD God.

Moreover, the worde of the LORD came vnto me, sayinge: O thou sonne of man, when the house of Israel dwelt upon their owne ground, they beyled them selues with their owne wayes & imaginations: so that in my sight their waye was like the wilkenesse of a menstruous woman. Wherefore I poured my wrath full displeasure vpon them, because of the bloud that they had shed in the land, & because of their idols, wherewith they had beyled them selues. I scattered them also amonge the heiden, so that they were strewned aboute in the lodes. And bringe to their waye & after they came in in ciuities, so dyd I punishe them.

D Now when they were gone vnto the heiden, and come in amonge them, they dishonoured my holy name: so that it was a shame of them: for the people of God, & must go out of their owne sonde: Then saye I my holy name, which y^e house of Israel hath dishonoured amonge the Gentiles, when they came. Therefore tell y^e house of Israel: Thus saith the LORD God: I doo this for y^e sakes (O house of Israel) that my holy names sake, which y^e heiden dishonoured, I will restore, when ye come to them. Therefore, I wil halowe my greuous name agayne, which amonge the Gentiles is euill spoken: for ye your selues haue dishonoured it amonge them. And the Gentiles shal knowe, that I am the LORD, when I am broughte vnto before their eyes, saith the LORD God.

As for you, I wil take you from amonge the heiden, and gather you together out of all countrees, and bringe you agayne vnto youre owne sonde. Then will I possesse you: waters vpon you, & ye shal be ciuities: yea, all your wilkenesse and from all ye shal be. I cleanse you. A new heart also wil I geue you, and a new spirite wil I put in you: so that thou shalt saye, I wil take awaye your body, and geue you a fleshy body, I wil geue you my spirit amonge you, so that ye shal make in my commandmentes, & kepe my lawes, and to fulfill them.

And so ye shall dwell in the land, that I gaue to y^e forefathers, & ye shal be my people, and I wil be youre God. I wil bringe you out of all your wilkenesse, I wil call forth come, and wil increase it, and willesse ye be no longer. I will multiplye the fruite of the trees, and y^e increase of the fildes: so that ye shal beare no more reproche of heiden amonge the heiden. Then shal ye make y^e owne wilkenesse waye, and youre imaginations, which were not good: so that ye shal take displeasure at youre owne selues, by the sate of your synnes and a byrennes.

But I wil not do this for youre sake: (saith the LORD God) be ye sure of it. Therefore ye house of Israel, be ashamed of your synnes. Moreover, thus saith the LORD God: wheremyne as I shal chide you from all youre offences, then will I make the ciuitie to be occupied agayne, and wil repaie the place that be decayed. The desolateland shal be builded agayne, which afore tyme laye wast, in the sight of all them, that dwelt. Then shal it be sayde: This wast lode is come like a garden of pleasure, and the wyde, desolate and brokedowne ciuities are stronge, and fenced agayne. And then shall the heiden that ye sayde: we haue sene the sonne of Israel, shall knowe, that I am the LORD, which paye the man broken downe, and place agayne, that was made waste. When I the LORDE haue spoken it, it will be in it be.

Thus saith the LORDE God: I will yet make the waste a gayne of y^e house of Israel, ye shall see it: I shall increase them as a flocke of men. Like as the holy flocke and the flocke of Jerusalem are in the day of solennitie saith: so shall also be made waste cities be filled with flockes of men: and they shall know that I am the LORDE.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

Ezechiel the sonne of Ibi the LORDE came open me, & caried me out in the space of the LORDE, & let me downe in a playne field, that was full of bones, & he led me out betweene by them, & behelde, the bones that lay upon the side, were very many, & marvellous bye also. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of man: these be the bones of the house of Israel: I shew thee. O LORDE God, thou knowest. And he sayde vnto me: Praise thy God upon these bones, & speake vnto them: He dyed bones, heare the worde of the LORDE. Ezechiel sayeth the LORDE God vnto these bones: Beholde, I will put breath into you, & they shall liue: I will giue you bones, & make flesh growe vpon you, & shall you once more say ynn: & so gaue you breath, that ye maye liue, and knowe, that I am the LORDE.

So I prophesied, as he had commaunded me. And as I was prophesyinge, there came a noise, and a gratinge of shels, so that the beneuen came vnto me another. I knewe he had seld, beholde, they had synners, and sighes vpon them: and aboute they were gathered with synners, but there was no breath in them. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of man, prophesie thou wordes: he wrote: prophesie, and speake the wynde: Thus saith the LORDE God: Come (o thou sonne of man) from the sonne wordes, & worde o pon the flayn, that they in aye be restored to liue. So I prophesied, as he had commaunded me: Then came the brethe vnto them, and they reuenede liue, and stood up vpon their fetters, and were as newe men.

After, he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel. Beholde, they saye: our bones are dried up, our hope is gone, we are cleane cut of. These are prophesies thou, & speake vnto them. Thus saith the LORDE God: Beholde, I will open youre graues (o my people, & take you out of youre sepulchres, & bringe you into the lande of Israel agayne. So shall ye knowe that I am the LORDE, when I open your graues, & bringe you out of them. My spice also will I put in you, & ye shall liue: I will see you agayne in youre owne lande, and ye shall knowe, that I am the LORDE, which haue sayde it, and fulfill it in me.

The wordes of the LORDE came vnto me, sayenge: Thou sonne of man, take a stick and write vpon it: Dnto Iuda & to the children of Israel his companyens. Then take another stick, and write vpon it: Dnto Ioseph the stick of Ephraim, and so all the householdes of Israel his companyens. And thou take both these together in thine bon-de, so shall there be one sticke thereof. I wyl the child of thy people saye vnto the: why then are thou so, what thou meanest by these? Then geue them this answer: Thus saith the LORDE God: Beholde, I will take the stick of Ioseph, which is in the bonde of Ephraim, and of the tribes of Israel his felowes, and wil put them to the stick of Iuda, & make them one stick, and they shall be one in my hande. And the two stickes wher re vpon thou wastest, shall thou haue in thine hande, that they maye be, and shall saye vnto them:

Thus saith the LORDE God: beholde, I wil call a name vnto the children of Israel from amonge the heathen, vnto whom they be gone, and wil gather them together out of euery place, and bringe them agayne in to their owne lande: yee I wil make one people of them, of Iuda, vpon the mountaynes of Israel, and they shall haue but one kinge. They shall be two peoples from henceforth, nether be they in euerye kingdome: they shall also beyle the schewen memoie with their abominations, Idols and all their wickeddoinges. I wil helpe the out of all their dwelllinge places, wher they haue synned: I wil so chasten them, that they shall be my people, and I their God.

Dauid my seruante shall be their kinge, & they all shall haue one shepheard one. They shall walke in my lawes, and my commaundementes shall they beyle & fulfill. I shall dwell in the lande, that I gaue vnto Iudah in y^e firmament, where as your fathers also haue dwelt. Ye shall in the same lande shall they, their children, & their childrens children dwell for euermore: and my seruante Dauid shall be their euershalme prince. Moreover,
I will make a bonde of peace with them, which I wil be vnto them an euershalme conauant. I wil sette the also, and multiplie them, my Sanctuary will I be amonge the for euermore.

The prophet Ezechiel.

My dwellings shall be of them, yet I will be their God, & they shall be my people. Thus the Lord hath also said by one, that I the LORD am y^e hol y maker of Israel: wh^o my Sanctuaries shall be amonge them for ever more.

The XXCVIII. Chapter.

When the wordes of the LORDE came vnto me, I panted: & then some of myn, came neyther by cause nor by Gog in the landes of Magog, which is the deere pryncesse of the East and Canals puffed against him, and saye: Thus saith the LORDE God of Gods: thou shalt pryncesse of the East and Canals holde, I will vnto thee, and will turne thee aboute, and put a bypocrytie chace: I will bringe the forth and all in the host, both host & boyme, which be all weaned of the best fashion: a greates people, that handle aliother speares, shyldes, and fencer: the pryncesse, & Isurians and with them the Lydians, which all beare shyldes and helmes: Gomer, and all his booyes: the house of Thegoms: yee and of the north quarters, and all his booyes, yee and mech people with the.

Therefore prepare thee, for thy self in a way with all thy people, that are come vnto thee, by hearme, and be thou their defence. A few may daye thou shalt be edified, and in the latter yeares thou shalt come in to the libe, that hath bene destroyed with the firebrands, I now in replemish the againe wth mynse people vpon the mountaynes of Zifud, which haue longelyen wast. For they be brought out of the nation, I dwell all safe. Thou shalt come vp lke a stormy warre, to ouer the lde, and as it were a barde close toerch much all thine choofse, and a greates multitude of people much the.

Moouer, thus saith the LORDE God:
As the same time shal many thynges come in eery mynde, so that thou shalt cymagyn my selfe, and saye: I wil go to yonder place now, I haue theyr treasur, and I dwell so fast, for they dwell all with one euill will, they haue neither barres nor bones, so spoyle thym, to robbe the, so I saye hence upon this I am inhabited with thessels: a galynt that people, y^e gathered together from among the Gentys, which haue gotten cattell and good, and dwell in the mydd of the land.
Thou shalt Sabab and Deban and the mar-shalles of Ebasin wth all their Woutheres, saye vnto the: Thou comest to robbe: hast thou gathered thy people together, because thou wilt spoyle: to take synner and gode: to carry away cattell and good: and to bane a great pray?

The xxix. Chap.

Therefore, o thou forme of man, thou art prophecie, and saye vnto Gog: thus saith the LORD GOD: In that daye thou shalt knowe, that my people of Israel dwelle in safety, and shall come from thy place, out of north partes: thou and many people with the, which ryde vpon horses, wherof there is a great multitude, and an innumerable armie: yet shall come vpon my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the face. Thus saith the LORD GOD: I will make thee pass in the latter dayes: I will haue thee vnto my temple, that the heathen maye knowe me, when I give me honour vnto thee: I will be for thee an eye.

Thus saith the LORD God: I remember, of whom I have spoken aforesaid, in my servants and in prophets of Israel, who prophesied in those days 20 years, that I should bring thee upon them. It is so now, when God cometh up in wrath against Israel, I saith the LORD God, Israel indignat go forth in my wrath. I am angry with you and have displeased I have done, that there shall be a great trouble in the day of Israel as yet hath come. The day shall be in the day, the souls of the day, the hour of the soul, and all the men of are upon earth shall tremble for fear of me.

The hills all of them be carried up upon me, the stayers of stone shall fall, and all fleshly strength to the grange. And all I sweare vpon them in all my mowment, saith the LORD God: so that cattymine sweare shall be vpon another. With peccie and bloude stone I purrify him: floure ye and biale floure, frye and bymme. I came to raine vpon him and all his wyfe and vpon all that greete people with him. Thus saith the magnific red and knowne amonge the shepherde they may be sure. I am of LORD.

Ther he caued me, and beholde, there was a man, whose similitude was like brass, which had a shafte of flay in his hande, and a mecerodde also. He stode in the dore, & sayde vnto me: march thou well with thine eyes, herken to much thine eares, and fasten it in thine heart, wharso ever I shal say vnto the, for to the intent that they might be shewed vnto the, thou shalt bring he hit her. And whar so ever thou shalt say, thou shalt certifye the house of Israel therof.

Beholde, there was a wall on the east syde counter about the house: the mecerodde that he had in his hande, was six cubites longe & a spaine. So he measured the breadth of the bulwarge, which was a mecerodde, and the height also a mecerodde. Then came he vnto the east dore, and wente up the staires, & was sure the postes of the dore were six. There was also a mecerodde the height of the dore, the chambers were six cubites. The height of the dore within the house was a mecerodde. He measured also the height of the ynnner dore, which contained a mecerodde. He measured the height of the dore, which contained a mecerodde, and his pilers were cubites, and this entire stood inward.

The chambers of the dore castward, were thre on euery syde: white brede and longe. The pilers also that stode of both the sydes, were of one measure. After this, he measured the width of the dore: which was five cubites, & the breadth of the dore six cubites. The edge before the chambers was one cubite h. & vnto both the sydes, & the chambers six cubites wide of either syde. He measured of the dore from the rygge of one chamber to another, whose width was five cubites, & one dore stood agayne another. He made pilers also for the chambers, his round about the court dore. For the chambers were thre on the first entree of the ynnner dore, were six cubites. The chambers on either piler within, could be aboute vnto of den, had six wyndowes: So had the four entrees also, whose wyndowes were round aboute suchan. And vpon the pilers there stode date trees.

Then brought he me to the four court, where were thre chambers & paved workes, made in of four court round aboute: the chambers upon one paue workes. Now the paved workes were a lge cheyre the dore, and that was the lower paved workes. After this, he measured of the dore from the lower dore, vnto the ynnner court of the one syde, which had an hundred cubites vpon the east & the west parte. And the dore in the ynnner court was toward the north, the chambers that he lge ch and breadth: his the chambers on either syde, with his pilers & four court which had euen the measure of the first one. His height was six cubites. The height of the chambers: his wyndowes & poyches were date trees, had euen like measure as the first dore: the east & west were vnto the staires go up vnto, & there poyches before them. The height of the ynnner court was six cubites, over a gage the dore, that was toward the north east. From one dore to another, there was an C cubites.

After this, he brought me to the north dore, where there stode a dore toward the staires, whose piler and poyches were measured, as the first measure, & with that piler there had wyndowes round aboute the first wyndowes. The height was six cubites, & the poyches were to go up vnto the staires. He stode before him, with his pilers on either syde. And the dore of the ynnner court stode toward the south. He measured from one dore to another, six cubites. So he brought me into the ynnner court, the way the dore of the south, which he measured, & he had the measure sayde. In like manner, the chambers, piler and four entrees, had euen the first measure also. And he had with his poyches were aboute, wyndowes of six cubites h. & the poyches round about were five cubites longe, and v cubites h. and his poyches were vnto of staires: vnto upon his pilers there were date trees, and with staires to go up vpon.

He brought me also to the ynnner court vnto the east syde, and he measured the dore, according to the first measure as he sayde. His chambers, piler and poyches had an hundred cubites, as the first had: & with his piler he had wyndowes round aboute. The height was six cubites, & the poyches were to go up vnto the staires. The piler also had date trees on either syde, and with staires to go up vpon. And he brought me to the north dore, and measured it, which also had the first measure. His chambers, piler and poyches had wyndowes round aboute: whose height was six cubites, and the breadth six. His piler stode toward the ynnner court, and upon the piler were date trees, and with staires to go up vpon. The dore stode a chamber also, whose measure was the dore piler, and the height was six cubites.

The prophet Ezechiel.

tion. The table was of wodde, the cubyges hie and two cubyes longer; his couners, the length and the wallee were of wodde.
And he sayde unto me: This is the entrie of that ffonte before the LORDE. The com-ple and the helieth of all bad ether of them two trees, and every doue had two little wickes which were folden in one upon another, on every fynde two. And upon the doores of the temple there were made thei doores and dorecres, like as upon the wallee round a gacate shilde halfe of wodde was bi-fonon the one fynde of the pouche. And bi the fynde of the wallee of the pouche, there were made depe wyndowes and dorecres, having beames and halves, like as the house had.

The XLO Chapter. ⁶

Then called he me one in ro^ul fou cours to moude the mouth, & brough me inee the chambes, that floode ou aga^{yn}st the backe bysting & northward, robich gaue the length of an^o cubites, who se thic turned towards the north. & the wyde ness couyned 2. cubites, ouer a ga^{yn}st the fl. cubites of the summer course, & aga^{yn}st the up weate that was in the fort cure re. Beside all thepe chie there fote piers, & one ouer aga^{yn}st another. And before the chie thie there was a small open place of 5. cubites wyde, and within was a wyde of one cubite wyde, and theyr doore towards the north.
Thus the hyff chambers were allwaye in rowe: then the lowest and myddelmest of 5 buildings: the chie bare the chamber upon cha mbre, and floode the together one upon ano ther, not havinge piers like the fore con te: the fore weete they malle the chofe be neath and in the myddel, so taken from the fl. canbe upwate.

25 The wall between the store by y^e chimney towards the uttermost court open like the fourtye of the chambers, was L. cubits l^ege: for the length of y^e uttermost chambers in the four court was L. cubits also: but the length the other of the temple was an C. cubits . These chambers had under them an entrance of the east syde, whereby any man myge go into them out of the four court, thowhe the thurde wall of the four court was towards the east, n^o the other was ynst the separated by length. Therefore the same by length was y^e syde between chambers also which had a way into them, like as the chambers on the north syde of the same length and wy benefe.

Their insurance, savings and bonds were all of the same manner. See even like in the other chamber doors were, to wote that it of the fourth fite. And before the merye wrote the fygure steppes on the east fite, there shode a doze to go in at. Then fytte wrote me: The dymmes to wote be the north the south, which shode be before the devynge: thofe be holy habitacons where angels suffe to be seruyce best to the LORD, master of the most holy offeringe: and ther wote they a yette the most holy offeringe: an offringe, synne offeringe & trefpace offrings. It is an holy place. When the presentes burn, they shal not go out with re counte: but if they tere be holy they shal leave the clothes of their ministrars, as put on other garments, when they have myrth come to do wiche the people.

¶ Then he had measured all the yermes house, he broughte theme forth by the east doore, and measured the same rounde. He measured the east syde with meteardes, which ranne aboure the court. And the north syde with meteardes, which coneynted a betwixt the south and the west (which heretofore coneynted either of them). And then he wente a wall rounde aboute vj. north doongs, and as hee dooall, which spanned the holf from the to holf.

The XIII. Chapter.

So he brought mee out of darkness neither north nor east. Behold he came the glory of the God of Israel. From out of the east, whose way was greater noise of waters, and the earth was lightened with his glory. His light shined upon mee like the first, that I saw, who came in, as at ymme as the earth should have bene destroyed: and like the vision that I saw by the water of Eder. That full I open my face, but the glory of the LORD was in the house before me as the eastern. As a wind cooled me up, and brought me in yammer counte: behold, the post full of the glory of the LORD.

I heere one speaking unto me at my house, and there feede one by me, that I know me: O then some of men, this room is my seat, and the place of my sitting where as I will dwell among the children of Israel for evermore: so that the best of Israel shall no more be strangers, but as other that, not their kinges, whom thou dismisse, thou shalt sit in his place, and thou shalt and bydes of their kinges: which haue buryl weyther the holmes in maner hurde upon mythe holmes, and their postes almost as my postes: so that there is but a bare wall be tweene me and them.

Then haue they defyled my holy name with their abominations, that they haue done. Wherefore I haue desire yee them my wrath: But now they shal put awaye their whoredome and the dyed bodies of their kinges out of my sight, that I maye dwell among them for evermore. Therefore o the house of Israel, sheweth you the householde of Israel a temple, that they maye be ashamed of their ned of these, and measure them sel-ues as examples hereat.

And when they be ashamed of all their works, then shew them the founte and fashion of the temple: the courtage in, the gange out, all the manner and description therof, all the uses and ordinaunces of it, if they maye keep it full all the fashions and customs therof.

This is the description of the house: A bome up to the mounte rounde aboute all the cou-ners, it shal be of height of all beholde, that it be description and fashion of the house.
Thus is the measure of the altar: (after the east cubite), which is a spawne longer then another cubite: his bottom in the myddest was a cubite longe and myde, and he ledge that was rounde aboute it, was a spawne wide. Thus is the height of the altar: from the ground to the toppe it stepped the length is two cubites, and the breadth one cubite: and from the lower stepped to the higher are four cubites, the breadth but one cubite.

The altar was foure cubites hye, & from the altar upwarde stode foure houses, and was six cubites longe, and six cubites brode, upon the four corners: the courtage of the altar was six cubites longe and wyde inpon the four corners, and the ledge that was rounde aboute it, had half a cubite: and the bottom thereof stonde above one cubite.
It stepped stode cowarde the east. And he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man, thus saith the LORD God: these are the ordinaunces and lawes of the altar, in the daye when it is made, to offre burnt offringes, and to spowle blood ther upon. To the prestes, if I sende thee be of the side of Saboth, and make before me to be me seynter, saith the LORD God: Vnto these gear thou o yon bullocke, for a synoffringe, & take the blow betweene thy pynckles: four heines withal, the four corners of the altar coveringe, with the ledges that goeth rounde aboute the Thou shalte take the bullocke also of the syn-offringe, & burne him in a sturall place with out the Sanctuary.

The next daye, take a goodbeast without blemish for a synoffringe, to reconaile the alter withal: let it as it was reconaile with bullocke. Now when thou best made it cle-ne, then offre a yonge bullocke without blemish, and a ramme out of the flocke without blemish also: Offre them before the LORD, and let the prest cast sate therupon, and ge-ue them so vnto the LORD for a burnt-offringe. Seven dayes shalte thou bringe every daye a goodbeast. A yonge bullocke & a ram-me of the flocke (both made without blemish) shal they offre. Seven dayes shalte they reconaile and cleanse the altar, & offre upon it. When these dayes are expired, then upon the nax daye and so forth, the prestes shal offre their burnt offringes and healdoffringes up to auert: so that I be merisfull vnto you, saith the LORD God.

The XLIII. Chapter.

For this, he brought me agayne to the north side of the Sanctuary ou-er the east syde, and that was hye. Then sayte the LORD vnto me: This dooe shal be full hye, and not opened for any man to go therout, but only for the LORD God of Israel: yet he shal goetherout, as shal he flout still. The prynces himself shal come therowis, that he maye ease dyd before the LORD.
At the poynde shal he come in, and there shal he goe out agayne. Then brought he me to the dooe, upon the north syde of the house.
And as I looked aboute me, beholde, the glory of the LORD fylled the house: and I fell downe upon my face. So the LORD spake vnto me: O thou sonne of man, fasten thy robe vnto thee, beholde, and take diligence hebet to all that I wil saye vnto thee, the com-maunces all the ordinaunces of the LORD and all his lawes: pyncke well with thine eares the commaunces in of the house and the gein-ge forth of the Sanctuary, and tell that ob-stinace householde of Israel: Thus saith the LORD God: O house of Israel, ye haue now done ynough with all your abominacions,

An for the Sanctuary, it shal abide first selfe; and to the Levites the same unchangeable, as they shalbe given xx habitacions, of the xxvii th tymbre & xiii habytoryes, so shal give unto the cite a possessiō of v m acres of habde, & xxv m longe, beynde the part of the Sanctuary: that shal be for the habita-ce of Israel. Upon both the sides of the Concurren part, z by the cite, there shal be given unto the pryce, whoso euer hath oer agaynst the cite, as farre as reacheth myghte and eastward: which shal be a long as one pace, frō y west mce y east.

This shalbe his dome lode in Israel, that my pynnes be no more chargeable unto my people. And so ch as remaineth yet ower in the londe, shalbe given to the house of Israel according to thei trybes. Thus saith the LORD God: ye pryinces, ye haue now a pquisid and destroyed yough in no leaue of, haue now a coudinge to the thinge, that is equal and lausfull and thus out my people reme, sayeth y LORD God. Ye shal haue some myght, a true Ephra, z a true Ben.

The Ephra z the Ben shall be like. One suchal euepne y eith parte of an homer, and so shal one Ephra be: thei measure shal be as y homer. One Syckle maketh x. Denars. Sixty Denars, and xxi. Syckles make a ponne. Thus is the heane offryng, thei shal geue to be heaued: namely, the xvi parte of an Ephra, out of an homer of wheat: and the xvi. parte of an Ephra, out of an homer of barley. The oyle shal be meaured with the Denar: euen the x. parte of one Denar of a Coa.

Two Denars make one Homer: for one Coa maketh ten Denars. And one libe from two deniers shpe out of the pasture of Israel, for a meacoffryng, burnt offryng and bread offryng, to receiue them sayth the LORD God. All the people of the londe shal geue this heate offryng with a fire and Agyme, it shal be the pryce of porteco offe burnt offrynges, meacoffrynges and burnt offrynges unto the LORD God, in the hydayes, new Moones, Sabbathes, and in all the hye festes of the house of Israel. The offryng, meacoffryng, burnt offryng z bread offryng shal be geue, to receiue the house of Israel. Thus sayeth y LORD God: The first daye of the first month shal be take a yonge bullocke without blemish, and cleanse the Sanctuary.

So the pish shal take of the bloude of y frowlyng, and sprentle it upon the postes of the house, and upon the four corners of the altar, with the four postes of the ymer me: rectore. And thus shal thei do also the fourth daye of y month: (for soch as haue frined of ignorance, or be ynger disceued) to receiue the house rughall. Upon y xiiij. daye of the first month ye shal bepe Eleaser. ¹¹ And thus shal thei fast com: me, betwix ¹² thus shal no fouer mer leudeb tied be eatte.

Upon the same daye shal y prynce geue for himselfe and all the people of the londe, a bullocke for a synoffryng. And in the fast of the seven dayes he shal offre euer y daye a bullocke z a ram, whoso euer wch one blemish, for a burnt offryng unto the LORD: z an he garze bayle for a synoffryng. For the meacoffryngs he shal geue euer an Ephra to a bullocke, an Ephra to a ram, z an Eyn of oyle to an Ephra. Upon y xvi. daye of the first month, he shal bepe the seven dayes holy one after another, eue as the other vij. daye: with the synoffryng, burnt offryng, meacoffryng, and with the oyle.

The XLVI. Chapter.

Thus sayeth the LORD God: y do re as the yanner me: courtte camards the east. I shal be shue the vi. monthes: but in the Sabbath and in the day of the new Moone, it shalbe opened. Then shal the prynce come vnder the doore pochte, z shalbe still without by the doore chere. So y prestes shal offre up his burnt z healeth offrynges. And he shal wofshipe at the doore pochte, and go his waye south agayne: but y doore shal no more be shut till the cherynge.

On the same manner shal the people of the londe also do thei wofshipe be fore the LORD God, with houte this doore upon the Sabbathes and new Moones. This is now the burnt offryng, that the pryce shal bringe unto the LORD God upon the Sabbath: sixte lambe without blemish, z a ram with one blemish, and an Ephra for a meacoffryng, with y ram. So for the lambe, he maye geue as many meacoffrynges to them, as he wil z an Eyn of oyle to an Ephra. In the daye of the new month, it shalbe a yonge bullocke with one blemish, five lambe z a ram also without blemish. With the bullocke he shal geue an Ephra, and with the beaue an Ephra also for a meacoffryng: with y lambe, what he maye come by: And euer an Eyn of oyle to a Ephra. When the pryce cometh, he shal go vnder the doore pochte, and euen then be parte south agayne. But when the people of the londe come in fore the LORD in the hye solemn feast, as many as come in by the north doore to do wofshipe, shal go out agayne at the south doore. And they that come in at the south doore, shal go south agayne at y north doore. There shal none go out at the doore where he came in, but shal go south right out on the ether syde, and the pryce shal go in and out amonge them.

Upon the solemn and his feast dayes, this shalbe the meacoffryng: An Ephra to ryng much a fete will into the LORDE, the calf doth shalbe offered vnto him, yf he maye do wiche his burne & health offeryng as he doth vnto the Sabbath: and when he goeth forth, the doer shal be shure after him agayne. So shal he byngue vnto the LORDE a lambe of a ycare olde withoute blame for a burnt offeryng: & he shal be do euer

Moreover, thus sayeth the LORD God: If he praye give a gift into any of his sonnes, then shall he be his sonnes heritage perpetuall, y he maye possesse it. But if he will geue one of his seruantes some of his heritage, it shall be hit to the five yeare, and the seuerne againe unto y purpoise for his heritage shall be his sonnes only. The pray-ce also shall aue none of the peoples or heri-tance, nor purchase from thore possession: but to his owne sonnes shall he geue his possession, that any people be not iudged as he: but that euery man maye haue his owne.

And he taught me, to show the manner of the type of the deere for habitation of the Samaritan, that belongeth to y^e priests and feede towards the north. I behelde, the re was a place vpon the west fyde, then sayde he vnto me. This is the place, wher the priests shall light the incense and synofferynges. I take y^e incense offerynges, that they may not beate it in to the outward court, and so to unholowe the people. So he taught me in to the westmost court, rounde aboute all the four corners. Behelde, in every corner of y^e four courts, there was yet a litle court. There in all the four corners of the court, there was made a litle court of xl cubites longe, and xxx. cubites brode heigh.
In four litle courts were of one litle measure, I there went a rygge wall rounde aboute them all foure, vnder the which there were barthes made rounde aboute. Then sayde he vnto me. This is the Tabernacle, where the priests of the house shall light the saynt offeruynges of the people.

to the aulter south wards. The cart was me to the north side, and brought re three rounde abones by the western re current eastward. I beheld, there forth the water upon the right syde. Then then the man y^e had the mercurie honde nere out vnto the east dore, he sured a little cuia, & he brought me dore y^e water, vnto the a cleene y^e he meared yett a cleene, I brought me meat in agayne vnto the fresshe y^e me this, & thou some of man: and wch brought me to the ryer hand agayne.

How when I come there, there I see my cross upon each side of the tree light.
Then sayst he unto me: This water the floweth out toward the east, and runneth down into the playne full of corn and the founteines, and from the see it runneth out, and keeth the waters in holde. Thus all that land made, where unto this river cometh shall receiue. And whi to this river cometh shall make my fish. So all that cometh to this river, shall be lusty and whole. In this river shall the fisher his fende from gadde neede. In Egipt, & there shall be their neede: for there shall be great herds of fish, like so in the mayntie. So in clayes and prettes, they shall not be whole in whi shall be occupied for sale.

By this ryuer vpon both the sides of it short, there shall growe all maner of frui-full trees, whose leaues shall not fall of, nether shall their fruite perishe: but ever water at their monethes, for their water runneth out of the Sanctuary. This fruite is good to eat, and his leaf profitable for medicine.
Thus saith the LORD God: And so be the border, wherein ye shall dwell: the west to the yf. tribes of Israel, with the such. Upon this, the Caldees gave answer before the kynge, and sayde: there is no man upon earth, that can tell the thyng, which yf the kynge speaketh of: For there is neither kynge pryncer nor LORD, that can saye such thynges as he sayeth: For, whome or Caldeer: for it is a very hard matter, that the kynge requyeth. Neither is there any, that can certifye the kynge thereof, except the goddes: whos dwelling is not amonge the creature.

C For yf which cause the kynge was wroth with grece and indignaciō, and commaunded to destroye all the wyse men at Babilon: and yf proclamation was sent forth, that the wyse men shulde be slayne. They sought also to slaye Daniel with his charyons. Then Daniel requered Arioch the kynge's steward, off the iudgment and sentence, that was gone forth alreedy to kill such as were wyse at Babilon. He answered, and sayde unto Arioch beinge then the kynge's debyer: Why shaldest thou be named so cruel a sentence? So Arioch tolde Daniel the matter. Upon this, wente Daniel up, and beseyed the kynge, yf he might haue leysure, to shewe the kynge the interpretation: and then came he heme agayne to shewe the thyng unto Arioch, & to saye: 2. As Arioch his companion: for they shalde besite the God of heauen for grece in this secret, that Daniel and his felowes with other such as were wyse in Babilon, persued not. Then was the mystery shewed unto Daniel in a visio by nyght. And Daniel prayd yf God of heauē, Daniel also cryed loud, and sayde: O that the name of God might be playd for euill and tuer, for wysdome and strengthe be his owne: he chaunge the kynge and a grece: he putte downe the kynge, he sette up the kynge: he greeue wysdome vnto the wyse, and vnderstandinge to chose that vnderstande he: he openeth the depe secret: he knoweth yf the thyng that is hid in darke, for the lighte shal be vnto him. Then he prayd: O thou God off my father: thou hast shewed me thynges, that we beseyd off thee, for thou hast opened the kynge's matter vnto me.

D Upon this, wente Daniel in vnto Arioch, whom the kynge had ordeined to destroye the wyse at Babilon: he wrote vnto him, and sayd: beseyde me such as are wyse in Babilon, but beinge in vnto the kynge, and I shal shewe the kynge the interpretation. Then Arioch brought Daniel vnto the kynge in all the hast, and sayde vnto him: I haue found be a man amonge the prestes off Iherusalem, that the kynge the interpretation. He answered the kynge, and sayde vnto him: whose name was Belshazzar. But the kynge cast the name yf he wold, whiche I haue founde the interpretation thereof: Daniel answered the kynge to his face, and sayde: As I haue seene, for the which the kynge maketh his iudgment: it is neither the wyse, the science, the charmer nor the diuinationist, that can vnto the kynge off us: Only God in heauē is open secret, and he is, that sheweth the thyngs Nabuchodonosor, what he is to do in the latter dayes.

The by name, and that which thou hast seene in thyne heade upon thy bed, is the: O kynge, thou dost cast in thy mynde, that shalde come hereafter: O be charye in thy iudgment off mysteries, tell the thyng, whiche is in comē. At this tyme, this secret is not knowne, for any wyse man is able: I haue founde any other thyng: that only thou I mighte tell thee the thyng the interpretation, that he mighte knowe the thynges off his owne here. Thou kynge is a wyse man, and he shalde seene before the a grece ymagē, whiche shal be a marvellous grece, and his wyse greeuē. The ymagē heade was off fine gold, his brest and armes off syluer, his legges off brasse, his feet off yron, and his legges were off yron, his feet were parced off yron, and parced off earth.

The then sawest, till the tyme that thou out any bondes: there was heuen off the wynd, which smote the ymagē vpon the face, and were he off yron and earth, and he shal be to powder: then was the yron, the earth, the copper, the syluer and golde broken together in peeces: and became like the dust off comē, that the wynde bloweth away: from yf some floore, that they can come in the: But the stone that he sawe the ymagē, it came a grece a moūntayne, which full of the whole earth: this is the dynast. At now will we shewe before the kynge, what he meaneth.

O kynge, thou art a kynge off thynges: For the God off heauē hath greeued the thynges, thyden, strength and wysdome: I haue destroyed the all thynges, that are amonge children off men: the bestes off the feild, the foules vnder the heauē, and graue the mynion ouer them all. howe shal be as stronge as yon. For like as yon suffer a no breaketh all thynges: yett was as yon boatech every thyng downe, so shal it beate downe and destroye.

Where as thou sawest the fere and coes, parte of each and parte off yon: that is a boatech byngdome, which nowethise shal haue some off the yon groundes mixt with it, for in such a thou hast sene the yon mixt with the daye.

Thercof of the fere that were parte off yon and parte off daye, signifieth: that is shalbe a byngdome partly stronge and partly weak. And where as thou sawest yon mixt with daye: they shall myngle them silces wth silbe off simple people, & yett not canyue one with another, like as yon wil not be interbed with a peetherow.

¶ Inche byng off thei kynges, shall the God of heauen set up an enclashinge byngdome which shal not perishe, and his byngdome shal not be given ouer to another people: yett the same shal beate and destroye all these byngdomes, but it shall endure for ever.

And where as thou sawest that richoun on bondes there was cut out of the mount a flor, which brake the yon, the copper f. that hath the yllur and golde in peace: by that hath f. grace God blessed the kyng, what myscome after this. This is a true vnamme, and the interpretation of it is sure.

¶ Then the kyng Nabuchodonosor, fell downe upon his face, and bowed himself on to Daniel, and commaunded that they shulde offer meat off rynges and sweete odoures unto him.

The kyng answered Daniel, and sayde: Ite off a crench, your God is a God aboue all godden, a LORDE aboue all kynges, and an opener of secretes: saynges thou canst disclose this myserie. So the kyng made Dauid a greace man, and gaue him many and greace giftes.

¶ To make him ruler off all the countree of Babilon, and loche of all the nobles, that were at Babilon. ¶ It was Daniel increased the kyng for Syriac, Chaldean and Abdenago: so that he made them rulers ouer all the offyce in the londe off Babilon: but Daniel himselfe remained still in the court by the kyng.

The III. Chapter.

¶ Nabuchodonosor the kyng caused a golde ymage to be made, which was li. cubites hye, and sixe cubites thie.

The iiij. Chap. Fo. lxxviiij.

¶ This he made to be set up in the valley of Durai in the londe of Babilon: & sent out to gather together the dukes, lordes & nobles, the iudges and officers, the beten & streues, with all the rulers of the londe: yf they might come to the dedication of the ymage which Nabuchodonosor the kyng had set up. So the dukes, lordes and nobles, the iudges and officers, beten and streues with all the rulers of the londe gathered them together, and came unto the dedication of yf ymage, that Nabuchodonosor the kyng had set up.

¶ Now when they stode before the ymage, which Nabuchodonosor set up, the beuill crieth out: all this mighte: O ye people, kynges, dukes and iudges, so you be it sayde: that ye heare the noyse off the trompettes, which shalbe blowe, wth yf harpes, shawmes, psalteries, symphonies and all manner off instruments fall downe and worships the golde ymage. ¶ Nabuchodonosor the kyng hath set up. Who so then fallis not downe and boweth himself, shal euen the same beate & casten to an hece burninge oven. Therefore, when all the folke heerde the noyse off the trompettes that were blowe, with the harpes, shawmes, psalteries, symphonies and all kynde off melody: the all the people, byn rebbed and na cōme fell downe, and bowed them silces unto the golde ymage, that Nabuchodonosor the kyng had set up.

¶ Now were there certayne men off the Caldees, that went euen then and accused yf Jewes, and sayde vnto kyng Nabuchodonosor: O kyng, God save thy lyfe for ever. Thou byng the kyng hast given a commaundment, that all men when they heare the noyse off the trompettes, harpes, shawmes, psalteries, symphonies and all the other melodies: shall fall downe and bowe them silces unto the golde ymage: who is that fell not downe and worshipped not, that he shulde be casten to an hece burninge oven. ¶ Now are there certayne Jewes, whom thou hast set ouer the offyce of the londe off Babilon: namely, Syriac, Chaldean and Abdenago. These men (so kyng) regard not thy commaundment, yett they will not forsake thy godden, nor bowe them silces to the golde ymage, that thou hast set up.

¶ Then Nabuchodonosor in a cruel wrath and displeasure, commaunded, yf Syriac, Chaldean and Abdenago shulde be brought vnto him. So the men were brought before the kyng. ¶ Then Nabuchodonosor spake vnto them, and sayde what is your

The beastes of the felde had shaddowes under it, and the foules off the ayre vnder it the house therof. Shortly, all creatures sed of it: I sence in my house a vision upon my bed: behold hee a mancher (saie an holy angel) came downe from heauen, and cryed mightie 3 his synges: How downe the erre, bicause off his bignaydes, shate off his leaues, and feare his fume aboue: that all the beastes maye get them awaye from vnder him, and the foules from his bignaydes. These beles became the ground of his roe: still in the earth, and vnder him upon the playne felde, with chaumes of vion and fiele. With the dew of heauen shall hee weat. And he shall haue his parre in the beestes of the grounde with aier my lde leaues.

Thermaies herre off his shall be taken

This crande of the watcher, is a comoun kome ground and soughte one in the count off him, that is most holy: so lene men in so vnderloude, that the hyest hath power ouer the kyngdomes off men, and geueth ryon to whom he liketh him, and byngerech Therefore o Balthasar, tell thou me what is signified for so much as all the wyse men off my kyngdome are not able to shewe me, what meaneth. But thou canst do it, for y fume of the holy Goddes is in the.

1 Then Daniel (whose name was Balthasar) had his peace by the space of an houre did his thoughtes troubled him. So the kyng spake and sayde: O Balthasar, let us see the drame in the interpretation thereof downe from heauen, and sayde: heere downe the tre, and destroye it: yet leaue the ground of the tre in the earth, and bynde him upon the playne felde with chymes off yion and fiele: he shall be weat with the dew off hea-yet is the very dreame off him, yf is hyest of all, & reacheth my LORDE the kyng.

Thou shalt be cast out fro men, and thy budy shall be with the beestes of the felde with grasse shalte thou be fed like an oxe.
Thou shalt be weat with the dew of the heauen: yet seven yeres shall come and go upon the, till thou thome, that the hyest hath power upon the kyngdomes of men, & geueth them, to whom he lyst. It is so true, where as it was sayde, that the core of the tre shalbe be-leste still in the ground: in becomereth, yf thy kyngdome shall remaie the whole vnto y, after: thou hast lered to knowe, that the power cometh from heauen. Therefore o ky-thyne offences with mercy to poore people: for soch thynges shall purlonge thy peace.

All these thynges reacheth the kyng Tabu-

So after fifteenethes, the kyng walketh up and downe in the palace off the kyngdome off Babilon, and sayde: This is the greate care off Babilon, which I myself with my power & strength haue made: a kynges euer-ce, for the honoure off my majesty. Whyte these wordes were yet in the kynges mouth, there fell a voyce from heauē, sayenge: O kin-be cast out of men & comp any thy dwelling shalbe with the beestes off the felde, so that thou shalt eate grasse like an oxe, till seven yeres be come and gone ouer the: then wilt thou knowe, that the hyest hath powere upon the kyngdomes off men, and that he may geue them, vnto whom he pleaseth

him.

The very same houre man this matter fulfilled a ps Tabuchodonosor: so that he was cast out off his chymy, & ate grasse like an oxe. His body was weat with the dew of hea-

The prophet Daniel.

The v. Chap.

A bonofolift vp myne eyes vnto heauen, and myne vnderstandinge was reuered vnto myne agayne. Then came I thankes vnto the by est. I magnified and prayfed him that lyeth for euermore, whose power vndereth all wayes, and his kyngdome from one generacion to another, in comparifon off whom, all they that dwell vpon the earth, are to be reputed as nothinge.

Da. 1 He handeth a conuenge to his will, amonge y^e powers of heauens amonge the inha bitours of the earth: and there is none that maye resist his hande, as I saye: what dost thou? As the same yme was myne vnder standyng came agayne, and I was reuered to the honour of my kyngdome, to my dygnyte, and to myne crowne shappe agayne. My greatesse and prynces sought vnto me, and I was set in my kyngdome agayne, for that I had yet greace wooshope.

The bys Jtabychodonofolouar, may niffe and prayse the kyng of heauen: for all his wordes are true, and his wayes richte. As for those that gaue on proudly, he is able to bringe them downe.

The V. Chapter.

B Alchafar the kyng made a greace handee to his thousande lordes: neuerhall these thousande he made greace deace, and when he was dyen to wyne, he commaunded to bringe him y^e golde and syluer vessel, which his sacher Etabychodonofol had taken out of the temple at Jerusalem: that the kyng and his lordes (with his quene and concubynes) myght delite therout.

So they brought the golde vessel, that was taken out of the temple of the LORDES house at Jerusalem. Then the kyng and his lordes with his quene and concubynes dyen be ouer of them. They dyen to wyne, and pray fed their Jools of golde, syluer, copper, yron, modde and stone.

In the very same houre there appeared fyngers, as it had bene of a mans hande, and theyng, richte ouer agaynst the candlesticke vpon the playne wall in the kynges palace: and the kyng sawe the palme off y^e honde y^e wynde.

Da. 2 Then changed the kyng his countenance, and he thoughtes credeblet him: so that he leynes off his bed y^e nyght, and his lordes sette one agaynst the other. Whiche the kyng cryed mightily, that they shulde bringe him the chaimers, Caldees and conuicers of deuils. The kyng spake also to the mynister of Babilon, and saide: Who so can redde this wyryng, and shewe me the playment anyge theroff: I shall be dight with purple, haue a dyne of golde, and ceue his necke, and rule the churche parrish in kyngdome.

Vpon this, came all the kynges wyse men: but they coude nerher rede the wyryng, shewe the kyng what it signified. Then the kyng for a frayd in so much, that his colour chaunged, and his lordes were wexed. So by reason off this matter, it happened to the kyng that his lordes, as he went vp herself in to the hande wyll, and spake vnto the kyng, sayinge: O kyng God saue thy lyf for euer. Let us y^e chaimers trouble the, and let not thy countenance be chaunged. For why, there is some kyngdome, that hath the spere off the goddes vnto him, as it was fene in this chere dayes. He hath vnderstandyng of dome like the goddes. Lette the kyng that the bonofol churche maker shal man off of the dyth sayres, chaimers, Caldees and deuils conuicers: because that such an aduancer spere, knowe ge y^e wisdom to appoyne deames, to open secretes, and to begin hardes domes was founded in him: y^e was in Daniel, whom the kyng named Babilon. Lette this same Daniel be sette sit, and shal tell, what it meaneth.

Then was Daniel brought before the kyng. So the kyng spake vnto Daniel, sayinge: Knew thou that Daniel, one off the pryncers of Iuda, whom my father the kyng brought out of Iewry: I haue hade fust of the, that thou hast the spere of the goddes, experience and vnderstandyng, in that there hath bene greace in dome fust in the. How haue there bene donghens, in fust and connyng chaimers, to rede the wyryng, and to shewe me the meanings theroff? But they coude not tell me, what the matter signified. Then herde I say, y^e that canste ponde vnto the chinges, and vnto hardes doutes. Well than, yf thou canst this wyryng, and shewe me the meanings theroff: thou shalt be clothed wth purple, and ceue a chymne of golde aboute thy necke, and rule the churche parrish of my kyngdome.

Daniel answered, and saide before the kyng: As for thy rewardes, kepe them in thy self, as geue y^e chymnes to another: yette chereless, I wold rede the wyryng vnto the kyng, and shewe him the interpretation. O kyng, God the byest gaue vnto Iudas bonofol churche sacher, y^e dygnite of a kyng, and wooshope & hono^r: so yf all people, I praye x tyngeles stode in wyte & fust of him, kyng.

In: if the byestate, that he had lent him, sumby: he sene, whom he wolde: he smite, whom he pleied him. Agayne: whom he wolde, he set up: and whom he list, he put downe. And because his herte was so pious, and his stomach so fast was withstanding: he was depouled from his kingly throne, and his mighty was taken from him. He was thowt out from among men, his herte was like a beasts herte, and his dwelling: not with the wyde world: he was sayd to be as graile like an oxe, and his body was not with the dew off the heauen: all he knew, that the byest had power upon the kyngdomes of men, and secretly ouer them, whom he list.

And when his sonne (o Belshazsar) for all this, had sene suborned thine heart, though he knewe all these thinges: but had nas gatheryd all off above the LORDE off heauen, so that the vessels off his house were brought before the: that thou, and thy lordes, with thy quene and concubynes, mighte wyte wyte thereon: And hast payed the Treasurys of silver and golde, copper and yron, off weede & yem: As for the God, in whiche he had confideth, they had no all thy waye: and he had not closed him.

There is the palme off this bonde for higher from him, to toke up this waye. And this is the scripture, that is renten up: Nane, Chedel, Phares. Now the interpretation off the thyng is this: Nane, God hath numbred thy kyngdome, and with hym is to an ende Chedel. Thou art now in the balance, and art founde to lighthe: Phares, Thy kyngdome is dele in partes, and given to the Medes and Perses.

Then commaunded Belshazsar, to clothe Daniel with purple, to hange a chayne off gold aboute his necke, and to make a proclamacon concerning him: that he shal be the ruler off the thurde parte off his kyngdome. The very same night was Daniel thowt off the thyng off the Caldons slayne, and was out off his castle in the kyngdome, byng his waye off age.

The VI. Chapter.

¶ Pleasid Darins to set ouer his kyngdome an C and xx. lordes, which shuld be in all his kyngdome aboute. And he set the se the prynces (off whom Daniel was one) that the lordes mighte geue acempeys unto them, and the byng to be without.

But Daniel excused all these prynces and lordes, for the space off God was plentiful in hand: that the byng was myght to set him ouer the whole realme. Wherefor the prynces and lordes sought, to put out Daniel some quarrel agaynst the byngdome: yet coude they fynde none occasion ney fauour upon him. For why: he was so faithful, of there was no blame ney dishonesty founde in him.

Then sayde these men: we willett no quarell agaynst this Daniel, excepte it be in the lawe off his God. Open this, wher the prynces and lordes together with the byng, and sayd thus unto him byng Darins, God save thy life for ever.

All the great estates off the realme: as of prynces, dukes, seneschours and iudges, are be comendyd to put out a commaundment off of byng, and to make a sure statute: namely, that who so defyneth any pacion, ether off any god or man (with in this xxx. dayes) excepte it be only off the, O byng: the same person maye be cast in to the L yam dene. Wherefor, O byng, confirme thou this statute, and make a wytyng: that the thyng in which the Medes and Perses have ordeyned be not altered ney broken.

So Darins made the wytyng, and confirmed it. Now when Daniel understode that the wytyng was made, he came in to his house: and the wyndowes off his hall toward: Jerusalem stode open. There he led be to come upon his knees, this tymes a daye: there he made his pacion, and prayd to his God, like as his maner was to do so for tymes.

Then these men made searche, and founde Daniel making his pacion, and prayng unto his God. So they came to the byng, and spak before him concerning his commaundment, sayng: O byng, hast thou not subscribed the statute, that within xxx. dayes who so requyryth his pacion off any god or man, but only off thyself, O byng: he shal be cast in to the denne off the L yam? The byng answered, and sayde: yee, it is true. It must be as a lawe off of Medes and Perses, that maye not be broken.

Then answered they, and sayde unto the byng: Daniel one of the prisoners of Judea (O byng) hath neither the ney thy statute, that thou hast made, but maketh his pacion this tymes a daye. When the byng herde these wordes, he was sore grieved, and wolde by him excused Daniel, to helpen him, and put off the matter, unto the Some wether to come, to the intent that he mighte save him.

The prophet Daniel.

These men perceiving the Kinges mynde sayde unto him know thus (o Kinge) that the lawe off the Medes and Perses is, that the commandement and statutes which the Kinge maketh maye not be altered. When the Kinge had theiue bringys Daniel, and they call him in to the 2 vons denue.

D The kynge also spake vnto Daniel, ad sayd: Thy God, whom thou alwayes seruest, can he shall defende the. And there was beynge a stone, and layd vpon the hole of the dore: this the kynge sealed with his owne kynge, and with y^e signet of his prynces: that the kynge commaundement concerninge Daniel, shoulde not be broken.

So the kyng wente in to his palace, and kept hym self all nyght, so that there was no table spred before him, neither could he take any slepe. And betwixen in the mornyng as the break off the daye, the kyng arose, and wente in all haist vnto the vnn off the & vng.

Then as he came nye unto y^e dyng, he criede^r a piteous voyce unto Daniel: See y^e thyng I speake, and sayde unto Daniel: O Daniel, thou seruante off the kynngme God, I haue not thy God (whom thou callwaye serueth) able to deliuer the from the lyons: Daniel sayde unto the bynges: O bynges, God saue thy liues for ever.

Also behold, there came up amongst a neighbor like beams, before whom there was of the first homes plucked away. Behold this home had eyes like a man, & mouth speaking perfect precious things. Take heed the gates were prepared, to call the aged sac him de men. His clothing was as white as snow, and the hairs of his head like the pure wool.

His tyme was like the fire flame, whiche burneth as the burninge fyre. There forth a fire fyrst came, & thence our fyrst

The prophet Daniel.

¹ Behold, till the beast was slaine, and ² his body despoiled, & given over to be burnt in the fire.

³ As for the power of the other beasts all was taken away, but their lynes were continued for a tyme and season. I sawe in a vision by night, and beholde: there came o-⁴ ne in the deadnes of heauen like the sonne of a man, which wente vnto the olde aged, be-⁵ low whom they brought him: Then gaue he him power abiggaunce, & all, that all peo-⁶ ple, wyse and vngayned shoulde serue him. His power is eternall kynges power, which shal not be put downe: & his kyngdome enu-⁷ nunt vnconquer. My herte was vexed, & I ⁸ Daniel had a troubled sleepe within me. So the visions off my heade made me a sinner: all I gaue me vnto one off them that stode ⁹ by the meate, concerninge all the kingdomes, so he tolde me, and made me vnderstande the interpretation of these thinges.

These foure great beasts, are foure kinges in which shal aryse out of the earth. The first shal take in the kyngdome off the saynes of the most hyest, and possesse it still more: & it shall be a longe season. After this I requy-red diligently to knowe the dream, conceininge the fourth beast, which was so farre valide the other beasts, and so horrible: whose body was of iron, and bristles off brasse: which beneuiled and destroyed, and stamped the residue vnder his feet. I desired also to knowe the dream, so touchinge the ten hornes that he had vpon his heade, and thioneth which came vp a fowerth, beset vnto the face them fell downe thio: which borne his eyes, and a mouth that spake presumptuous thinges, and looked vnto a grimmer vision then his fellows.

I behelde, and the same borne made battell agaynst the saynes, yee ad gaue the victory off them: vntill the tyme, that the olde agge came, that the indignite was geue to the chiefe saynes: and till the tyme, that y saynes had the kyngdome in possession.

¹⁰ He gaue me this answere: These fourth beast shal be the fourth kyngdome vnto earth: it shal be more then all other kyngdomes, it shall beate, treade downe, & destroye all other kynges.

¹¹ The ten hornes, are ten kynges that shal aryse out of that kyngdome, after whiche there shall stonde vpon another, which shall be greater then the first.

He shall subdue these kynges, and shall steale wordes agaynst the hyest a ffall all the and thynke, that he maye chaunge tymes and lawes. They shall be geue vnder his power, vntill a tyme, two tymes, and halfe a tyme.

But the indignite shal be tepe, so that his power shal be taken from him, for he shal be despoiled, and perishe at the last. As for the kyngdome, power and all mighte that is vnder: he becom: it shal be geue to the holy people off the most hyest, whoset kyngdome is euerslasinge, yee all power shall serue and obeye him. These saies expre of wordes.

Nevertheless, I Daniel was so vexed in my thoughtes, that my countenance was chaunged, & wrote wordes I wrote still in my heart.

The viij. Chapter.

¹ At the thirde yeare off the reigne of kinge Belshazzar, there appeared a vision vnto me Daniel, after that I had lone the first, I sawe in a vision, (and when I sawe it, I was at Babilon in the chiefe citie, which was in the londe off Elam) and in y vision, me thoughte I was by the ryuer off Dial.

Then I stood up, and sawe: and beholde there stode before the ryuer, a ramme, which had hounes: and these hounes were hye, but one was hyer then another, and the hyest came vp last. I sawe that this ramme passed with his hounes, agaynst the west, agaynst the north, and agaynst the south: (at that no bestes mighte stonde before him, nor defende them from his periclit: he byde as him lyst, and wased greatly. I toke herte vnto this, and then came there a hegoate from the west, over the whole earth, and reached northe grounde.

This goate had a marvellous goodly horne betwixt his eyes, and came vnto the ram-me, that had the two hounes (whom I had sene a fawer the ryuer syde) and ramme fer-cel y vpon him with his might. I sawe how beate me vnto the ramme, be yere very fea-ce vpon him: yee he gaue him such a stroke, that he brake his two hounes.

Whether had the ramme so much strength as to stonde before him: but he fell vnto the ryuer, & rode him vnder his feet: and no man was able to deliuer the ramme out of his power.

The goate increased exceedingly greace, and when he was at the strongest, his greace was more broken also. Then grasse there fowre such like in the state, beate the fow-^{10. 4} re wryndes off the heauen. And out of one of ^{10. 5} the leyl off these hornes, there came vp yee ^{10. 6} another horn, which was the marvellous greatest to warpe the south, toward the east, and to conuerse the sayne place toward London. It grew up to the hoofe off heauen, wherof it wyd cast fens downe to the grounde, and off the starres also, and trode them under fete.

Yes it grew vp vnto the pyntes off the hoofe, from whom the daylie offeringe was taken, and the place off his Sanctuary cast downe. And a certayne season was geuen vnto it, agaynst the daylie offeringe, the cause of which thinge, that it mighte cast downe the waite to the grounde, and so to proprie all thinges, that it wene aboute.
Upon this I herde one off the sayntes speakinge, which saynter sayde vnto one that asked this question:

How longe shall this vision off the day-lie sacrifice, and of the waite, and abhominacion endure, that the Sanctuary and the power shall so be trodden vnder fete? And he answered him thus: Vnto the eveninge & the moninge, even two thousande and thre hundred dayes: then shall the Sanctuary be cleared agayne.

C Now when Daniel had seen this vision, and sought for the vnderstandinge of it, he behelde, there stode before me a thinge like vnto a man. And I herde a man's voyce in the ryuer off Vni, which cryed, and sayde: O Gabriel, make this man vnderstande the vision. So he came, and stode by me. And I was a frayed at his cōmynge, and fell downe vpon my face.

Then sayde he vnto me: O thou sonne of man, mende well, for in the last tyme shall this vision be fulfilled. Now as he was speakinge vnto me, I was the saynter, so that I flew downe to the grounde. But he toke halbe vpon me, and set me vp agayne, say-ng: Bebold, I will shewe the, what shall happen in the last tyme: for in the tyme that I speake vnto thee, it shall be fulfilled.

The tyme which thou sawest with the two hornes, is the tyme off the 11. ch. & 2. perce: but the grace is the tyme of Greke londe: the greatest horn that stode betwixt his eyes, that is the principall tyme. But where as it beate, and foure other rose up in the stode: it signifyeth, that out of this people shall stande up foure tyme, but not so mightie as it.

D After these tyme, when the wyrdnesse is a pomegranate, there shall arise a tyme.

ye off an unshamefast face, which shall wyse in darke speakinge.

He shall be mightie and stronge, and his owne strength. He shall be as a measure, and all that he toucheth, shall be as a measure: he shall laye the sturme holy people. And though he be a cruell false, he shall prosper in his hande, his shall be proud, and many one shall be to deach in his wickednesse. He shall be vnto agaynst the pyntes off paynes, but he shall be destroyed withoute paine. And the vision that is shewed vnto thee, as thou the even ynge and the morn ynge. The wyrdnesse vnto this sight, for it wyld out come to passe.

Upon this was I Daniel very feare, & that I laye the certayne dayes: I was I rose vp, I wene a booke the tyme is rest, and marveled at the vision, as lest no man knewe of it.

The x. Chapter.

In the first yere off Darius the kinge off Babilonia, which was of the stode off the Medes, & was in the hag over the realm of the Caldees: & in the first yere off his reigne, Daniel desired to knowe the yearly number of the tyme, wherof the LORDE speaketh vnto the prophet: that Jerusalem should be waite 117. yeres: & I turned me vnto the LORDE, for to praye and make my intercession, with fasting, & with chere I prayed before the LORDE my God, and knowledged, sayng:

O LORDE, thou greates & fearful God, thou that depest commaunde and mercy with them, which loue the, and do thy commamentes: We haue sinned, we haue be, we haue bene disobedient and gone backe: we haue departed from all thy commentes and in digmentes.

We wolde neuer folowe thy seruantes the prophetes, that spake in thy name to re tyme and pyntes as our fathers, and to all the people off the londe. O LORDE, thynges as these belonge vnto the, and we praye nought vnto thee, for thou it is come to passe this daye vnto the of Iuda, and to them that dwell at Jerusalem.

Now vnto all Israel, whether they be as we: thou out all tyme, when thou hast sinned them, because of the that they had done agaynst the.

The prophet Daniel.

ye o LORD, unto vs, to oure Kinges & prince, to oure forefathers: euen to vs all, that haue offended the, belonging open shew vs. Thus saith the LORD oure God, per- uerth mee and forgiuenesse. As for vs, we are not before from him, and haue not o- beyed the voyce of the LORD oure God, to molle in his lawes, which he layed be fore vs by his seruantes the prophetes: yee all I and hene amongst vs, and gone backe from thy lawes, so that they haue not heretofore as they vs.

Wherfore the curse and dooth, that is writ- ten in the law of Moyses the seruante of God (against whome haue offended) is poured upon vs. And he hath per furnished his wor- ke, which he spake agaynst vs, & agaynst our nation, that he wold vs bringe upon vs such a greates plague, as neuer was vnder hea- uen, lte as it is now come to passe in Jerusa- lem. For all this plague, as it is written in the lawe of Moyses, to come upon vs. For made we not oure prayer before the LORD oure God, that we might turne agayne from oure wickednesse, and so be leered in thy wordes. Therfor hath y LORD made his will, to bringe this plague upon vs: for the LORD oure God is righteous, in all the workes which he doth: for why, we wolde not heare to vnto his voyce.

And now, o LORD oure God, thou that with an mightie bonde hast brought thy peo- ple out of Egipte, to geue thy selfe a name, which remaineth this daye: we haue synned o LORD: & done wickedly agaynst all thy righteuousnes: yee let thy wrath full displea- sure be turned a waye, I beseeche the: from thy citie Jerusalem thy holy hill. And why? for our synnes sake and for the wickednesse of our fathers: for Jerusalem and thy peo- ple abhorre, of all them that are abooue vs. Now therefore, O oure God, heare the pray- er of thy seruantes, and haue mercassions: O let thy face shyne ouer thy sanctuary, that lieth wast.

O oure God, end ye thine eare, and hearken (as thou shalt for thine owne sake) open thine eyes: and behold how we be desolaced, we and the citie also, which is called a fearethy name: for we be not cast oure prayers before the in oure owne righteuousnesse, as lieth only in thy greates mercies. O LORD, heare: O for thou LORD end LORD, conserue, carry not away longe: but for thine owne sake do it, O my LORD: for thy cite and thy people is called fearethy name.

As I was yet speakinge as my prayers,

The x. Chap. Fo. lxxxij.

knowing that myne owne synnes and of syn- nes of my people, makinge so myne interces- sion before the LORD my God, for the ho- ly hill sake of my God: yet while I was yet speakinge in my prayer, beholde, the ma^g Daniel (whom I had sene in the vision) came styng to me, and couched me a booke of offeringe tymes in the eveninge. He in four- med me, and spake vnto me: O Daniel (saide he) I am now come, to weete the vnderstande it: for as soone as thou beganest to make thy prayer, it was so diuysid, and ther fore am I come to shewe the. And why? for thou art a man greatly beloved.

Wherfore, poures the matter well, that thou mayest leeme, so vnderstande the vision. For, wher are determined ouer thy people, & ouer thy holy cite: that the wickednesse maye be conserued, that the synne maye haue an ende, that the offence maye be reconciled, and so bringe in euery thinge as becometh righte, to fulfill of visions and the prophetes, and so anoynte the most holy one. Vnderstande this then, and marcke it well: that from the tyme it shal be concluded, to go and repaue Jeru- salem agayne, vnto Christ (or the anointed) prince: there shal be fiuen weekes. Then shall the stretes & walles be builded agayne sciz- weekes, but with harder troublesome tyme. After that the sciz. weekes, shal Christ be slayne, & they shal haue no playe in him. Then shal there come a people with the paynte, and de- stroye the cite and the sanctuary and his en- ded shal come as the water floods. For the de- solation shal continue till the ende of the battell.

He shall make a stronge bonde with many, for the space of a week: and when the we- ke is half gone, he shal put downe the stone and meacoffringe. And in the temple the- re shal be an abominable desolac^o, till it be destroyed all. And it is concluded, of this wastinge shal continue tyme the ende.

The x. Chapon.

In the thirde yeare of Kinge Cyrus of Persia, there was shewed vnto Daniel (otherwise called Balthazar) a mar- uel, yet a true matter, but it is yet a long- tyme vnto it.

He vnderstande the matter well, and per- ceaued what the vision was. After that he say me, I Daniel mourned for the space of thre weekes, so that I had no lust to eate drinke: as for sleeth and wyne, there came none: which my mynthe: To, I dyd not once anoynte my selfe: all the space the weekes were out.

The prophet Daniel.

The xi. Chap.

Upon the fourth day of the sixth moneth, I was by the greates founte, called Tigris. I lift up myne eyes, and looke i and beholde, a man clothed in fymyng, whose loynes were girted wth a very fyne golde of Aaby: his body was like the Chululite stone, his face (to looke vpon) was like lychenynge, his eyes as the flame of fyre, his armes and feet were like sayre glisteringe metall, but the voyce of his wordis was like y^e voyce of a multitude.

I Daniel alone sawe this vision, the men that were with me, sawe it not: but a greates fearfulesse fell vpon them, so that they fled awaye, and hyde them selues. I was left the-er my self alone, and sawe this greates vision, so longe all there remayned monie strenght within me: For I lost my coloure cleare, I waisted awaye, and my strenght was gone. Yet herbe I the voyce of his wordis: & as heere as I praye it, sayynge came vpon me, and I fell downe flat to the ground vpon my face. And beholde, an hande touched me, which set me vp vpon my knees & vpon the palmes of my handes, sayenge vnto me: O Daniel, thou well beloued man: take good heed of the wordes, that I shal saye vnto y^e, & stande right vp, for much y^e am I now sent.

And when he had sayde these wordes, I stood vp vnto him. Then saide he vnto me: feare not Daniel: for why, since the first daye that thou seest them hereto vnto this tyme, and diest chaste a chy self before thy God: thy wordes haue bene herbe. And I had come vnto the wher thou beganest to speake, had not the prynces ouer the kyngdome of the Perses wth ftoode me ffr. dayes. But lo, Michael one of the cheste prynces, came to helpe me, him haue I left by the kyng of Persia, I am come to seeke the, what shal happen vnto thy people in the latter daye: for it wilbe liss y^e or the wilson be fulfilled.

¶ Now when he had spoken these wordes vnto me, I fell downe my head to y^e ground, and hald me vnto mye kynge. Beholde, there touched my lippes one, very like vnto a man. Then opened I my mouth, and sayde vnto him, that ftoode before me: O my lord, my loynes are cloynd in the vision, and there is no more strenght within me: how maye my lordes seruante then calde wth my lordes seinge there is no strenght in me, so that I can not eate mye bready. Vpon this there touched me agayne, one much like a man, & comforted me, sayenge: O thou man so well beloued, feare not be content, take a good herbe vnto the, and be stronge. So when he had spoken vnto me, I recovered, & sayde: Vpon er on my lord, for thou hast refreshed me. The saye he: knowest thou wher I am come vnto y^e now? I go agayne with the prynces of the Perses. As for as I go forth, so the prynces of Babel shall come. I therefore, I will shew vnto the the ge, y^e I haue noted in the remembrance of much. And as for all yonder matters, there was that helpe me in them, but I shal not re prynces.

The xl. Chapter.

¶ Vnto the first yeare of Darius of Babel, I ftoode by him, to comfort him, to strenght him, and now and I shew the the truth. Beholde, there shal be vnto y^e kyngs in Persia, but y^e shal be farre richer then they all. And wher he is in the cheft power of his tyme, I shal prouoke anery man agaynst the kyng of Babel. Then shal there arise a myghtie kyng, the shal rule wth greates minion, and do wth him life. And as for as his kyngdome cometh vnto, it shal be streyted, & dyed vnto wth of some wth of the heauen. They y^e come after him shal not haue such power & dominion as he: in his kyngdome shal be cast, y^e come none other the cheste. And the kyng of y^e shal shal be myghtie, then has other prynces. I gaynt him there shal one make himself liss ge, & shal rule his vnto y^e of greates prynces.

¶ And after certayne yeares they shal be y^e together, the kyngs daughter of the south shal come to the kyng of the north, so to make ffr ships, but she shal not haue the power of that arme, neyther shal be aide to endure the rore of his myght. But he shal as he is as he be: yet the y^e be as he shal comfort her for his tyme shal be vnto vnto. One of y^e shal come of Babel, the shal ene ftoode vp in his seade: which with prynces of arms shal go thowen the kyng of the north, & handle him according to his strenght. So for that kyng shal be prynces with the costly Jewels of golde: shal he shal carry them a waye captiue wth the grapes, and he shal prynces agaynst the ge of the north certayne yeares. And wher he come into y^e kynges realme of y^e shal he shal be sayne to tyme agayne vnto to his owne lande. Wherfore his ffr shal be pleaf, and shal gather together a myghtie greates host of people: and one of them shal come, and go thowen like a warf, then shal he reuenge, and go forth wth his ffringe and boofunge vnto his owne lande.

¶ The kyng of y^e shal be myghtie and shal come forth to fight agaynst the king of the north: And he shall bring a greave multitude of people to gether, and a greave hoorde shalbe gathered to his hande: these shal be carry away wth greave pryde, for so much as he hath cast downe so many theowes and netherles he shal not p^{er}uayle. For y^e king of y^e north shal gather (of the north) a grea uer hoorde of people then a fore, & come forth (after a certeyne tyme and yeres) with a myghty host & exceedingly greave good.

¶ And the same tyme there shal many stonde up agaynst the kinge of the south, so that y^e fall. So the kinge of the north shal come to laye sage, and to take the stronge fortified cities: And the power of the of y^e south shal not be able to abyde him, & the best men of the peo ple shal not be so stronge, as to resist him.

Then y^e when he cometh, he shal handle him as he list: no man shalbe so hardy as to stande agaynst him. He shal stonde in the plea sant countrey, which choron him shalbe de stroyed. He shal see his face wth all his power to opene his kingdome, & to take it. And then shal he be, & geue him into the stronge amonge women, to destroye him. And he shal seie, nether shal he opene his purpo se. After this, shall he see his face vnto the Jes, & take many of the. A prince shal stop pe him, so do him a shame, besyde he confu deth: els shal come vnto him. Then shal he come agayne to his home londe, stonble, & fall, and be nomore founde: so he that came upon him & dyd him violence, shal stonde in his place, & haue a pleasant kingdome: and after few dayes he shalbe destroyed, & the nether wth maye net in battell. In his stead there shal arise a wyle person not holdy wor thy of a kinglyng dignite: this shal come in swayle, & praye the kingdome with fayne wordes: he shal fight agaynst the aimes of the myghtie (& destroye them,) y^e & agaynst the prince of the covenant.

¶ So after y^e he hath taken truce with him, he shal bidde discearefully: that he maye ge ue, & overcome him with a small floode: & sa weyde: & geue him to gett herto y^e fatterest pla ce of the londe, and to deale othe wth them after his fathers or graundfathers dyd. For he shal bidde y^e thinge, y^e they had rob bed & pryed, y^e & all the substance y^e maye gaine through a agaynst the stronge hel des, & that for a tyme. In a power and herre shale stande up wth a greave armye agaynst the kinge of the south: where theowes the kin ge of the south shalbe moned then vnto ba tall, with a greave & myghty host: also. Ue werkelest, he shal not be able to stonde, for they shal conspyre agaynst him. And they y^e case of his meate, shal hurte him: that his hoost shal fall, & many be slayne downe.

¶ These two kynge shalbe mynyed to do myghtie, & tolke of disceare as one cable: but they shal not prosper: for why the one shal not come yet, vnto the tyme appoynted. & he shal be go home agayne in to his counte ry wth greave good, & see his hart agaynst the holy covenant, he shalbe busy agaynst it, & then retorne heme. At the tyme a p^{ro}ph et shal come agayne, & go to warre the south: So shall it happen ootherwise then as the saie, yett as agayne. And why the ship pes of Tyrris shal come upon him, that he maye be synner & come agayne y^e he maye take indignacion agaynst the covenant of holynesse, to meale agaynst it. And he shal tre me him, & deare soch vnto him, as leaue the holy covenant.

¶ He shal set myghtie men to vnholme the sanctuary of strength, to put downe the day ly offeringe, & to set up the abominable de solation. And soch a breake the covenant, shal he starte wth fayne wordes. But y^e peo ple that wil knowe their God, shal haue the quyete and prospere. & they also that ha ue vnterscondinge amonge the people, shal enforce the multitude: & for a long season, they shalbe persecuted wth synce, wth furye, wth captyvete & wth the cattuge a waye of their goodnes. & then when they fall, they shalbe set up wth a litle helpe: but ma ny shal cleue vnto them fauourly.

¶ And some of those which haue vnterscon dyng shal be persecuted also: y^e they maye be cryed, & punished: till the tyme els aua se there is yett another tyme appoynted.
The kinge shal be rebuked him self, he shal exal te and magnifie him self agaynst all, that is God. And he shal speake many a thinge agaynst the God of all goodes, wherein he shal profane, so long till the tyme be fulfill ed, f^{or} the conclusion is deuyed already. He shal not regarde the God of his fathers, but his luste shal be upon women: And he shal not care for any God, for he shal magnifie him self alone all. In his place shal be worshippe the myghtie Idoles: & the god whom his fa thers haue not, shal he honour wth gol de and syluer, wth precious stones and plea sant Jewels.

¶ This shalbe do, & kinglyng helpe and helpe at the myghtie Idoles and strange gods.

to destroye & curse a greace multitude. The towers of his palace shal be pryde berishte the mo: seas, vpon the hall of chynoble sanctuary, for he shal come to the ende of it, and then shal no man helpe him.

The XII. Chap. peer.

In the tyme wil come also, that the greate prince Michael, which stondech on the y peoples syde, shal arise up, for there shal come a tyme of trouble, such as no ner wite, sene there brightness be vpon people, into that same tyme. Then shal the y people be deliuered, yett all thes that be soules waiten in the boke. Many of them that slepe in the duste of the earth, shal awake: some to euerlastinge life, some to perpermall shame & reprofe. The wyse (such as haue taughte other) shal glisfe, as the hymnys of heauen: and those that haue instructed the multitude into godly wyse, shal be as the starrs, woulde without ende.

And thus a Daniel shutt up these wordes, & shal the boke, all the last tyme. Many shal go abroade here and there, and the shal the lege increase. So Daniel tolde, and beholde, there stode ether two: one vpon the sho-ar of the water, the other vpon yender syde.
And one of the sayde vnto him, which was clothed in lymnyng, and stode above vpon the turrets of the shude: how longe shall it be to the ende of these wonderous wordes?
Then saide I the man which the lymnyng power of the holy people is cleare shewbrode, the shal all these thinges be fulfilld.

I herbe it well, but I vnderstande it not.
Then saide I: O my lord, what shal I saye pena fure shal: he answered: O the tyme Daniel, for these wordes shal be done vnto sealed, till the last tyme: & many shal be sified, aliend & erud. But the vngodly shal

This is the worde of the LORD

That came vnto Oseas the sonne of Beeri, in the dayes of Oseas, Joachan, Achas & Ezechias Kinges of Iuda: and in the tyme of Ieroboam the sonne of Ioas kynge of Israel.

The first Chapter.

IN the tyme when the LORD spake vnto Oseas, he saide vnto him: Go thy way, take an harlot to thy wife, and get chyldren by her: for thus will I be to this people, sayeth the LORD. So he went, and rete. Some y^e thought of Deblaim: which concaved, and bare the sixth a sonne. And the LORD sayde vnto him: call his name Iseiad, for I will shortly avenge the blowe of Iseiad vpon the house of Iehu, and will bunge the hugbome of the house of Israel in an ebbe. Then will I locate the bowe of Iseiad in the valley of Iseiad.

She concaved yet agayne, and bare a daughter. And he sayde vnto him: Call his name Lomhama: (that is, not openinge mercy) for I will have no pryce vpon the house of Israel, but forger them, and put them downe out of remembrance. It werke lesse. I will have mercy vpon the house of Iuda, & will save them, & will be to them the LORD their God. But I will not deliuer them thow they may bowe, bowe, harlot, harlot or harlotmen.

Now when she had weened Lomhama, she concaved agayne, & bare a sonne. Then sayde he: call his name Lo Am: (that is to saye, not my people.) For why? ye receiue not my people, therefore will I be to you. And though the nombre of the chyldren of Israel be as the sands of the see, which can neither be measured nor tolde: yet in the place wher I am saide vnto them, ye be not my people: therefore shall I be to this remnant of them: they be the chyldren of the lymyng God. Then shall the chyldren of Iuda and the chyldren of Israel be gathered together agayne, & shal I be to them as one beate, and then shal I departe out of the land: for greute shalbe the daye of Iseiad.

The ii. Chapter.

Tell youre brethera, that they are my people: and youre systeren, that they haue receayued mercy. As for youe my mother, ye shal dyde with her, and reponne her: for she is not my wife, neyther am I hir husbande: mlesse she putt awaye hir whorisme out of my sight, and hir whorismen from hir beddes. If so, I shal styte by her naked, & set her, euen as she came in to y^e world: yet I shal laye hir waste, & make her like a wilde best, and I shal reher for thyfite. I shal haue no pryce also vpon hir chyldren, for they be the chyldren of fornicacion.

Their mother hath broken hir wedlocke, and she that bare them, is come to confusacion. So he sayde: I wil go after my louers, that geue me my water and my bed, my wyl & my flay, my oyle and my bynde. But I will hege hir waye with thornes, and stoppe it, that she shal not fynde hit footstap: and though she turne after her louers, yet shall she not get them: she shal sette them, but not fynde them. Then shal she say: wyl I, I will go turne agayne to my first husbande, for at y^e tyme was I better at ease, then now. But this wylde synne knowe, wher as I yet gaue her come, wyne, oyle, sylvre and golde, which she hath honged vpon Baal.

Wherefore also will I go take my come & wyne agayne in their fenslon, and set agayne my wyl and my flay, which I gaue her, to couer hir shame. And also will I dyscouer hir foobshenesse, euen wiche sight of his louers, and no man shal deliuer her out of my handes. Moreover, I will take awaye all hir myght, her holy dayes, her newmoone, her Sabbathes and all hie obliuiscence: for I will destroye hir wyngardes and fyge trees, thowgh she saith: lo, here are my wordes, that my louers haue geuyn me. I will make it a wodde, and the wynde beestes shal cate it up: I will punish her also for the dayes of Baal, wherin she caried him, dead ynn him with hir earyages and dyces: when she folowed hir louers, and forgaue me, sayeth the LORD.

Wherefore beholde, I wil call her agayne, bunge her in to a wilderness, and speake frendly vnto her: shal I geue her hir wyngardes agayne, yet and the valley of Acher as a fyre, so shal I hope & comforte. Then shal she synge there as in the tyme of hir youth, & like as in the daye when she came out of the womb of her pēre. Then (saith the LORD) I shall say vnto me: O my boungmaiden, I shall call me none other: for I will call a man by the name of Iſaiah from his mouth, yet shall he not remember their names any more. Then will I make a cōuenaunt with them, with the wyld beasts, with the fowles of the ayre, & with euery thing that cre-eth vpon the earth.

As for bread, freewhe and barrel, I will destroy such out of the lande, & make them to sleepe safely. Thus and I may the more renewe selfe for euermore: yett euen to my self will I may the, in thy crucifixion, in dequyre, willinge thynde selfe and myselfe. In faith also will I may the onto my selfe, though I shal knowe the LORDE, & the same tyme will I shew my selfe friendly and gracious vnto y beauties, I saith the LORDE: I the heauens shal helpe the earth, and the earth shal helpe the come, in myne aide, and they shal be I seia. I will forme them vpo earth, for a sede to myne owne selfe, & will haue mercy vpon her, if it be not vnto mercy. And to chē which were not my people, I will saye: they are my people. And they shal saye: hea my God.

The V. Chapter.

Gather thee, o ye puffed: take hede, o thou householde of Israel: growe care, thou dunghy ouse: for this transgression is come upon you, that are become a snare unto Myselfe, and a spurne vnto the meane of Theodos. They kill sacrifices by hoppe, to begyle the people euermore: they sell and I prayneth in all. I knowe of phi-n in my synners, I knowe in mee byt frome for of pharae is become an harlot, and Israel is defiled. They are not mynded to returne vnto their God, for they haue an rebouls thereof: if they can not the more be LORD.

But the pride of Israel will be rewarded in his face, as both Israel and Ephraim shall fall for their wickedness, and Juda shall be as a snare. They shall come with their sheep & bullocks to sacrifice of LORD, but they shall not finde him, for he is gone from them.
As for the LORD, they have refused him, and therefore he will forsake them: a month they shall devour them with their persecutors.

3 Blot with the Shammes at Gabes, and with the rumpen in Kania, are out of Devotion: upon the yofide of Ben Jemin.
In the time of p'lo ge'hol Ephraim layd me off, therefore dyd I faithfully warme the tyres of Ifraim. See are the princes of Ja-dah become the ephra, that vainuote the fonde-ment of the ephraim? I poure out my wrath upon them layd me off, the ephraim is oppressed, and can have no righte of the lawe: for whyther followe I doctrine of misa. I her seu told I be unto Ephraim as a moth, & to the house of Iuda as a caterpillar.

When the pharisee sawe his sickness, and Juda his deafe: Lephaan wente unto Af-sai, and sent unto him: Iacob: yet comde not he thither yet, for hee was of your payne. I am into Lephaan as a Lyon, and as a Lyons whelpes comde house of Juda. Euen I. I will possesse them, & go my waye. I will take them with me, and no man shal rescue them. I will go, and requeme my place, till they wepe for me, and sette me.

The VI. Chapter.
And thus aduertise they shall set me, and saye; come, let no harme agayne come to the LORDE: for he hath synnet vs, he hath shal beale vs: he hath wounded vs, he shall brynne vs wth agayne: after two dayes shall he quene vs, in the thurde daye he shall reue vs wth agayne: he shall iustifie vs. Then shall we haue our endenbange, 2 and our cur felice as frome the LORDE.

The vii, Chap. No. lxxxv.

Thou shalt go forth as the spring of the day, and come out as the cartilage and monition upon the earth.

shal come to lighte. Yet I haue pleasure in lo-uinge thy kynneshe, and not in offeringe: Yet in the knowledge of God, more then in burnt sacrifice. Thy iustice as Dauid shal haue they beeten my coueraine, and yet I as a nedyde. Salad is a case of wiced doers, of malicene people and blaspheymers. The multitude of the prestes is like a heape of thous, murderers & blaspheymers for they haue murdred abaddon a coon. Terrible thin-ges haue I sene in the house of Iudas they playe vpon the harlot, the harlot, and Iruel is defiled: wher Iuda shall haue an hart for himself when Ireneme the capteyne of my people.

Exo. 1. a

Like a sin the daye when she came out of the londe of Egipt. Then (saith the LORDE) she shall saye unto me: O my householde, & she shall call me remore Baal: for I wil take awaye the name of Baal from her mouth, yet she shall neuer remember: their names eny more. Then will I make a covenante with them, with the wyld beasts, with the foules of the ayre, & with every thinge that creepeth upon the earth.

Esa. 1. b

As for booke, first be and bared, I will destroye forth out of the londe, & will make them to sleepe safely. Thus will I marye the unto my neere ones self for evermore: yet even to my self will I marye the, in righteousnesse, in equitye, in lovinge thyne selfe and mercy. In saich alse will I marye the unto my self, & thou shalt knowe the LORDE. At the same tyme will I shame my self friendly and gracious tyme of becomynge, saith the LORDE: & the heavens shall helpe the earth, and the earth shall helpe the come, wyne and oyle, and they shall helpe Iſrael. I wil some them up to earth, for a seker to myne awne self, & wil have mercy upon her, & wil have her to my mercy. And so the which were not my people, I wil saye: thou art my people. And she shall saye: thou art my God.

Amos. 1. a

When saide I LORDE to me: Go yet & wyve & wyne an adulterous woman, with thy neighbour leach, as I LORDE doth the child of Iſrael: how be it they have respect to strange goddes, and love the wyne barnes. So I gat her for y. silveringes, and for an homr and an half of barley, & saye unto her: Thou shalt byde with me a longe season, but se that thou playest neere the barlot, and lette thou medle with none other man, & thou wilt I kepe my self for the.

Thus: the child of Iſrael shall se a grea te while withoute thinge and payne, without offeringe and aulter, without priest and reuelacion. But a fewe warde shall the child of Iſrael conuerse, and se the LORDE their God, and Dauid their kinge: and in y. latter daye they shall worshippe the LORDE, and his leaue they shall see.

Sure y. woide of the LORDE, o ye child of Iſrael: for the LORDE muste punyssh the, y. dwel in the land. And why? There is no faithfulness, there is no mercy, there is no knowledge of God in the lde: but swearinge, lyge, manslaughter, they fe and aboute y. have gotten the overhant, & one blowe bynnesse followeth another. Therfore shall the londe be in a miserable case, and all they that dwell therein, shall moorne. The beasts in the felde, the foules in y. ayre, and the fishes in the see shall crye. For that name, thea wil chafte not repose on another. The priestes which shal be reforme other wyl, as be comelike the people.

Therfore stembles thou in y. daye, & the prophet not the in the night. I wil linge thy mother to silence, & thy wyppes perishe, because they have not knowledge. So y. gether hatte thou as refused and of myng, therfore wil I refuse y. also: so that thou shalt enmore be my peoff. And for so much thou hast forgotten the lawe of thy God, I wil also forger thy chafte. I hemouthy increase in multitude, the more they from agaynst me, therfore wil I charge them in noue in to shame. They eate up the frum of my people, & couage them in shew and nesse. Thus the priest is become like the people. Wherfore I wil punyssh them for the. And so y. remembre them according to a her owne ymaginacion: & they shall be no more y. know: They haue used to my me, therfore shall they not prosper: & they haue sought in the LORDE, & not found him.

Wherfore, wyne and brome encrease the herre awaye. My people are comen to their stockes, their staffe must tell them. In an whorish mynde hath discomen them: & they comen fornicacion agaynst their God. They make sacrifice upon the hie mountaynes, & burne their incense upon the hills, amonge the oles, growes & basshes, for here a good shad owne. Therfore y. boughten are become harlottes, and y. sellen have made their wethlocke: & wil not knowe y. boughten for thinge be frise, & y. liden that became wethores: for the the selves them selfes have made with harlots, & offered with wethers: but the people the wil not be despende, must be punyssh.

Though thou Iſrael are helpid in y. ye y. harlot, yet shaltest thou not be helpid by y. Juda: thou shaltest not be helpid by y. Galgala, nor haue gone up to Zion, nor haue sworn: the LORDE thy God, for thou is gone backe like a wethen come. I helpe the shal make his febe, as y. liden y. chafte. And where as the pharisee in me partaker of Idoles, wil let him go. The bond of nesse hath put the backe, & thought them to reforme. The V. Chapter.

¶ Therefore, o ye priests: take heede, o thou householde of Israel: gaze carefully vpon this house: for this cause, and came vpon you, that it shoulde become a snare vnto Iſſaia, and a snare next vnto the name of Chaldei. They kill sacrifices by heapes, to purge the people therewith: they will I praye them all. ¶ I knowe Iſſaia saith vnto you, 2 Iſrael is not byd for me: for Iſſaia will become an harlot, and Iſtaim is defiled. They are not mynded to remember God, for they haue as robbeth here, & they can not knowe the LORDE.

But the pride of Iherusalem be rewarded in this way, ye both Iherusalem and Ephraim shall fall for their wickednesse, and Iuda and samaria also. They shall come with their scepter bulleden roses of IORDE, but they shall not fynde him, for he is gone from them, as for the LORDE, they have refused him, and brought up bassarde dybbens, a moneth therefor shall I deuoure them with their po-uerty.

Juda his brother: I Ephraim will say to him, I will send unto him Jacob's bow, and he will be his help, nor save you of your payme.
And unto Ephraim as a lion, and as a lion will persue the house of Juda. And I, I will sacrifice our selues to thome the LORD.

The vii. Chap. Ho. lxxxv.

Thou shalt go forth as the springe of the daye, and come vnto vs as the eueninge and morn-nynges vnto the earth. Psa. 138.

The ix. Chap.

Ephraim is like a dove, that is beguiled, and hath no prudence. They call they upon the Egyptians, now go they to the Assyrians: but whither they be gonege here and there, I shall sende myne owne them, & bowe them downe as if foules of the ayre: and a scourge as they have bene warned, so wil I paynsh them. Doe he vnto them, for they have forsake me. The ymasse be desyre yd, for they haue sette me as naughte. I am he that haue re-demmed them, and yet they dyssemble w me.
They call not upon me wch their harues, but the yongling upon their beddes. Where as they come to grete her, it is but for meate & drinke, and me wil they not obeye. I haue taughte them, and be sende their arme, yet do they imagine in theise agaynst me. They curre them selues, but not a righte, & are become as a broken bowe. Their paynes shal be flame of the sweate, for the malice of their tongues, such blasphemies haue they lmed in the londe of Egypte.

The VII. Chapter.

Settle home to chymouth, and blos-ter to the house of the LORD: for they haue broken my covenante, and transgressed my lawe. Isteal cause vnto me: thou art my God, we knowe the: but he hath refused the thing that is good. therefore shall the enemye followe upon him. They haue quened kinges, but not thou w me they haue made prince, and I must not knowe of it.

Of thei flint and golde haue they made them ymages, to bringe them selues to destruction.

ther grat they him thei synne offeringe but thei le vnto them as a mouer man, wher all they that eate them, are desirous.
For the bird that they haue sate luste

Thei synne shal ouergrowe ther pla-visitation is come, the dayes of recompsinge are at hande. As for the prophet, y helde him for a foule: and him that is rich in the space, for a mad man: so greates is your wickednes and malice. Ephraim hath made himself a watchman of my God, a puppet yf i a become a snare to do harme many synne, and abhominacion is in the house of God. They be gone to synne, & haue desirous thei selues, like as they dyd a foule tyme at Gibba. Therefore thei wickednes shal becomberd, and thei synne purgish.

I sende Israel like grapes in the chynnes, & sume thei fathers as thei first syn-y toppe of y figge tre. But they are gone to Dall Peon, & runne a waye fro me to y full Iddol, & are become as abhominacion thei lones. Ephraim synne like a dyde shal thei glory a lye: In so much y thei netter begere, & cease net beare synne.

The prophet Esai.

And though they bringe up my, yet will I make them childlike among men. And we shall come to them, when I departe from them. Ephraim (as me thought) is planted in wickednesse, like as Tyne, but now must I hewer his stone children forth to the sea shore.

THE ORDE thou shalt geue them; what shall thou geue them? geue them an vnsure fitt name, and bye blesse. All their wickedsnesse to done at Chalal, there do I abhorre them. For the vngodlinesse of their own imaginations, I will destroye them out of my land. I will loose their name, for all their persons are an fitt full. Ephraim is become a house, therefore is layed up, so if they shall loose name, frute: yet and though they looke for frute, yet will I laye downe the best wether frute of their body. My God shall call them awaye, for they haue not bene obedient vnto him, therefore shall they go astraye among the heathen.

The X. Chapter.

I SHall make a goodly wyne, but he hath broughte forth an vnsensible frute: yet the more frute he had, the more he made: for more good I dyd to their lome, the more friendshipes shewed they to their ymagines. They haue not decayed, therefore they be destroyed. The LORDE shall breake downe their ymagines, he shall destroye their altars. Then shall they saye: we haue no hope, for why? we haue not feared the LORDE. And what shall then the kinge do for us? They comen so geether, and sure as daye we theye they be cōfessoure together, they see groweth their punishment, as the wether in the stormes of the londe.

They that dwell in Samaria haue worshipped the calf of Bethaue: therefore shall the people mourne ouer them, yet and the pities all, thus in their wickednesse theye seduced them and whored: it shall passe awaye from them. It shall be broughte to the Assirian, for a preface vnto kinge Iarch. Ephraim shall receiue full punishment: Israel shall be confounded for his own imaginations, Samaria of his kinge shall vanish awaye, as the sonne vpon the desert. To cheyrt place of Azen where Israel doo fynde, shall be cast burnetushilles and thornes shall growe vpon their altars. Then shall they saye to yf we maye come to our water, and to the bulles: fall vpon vs.

O Israel, thou hast synned as Sabaas hath synned, where they remayned: shall come the Lord: thus come vpon the wicked

children, as well as vpon the Sobaonites: I will chasten them, even as first wyne cometh to drye, the people shall be gathered together ouer them, when I punish them for their greates wickednesse. Ephraim was vnto me, as a cow that is used to go to plowe, therefore I loved him, and fill vpon his face need. I doo use Ephraim, I doo plowe, I doo plow the husbande man: thus they mighte haue vnto righteousnesse, and reape the frutes of wedyng: yf they mighte plowe vpon their field londe, and se the LORDE, all he came, and learned them righteousnesse.

But now they haue plowed them with ednesse, therefore shall they reape synne, and eate the frute of synne. Beinge they on purpouse they cōfidence in thine owne waye, and leasten yf multitude of thy wordes: where shall growe a fiction amonge thy people. All yf I seege cities shall be layed waste, euen as Salmana was destroyed with his familiars, therefore him that was awenged of Azen in the daye of dale, where yf wecher pershyed with his children. Euen so shall I go with you: (Be they) be cause of your malicious wickednesse, like as the mountain geeth awaye, so shall the kinge of Israel passe.

The XI. Chapter.

When Israel was yge, I loved him: and called my sonne out of the londe of Egypte. But yf more they were called, the more they were bad: theye synge vnto Idoles, and consynge ymages. I sende Ephraim to go, and bare them in myne armes, but they regarded not me, that wolde haue helped them. I led them into the borders of friendshipes, I with banded a floure, I was euen he, that layed the yoke vpon their neckes. I giue them their fodder myself, yf they shalbe not go agayne in to Egypte: And now is Assur the kinge: for they wolde not carne vnto me. Therefore shall yf I sweate be synne in their cities, the store that they haue lickered vnto, shall be destroyed and eaten vpon: that be cause of their own imaginations. My people hath no lustre tyme vnto me, their prophetes laye the yoke vpon the, but they ease them not of their burthen.

What greates thinges haue I geuen the, o Ephraim: how faithfully haue I defended the, o Israel: haue I dealt with the as with Adamas: or haue I increased the like Sebeim: No, my heart is set vnto synners. For my mercy is to synners: therefore haue I not turned me to destroye Ephraim in my wrathful dispensacion. For I am God and no man, I am euen that holy one in thym ydell of the, though I came not within the cite.

The LORDE ſaith like a lyon, that they maye ſolowme him: Yee as a lyon teacheth he, that they maye be aſſured, like the children of the ſea: that they maye be ſcared awaye from Egipt, as men ſcare bydes: & ſcared awaye (as bones were to be) from the Aſſiſians lonke: and that becauſe I wolde haue them eate at home, ſaith the LORDE. But Eſaias ſaith yett above me with lies, and the houſe of Iſrael ſaith ſilly. O why Iuda holdeth him with God, and with the true holy thinges.

The XII. Chapter.

Eſaias ſaith after the caſt wynde: he is euer increaſing ſpore deſtruction. They be conſiderate with the Aſſiſians, their eye is turned into Egipt. The LORDE hath a councill to holde with Iuda, and wil puniſh Iacob: & ſer their owne waies and a counſell to their owne auerſion, ſhal he reſentence them. He took his brother by the heale, when he was yet in his mothers wombe: and in his ſtrength he was ſlaved with God. He ſtroue much with the Angel, and gat the victorie: he had he played, and deſpyed him. He ſaith Iuda as Baſhel, & there he talked wth vs.

Reſeth the LORDE God of hoſtes, euen yf the LORDE him ſelf remembred him: Then euen to thy God, kepe mercy and cquyte, and hope ſtill in thy God. But the merchant hath a ſaile might in his hande, he hath a pleaſure to occupie cōſcience. Eſaias ſaith keep Iuda Tuth, I am rich, I haue geat y-nough: I will my workes ſhal not enſe ſaue be ſonour, that I haue offended. Yet am I the LORDE thy God, and as when I brought the out of the lande of Egipt, and ſit the in thy tentes, and as in the bye ſeaſt thou yea.

I haue ſpoken choiſe the prophetes, and ſhewed diuerſe viſions, and declared my ſelf by the manifeſtation of yf prophetes. But at Galaad is the abominacion, they are fallen to wanyte. At Galaad they haue ſlaine open: and as many heapes of ſtones as they had in their lode ſtones, ſo many altiers haue they made. Iacob ſlede into the lonke of Suna, and Iſrael ſerued for a wife, and ſo: a wife he kepte ſhepe.

By a prophete the LORDE brought them out of Egipt, and by a prophete he preferred the. But Eſaias hath provoked him to diſpleaſure: he ſhow his abominacion: therefore ſhal his bloud be poured upon him ſelf, and the LORDE his God ſhal rewarde him his blaſphemies.

The XIII. Chapter.

The abominacion of Eſaias is meaſured into Iſrael. He ſaith Iuda to Baal, that ſo muſt he be. Now they ſynne more and more: of the ſeuer, they make them ſolde in ymagis, like the Idols of the heathen, and yett all is exchange but the worke of the craftſmen. The wiſtſidinge they preach of the ſame: they ſo will tyſe the calues, offer hee to men. They ſay they ſhal be as the mourning doctes, and as the dore that early paſſeth awaye: and be as duſt that yf wynde take it awaye from the floor, and as ſmoke that geeth him yf chimney.

I am the LORDE thy God, which brought the out of the lande of Egipt: that thou ſhouldeſt knowe no God but me: only thou ſhouldeſt haue no ſtature but me. I ſeeke diligent heede of the in the motion: that they ſeeme. But when they ſee me reſt ſeide and had y-nough, they are ſlumbered, and forgot me. Therefore will I be to them as a lyon, and as a leopard when I come to the Aſſiſians. I will come upon them as a ſheber, that is robbed of his wages, and I will beate that ſubburne harte of Iuda. There will I deuenct them as a ſcorpion: to the beaſtes ſhal teach them.

O Iſrael, thou doſt but deſtroye thy ſelf: In me only is thy helpe. Where are thy thynges new, that ſhoulde helpe thee in al thy thynges? Yee and thy iurges, of whom thou deſt: geue me a kinge, and prynces: well, I haue the a kinge in my mouth, and in my pleaſure will I take him from the agayne. The wickedneſſe of Eſaias is become greater, & his ſynne leech hyd. Therefore ſhal ſeruiſes come upon him, as upon a woman that tramaleth. An iudgement ſometime to be conſidered not, that he ſhalde neyther bene able to haue and wth in the ryme of his byth, had not I be ſerued him from the geat, and deliuered him from death.

O bech, I will br thy death: o ſhall I will be thy ſtyng. Yee can't ſe no conſonſhip, when he is now the goodlyſt amonge the heathen, the eaſt wynde cometh the wynde of the LORDE ſhal come downe from the wth derneſſe, and drye up his conſonſhip, and drye up his wille: he ſhal ſpoyle the conſonſhip of al pleaſant viſſels.

As for Samaria, they ſhal be made wth & why they are diſobedient unto the LORD. They ſhal periſh with the ſeruaunt, which diſobedient ſhal be ſlaine, and their wth derneſſe ſhal be drye up.

The prophet Joel.

The ij. Chap.

and the shepe are famished awaye.

¶ THE LORD, & so the will I crie: for the fyre hath consumed the goodly pastures of the wyldernes, and the flanne hath burne up all the trees of the felde. See the wynde belesse are also vnto theise: for the water ryuers are dryed ap, and the fyre hath consumed the pastures of the wyldernes.

The ii. Chapter.

Blowe out y^e cympanes in Sion, & crie vnto my holy hill, y^e all sodi adonim the londe, maye treble at it: for y^e daye of the LORD cometh, & is harde as honde: a daye of daye, a gloomyng daye, a cloudy daye, yet a sonny daye, like as the morninge speareth out vnto the hilles: I namely, a greates myghty people: sodi as haue not benefens y^e begynnyng, neyther shal be a freeth in for euermore. Before him shal be a consuming fyre, & beynde him a burninge flamm. The londe shal be as a garden of pleasure to kepe him, but behinde him shal it be as a very wast wyldernes: & there is no man, that shal scape him. They are to lye vpon like dayedde bodies, & runne like horse men. They stypp vpon y^e hilles, as it were the soure of charcoles: as the flams of fyre that consume the steare, and as a myghty people reioyce in the bonell.

Before the helde a frayed of him, all faces shal be as blacke as a poe. These shal esse like graunes, & leape ouer the walles like men of warre. Euen y^e main his gouern shal tepe his arie, & not ge out of his path. The te shal not one drye another, but eche shal kepe his owne waye. They shal breake in at the mynydowes, & not be hurte: They shal come into the cite, & runne vpon the walles: They shal clymme vpon the hoofes, & stypp in at the ryndowes like a cheste. The wall shal quake before him, yet the heauen shal it mooued: the Sonne & Moone shal be daunted, and the starres shal with drawe their shynt. The LORD shal shewe his deyet before his hooff, for his hooff is greates, strengre & myghtier to fulfill his conuindment. This is y^e greates and maruelous fearfull daye of the LORD: And no ho is able to abyde it.

Come the sefe saith the LORD. Turne you vnto me with all youre herres, with fastyng, wepyng, and mourninge: reuise youre herre, & not youre clothe. Turne you vnto the LORD y^e your God, for he is grauous & meris full, longe sufferyng & of greates compassion: reioyce to pardoone wickednes. Then (no doubt) he also shal runne, & so geue, & after his chafteyng, he shal let youre in crease remaine, for meate & drynd offerynges vnto the LORD y^e your God: Blowe out with the cympanes in Sion, proclama a fastyng, all the congregacion, & gather the people together: marne the congregacion, gather the elders, bringe the chylde & suckyngs together. Let y^e byrde come ge somb of his dylde, & the byrde one of her cloffes: & the pisse seue the LORD becom the pond of auler, wepyng & sauyng: be sauyng the LORD be sauyng vnto the people: not thine heretage be brought sothy confusion, lest the chylde be leades that of the sefe shoulde they saye amonge the chylde, & where is now the God?

Then shal the LORD be gelesous eny his londe, & spare his people: yet y^e LORD shal asure, & saye vnto his people: Repoyde. I wil sende you come, wyne & oyle, & chere shal haue plenty of chere: I wil nominate you ouer to be a ree people amonge the hethen. A gayne, as for hum of the neth, I shal byrde him farre from y^ence: thence him out eoa daye and moost londe, his face comate, the east, and his bynder passowards, the westmost se. The stynde of hum shal ge up, and his fylthy corrupcion shal fall vpon himself, because he hath deale so poodly: feare not (o londe) but be glad and reioyce: for the LORD wil ge grace chynge. Deuote a frayed neyther (o ye eastes of the silde): for the pastures shal be greene, and the thernes shal beate then frute: the figgetre & vnyue shal geue their increase.

We glode then (o ye chylde of Sion) and reioyce in the LORD y^e your God, for he hath geuen you the teacher of righteuousnes: & it is y^e shal sende you deuote shewers of wyne, early and late in the first moneth: & then y^e garners shal be full of wine, and the pisse shal plentyous in wyne and oyle. And as in the yeres that y^e gretepyper, locust, blastyng & caterpillar (my greates hooff, whiche I sent amonge you) haue earen ap, I shal reue them to you agayne: so that ye shal be ynnyng to eate, and be satisfide: and put se the name of the LORD y^e your God, that so maruelously hath deale with you.

And my people shal not be confounded eny more: ye shall well knowe, that I am in the myddest of Irael, and that I am y^e your God: yete and that there is noue other, and my people shal nomore be brought in confusion.

After this, wyl I poure out my spyrit vpon all fleshy: & so somes & y^e dought shal prophete: & so eche me shal become se he hath increased y captyue of the kinge of Edom to Moab. The fore wil I sende a fyre in to Moab, which shal consume y palaces of Cariach, which shal perishe with a noyse, and the same of a swarme. I wil reare out the wyche amonge them, and slaye all his prynces out of Egypt, and saydest, You only have I accepted from all the generations off the earth: how shall I reject you in all your iniquities. I saye to you, in like manner they be agreed among themselves: Doth a lyon beate in the modde, except he have a prey? Or crieth a lyon whelpes out of his denne, except he have gotten fennib?

 Doth a lyon fall in a snare out of earth where no foules in? Telleth a man his snare out from the grounde, afore he catche the fennib? They crye out Alarum with the trumpet, and the people are afrayd: Cometh they anye plagin a ciie, without the LORD be bringer? Troweth he the LORD be no manner of thinge, but he telleth a feare be fore into his seruantes of purpose. When a lyon roareth, who

Therefore, thus saith the LORD God:
The land shall be troubled and be pined from debility, thy strength shall be brought from the archy palaces robbed. Thus saith the LORD: Like an hyndman catcheth a male lion a piece off an ear out off the E. yoma dwell in Samaria, havinge their conches in the corner, and their beddes at Damascus)

Garethis words, a ye sae byne, that be upon the hill of Samaria: ye that do poore murther, and oppresse the nedy: yet that saye to youre lorden be yuge by ther, lea us wynde. Therfore the LORD hath sworn by his helmes: The daye ye shall come upon you, that ye shall lye vpon the speeres, and youre possyetie carried awaye in syluer pannes. Ye shall see you one at the gap pes out: after another, and in Armon shall ye be cast a waye. I sweth the LORD.

He came to Zechi four more in his gra-ciousness, and he made increase yonre fruit in the land. He brought yore sacrifices in the morning, and yore offerings into the thirde daye. He made a right offeringe of feare, ye praised him from all offspringe, and proclaimed them. Soch lust had ye, ye children of Ista-me sayeth the LORD.

I haue mynen you with bowch and blasting: and lo! he how many orchards, vineyar

Gen Ig-
A, PFI ab

Hear this words o ye house of Israel: why? I must make thus more for you: The wyghte Israel shall fall, & manner lyf up agayne: she shall be cast downe upon her owne grounde, and no man shall helpe her up. For thus sayeth y^e LORD God: Where as there dwelle a thym one cite, there shall be leste searce an C. therin: and where y^e re dwelle an C. there shall searce ten be left for the house off Israel. Therefore, thus sayeth the LORD unto y^e house off Israel: Se, a fear me, ad ye shall live, but se, not a fear Bethel. Come not as Gulgai, and go not to Bersaba: for Gulgai shall be carved awaye as caprye, and Bethel shall come to naughte. Seke the LORD, y^e y^e maye lyve, lest the house off y^e oycph be burnt with fyre and consumed, and lest there be none to quench Bethel.

Returne the lawe to remembrance, and cast downe righte doyns into the grounde. The LORD maketh the oyc, starres and the Cryone, he turneth the righte into baye, and off the baye ye maketh bar chymse. he calleth y^e wakers of the see, and poureth them out vpon the playne grounde: the LORD is his name. he seyth, destruction vpon the myghte people, & bringeth downe the strong hold: but they owe him euel will, y^e reproacheth them openly, and who so tallecth the the playne treuth, they abhorre him. for so much the as ye oppresse y^e poore, and robbe him of his best sustenance, therefore, where as ye haue builded houses off square stone, ye shall not dwell in them: nor shall ye plant, but ye wyne of she shall ye not drym: and why? as for the multitude off youre wickednesses, and youre foule synes.

Therefore, I drewe them right well. Therefore are ye off the righte waye, ye take rewardes, ye oppress the poore in iudgemente. Therefore the wyse must now be synicro holdes his tuge, so much as a tyme it is.

Seke after the things that is good, & not euel, so shall ye lyve: for the LORD God off hostes shall be with you, as a combing to youre owne desyre. Hate the euel, and lose the good: set up right agayne in the paxte: & no doubt, the LORD God off hostes shall be mercifull unto the remnant off Joseph. If he maye the LORD God, the God off hostes: where shall be mourning in all strates, yet they shall saye every strete alas, alas. They shall calle the house downe man to lamentaion, and schyn can comorte, to mourne.

In all synarbes there shall be heynesse, for I will come amonge you, sayeth the LORD. Woe be unto them that desyre the daye off y^e LORDE: Wherefore woulde ye have it? Behold, saye of the LORD, is when a man shall be a Lyon, and a Beest meeth with him, shall he cometh into the house, and dwelle in the house upon the wall, as a serpent byteth him: shall not the baye of the LORD be hark, and not cleare: shall it not be cloudy, and shyn in it?

I have and a shoure youre holy baye, & where as ye cease me when ye come, shall I will not accept it. And though y^e offer me burnt offerings and meaze offerings, ye have I no pleasure therein: As for youre in thare offeringes, I will not lofe vpon them. Awaye with that noise of chymse, I will not heare chy playes, o of musicke: but ke the equyte flowe as the water, and righte as the se as a mightie stream. O ye house of Israel, game ye me offeringes and sacrifice, sixti. yeares long in the wyldernesse: yet have ye set up altars to youre Idols, as ymagines of youre Idols. Yet do the stars of youre god Remph, figures as which ye make to worshippe them. Therfore will I awaye be carried awaye beyonde Damascus, stand the LORD, whose name is the God off hostes.

The VI. Chapter.

Wo be to theye prebte welth in Bethel, as thine thesif fire vpon mount of Samaria: which holde them selas for the best of the moode, and to the house of Israel, cal as they list. So to Calne, and se: and from thence greye ye to Hamath the greates cite, and so go downe. Each of the Philistines: be they better as se then thesif Kingdome, as the beider of se is longe wyder then yours. Therefore, se shall be the end baye, even ye that se in the fele of wysdomesse: se that ye upon bedes of yuery, and use youre wysdomesse vpon ye conches: ye that care the best lammes off flood, and the fattest calves off the mount: ye that synge to the lute, and in playne of instrumentes comper: youre selas meke, and ye that bynde wyne out as goldes, & anyman youre selas with the best anye, & no man is say for Joseph herte. Therefore now shall ye be the first of them that shall be amaze as caprye, and the lusty den of the wyfull shall come to an ende.

The LORD God hath sworn, and he himself sayeth the LORD God off hostes: I have the pryde of Jacob, and I abhorre his palaces: and I will geue over the alle that is therein: so that though they maye with them vnto Charis from the presence of the LORD. But the LORDe purled a greete wynde in to the see, and there was a mighty tempest in the see, so that the shippe was in to perdy of goinge in pece. Then the marynars were a frayde, and crieth euery man vnto his god: and the goodes that were in the shippe they cast into the see, to lighten it off them. But Jonas gat him vnder a baedye, where he layed him downe and slombeth.

B So the master of the shippe came to him and sayde vnto him: why slombest thou? Up, call vpon thy God: for God happily will thyke vpon vs, that we perishe not. And they sayde one to another: come, let vs cast lottes: that we maye knowe, for whose cause we are thus troubled. And so they cast lottes, and the lot fell vpon Jonas.

Mat. 12

Then they cryed vnto him: tell vs, for whose cause are we thus troubled? what is thine occupation? whene comest thou a? what countrie art thou of, and of what nation? he answered them: I am an Hebrew, and I feare the LORD God of heauen, which made both the see and the lande. Then were they exceedingly a frayde, and sayde vnto him: why dost thou so? (for they knewe, that he was fleyd from the presence of the LORDe, because he had tolde them) and sayde maroer vnto him: What shall we do vnto the, that the see maye cease from troublinge vs? (for the see wroughte and was troublesome) he answered them: Take me, and cast me in to the see, so shall it be quiet for me: for I wote it is for my sake, that this greete tempest is come vpon you.

Mat. 12

Then they leste the shippe to lode: but it wolde not be, because the see wroughte so, and was so troublesome agaynst them. Wherefore they cryed vnto the LORD, and sayde: O LORD, let vs not perishe for this mans death, neither laye thou innoceut bloude vnto our charge: for thou O LORD, hast done, when as thy pleasure was.

So they toke Jonas, and cast him in to the see, and the see lesse ragynge. And the men feared the LORD exceedingly, doynge sacrifices and makinge voyces vnto the LORD.

The II. Chapter.

Mat. 12

B Vnto the LORD prepared a greete fysh, the which swallowed vp Jonas. So was Jonas in the belly of the fysh, thre dayes and thre nyghtes. And Jonas prayed vnto to the LORD his God, out of the fysh thus he sayde: In my trouble I called vnto the LORD, and he heard me: out of the belly of hell I cried, and thou heardest my voyce. Thou haddest cast me downe into the deep: but I besought thee, and the flood compassed me aboute: yett althys waters and routes of death were out me, I thought that I had bene cast awaye out of thy sight: but I had yett agayne lode compassed thy doyleme.

The waters compassed me aboute, and the firy floure he depe laye aboute me, and the waters were waped aboute myne heade, I came downe to the bottom of the helles, and was barred in with earth for ever. But when the LORD my God hast broughte s of my life agayne out of corruption. When my soule sayed me from death, I thought vpon the LORD: and my praye came in vnto thee, and to thy holy temple. They that belee of thyne manye, and forsake thy mercy. But I will do the sacrifice which thy voice of thankes synge, and will paye that I haue vowed: he why: I saluacon cometh of the LORD. And if the LORD spake vnto the fysh, and cast out Jonas agayne vpon the drye lande.

The III. Chapter.

Then came the woode of the LORD vnto Jonas agayne, sayynge thus: get thee to L. vnto the greete cite, and preach vnto them the preachinge, which I bade the. So Jonas arose, and wente to Ninine: and the LORDS commaundment was a greete cite vnto God, namely, of the dayes iourney.

And Jonas wente so, and entered in to the cite: and a dayes iourney, and cryed, sayinge: There are yett dayes, and then the cit must be overthrowen. And the people of Ninine beleued God, and proclaimed fasting, and arrayed them (that is to saye) in sack cloth, as well the greete as the small of them. And they dynges came vnto the synge of Ninine, and arose out of the fysh, and by his apparel off, and put on sack cloth, and fasted downe in all theye.

And it was cryed and commended in Ninine, by the auctorite of the kyng and his lordes, sayynge thus: neither man nor best, nor o shepe: shall oughe at all hande: that neither fede nor drinke more: but put on sack cloth both man and best, and crye mightily vnto God: yf that to every man maye be a small mercy, and from the which the citye maye be saved.

The prophet Jonas.

Whom call: God maye turne, and rep-and ease from his searce mouth, that we parh not. And when God sawe their woe-his, he repented on the evill, such he sayde he woude do unto them, and byd it not.

The IIII. Chapter.

Wherfor Jonas roan sore discontente, and angrie. And he prayd unto the LORDE and sayde: O LORDE, was wreth my seyrge: I praye the when I was in my countrie: therefore I hastid sa-ther to saye Chariois, for I knowe well that thou art a mercifull God, full of compassion, lōge sufferinge, and of gratiousnesse, and repente when thou shal-dest see punishment. And now O LORDE, take my life frome: I briste the for I had rather be yee then lyue. Then sayde the LORDE: art thou so angrie? And Jonas gat him out of the cite, and sat downe ou y east syde ther of: and there made him a boche, and sat under it in the shadowe. All the night se, what shoulde he do: and wote the cite.

And the LORDE God prepared a wythe wyre, which spanne up oue Jonas, that he might haue shadowe aboue his heade, so that he was out of his payne. And Jonas was exccratinge glad of the wythe wyre.

But vpon the nexte mornynge yuste he sprang out of the wythe. The LORDE ordered a worme, which moore the wythe wyre, so that it returned awaye. And when the Sonne was up God prepared a feruent east wynde: and the Sonne bare oue the heade of Jonas, that he sayde agayne, and wysshed vnto his soules that he might dye, and sayde: It is better for me to dye, than to lyue. And God sayd vnto Jonas: Art thou so angrie for the wythe wyre? And he sayde: yee very angrie am I vnto the wythe. And the LORDE sayde: thou hast compassion vpon a wythe wyre, where thou be lorddest no laboure, nor may best a greuouslyd swainge up in one night and passed in another. And shouldest not I

The Prophet Michaeas.

What Michaeas conteyneth.

Chap. I. He reproveth the people of Iffrael and Iuda for their wickednesse and Ido-latrie. he telleth them their punishment with more of rage.

Chap. II. He reproveth their abominacione.
Chap. III. He reproveth the officers and the priests, as a cause of the people misery.

Chap. IIII. A prophecy of the saluacion of Gods people in the last of his kyngdom, and power of his gospell.

Chap. V. Another reproofe. Our owne offerences are excused, and here is declared what God requyeth of man.

Chap. VI. The summe of the thinges before sayde. The litle flosse of the church.

The first Chapter.

This is the worde of the LOR-DE, that came vnto Michaeas the Monastice, in the dayes of Joathan, Achas and Ezechias kings of Iuda: which was shewed him vpon Samaria and Ierusalem.

Heare all ye people, marke this well o eare, and all that therein is: yee the LORDE God himselfe be witnesse amonge you, euen if LORDE from his holy temple. For why? be-holde, the LORDE shal go out of his place, & come downe, and treade vpon the highe places of the carch. The molleynesse shall consume vnder him, & the valleye shal cleue asunder, like as waxe chumeth at the fyre, & as y mace runneth downe warde. And all this shal be for the wickednesse of Iacob, and the syn-nes of the house of Iffrael.

But what is the wickednesse of Iacob? B Is not Samaria? Which are the hye places of Iuda: Is not Ierusalem? Therefore I shal make Samaria an heape of stones in the fel-d, colayes aboute the wyneyard: her stones shal I cast in to the valley, & discoure her felidacion. All her ymages shal be broke downe & all her wyrynages shal be burned in the fyre: yea all hir Idols will I destroye: for why, they are gathered out of the byre of an whorre, & into an whoren byre, that they be turned agaayne. Wherefore I will moue I make la-mentacion, bare & naked will I go: I must mourne like y dynges, & take for othe as y Efraim: for their woude is past remedy. And why? it is come in to Iuda, & hath couched y power of my people at Ierusalem alreedy. Wepenot, lest they be with peccance in.

The prophet Michas.

C Then at Metaphis, welcome thy self in the dust and in the mire. Thou that dwellest at Sephar, see the place much stonier. The people shall booke thee in remembrance for very soreness: why? thou neglectest shall I take from thee wher thou hast. It shall be like unto cure he hath, that it shall not be so well: but for all that, the plague shall come from the LORD, even into the place of Jerusalem. The greater noyse of the char-rettes shall scare them, when they shall see the charrettes of Sion, for in the came up the wickednesses of Iherusalem. See the stone but consider not the longer of Sion.

The howles of lies will discomf the Syngogue of Israel. And as for the (e)ther that dwelleth at Tyrus, I shall bringe a possi-bilitie vpon the, and the plage of Ihuſai ſhal reache vnto the, I ſhal ſee the balbe, and ſhal ſee the, by cauſe of thy cruell children: I ſhal ſee the cleane balbe as an Aſſe, for they ſhalde cand awake as captiue from the.

The IL Chapter.

¶ O onto them, that ymagyn to do harme, and beuysf vngreuousnesse upon their heddes, so presumuous in their cleare daye: for their powerte agaynst God. When they couere haue longe, they take by violence, they robbe men off their haire.

And b Thus they oppresse a mā for his house, & curtyrman for his heritage. They for this saye the LORD: I will be, & agaynst this house holde hant I Iewysd a plague, & because I shall not place your need: & I shall no more go so piously, for it will be a pious tyne. In that daye shall this exile be tyd, and a mourning shall be made over you en this manner: We be surely de late, & the power of my people is translated. When will be pacifed we the lorde, that he hath taken from us.

25 Man ¶ Twere best if there shalbe no man to be-

But I will gather the inbreds of Jacob and deliver the remnant of Israel all together. I shall say them one such another of the stall, that they may be disquartered men.

Who so breake the gappe, he shall be fore. They shall breake up the pore, and goin and out as it. Their tynge shall ge be re them, and the LORDE shall be upon heade of them.

The III. Chapter.

Where, o ye heade of the house of cobaun, ye leddest o ye heade of traid: Shaldeste be in me, in clawful and righter: Where ye hate the good and loue the euill: ye pleside of men de the selfe of my people, and flay of their lyne: ye breake their bones, ye choppe their

And as concerning the prophesie that against them: When they haue any thing to saye vpon this they preache that all shal be well: as yf a man perceiue some thing to their mouthe, they preache of warre and of hurt.

Therefore your vision shalbe remembred in night, & your people shall crye out in the Sonne shall growe dawninge out their pharos, & the day shall be darkened more than The prophet Andreas.

O hear this ye rulers of the house of Jaco, and ye iudges of the house off Israel: ye that abhorre the thinge that is lawfull, and maist off the thinge that is straight: ye that shalbe uppon Sion with bloude, and Jerusalem with downyewonge. O ye iudges, ye yea for sinners for gyfte: O ye picaies, ye much for lucre: O ye prophetes, ye prophesy for money. Yet and they be take as those that believe vpon God, and saye: Is not the LORD amonge vs? Tuffi, there can no massacres happen vs. Therefore shal Sion (for ye refuse) be plowed like a fild: Jerusalem shal become an heape of stones, and the hill off y temple shal be turned to an hye wodde.

Chapell. Chapter.

In the latter dayes it wil come to passe, that the hill off the LORDES house shalbe set up hyer then any mountaynes or hilles: yee the people shal pisee into it, and the multitude off the Gentiles shal best them there, saye ge: Come, let us go up to the hill off the LORD, 2 to the house off the God of Jacob: that he maye reade vnto us, and that we maye walke in his pathe.

For the same shall come out off Sion, and the word of God from Jerusalem, and shall beare witness amonge the multitude off the heathen, and reuerent the people off farre countries for that of their swordes they shal make plowshares, and of their speares speares.

On people shall not lift up a swerde against another, yee they shall nomore learne to fight: but every man shal sit vnder his vine yard, and vnder his figge tre, and no man to furre him any waye: for the mouth off y LORD DE of hee shall haue spoken it. Therefore, where as all people haue walked euery man in y name of his owne god, we will walke in the name of oure God for ever and ever. At the last tyme sayeth the LORD: I will gather vp the heathen, and the queenes, and such as a I haue chaufmed: and will geue yssue vnto the same, and make off y outcastes a greates people: and the LORD himself shal be their kynge vpon the mount Sion, froe his tyme forth for evermore. And vnto the O thou tower of Dore, thou stronge holde off the doughty Sion: vnto the shal it come: and the first hollye and hymn of the doughty J shall. Wherfore art thou now so hauey: is the word yge in the: are thy counsellors wises that thou art so payned, as a woman in hir trauayle?

The v. Chap. Po. xciiij.

And now (o thou doughty Sion) be sory, lette greue the as a wife labouring with childe: for now must thou get the out off the cave, and dwell vpon the playn fildes: yee vnto Babel shal thou go, there shal thou be beleuered, and therein the LORD shal low-se the from the home off thine enemies.

Now also are there many people gathered together agaynst the, sayinge: what, Sion is cursed, we shall se oure lust vpon her.
But they knowe not the thoughtes off the LORD: they vnderstande not his counsell, they shal gather them together as the sheeues in the darne. Therefore see the up: o thou doughty Sion, and thus the out the comes for: I wil make thy home yss, and thy clawes brasse, that thou mayest grynde many people: their goodes shal thou appropriate vnto the LORD, and their substance vnto the ruler off the wolde wolde.

The V. Chapter.

I see that shal thou be robbed thy self, o thou robbers doughty: they shal laye sege agaynst us, and smyte the into off Israel with a rodde vpon the cheek. And thou Jerusalem, art little amonge the chousindes off Iuda. Out off the shal come one vnto me, which shal be y gouernour of Israel: whosoe eury oinge hath bene fit on the begynnyng, and from enlartinge. In the meane whyle be ploughed them for a season, vntill the tyme that the which shall beare: haue broken them shal the remnant of his brethren be conuerted vnto y children of Israel. He shal stonde fast, and ge-ue sode in the strengthe of the LORD, and in the victory of the name off y LORD: his God: and when they be conuerted, he shall be magnified vnto the farthest partes of the wolde.

Then shal there be peace, so that the Affrican maye come in to oure lande, and traue in oure houses. He shal bringe vp sheen shepherdes and wiij prynces wth them: the shal subdue the lande of Assir in the street, and the lande of Tyrrus with their naked weapons. Thus shal be deliuered vs from the Assir, when he cometh within oure lande, and stretch his fore within oure borders. And the remnant of Jacob shal be amonge the multitude of people, as the beam off the LORD, and as the droppe vpon the grasse: that earthe for no man, and no watch of no lodey. yee the residue of Jacob shal be c well, so sayeth the iudge: if he maye to pleasur a gayne. The greuous mal speaketh what his brether doeth, & yf he saith a shew him. The best off the is due as a theffe, and the most righe due as of them is but a wane in the iudge. So we be cheere to be of fishy pur ce. Here the porte of by myghte, from by lych in thy boosome, for yf some shal porte farther to thyne neare, the gooder shal be a myghter by meche, yf dougher in lare & gaynt by meche in lare: and a manne shal shalle, even the of his owne boosome.

Remember this I will be up with you DE, and patiently abide God my comfort my God that heare me O when animent me, till you not be my full, for I shall get up againe: and though I will be in darknesse, yet I shall be in light, I will beate the purty ment of the LORD DE, for why, I have offered him: till he be in my mind to open my eye, and he that I have right, and he benefited for the light, and I shall be in light ness.

The prophet Adixas.

14 The char is myn enemy shall lye upon it, & he confounde, which now smyth: Who is thy LORDE God? Myne eyes shall behold her, when she shall be troden downe, as the daye in the straites. The tyme wil come, when thy gappes shall be made vp, and the lame shall go abroade: and at that tyme shall they come into the, from Assur vnto the streets of this, and from the stronge cities vnto the yare: from the one ste to the other, from the one mountayne to the other.

15 And standinge the hel on de must be wounde, because of them that dwell therein, and for the sinnes of their owne ymaginacions.
16 Therefore shal thy people with thy robbe, the flocke of thine heretage which dwell beside in the woddes: that they maye be fede vpon the mounte of Chamel, Basan & Ga-lad as a fore tyme. Marvellous shinges will 17 I shewe them, like as when they came out of Egypte. This shall the heathen see, and be 18 affrighted for all their power: for that they shall laye their hande vpon their mouth, and 19 sleepe their eyes. They shall like the dust like a sheep, & so the waines of the earth, y wheele in their holes. They shall be as they were the LORDE our God, & they shall feare y.

Where is there such a God as thou? the pactons wil chide, and soigneust the offence of the remnant of thine heretage: 14 he sayeth vnto his mouth for ever. And why shalt thou not haue compassion: he shall reuenge, & be mercifull to vs: he shall put downe our wickednesse, & cast all our syn-nes in the bottom of the see. Thou shalt be pryncipall vnto Jacob, and thy mercy for Abraham, like as thou hast sworne vnto oure fathers longe ago.

great power, & innocent, sheweth helaneth no man fauorist before him. The LORDE goeth forth in compass and stormy weather, the cloudes are the dust of his feet. When he repreueth the sea, he dryeth it up, & turneth all the floodes to drye lande. Basan is desolate, Chamel and the pleasure of Liban is wasteth awaye. The mountayns tremble for him, the hilles consume. He the light of The prophet Naum.

The ſcatterer ſhal come vp againſt the, & lay ſiege to thy caſtell. Take then hold to the ſtreets, make thy loynes ſtronger, arme thy ſelf with all thy myght for the LORD ſhal reſore againe the glory of Jacob, like a ſhield of glory of Iſrael. The deſtroyers have broken them downe, & married the mynne and andyes. The ſhydes of his giummes gliſtereth, his men of warre are clothed in purple, his charrettes are as fire, when he maketh him forward, his archers are wel decked & trimmed. The charrettes rolle upon the ſtreets, & welter in the hye wayes. They are as loke upon like cruſettes of fyre, and go ſwiftly, as the lightninge.

B When he doth but warme his giummes, they fall in their aray, & haſtily they clyme up the wall: yet the engyes of the warre are putted all ready. The water pottes ſhal be opened, and the kinges palace ſhall fall. The queene her ſelf ſhal beled a waye capayne, and her gentlewomen ſhal moue as the dones, & grone in this their percer. What Aggeus concerneth.

- Chap. i. He exhorteth the people to build up Jerusalem and repair with their life in it.
Chap. ii. He sheweth the reason of courage. Of the commandment and glory of the second temple.
Why they undertake the work of the faith.

The first Chapter.

In the second year of Darius, in the vi. month the first day of the month, came the word of the LORD by the prophet Aggeus unto Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel y prince of Iuda, and to Iesus the sonne of Iosede the hye priest, sayinge: Thus speaketh the LORD of hostes, and saith: This people doth saye: The time is not yet come to build up the LORDS house. Then spake the LORD by the prophet Aggeus sa yeb: He y^r fellowes can synke ym to dwell in sylde houses, and saye: Our house ys waste: Consyde nowe your time was yet in your vertes (saith y^e LORD of hostes) ye were much, but ye bin lyde in y^e cote, but ye haue not ym y^e house, but ye are not fylled: ye deade your face, but ye are not warme: he y^e carnally mynne, synke y^e in a broken part.

Thus saith the LORD of hostes: If ye your own wayes in your vertes, see ye up to the monneyne, steepe wch, & buyld up the house: the cy maye be acceptable vnto me, and thus I maye shewe myne honour, saith the LORD. Ye loved for much, and loke come to lide: & though ye buyld y^e house, ye do I blowe it awaye. And why shal the LORD of hostes: It shal becom as hit may house lyeth so waste, and ye remember man wnto his owne house. Wherefore the house ys for y^e lde to geue you eny deye, and the earth ys for y^e lde to geue you eny deye: I haue callid for a house, both vnto the sonne & vpon the monneyne, vpon cope, vpon y^e waye: vpon oyle, vpon ewe y^e lde: thus the gyngre by y^e waye forth, vpon y^e lde and vpon cresset, ye and vpon all ban-

The ii. Chapter.

Upon the xiiij. daye of the first mo-neth, in the second year of Darius, the xvi. daye of the first mo-neth, came the wordes of the LORD by the prophet Aggeus sayinge: Speake to Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel prince of Iuda, and to Iesus the sonne of Iosede the hye priest, and to the residue of y^e people, & saye: Who is lefe amonge you, that leue this house in his first beery? But what chyn ye now by it? Is it not in your eyes, and as though it were nothinge? I leue the steepe of good chere, & Zorobabel (saith the LORD of good can saue, & Iesus the sonne of Iosede, hye priest: take good hartes vnto you also, all ye people of the land, saith the LORD of hostes, and do accordinge to the wordes I am vnto you, saith the LORD of hostes) like as I agreech with you, when ye came out of the land of Egypte: my spier shal be amonge you, saith y^e LORD.

For thus saith the LORD of hostes: Ye once more will I shake beate and earth, the se and the drye lde: thus I will me all synners, & the corn force of all synners shal come, & so wil I fill the house with honore, saith the LORD of hostes. The steeple is myne, & the golde is myne, saith the LORD of hostes. Thus y^e glory of the last house shal be greater che the first, saith the LORD of hostes: & in this place wil I geue pes-

The xiiij. daye of the first moneth in the sesaith the LORDE of hostes. Where was yours fore fathers, vnto whom the people cried a fore tyme, sayenge: The house of the LORDE of hostes. Come ye from yours euill wayes, & from yours wicked imaginations. But they wolde not heare, nor regarde me, saith the LORDE. What is now become of yours fore fathers, and the people that they yet still alight: But ye not my wordes & statutes (which I commaunded by my seruantes & prephetes) to do ye fore fathers: vnto this, they haue refused: & I deliuered as y LORDE of hostes brought vnto you, accordinge to your euill wayes & imaginations, euen so hath he dealt with you.

Upon the xxij. daye of the first moneth (which is the moneth Sebat) in the eighth year of Darius, came the word of the LORDE vnto Zachary the sonne of Iddo the prophet, sayenge: I haue brought you vnto this, and lo, there are one vpon the other, and there are still amonge the trees, that were beneth vpon the ground, and theye haue bene there ready, I haue and my ye hostes.

The prophet Zachary.

Then sayde I O my LORD E, what are these? And the angel that talked with me, sayde vnto me: I will shewe the what these be. And the man that stood amonge the Myrtrees, answered & sayde: These are they, whom the LORD E hath sent to go thoro the world. And they answered: the angel of the LORD E, what shalde amonge the Myrtrees, and sayde: We haue gone thoro the world: and beholde, all the world dwell at ease, and are careless.

Then the LORD E angel gaue answer, and sayde: O LORD E of hostes, how long shall these be vnto me of Ierusalem and in the citie of Iuda, which are burnt downe? how long shall this now these lxx. yeres? So the LORD E gaue a leapinge as ad a comfortable answer, vnto the angel that talked with me. And the angel that communed with me, sayde vnto me: Crie thou, and speake, thus saith the LORD E of hostes: I am exceeding piteous vnto Ierusalem and Sion, and am displeased at the careless heathen: for the yea as Iudas had a little angrie, they byd their best that I might destroye them. Therefore thus saith the LORD E: I will come me againe vnto Ierusalem, so that my house shalbe builded in it, saith the LORD E of hostes: yea, and the plowman shal be sowed abode in Ierusalem, saith the LORD E of hostes.

And also, and speake: thus saith the LORD E of hostes: My citie shall be in good prosperitie againe, the LORD E shall yet comfort Sion, and chose Ierusalem. I shall lift up myne eyes and saue, and beholde, flourisheth. And I sayde vnto the angel, that talked with me: what be these? he answered me: These are y houses, which haue scattered Iuda, Ierusalem and Ierusalem abode. And y LORD E shewed me liij. carpenters. Then sayde I: what are these? he answered, & sayde: These are the homes, which haue so scattered Iuda abode, that no man durst lift up his head: But these are come to fraye them away, and to cast out y houses of the Gentiles, which lift up their home ouer the longeth of Iuda, to scatter it abode.

And I lift up myne eyes againe, & beholde, a man with a mensura in his hand. Then sayde I: what doest thou? And he sayde vnto me: To measure Ierusalem, that I maye see how long and how broad it is. And beholde, the angel that talked with me, wente his waye forth. Then were there out another angel to meete

O yes you saye, O shewe vnto the lorde of y north (saith the LORD E) ye, whom I haue sent in to the four myndes vnder heau, saith the LORD E. Save thy self, o Sion: thou shalt dwell with y daughter of Babylon, for thus saith the LORD E of hostes: With a glorious power hath he sent me out to the heathen, which spoyled you: for who so conuertyth you, shal rinde the ape of his owne eye. Beholde, I will lift up myne hand ouer them: so that the y shal be spoiled of the se, which afore serued them: ye shal knowe, that he the LORD E of hostes hath sent me.

Be glad, & reioyce, o daughter of Sion: for lo, I am come vnto dwell in the myddel of the: saith the LORD E. The same myght he re shal in many heathen due to the LORD E, & shal be my people. Thus wil I dwell in the myddel of the, & thou shalt knowe, that the LORD E of hostes hath sent me vnto the. The LORD E shall haue Iuda in possession for his parte in the holy grounde, & shal chose Ierusalem yet againe. Let all flesh be still before the LORD E, for he is ryen out of his holy place.

The iii. Chapter.

And he shewed me Iesay y hye priest, standing before the angel of the LORD E, and Sacan stode at his right hand to rquise him. And the LORD E sayde vnto Sacan: The LORD E reponeth thee (Sacan) yet the LORD E hath chosen Ierusalem, reponeth he. Is not this a brande take out of the fire? Is not Iesay was clothed in vncleane rayment, and stode before the angels which answered & sayde vnto the, y stode before him: take a waye y soule clothes from him. And vnto him he saye: Beholde, I haue take a waye thy synne from the, & wil be the with change of rayment, & shal yete more reuer: as a saye in yea upon his heade. So they set a saye in yea upon his heade, & put on clothe a upon him, and the angel of y LORD E stode there. Then the angel of the LORD E testified vnto Iesay, & spake, thus saith the LORD E of hostes: If thou wilt walk in my wayes, & kepe my lawes which I haue made my house, & kepe my covenants, & I will gene the place amonge these: haue stode here. Therefore I esay thou hye priest, thou & thy frendes that dwell before the, for they are widdowes saw the LORDE of hostes thus sayeth he a side of peace. The synagogs shal gene but froce, the grounde shal gene but increase, and the heauens shal gene their dew and I shal confer the remnant of this people, to haue all this in possession. And in shall come to Know the things that ye shal do, are these: Speake many the truth into his neighbour, execute iudgement truly and peaceably within your porce, none of you may giue in his brtt agayn his neighbour, and loue no false oycer: for all these are the things that I haue sayed the LORDE: And the noide of the LORDE of hostes came vnto me, sayinge thus saith the LORDE of hostes: The fast of the fourth moneth, the fast of the fifth, the fast of the seauenth, and the fast of the tenth, shall be ioyous and gladsse, so profpore by cause they vnto the hoofe of Tyba: Only loue ye truth and peace.

Thus saith the LORD of hostes: There shall yet come a people, and the inhabitation of many cities: and they shall dwell in one city, that go to another, saying: Let us go, and pray before the LORD, for we have the LORD of hostes, I will go with you. And many people and mighty nations shall come and fetch the LORD of hostes at Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD. Thus saith the LORD of hostes: In that day shall ten men (out of all manner of language of the Gentiles) take one Jew by the sleeve of his garment, and say: we will go with you, for we have heard, that God is among you.

the heathen, to fight agaynst Jerusalem: so that the cite shalbe wene, the houses spoyle, and the women defyled. The halfe of the cite shal go awaye into captiuitie, and the residue of the people shal not be carried out of the other halfe toward the south.

And ye shall sit vnder the allee of my hilinto Ierusalem. And the LORD my God shal come, and all sanctes with him. In that daye shal it not be hyge, but colde and frost. And shalbe that specciall daye, wher I will come vnto the LORD: necher daye nee withe, but aboute the eueryngg tyme it shal lyghte. For that tyme shall there maters of the same out from Jerusalem: the halfe parte of them toward the east ste, and the other halfe toward the westward ste, and shal con-taine both founte and wyater. And the LORD myself shalbe ynnge ouer all the earth.

And that tyme shal there be one LORD my, and his name shalbe but one. Men shal bin aboute the earth: as vpon a fildet from Gilead to Ramman, and from y south to Jerusalem. The shalbe set up, and inhabit in hir place. From Ben Iamina poute, into the place of the first poute, and vnto y comer poute, and from the toer of Haman, vnto the Byngoo wyne pressis. There shall men dwell, and there shalbe no more cursing, but Jerusalem shalbe safely inhabited.

This shalbe the plage, wherewith y LORD DE wil smyte all people, that haue foughte a-gaynst Jerusalem: Iehuda, their filds shal conforme a weye, though they stonde vpon their feet: their eyes shal conuulge in their holes, and their tongue shal conforme in their mouth.

In that daye shall the LORD make a greates tribulation amonge them, so that one ma shal take anoother by the hande, and laye his hande vpon the hande of his neyghbour.
Iuda shal fighte also agaynst Jerusalem, and the generall of all the heathen shalbe gathered to fighte rounde aboute: golde and siluer, and a very greates multitude off clothes.
And so shal this plage goe amonge heathen: in camels, asses, and all the beastes that shal be in the heeste, like a yorder plage man.

Every one that remembreth them off all y people, which came agaynst Jerusalem, shal goe a p yeare, to worshippe the Byngg (even y LORD of hostes) and to kepe the feast off tabernacles. And loke what generacion o-pon earth goeth noe vp to Jerusalem, for to worshippe the Byngg (even the LORD of hostes) vnto the same shal come no tyme. All the kynned of Egypte goe not a p t comenot,

This shalbe the plage, wherewith y LORD DE wil smyte all heathen, that come noe vp to kepe the feast off tabernacles: For this shalbe the synneplage of all people, that goe noe vp to kepe the feast off tabernacles.

At that tyme shal the rydinge geer of y hostes be holy vnto the LORD, and the beast in the LORDS house shal be like the sins before the altar: yee all the bestels in Jerusalem and Iuda, shalbe holy vnto the LORD of hostes: and all they that laye

Now for you, ye are gone clene out off the Therefore will I also make you to be despised, and to be of no reputation amonge all y^e peo-

Now we see all one father: hath not one despise his owne brother, and so breake the covenant of our fathers? Now hath Jehovah God the almighty one in do-

The translation vnto the reader.

These booke (good reader) which be called Apocrypha, are not indged among the doctours to be of life reputation with the other scripture, as thou mayest perceive by S. Jerome in prelo ad Paulum. And the cause thereof is this: there be many places in them, that seme to be repugnant unto the open many first truth in the other booke of the bible. Wherefore I have not gathered them together so chearfully that I wote have them dispysed, or litle say by it. I shalbe thynke them false, for I am not able to proue it: yet I wote not verely, if they were equally conferrd with the other open scripture (cyme, place, and circumstances in all things considered) they shalbe neither fyme contrary, nor be veruallly altered. Truly it is: A mas face can not be seene so wel in a water, as in a fayre glasse: neither as it be shewn so clearly in a water, that it stered or moved, as in a still water. These & many other bad places of scripture have bene thus stered and myrre with blynde and carelesse opinions of men, which have cast such a myst afore the eyes of a simple, that as long as they bene a fered with the other places of scripture, they shal not seme other myst to be underfonden, then as a carelesse person doth them. But who so ever thou be that readest scripture, let the holy goos be thy teacher, and let one cert expounder another wote the: As for such busines, wisdom and hard sentences as be byd from thy underfendinge, committe them vnto God, and make no articles of them: Duris the playne text be thy gyde, and the spirit of God (which in the author thereof shal lede the in all truth).

As for the prayer of Salomons (which thou findest not herin) a prayer of Azarias, and the sweete songe that he and his two fellowes songe in the fyre: the first (namely the prayer of Salomon) readest thou in the eighth chapter of the thurde booke of the Kynges, so that it appereth not to be Apocryphum. The other prayer and songe (namely of the three children) have I not founde amonge any of the interpreters, but only in the old latyn repte, which repeateth it to be of Theodosius translation. Wherefore also, both because of this it be a mistake and (saye I) and for that sake also that I see such sweete songes of characters geuinger: I have not liff them out so the intent that the one shalbe have no cause to complaine, and that the other also might have the more occasion to geue thanks vnto God in aduersite, as the church doeth in the fyre. Grace be with the. Amen.

And Josias helde the feast of Easter in Jerusalem vnto the LORD, and steepe of pasche on the xij. daye of the first moneth. the six & puffed also in outscouring to their dauidic courtis bringe away in longe garnitures in the temple of the LORD. And he spake vnto the Levites the highpriests of Israel, that they shoulde haue them selves vnto the LORD, to see the holier of the LORD, is the house that I have builded the house of David had builded and saye: Ye shal a more be are the Arke upon y^e shuldern. Now saue y^e LORD, & take the charge of his people of Israel, a fere year villages and youre trivels according as King David the King of Israel hath ordered, & according as Solomon his sonne hath honorably prepared: Ye see loke & ye all be swayed in the temple, according to the ordinges and disordinges of the principall men which are appointed out of the tribes, to do service for the children of Israel. And y^e Passover, I prepare offerings for y^e brethren, and be according to the commandmentes of the LORD, which he gave vnto Moses. And vnto y^e people I was solde, Josias gave xij. thousand of shepe, lambs, pyddes and goats, & the thousand ope. These the King of his Kingly libertie had gave vnto the people, according as he had promysed: & so the people for the Passover the gave two thousand shepe & an hundred ope. Moreover Jehonias & Clemias and Nathanael brethren, & Asaphias, Jehiel and Josabad, gave there to the Passover, fere thousand shepe and fere hundred bullockes.

And when these thinges were bringe to passe the puffed and the Levites stode goodly in their ordre, and had the unlearned and those out of tribes. And after the ordinges of the principall men in the tribes, they offered vnto the LORD in the sight of the people, according as it is written in the booke of Moses, & so they rested the Easterlambe as according was. And for the that offerings & the other, they brought in the Easter & puffed, & set them before the people to good will, and afterwards before them selves and the puffed. For the puffed offered the first, vntill the tyme was expyred, but the Levites prepared for them selves & for their brethren the children of Aaron. The singers also & children of Asaph stode in their ordre, according as David had desired. So vnto Asaph, Sadai & Jedichu, which were appointed by the King. Moreover he power & doctores stode by the doors & diligently, so that none went out of his standing & service: for their brethren the Levites prepared for them. These were all thinges performed, that belonged to the offerings of the LORD. In that daye they helde the Passover, & offered the offerings before y^e sacrifice of the LORD, according to y^e commandment of King Josias.

So the children of Israel which were the present helde as honorable Passover, & the feast of fere bread vnto daye long. These a Passover was not kept in Israel, from y^e tyme of the prophet Samuel. And all the Kinges of Israel helde not such an Easter, as this which King Josias helde, & y^e puffed, & leuites, & Jewes & all Israel, of all the y^e were at Jerusalem. In y^e xviij. year of y^e reign of Josias was this Passover kept. And so a passover had vnto King Josias vnto all his mothes before y^e LORD, & y^e thinges y^e were written of in y^e tymes past, & cominge thof y^e sinned & were vngodly agaynst y^e LORD before all people, & y^e sought not the words of y^e LORD upon Israel. After all these actes of King Josias, Pharaos y^e King of Egypte wrote up, & came comrade Arcania by the pharaens, & Josias wrote to him. Then sent the King of Egypte vnto Josias, saynges what have I to do with y^e King of Judah? am not I of y^e LORD to fight agaynst y^e for my warre is vnto the pharaens: no chof I was y^e beate agaynst in all y^e battell. And Josias woulde not turne agayn upon his charer, but vnterrote so fyghe agaynst him, & herke ned not vnto þe woude of þe prophet, whiche he calde him out of the mouth of God, but purged a bettall agaynst him in þe fild of the geddo. And the pryces passed to kynge Josias. Then sayde the kynge vnto his seruantes: Carry me awaye out of the battayll, for I am sore wounded. And immediatly his seruantes toke him awaye out of the fens of the battayll. Then sat he vp upon the scidde charer, came to Ierusalem, byed, & was buried in his fathers sepulchre. And in all Jewry they mourned for Josias, yet the rulers sayd: ether waye made lamentacion for him vnto this daye: And this was done aue still in Ierusal.

These thinges are writen in the boke of the histories of þe kynges of Iuda: namely, all the actes & wordes of kynge Josias, his kyngly power & maiesty, his vnderstandynge in the lawe of God, & what he dyd, & thinges which are not writen in the boke of the kynges of Iuda & Iuda. And þe people toke Iechonias the sonne of Josias, & made him kynge in þe steade of Josias his father, whan he was xxxij. years olde. And he reigned ouer Iuda thre monethes. And the kynge of Egypte put him downe, & he shoulde not reigne in Ierusalem, & raysed vp a carynge of the people: namely, an C. talentes of syluer & one talen of golde. The kynge of Egypte also made Joachim his brother kynge of Iuda & Ierusalem. As for the of the kynges cowncell, & the kynge himselfe and Zarcada his brother, he toke the, & caried the awaye prisoners in to Egypte. Thus & twente years olde was Joachim, whan he was made kynge in the clonde of Iuda and Ierusalem, and he dyd euill before the LORD. After this, Nabuchodonosir þe kynge of Babilon come vp, bounde him & bandes of men, & caried him vnto Babilon. Nabuchodonosir also toke all þe vessel þe more holoweb in the temple of the LORD, & all þe Jewels, & caried the vnto Babilon, & broughte the in to his owne temple at Babilon. Of his vniemes & vngodlines, it is writen in þe boke of the actes of þe kynges. And Joachim his sonne reigned in his stead: he was made kynge thre monethes, & dayes in Ierusalem, & dyd euill before the LORD. So after a yere, Nabuchodonosir sent & caused him to be broughte vnto Babilon & þe holy vessel of þe LORD, & made Ebednech his brother kynge of Iuda and Ierusalem, whan he was xxi. years olde, and he reigned xi. yeres.

And he dyd euill also in þe fyghe of the LORD, & caried not for þe wordes þe prophet sayd to him by þe prophet Jeremy at þe word of the LORD. And wher as he had made on any vnto kynge Nabuchodonosir, he manifest himselfe, & fill fro him manynges a shiff and here, & traigressed all þe statutes & commandmentes of the LORD God of Irael. & he was also & heabes of þe people of the LORD vngodly, & he became vngodly, more then the heathen, & heinge defiled in all maner of abominacion: hee & defiled þe holy temple of the LORD at Ierusalem. And the word of the LORD came sene his messangere vnto the, & to me them backe & to call the agayne fro the synnes: for he wolde saye hane spende for his holy taberna clefate. Therupon, they had his messangere in derision: & what God spak vnto the by his prophet, they made but a spoone of it. This was not longe, tyl the LORD was wroth wth his people for their vngodlines, & to be cause the kynges of þe Caldees to come vp, which had their yonge men in the swerde, & caried the compass of the holy temple, & spard nobly, manye yonge nerolds, neither mayntayn yonge man: but they were all bedymmed with the power of the kynges of þe Caldees, & the holy vessel of the LORD and the kynges treasures toke they, & caried them vnto Babilon. As for the house of the LORD, they tak it, & brake downe the wallis of Ierusalem, & fye upon hir cownce, & destroyed all þe wals & buldinges: and broughte them to ouer, and the people the were not slayned wth the swerde, they caried vnto Babilon.

Thus became they þe prisoners & bonden of þe kynges of Babilon, tyl they were broughte raynted for them selues, when the wordes of the LORD were fulfilled, which he promysed them by the mouth of the prophet Jeremy, and tyl the londe had her restment, & all the tyme þe laye wast, had it not requyres Ierusalem.

The iij. Chapter.

Now this kynge Cyrus raynted & the Persians, & wha the LORD wolde he performe the word & he had promysed by the mouth of the prophet Jeremy the LORD raynted vp the prynces of Cyrus the kynges of the Persians, so þe cause the kynges to be proclaimed theow out his owne cownce, & raynted: Thus saye the kynges of Persians: The LORD of Irael that the LORD hath made me kynges of the londe & commanded me to buyde him & doo in Ierusalem in Jewry. If there be any man with him to Jerusalem And all they that will roaue aboute & place, shal helpe the, whether it be with golde, with syluer, with giftes, with houses and necessary cazzell, and all other thinges that are brought to a fire

Then the principall one of the tyghes and wyldes of Judea and Ben Jamin stode uppon the prestes also the leuites (whiche he LORD had moued to go up, and sayd the hoste of the LORD at Jerusale. And they that were about them, helped them in the name of golde, and siluer, and earrell also and with many liberal gifts, and this they martye, whiche myght was feared in euer tyng. And thus was also brought the fourth of the tyghes and ornaments, that were halowed vnto the LORD (whiche) Nabudodonosor the kyng of Babilon had caried awaye from the temple, and conuered them to his Jedd and wyldes, and deliuered them to Mithridatis hystoriker, and by hym they were de-liuered to Salmanaſſar the kynge of Jewry.
And this was the nature of them: two thousande and iiii. c. glyues booke, xxx. glyue booke, xxx. bakens of golde, i. xl. and iiii. c. of siluer, and a thousand beſides. And the weight of golde and siluer, were a xl. viii. c.
li. lb. These were notbriue vnto Salmanaſſar, and them that were come a gayne with hym. Jerusale out of the captiuitie of Ba-bilon. Now in the tyme of kyng Zancarias the kyng of Persie, theſe men: Salmanaſſar and Mithridatis, Sabelino, Rethamus, Balthazar, Semedius, ſcyrbe, and other that dwelt in Samaria & in other places whiche were of the kynge thereof. Wrote a letter vnto kyng Zancarias, wherein they complained vnto the kyng of Persie in Jewry and Jerusalem.
The letter was made a fyttyng manner:

And, why I saye asur, Aschimath the story auer, Sabellia the Scribe, 2 other iudges of thy court: a Cleoforia and Phelicia.
 Be it knowne and manifest to all heere the 2 that the Iames which are come up fro you into into the rebellious and wicked cite, buye to buye it agayne, and the malles heere it, and so for all the people of the new.
 Thus if thou see and the welles that be fur y agayne, they shal not only refuse to ge uer iustice and caringes, but also rebell theye a yaffell the Pyngis. And for so much as theye take this in hande nam aboute the tem fe the kyng, he maye canse it be so agayne in the booke of othe and upon this synne Ioch was byrgen warren, and spake murtherous, that this cite hath alwaye bene rebellious and disobedient, that it hath subdued byrges and cities, and that the Jewes which dwell ther in, haue ever bene a rebellious, alwaym, unfaithfull and fightinge people, for the which canse this cite is now yll. Wherfore now we canse once layde the kyng, that yf this cite be subdued and a captyed agayne, & the real-ties ther set up a new, upon canse has: no passage into Cefonia and Dhemec.

Then mooues the Emper to Racheus the story writer, to Dilepermus, to Sabellus a scribe, and to the other officers and dwellers in Syria and Phenicia, in this manner: I haue red the epistle which thou sentest vnto me, and haue commaunded to mine diligent search, and haue founde, that the cite hath reuered the Emper, that the same people are disobedient, and haue caused much worthe, that inghe Emper haue raiged in Jerusa lem, whiche al haue raised up earingies of Syria and Phenicia. Wherefore, I haue com maunded those people, that they shal not haue the cite, that they may be no more in it, and that they proceede further with the buy ding: for I commaunde as I might be the cause of worthe, and difficultrie vnto Emper.

Now when Achymus and Sabellius the heretike and the rulers in the temple had red the writing of sygne Atraxides, they gaue them together, and came in all the haile to Jerusalem with an boofe of heresemen and with much people sycote, and forbade them to buye. And so the left off from buyinge of the temple, unto the seconde yeare of Kinge Domitian.

The III Chapter.

Ringe Darus made a greater feast wth his h^{er}oines, wth all his couns, & to all the officers of Media and Persia, yet a mb to all the begetwth rulers that we re wther him, from J^{er}usalem to Ethiopia, and hundred of wth wth contraires. So many they had eaten, and drunken beinge sacrific, and were y^{et} none home a gayne. Darus the y^{et} y^{et} wente in to his chamber, layd him downe to slepe, and so a malcke.

Then the thir yonger man, that thep the lynges performe, and matche his body, commended amonge them selues, and spake one to another: Let every one of vs seye some thinge, and loke whos sentence is wiser and more excellent then the other, vnto him that tinge with purple, he shall geue him vessels of golde & dynten, clothes of golde and cinges: he shall make him a costly charer & a boyse of golde, he shall geue him a bence of whete floure and chayne of golde aboute his necke, yet he shall be the seconde & principall nexte vnto kynge Darins, & that because of his wysdome, and shalbe called of Denes Eusebio.

25 So every one wrote his meanings, sealed it and layeth it under the kinges peltame, and sayde; whan the kyng aryeth, we will geue him our wysynges; and loke whos worte be the kyng and his thet loke and ge to be the most wysest spoken, the same shall haue the victory. One wrote; wyne is a stronge thyng. The second wrote; The kyng is the strongest. The thirde wrote; men haue yet more strength, but about all thynges if truely be tech and ar the victory. For whan the kyng was a ryse up, they toke their wysynges and bydwesed them vnder him, and so he byt them. These sent he forth to call all his chiefe louers, all the beyers & rulers of the coun-treies of Arabia and Persia. And whan they were sate downe in the councell, the wysynges were reade before them. And he commaund-ed eo call for yonge men, if they myghte declare their meanings the selfe by mouth.
So when they were sate for and came in, if kyng sayde vnder them; shew us and toke us to be the best, what the thynges are that ye haue wysen.

Then beganne the first which had spoke of the strenght of myne, & sayde: O my man, myne is maruelous stronge, and ouercometh euent: I desire it: it discometh the mynde, & bayerth both the poore man, & of myne co-bourage and valour. Thus doeth it also vnto the bushmāns and with the fox, with the poore & ryght: it taketh a roaue their vnderfootinge, and maketh their carden and metz, so that none of the m̄ can embethery by myne, der-re: becom: "It causeth a man to chynke also that: of thing which he doeth, is comfort and good: and remembereth not that he is a ryngto do such thinges. It leueth, what men are mynde, they forgett all feynfulnes, all bushyde feynfulnes & leueth: so faunt: as they are they: they brynne out the sweete and light: & what they are layd before his the myne, & so ryse up a gayne, they can no tell what they do. Judge ye now, "So noc-to be the strongest: for who wolde take in hande, to do such thinges: And when he had spoken this he helde his tonge.

The iiij. Chap.

The III. Chapter.

Thes the secunde wyldy had forye, & the yage was as stronger began to spode, sayng, O yemen, art not worthy the strong of a most excellent? & cometh tober to the see, & all his in the see is the same: I to me in the fynes love of all thes domme, & hath dominion of thes all: tober tober he maindeth, it is done. yf the indochien not had a warfare, they go and buye beame bulles malles & cometh. They are flayne, & flayn her men xhemselfe, & ouer passeth nee & they go moib: yf they get the victy they buye the fynes all the spore. And wyf, she ether fynesleue not to moire & fygginge, he cill the gre undeberman they treape, they buye geerys vnto & fynes. And & fynes can be but comundebot & ill they byll: yf he maunde to fouger, they fouger: yf he cume unde to foyre, they fynes: yf he byd beame moire, they buye a waye: yf the comundebot buyde, they buyde: yf the comundebot buyd domme, they buyde beame: yf the comundebot to plant, they plant. The comen puyple rules are a obedien vnto him. And & fynes in the comen strait stretch his domme, and and byrtheth, & catche his ruff: the heparthy warte tober a bout & fynes, & noene of oþi darde gett him out of a waye, so do his com bryne, but must be obedien vnto & fynes a woib. Judge ye now o yemen, how fynes nee he goe farre aboue, vnto in hom men in the obedien. And when he had spoldeth he buyde this conge. The etherde (woþe now was tober abole, wyldy had spold of womm: o fynes) tober to be agene to fynes after this maner: Ye me, it is not & greue fynes: it is not the muleuiche of fynes, nee her is no more & callat. Whos is the, & hath & lo to fynes ouer the. Soe not women be nee the fynes, & all ye pleple rule the thes ge: & soe not men be nee the fynes ge: & ple the ouer. whar oue & meye cometh: they maye gett tes for all me, the y geue him vnto all mme: so oue womm can noe men lyue. yf they ether golde & syluer & all pices no chynge, & a foyre & well fauored womm, they clene cogith, and curme ether vnto ome & ympe woman: & go pe upon her, & haue me of ome vnto her, then vnto the fynes & geide, in a manner of precious things. & I clene leaue the father & byrth him up, he leauech her in the ome sathmall coloure, and clenech vnto the woman: yee he oþerwiche his lie with ome man, and minich beech necher father, ne mother, nee cometh. By the thes yemen maye knowe, & meye haue & dommion ouer ym such it greue you: A man eateth his swete betweeth his wyfe to steale, so I will comure thou saye upon this, & I saye a Lyon, and preth in the wastecote: and when he hath holen, disceined & robbed, he bringeth it in to his lair. Agayne, a man loveth his wyfe louer then father and mother: yee many one there, that come out of their wyces & become bondmen for their wyuen sake: many our also have perished, & have bene slayne, & have sinned because of women.

And now beleue me, I knowe a Pyngre which is greuous in his power, & all lobes his in name of him, & no man darre laye hande upon him: yee byd I sh. & Apame's daughter of the greates Pyngre Barabacua the Pyngre of cubite, fast by the Pyngre up to the right hande, and coke of his crowne from his hande, and set it upon his owne heade. And in see the Pyngre much his left hande. When the Pyngre lokeþ aþ her topon nameþ I she laughed apon him, he laughed also: but I she coke on y displeasure with him, the Pyngre was synne to slayer her, & so greue her good wynde, till he had gotten his fauoure agayne.

O ye men, are not we menten shon stronger than is the earth, and he is the heauen: and he shon stronger. When the Pyngre & the pyngres lokeþ one apon another. So he begane to speake of the earth: O ye men, are not we menten stronger. What is the earth, he is the heauen, I wyfr in the course of the Sunne, he compasseth the heauen rounde arounde, and fetcheth his course agayne to his owne place in one daye. Is he not excellent that hath chosen yee greuous in the crutch, and stronger then all thinges. All the earth cal-lith vpon the crutch, the heauen prayeth it, all wynds shake and tremble at it, and with it is no man to contrarye. Where is vneightious the Pyngre in vneightheous, men are vneightheous: all the children of men are vneigh-theous, yee all their wordes are vneigh-theous, and there is no crutch in them, in their vneightheousness. Also shall they be destroyed and perishe. As for y crutch, it endureth, and it is all my strength: it liueth, and coquereth y vneightheous men that haue on it.

The crutch accepteth no persones, it put-teth no difference betwixte rich or poore, be-twixte y vneightheous or symple, but doth righte to every man, whether they be euel or good, all men are lowlyngly deale: withall in the word of it. In the indgement of it there is no vneightheous thinge, but strength, kingdome & power and maiesty for euermore. Dissed be the God of crutch.

And with that he holde his tinge, and all y people cryd & sayde: Shewe in the crutch, and above all. Then sayde the Pyngre vnto him: Are what thou wilt, more than to appointe in the wrytinge, and I shal giue it the, for thou art founde wyser then by com-panyon: thou shalt syt in myrre, and be my Lymman. Then sayde he vnto the Pyngre Remember thy pietyte and vowe, which thou hast vowe and promysed in the daye when thou comest to the Pyngredome to buye de vpon Jerusalem, and to sende agayne all the vessels and Jewels, that were taken awaye out of Jerusalem: which Cyrus spicareth, when he offered in Babilon, and wolde sin-de them agayne. And thy mynde was to buye de vpon the temple, which the Edomites befe, when Jerusalem was destroyed by the Caldees. This oadyd the Pyngre to the thynge that I requyre, this is y maiesty, which I desire of thee: that thou performe me the vowe, which thou with thine owne: nought hast made vnto the Pyngre of heauen.

Then Decius the Pyngre stode vp, and byfsed him, and wrote a letter vnto all the deuytes and Syriens, to all y Iordan and nebles, y they shulde conuey him forth, & all them y wolde go up with him. He wrote a letter also vnto all y Syriens y were in Celestina & Phenices, & vnto Libanus, y they shulde haue credit: erce from Libanus vnto Jerusalem, to buyde y cite with all. Whome he veroe vnto all y Jewes that were gone out of his realme in to Jewry because of the sce-dome, y as officers, no ruler nor scribe shulde come to their deuo: and that all their lende which they had conquered, shulde be fre and not tributary: And that the Edomites shul-de geue ouer the cities and villages of the Jewes, which they had taken in: yoe & that they shulde yearly geue yz. talentes to y buyders of the temple, vntill the tyme that it were synshod: and to the buyde halowinge of the buycofferinges (as it is commaunded) in talentes yearly also: And y all they which come from Babilon to buyde the cite, shulde haue fre lybertye, they & their children, and all the people.

He wrote the greatnesse also, & commaunded that the holy garment shulde be giuen the, when they ministred: and wrote that commandementes shulde be giuen to the Leuites, vntill the daye, that the house were synshod: & Jerusalem buyded vp: and observed the & all they that were in the cite, shulde haue their porcions and wages.

The iii. booke of Esdras

He gaue out also all the vessel of Egypt had possessed from Babylon: for all that he had had geue in consumption: & them charged he also, they should be borne, & sent into Jerusalem. And when he yong man was gone forth, he turned his face towards Jerusalem, & he said of things of beauty, & sayde: Of cometh exultation, of the cometh thy volume & cleareth it: & I am thy servant. Thus are they, which shall geue me my portion: the will I praise, & LORD E, thou God of our father.

And so he tolke the letters, & twente vnto Babilon: And when he came there, he tolde this vnto all his diarches y^e were at Babil^o, they praised y^e God of their fathers, y^e he had giue them a refreshinge & libertie goyng, & so burlde Jerusaleme the temple whiche is there called after the name of the LORDE and they receiued much instruments & glad

These also are they of Ieremy, which came vp and turned Agayne vnto Ierusalem, out of the captaiuitie that Nabuchodonosor king of Babilon had brought vnto Babilon. And every man sought his peccacion agayne in Ieremy, his cite, they that came vs Senebub, and with Iehoi, Ezechias, Sariaas, Aaeliaas, Erimias, Erimias, Marbochus, Beeserius, Meelpia, Aochos, Oloras, Emomas, one of their diuines.

So when the seventh month came, and when the day of the feast of Tabernacles was at his busines, they came all with one consent in to the court, which was before the east doore. And there stood Jesus the forme of Joseph among his brethren & perfes, & amongst the sime of Salachiel and his brethren, saying vpon an aule, to offere bren in sacrifices vpon it, as it is written in the lawe of Moses,

There came people also of other countries, and the husband one of all families in the winter in his place, and offered sacrifices & burnt offerings unto the LORD in the morning. And so they held the feast of tabernacles, as it is commanded in the law. And daily offered they as a burnt offering, and made the sacrifices appointed, the offering also of the Sabbaths and of the new moons, and all holy feasts. And all they that burned offerings unto the LORD, became of the new moons of a faithful mind to offer unto God, for the temple of the LORD was not yet builded. And they gave unto the High Priest and the Priests, money, meat & drink with cheerfulness. Unto them of Sydon also and Tyre they gave cattle, & they have carry Cedre trees from Libanus to be cedars and beams, and that they should make ships in the haven of Joppa, a cunning man it was appointed and ordered by Cyrus King of the Persians.

And in the seconde yeare they came into the temple of God at Jerusalem. In the seconde moneth beganne Zosobabed the sonne of Salubad, and Iesha the sonne of Josides, and their brethren the priests and Levites, and all they that were come unto Jerusalem out of the captivity of Babilon, to lay the foundation of the temple, in the new Moone of the seconde moneth in the seconde yeare: they were come in to Jeru- ry and Jerusalem. And they appointed the Levites (that were about 37 yeares old) to the service of the LORD: Esai, Jehoiab and his brethren and his brethren all the Levites stood together, and performed the same ordinance in the house of the LORD. 3

And the pestes stode and had their garments & crownettes, & the Levites, the sons of Aſaph had Cybals, geyng & thances, and prayes unto the LORD, accordinge as Dauid the kynge of Iſrael had ordeyned. And the songe that they dyd singe vnto the LORD, was as foloweth: O synge vnto the LORD, for he is gracious, and his goodnes upon Iſrael endureth for euer. And all the people bless our wylde crownettes, and singe with loude voyce, prayng the LORD together in the rearinge vp of the house of the LORD. There came also from amonge the pestes and Levites the rulers and elders, accordinge to the trybes and tymes (such as had sene the house afore) & the burying of this temple with greates crye and greates mourninge, many also with troumpettes and greates sope. In so much, that the troumpettes myghte not wel be heard for the wepyng and mourninge. For the common people blas goodly vpo the troumpettes.

Then came the enemies of the trybes of Iuda and Ben Iamin, to knowe what theye cōspoyne and wyse of shewen mighte. And theye perceaued yf it was they which were come agayne out of captiuitie, & wolde brynke the temple a new vnto the LORD God of Iſrael. So theye wente to Zorobabel and Iſhua and to the rulers of the villages, & sayde vnto them: Shal we buyde by you also? for we like wyse haue had your LORD. & we wilke as for the same maner, from the dayes of Aſhazareth the kynge of Aſſiria, which broughte vs hither. Then Zorobabel and Iſhua and the rulers of the villages of Iſrael sayde vnto them: It is no mate, that ye shalde buyde the temple of our God: for we are sure Iſhua alone wil buyde vnto the LORD, like as Cyrus the kynge of the Persians hath commaunded vs.

But the Galythen in the londe layed chyns Iſhua againste those that were in Jewry, helde up the burying from them layed wayes vpo them presently, stoppede such as broughte any thinge to them, forbad them to buyde, & wyndred those that made the passage, that the burying shalde not be finished: & this contynued so longe as a kynge Cyrus sayd: & so theye put off the burying for the space of two years, vntill the reigne of kynge Darius.

The vi. Chapter.

At the standinge, in the seconde yeare of the reigne of Darius, Aggeus & Zachary the sonne of Abda prophesied vpon them in Jewry and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Iſrael. Theye habell the sonne of Salachad and Iſhua sonne of Ioseph stode up, and began to buyde the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, when the prophete of the LORD had pedyed them.

At the same tyme came Syſmes the vnder shene in Syria and Phenice, with the landwythes and his comparyons, and sayd vnto them: Who hath bydden & commaunded you to buyde the house? to make it use and all other thinge as a gynne? And theye ore the mozte men, that buyde them: Nabarches the elders of the Iewes had sene grace of the LORD, that theye wolde not lern though theye were persecuted: theye had buylded on still, vntill the tyme that Darius was certified therof, and an after receaued from him. The letter that the man sent vnto kynge Darius, was as for the maner:

Syſmes the vnder shene in Syria and Phenice, and the landwythes with their panishe, which are head rulers in Syria and Phenice, sende their salutation vnto the kynge. We certifie our lord the kynge, that we came in to the londe of Iewrye to Jerusalem: where we founden the burying of the greates house of God on the temple, with greates costylyttee from our goodly tymbre for the wallen; yet theye had greates haill with the mozte, & helde one another, and it goeth forth prosperously in their handes, and with greates diligence it is made. Then a pedy we the aduise, which had commaunded them to make up the house and the burying: and this we dyde & wrote that we mighte certifie the perfectlyte wyte vnto the, the names of those I was rulers of the mozte. So theye gave us the answeare vnto the seruantes of the LORD, which had becomen and sayd: & in this house, it hath bene buylded and is in use tyme by the greates and mighte kynge of Iſrael. But when oure sapienter parys God into march, & synned agaynst the God of Iſrael, he gaue the ouer in captiuitie of Nabachodonosor kynge of Babilon the kynge of the Caldees, which built becomen house and brened it, and caried awaye the people prisoners vnto Babilon.

Nevertheless, in the first yeare that Cyrus reigned at Babilon, Cyrus the kynge wrote and commaunded to buyde up the house agayne: and all the ornaments that Nabachodonosor caried awaye from Jerusalem vnto Babilon, and appoynted he com temple: those brought Cyrus forth again, and delivered them to Zorobabel & to Salmana: for the undersherie, commonlyng them, & they shalbe bringe those sacramentes agayne to Jerusalem in ce of re-ple: & to begynn from thence forth, to buylthe temple agayne in his owne place. The secondar for laye the foundation of the LORD the house of Jerusalem, and ever since have they buylded, yet it is not ended. And therfore the LORD sayeth: thou thyself it good, let it be sought in the Lybarica & tolles of thyng Cyrus: if it be founde that it is done to the counsell and cōfente of thyng Cyrus, and if some orde of thyng be so mynded, let him see unto the therof.

Then commaunded King Darius, to see in the Lybarica: and so at Esdraschans in a lictate in Eliche there was founde such a mynde. In the first yeare of the raigme of Cyrus, the same thyng Cyrus commaunded, & the house of the LORD at Jerusalem shal be buylded agayne: & o becom to be made that continually unto the LORD: whose house shalbe new edifice, & builded by cubites & fathoms: where between stones, do a lictate of cubits of the same countrie, yet a new lictate, & the space thereof to be given of the house of the LORD. And the ornamentes of gold & silver, & Chalchadon: for to be out of the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, shalbe set agayne in the temple at Jerusalem, where they were afore. Syennes also the undersherie in Syria and Phenicia, & pryn-ce of their companyons, and the other & lictate rulers in Syria and Phenicia, shall see unto: or have any thinge to do with the place.

The King hath commaunded also, that they shal buye the house of the LORD whole up: & those whereby them, to helpe those & to come out of captivite, tyll the house of the LORD be finished: & out of the rebure and sayinge that is yearly raised up in Syria and Phenicia, to gently to geve them a newe lictate, to the offeringe of the LORD unto the same to be delivered unto Zorobabel the officer: that he the cherubim maye wher they, lictate, lictate, & come, lictate, and the other, and that continually every year: after the expences which the people that be at Jerusalem, shal be made day-ly: shalbe given unto them without delay, that they maye offer sacrifices dayly to the LORD God, for the thyng and for his lictate, and to praye for their lictate. Let the lictate also on every syde, that who o ever breakech or despysech this commaundements of thyng, shalbe hangid upon a gal-lowe (withe of his owne good): & all his goodes shalbe seasoned unto thyng. The LORD Decher fore (whose name is there called upon): out and destroye all & thyngs and people, that undertake by violence to hyver the same, or to deale uncurteously with the house of the LORD at Jerusalem. Darius the King hath commaunded, that these thinges shalbe done with all diligence.

The VII. Chapter.

Then Syennes & undersherie in Co-losyria and Phenicia, and the other landholders with their companyons, obeyed the thinges that thyng Darius had commaunded, were diligent in the holy worke, & were felow helpers with the other rulers of the Jewes. And so the worke of the Sanctuary went forth and prospered, when Zigareus and Zachary prophesied. And they performed all thinges that were the commaundements of the LORD God of Israel, and after the decesse of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes thynges of Persia.

And thus was the house finished, unto the xij. daye of the moneth Adar in vj. years of thyng Darius. And the children of Israel the prestes & the Levites, & the other that were come out of captivite, & such as were joyned unto them, by adoringe as it is exprest in the boke of Ithosin. And in the dedication of the temple they offered an him bulch or man, & rammes, & lambs, & kid-goats (for the synnes of all the people of Israel, after v. nombre of the tribunes of Israel.
 The prestes also & the Levites rode away in the prestly garments, after & cryes, over all & twises of the LORD God of Israel, according to & boke of Ithosin, and the posters by all the doores.

And the children of Israel (as those & we re come out of captivite) helde the Passover the xij. daye of the fastenynge, when the prestes and the Levites were sanctified.

They that came out of captiuitie, were not all sanctified together: but the Levites were all sanctified together. And so all they that came out of captiuitie, killed the easter lamb, for their brethren, for the priests & for them selves. And the child of Israel came out of captiuitie, & escaped first all 7 abominations of the heuells, sought the LORD, and kept the feast of unleavened bread viij daies longe, eating & drinking & were not y before the LORD: for the LORD had turned the deuote of the king of Assiria, to comfort their handes to the wordes of 7 LORDS God of Israel.

The viij. Chapter.

After him, when Artaxerxes the king of 7 Persia reigned, there were once him Esdras the sonne of Sarias, the sonne of Asarian, the sonne of Helchias, 7 sonne of Salis, the sonne of Sadoe, 7 sonne of Achab, the sonne of Amarias, 7 sonne of Asarias, the sonne of Boccas, 7 sonne of Abisai, 7 sonne of Phineas, the sonne of Eleazar, 7 sonne of Aaron 7 first priest. This Esdras was of from Babilon for he had good understanding in the lawe of Moyses, & was great of the LORDS God of Israel, to be caught & come in deede. And 7 king fauoured him, & byd him great worshippe and donoure, after all his desires. There came up with him also certayne of 7 children of Israel of the prestes, of 7 Levites, of the singers, poets, and mynsters of 7 temple at Jerusalem.

In the viij. yere of the reigne of king Artaxerxes, in the wmoneth, yis in the viij. yere of the reigne, they came from Babilon in the newmoone of the wmoneth, & came the hye waye to Jerusalem after his commandement, like as the LORD had propheted their journey, for in these Esdras gat grace instruction, 7 he shoulde leave none of 7 thinges betwix, which were in 7 lawe & commandementes of God. And he taught the whole Israel all righteousness & iudgement.

Then came the Secretaries of king Artaxerxes, & bydynged 7 mynsters 7 were come first Artaxerxes the king to Esdras the pekt & reber of the lawe of the LORD. And this 7 coppe of 7 letter: King Artaxerxes sendeth his greetinge vnto Esdras the pekt & reber of the lawe of 7 LORD: Of frendshippe & good will I haue obeyed and charged, yf there be any of the Jewes of 7 prestes & Levites in my realme, which desire to be cometh to go to the temple Jerusalem, 7 he maye do it. Therefore yf any be mynded to beate the coperie, let the come to mynster go as the like as I am cometh & mynsters be my coler: so is what they be to Jerusalem & in Jewry, & hope 7 charyte as geas then hast in 7 lawe of the LORD: es bunge the gifte vnto God the LORD of Israel, 7 7 my frendes here pange to Jerusalem, & all the ylar & golde for a countre of Babilon, vnto 7 LORDS 7 refuse, w the charge 7 is great for the prest in the LORDS temple at Jerusalem: so that the same ylar & golde maye be gathered, and open, rammes, strepe & gowne & other that belinge to the church: and that they maye offer sacrificies vnto the LORD upon the altar of the LORDS temple at Jerusalem.

And what so ever then 7 they be to do with the ylar & golde, 7 do after 7 mynster after the commandement of the LORDS God: & like wise w all the holy vessels & graue for the service of the house of the LORDS 7 y God & other thinges whiche are necessary for the use of the temple, 7 shalbe great of the byngment sure: let what thou wist they be to do with the golde and ylar, that be to the use of the LORDS. And 7 king Artaxerxes haue commanded the eper of his stores in Syria and Phoenicia that be to use Esdras the pekt and reber of the lawe of the LORDS wordes, & shall haue him vnto an C. talents of silver, and of be in hys manner: Of came also an C. shewen, and all an hundred vessels of wyne, & other plectures & changes without nombre. Let all thinges be done after the lawe of 7 byst God, that the maych of God arise in the realme of the byng and of his lawe, 7 commandment as also, that w mynster no captiue nor tribute of the prestes, & wiers, singers, and mynsters of the temple of the wyrtys: and that no man haue auctorite to trouble any thinge against. As for the Esdras, for the lawe of the LORDS, after the wysdome of God no letme all such as are iynement in the lawe of God the LORDS, and let all them that sende a gaynst the lawe, be punished by the death, with payme, to be damned in money, or to be banished.

Then is the Esdras of wyrtys & of the lawe of our fathers, that hath good & mynde and will in to the house of the byng, to magnifie his house, & his lawe, and hath made it to be accepted.

figer of y^e kynge, of his counceill, of his fre tes and of his nobles. And so I was a sta fish in my mynde, accordinge as the LORDE my God helpe me, and I chose out men of I¹¹ Judaea to go wth me. And these are the heades after their kynredes & houses of their fathers that wente up wth me from Babil lon, one of the byngdomes of Achaemenes: Of the sonnes of Phares, Werthoma. Of y^e son nes of Simeon, Almeno. Of the sonnes of David, Leono, the sonne of Leulio.

Of the sonnes of Phares, Zachary: and wth him there turned aye a yre an hondred and thre men. Of the sonnes of the captey of Ithobalon, Zerae, and wth him ij. C. and Lmen. Of the sonnes of Zacharias, Jeho mas Zachoi, and wth him ij. C. and Lmen.
Of the sonnes of Salamaasias, Wertholia, and wth him. Of the sonnes of Zaphan, Zaria, i¹¹ Ithali, and wth him lxx. Of the sonnes of Job, Abdias, Jeheli, and wth him ij. C. and xij. men. Of the sonnes of Ba nias, Salmech, the sonne of Josaphias, and wth him an C. and lx. men. Of the sonnes of Dor, Zachary, Habel, and wth him ij. C. and xij. men. Of the sonnes of Elsead, Johan nes, Ezechan, and wth him lx. men. Of the sonnes of Abonai, those that were the last, and these are their names: Eliphalem, y^e son ne of Gedai, and Simeone, & wth him lx.
men. All these called I together by the wa ter Thib, where we pitched oure tentes this hore, and there I numbered them.

As for the sonnes of the prestes and Leui tes, I founde more there. Then first I wth Gemas, & Elcolom, and Masman, & Malo hem, and Enaathan, and Simes, and Jea himban, & Enagan, Zachary, & Josallam i¹¹ (these were the ledes and men of experice) & I sent them wth de, that they shoulde come wth Leodeus, which was by the place of the treasury, & councailled them that they shoulde speake wth Leodeus and to his bre thren, to those that were in the treasury, to send us such men as might execute the prest es office in the house of the LORDE oure God. And wth the mighte hadde of oure LOR DE God, they broughte wth us wth of good experiance, from amonge the sonnes of Mo doe, the sonne of Leui, y^e sonne of Israel, Sa babin, & the sonnes & his brethren Zephin & Zim, of whom there were xviij. From am ong the children of the sonnes of Cananens, a thir sonne were xx. men. And of them I found in the temple, whom David had o verdred, and the principall men that minist ered for the worke unto the Leuites in the temple, ij. C. and xx. men: whose names are all set out up in writings.

Then commaunded I a fastinge unto y^e yenge men before the LORDE, & I mighte desire of him a prosperous journey & a good waye for us, yet for us, for oure children and for the cattell, because of the layenges away er: I durst not requyre of the kynge men of host: & of force, to conveye us safely agaynst oure enemies, for we had sayde unto the kyn ge, that y^e power of the LORDE oure God shoulde be wth them, that sette him wth their whole hert. And therfor we desyghe God oure LORDE earnestly because of the chety ges, and he was mercifull wth us, and her de oure prayer. And I separated from among ge y^e rulers of the people, & from y^e prestes of y^e temple xij. men, & Sebia, & Almas, & ten men of their brethren wth them. And I wth the golde & the syluer & all y^e prest ly ornaments of the house of y^e God, which the kynge & his counsell, & his prestes & who le I had had. And when I had weyed it, I founde that an C. & lxx. was the syluer, an C. & lxx. was the syluer vessell, an C. & lxx. was the gol de, & gold & vessell stur tymes tenne, and vessels of other metall (ye of good metall) xij. gyltunge as the golde, & saide unto the:
ye also are holy wth the LORDE, & the ves sels are holy, & the golde & the syluer is puri fied unto the LORDE the God of y^e fathers.
Be diligent now & kepe it, until the tyme I ye deliver it to the rulers of the people, to y^e prestes, to the Leuites & to y^e principall me n of the ciute of Israel in Jerusalem, & in the chambr of the house of oure God.

So y^e prestes & the Leuites which recei ued of me the golde, the syluer & the vessell, broughte it to Jerusalem into the temple of the LORDE. And from thia we brake up the xij. daye of the first month, & all we came to Je rusalem. And when the thirde daye was past, the weyed golde & syluer was delivered in y^e house of the LORDE the fourth daye, unto Mansoth the sonne of Joche prest, & wth him was Eleazar y^e sonne of Phinias, and wth the were Josabab, y^e sonne of Jeie, & Mehias, & the sonne of Barnas, & certeyn of the Levites cothe nombre & so the mayntie & the mayntie of them was wth the same tyme. As for those that were come out of captiue yre, they offered sacrifice unto the LORDE the God of Israel: and xij. open for all Israel, lxx. portmannes, lxxij. shepe, xij. go ats for fenne, xij. tyme for a thankofferinge, des and beheres of the kynge, and to cheren derbaues in Celosyn and Phenices.

126 Now when these thinges were done, the rulers came vnto me, and sayde: The generacion of Israel, the princes, y^e prestes and Le-uites, the straunge people and indwellers of the lande, haue now put away their wickednesse, from the Canaanites, Hethites, Pheretites, from the Moabites, Eliphtians and Do-mites. For both they and their sonnes haue mingled them selues with the daughters of them, and the holy site is mingled with the our lonely heithen, and so the begynnynge of their iniquite haue the rule and heades beneuer casters of their wickednesse.

So soone as I had herd these thinges, immediatly I saw my holy garments, and pulled out of my heade and my teeth, and sat me downe forsooth and heuy. So all they the more moued euer the worke of the God of Israel, came vnto me, and I saw still full of beuines vntill the euerynge sacrifice.

Then sate I up fro forstinge, and ynge arrues clothed the holy garnise, kneled downe vpon my knees, helde out my handes vnto of LORDE, and sayde: LORDE, I am confessed and ashamed before thy face, for oure symnes are become many vpon oure heades, and wickednesse are created vnto the heade: for sinis y^e synne of oure fathers we are in greare sin in vnto this daye. And for the synnes of oure fathers haue bene delinced vnto the kinges of the earth, and to the sacerdes, and to capitiles, and beuines a spoyl with confusion and shame vnto this daie. And now LORDE God, honor giue in the mercy y^e we haue goete of the: for y^e thou hast left us a name in the place of thy Sanctuery, to discouer our light in the house of y^e LORDE God, and geue us meate as all synners of ministration. And when we were in captiuitie, we were no forsaken of the LORDE once God: but because the kinges of Persia greuous and fauourable vnto us, so they gaue us bycaries and meate, yet we leuied buyde and the ple of oure LORDE God agayne, so repayne the waisted place of Zion, and to dwell in Ierusalem and Jerusalem. And now LORDE, what shall we saye, hauinge all these thing-es in possession? For we haue broken the commandementes, which thou ginnest vnto us by the handes of thy seruantes the prophetetes, sayynge: The lande y^e we are vnto, and y^e given you for an heritage to haue in possession, is defiled with the uncleannes and filthines of the heithen, and with their abhomincion haue they polluted it all together. The-fore shal ye not to me your daughters as their sonnes, nor marry y^e sonnes among daughters: I therefore, ye shall neuer make peace with them, y^e maye increase: to the rest in the lande, and y^e maye dwelle in inheritaunce of the lande vnto y^e daye for euer more. So for these thinges y^e men lamented vnto us, and commeth all for with mourne and greate synes, yet hast thou us such a deere, y^e we are come againe to our lande: and we are so wretched, y^e we haue broken the lawes and commandementes of the, and mingled of selues with the uncleannes of the heithen. LORDE God, I am grie-ued with us: wile thou rose us a cleane heart? oure rote is no more remayned: LORDE God of Israel, thou art true, yet comest endureth us vnto this present daye. And helde, now are we before y^e in of synners, and can we not stand before the in them.

And when ESDRAS read this prayer, he knuled the of synners, and pinge, and he fell vpon the grounde before the temple, where y^e threwe vnto him from Jerusalem a great multitude of men and women, of y^e gentiles and y^e heithen, for there was a very greuous mourne and mourninge in the citye. And when ESDRAS the sonne of ISACHAR the children of Israel cried, he sayde vnto ESDRAS: we haue synned agaynst the LORDE, because we haue married outlandish women of the heithen. I now aske you what all we will sweare nns oth therfore? ESDRAS said, y^e we shal put away all of synners which we haue take of the heithen, which dwelle in the isle is appointed the by a fore dore.
Stand vpon then, open thou us and becom playmely vnto us a cordage to the lute of y^e LORDE God for the manner belongeth vnto y^e we will helpe the, quyetly y^e firmly. So ESDRAS arose, and becom one of the rulers of y^e prestes and of y^e Levites of all Israel, to do after these thinges, and they went.

The X. Chapter.

Then ESDRAS sate up from the street of the temple with them, and went in to the chamber of JONATHAN the sonne of ELIASAB, and remayned there, and came neither bynke, for the multitude of the wickedness of the people. And there was a proclamation in all Ierusalem and in Jerusalem, for all such as were gathered at Jerusalem out of captiuitie, y^e who so ever came to Jerusalem within two or three dayes (ac-cordinge to the iudgement of the elders of counsell) his goodnes shoulde be taken from him, the exileds from the cōgregation of the captiuitie. And in this dayes were all they of the tribe of Judah & Ben Iamuga shew together as Ierusalem, the 77. dayes of 77. moneth. And yf whole multitude sat tēl blis in the court of the temple, for it was wynde. So Esdras arose up, & sayde vnto them: I haue done vnto yee as I haue a charge ye haue taken outlandish wyues to marriege, & for to cause the synnes of Israel. And now I will doe the same, & geue payre vnto the LORD God of oure fathers, & perswarme the multitude from the synne of the land, & from the outlandish wyues. Then said the whole multitude with loude voyce, & sayde: like as thou hast spokē, so wil we do. And for Ierusalem as the people are many, & I am here, we maie not stōde without yf some daye, this worke is not a thinge, & can be finished in a daye or two, for we be many & haue synned in this thinge: Oure nation, & the rulers of the multitude and all they that dwell with vs, and as many as haue outlandish wyues, the priestes also and whos of every place, maye stōde in the temple as we appoynted, vntill they leaue vnto the warch of the LORD in this busynesse.

Then Jonathan the sonne of Eli, & Asaias and Theban receaued yf charge of this matter, & Bogamius, & Lemus and Sabadus helped the other. After this, all they stode vnto yf more come out of captiuitie. And Esdras the priest chose vnto him the pryncipall men from amonge the fathers a cōordinat to their nation, & in the new moone of the sixth moneth they sat together, to examine this matter. And so the matter was a determination (concerninge the men yf had outlandish wyues) vntill the new moone of the first moneth. And of the priestes yf had mēte the synne of outlandish wyues, there were summe: Of the sonnes of Iaso the sonne of Jeseba: & his brethren, Mosias, & Eleazar, Joribus & Joadas, which offered them selues to put awaye their wyues, & to offre a ramme for their ignoraunce. And of the sonnes of Semur: Masias, & Asa & Jesech. Asa was, Of yf sonnes of Jofera, Limosias, Zibbum, Mathanes, Jusio, Jedus, & Talsas. And of the Levites, Josabias, Semias and Osim, Calcas, Jaceas, Colcas and Elias. Of the singlers of the Sacerdary, Eliasab, Sadarius. Of the porters, Sallum & Tolomias. And of Israel, of the children of Jua, Of J Ramias, & Geddias, & Melchias, & Leazarus, & Metias & Darius. And of the children of Ierusalem, Chan-as, Zachary, Jereclias, Jedias, & Erimos & Elias. And of yf sonnes of Jacobum, Elias, & Limosias, & Jodias, & Lemosias, & Sabdia & Lebeas. And of yf sonnes of Jeeben, Jofines Amarias, Sabdia, & Lemosias. And of the sonnes of Barnus, Osimias, Melchias, Jedus, Jofub, Asaba & Jeremias. And of yf sonnes of Abdim, Talsas & Mosias: & Calcas & Asanas Masias, & Mathasias, & Jeseb, Darius, and Manasse.

And of the sonnes of Sares, Teneas, Jafas, & Melchias, Barnas, Gums, & Jamin, & Melchias & Talsas. And of the sonnes of Asom, Carianus, & Mathathias, Barnas, & Elphalch, & Manasse, & Semis. Of the sonnes of Barnus, Jeremy, Medias, & Asamas, & Jofel, & Asa, & Pelias, & Jona, & Martimoth, & Elasis, & Mathanias, & Elasis, & Osim, & Dielias, & Semedias, & Sumbis & Jofeph. Of yf sonnes of Tofebus, Jodas, & Mathathias, & Sabadus, & Jacheda, & Semis, & Jeseba, & Barnas. All these had taken outlandish wyues to marriege, & they put the lawe vnto their churche.

The priestes & Levites, & all they yf were of Israel, dwelt at Jerusalem & shew out all yf stode, in the new moone of the seventh moneth, & the children of Israel were in their dwellinges. And yf whole multitude came together vpon yf stode at yf east syde of the holy porte of yf temple. And they spake vnto Esdras yf his priest & reber, yf he wolde bringe yf lawe of Moses, which was geue of yf LORD God of Israel. So Esdras the priest broughte the lawe vnto the whole multitude, so man and woman, & so all priestes, yf they might heare the lawe, in the new moone of the seventh moneth. And heredis yf stode yf is before yf holy porte of yf temple, from the new moone early vntill the eveninge, before men & women. And they applied their mynde all vnto the lawe.

And Esdras the priest & reber of yf lawe stode vpon a scaffold of wood, which was made the fore: & vpon his right hande there stode by him Mathathias, Barnas, Amarias, & Asa, & Osim, & Jeseba, & Dalsam: vpon his left hande stode Jofebus, & Melchias, & Mathasias, & Sabdia, & Talsas, & Zachary. Then toke Esdras yf booke before the whole multitude, for he was yf pryncipall and had in most honore of the all. And whā he had red one yf lawe, they stode all straight vpon their feet. So Esdras praised the LORD the most hye God, the Almighty God of hosties. And all yf people answered, Amen: & they vnto their habes, fell downe flat vpon the earth, & praised yf

These sayeth the Almighty LORD E: When ye were in the wilderness, in the wildernes of the Amorites, beinge a thyrtē yeare: pharagging my name, I gaue you not fyre for your blisphemies, but cast a reio to y^e water, and made it for you sweete. What shal I reioyce of, saith Iacob: I haue Iuda reioyce not of me. I will come nee to another people, vnto thesē will I geue my name, that they maye be my people. And saye ye hauē forsaken me, I will forsake you also. When ye shall see me to be gracious vnto you, I shall haue mercy vpon you. When ye shall saye me, I will beare you. For ye haue defiled your habes with blood, and your face are faint to committe manslaughter. Ye haue not forsaken me in a manner, but your owne fleshe sayeth the LORD E.

Thus spake the Almighty LORD: he in Ierusalem sayeth, as a father his sonnes, as a mother her daughters, and as a nurse his weilde babes, that ye would be my people, and I shalbe to youe God as ye wold be my children, and I shalbe to youe our father: I gathered you together, as an ewe gathereth his children vnder his wing saye: But now what shal I do vnto youe?
 I will cast you out fro my face. Whan ye offre vnto me, I shal turne my face from youe: for ye haue despised my feast dayes, youe are wroth agaynst me, and youe circumcise the heart of Ierusalem. I sent vnto you my seruantes the prophets, which ye haue taken and slayne, and smothered betwixen peeces, wherof I bloude will requyre of youe handes, sayeth the LORD.

The ij. Chap. No. ix.

Thou seest the Almighty LORD. I your God must be desolate. I will cast you out as the wynde doth f strawe: your children shall not be fruitful, for they haue despised my commaundement, and done euill things as I will before me. Your house and I gaze unto a people I shall come, and they shall haue me, shall beleeue in me: they will sing I neuer shewd euen, shall do euill things, as I commaundeth. They haue sene no prophecie, yet shall they call their names to remembrance, and shalloege the. I tropte me in to the grace, that I will be for the people which is to come, whose children reioyce in gladnes: though they haue not sene me to bodily eyes, yet in spirit they beleeue the thing that I saye. And now to bidde, behold mine grace moethpe, and is f people that commeth from the east. unto whom I will gaze: the dut children of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, of Oseem, Amos, and Hindeas, of Joel, Abdy, Jonas, Tamm and Abacuc, of Ezodny, I gawe, Zachary and Malady, which is called also an angel (some saye) ger of the LORD.

The II. Chapter.

Thus saith the LORD: I brought this people out of bondage, I gave them my commandments by my servants: yet they prophesied, whom they would not hear, but they despised my words. The mother that bare them, sayeth unto them: Go your way, ye my children, for I am a widow, I feel not fear: I brought you up with glass bottles, with inch of wax, and have brought you hither: I set you for yea, but ye turned before the LORD ye God, and done I things that I will call before him. But what shall I now do unto you? I am a widow and my hands are open, say ye unto my children: and are mercies of the LORD. As for me & father, I call upon the for a refuge: for as the mother of those children, which would not keep my commandment: I thus bring them to confusion, and their mother to a spote, that they beare no more. And at their names be feared a broadening of the gates, let them be put out of the earth, for they have brought forth of my covenant.

¶ We be vnto the Affire, thou that hydest ple, remember what I dyd vnto Sodom be haue giuen vnto Israel. Their glory also wil I take vnto me, and geue them the eter lasting tabernacle, which I had prepared for thee.

The care of life shalbe vnto them a sweet smelling yncense: they shal neither labour nor be weery. So ye your waye, & ye shall receaue it. Praye for yo^r salues a few dayes, that they maye dwell therein. Now is the Kingdome prepared for you, therefore watch. Toke heede and ear to myniste, for I haue broken the smell in peccas, and created the good, for I lyne sayeth y^e LORD. Moreover embrace thy childre, and bringe them vp with gladnes: make their fete as fast as a piler, for I haue chosen the, sayeth the LORD.

C And those that be dead will I raise vp againe from their places, and bringe them out of y^e graues, for I haue knowne my name in Israel. I care not thou mother of the childre, for I haue chosen the, sayeth the LORD. And for thy helpe I shal sende: the mysericordies of Iosay and Jeremy, a few who se counsell I haue sanctified & prepared for thee, p^ro^pter vnto thyse places, and as in my welde floweringe with myrl & hony, & iunen mountaynes, wherup^o thece greene roies and lilies, wherin I wil fyll my children with ioye. I execute iustice for the myddow, be iudge for the faithlesse: geue to y^e poore: be sinder the ciuilelesse: clothe the naked: heale the wounded and sicke: laughe not at lame man to scom: desende be the creepell, and lasse the blinde come in to y^e sight of my cleare. As thee the olde & yeage within thy walles: where so euer thou fyndest the deede, take them, and burye them, and I shal geue the the best place in my resurrection. Holdy styll O my people, and take y^e rest, for thy quietnes is come. Sebe thy childre O thou good mother, stablish their fete: No for the seruantes whom I haue giuen the, there shal be one of them penite, for I wil sette the from thy nombre, were a othe y^e self.

For when the doye of trouble and heauyenes cometh, other shal wepe and be sorrowfull, but thou shalt be merry and plesed. As the whichen shalbe gilead, but they shalbe able to do nothings agaynst the, sayeth the LORD. My handes shal cover the, so that thy childre shal not se the synners lastinge. Be ioyfull O thou mother with thy childre, for I will bestowe the, sayeth the LORD. Remember thy beed childre, for I shal bringe them out of the earth, and shew mercy vnto them, for I am mercifull, sayeth the LORD. Almightie.

Embrace thy childre, vntill I come, and shew mercy vnto them, for my welde is come, and my grace shal be faste. I shal receaue a charge of the LORD vnto mount Oreb, that I shal be go vnto Iud. But whas I came vnto the, they saue as a sought, and despyde the commandment of y^e LORD. And therefore I saue vnto y^e O ye herthen, that heare and vnderstande. Like for youre shepherde, he shal geue you everlastinge rest: for he is not at hande, that shal come in the ende of the moule. Be ioy to the reward of the Kingdome, for the everlastinge life shal shyne vpon you more. Sit the shadowe of the wood, because the ioyfulness of youre glory. I will be my seruice openly: O ye cease the gift is giuen you, and be glad, geueing the vnto him, that hath called you to the habitation of the Kingdome. Arise up, and stande beholde the nombre of those that be in the feaste of the LORD, which are taken from the shadowe of the wood, and be ioyfull: because glorious garments of the LORD. Take thy cumber O Sion, and shewe thy p^rouise, which haue fulfilled the lawe of the LORD. The nombre of thy childre whom thou longedest for, is fulfilled: with the power of the LORD, that thy people which haue bene called from the begynning, maye be halowed.

I Esdras saue vpon the mount Sion y^e greate people, whom I comendement, & they all prayed the LORD with songs of thankesgynge. And in the mydd of the there was a yonge man of an hy stature, more excellent then all they, and vpon any one of theire heades he set a crown, and was ioyfuller and higher, which I included at greatly. So Iored y^e angell sayde: Sy, what are these? he answered and sayde vnto me: These be they, that haue p^roe of the mortall clothinge and put on the immortall, and haue resistered y^e knowledge the name of God. Now are they crowned, and receaue the reward.

Then sayde I vnto the angell: what ye performe so it, that crowne them, & geue them the palmes in their hande? he answered and sayde vnto me: These be of God, whom they haue knowen in the world. Then begonne I greatly to remember them, that stood so fast for the name of the LORD. And so the angell sayde vnto me: Be thy waye, and tell my people, what manner of thinges and how grete reward of the LORD thy God thou hast seen.

The III. Chapter.

In the thirtieth year of the fall of the city, I was at Babylon: & laye crowded vpon I say bed, & my thoughts came vpon many heres: for I sawe y^e desolation of Sion, & the place was a weald of thornes vnder the Babylon: my spere was sore moued, so that I beganne to speake full wortes to the most high, and sayde: O LORD, thou spakest as the beginninge, when thou placedst y^e earth (and that thy self alone) and gauest commaundement vnto y^e people, and a body vnto Adam, which was a creature of thy handes, and hast hie died in him the birth of life: and so he lyued before the, and thou lovest him in to paradise, which gard of pleasure thy right handed plant, on euer the earth was a waste.
And vnto him thou gauest commaundement in lawe y^e wayes, which he transgressed, & im-mediatly thou appointedst death in him, and in his generacions. O if hum came na city, vnto a people, & y^e number was of number. And many people walked after their owne will, and vnto myce thyngs a before the: and as thy commaundementes, they despysed them.

When in proceffe of tyme thou broughtest the moate flood, vpon the which dwelle in the world, and destroyedst them. And like as the brachy was in Adam, so was the mo-ate floods also in the. I remember the one of them thou latest: namely, I doe with his brother, of whom come all righteous minde. It happened that, when they y^e dwelt vpon the earth, beganne to multiplie, and had gotten many children, and were a greate people, they beganne to be more vngodly then the first.

Now when they all lyued so wickedly before the, thou dydest chose the a man from amonge them, whose name was Abram, & whom I loveddest, and vnto him only thou lovestest thy will, and marrydest a a curia-fonge couenaunt with him, promisinge him, that thou wouldest neuer forsake his seed.
And vnto him thou gauest Isaac, vnto Isaac also thou gauest Jacob: a as I said. So for I loveddest a best chose him, and put backe them. And so Jacob became a greates multitude.

And it happened that when thou lovestest his seed out of Egypte, thou broughtest the vnto the mount Sion, bringinge downe the downe, & sayinge I will the earth, movinge the ground, and I will the depths of the earth, and troublinge the world: And thy glory wente theow foute portes of fyre, and earth quakes, and wyndes and colde: that thou mightest gene the lawe vnto the of Jacob, and diligence vnto the generacoe of Israel.

And yet todest thou not awaye from the that tricked here, that thy lawe mighte bynge forth fyre in them, for the first Adam bare a naked hart, transgressed, and was curseme, and so be all they are borne of him.
Thou remainest wale ara with the lawe in the hart of the people, with the wickednesse of the eere: so that the good departed awaye, as the euill abode still. So the ymes possed awaye, and the yeres were brought to an ende. Then didest thou raise the a a ser-uaunt called Daniel, whom thou commaun-dest to buye a cite vnto thy name, and so offer op in conse a as a sacrifice vnto the thy-
n. This was done now many yeres.

Then the inhabitants of the cite forgotte the, and walled thine by the lawe: Adam and all his generacions had done: for they also had a walled hart. And so thou gauest thy cite cur in to the habites of thine enemies.
Are they of Babylon then better and more righteous then thy people, y^e they shall therfore haue the born vnto of Sion? For when I came there, and sawe their vngodlynes, and so greates wickednesse, that it coude not be nombred: yet when my soule sawe so many euill doers (as y^e xxx. yeres my heart sayed me, for I sawe, how thou suffrest them in sedis vngodlynes, and sparest y^e wicked doers: how thine enemye people hast thou roben out, and preserved thine enemies, & this hast thou not shewed me.

I can not perceave how this happeneth.
Do they of Babylon then better then they of Sion? Or is there any other people, y^e knoweth the, sayinge the people of Israel? Or what generacions hath so belovd y^e couenaunt as Jacob? And yet their reward a ppear-eth not, and their labd hath no frute. For I have gone here and there thow y^e the which I see, & they be ryde y^e wealth, & thine vpon y^e commaundementes. Woe y^e thou ha-rest vnto the wickednesse a son in y^e balauce, and thine also that dwell in the world, and so shall thy name be nombred founde here in Israel. Or where is there a people vpon earth, y^e hath not sinned before the? Or what people hath so depre thy commaundementes?
Thou shalt fynde, that Israel by name ha-repts thy preceptes, but not the other people and israhym.

The III. Chapter.

21 And the angell that was sent unto me (whose name was Aiid) gaue me answer, and sayde: Thy heart hath beat to much vpon it in this worlde, and thou thyself to comprehend the waye of the lyf. Then sayde I vnto my lord. And he answered me, and sayde: I am sent to shewe the thine waye, and to see forth the symilitudes before the members of the church can declare me one. I will shewe the also the waye, that thou be thyself to see, and I shal shewe the from whiche the anckel here cometh. And I sayde: tell me in my LORDE. Then sayde he vnto me: Go thy waye, wey me the weight of the fyre, or measure me the blast of the wynde, or call me a game the daye that is past. Then answered I and sayde: What man is able to do that? Why requyreth thou such of me? And he sayde vnto me: If I shalbe as the, how depe do welling as are in the see? O how great water spalinge are vpon I firmamter. O how great water spalinge are in the be gynnynge of the depe: O which are the our goynge of Paradyse: Paradyse canst thou not saye vnto me? I neuer wente downe yee in to I depe nor hell, neither byd I euer chym me vp in to a heauen. I neuer cleane now haue I aye the but only of fyre and wynde and of the depe, where thou hast trauayled, and from the which thou canst not be separated: and yet canst thou geue me no answer of them.

22 He sayde morouer vnto me: Thine owne chynge, and such as are graue vpon thy I, canst thou not knowe: how shaldest thou saye then be able to comprehend the waye of the lyf, and now encruaidly in the corrupte worlde, to vnderstande the corruption I is layd in my sight: The sayde I vnto him: Ic were better that we were not at all, the that we shalbe lyue in wickednesse, and to suffer, and not to knowe wherfore. He answered me, and sayde: I wete in a word, and the trees vnto the daye deuyce, and sayde: Come let us go, and sighe agaynst the see, that it maye departe awaye before vs, and that we maye wate vs yet more wobbles.

par. a. c

The sound as of the see also in lyke maner toke this deuyce, and sayde: Come, let us go vp, and sighe agaynst the trees of the wooode, that we maye make ouer londe the wyer. The thoughte and deuyce of the wooode was but waye and nothinge worth, for the fyre came, and consumed the wooode: The thoughte of the flouds of the see came likewise to naughte also, for the fonde stode vp and stop ped them.

If thou were iudge now betwix the two, whom woldest thou chuse, in which woldest thou chide me? I answered and sayde: Dearly it is a foolish thoughte that thou hast had deuyce. For the grounde is gone vnto the woode, and the fyre also hath had place to beare his floudes. Then answered he and sayde: Thou hast geuen a right answer, why iudgest thou not thy self also? In this as the grounde is geuen vnto the woode, as the fyre to his floudes: euen so they that haue vpon earth, maye vnderstande nothinge, the that which is vpon earth and he that wal- leth aboue the heauens, maye only wote of the thynges, that are aboue the heauen. Then answered I and sayde: I bidde the LORDE let me haue vnderstandynge the was a nor my wynde to be carious of thy thynges, but of such as we deuyce men not allinamely, wherfore theer I shall blas- pheme of the heuhen, and for what cause the people (whom thou euer hast lorde) is gone out, to be punished of vngodly men, and why the lawe of oure fathers is brought in naughte, and the wyeten commandment com- to none effecte, and we passe awaye out of the worlde as the grethoppers, and am left a very feare, and we are not worthy to open me mercy. What wyl I haue then vnto be- come, to which is called vpon ouer me: Of such thynges haue I ache question.

Then answered he me and sayde: Thou rethou feardest the more thou shalt stand, for the worlde hath such fast to passe awaye, and can not comprehend the thyng, that are promysed for the righteous man vnto me, for this worlde is full of vngodly men and wretches.

But as concernynge the thynges wher thou askest me, I wyl tell the. The euill is for me, but the destruction thereof is not yet come. If the euill new chynge is set on, it neuer had vpyde downe, and yf the place wher I euill is in some, passe not awaye, then canst the thyng come I is some wryth I goot. So the come of euill shal be bene some in the here of man from the begynnynge, and how much vngodlynes hath he brought vpon this tyme, and how much shal be yet to come, vntill he come in to the barre.

Pondus now by thyself I shal I come of I well se be in care downe, how great a paine shal I fyll: I answered and sayde: How canst thou shal these thynges come to passe? Wherfore are I yeare a fewe I euill: And he answered me, sayynge: I canst not thou to much vnto the lyf, for thy halfynes to be abysed what in wyme, thou makest to much a doo. dyonot þe folow also of the righteuousnes question of these thinges in their holynes, sayng: how longe shal I hope of this fashion: When cometh the frutes of my barne, and my requerd: And vpo this Jeremil the archangel gaue them answer, and say-id: For I haue the aymbie of the sctuous sylled in you: for he hath weyed the worlde in the balancer: in measure and nombe hath he measured the tymes, and mouth it is not, vntill the same measure be fulfilled. Then an-swerd I and sayde: O LORDE LORDE, howe art thou full of synne, and so iure sable paratremere: it is not, that the barne of the righteuous shall not be fylled, because of the synnes of the that dwell vpon earth.

So he answered me, & sayde: Go y waye to a woman with childe, and aye her, when she hath fulfilled her tyme, menecbe, yf her childreth maye depe y byrth eny longer with in her. The sayde I: To LORDE, what can she do. And he sayde vnto me: In hell the secrete places of foules are like y pency chamber of a woman. For like as a woman that trauayleth, maketh haist, when the tyme y ne-cessite of the byrth is at hande: Euen so dooth she haist to deliuer it that is conuyned vnder her. Like vnto what thou desirest to se, it shal be shewed thee from the begynnyng. Then answered I and sayde: If I haue founde sauour in thynghe, and yf it be possible, and yf I be mee therefore, shew me then, whether there be more to come thil in past, semeasst them in for to come. What is past, I knowe: what is for to come, I knowe not.

And he saide vnto me: Stande vpon y righte spoe, and I shal expounde the symlic beere the. So I stode, y beholde, as a woman lyming, and wente ones before me: it hap-pend y when the flame was gone by, the smoke had the upper hande. And first thin the it wente once before me a watery cloude, and for downe much rayne to a storme: & when the stormy wynde was past, the droppes returned still. Then sayde he vnto me: like as the tyme is more then the dioppes, and as the fye recouereth the smoke, enso þe y measure of the thynges that are past, hath the upper hande. Then wente the dioppes and the smoke aboue: And I prayed and sayde: Mye I requerd (vnto the) ennyll that tyme: O mye shall happen in those dayes: he answered me, and sayde: As for the colde wher I thou askest me, I maye tell the of the in a pety: but as touching y list, I maye not shewe the, for I am not sent therfor.

The v. Chapter.

¶ Euertheles, as concerninge the co-tens, must this be holde, the dayes shal come, that they wyl dwel wpon earth, shal be cald in a greete nombe, & the waye of the earth shal be hyd, and the so-de shal be barren from faith, but in quyre shal haue the upper hande, like as thou hast seuen now, and as thou hast herde agoon. And the lande that thou seist now to haue rule, shal: thou shouldest se maist, But yf God graunte the to lye, thou shalt se after y this becompre, that the Sonne shal suddenly shy-ne agayne in the night, and the Moone the tymes in the daye, y cloude shal droppe out of rodd, and the stone shal geue his voyce, and the people shal be in quyre: and eue he shal rule, whom they hope not that wyl be vpon earth, and the foules shal flye, and the sodomitysh see shal cast out his fish, and make a noyse in the night, which maye shal not knowe, but they shal all heare the voyce thereof.

There shal be a cōsion also in many places, and the fye shal be a fyre agayne, and the wynde blastes shal goe the waye, y man-sters as women shal beare manstren, and sale waters shal be foame in the foute: one frend shal fyght agaynst another: then shal all weye and vnderstandings be hyd, and put asybe in to the secrete places, y shal be soughte of many, and yet not be founde: then shal the righteousnes and volupuousnes haue the upper hande vpon earth. One lande also shal be in uoyce, and saye: Is righteousnes gone thow in the: And it shal saye: No. At the same tyme shal men hope, but nothinge opene ne they shal labour, but their wayes shal not profpore.

To shewe the such tokens I haue lre, and yf thou wyl praye agayne, y wepe now, and fast seuen dayes, thou shalt beare yet greater thynges. Then I amast, and a feare folme wynde thow all my body, y my myn-de was feble and carefull, so that I almost swooned withall. So the angel that was come to talke with me, helde me, comforted me, and set me vpon my feet.

And in the seconde night it happened, þe Sale: shielche captyue of the people came vnto me, sayenge: Where hast thou bene: and why is thy conuynance so heuy: And wyl thou not, þe I shal in conuyned vnto the, in the lymbe of their captyue: O pety, and ease, and solace wege, as the shoulde that teacheth his flock in the handes of ser-uants molues. Then sayde I vnto him: Wher wast thou, and comest not a yetme: yet he heard me, and as I sayde, so wrote he his waye fro me. And so I fasted seven dayes, mourninge and weeping, like a Virgill the angell commanded me. And a few seven dayes it happened, that I thoughtes as my heart were very greuous vnto me agayne, & my soule recei-ued y space of vnderstandynge, & I began to walke vnto the most hyght agayne, and sayde O LORD, LORD, of euery word of I carth & of all the times therof, thou hast chosen y one only vnto me: and of all lordes of the worlde thou hast chosen I to be thyng: and of all floures of the grownde thou hast chosen the one lyne and of all the depeces of the see thou hast filled the one ruyner: and of all build-des thou hast halowed Zion vnto thy habitation of all y soules that are created, thou hast named the one doger: and of all the castell y are made, thou hast preserued y one shepe: amonge all y multitudes of folkes thou hast gotten the one people, and vnto this people thou hast chosen I to be thyng: and thou hast chosen I to be thyng: and thou hast chosen I to be thyng of all.

D And now O LORD, why hast thou geat this one people ouer vnto many: & vpon the one roche thou hast prepared other, and why hast thou sated y one onely people amonge many: which create the beastes, yet which haue eger whichsonde y prynces, & neuer celened y conuener: And thou hast thou wast amonge vnto y people, yet thou hast thou pursued the wiche omne handes. I toke w ha had spode the fewelwoodes, the angell y came to me y night a soile, was sit vnto me, & sayde vnto me: heare me, & heere to y thinge y I saye, & I shall tell y now. And I sayde: Speake an my LORD. The sayde he vnto me: Thou art sore troubled & troubled for: I shall see, I shall know y people dier, then him y made them: And I sayde: To LORD, but after grete & compassion haue I spode. For my reynes pay-m me every houre, because I wolde haue experience of the waye of the most hyght, and to like aue part of his indgement. And he sayde vnto me: that thou mayest see. And I sayde: wherefore LORD: Where vnto now I borne then: O why was not my mother child: ded then my graue. So had I not bene the mystry and trouble of Jacob, and the tra-uayle of my people of Israel.

E And he sayde vnto me: I shall see me y thinge, y are not yet come: gather me together y droppe, that are scattered abrode: make me y flowers grene agayne, y are withered: opeme the thinge that is closed: and bringe me forth the wyndes, that are shroued up: Then made the ymage of a voyce, and then had I declared the thinge, that thou hast known. And I sayde: O LORD, I shall knowe I shall knowe the thinge, but thou hast not hid thynges of me: As thou am an wyse: how maye I thespice of thy thinges, wherof thou art thyng: The sayde he vnto me: like as thou canst do none of the thinges y I haue spoken of, thou shalt thou art thyng: out my indgement, & wher be the love that I haue promysed vnto my people. And I sayde: I shall see LORD, yet art thou my vnto them that haue no man and what: shall they do that haue bene leauyn, or me that be now, or they that shal come after me: And he sayde vnto me: I shall my indgement vnto a ryng. I shall see them no I shall see the thinge, even so to them of I shall see the thinge. So I shall see the be: Canst thou not make the thinge that haue bene made, and that be now, and that are to come: in one, that thou mayest see the indgement the sooner.

Then a nethered borne and sayde: Thou mayest not haue a bechepe maker, who maye the worlde holde the as one, that shal be created.

And I sayde: How hast thou sate the vnto thy seruants, that are thou yet maye hast made the creature lynges as thou: the creature haue te: and so maye they be as thou re thou haue be prynces, as one. And he vnto me: As the childer shal of a woman, as saye vnto her: If thou bringest forth a sonne, why dost thou it not together, but one er another: Praye her therfore, to brynge forth ten children at once. And I sayde: I can not, but must do it one a for anone.

Then sayde he vnto me: I shall see how gotten a childer bed vnto the earth, forth that be sowne vpon it by power of vnto.
For like as a yonger childer maye not brynge forth the thinges that belonge to the euen so haue I ended the worlde that I made.

And I said and sayde: Scynge thou hast now geue me a waye. I will speak before for one mother of whiche thou hast taken yet yonger, & now she draweth nye west er answered me: sayde: There a woman beareth children, & she shal tell the thynges to her: wherefore are not they: whom thou hast now brynge forth by the thesle thou before the, but lesse of floure: And thou which are of one substance and they that are born in the tyme of a ge (whan the child is born) sayethate oether wyle. Cā sōw new thyng shōw than yare lesse of stature, then it is that was before you, and so are they that come a fere yon, lesse then ge, in the creatura which now begynne to be olde, and haue passed out the strength of youth. Then sayeth I. O R D E I beseeche the, if I haue founde fauour in thy sight, shewe thy seruante, by whom doest thou wyse thy creature.

The vi. Chapter.

And he sayde vnto me: In the begynnyng whan the grounde was made, before the moode stood, or euer y wynneth men, before it thownded and lighned, or met the foundations of Paradise were layd, before the sayre flourde wecced, or euer the mountable pōweras were stablished, before innumerable multitudes of mygels were gathered together, or euer y highnesses of y aye were lifted up, in foue y measurys of the firmament were named, or euer y dynams in Eion were hore, and as the pūcture yare was ree sought out, and as euer the uenacions of them y now shure, were put asse, before they were sealed that new gatherd such fien treasure: then dyd I cōsidre and ponder all these chinges, and they all reuerend to me, and the reuonome echer by me as they be ended, and by none echer.

Then answered I and sayde: whyd shal beke putyng afunder of the tymes? Or whan shalbe the ende of the first, and the begynnyng of it that seloweth? And he sayde to me: From Abrahā vnto Isaac, whā Jacob z Eion were borne of him, Jacob whō had the firste hyle of Esau: for Esau is the ende of this worlde, and Jacob is the begynnyng of it that seloweth. The hant of man butteth the hyle and the bande, wher question Esdras, as thou no.

B I answered then and sayde: O LORDE, I beseeche the, shewe thy seruante the ende of thy roke, roker of chon shewdest me parū the last nyght. So he answered and sayde vnto me: Scibe up upon thy sear, and haue the pūcture noye and saunde. There shal come a grete moeton, but y place the in thei shōdeth shal not be mōdū. And echer sin whan thou hearest the woodea, be not asfeyd: for of the ende shal the woode and lūmbacion of y earth le vnderstonde. And whā the woode tpe of a mūltichy and quatych, for it knoweth, that it must be chaunged at the ende. And it happeneth, that whā I had herd it, I stode up upon my fere and harkned: and beholde, there was a cyce y spake, and the sounde of it was like the sounde of many wateres, and it sayde. Beholde, y daye come, y wyl begynne to dūme nye, and to wyse them that dwell vpon earth, and wyl begynne to make inquisition of them, what they be y haue hūer equypted in hūgrecusness, and whan the lōre estate of Eion shalbe fulfilled: and whan the woodea, that shal namish amaye, shalbe outsealed, then wyl I do these tokens.

The boke shalbe opened before the firma ment, and they shal be all together, the cheldren of a yaree olde shal speake thair voyces: the newt with childe shal drynge fensh vntymely chylde of fribt or fūre monethes olde, and they shal lūge, and be rayed up: z sōdely shal the some places appere as the vntymone, the full stōichonles shal sōdely be founde amper, and the ciomper shal gent as founde, which whā every man heareth, they shalbe hūstely asayed. At the tyme shal frendes figher one agaynst another like enemies, and the carth shal stonde in fear with them.

The speynges of the welles shal stonde styll, and in thyn bouren they shal me reuue, who so ener tūmayneth from alle these chinges that I haue tolde the, shal escape, and se my saluacion, and the reue of youre woode. And the men that are weccaned, shal se it, they that haue inactiue deary frō theire bych: and the her of thei dūmōlles shalbe chaunged, and turned in to an echer meanyng: for euell shalbe put out, and dūcens shal be quenched. As for saich, it shal flōsh, corrupciō shalbe ouercome: and the crumch, which hath bene so longe withoute frute, shal be declared.

B And it happened whan he tolde th me, that I loked demurely vpon him, before whā I stode, and these woodea sayde be vnto me: I am come to shewe y, the tyme of y nyght for to come.

If thou wilt praye yet more, and fast fūw daye agayne, I shal tel the more chinges, z greates then before: for thy voyce is a herde be fore the cyist: for wher the tūghe hūch sent thy a greuous dealyng, he hath sent al so thy chastite, which thou hast had awer farce thy youth: and ther fore hath he fien in to the: the all these chinges, and so saye we to the: Be of good cornfence, and fere noy, and hūst me wyl y tymes that are pasted thynt wayneþing, and make no haile of the latter tyme.

And it happened a few this, þat I weete a gaym, and I sette seven dayes in like maner, that I might fulfill the thynges, which he tolde me. In the eighth night was my hart wored within me agayne, and I beganne to speake before the thyng: for my spere was greatly set on fyre, and my soule was in distress, and I sayde: O LORD, thou spakst vnto thy creature from the begynnyng (men the first daye) and saydest: Let heauen and earth be made, and thy worde was a perfect worde. And then was there the spere, and the darkness was yet on euery syde, and synce: there was no man nor voyce as yet from the. Then commaundest thou a fayre light to come forth out of thy treasures, that thy worde might appeare and be seene.

¶ Upon the seconde daye thou maydest the spere of the firmament, and commaundedst it to be parte asunder, to make a deuision betwixt the waters, that the one parte might remayne above, and the other beneath. Upon the thirde daye thou broughtest to passe, that the waters were gathered in the seventh parte of the earth: Sixe partes hast thou dryed up, and kepte them, to the inete. I men might some a no occupie husbande therein. As for me as thy worde cometh forth, the worde was made. For immediately there was greute innumerable frute, many thynges pleasaunt to be seene of compassion, floures of chaungeable coloure and smell, and this was a done the thirde daye.

Deu. 4. 6

¶ Upon the fourth daye thou commaundest that the Sonne shulde geue his shyne, and þat Moone his light, the starres dydest thou seene in order, and gauest them a charge, to be seruyce euen vnto man, that was for to be made. Vp to the fifth daye thou saydest vnto the seventh parte (where the waters were gathered) that they shulde bringe forth euery beastes, foules and fishes. And so it came to passe, that the dromme water and without foule, brought forth euery beastes at the commaundement of God, that all people might prayse thy wondrous workes. Then dydest thou pasture two foules, if one thou caldest Enoch and the other Lemethan, and dydest separate the one from the other: for the seventh parte (namely, where the water was gathered together) might not holde them both. Vnto Enoch thou gauest one part, which was dryed up the thirde daye, that he shulde dwell in the same parte, wherein are a thousand hilles. But vnto Lemethan thou gauest the seventh parte, namely, the water, and hast kepte him to dwelle therein to this daye, and to this.

¶ And now O LORD, the Sonne might be seene: but he is repared as nothing, he is not to be loide over us, and to be our ruler, we thy people (whom thou hast called) I shal be borne, thy only begotten, and thy firmament: we are given in to thy handes, as you. If the worde now be made for our sake, why haue we not therein heretofore provision with the worde: to how longe shal we endure?

¶ It is happened after that I haue ben out of the wordes, that thou madest vnto me an angell, which had bene me also the nightes a few, and he sayd vnto me: O p. Esdras, and heare the wordes, that I am come to tell the. And I sayde vnto the LORD my God, that he sayde he was in the see to set in a wyde place, that he might be seene and greute: but the intrance is narrow as small like a ryuer. For who wolde go vnto the see, to lye upon it, and to rule it? If it were not that the see is narrow, how might he be in the lode?

¶ I am, another. A cite is beynd and is upon a brode fild, and is a full of all good, the intrance is narrow and narrow, like to the here were a fyre at the eight hande, and the water at the left, and as it were a narrow strait path betwixt the both, so small, that there coude but one man go forth.

¶ This cite now was agerment as yet, he neuer wente thow: this parol was how wolde he receaue his inheritance? And I sayde: It is so, LORD. Then sayd he vnto me: I shal also a portion. And when the synners haue I made the world: that Adam was created by my synners, thou hast thynges told that was done: that thou intrance of the world was made narrow.

maye not be comprehended, before whom the bootes of heauen stonde much tremblin n, whose word is true, whose call ynge is such, whose commaundment is stron g, whose omyssion is full, whose lo uynge is the depeche, whose myght ma keth the mortuaynes to melle awaye, who se myght beareth no myght: O heare y praye r of thy seruantes, and mercie with thine ear the the percion of thy creature.

For whyle I lyue, I will speake: and so I gras I haue understandynge, I will answer.
O heere now vs the synnes of chy people, which sone y in the trowth haue no respec t to the wiche studie of the heuyn, but to the desyre of choyse that be thy resu mation with fowles. Thynke not upon the kyngs that haue walked faynely before the, but upon them, which with wyll haue indurme thy soules.

Let it not be thy wyll to destroye them, which haue had beastly manere, but to loke vpon them that haue clearly taughte thy fayth. Take thou no indignacion at them, which are wyldesten bestes: but loke them that allowe not their resuall in y righte ness and glory: for we and our fathers haue all the same synnes and dyscase, but because of our synnes thou shalt be called mercif full.

B For yf thou hast mercy vpon vs, thou shalt be called mercifull, where as we haue no wordes of righte synnes: for y righte ness hath layed vpon many good wordes to grype, shall out of their deces receaue re mynce. For what is man, that thou shouldest take vengeance at him? Or what is the cor ruptible mortall generacion, that thou shoul dest be so rough towards him?

they which be created, have defiled the name of him that made them, and are unclean unto him, which prepared life for them. And therefore is my assignment now at hand. These things have I not shew'd unto all men, but unto few: namely, unto thee, and to such as be like thee.

Then answered I and sayde: Beholde O LORD, now hast thou shewed me the multitude of thy tokens, which thou wilt beginne to do at the last: but at what tyme and when, thou hast not shewed me.

The DC Chapter.

2 He answered me then and saide: I Tea-sure thou the tyme diligently in the self, when thou seest that one parte of the clocke cometh passe, which I haue tolde yf before: so shall thou remember the, that is to saye the very same tyme, when thoue that thyself wil be crimie to vnto the world, which be made.
And wher there shalbe seen earthquake and vnto of the people in the world, then shalt thou well remember the, that the most hysse spate yf shoulde chynge, from the dayes that were before thee, when from the begyn-nyng.

Forlike as all that is made in the world, hath a beginning and an end, and the end is manifest: So for the myne also of thyse haue plaine begynnynges in wordes and signes, and the endes in workes and in actions. And carry one that shall escape, and shall be able to escape by his owne way by suchs which ye haue beforeth. shall be preferred from the false parols, and shall be my safeguard in my loude and within my borders, for I haue halowed me from the worldes. Then shall they bein carefulles, which now haue abused my wraite: and they that haue cast them out despyrfully, shall dwell in peace.

For ſuch as in their liſe haue receaied benificence, and haue not knowne it, and they that haue abhorred my lawe, whyle they had yet freewill, and when they had yet open waye of amendment and conuerſion, and ſtode not, but deſpiſed it: if ſame muſt knowe it a ſecond tyme in payne. And that ſecond tyme ſhall be a more carefull, howe the vngodly ſhall be puniſhed, & how the righteous ſhall be ſaued, and whyle the world is, and for whom the worlde, and when it is. Then anſwered I: and ſayde: I haue called before a new I ſpeake, and wil ſpeake all his hereafter, that there be many mee of them which periſh, then ſhall be ſaued, like as the ſtoure is greater then the droppe.

The ix. Chap.

And he answered me, saying, like as the felle is, so is also the fide: as the flower is, so are the colours also: fide as the woman is, fide is also a mother, and as the highest man is himself, so is her husband and she is as the yme of the world: And when I prepared for them that are now, as the world was a man, then in they finished, then was there no man that was before.
More than every one was, and the man also in the world which is now present, and the man that ceaseth to be, and the lawe which is unchangeable, these man were corrupte. So I considered the man and beheld, there was perill, because of 3. thinges that were come to pte. And I saw, and I feared the greatly, and bewepte me a synchery of the grapes, and a plete from amongst in any generation. And I mulmed perill the, which are grown up in yme, and let my grise 2. synchery I kept: even my plant: for such grow labore have I made it up.

So I reuise my waye and came to the felde which is called Zebachthi as he be-named me and there I found amonage of flax, and a size of the heart of the felde, and measure of the same justified me. After that dayes I sat vpon the grasse, & my hart was wearye within me like as a fowle and I spent my morder, and beganne to callye in a cryffant soule: O LORD, then I thought thyself vnto me, when I had bedared and named thyself vnto some fowle in the wydes nes, in a place where no man dwellde, in barren place, when they came out of Egipt and thou spakest, sayeinge blesse me O rael, and make me my woorth to thou fowle of Zebachthi. I sowe my lawre in you, and shall bringe fruite in you, & you shall be increased in fruit. For our fathers mountained the lawe, & peere in it, and chuse me thy aduinaunce and floure, & the tree of Lawe was not declared: for it might not, for why? it was thine. For they searched it, perished, because they kept not thine charge, as we doe in them.

It is a custome when the grombermen broken, which are fowne or put therein. But now as it hath now happened so: for we þ have receaved the same, perissh in synne, and our bett alþ which receaved the same: not withstandinge the same we perissheth not, but remaineth in his labour.

And when I considered theſe thinges in my hert after this maner, I looke abowen me with myne eyes, and upon the right syde I ſawe a woman, which mourned ſore, made great lamentacions, and wepte with loud voyce: hiſ clothes were rent in peces, & ſhe had aſhes upon hir heade.

¶ I ſaid I my thynges go, þ I was in, I turned in unto her, & ſayde: wherefore wepeſt thou: why art thou ſo ſory & diſcomforted? And ſhe ſayde unto me: Sye, let me beweyle my ſelf & cate yet more ſorrowe: for I am ſit wept in my mynde, & broughte very lowe. And I ſaide unto her: what a ſheſh y?
O and hath done any thinge to y? tell me.
She ſayde: I haue bene unfruitfull and bar-ren, and haue had an husband thirte yea-res. And theſe xxx. yeares I do nothinge els ſonne, and I was glad of him, ſa was my husband alſo and all my neighbours, and we gaue greates honoure unto y. thyſte. And I woiſhed him with greates traouyle. So when he grew up, I came to the tyme, that he ſhoulde haue a wiſe, I made a ſlaſh.

The x. Chapter.

¶ And ite happened that when my ſonne went in to his chamber, he ſtil downe, and dyed: the ſouerayn we all the highes, and all my neighbours roſe up to co-ſtifie me. The ſecond I my reſt unto the ſecond daye at night: when they had all reſted, þ they might comforte me. I reſted a liſe, and ro-ſe up by night, and ſleth, and am come hither unto this ſelue, as thou ſaiſt: and am purpo-ſed not to come in the cite, but to remayne here, and neither to eate nor drynke, but continually to mourne and to ſiſt, vntill I dye.

¶ Then ſat I my meditation and thought in ſail, that I was ſa, and ſpake to her in wiſdomes: I thou ſoulſy woman, liſte thou not our heaynes and mourninge, and what happened vnto vs? heu? Sion of moſter is all moſull and ſory, and how ſhe is cleane ſingled downe and in miſery: ſinge we do all ſow in heaynes, & make oure moue: for we be all ſorowfull. Alſo for the heaynes that thou cateſt it is but for one ſonne. Demande the earth, and ſhe ſhal tell the, that it is the which oughe by reaſon to mourne, for the fall of ſo many that growe vpon her.

For from the begynnyng all men are borne of her, & other ſhal come: and beſide, they walke almoſt all into deſtruction, and many of them ſhal be read out.

¶ And ſhoulde I den? (by reaſon) make moie mourninge, then ſhe, that hath loſt ſo greates a multitude? and notheu, which art ſory but for one. But yf thou wouldeſt ſaye vnto me: My mourninge is not like the mourninge of the earth, for I haue loſt the fruite of my body, which I bare with heaynes: as for the earth, accordinge to the ordynance of y earth only, ſo that many are gone awaye in her, as it is come to paſſe: Then ſaye I vnto the: like as thou haſt borne with traouyle & ſorowe, euen ſo the earth alſo ſiwe the begyn-nyng geuerth her fruite vnto man, for him y made her. And therfore wiſhed the y ſorowe o no heaynes by thy ſelf, and loke what happeneth vnto y, beate it ſtrongly. For yf thou wiſgeſt the marck & ende of God to be ryghteous and good, and reuerenſe be a counsell in ſynne, thou ſhale be commended therein.
So thy waye thou in to the cite as thy huſbande.

¶ And ſhe ſayde vnto me: that wyll I not do, I will not go in to the cite, but here will I dye. So I commended more with her, and ſayde: Do not ſa, but be collected, and ſolow me: for how many ſailles hath Sion? The of good comforte becauſe of the ſtreue of Jeruſalem. For thou ſaiſt that oure ſanctuary is layed wast, oure altar broken, oure temple deſtroyed, oure playenge of instrumen-tes and ſyngeinge layed downe, the chancelgeringe put to ſilence, & mynch is vaniſhed ched, y? Like of ſeche to ſumme is cate from

and put awaye the multitude of sorrowes: that the highne may be mercifull unto the, and that the highne may geue the rest from y labour and tribulacion. And it happened, that when I was talkinge with her, his face beyd shyne & glyster, so that I was afrayed of her, and mused what it might be. And immediately she cast out a greene voyce, very fearfull, so that I forth shoke as the noise of the woman, and I loked, and behelde, the woman appeared unto me in a clothe, but there was a cite buylded, and a place was shewed from the grounde and foundation.

Then was I afrayed, and cried with loud voyce, and sayde: where is David the angel, which cameto me at the first? For he hath caused mee come in many considerations and by thoughtes, and myne ende is turned to contemplacion, and my payre to reuerence. And as I was speakinge these wordes, he came unto me, and loked upon me, and I laye as one that had bene deeth, and myne understandinge was cleere, and he toke me by the right hande, and comforted me, and stremed uppon my face, and sayde unto me: what ayleth the? and why in thine understandinge verro and the understandinge of thy heart, and therefore art thou sory? And I sayde: Because thou hast forsaken me: and

Then sayde I: Speake on to me my LORD, forsake me not, lest I dye in vayne: for I have sene that I knewe not, & herbe that I do not knowe. Whi shall my understandinge be discaued, and my mynde: But now I be sike the, and thou wilt shewe thy seruante of this wonder. He answered me the and sayde: heare me, and I shall informe the, and tell the whether thou art afrayed, for the highne hath opened many secrette thynges unto the.

So he hath sene that thy waye is righte, and that thou taldest fowre continually for thy people, and makest greene lamentacion for Zion: and therefore understande the vision which thou sawest a litle while agoe after this manner: Thou sawest a woman mourne, and thou hast comforted her: I teue thee now first thou the lictness of the woman nor more, but thou thoughtest there was a cite buylded: and lide as she tolde the of the fall of her soune, so is this the answer:

The woman whom thou sawest, is Sion, and where as she tolde the, that the highne shal rebuile her in fiftie yeres, and burne her: seate the xxx. yeres, wherein there was offeringe made in her.

But o fiftie yeres Salomon toke her, and offered, and then bare the barme of war. And where as she tolde the, that she shal rebuile him with laboure, that was the walling of Jerusalem. But where as she tolde the, that she shal be lict in her chamber, that is the fall of Jerusalem. And thou sawest her lict in the, when she mourned for her soune: and when she was comforted unto her, I have shewed y. And now God seyth, that thou art sory in thy mynde, and sufficest frem y here for her: and which he shewed the by cleareness, and the joyne of his beneyce.

And therfore I had the remayne in this dreame, where no house is buylded. For I sene y the highne wold shewe this unto the, therfore I commaunded the to go into the cite, where no foundation nether buylding is. In in the place where the highne wold shewe the cite, ther shall be no mans buylding. And therfore sate not, and let not thine heart sorrowe, but go thy waye in, and sitte glorious and saye buylding, and beu great it is, and howe greates thou thinkest is the measure of thine eyes, when thou hast heard so much as thine eares may comprehend. For thou art blessed above many, and art called with the highne as y sene. In the morning or night thou shalt reuise him, and shal y the highne shewe the wisdom of his thynges, which he wold do unto them that dwell upon earth un y last daye. So I shal te the so me may be lide as he commaunded me.

The XI. Chapter.

Then same I a dreame: and behelde, there came up from y sea an Arch, which had xii. winges and thre dees: And I sate, and behelde, he spak to winges ouer all the earth, and all the wordes of the aye blew in them, and for they were put together againe. And I behelde, and saw of his fethers there grew other litle many fethers: the head was restles, the head in the myddest was greater then the rest, and rested it with the residue.

Moreover I sene, that the Angel flew of his winges, and raigned upon earth, and over all them that dwell upon the earth: and I sene y all thynges under heauen were shal be unto him, and no man shal speake against him, no nor one creature upon earth. I sene also that the Angel fode up upon his cleme gave a shew to his fathers, & a voyce saye after this maner: much not all together, liquenymen in his owne place, & watch for arise: let the heade be perfect and att the left. Then thesa I sawe, & the voyce wene nearer of his heade, but from the myddest of his body. And I nombred his contrary feature, & beholde, there were eight of them.

And I looked, & beholde, upon the right syde there arose one fisher, & I wigned over all the earth. And it happened, & when he raigne, the ende of it came, & the place of the appeared no more. So the next folowinge fode was raigne, & had a greater tyme: & it happened, & when he raigne, the ende of it came as like as the first, so that it appeared no more.

Then came there a voyce unto it, & sayde: heare thou & hast tyme in the earth so long, that I saye unto the, before thou begynnest to appeare no more. There shal come after & arise unto thy tyme. Then arose the thir-de, & raigne as the other a fow, & appeared unto us. So wete it with alle the isles one after another, so & every one raigne, & the appeared no more. The I looked, & beholde, in pors of tyme the fithers & folowen arise up on the right syde, & they might make ane some of the isles, but which is a while they appeared no more: for some of the isles set up, but cald not. After this I sade, & beholde, & fow, fithers appeared no-more, and the tyme wynges: & there was no more upon the Agles body, but two heade as the first, & fithers. Then sawe I also, & the fithers were parted in two, & raigne under the heade, & was upon the right syde, for the fithers cōmyned in their place. So I looked, & beholde, they that were under the wynges, though they co sit up them selves, and to have the rule. Then was there one set up, but shortly it appeared no more, and the second more shoner awaye then the first. And I beholde, and so, the two thou the also by the fithers to raigne: & wha they so thought, beholde there waken a new fithers that was at rest, namely, it was man in the myd-dest: & that was the greater of the two hea-des. And then I sawe, that the two heade was fylled with hem, and the heade was taken with them & were by him, & set up two under wynges, & wolde have raigne.

But this heade put & wolde have in sea it, and had rule in it, over all those & bowels upon earth with much labour, and he had the governance of the world, over all the isles that have bene. After this I looked, and beholde, the heade that was in the middest, & heuly appeared no more, like as & I w-gave: then came the two heade, which rule upon earth, & were the fithers that therin.

And I beholde, & so, the heade upon the right syde, & waken in that was upon the left syde.
And I herde a voyce, which saye unto men loke before the, and conspice the things that shou stit. Then I sawe, and beholde, as it were a lyon that roareth, & runnyng haffe lyour of & wood, and he sent out a mane voyce unto the Agles, and saye: heare thou, I wyl make much the, and the & syfthysal saye unto the: Is it not thou that hast the victory of the fowre beastes, whom I made to raigne upon earth and in my world, and that & ende of the tyme might come thou to the?

And the fourth came, and overcame all the beastes that were past, and had power over the world with greates fearfull, and over the whole compasse of the earth, & the most rich labour, and so long came twode he upon the earth with violence, & the earth hast thou fithers not much tyme. For thou hast troubled the mede, thou hast hurt the peaceable and quere, thou hast loved lyars, and destroyed the bowell wynges of them that brought forth frute, and hast cast benome the wallas of fithers as by the no harme. Then I sawe to thy ungodous dealing and blasphemy come up unto the & syfthysal, and thy pride unto the & lighers. The & syfthysal hath led up the proude wynges, and beholde, they are ended, and their abominacions are fulfille.
And therefore appeares no more thou Agles, and thy horrible wynges, and thy wicked fithers, and thy ungodous beastes, and thy fynfull claudes, and all thy wayne do by the the earth may be refreshed, and come agayne to herself, when she is delivered from thy violence, and that she may hope for & idge more and mercy of him that made her.

The xij. Chapter.

And it happened in the & 215 spake the se woodes unto & Agles, & & brade & a so re had & upperhades, appeared no-more: but by & fowre wynges appeare my more, & came to hit, & were set up to raigne, the fithers was in all & full of uprene.
And I sawe, & beholde, they appeared no more, & & whole body of & Agles was bise, & the earth was in greates fiare. Then wakened I out of the trauce of my mynde, and from greates feare, and saye unto my spere: & so, this hast thou geuen me, in & thou shalt out the wayes of the & syfthysal, ye am I wry in my mynde, and very weale in my spere.

and like strenght is there in me, for the greates foare that I receaved this night. Therfore wil I now besee the hyest, & he wil comforte me vnto the ende. I sayde. LORDE LORDE yf I haue founde grace before thy sighte, and yf I am iustified with yf before many ocher; & yf my praye be come up before thy face, so-forth me then, and shewe me thy seruante the interpretation & playne differēce of this ho-rible sighte, that thou mayest perfectly cōsole my soule: for thou hast iudged me worthy, so frome y last of cymes.

And he sayde vnto me this is the interpretation of this sighte. The Angell whom thou sawest come up from the sea, is the kingdome which was sene in the vision of thy brother Daniel, but it was no tyed vnto him, for now I declare it vnto the.

Beholde, the dayes come, that there shal rise vp a kyngdome vpo earth, and it shal be shared aboute alle the kyngdomes y were before it. In the same kyngdome shal xij. kynges raigne, one after another. For the seade shal be yme to raigne, and shal haue moor cyme the the other, & this do y rylayng to signifie, which thou sawest. As for the voyce that spak e, and that chaunge it wylt go one from the hea-de, but not from y body, it becometh, that a fier the ryme of that kyngdome there shall aryse greates trynges, and it shal stonde in parrell of fall yng: neuertheles it shal not yet fall, but shal be set in to his begynnyng. And y eighthe vnderwynges whiche thou sawest hage vnto y wynges of hi, becometh, y in hi there shal aryse eighthe kynge, whose ryme shal be but small, & ther yeaes few, & two of them shal beate. But when the myddest ryme commeth, there shal be foure kepe in the ryme, whan hie ryme begynneth to come that is me be ended, but two shal be kepe vnto y ende.

And where as thou sawest thyn heade res-tyng, this is the interpretation: In his last shal the hyest raise vp that kyngdome, and call many a gayne in to the, & they shal haue the dominion of the earth, and of those that dwell therein, with moche laboure alle those y were before the. Therfore are they called y heade of the Angell: for in they y shal binge forth his wylde doo a gayne, & y shal per-forme y syngh his last. And where as thou sawest that y greates heade appeared nom-re, is signifieth, that one a sehem shal bye vpo his be, & yet with payne, for the two that remayne, shal be slayne with the swerde. For the smerte of the one shal deuoure the other, but at the last shal be fall thowm the swerde himself.

And where as thou sawest two wylde ges vpon the heade that is on the right be, is signifieth, that it is they, whiche the hach kepe vnto their ende, this is that kyngdome, & full of trouble. The wylde thou sawest rylnges up out of the sea, are coarunge, and speakinge vnto the Angell, to rebuynge him for his vnderstandinge of the wylde, whiche the hyest hath iudged them and for their wylde doo vnto the wylde shal repone them, and none the sinder before them. For he shal set them a yngre before the iudgement, and shal haue them for the reward of y my people which lyue with trouble, those y be proued me myne vnto: and he shal make them wylde vntill the comyng of the daye of iud-gment, wherof I haue spoken vnto the the begynnyng. This is the vision that thou sawest, and this is the interpretation. Thou only hast bene wylde to knowe the cōte of the hyest.

Therfore wyte alle these thinges y ha-hast sene in a booke, and hyde them, and nat the the wylde in the people, whose heart is knowest maye comprehend the hope that cretes. But wylde thou here y I saye dayes moor, that it maye be the wylde thou so canst y plese the hyest to becomen the, and with that he wyte his wylde.

And when alle the people per ceaued, that seven dayes were past, & y not com. again in to y cete, they gathered them all together from the least vnto the most, & come to me, and sayde: what haue we offēdeth the: and what euill haue we done a gayne the, that thou shalt se, & styll here in this place: for of all people thou only art left vnto, as a part of the wyne, and as a cankered me a vnder-ce, and as an hawen y shippe perforce y cēst. Haue we not the aduersite youthe but thou wast forsake us: & were it not for us, that we had be the wylde with the for we are no better, than they y be and they we per the wylde. The wylde red I saye the as good as forsake I said, & be not heauy thou house of Iudah: hyest hath you in remembrance, & y I saye hath not forsake you in tēte. As I saye I haue not forsake you, neither am I forsake from you: but am come in to this place praye, because of y mynery of the Iudah: mighte I mercy for y lowe estate of y cete. And now go yd wylde home car-and a fier the dayes vnto I come vnto So the people wylde their wylde in tēte as I commaunded them: but I came y and fell in the silde sauen dayes, as I angell had se, and I saw onely of the flouris of the heaven, and having meate of the herbes in the sidays.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ It is happened after the fenz dayes, I dreamed a dreame by night. And beholde, there arose a wynde from the west, it moved all the floures theroof. And I lede, and beholde, the man was strange and uncouth, the cloudes of heaven: and when he turned his countenance to me, all the thinges trembled that were sene under him: and when the voyce wente out of his mouth, all they heere that heere him, like as the earth when it feleth the fyre.

¶ After this I sawe, 2 beholde, there was gathered together a multitude of me out of weires from the foure wyndes of the heave, I hope agaynst I man, that came out from Ira. And I lede, 2 beholde, he graued him selfe a grave in the wynde, and flew up opene.
Due I wolde have sene the border or place, where the hill was grauen, 2 I coude not.

¶ I sawe after this, 2 a lych which came withe agaynst him, we were as frayed, and it was like the fyre. I remember when he saw the starres, 2 the violence of the people, he rather lift up his handes ner helde swer dore my weapon: but onely (as I sawe) he saw out of his mouth as it had bene a blast of fyre, and out of his lippes 2 wynde of the flamme: and out of his eies he cast out spar-kles and flames, and they were all myre co-gnized the blast of fyre, the wynde of the flame, and 2 greave flames, 2 fell with a rush upon 2 people, which was prepared to fight it but the wyndyngs of the of the unmutable multitude there was no thinge sene, but onely dust 2 smoke. When I sawe this,
I was as frayed.

¶ Afterward I sawe I the same man come downe from the mountayne, and callinge eu-ery man another, peaceable people: and there came onch people unto him: some were glad some weere sad, some of them were bounde, so that they were carried and brought forth.

¶ Then was I full of joye greave fere, and I wept, and so you shal haue sene I sedaine all 2 we were full of beggynnyng, 2 hast ward meadowe, 2 thou mightest see me my prayer shewe me now yet the interpretation of this dreame. For thus I consider in my meditation: Wo unto them that shal be in the last daye, 2 wech more we onch the that are not left behynde they that were not left, were in heuene.

¶ Now understande I 2 thinges that are laid up to the last daye, which shal happen unto them, and to those that are not left behynde. These are they come in so greate paynells, and many necessities, like as these dreames declare. Yet is it easier, 2 he which sufficeth him, come in these, then to passe awaye as a cloude out of the wodde, and now to se 2 thinges 2 shal happen in I last.

¶ Then answered he me, and sayde: The interpretacion of the sighte shal I shewe the, and I will open unto the, the thinges 2 thou hast requyred. For thou hast spoken of them that are left behynde, and this is the interpretacion, the that take awaye the paynells in the cyme, each tyme shal I shewe the.
They that be fallen in to harme, are led as heaweles 2 lychs unto the last night. And now this therefore, that they which be left behynde, are more blessed, than they that be dede.
¶ This is the meanyng of the vision. Where as thou sawest a man comynge up from the depe of the see, 2 I sawe to be whom God the chyet hath depe a greave season, which by his owne selfe shal deliuer his creature, 2 he shal ordeine the that are left behynde. And where as thou sawest, 2 out of his mouth there came a blast of wynde, fyre 2 smoke, 2 how 2 he lift up neither swerde ner weapon, but 2 the rushyngs in of him destroyed the wholc multitude, 2 I came to fight agaynst him: signifieth, that the daye come when God will deliuer the 2 are upon earth, 2 in a season of wynde shal he come upon the, 2 dwell in the earth. And one shal undertake to fight agaynst another, and one agaynst another, one place agaynst another, one people agaynst another, 2 one realme agaynst another. When this cometh to passe, then shal the tene come, that I shewed the beforehand the shalmy sonne be declared, which thou sawest clyme up as a moun. And when all 2 people heare his voyce, every man shal leave his owne house, and the daye, 2 they have one agaynst another, and an innumerable multitude shal be gathered together, as they that be willinge to come ad to ouer-come him by signanges. But he shal sitte upon the toppe of the mounte Sion. The northen Sion shal come, 2 shal be shewed, beinge prepared 2 lyches for all men, like as thou sawest the hill grauen forth without any hal-de. Downe yonne shal rebite the people 2 are come for their wickednes, with the tempest, and for their cruel ymaginations: and their paymes wherewith they shal be punysshed, are liued vnto the thame: and wch euey laboure shal be destroye them, euen by the same, which is compared vnto the fyre.

E And where as thou seest, that he gathereth another peccable people vnto hi: those are the ten tribes, which were caried awaye prisoner out of their owne lande, in the tyme of Osons the kyng, whom Salmanaſar the king of Aſſiria tooke prisoner, and caried them ouer y water, and so came they in to another lande.

But they gave them this counsell, y they shoulde leaue the multitude of the heathen, and go forth in to a farther countre, where neuer manynde dwelle: that they mighte there kepe their statutes, which they neuer kepe in their owne lande. And so they entred in at the narrow passages of the water of Euphrates, and God shewed tokens for the, and helde still the floods tyll they were passed ouer: for thorow that countre there was a greete waye, namelye of a yere and a half iourney, for the same region is called Aſſurys. Then dwelle they there vnto the latter tyme: and when they come forth agayne, y they shal helde still the springes of the streame agayne, that they maye go thowro, therfore I wylt shewe the multitude wch peace. And they that dwelle behynde of thy people, are those that be somde within my border. I knowe when he destroyeth the multitude that is gathered together, he shal bestide his people that remaine, and then shal he shewe them greete wonder.

Then sayde y: O LORDE LORD I, shewe me this: wherfore haue I sene the man commynge vp from the depe of the see?

And he sayde vnto me: Like as thou cast nerther steele ner knowe these thinges that are in the depe of the see, euen so maist thou not in my forme, or thise that be with him, but in the tyme of the daye. This is the interpretation of the dream which thou sawest, therfore thou onely art here lightened: for thou hast forsaken thine owne lande, and opech thy diligence vnto myne, and seest he.

Reg. 2. 20. 21. Thy life hast thou endred in my forme, and hast called vnderfynge thy mother, and therfore haue I shewed thee y treasure of the heyl. After that daye I wil shewe the more, and tolde with the at more large, yet heuie and wonderous thinges wyl I declare vnto the.

Then wente I forth in to y fulde, geuyng prayse and thankes greatly vnto God, because of his wonderous which he doo in myne, and because he gouerneth the same, and shal be in synne. And there I sawe the daye.

The XIII. Chapter.

Son the thirde daye I sawe vnto the tre, then came there a wayman out of the bush, y sayde: Peace, y Esdras. And I sayde: here I am LORD, and stode vp vpon my feet. The he spake vnto me: In the bush byd I appeare vnto the, y tolde to him, wha thy people were in Egypte, and I sent him, and led my people out of Egypte, y brought him vnto the Syen, where I helde him by me a long tyme, and tolde him my wonderous wordes, and shewed him y secrettes of the tyme, and the ende, and commanded him, saye these wordes: shal thou be clare, y not breake. And now I saye vnto the, that thou shal in shine here the dreames that thou hast sene, and the interpretation which I haue shewed thee: for thou shal be reason of it, thou shal be turned, and remayne in myne call, and wylt see as be life the wylt see mea be ended. For the wylt see that thou shalt, and the tyme be gyne to wylt see. For the tyme is becomen in to euyl tyme, and men perueyly are gone all ready, and half of the tenth part: yet remayne those that, which is after y half of y tenth part.

Therfore prepare and vnto thy wylt see, resonum thy people: ceasse as thou shalt be in trouble and tell me of the tribulation: let go from the mounthe of man, put a waye the burthens of man, put of the mounthe: laye up in some place y thynge that is most hely vnto the, and helpe the flye from the tyme: for thou shalt y mounthe as thou hast sene, and thou shalt y mounthe do yet much more. For thou shalt y mounthe and the tyme, the mounthe shall y mounthe increase, in them that be wylt see. For the wylt see is set forth vnto the, y thou shalt y mounthe come, that thou shalt sene.

Then answered I and I saye: Blessed art thou LORD, for thou hast commanded, and I shewe the people in which are paine. But they y shal be borne afterwards, and wylt see the ouercome the: I saye the mounthe is set in barrennes, and they y mounthe are wylt see the light: for thy lawe is y mounthe, and so man the mounthe the thinges that are in the, or that shal be done. For thou shalt be grace before the, for the heyl praye to me, and I shal wylt see all the: but in no done in the wylt see the heyl praye.

which was written in thy lawe, that men may knowe the path, and that they which are in the latter dayes, maye knowe.

And he answered me, sayinge: Go y nowye, gather thy people together, & sit ye vnto the,
that they see the waye for xl. dayes, but loke not gather the many booke wrytens, and take onlye the Serua, Dabai, Selema, & Chinnus and Thaleph, which are ready to wryte in thy lawe, and come hither, and I shall lye a while of mynself in chace here, which shall not be perauent, vntill the thinges be performed which thou shalt begynne to wryte.
And thou shalt thou be cleare some thinges concerning the perfect, and some thinges which thou shalt see exactly vnto y nowye. For no man shall synke thou begynne to wryte.

Then went I forth (as he commaunded me) and gathered all y people together, and sayde: Gathered y wrytens of Israel were fathers from the begynnyng were strangers in Egypte, from whiche they were deliuered, and received the lawe of life, which they kepte not, which ye all haue transgressed a fter the.
That was this londe and the londe of Sion perished amonge ye by the lawe of perissie. But y fathers and ye y fathers also haue done wickednesses, & haue not kepte the wayes which the thyf commaunderd you. And for so much as he is a righteous iudge, he receiue from you in tyme the thinge that he haue geuen you.
And now are ye here and y brethren amonge you. Therefore yf so be that ye wil subdue yb ones in understandinge, and reforme yence him, yf shall be expected, & after which shall y wryte mercy. You after death shall the idolaters come, when ye shall yue a gayne: and thou shalt the names of the righteous be written, and y names of the ungodly which they wrytens, shall be declared. Let no man the for come now vnto me, nor aske any question at whiche xl. dayes.

So I toke the fume man (as he commaunded) and we went in to the fild, and remained there. The next daye n voyce called me, sayinge: Esdras. O pen thy mouth, & saye that I graunte. He opened I my mouth, I was he, he readyd me in full cuppe, which was full of water, but he cold of it was in his fume. And I take it and drinke. And when I had drinke it, my heart had understandinge in me, and wrytens grew in my brest: for my fume was receiue in my understandinge, and my mouth was opened and thus namore. The next daye understandinge vnto the fume man, which receiue yf he thia of the night, which they wrytens be not. But in the night they are becomen for me, I spake in the daye, and helde not my tongue by night. In xl. dayes, they were two hundred & foure hundred.

And it happened vnto the xl. dayes were fulfilled, that the thyf spake thus: The first that thou hast purged, I spake openly, y the wrytens and unwerthy man ye receiue. And kepe yf I see. I see, y the wrytens (which is only to saye) as be wrytens amonge thy people. For in them is the spyng of understandinge, the fountayne of wrytens, and the fume of the knowledge. And I sayd so.

The XV. Chapter.

Behold, speaks thou in the eares of y my people the wrytens of prophesies, which I will put in y mouth, saye the LORDE: and cause them to be wrytens in a leafe, for in the wrytens. For me the ymaginacion against y, let not y satisfified of the terrible the, hee spake agayn the. For nill the vnsatisfi shall be in their vnsatisfi. Behold, says the LORDE: I wil bringe plagen vpon the wrytens, yf swear, hunger, death and defecation, for wrytens have the upper hand in all y earch, and their shame shall wrytens be fulfilled.

Therefore says the LORDE: I wil boi-de my tongue more vnto the wrytens, which they do so ungodly in their wil I firste them in the thinges, that they dole wrytens all so wrytens. Behold, the innocent blowes of the terrible wrytens vnto me, and the foules of the righteous complaine agayn y and cherish in the LORDE: I wil surely nuf-ge, and receaue vnto me all the innocent blowes from amonge them.

Behold, my people, in the affect of the pe to be slayne. I wil not suffre them now to dwell in Egypte, but wil bringe them out with a mighty hande and n stretched out a rod, and saye: I wil plagen ye as afore, and wil destroye all the londe off it. Egypte shall moue, and the foundations of it shall be shaken with the plagen and punishment, y God shall bringe vpon it.

They that will y godde, shall moue, for their sides shall be destroyed thow the blasfemes and hyle, and a horrible starre. And wrytens y wrytens and them the wrytens, for yf I stretch y their destructions vnto the one people shall side up to fight agayn another, & they shall be in the dayes. For me shall be wrytens fast, and some shall do violence vnto other: they shall not regard the thyf and pynne, the wayes of their destructione and beholden in their power. A man shall desire to go in to the cite, & shall not be able. For he cause of their pride & riches shalbe broughte in feare, & houses shal spere, and men shalbe astayed. & man shal hate no pite upon his neighbour, but one shal promote another in to battayll, to spoyle their goodes because of the hunger of duce, and because of the greates trouble.

Debolde, I gather y call together all the kynge of y earth which are from the vpry fynge, ffrom the South, from the east and Liba nus to come vnto them, and reioice in the thynges that they haue gaten of them. Like as they do yet this daye vnto my chofen, fo wil I do also, and receyue the in their bosome. Thus sayeth y LORD God: My right hande shal not spare y fymers, and my iurawe shal not ceasse euer them, that fhyd the vnioce blowe vpon earth. The fyer is gone awt ffr his marth, and hath cōfumed the foundacons of the earth, and the fymers like the ffrance that is kindled. Wo worth them that ffrue, and fepe not my commaundementes, ffrith the LORD. I wil not spare them. As yare weye ye dyddest from violence, befyr me my Sanctuary: for the LORD Enuereth all the that ffrue agaynst him, and therfor deliue reth he them vnto death and defruce: for nowe are the plagues come vpon the woulde, y ye shal remayne in it. I, y God shal not de frue you, because ye haue ffrumed agaynst
him.

come out, and the people of the Tribes with many chariotes, and the multitude of them shal be the wynde vpon earth, that all they which heere them rageing in their mayn, maye feare and be affrayed, and a great mylde bores out of y^e wood, so shal they go out, and with grace perceiue that they came, and flonder fighting with the, and shal wast the por-cion of the lorde of the 21st man.

And then shall the Dragons haue the upper hande, not remembering their bynd, and shall come aboute fire arange together in great power, to persecute them. But these shall be a fad yd, and kepe silence at their power, and shall sit: and one of the fowls of the Aſſyrians shall beſege the, and consume one of the, and in their hoost shall be feare and daede, and strife amonge their Emperours.

Beholde cloudes fram the east, and fram

Therfore sayeth God, I will (redeem) upon the myddembooke, power, strength, and patience, to waite thy benediction, and deliverance, and death, and the glory of my power shall be cryed up as a storm, when I beare cryeth if I sent over the. There be sicke as a poore wife that is played in hand of women: so they might and deliverance, I will be able to receive the. Where I will be the waite the LORD: If then have as all we saye my doctin, exalting the fleshy handes, and saye over their mouth when they must bring forth the word of the countenance.

The reward of thy righteous shall compensate the in thy bests, thyself shall thou receive a reward.

As thou hast done vnto my chosen people the LORD I haue so shal God do vnto the. And shal beate thee in to the plague.
Thy desire shal be of hunger, & thou shalt fall downe for sicke. Thy crying shal be for want, & all thing shal perish wch the sweetne of hunger, & eate their owne flesh, & drin-ke their owne bloude for very hunger of heed & thirst of water. & thou misshapied shal be as thou wast the first, & receauest plague a gayne.

In the passages they shall cast downe the stone, & shal eate out one piece of f & lose, & consume the portion of thy glory. They shal eate the downe like stubble, & they shal be thy fyre and shal consume the: thy clow-d and thy londe, thy weed & thy fructe full trees shal they burne up with the fyre. Thy chyldren shal they carry awaye captiue, and loke what thou hast, they shal spoyle it, and make it the breack of thy face.

The xvi. Chapter.

When the Babylon & Asia, wch to f Egypt & Syria gyde y^e selnes wch clothes of sack & haire, and mourne for youre childen, be sory, for y^e destruction is at hande. A sicke is sent vpon ye, wch wil drine it bad. A fyre is kynd-ed amonge you, & wch wil quench the plague amonge you, & wch wil be that wil drye the downe awaye. Thow euy maye drye a waye in dryne holl in the wood. O wch euy maye quench the fyre in the stubble, when it hath begonne to burne. A waye ouer turre. A waye in the arrowe, y^e is shot of a stronge archer.
The mightie LORD sendeth the plague, & what is he that wil beate them awaye? The fyre kyndled y^e gone forth in his wrath, & what is he that wil quench the? He shall cast the burnynges, & wch shal not feare? He shal chamber, and wch shal not be a fraye? The LORD shal beate, & wch shal not utter the beate to powder at his presence? The ark quaketh, & the foundacion shaketh of f for y^e shal up wch water from the depe, and the founteyne of it are vngyuer, & the fountayne of alio beate the LORD, & before the glory of his power. For strange is his righte hande that healeth the bowe, his arrowes that be sheweth, are sharpe, & shal not mysse. When they be gyntine to be shot in to f en-tes of the world.

Behold, y^e plague are sent, & shal not be repeyne, till they come vpon earth. The fyre is kyndled, & shal not be put out, till it consume the foundations of the earth. Like as an arrowe which is shot of a mightie archer, remembre not backward, when so f pla-ge y^e shal be sent vpon earth, shal not turne agayne. Wch me, wch iame, wch wyl deli-uer me in these dayes? The begynnyngs of for once & greates mourninge the begynnyngs of death & greates death the begynnyngs of warre, & the powers shal storme in fures the begynnyngs of euill, & they shal consume euery one. What shal I do in these thinges, when the plague come? Be holie, & beate the plague, & trouble & angurys are sent, as feareges for amementum. But for all these thinges they shal not turne fro their wicked counseles, nor be allwaye mynde full of f for me.

Behold, vnto y^e shal be good chape vpon earth, & they shal consume the in fures to be in good case, and when they shal myche growe vpon earth, warre, death & greates destruction. In many of them that dwell vpon earth shal perish of hunger, & the other chape the hunger, shal the swerde destroye & the dead shal be cast out as donge, & there shal be no man to cofoure them. For y^e earth shal be wasteth, & the cities shal be cast downe where shal be no man left to ryll y^e earth & to seme it. There shal gyue fructe, & wch shal plucke the of & gather them: The grapes shal be ripe, & wch shal craue the? For all places shal be desolate of me, so that one man shal desire to se another, or to heare his woyde. For of one whole are there shal be ten left, & wch in the fildes, which shal hyde the fildes in the thicke bushes, & in the dyf-fen of stones: like as when there remayne the of foure olyues vpon the olyue tree, or as when a vyuyarde is gaped, there are left some grapes, of them that diligently soughte the wyuyarde.

Euen so in these dayes there shal be the of foure left, for the f searche thar houses the swerde. And the earth shal be wasteth, & the fildes ther of shal waite elbe: and his wayes and all his pathes shal growe full of thornes, because no man shal trowe there the seed. The daughters shal mourne, hamin-ge no hydegromes women shal make la-mentacion, hauynge no hyfbandes, their daughters shal mourne, hauynge no helpe of their hydegromes. In the women shal they be destroyed, & their hyfbandes shal perish of hunger. O ye seruantes of the LORD, heare these thinges, & marce the. Behold, the wordes of the LORD, & beate wch in fardes. Like as a cranynging woman, which a fure y^e month twigeth forth a son ne, when the houre of the byrth is come, an hous two or thre score that the paynes come vpo his body, & whan the chole cometh to his hert, they say not the comynge of an eynt: for so shall not yf playe be slack to come vpon earth, & the world shal moue ne, & ieromes shal come vpo in euery syde.

E O my people, heare my wordes, make you rebt to the day: all: & in all euell be cun as pigmyes vpon earth. he yf seller, let him be as he that styeth his waye: & he yf dyeth, as one that wil lete. Who so cōspicab marshall the, as he that wynereth not: he that dayleth, as he that shall not dwyll therein: he that someth, as one yf shal not reape: he that sawyeth the vnyarbes, as he that shal not gather the grapes: they that mace, as they shal shall geue no children: & they yf maynt not, as the wyrdowes: & they for they yf laboure, labo' in wayne. For straungers shall reape their frutes, & spoyle their goodes, euery choweth their houses, & take their chylde captyue, for in captiuyte yf longer shal they geue children. And they that occupie their merchandises w' robbery, how longe dede they the cite, their houses, their possessions & personnes: the more wil yf punysh them for their synnes, sayeth the LORDE. Lik as an whete myght an honest woman, so shall righteoussnes hate iniquyte, whan she decteth hit self, and shall accuse her to hyr face, whan he cometh the defendeth, whid shal make iniquity for all synne vpo earth. And thesore be not ye like there unto, ne co the wordes therof: for or eue it be longe, iniquyte shalbe taken awaye out of the earth, and righteoussnes shal cōtigne amonge you.

I Let not the synner saye, that he hath noe synne: for colles of fyre shal burne vpon his heade, wch sayeth before the LORDE God yf his glory: yf haue not synned, Deholbe, the LORDE knoweth all yf wordes of men, their ymaginacions, their thoughtes & their heries. For he spaketh the moude: let the earth be made, & it was maide: let the heauens be made, & it was maide. In his wynde were yf stormes made, & he knoweth the nombre of yf them. he searcheth the groundes of the depe, & the treasures therof he hath measured the sea, & whan he cometh. he hath sheweth the sec in the myddest of the watres, and w' his wynde hath he hanged the earth vpon the watres. he spreadeth it as the heauen like a voute, vpon the watres hath he founded it. In the deserts and drye wyldernes hath he made yf springs of water, and ples vpo the toppe of the mountaynes, & the founteyns might poure downe from yf stony rockes to water the earth. he made men, and put his bet in the myddest of yf body, & ad gaue him backe life and vnderstandinge, yet and the fount of yf Allmyghte God, which made all thynges, and hath searched the groundes of all the secrettes of the earth.

he knoweth youre ymaginacions & inclinations, and what ye thynke: when ye synne: twolde hyde youre synnes. Therefore sayeth the LORDE searche and thoughte out all yf mekes, and he shal denye you all. And whan ye synnes are broughte forth, ye shalbe shamed before men, and youre shame synnes shal be youre accusers in that daye. What wyll ye do? Whi howe will ye hyde youre synnes before God and his angels? Deholbe, God himself is the iudge, feare him, leaue of from synnes, and forges youre vnghteousness, and make nemoie with them: so that God be you forth, and deliuer you from all trouble. For behold, the heam of a great multitude is troubled over you, and they shal cōtigne waye certayne of you, and see the yf yf. Idoles and they that cōfite vnto them, shal be had in derision, is laughd to scorne, & wadded vnto force.

For vnto the places there shalbe opies, and in the nexte cause a grete infirmitie vpon thesore that feare yf LORDE. They shal be like mad men, they shal spare no man: they shal spyle and wast such as feareth the LORDE, their goodes shal they take from them, and shute them out of their houses. Then shal it be knowne who are my doles, & they shalbe cryed as the golde in the fyre. Heare O ye my beloued, sayeth the LORDE: heholde, the bayes of trouble are at hand, but: yf will deliuer you from the same. When ye are straled, be yf ye not, for God is your cōtayne.

Who so keepeth my cōmāntmentes and preceptes (sayeth the LORDE God) let me youre synnes awaye you denoue, & let me not be vnghteousnesse be liue vpo. Wd be yf yf the that are subdued vnto their synnes, & so tangled in their wickednesse like as a fynde is hedged in with brystles, and the pache therof cometh wch them as, & no man maye trauayle the: & remand so in he cōten, and cōff in the fyre, and burne.

The booke of Tobias.

Wher this booke conteyneth.

- Cap. i. Of the kynne, life and godly conuersation of Tobias.
- Cap. ii. The holy nge compasseth that Tobias sought in burying the dead, for the which can his is both a no persecutor, and mercifully his with Myrrowe. His wyfe caseth him in death.
- Cap. iii. Tobias prayeth secretly vpon God, for the trouble and captiuitie of himself and the people of Sennacherib the daughter of Raguel.
- Cap. iiii. Tobias teacheth his sonne in the secret of God.
- Cap. v. The sonne obeyeth the father, and goeth his errand. God prospereth mercifully for him, and sendeth his angell to be his gyde.
- Cap. vi. In their journey they see a fild, whereof the angell commaundeth him to ke-pe the best, the gull and the leuer, and callen him wher it is good.
- Cap. vii. They come to Raguel, which recei-ueth them lowly, and marcieth his daughter Sarama to Tobias.
- Cap. viii. Tobias goeth to bed with his wyfe, and hath himself as the angell doth him, and so hath he and his wyfe are preferred from euill.
- Cap. ix. Tobias commendeth the angell vnto him for the mercy.
- Cap. x. Tobias comforteth and mother like face for his countrymen. And Raguel syngeth that he can feele him no longer, and setteth him away with his wife.
- Cap. xi. They returne home, and are wel com-mett joyfully. For Tobias hath his sight a-gayne. They reioyce alle together, and gaue the best time of day.
- Cap. xii. The father and the sonne make sayd reuerent the angell, and haue nothinge but prayse to him whith be is.
- Cap. xiii. Tobias the eldce prayeth God, and exhorteth them not to be thankfull vnto him.
- Cap. xiiii. Tobias beynge now alle prosperously the withrall of Sennacherib, and the prosperous a hail of Israel. The sonne forsaketh the sin full care, as his father had him, and goeth to his father in law.

lie with his slempesfower & lanchier, that more of his kynnd. And though he were young & the allyn the trybe of Ephraim, yet byd not he behaue himselfe chaustly in his most. And when all the other wyues of gold calnes, which Ierobome the kynge of Israel had made, he hunselfe alone fled all their companies, and gaue him to Jerusalem vnto the temple of the LORD, and there woke ppe of LORD God of Israel, sayd fully offeringe all his first frutes and tithes, so that in the thirde yeare he mingled all the tithes vnto the straungers and comentra. These and such like thinges byd he adunge to the laue of God, when he was yet but young.

But when he was a man, he toke one of his owne trybes wyfe called Anna, and of her he begate sonne, whom he called after his owne name, and taught him from his youth up to feare God, and so refraine from all synne.

Now when he with his wyfe, his sonne and with all his kynnd was come in captivity vnto Ninus, wher tyme as they all ate of the meates of the sheeth, he kept his soule, and was neuer desied in their meates.
And for so much as he was myghty full of the LORD in all his herte, God gaue him fauor in the presence of Sennacherib the kynge, which gaue him power to go wher he wold, and so had he liberty to do what him list.

So wente Tobias vnto all them that were in prison, and comforted them, and gaue them wholsome exhortacions. And when he cameto Raguel a cite of the Medes, banyng generalitee of synners, of f thinges wher with the kynge had honoured him, and saue amonge a greates company of people of his trybe, one Gabriel, which was of his owne trybe beynge in necessite, he gaue him the sayde weighe of syluer vnder an hand rus-tinge.

A fter a longe season when Sennacherib the kynge was ded, and Sennacherib his sonne reigned in his steade, which had the children of Israel, Tobias wente vnto the row out all his kynnd, and comforted them, and gaue of his goodes to eury one of the,
as much as he mighte: he fed the hangre, clothed the naked, and buried the ded, and slaime, and char diligently.

And when Sennacherib the kynge came agayne and fled out of Tewry, wher tyme as God punished him for his blasphemie, he in his wrath slew many of the children of I

And Tobias buried his bedies. But when it was tolde the kynge, he commaunded to slaye him, and toke o wayis all his goodes. Whereupon Tobias with his sonne & with his wife fled his wyse, and was hyd naked, for they were many that loved him. But after sith dayes the kynge was slayne of his owne sonnes. Then came Tobias againe to his house, and all his goodes were restored unto him.

Then. Chapter.

After these thinges upon a selemptys dayes of the LORDE Tobias made a good feast in his house, & sayde unto his sonne: Go y waye & bringe hither some of oure trybe, such as feare God, that they maye make merry with us. And when he was gone, he came agayne, and tolde this father, that one of the children of Israhel laye slayne upon the strete. And immediately he leape from his table, lest this feast, came fastinge to the deeth cause, toke him & bare him pauerly in to his house. & when the Sonnes was downe, he might safely burye him. And when he had byd the carse, he ate his meate with merrynge and fcare, remembryng of sorowes, that the LORDE Israhel by the prophet Amos: youre byr shalbe turned to sorow and heyrnyce.

But when the Sonnes was downe, he went to his wyfe & buried by m. Then all his neyghbours reproued him, sayinge: It is noe legge, for he was commaunded to slaye the because of this matre, and hast fcare escaped the daunger of death, and buried them the deeth agayne. Whereupon Tobias synginge God more then the kynge, toke he bedies of the slayne, byd them in his house, & buried them as myghte.

Che happened vps a daye, that he had buried of deuth, was merry, came home, & layd him downe by the wall & slept. And whyle he was a slepe, there fell downe vps his eyes warme donge out of the smalowes nest, so that he was blynde. This temo cion dyd God suffer to happen vnto him, that they which came after, might haue an example of his pacifce, like as of holy Job. For in so much as he ever feared God from his yowth up, & kept his commandementes, he was not heuy a gainst God, that the plage of blyndnes chafte vnto him, but remayned steadfast in the feare of God, and thanked God alle the dayes of his lyfe.

Do like as blessed Job was had in derision of kynge, euen so was he laughed to scorn of his chere & kynnesfolke, which sede vnto him: where as thy hope, for y which thou hast done allmes and barmes vnto. But Tobias rebuted this, & sayde: I am so, for me are the children of boly myght, for the lyfe, which God shal geue vnto them, that neuer tarme their beloue from him. And his wife wente by the waye, weeping, & toke whar I yndinge she could geue the job of hir handes, she broughte it. And it happened y she toke a kynd and broughte it home.

And when his husband had a crie, he so ydolose hit be not stollen, restoure agayne to the owner: for it is not lawfull for us to take oir to coudy any thinge of thes. And when his wife angrie, and sayde: I hope to come to yne openly, & thy shame by be a manifest. With these words she dyd she cast him in the teeth.

The iij. Chapter.

Then Tobias toke a breddy, & begonne to make his praye to god. O LORDE, thou art righteous, all thy iudgements are true, yet all y we praye mercy, for thy fulnes & iudgement. And now O LORDE be mynde of me, & take me in geaunce of my synnes, necher remembre my synnes. For y my synnes of my chere, in me he us not bene chafte vnto y chafte me as, that fere are we payed, broughte in to captiue, in to death, in to derision & shame vnto all nacions, a myge who thou hast created us. And now O LORDE, y iudgements are greater, for we hope not to be accordinge yf thou shalt enuie, necher haue we walled vnto thy before y. And now O LORDE, helpe me accordinge to thy wil, & commaunde my spere to be reuerend in peace, for me to be reuerend for me to be, the rest.

As the same tyme it happened, that the daughter of Raguel the Nazarene of y Tribes was slaynd by one of the fathers handes, namely, that she shal be home had faren husbandes, which as in ne as they were gone in vnto him, when she ne of the deuell called Asmodeus. Then when she repoued the mayen for her sake, she answered her, sayinge: God be my comforte, necher daughter of the me as you careth, thou lyer of chy husbandes. And thou slay me also, as when hast slayned men: The this voyce were shored in the chamber of his house, and after dayes and thre myghtes she necher ate necher drinke, but tynched in prayer, and besoughte God with teares, that he wolde deliuer her from the rebude.

Upon the thirde daye it chaunced, that when she had made an ende of hir prayer, she payed the LORDE, sayinge: Blessed be thy name O God of Israhel, which when thou art wroth, shewest mercy, and is the ryne of trouble thea thou forgett the synners of whiche thou call vpon the. And the LORDE hearme I my face, unto the life I vpon my name. I beseech O LORDE loose me out of the bondes of this rebul, or els take me awaye froe of I earth. Thou knowest LORDE that I neuer had desyre unto man, and that I haue depe my soule cleane from all vniuersally lust. I haue not depe compaay with those that passe that tyme in spoite, neither haue I made my self partaker with them that walke in lighte behauioure. Therefore an husbande haue I conserued to take, not for my pleasure, but in thy feare.

Now peradventure wylth I haue bene worthy of them, or els were they vniuersally for then happily haue depe me to no other purpose. For wylth thy conncell is aot in I power of man. But wylth a cuer loweth and the fourth the a right, is sure, that yf his life is remped and pined, it shal be in the wylth: and yf he endure in patience, he shal haue a reward: and be hille crowned: not yf he be a worthy, that God (no doubt) shal bestow him: and yf his life be in chaffe myne, that he shall haue tene to come unto thy mercy.

In thou hast no pleasure in cure dampnation: wylth I after a shewe thou makest I wylth paye and still: after weeping and praye thou geseest greatesoie. Thy name O God of Israhel, be payed for euer. And the first tyme were both their prayere herde in the heaue of the magisty of the hysst God. And Raphael the holy angel of the LORDE was sent to helpe the both, wylth paye came together before God.

The iiii. Chapter.

Some Tobias thought he his prayer to be herde, that he myghte dye, he called vnto him his sonne Tobias, and laye vnto him: My sonne, heare the wylth of my mouth, and laye the in thine here as a foundation. When God taketh awaye my soule, I wylth thou my body, and helde thy mothe in honoure all the dayes of thy life. For thou oughtest to remembre, what and how great perils thou suffrest for I in thy wylth. And wylth he also hath fulfilled the tyme of his life: wylth her desyre me. Haue God in thy thought all the dayes of thy life, and be merre, lest at any tyme thou offend into synne, and lest thou let slippe the commaundmentes of the LORDE our God.

Some almes of thy goodnes, and turne me wylth thy face from the poore: and so shal it come to passe, that the face of the LORDE shal not be turned awaye from the. Be merre all after I power: wylth thou hast made, geue plentifully: yf thou hast lide, do thy diligence, gladye to geue of thine lide. For I gathered thou thy self a good reward in the daye of needfulle. For almes belonyeth I froe death, and suffreth not the soule to come in daidnes. A greatesoie cometh in almes before the hysst God, vnto all them that do it.

My sonne, hope the well from all whoso do me, and (besyde thy wyfe) se that no I face be knowe of the. Let never pryde haue rule in thy mynde: nee in thy wylth, for in pryde be game all destruction.

Whoso euer wylth any thinge for the, immediately geue him his hye, and let the thy hye Ierusalem wylth remoyne nothy the auct righte. Let the that thou neuer be to another man, the thinge that thou wyldest not another man shal do vnto the. Let the beed wylth the hysst and poore, and couer the naked wylth thy clothe. Let the beed and wylth upon the buryall of the righte, and do not thou eate and drynke the of wylth the synners. Be euer conncell at I wylth.

Be allwaye thanst full vnto God, and be seke him, that he will o the thy maye, and thar whar so euer thou be wylth I cast in hande, it maye remoyne in him. I certifie the also my sonne, that (when thou wylth yet be a baby) I belonyeth ten salentes of syluer vnto Gabiel, at Bagen a cuse of the I Medes, and his handwylthinge haue I byme. And therfor I seke some man, howe thou mayest come by him, and receaue of him I saye the wylth of Israhel, and geue him his handwylthinge agayne.

My sonne, be not I wylth: wylth it is, wylth I be here a poore life: but greatesoie shal we haue, yf we seare God, and departe from all synne, and do well.

The V. Chapter.

Then answered Tobias his father, and sayde: father, all that thou hast commaunded me, and I do, and thar belonyeth. But how I shal requyre this money, I can not tell. I wylth doth he knowe me, nee I him. Whar shal I geue him? And so for the wylth thyself, I wylth knowe it. The his father answered him, and sayde: I have his handwritings by me, which when thou shal read him, immediately he shall paye thee. So my good myghty now, & get the same faithful man to go with y for an hys, that thou mayest receive y money, whyle I am yet lyvinge.

B Then wente Tobias out, & upon the streete he founde a fayre yongie man standinge, & ydyd up, and so it was one ready to take his journey. And he knewe not that it was an angell of God, but saluted him, and sayde: From whence art thou, thou good yongie man? he answered: Of the children of Israel.

And Tobias sayde unto him: knowest thou the waye, that ledeth unto the countrey of y Medes? he answered: I knowe it well, and all those streets have I gone oft tymes, and have lodged with cure dyether Gabelus, that dwelleth in Ragas a cite of y Medes, which lyeth upon the mount Agabathania. Tobias sayde unto him: I praye thee, carrye me, & I I have told my father these chinges. Then wente Tobias in, and tolde his father all. He y which him father married, & prayde, that he wolde come in unto him.

C Then when the angell came in, he saluted him, and sayde: I goe with thee for evermore. And olde Tobias said: what joye can I have, that sit here in darkness, & se not the lighte of heaven? The yongie man sayde unto him: He of good cheare, God shal helpe the shoudry. And Tobias sayde unto him: Canst thou bringe my sonne to Gabelus, to the cite of Ragas in Media? And when thou comest agayne, I shal paye thee thy byre. And the angell sayde unto him: I shal lede thee some, and bringe him to the agayne. Then Tobias answered him: Tell me I praye thee, of what house, or of what trybe art thou?

The angell Raphael sayde unto him: Askest thou a fter the byrned of anbyelinge, & sekest thou a gyde for thy sonne to go with him? Nowe that I make thee noe carefull, I am Asarian the sonne of greates Hananiaus. And Tobias answered: Thou art come of a greates byrned, but I praye y, be not displesed, what I desire to knowe thy byrned. The angell sayde unto him: Thy sonne shal lede thee safely, and bringe him whole to the agayne.

Then answered Tobias, and sayde: well, so ou your male, and God be in your journey, and his angell beate you company. So as they had prepared all chinges, & they wolde take with them in their journey. Tobias had his father & his mother first, and then they wente on their waye both together. Then when they were gone, his mother beganne to wepe, and sayde: The best of oure age hath thou call to awaye, and for him from us.

Wolde God that money had been here, for the which thou hast sent him awaye. If we had bene content w of power, this had bene greates riches unto us, that we sawe some here. Then sayde Tobias unto his mother: wepe not, oure sonne shal come to us agayne safe and sounde, & thine eye shall see him. For I trust that y good angell of God shal beate him company, and orde well all the chinges that he doth: so that he shal come to us agayne with joye. He these wordes his mother left off her wepyng, & held his tyme.

The vi. Chapter.

S Tobias wente on his waye, and a dogg solo weeth him, and y fishing they abode by the water of Tigris. Then wente he out to wash his feet, and in halfe, there came forth an horrible fioure to wound him. Of which Tobias was affrayed, and cried with a loud voice, & sayde: O DE, he cometh upon me. And the angell sayde unto him: Take him by the dextre side, and drawe him to the. And he by so drew him up to the londe, and the fish beganne to leape at his feet.

The sayde the angell unto him: Take the bowels of this fish, and as for the hert, the gall and the leare, kepe them by the. In this thinge are necessary and good humors. Tobias dyd so, and refred the fish, and they toke him with them in their journey: neither shode they salede, as much as was sufficient for them, till they came to Ragas. Then Tobias aske the angell, and sayde unto him: I praye y brother Asarian, tell me, what are these chinges good of the fish, that thou hast bydden me kepe?

The angell answered him and sayde: If thou layest a peece of the hert upon the scales, the smoke thereof byrnyth awaye all manner of euill humors, whether it be from man, or from woman, so that from thence forth, same shal come neuer unto them. The gall is good to anoynte oure to stroke y eyes with all, where an there is any blemish in them, so that they be whole.

And Tobias sayde unto him: when thou shalt have a tyme, take the angell answered and sayde: Here in a wyte I knowe of thy name, Raguel by name, which hath a daughter all the Sara, & hath neither son nor daughter at her. All his good beloveth unto the, and thou must marry his daughter: and the first betwixt her and her father, and he shall be the first to wife. Then answered Tobias & said: As I understande, she hath bene married unto seven husbandes, and they all are dead: and I have heard saye, that she dwelleth alone. I am afraide thereof, lest such things happen unto me also: which if it came to passe, I might be the only sonne of my father and my mother. I should bringe up in this age, no sonne to their graces.

Then sayde y^e angell Raphael unto him: Heare me, and I will tell the, what they be of whom the devill hath power. Namely, they are of three marriage of such a fashion, that they shew God out from the and from his children, and give them selues to chaunces wth least, even as were all host and wth loole, which have no understandinge: upon such hath y^e devill power. And when thou talkest her, and art come in to the chamber, nicholthyself from her chace away, and give thy wth wth unto nothinge but unto prayer with her.

And when the first night rose the leuer of the fish, and the devill shaketh bynt away. The second night shaketh thou be receaved in to the company of the holy patriarchs. The thirde night shall thou opeyne the blessinge of God, so that whole children shall be borne of you. After the thirde night take the mayden in the house of God, and more for the desyre of children, then for any fleshy lust: that in the face of Abraham thou mayest opeayne the blessinge in children.

The VII. Chapter.

Then went they in to Raguel, which received them joyfully. And when Raguel looked upon Tobias, he sayde unto Anna his wife: How like is this yon-ger man unto my sister sonne. And when he had spoken thus, he said: when e be ye good brethren. They saide: Of what ryde of Teph-sah was the companye of Tinnis. Then sayde Raguel unto them: knowe ye my brother Tobias. They answered, we knowe him well. And when he had spoken much good of him, the angell sayde unto Raguel: To-biase of whom thou speakest, is a yonger man such. Then Raguel bowed him self downe, and wept, and he bidde him aboute the necke and kissed him, and sayde: I wote blessinge have thy sonne, for thou art the sonne of a good woman a man. And Anna his wyfe and Sara his daughter wept also.

Then whā they had talked together, Ra-guel bad Tyl a wether, and to make a sacrifice.
And whā he prayed the to set downe to dy-ner, Tobias sayde: I wil not eat ne drin-ke here this daye, excepte thou first graunte me my petition, & yett my selfe to give me thy daughter Sara. Whā Raguel heard this, he was astonysed, for he knewe, what had happened unto the other seven men, that wth ce in vnto her: and he beganne to feare that it should chauce vnto him also in like manner.

And whyle he stode so in doubt, and gave the yonger man no answer, the angell sayde unto him: Feare not, we have him thy daughter, for vnto this man that feareth God, believest thou daughter to wife, that thou might none other have her.

Then sayde Raguel: I doubt not, but God hath accepted my prayers and teares in his sight: and I trust he causeth you to come unto me for the same intent, that this daughter of mine might be married in his owne dynner, according to the lawe of Moses. And now downe thou needest, I will give her unto the: So he toke the right hande of his daughter, and gaue her in to the right chāber of Tobias, and sayde: The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob be with you, I praye you together, and fulfill his blessinge in you. And they take a supper and made a weytinge of the marriage. And then made they mery, and prayed God. And Ra-guel called Anna his wife vnto him, and bad her prepare another chamber, and thither he brought Sara his daughter, and she wept.
Then sayde he vnto her: We of good chare my daughter, the L O R D of heaven geueth us, for the benyngite that thou hast suffered.

The VIII. Chapter.

Now after y^e they had supped, they dwelt together yette man in to her. Then thought Tobias upon the wordes of the angell, and toke out of his bagg a pe-ce of the leuer of the fish, and layde it vpon the table. So the angell Raphael toke holde of the devill, and hit him away, and bounde him in the wyndmes of the brestle gripe. This spake Tobias vnto the virgin, and sayde: Op Sara, let us make our prayer vnto God to daye, tomorrow, and other morrow: for these three nightes wth we recei-ueth our blessinge: wth God: and when the thirde holy night is past, we shall I praye get in y^e deure of marriage, for we are chilchildren of holymen, and we maye not come together a scheyne, y knowe not God.

B Then stode they up both together, and he soughte God earnestly, y he wolde perseue them. And Tobias sayde: O LORDE God of b fatheren, praye for the soules of these and the seruantes, and go vnto Tobias in Ragas the cite of the Medes, and deliuer him his handwryttinge, and receaue the money of him, and praye him to come to my targe. For thou knowest thyself what I suffer cellerth y daye: and yf I earye come to longe, he wyl be sory in his mynde. How seest thou how earnestly Raguel hath prayed me, so that I can not forsake him nay.

C Then came Raguel sone of Raguel's naunces, and two Camels, to meete vnto Raguel the cite of the Medes: and when he sawe the seunde Gabelus, he gaue him his handwryttinge, and receaved all y money. He tolde him also of Tobias y same of Toby, how all thes had happened. And caused him to wedde him to y marriage. Now when he came into the house of Raguel, he sate Tobias ynde great y table: he leauep, y they dyde another, and Gabelus weep, and prayd God, and sayde: the blessinge of the God of Israel haue thou, for thou art the sone of a righte veruous y iust man, & of one y fust God, y geueh great allures. And blessinge haue y wife, and y eider, that y maye y children, and yere childrens children, vnto the thirde and fourth generacie, and that y name maye be blessed of y God of Israel, whiche reigneth withoute ende. And whan they all had sayde Amen, they wente to the feast, but with the feare of the LORDE, for they the feast of the marriage.

D So she sate a mayden to se, which whan she came in to the chamber, she founde them whole and sounde, slepyng together. And so she came agayne, y broughte good bydiages. Then Raguel and Anna his wife prayd y LORDE, and sayde: Passed be thou o LORDE God of Israel, for it is not happened vnto vs, as we thought. For thou hast deale me a fullyl with vs, and put awaye from vs the enemye that persecuted vs, and hast shewd mercy vnto vnder mo beloned. O LORDE, make the comagishe the more perfectly, and coofter the the sacrificie of thy prayse, and of their praise: that all people maye knowe, y thou only art God in all the earth.

E And immediately Raguel commaunded his seruantes, to fill the greue, that they had made, with earth, as for it was light: and bade his wife prepare a feast, y to make ready all thinges that were necessary for meat, to feede as wone by waye. He caused two sate byne also and four meethers to be slayne, y meate to be prepared for all his neighbours and frendes.

And Raguel charged Tobias, to remayne with him two medes. As for all the good y he had, he gaue Tobias y one halfe of it, and made the wyrtunge, that the half which he mayned, shulde fall vnto Tobias after the death.

The ix. Chapter.

Then Tobias called vnto him his angel, whom he thoughte to haue bene a man, and sayde vnto him: Nowe Maras, I praye the haste vnto my meade. If I shalde geue myself to be y seruante, I shal not deserue y punishment. For thou y deseste the, that thou wylt not se the heathes and the seruantes, and go vnto Tobias in Ragas the cite of the Medes, and deliuer him his handwryttinge, and receaue the money of him, and praye him to come to my targe. For thou knowest thyself what I suffer cellerth y daye: and yf I earye come to longe, he wyl be sory in his mynde. How seest thou how earnestly Raguel hath prayed me, so that I can not forsake him nay.

Then came Raguel sone of Raguel's naunces, and two Camels, to meete vnto Raguel the cite of the Medes: and when he sawe the seunde Gabelus, he gaue him his handwryttinge, and receaved all y money. He tolde him also of Tobias y same of Toby, how all thes had happened. And caused him to wedde him to y marriage. Now when he came into the house of Raguel, he sate Tobias ynde great y table: he leauep, y they dyde another, and Gabelus weep, and prayd God, and sayde: the blessinge of the God of Israel haue thou, for thou art the sone of a righte veruous y iust man, & of one y fust God, y geueh great allures. And blessinge haue y wife, and y eider, that y maye y children, and yere childrens children, vnto the thirde and fourth generacie, and that y name maye be blessed of y God of Israel, whiche reigneth withoute ende. And whan they all had sayde Amen, they wente to the feast, but with the feare of the LORDE, for they the feast of the marriage.

The x. Chapter.

Our whyle yge Tobias made his y sacrifice by reason of y marriage, his father was full of care and heauyness, and he thoughte: what shulde be the cause that my sonnetarich sh longer. Or why shulde he be trespso longe there: peradventure he is in a deed, and so man maye geue houthyn to se. Thus he gaue he to be very fustful, y Anna his wife with him, y begam to praye both together, because they some maye not come agayne vnto them at the daye appointed. As for his mother, she weeped with discomfutable reares, and sayde: Wo lome, eny forme: Oh what a yed we so sime the awaye into a strange countrey, thou light of oure eyes, thou staff of oure age, thou comforte of oure life, thou hope of oure ymerman saunge all of thinges that we haue are one

Then Tobias comforted her, and sayde: Iohn thy sonne, and be not discouraged, ou er thou is whole and so combe: the man y

But Raguel saide vnto his sonne i la we:
O my hert, and I shall sende a messaiger vnto thy father Tobias, to tell him y thou art in good health. Tobias saide vnto him I am faine, that my father and my mother maye see me, and that they haue a re joyce.

Then Raguel prayed Tobias w ma ny wordes, & he wolde in no wyse leaue him, he desired Sara vnto him, & the half par ce of all his good: in seruantes and hand wyte, in shepe, in camels, and in tyme and mone, and so sent him a maye from his wylde place and to ye, and sayde: The ho ly angell of the LORDE be with you in you r iourney, and buye you fersh fise & sonne ly, that ye maye fynde all thinges in good off myn cheere, and that myn eyes maye see your children, a fere I dye.

Et the eldres embraced their daughter, hys he and let her go, exhortinge her to ho nour her father and meeher in loue, to loue her husbande, to rule well his hussholde, to hys he be in good order, and to shew his selfe fawlesse.

The XI. Chapter.

W Hen as they were goinge homeward in a nyght, vpon y xi. daye they came to Charra, wher they lye in the half wey towards Tinnis. And the angell say de vnto Tobias, thou knowest howe thou hast lyste thy father: therefore yf it please the m, we will go before, and let the hussholde with thy wyfe and yf eacell come so fe & say e to her so. And when Tobias was content that they shoulde go before, Raphael saide vnto him: Take of the gill of the fish with the fersh shal be necessary. So Tobias toke it w the gill, and they wente their waye. But the mother of Tobias a fere daye by the waye she vpon y coppe of an hill, from whence she shoulde se farte a beue her.

And as wyle she was waytinge there for him to come, she leked a fere of, and anone she perceaued his forme commyng, and brane and tolde his hussholde, sayinge: be holde, thy sonne cometh. And Raphael saide vnto Tobias: A fere soone as thou comest into the house, immediately worshippe the LORDE thy God, and graue thankes vnto him: then go to thy father, and tyste him, & shate his eyes vnto the gall of y fish, that thou hast broughte with the. For he saith, that his eyes shal straighe maye be opened, and thy father shal se the light of his man, and shal reioyse at the sight of the. Then the daughter had bene tyste them in their iourney, eate before, and came as a messaiger, and ragged wyle his tyste for gladnesse.

So y daye his father arose, and beganne to reioyse, and stembled with his feete, and gam a feruaunt his hande, ranne to meete his sonne, receaued him, and tyste him, he and his wif e, and be game to wepe for ioie.

Then when they had worshipped & than ked God, they saue be home. Then toke Tobias a fere the fishes gall, and anointed his fathers eyes: and eateid half an houre, and then be ganne the blessing to go oute of his eyes, like as it had bene the whet steme of an egge wherby Tobias toke and bare from his eyes, and immediately he receaued his sight.

Then they prayed God, he and his wif e, and all they that knew him. And Tobias say de: O LORDE God of Israel, I gaue the pray se and thankes, for thou hast chastised me, and made me whole. And so, thus do I se my sonne Tobias. A fere sixen dayes came Sara his sonnes wif also whole and sounde wyle all y benetholde and eacell, wyle camels and moch in money of his wyues, and with the mo ney that he had receaued of Gabael: and he tolde his father and his mother all the be nefices, which God had done for him, by the man that led him. A fere also and Tabath Tobias sister formes came and were glad, & reioysed wyle him, by reason of all the good that God had shewed vnto him.

And so for y space of thren dayes they ma de mery, and were ryght ioyfull eueningene.

The XII. Chapter.

W Hen Tobias tolde his sonne vnto him & sayde: What maye we gette in ho ly man, that we maye wyle the? Tobias answered his father and sayde: Father, wher receaued shal we geue him? Or what thinge can driue his benefices? He hath bene my gyde, and broughte me safe agayn: he receaued the money from Gabael, he ness to his father and mother: he deliuered me, that I was not deuoured of the fish, he hath made the se to be the light of heauen, yet we all haue receaued greete good of him.

How shalde we worship befor the things that haue bene done? But I praye the my father, that thou wilt deliuer him, yf haply he will vouchsafe, to take with him the half of all that we haue brought.

B So the father and the sonne called him, to be him as yet, and began to praye him, that he wolde be content to take in good weath, the half parte of all that they had brought.
Then sayde he secretly vnto them: Prayse ye God of heauen, and geue thanks vnto him for all my thyng, for he hath shewed his mercy vnto vs. It is good to hyde the thynges secret, but to shew and to prayse the workes of God, it is an honorable thing.

Prayer is good with fasting, and to geue as of golde. For almes deliuereth from death, delieth synne, and causeth to synne eternall

C Otherfores I tell you the truth, and will hyde nothing from you. When thou pray-est with teares, and buryest the deede, and ledest thy synne, and hydest the deed in thy house vpon the daye tyme, that thou might-prayer befor the LORD. And because thou wilt scape and be loved of God, it was a neas we haue the LORD sent me to heale the,

and to deliuer Sara & somes wife from the euill spere. For I am Raphael an angell, one of the seven that stande before God.

D What they herde this, they were sore as-toned, and trembled, and fell downe vpon their faces vnto the ground. Then sayde the angell: Peace be with you, feare not. Where as I haue bene wth you, it is the will of God, geue praye and thanke vnto him.

And when he had spoken these wordes, he was taken awaye out of their sight, so that they sawe him no more. Then fell they downe vpon their faces by the space of thre houres, and prayed God: and when they rose vp, they tolde all his wondrous workes.

Then xliij. Chapter.

Then olde Tobias opened his mouth, and prayed the LORD thus saying: Great art thou O LORD Iusticere, and thy thyngs are moche wonderfull for thou scourgest and healest, thou bringest to hell, and bringest out a geyse, and thou dost none of thynges thy handes. O geue thou for me O LORD thy children, of Ierusalem, and praye him in the sight of the synners. For monge the synners which knowe him not, hath he scattered you, to the ende that they shalde knowe his marvellous workes: and that thou shouldest knowe, that there is none that God allmightie but he. He hath chaunged us for our mysdoes, and for his clemencie ser, heale the dayes of gladnesse, and be thankfull vnto him. O Ierusalem thou city of God, the LORD hath purged the synners workes of thine vniuersal handes. O praye the LORD in thy good thynges, that geue chaunce

And so shal they be that despayre, & all

The booke of Tobias.

The gates of Ierusalem shalbe buydded with Sapphyre and Smaragde, and all the ayres of his wallen with precious stones. All the streets shalbe paved wth whyte Marbles, and in all his streets shal Iuditha be fayne. Purged be y^e LORD Ezechiel hath sayd her, f^r his synngome maye be vpon the sinners, Amen. And so Tobias made an ende of his tale p^{er}ge.

The XIII. Chapter.

After that Tobias had gotte his sight agayne, he lyued two and xl. yeres, & sawe his childers children. Now when he was an hundred and two yeres olde, & was buried honourably in Timsue. For when he was sixe and fiftie yeres of age, he lost the sight of his eyes, and when he was thre yeres olde, he gat his sight agayne. The residue of his lyf he led he in ioye, and increased well in the feare of God, & begat in peace.

But in y^e hours of his death he called vnto him his sonne Tobias, & seven yonge spragals his sonnes children, and sayde vnto them: The affliction of Timsue is at hand, be sure the word of the LORD can not saye I. And yete I saye that are scattered out of synagoge of Israel, shal come thither agayne. And the whole londe of it that hath be a wast, shalbe fylled: and the heart of God that was hurt in it, shalbe buydded agayne, all such as feare God shal returne thither: the heithen also shal forsake their Idols, & come to Ierusalem, and dwell there, and all thynges of the earth shalbe glad of her, and worshippe the LORD God of Israel.

In the fowen my children, heare youre father: Some saye the LORD in faithfulness, s^o as ye will, and do the thinge that please him. Commamde youre children y^e they in synge, & all times, be myn defull of God, and ever to be thankfull vnto him in trouth and with all their power. Honour me therfore my childen, and abyde myn: but in wotha fowen ye have buried youre mother be f^r me, gette you from hence. For I saye that the multitude of it shal bringe it to destruccyon and ende.

After y^e death of his mother, Tobias departed away from Timsue, with his wife and children, and with his childers children, & came agayne to his father and mother in lene, and he abode with them, and in a good age, and toke the care of the. And he closed his eyes, and was beyne vnto all Raguelas goodes, and sawe the fiftieth generation and fowen childen. And when he was a xij. yea-

The first Chapter.

21  Apbar the kynge of the Medes subdued many people unto his dominion, & bygded a noble strange cite, which he called Elhachanis. The walls of it made he of free stone, foure squared, square cubits hie, and tharte cubits brede. He made towers thereupon of an hundred cubits hie. But upon the foure corners ebery fe was thertie free cubits. He made the postes in the bery, like to the towers. This kynge trayned in his myghtie host, & in his glorious charrettes.

So in & twelfe years of his reigne it hap pened, that Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assyria (which raigneth in the greace cite of Ninus) for the agaynst Apbar, and overcame him in greace felde called Bagas, besyde Euphrates and Tigris and Iudas in the felde of Eloth the kyng of the Elites.

20  Then was the kynge of Nabuchodonosor exalted, and his here was lift up: and he sent vnto all them that dwelt in Calas, in Damascus, in Libanus, and vnto the children that dwelt in Carmel and Cedar, and so such as dwelt in Galde in the greace felde of Eloth, so all them that were in Samaria, and beyonde the water of Iordan unto Jerusalem and the whole londe of Jesse vnto the mountaynes of Ethiopia. Vnto all the lord Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Assyria sent messengers. But they all were consunt wolde not go vnto him, and sent the messengers agayne empty, and put the away without honoure. Then Nabuchodonosor the kynge rote indignaci at all those londes, and swore by his throne & by his kynge dome, that he wolde be avenged of all these countreys.

The II. Chapter.

21  In the xii. years of kynge Nabuchodonosor, upon the xxi. daye of the first moneth, it was desired in the court of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assyria, that he wolde desired himself. So he called vnto him all the elders, all his capaynes and men of warre, and styrred them by his counsell, and tolde them, that his purpose was, to bynge the whole earth vnder his mynion. Now when they were all comen with this sayinge, Nabuchodonosor the kynge called Golofernes the chief capayne of his warres and saide vnto hym, that he shoulde go first all the Pyngdomes of the east, and specially a go first those that have obeyed my commaundement. Then Golofernes no realme, all strange cities shal the kynge in subiection vnto me.

Then Golofernes called together all the capaynes & elders of all the power in Assyria, and mustred the foure years vnto the host (like as the kynge commaunded by name), so hundred and eighty thousand fighting men upon foot, and twelve thousand archers upon horsebacke. All his ordynance sent he by sea with an innumerable multitude of camels, so that the host was well provided with victuals, and small cattell, and without number. So camels camen by the red sea of all Syria to the host. Much gold and silver also toke he out of the Pyngdomes. So he toke his journey, he and all the host, with charrettes, harness, and ordynance of warre there were so many, that they covered the grounde of the lande, like the grasshoppers.

21  And when he was gone past the border of the Assyria, he came towarde the greace mountaynes of Tigris, whiche he vpon the left syde of Celicia: and so he wente up in all their castles, and warne every city he byde. As for the city of Melochus, he toke it by force, & spoiled all the childen of the Assyria and the Iudithes, which have comen the wilderness and vpon the south syde of the londe of Chelom. He wente east to appharat also, and came to the londe of Samaria, and byde vnto all the city cities that were there from the border of Melochus till a man came to the sea: and he toke the borders in front of the londe of the coastes of Iaphet toward the south. He carried away all the Iudithes, and spoiled all their gooden: & he so warntode him, he slew them with the sword. After this he wente downe into the felde of Damascus in the kynge of hamath, and lea up all the come and all the trees, and cast the vines to be cut downe. And the fury him fell vpon all them that dwelt in the lande.

The iiii. Chap. Ho. xii.

¶ The kynge & prynce of all cities & lordes & their ambassadours met, they of Syria and Mesopotamia, Syria Sobal & Syria & Celis, which came to Holofernes. & sayde: Let thy wrath cease towards vs: It is better for vs to serue the grete kynge Nabuchodonosor with our lyues, and to be subiecte vnto the, then that vs shoulde dye and be slayne, and receaue greater hurt. All oure cities and possessi- ons, all mountaynes and hilles, all felde, greates and small caryell, sheepe, goates, horses, and camels, all oure goodes and hous- holdes, be in thy power, vnder thy subiecti- on: It is all as thou wilt. Our selues also and our children wyll be thyne owne, come vnto vs as pleasaunte labour, and use oure straye at thy pleasure.

¶ Then came Holofernes downe from the mountaynes with hostes & greates power, and conquered all stronge synners cities, and all that dwelle in the lande. And out of all ci- ties he took stronge men, & such as were me- fit & warre, to helpe him. There came such a host also vpon thei conuincers, that the in- habitants of all the cities the prynces and ra- uenous the people together, were fowles me- morable as he came, & to ceaseth him hono- rably with garlandes & torches, with dances, with pipes and pipes.

¶ Afterwards though they dyd this, yet might they not escape his rigorous slaue: hee destroyed thei cities, & herbed downe their woodes. For Nabuchodonosor the kynge had commaunded him, that he shoulde reuenge all the goddes of the landes: so that he shoulde be called and cal- led for God, of the nacions which Holofernes with his power broughte vnder him. So went he thow Syria Sobal, and thow all Arabia, and all Mesopotamia, came to the Iordan in the lode of Gabaa and Gopel, and toke their cities, and brayned them: there came dayes, wherein he causeth all the whole multitude of his host to be gar- mented together.

The iii. Chapter.

¶ When the children of Israel & dwelt in Jery herdeship, they were sore ayled of him. There came such troubles also and fere vpon them, that they fowled be shulde do vnto the cite of Jerusalem and the temple of the LORD, and beheld to other cities & thei temples. So they fere into all Samaria for to be a- way from Jery, to be in and occupied all the tops of the mountaynes, make fast the

walles with malle, and prepared count for them a gaynst the battayll.

Eliachim also & prest more vnto all the that dwelt towards the Ierusalem (which I wote) ouer agaynst & greates fere by Dotha Jem & vnto all thes by whom men might have passage vnto them, that they shoulde take in the wayes of the mountaynes, & hereby thei might be enuoyed and passages to Ieru- salen, & they shoulde holde thei garrisons, where they shoulde waye was betwixt & Ieru- salen. And the children of Israel dyd, as Eliachim the prest of the LORD had com- maunded them. And all the people, creche ear- nestly, and humbled their soules with fastings and prayers, they and their wyues. The prestes put on hayne clothes, and layed the yonge babes before the temple of the LORD, and covered the altar of the LORD with an hayne clothe. And such one ac- cused they vnto the LORD God of Is- rael, that their children shoulde not be giuen in to a pray, & another wyse into a praye, & that they shoulde not be layed waste, & that their Sanctuary shoulde not be vndersett, and so they be a shame and rebuke vnto the children.

Then Eliachim the prest of the LORD wente rounde aboute all Israel, and spake vnto them, sayenge: Be ye sure, & the LORD wil heare youre pecauniens, yf ye conuinceth fastis fastinges and prayis in of hope of the LORD. Remember Moste as be ser- uants of the LORD, which ouerthrew the Amolechites (that trusted in their might & power, in their host, in their shildes, in their charrettes & horses) not with weapons, but with holy prayers. Quen so shal all the ene- mies of Israel be, yf ye conuinceth in this waye, that ye haue begonne. So vpon this ex- ecution they continued in prayer before the LORD. In so much that they which offered burnt sacrifices vnto the LORD, stode the offerings vnto of LORD, they were arrayed in hayne clothes, and had aspics vpon thei heades. And they all besought God from eben whole hart, & he wolde wyse his peo- ple of Israel.

The v. Chapter.

¶ And now came to Holofernes the prynce of the warres of the Assyrians, & the child of Israel prepared them- selues to make resistance. & how they had steepped the mores betwixt & a mountay- ne then was he ceaseth with: & called all the prynces of Moab, & the captaiues of Ammon, & layed vnto them: Tell me, what

There were welles alse not farre from the welles, which they used secretly, more for pleasure than for necessity.

C Then wente the Ammonites & the Moabites vnto holofernes, and sayde: The children of Israel trust neither in speere nor in rowme, but haue taken in, and kepte the mountaynes and hillen: That thou mayest overcome them therfore withoute þe streytinge of any battell, lett me to kepe the welles, that they drinke no water out of them: so shalt thou destroye the natione in due, as at the least they shall be so fidele, that they must be fayne to geue ouer the cite, which they thinke not able to be wonne, for so much as they in the mountaynes. These wordes pleased holofernes well and all his men of warre, and he set an hundred men at euery well to vnde aboute.

Eccl. i. 2

D And when this watch had endured twen eye dayes, the Assyrians and all that had warre, fasted them that dwelle in the cite of Bethulia, so that in þe whole cite they had no daynte, nought for one daye, for the people had water geuen them to drike in a measure. Then came the men and women, yonge persons and children all vnto Oflus, and sayde all with one voyce: God be widge betwixt us and the, for thou hast deale cruelly with us: thou wouldest not speake peaceably with the kynge of the Assyrians, therfore hath God geue vs in thine handes, and there is no man to helpe vs, where as we are broughte downe before their eyes in chaffe and greuous destruction. Therfore gather now together all the people that be in the cite, that we maye all yelde ouer sithes willingly vnto y people of holofernes: for better is it to y we be captiue and praye to the LORD with our lyues, then to be layne and perishe, and to be laughed to scorne & shamed of euery man: when we se oure wyues and children dye before our eyes. And when they were so wecry with this cruell and wepyng, that they had the ranges, Oflus stode a p wech wateryng, and sayde: O take good dayes vnto y (deare daughter) and be of good cheare, no let us wayte yet these fyue dayes for mercy of the LORD: peraduenture he shal comaunde his indignacion, and geue glory to his name. But yf he helpe vs not wherewith fyue dayes are past, we shall be as þe we sayde.

The viij. Chapter.

It so happened when these wordes came to the eares of Judith a widow, which was the daughter of the kynge of the Iudee, the sonne of Iotham, the sonne of Oflus, the sonne of Elai, the sonne of Jamon, the sonne of Ierem, the sonne of Kapboim, the sonne of Adichai, the sonne of Michai, the sonne of Eam, the sonne of Lachania, the sonne of Saluchai, the sonne of Symeon, the sonne of Rabai. Judith his wife was called Michai, which was in the dayes of the barthelemew. In while he was a byndinge y floure in the felde, she haue come upon his backe, and he dyed at Bethulia his cite, and then was he buried beside his fathers. Judith his desolate wyf dwelle in the yam six monethes. And in the hyer partes of the house she made herself a pery chamber, wher she dwelle, beinge closed in with her maid. She made a smock of baye, and wove all the dayen of hir life, excepte the Sabbathes, and new monethes & the solempne dayes that the people of Israel kepe. She was a very fayre and beutyfull personne, syn her handes also had left her grete riches, a plentyous hoeshe, grete vnto the people, a plentyous and many cattell. This Judith was a woman of a very good repute with euery one, for she feared the LORD & greatly, and there was no body that speake a cattell word of her.

When this Judith herde, how Oflus had promysed the people, that after the fyue dayes he woulde geue up the cite vnto the Assyrians, she sate for the elders Chabai and Chacum: and when they came to her, she sayde: what thinge is this, wherein Oflus hath consented, y yf God helpe not with fyue dayes, he wil geue ouer the cite to the Assyrians: What are ye, that ye wyl geue

The booke of Iudith.

LORDE This deuice openeth no mercy of God, but prooueth him vnto wrath and iudgement. Why ye set the mercy of J^R LORDE asyme, & opene him a daye after you are wyl:

Charities forso much as the LORDE is pitie, let us rather amende our felices, penitence our tresses, and besynging him of mercy. For God is merciefull not as a man, neither will he be psonell vnto weach as the deden of men. And cherise let us heretly fill downe before him, and serue him with a iudgement, and with acceptyng eyes saye vnto the LORDE, that he deale with us according to his owne wyl and mercy: that like as we here in now weped, & brought lowe this wretched people of them, it maye so be comforted thowgh his grace: in so much as we so lowe not the synners of aure fathers, whiche sinned before the LORDE, & worshipped other gods: for the which synne they perished with the sword, were spowled & brought to shame of all their enemies. For we, we knowe now that God hateth only him, for a host of sinners we eary with necessity. He shall re-124 ceive and make inquisition for our bloude, from the vespations of our enemies: he shall lunge downe all the heathen, that este up against us, and put them to dishonour, vnto the LORDE our God.

But these beaute brethren singe ye are the honorable and elders in the people of God, vnto whom all y^e people haue respect, and vpon whom the life of the people stoneth, be up ther hereto with your exortacion, y^e they maye call to remembrance, howe once synners also in tyme past were comforted, y^e they might be proued, yf they worshipped the LORDE a righte. They ought to remember, howe our father Abraham bringe comforted, and theyd be in many tribulations, was a friende a lover and frende of God. So was Jacob, so was Moses, and all they that pleased God, beinge cryed choore of righteousnes, were folde stouff in faith. Agayne, they that receaue not their tentacion with the feare of God, but put the fel-125 low synners in psonacy and munition, they agaynst God, perished of the destroyer, and were layne of serpentes. And therefore shal we be undertake to be avenged, for the thinge that is done vnto us, but in con-126 sist, that all these punysshmentes are forre left then our synners & myddes. And synners, that this correccion cometh vnto us, as to the seruantes of God, for amende-127 ment, and not for oure destruction.

The ix. Chap. Fo. xxvii.

Then sayde Osias & the elders vnto Jo-128 uiah: All that thou speakest, is true, and no man can reproue y^e wordes, praisethon for us now therefore vnto God, for thou art an ho-129 ly woman, and fearest God. And Iudith say-131 and denice, yf it be of God: and beseeke God, 132 that he wyl bringe my counsell to a good ende.

Then haue I deuysid: & shal sidd this

Phil 4. b of warre, in their charitties, as women & spea-cers, and in euery one, that thou only art our God, which destroyest warres from the begynnynge, and thou shalt see the LORDE. O lift vp thine arm anew like as euer from y begynnynge, and in thy power bynne thou power to naught, cause that might co fall in thy weath. They make their boast, y they mynshalowe and defile thy Sanctuary, and to wasteth the tabernacle of y name, and to cast downe the home of thine aulear with their swordes. Bynges to passe (O LORDE) y the payde of the enemy maye be cut downe with his owne swordes: that he maye be taken with the snare of his eyes in me, and y thou mayest smyte him with the lippen of my flour. O geue me a slothfast mynde, that I maye despise him and his strength, and that I maye destroye him.

C This shal bynne thy name an rarelaffin ge remembrance, yf the hant of a woman ouerthreweth him. For thy power (O LOR-DE) shondest thou in y power of men, neither hast thou any pleasur in the strength of hee-ses. There was neuer proude personne that pleased the, but in the paye of the humble and in the hach thy pleasur bene sauerie.

O thou God of the brauns, thou maker of the warres, and LORDE of all creatures, heare me poore woman, callinge vpon the, and puttyng my trust in thy mercy. Remember thy couenant O LORDE, and my sister wordes in my mouth, & stablish thia deuys in my heart, that thy house maye continue still in holynes, and that all the hethen maye knowe and vnderstand, that thou art God, and that there is none other but thou.

The X. Chapter.

And when she had left of cryenge vnto the LORDE, she rose vp from the place, wher she had lye flat before the LORDE, and called hir mayde, wane dwene in to her house, layed y haire cloth from her, put of the garmentes of hir re-nombe, wasshed hir body, and omyted hir self with precious thynges of swete sauour, brydyed and placed hir haire, set an hoo-ue vpon hir heade, and put on such apparell as belongeth vnto gladnesse, slipped vpon hir feet, armeleeze, spangles, ear ringes, syn-gers, and decked herself with all hir best aray.

The LORDE gaue her also a speciell brury and saynesse: for all this deckynge of hir self was not done for any vayne conceyts and pleasur of the flesh, but of a night creation and vertue, therefore by the LOR-DE increased hir beautye: so y she was ga-ding amyable and well fauoured in all mens eyes. She gaue hir mayde also a bond of wyne, a pot with oyle, pottage, cakes, salt chese, and went hir waye.

Then when she came to the pene of y cite, she founde Asan and the chiefe of the cite waitinge there. Which when they saw her, they were astonysed, & marvelled gaily at her beauty, neuertheless they had in question at her, but see heigge, sayng the God of eare fathers geue y his graue, and with his power performe all the deuyse of thy heart: that Ierusalem maye receiue thee the, and that thy name maye be in the number of the holy & righteous. And all they were chere, sayde w one voyce to be it, let it. Iudith made hir prayer vnto y LORDE wente out at y porte, she & hir mayde.

And as she was goinge downe the waye, it happened that a bonde the fympe of she daye, the spyce of y Asinians met y her, and toke her, sayng: wher comest thou? Of whiche goest thou? She answered: I am a daughter of y heben, and am fled from them, for I knowe, that they shal be gent vnto you to teache the, because they thought to come to yelde the slaine vnto you, that they might synde mercy in your eyes.
 Therefore haue I benefit by my self of thia manner: I will go before the praye the lofernes, and tell him all their secretes, and will shew him, how he maye come by them, and to ynnie them, so that not one man of y hoste shall perishe.

And when these men had heerd her woded, & considered hir fayne face, they were astonysed: for they wondered at his exall beautye, & sayde vnto her: Thou hast saved life by fyndynge our this deuyse, & thou dost come downe to y lord: & behold, in that thou comest vnto him, he shal increase the wall, & thou shalt please him w here. So they brought her vnto Golofnes payllion, and tolde him of her. Then when she came in be fore him, immediately he was ouercome & taken with hir beautye. Then he dyd straiten: who wolde despyse y pople of y Jewes, y haue so fayne wnt? shal be receiue by reason sighte agaynst the sunne &? So when Iudith sawe Golofnes in gein a canopye, y was wrothyng of wryth fylte, gelde, & many gode and precious stur.
 She looked fast vnto him, & fell downe vnto the earth. And Golofnes stur vnto her againe, as their lordes commaundement.

The XI. Chapter.

After Iudith holofornes vnto her: De of good chere, and feare not in thine heart, for I neuer hurted man, that wol be like Iudith of old in the kynge. As for thy people, if they had not despyed me, I shalbe not haue life up a speare agaynst the. But tell me now, what is the cause that thou art departed from them, and wherfore art thou come vnto me?

And Iudith sayde vnto him: Syn, under stande the wordes of thy handmayden: for if thou wilt do as I woldes of thy handmayden, the LORD shall by ninge thy nation to a prosperouse effect. As early as I was ladydom for a lordes of the londe Iudith, & as early as his power Iudith, which is in the power of Iudith, of all men that go to Iudith, all men shall not onely be subdued vnto Iudith, but all the bestes also of Iudith. For all people spente of thy pryncesse, and it hath thus bene reported, how thou only art good and myghtie in all thy handmayden, and thy discretion is commended in all Iudith.

The thing is manifest also, that Achier hath said it in his knowe, what thou commaundest to do vnto him. For this is a plainte and of surety, that our God is so worthy to be (by the reason of our synnes) that he hath shewed by his prophetes vnto the people, how that for their synne he wyl deuyse them over vnto the enemye. And for so much as the children of Israel knowe that they have so displeased their God, they are full of charyte of the. They suffre greuous honours, for want of water, they are deved in a manner. Moreover, they are appoynted to slay all their cattell, that they maye smyte the bloude of them: and are purposed to spredde all the holy ornaments of their God (which he hath forbydden the to touch) to come, to come and to oyle. Seinge now that they do thus, thou art in a plaine case, that thou must needs be destroyed. Which when I thy handmayden perceaued, I fled from them, and the LORD hath sent me vnto y, to shewe the these things. For thy handmayden to besygge God euen here, now besygge, and thy handmayden shal go for the, and I wil make my prayre vnto God, and he shal helpe me. Whan he wyl reward the theie from then shal I come and shewe the, & byn ge the theie, the myddel of Jerusalem, so that beaslye hath all the people of Israel, and the shepe without a shepherde there shal not so much as one dogg barked agaynst the, for these things are shewed me by the promyence of God: and for so much as God is displeased with them, he hath sent me to tell the the same.

These wordes pleased holofornes and all his seruantes, which marvelled at the myghtydom of her, and sayde one to another: there is nether a woman upon earth, in bewtye and discrecion of wordes. And holofornes sayte vnto her: God hath done well, that he hath sent the hither be fore thy people, that thou mayest geue them in our handes. And for so much as thy promyse is good, if thy God performe it vnto me, he shall be my God also, and thou shalt be excellent and greace in the centre of Iudith of olden, and thy name shalbe spoken of in all the londe.

The XII. Chapter.

After commaundeth he her to go in, wher he hath treasure layde, and charged that she shoulde haue byr dwellinge there, and appoynted, wher shoulde be given her ffe to his table. Iudith answered him, and sayde: As for the meate that thou hast committed to geue me, I maye not eate of it: as now (lest I displease my God) but my care of such as I have becombe with me. Then sayde holofornes vnto her: If the se things that thou hast brought with the sayle, what shal we do vnto the? And Iudith sayde: As truly as thou I synest my lord, thy hande mayden shall not spende all this, tyl God haue broughte passe in my hande, the things that I have brought.

So his seruantes broughte her in to the tent, wher as he had appoynted. And as she was goinge in, she desired that she mighte haue leue to go forth by nyght, & before daye, to hir prayre, and to make intercession vnto the LORD. These commaundeth holofornes his chamberlaynes, that she shoulde go out and make hir prayre, to praye vnto hir God those chur dayes.

And so in the nyght season she wote sent in to the valley of Bethulia, and washed hir self in the wellwater. Then wente she up, and besought the LORD God of Israel that he wolde prosper hir praye, for the bewtye of his people. And so she wente in, and in nyghte cleane in hir tent, all she to be hir meate in the chur nyght.

Upon the fourth daye it happened, that holofornes made a costly supper vnto his seruantes, and sayde vnto Dagas his chamberlay-ne: So to youre, and counsell this hebreweffe, that she maye be wysell ynge to consister to kepe company with me. For it were a shame vnto all the Assirian, that a woman shoulde so laugh a man to scoine, that she were come from him vnmeebled withall.

Then reuene Vago vnto Iudith, and sayde: Let not the good daughter be astrayed, to come in to my loude, that she maye be honoured before him, that she maye eate and drynke wyne, and be merry with him. Vnto whom Iudith answered: Wha am I, that I shoulde saye my loude naye? what so euer is good before his eyes, I shal do it: and loke what in his pleasure, that shal I thinke well done, as longe as I lyue.

- 20 So she stode vp, and decke herself with hir apparail, and reuene in, and stode before him. And Holofernes hart was holemoued, so that he burne in desyre to marie her. And Holofernes sayde vnto her: dyntenow and sit to eate, and be merry, for thou hast founde fytmore before me. Then sayde Iudith: Syr, I wil drynke, for my mynde is metter to daye, then euer it was in all my lyfe. And she robe and are and bancke before him, the thinges that his mayden had prepared for her. And Holofernes was merie wth her, and wante more wyne, then euer he dyd, as fore in his life.

The XIII. Chapter.

- 21 When it was late in the night, his seruantes made haist, every mā to his lodginge. And Vago shutt the chamber dore, and wente his waye, for they were all ourt laden with wyne. So was Iudith alone in the chamber. As for Holofernes, he laye vpon the bed all drenched, and of wrydones meke fill a sleep.

Then commaunded Iudith his mayden, to stode with her before the dore, and to waite. And Iudith stode before the bed, makinge hir prayer with teares, and moued hir lippe secretly, and sayde: Strengthen me O LORD God of Israel, and haue respecte vnto the wertes of my handes in this houre, that thou mayest let us pryce of Jerusalem, like as thou hast promysed: O graunte that by the sword I maye performe the thinge, which I haue desired: for thou the beloued that I haue

- 22 And when she had spoken this, she wente to the bedchamber, and loosed the smere that hangd vpon it, and drew it out. Then toke she hold of the haire locke of his haire de, and sayde: Strengthen me O LORD God in this houre, and with that she gaue him two strokes vpon the neck, and smote off his heade. Then toke she the canapye awaye, and rolled the dead body asyde. Immediately she gat her sear, and belayered the head of Holofernes vnto hir mayden, and both hit put in his wallet.

And so these two wente forth togethe after their custome, as though they wold playe, and so passed by the host, and came throughe the valley vnto the porte of Iherusalem. And Iudith cried asyde of vnto Jotham vpon the wall: Open the gates (sayde she) for God is with vs, which hath shewed his power in Israel. And when they heere hir voyce, they called the elders of the cite togethe. And they came all comete, to litle & greace, yonge & olde, for they thought not that she shoulde come so soon. As they lighted candles, and gart her aboute her eardropes: but she wente up to ashy place, and caused silence to be proclaimed.

Whan every man now hadde his song, Iudith sayde: O prayse the LORD, and God, for he hath not despyght, nor forsaken them, that put their trust in him: and thus his honde mayden he hath performed his merite, which he promysed vnto the hostes of Israel: yee in my hande this same nyght he hath slayne the enemy of his people.

And much that she toke forth the head of Holofernes out of the wallet, and shewd it them, sayinge: Beholde the heade of Holofernes the captayne of the Assirian, and this is the canapye, wherein he layed in his tentes: where the LORD oure God hath slayd him by the hande of a woman.

But as truly as the LORD lyueth, he shall geue hym the xij. thousand, that he hath geue them, and commaunge hisher agayne thence. And the LORD hath not forfytte his hand mayden to be despyght, but meane my fleshyne of off synne hath he brought us agayne vnto you: & I with greace wyl saye that I am escaped, and ye be saved. O thanke vs vnto him everychone, for he is glorious, and his merite vnto us for euer.

So they prayse the LORD al together, and gaue thanks vnto him. And he that sayde: The LORD hath blessed the in power, for thou wast he that brought us out of our enemyes to naughte.

And Oza of the ruler of the people of Israel, sayde vnto her: Blessed art thou of the LORD: the hye God, above all men in earth.

The boke of Iudith.

Masse be the LORDE the maker of heaven and earth, which hath gyved & a right capayne of our enemies. For this daye he hath made thy name is honorable, that thy pawte shall neuer come out of the mouth of us, which shall all waye come into & power them over selfe but put the in jeopardy, consideringe the anguyshe and trouble of thy people, and so hast helped thit fall before God ✓ LORDE. And all the people sayde: Ame, Amen.

Ethi also was called, & he came. Then spoke Iudith unto him. The God of Israel wherby thou gaussest thy name, that he wolde be avenged of his enemies, even he hath this night shewen my hande smyte of the head of all the unfaithfull. And that thou mayst see this, behold, this is & the head of Holofernes, which in his presumption proudly sayd the God of the people of Israel, and threatened & much destruction, for that when the people of Israel is called. I shall cause the also to be sicke with the sword. When I did so, I sawe Holofernes he had himselfe upon his face to the ground for very anguyshe & feare, so & the sword was in his hand. But after that he was come a gayner himselfe, he fell downe before her & prayed her sayinge: Blessed art thou of thy God in all the tabernacles of Jacob: for all the people that heere of thy name, shall praise the God of Israel because of the.

The XIII. Chapter.

Iudith saide unto all the people: Be ven, be upon arms walke, and when the enemyes shall take every man his weapon, and fall out violently: not as a though ye wol-de be lesse them, but to reme upon them the dead body wrapped in the bloude, fearfullnes shall fall open them: and when ye perceive that they se, followe them without all care, for God shall deliver them into your to be destroyed.

Then Iudith seinge the power of God which he had shewen unto the people of Israel, fell of from his Gentylis belowe, and put his trust in God, and let him self be en-cured: and so was he named amonge the people of Israel, he and all his posterite unto this daye.

When as soone as it was daye, they stid. B ee up Holofernes heade upon the malle, and every man toke his weapon, and so they went out with an honorable crye. When the spyers sawe that, they came unto Holofernes tent. And they that were within the cite, came before his chamber, and made a greates rushing to wake him up, because they thought with the myte to have raised him.
For there durst not one of the Assyrians knowe he, in order to open.

But when the captaynes and pryces and all the chefe in the kynge of the Assi-rians hoost came together, they stode in the chamber ayens: Wo yowre waye in, and wake him up, for the myte are crept out of their holco, and darre prowee us into hactyll.

Then wente Vagaa in to his chamber, stode before the bed, and clapped with his handes, for he thought he had bene sleepinge with Iudith.

But when he had hardened prestely with his carcs, and cende perceave no steryng, he wente nyer to the bed, and lift it up, and then sawe he the dead body of Holofernes lyenge there with one a heade, welred in his bloude upon the earth. Then cried he with loud voice, and with weeping rent his clothes, and wente in to Iudiths tent, and found he her: nor And so he leaped out unto the people, and sayde: one woman of Israel, hath broughte all Tabuchodonosors people to the me. For so, Holofernes lyeth up the ground, and hath no heade.

When the chefe of the assyrians hoost her de that, they rent their clothes, and there fell an insupportable fiare and trembling upon them, so & they in mynde were sore afayed.
And there was an exceeding greates crye in the whole hoost.

The XV. Chapter.

When all the hoost heard that holo serues was headed, their mynde and so uncell fell fram them: and soch a feare came vpon them, that they undertooke to be fide shemselues by strage away: one spake not to another, but hanged downe their heades, left all behynde them, and made haile to escape from the heluice: for they heare, that they were hailling to come a fter with their weape as, and so they fled by the wayes of the felde, and thereon all the foue parties of the vale.

And when þe chyldren of Israel sawe that they fled, they folowed vpon them, and accuse downe with crys pates, blenings and ma-nyngs a greates crye after the. As for the Assiriens, they had no otre, and kepered the felde together, but fled their waye. Leturtheleste the chyldren of Israel fell vpon them with one company and vdrre, and discomfited a many so they myght get. And so the first messenger vnto all the ciies and cot-tres of Israel.

B So all the regions and eury cize sent out their best men after them in hamisse, to smite them with the swerde, yll they came o þe westmost part of their borders, And the ether that were in Bethulia came in to the tes of the Assiriens, and toke all that they myght were fled, had left behynde them, and so they founde greates good. And they that came agayne to Bethulia from the battayll, toke with them such thinges as had bene theirs: there was a non dre of the cattell, and of all sely Jewels, so that from the lowest vnto the hyst, they were all made riche of the spoies of thim. And Joachim the hye preist of Ierusal, came to Bethulia with all the elders, that the ymagie is Iudith.

C Now wha the came out vnto them, they beganne all to prayse her with one voyce, sayng: thou wylste of the cite of Jerusalem, thou voyce of Israel, thou hast of oure people, thou hast bene manly, and thy hert is comforted, because thou hast sloued clea-lynes and chastyte, and hast knowen no man but thine owne hof hande: therefore hath the ho-de of the LORDE comforted the, and wis-shed that thou be for ever. And all people sayde: so be it, so be it.

In thise dayes coude the people of Israel scarce gather up the spoies of the Assi-riens. And all that belonged vnto Holone-nes, and had bene his specially, (whether it were of golde, of siluer, precious stones, ele-mentage and all ornaments) they gaue it vnto Iudith. And all the people reioyced, both the men, maydens, and yonge people, with pipes apparell, and deckt his self goodly : after that he had called vpon God, which is the beholder & Sauourer of all thinges, took two maytes wth her : vpon the one he leained his self, as one y^e was tender: the other floored her, and bare cheere of his misfortune. The shyne of his beaute made his face of colour red. The similitude of his face was chearfull and amiable, but his heart was fowle full of griue fear. She wente in thowre all the dones, and stode before the kynge. The kyn-

The XVI. Chapter.

A copye of the commaundement, which kynge Ahasuerus causeth to be put downe in all the countreys of his domynion, for the shear sake of the Jewes.

In the greates kynge Ahasuerus, which reigned first in Persia vnto Ethiopas, ouer an hundred and xxvij. yeres, senteth vnto the prynce rulers of the same landes, such as looe him, his frendly salutation. There be many, that for the sondry frendshippes and benefites which he ordinarly bestowed them for their wysshpe, be eney of more proude and hye mynde, and vnderstande not onely to hurte oure subiectes (for plentyous benefites maye they noe suffre, and be gonne to imagine some thinge agaynst thes that doo them good, and take not onely all uncharitable awaye fro them) but in proude and presumption (as they haue many tyme full and wherewithall for the good deken) they go aboute to escape the iudgment of God, of sayth all thinges, which iudgment hateth & punisheth all wickednes. It happeneth also, y the which be set in office by the hye power, and vnto whom the busynesse and cause of the subiectes are comyned to be handled, wane proude, and desyre the felices with shewyng of meane and blewe, which begynnech them to inuoluntablye. Which also with false and discentfull wordes and with lyenges tales, disguise and be traye the innocent goodnes of peynce.

Now is it profitable and good, that we take heede, make search there free, and consider, not onely what hath happened vnto vs of olde, but the shamefull, vn honest, and noy some thinge, that the deken haue now taken in hande before our eyes: and thereby to beware in tyme to come, that we maye make the kyngdome quiete & peaceable for all men, and that we mighte some tyme diuine ite as a charyte: and so for y thinge that now is pasten be fore our eyes, to withstande it, and to pacie do mine, after the most frendly manner.

pal vnto the kynge, he coude not forsake him self from his prync, hath vnderstande not onely to robbe vs of the kyngdom, but of oure life.

Which many folde disceats also hath he sired to destroye Mordechaus our iude and persuar, which hath done vs good & alleynage and innocene Hecet the letter taker of oure kyngdome, with all his people. For his mynde was (when he had taken oure of the waye, and robbed vs of the charyte) his meane to translate the kyngdome of the Persians vnto the of Lacedonians. Thus we fynde, that the Jewes (which were accusid of y wicked, y they mighte be destroye) are no euell doers, but vnto reasonabler the lawes, and that they be the children of the most hye kyng (God, by whom the kyngdome of vs and oure progenitors hath bene well & eddythet. Wherfore, as iude leuers and commaundement, that were put forth by Aman the sonne of Amadatha, y shal do well, yf ye holde them of none effect: for he chat set them vp and inuoluntablye hath ozt Jusse to be the power, with all his kynde, and God (which hath all thinges in his power) hath rewarded him a full destructione.

And vpon this ye shal publish and sere the copye of this letter in all places, that the Jewes maye feely and without doubte holde them felices a fuer their owne floures, and chat they maye be helped, and chat yf y fynde of y syn on our whar they may be auenged of them, which in the tyme of their angourish and eragable welde haue oppressed the. For the God that rewardeth thinges, hath turned so to ye, the waye he is y chosen people shoulde haue perside.

Moreover, amonge the hye solumbeday chat ye haue, ye shal holde this daye all y o all gladnesse: hat o our and in tyme our this daye maye be a remembrance to god for all such as loue the prosperite of the state: that a remembrance of the Persians that chat be sedicious vnto vs.

All ciuities and lodes that bene in the shorriblye perishe and be destroyed in the tyme be and fire, and shal rise oute to be newe inhabited of men, but be observed also of y wode bestes & foules.

The booke of Wysdome.

What this booke concerneth.

Cap. I. The exortaciō for iudges and rulers to wile wysdome. The fruits of wysdome haueth saluacy, illumination and prosperite, re-baldeth viciety to iustice and abhorreth undo doers.

Cap. II. The ymaginaciōs and thoughtes of the vngodly, how they geue thei selues out to to shame and persecute all vertue and trouth.

Cap. III. The felicitie and beaultie of godly people, through they be put betwixt a double and henrymselfe. What fauour shall happen to the vngodly and their children.

Cap. IIII. The ymaginaciō of godly withall, is so meritable. It is the gift of the wisde. The benigne of vertuous age. The shamefull beaultie of the vngodly.

Cap. V. How the iust man shall stōde against the malice, that happeneth them to cause trouble and what fauour shall come vpon the vngodly.
Againe, what ioye shall happen to the righteous, which haue God himselfe for their defence.

Cap. VI. The exortaciō vnto such as be in rule to be diligent, to see that wysdome. It cometh by the gift of wysdome.

Cap. VII. All men haue left in malice to see the wisde, yet who so callith vpon God for wysdome, shall haue his reuerse. The profit that cometh by wysdome, so forth all other thinges.

Cap. VIII. Wysdome shall be receiued in youth.
Sheer misleadeth himselfe when hee shall speake in the name of God and men.

Cap. IX. A prayer vnto God for the gift of wysdome.

Cap. X. What profit and good come by wysdome in the other wyse.

Cap. XI. How wysdome is betwixt the righteous, show the vngodly are punished theuise the righteous of God.

Cap. XII. How in malice full and suffere long, in the iustice thus fauour shall be done.

Cap. XIII. Why are they that haue not the knowledge of the byngs of God, but turne vnto the creature: why appelle are they that honour ymagin.

Cap. XIV. The misshippings of ymagin. The power of God. The punishment of them that manymage, and of they that worshippe them. How ymagin came vnto first. The heueninge of y-magin is the cause, beginninge and ende of all myshipp.

Cap. XV. The faithfull haue respecte vnto God and are vnto ymagin.

Cap. XVI. God punisheth the wicked, but deserueth the godly, and that by great wonder.

Cap. XVII. Of the great haue in the Egypte, in the ymagin of the vngodly.

Cap. XVIII. How God outroies the first borne of Egypte. How he people are the castles and so forth, the Egyptians mourne, God punisheth the ymagin to the wisdome. What is recei-ued in the people.

Cap. XIX. Likens the wicked are not immu-nable and more, so both the wrath of God increaseth, till they be destroyed. Of them that are punished in the tyme of Loy.

The first Chapter.

Let your affection vnto wysdome, yet that be iudges of the earth, haue a good opinion of the LORDE, & see him in the symplicity of heart. For he will be fide of them that tempe him not, and appeareth vnto they as per their trust in him. As for the forward thevngodly, they separate from God, but verily if he be alone as in himselfe & in himselfe. And why? wysdome shall not come in to a forward soule, nor well in the body that is subiect vnto syn-ne. For the holy good abhorreth synne and not come, & with draweth himselfe from the vngodly: that are without vnderstandinge: where as he comes backe the vpper hand, be fide from thence. For the spirit of wysdome is leuynge, gentle and gracious, & no wil haue no pleasure in him that speaketh enill with his lippe. For God is a witnesse of his re-uerse, a true hearde out of his heart, and an hearer of his tongue. For the spirit of f LOR-DE spyleth the rounde compass of the mou-de, and y fince that vphideth all thinges, hath knowledge alid of the voyce.

Then fone he that speaketh vnto the things, can not be hydd, neither may he efscape the iudgement of reioice. And why? inquacy shall be made for the thoughtes of the vngodly, and the reioice of his wordes shall come vnto God, so that his wickednes shall be punished. For the reioice of glory he reth all thinges, and the noyse of the gea-tinges shall not be hydd. Therefore beware of murmuringe, which is nothinge worth, and refreine your tongue from flattery. For there is no reioice but of feare, that it shall go for naught and the mouth that spaketh lyes, shal yethe soule.

Of see not your owne deare in y erranre of your life, destroye not your felicity rom the mouth of your a wile handes, for God hath not made deach, neither hath he pleasure in the destruction of the lyng.

For he created all thinges, that they might haue their byrthe: yett alle the people of the earth hath he made that they shoulde haue heath, that there shoulde be no destruction in them, and that the kynngdoms of hell shalde not be upon earth (for righteousnesse is exceedinge and immortal, but unrighteousnesse is but a brynge death.) Therefore, the vngodly call her into them both w' wordes & workes, & whyle they chynse so haue a frend of her, they come to naught: for the vngodly that are confederate with her and to her parte, are enemyes of death.

The ii. Chapter.

107 as b
Curay d

W O if vngodly calke & ymagina thus amonge themselves (but not righte): The tyme of oure life is but shone & tedious, & when a man is once gone, he hath no more ioye nor pleasure, neither knowe we any man's turne his gayne from death: for we are borne of naught, & we shal be hereafter as though we had never bene. For oure breth is as a smoke in oure nostrils, & yf wee descease a space, we moue oure here. As for of body, it shalbe very asshe & yare quene, & of soule shal pass as yf it were. Oure life shal pass awaye as yf trace of a clowde, & come to naught as yf myst his dyne awaye w' the beames of yf Sonne, & put to come w' the heate thereof. Oure name also shalbe forgotten by litle & litle, & no man shal haue our remembrance.

Job 14

F O if tyme is a very shadowe yf possesse anye, & after of ende there is no returninge, for it is fast sealed so yf no man cometh agayne. Come on therefore, leaue a moye yf pleasure yf there are, & let us soone vsi yf creatur like as in youth. We will sell oure selues w' good wyne & ornaments, there shal no floure of the tyme go by vs. We will crowne of selues w' roses as flowers they be withered. There shal be no fayne mownde, but of lust shal go downe in. Let every one of you be partaker of oure voluptuousnesse. Let vs leaue some token of pleasure in every place, for yf we are poisoned, let vs see nothinge. Let vs oppress the poore righteous, leaue a net spate the wyddow we neede man, let vs not regard yf brauer yf are gray for age. Let yf lawe of unrighteousnesse be oure auarice, for yf thinge yf is feble is nothinge worth. Therefore let vs be desired the righteous, & whyle it is not for of profit, yett he is cleane contrary to of doings. The death vs for offendinge agaynst yf lawe, & slaunder vs as transgressors of all norde. He maketh his boast to haue yf knowinge of God, yett he calleth him self Gods sonne. He is the enemye of our thoughtes: It is greatly to as to as to him, for his life is not lyke other men, his wayes are of another fashion. He receiveth no but of one person, he w' danceth himself from of wayes as a from flesh mee he remembereth greatly yf launce ende of his life maketh his boast yf God is his father. As we se then yf his wordes be in lawe, we knowe what shal come upon him: shal we knowe what ende he shal haue. For yf he be yf some of God, he will receiue him & deliver him from the handes of his enemies. Let us examen him with despitefull rebukes & mockinge, that we maye knowe his daye & proue his patience. Let us condemn him with the most shamefull beache: for like as he hath spoken, so shal he be rewarded.

Soch thinges do the vngodly ymagin, & go after yf, for their owne w'chardnesse they ender them. As for the ministers of God, they vnderstande better: they neither hope for the reward of righteousnesse, nor regard the worshippe that holy spirit shal paye. For God created man to be vnderstande, & after the ymage of his owne likenesse maketh him. Therefore, he that is enemye of the deuil came death in the world, and they that holde of his syde, do as he doth.

The iii. Chapter.

W HAT the foules of yf righteous are in yf handes of God, & yf payne of death shal not touch the. In yf sight of the vngodly they appere as bodye, & the contrarye for very destruction. The more of the righteous, & as to be to be better becomen, but they are in rest. And though they suffer payne be fore men, yett in their hope full of immortallite. They are punished but in fewe places, nevertheless in many thinges shal they be well rewarded. For God powereth cleane synners the more for himself: yett as the payne in the foules both be crye them, & rewardeth them as a burnt offeringe, and whyle tyme cometh they shalbe loosed up.

The righteous shal sorye as the sparke yf vnto the nations, & haue dominion ouer yf people, & their LORD shal raise them for more. They yf purchase crust in him, shal vnderstande the church, & soday as he such full, & as to vnto him in lawe: for his daye shal be as yf as yf peace. But the vngodly shal be punished as a corbunge so that a more ymaginable, for they haue despised the righteous, & forsaken the LORD.

Who so despiseth myssdemeanor, & is no hap, and do so for the hope of such, it is no wage, their labours on fruitfull, and their works unprofitable. Their wages are painfull, and their dayes most ungodly. Their creature is cursed. Blessed is rather if heant be despoiled, which hath not knowne the (yet still bene) the shall have fruite in the reward of the holy soules. And blessed is if goden which by his handes hath wrought no unrighteousnesse, nor imagined wicked changes any ynto God. For unto him shall be given a speciall gift of faith, and the most acceptable poise as a y temple of God. For godden is the fruite of goodlaboure, & the race of righteous shall neuer fade away. As for a diuine of aduocaters, they shall come to endure the febe of an unrighteous hebe shall be reued out. And though they ly reigne, yet shall they be nothing regarded, & their last age shall be without honour. They be haughty, they haue no hope, neither shall they be respected in the daye of knowledg. Yet horrible is the death and ende of the wicked.

The booke of Wyssdome.

15th: In the yere of our menichea was I broughte forth in bloude thow the sede of man, & the comendoun a puer of slepe.
When I was borne, I receaued like a yea a nether miz, fill in pon the earth, which is my nether miz, & trespunge at the first, as all where. I was a wretched in swabinge clothes, & broughte up in greute care. For there was thinge þat had any oþer begynnynge of this, & thus I haue one increaunce of life, & one goyng out in life manner.

16th: When I was þat desired, and vnderstandunge was gane me: I called, & the spere of wyssdome came in to me. I sit more by her thā by kingdomes & royall seates, & counsed riches weyng in coparison of her. As for puer-all ston, I compared it noe more her: for all gode to be gracell vnto her, & siluer shalbe counted but alyde before hir sighte. I leaue her alone nether & better, & purposed to take her for my lighte, for hir shyne can nocht garmeth. All good thinges come to me thā ye, & immortable riches thowen hir habito.

17th: I was glad in this all, for this wyssdome red-deh for me, & I knew not þat she is the mother of all good thinges. For as I myself lamp vnto myself, so do I make oþer men partakers of her, & hyde her riches from no man: for she is an inheritece for euer vnto men, which who so vi, be come partakers of the life firstship of God, and are accepted vnto him for the giftes of wyssdome.

18th: God hath graunted me to reide wyssly, & commenly to handle the thinges þat he hath graciously lene me. For it is he, þat he hath wyssdome, & teacheth to vse wyssdome a-nyght. In his habite are all & he me: yet all I wyssdome, & vnderstandunge & the meage of all monkes. For he hath geue me þat true self of these thinges, that I knowe how I wold to make, & the power of þat clement: I began yng, endinge & in dobest of þat spere, howe the yeme alyce, how one goeth after another, and howe the yare fulfilleth: þat course of the yare: the aduancement of the floure, the nature & kinde of beastes: the finestship of beastes: the power of þat wrytes the ymaginacions of men: the deuysities of yonge plantes: the vertues of rootes, & all such thinges as are secret & not loked for, hare I learned. For he the workmaster of all thingre: receauinge all spere of vnderstandinge beige cleane & sharpe. For wyssdome is a rember the all nethe thinges: she goeth thow to a yemeth to all thinges, because of hir clenea. For she is þat byerth of þat power of God, & pure cleane expessinge of þat cleane of Wil-myghte God. Therefore can no vnderstandthinge come in to her: for she is þat byghen-er of carlastinge highte, & vnderstande mynd of þat manly of God, & þat vimage of his goodnesse.

And for so much as she is one, she maunde all thinges: & beinge as fast herself she reueryth all: & amenge of people couereth she herself in to þat holy soules. She maketh God sende þat phylas: for God lowerth no mā, but him in who wyssdome dwelleth. For she is a member full then the Sonne, & one geneth more lighte, then the starres, and the daye is not to be compared vnto her: for up to þat clememyghte. But richednesse can not ouer come wyssdome, and foolishnes maye not be with her.

The viij. Chapter.

20th: Wyssdome teacheth þat one ende to another mighte, & lowlyth both she ordie all thinges. I haue loved her and laboured for her eue for my yowth up: I dyd my biligence to many my self, & her selfe us had I vnto her beuerye. Who so hath þat us y of God, cometh hir nobilitye, yet the LORDE of all thinges himselfe lowlyth her. For she is þat scolemostresse of þat mure of God, & þat choke out of his wrotes. As a man wolde desyre riches in this life, whiche riches then wyssdome, & worketh all thinges: (Thou wold saye) vnderstandinge moeth. What is it amenge all thinges, & worketh more the wyssdome. As a man lens warte & righte ouersight, let him lade for wyssdome, for she hath greater warte. And why? she teacheth sobernesse & prudence, righte ouer- & sight, which are such thinges as me can haue nothinge more profitable in their life. As a mā desyre rich-thowth, she can tell þat thinges þat pass, & disfigure thinges for to come: she knoweth þat solaties of wroth, & all repoude vnto the eies. She can tell of eall & of wroth, & of eies, & of eies that come to passe, & the endes of all yemes & ages. So I purposed after this manner: I wold take her vnto my company, & as mā lowlyth her: no doube she shal geue me good coucell, & speake comfortably vnto me in my carefullnes & greif. For hir sake shal I be well and honestly taken amenge the comendours of þat counsell. Though I be yonge, yet shal I haue sharpe vnderstandinge: so þat I shal be mameless in þat sighte of greatesse, & þat fawes of pynces shal wroth at me. Who I holde my eies, they shal byde my lyf. 21st

The X. Chapter.

23 Wyrdom preſerued y ſuſtē, whā God made a father of the world, whā he was created alone, bought him out of his offence, toke him out of the moulde of y earth, t gaue him power to kee pe all thinges. ¶ What the unrighteous man maye in his wrath from this wyrdome, y his heade perſhed thereon y much murther. ¶ Agayne, whā y water deſtroyeth whole world, wyrdome preſerued the right eous thowte a people, whiche ſhe met gouerneth herſelf. ¶ Whā ſhe wth wyrdome had gotten y upper hande, ſo y the wicked were put vpon rich payde, ſhe thence y right eous, preſerued him ſanctiſſe vnto God, and layed a ſure mercy for his children. ¶ She preſerued the righteous, when he ſaie from the vngodly y perſhed, what tyme as y ſa ſell do men apon y ciuill warre as y the dwyte the vniuſitall, reuſt and ſynners degeat the cōſumion of chey wyrdome: y the vniue and vniuerſity ſtandeth thus vpon the erres.

¶ And for a colle of a remembrance of the vniuerſitall ſoule, where ſtandeth a pail of ſaie. For all ſoules are gathered vnto wyrdome.

ganer only this hate, that they knewe not the thinges which were good, but also left behinde them vnto me, a memoriall of their foolishnes: so y in the thinges wherein they faile, they coude not be hydd. But as see when a tale here vnto wyssdome, she shal be iust them from foine.

C When the righteous seld because of his wisdom much, wyssdome led him the right waye, she wed him y Kingdome of God, gaue him knowlege of holy thinges, made him rich in his labours, and brought to passe the thinges that he wente about. In y discomfyt of such as defrauded him, she slovely him, made him ryche. She saued him from the enemye, and defended him from y lechours. She made him stronge in battayle, and gaue him the victory. y he might knowe howe the wyssdome is stronger then all thinges. When the righteous was solace to the forsake him not, but deliuered him fro sinners. She wente downe with him in to the banys on, and sayled him too in the banys on well she had brought him the ceptee of y realm, and power agaynst those that oppesed him. So for euen that had accused him, she cleare to hym to be iust, and brought him in partuall wysshipe.

D She bringeth the righteous people and banishe them from the nations that oppesed them. She entred in to the soule of the sinners of God, and slode by him in wisdom and wote a gaynst the horrible kynge. She gaue y righteous the reward of their labours, y the thyme she was a shadowe vnto them, and a light of sharten in the night season. She brought them the now the red see, and caued them the now the greater water. She downed their enemies in the see, and brought them out of the depe. So the righteous take the spoyle of the vngodly, and paynt the holy name of LORD and magnify the victorious had with one a corer. In wisdom opened the mouth of y deim in maketh y eanges of habes to speake.

The xi. Chapter.

E She ordered their wordes in the halles of the holy prophet: so y they wente thome y wisdomes y was not in the bited, y pched then etes in y waist deserte. They knowe agaynst their enemies, and were augmented of their adversaries. When they were churche, they called vnto y, and water was gent then one of y red, and their thys fled out of y haire from. For by y thinges, where they were their enemies were punished, where they helped in their webe. For wote the enemies thoughe as the mas bleude in steade of synge was set. And where as they had fearceless in y rebute when the children were slayne, thou gauest vnto thine name a plentifulle water vnlofed for: declaringe by the thys y was a churche tyme, howe thou woldst bunge thine name vnto hand, and slay the aduersaries.

For when they were cryed y noutured of such a mercy, they knowlege howe they vngodly were indged, and punished the now y wote of God. These hast thou cryed as a father, y pined the: but vnto y ether thea hast bene a boyssoun kynge, loyed hard to that charge, and condeined the. Whether they were absent or present, their punishment was alyke. For their greefe was bubble: namely, mourninge, and y remediance of thinges past. But why they percoued y their punishment vnto the good, they thoughte upon the LORD, and wondereth at y now. For at the last they helde much of him, of wote in y ouerfing: they thoughte soone, as of an absente. These thinges y righteous vnto now: so when they were churche: but remember as y thoughte of y foolishly were, so was also their wilelesse. Where as certa yne me now the now wote vnto wysshipe downe y penitence y wayne beeste, thou sendst a mulier vnto of domme biastes upon them for a vengeance: y they might knowe, that loke where not that a misyncty, by the same also shal be be punished. For vnto the all mighty hande, that made the world of naughte, is now not vnto possible, to sente amonge them an heape of a steale, or woodelys, or small beastes of a steale y kynde, such as are enen now, or spore fyre, or cast out a fine kynge brech, or shore horrible spartes one of their eyes: which might not only destroye them with horeing, but also yll them with their horrible sighe. Now without these beeste might they have bene slayne with one winde, beyng persecuted of their awne woites, and scattered abode the now the bieth of thy penite.

Truerthles thou hast outed all thinges in measure, nobie y weighe. For thou hast crechad greates strength y might, y who maye wylde y y power of thine arme. And why like as y small thynge y y balauce weyeth, so is y wilede before y: yet as a droppe of y monnys dew, that falleth downe upon the earth. Thou hast mercy upon all, for thou hast power of all thinges: and maketh thea a thoughte thou shalt not the times of me, because they shal be amended. For thou lovest all the thinges that are, and hast none of che whō thou hast made neither diddest thou give me any thinge of euill will.

How might any thinge endure, yf we not yf will: O how coude any thinge be preserved, except we were called o f: But thou sparest all, for all are thine, O LORD, thou lo-uest of soules.

The XII. Chapter.

O LORD, how gracious & sweet is thy spete in all thinges: Therfore has-tenth thou the measurably that go wide, and wateredst them, concernynge the thinges wherein they offende: thou speakest unto them (O LORD) and crocest the sea leaue thei moieties, and thou puttest trust in thee. As for those olde inhabiters of thy holy londe, thou mightest not so waie much them, for they commyng abhominable workes agaynst thee: as witchcraft, sozcery and ydo-latrie: they slew their owne children without mercy: they ate up mens bowels, and deuou-red the bloude: yett because of thy abominacion, mygdalens offeringes, thou slewest theise in thes of the desolate soles by the banes of our fathers: what londe which thou iustlye haue all other, might be a dwelllinge for the child of God.

Truethes thou sparest the also (as me) in euill: thou sparest of thyne host, & we hornetize to destrye the out by lyde & litle. For thou wast unable to subdue yf we godly unto thy righteous in battaill, as with cruell beastes, as w one rough woode to destrye the together: But yf mynde maye say us the out by lyde & liitle, geninge the time & place to amende: knowinge well, yf it was an unrighteous nation & with of nature, & yf thee brought might neuer be decreed, for it was a cursed seide from thy begynnynge, & stared nomd: yett hast thou pardoned their syn-nes. For who wyl saye unto the: why hast thou done y: O who wyl stide agaynst thy iudgement: O who wil come be fore & face an adverser of unrighteousnes: O who wil blame yf yf people perish, whō thou hast in a de: For theses none other God but thou, yf carest for all thinges: yf thou mayest declare how yf iudgement is not unrighte. There darrenether eye, nor eysen in yf sighe requyre or cepten of them, whō thou hast destroyed.

For so moche as thou art righteous yf sest, thou shalt toll thyne righteously, & pu-nishst euill: yf hast not deuoted to be punished, & takest him for a sinner: yf an aleuin yf de of yf power. For yf power in yf beginnyng of righteousnes: and because thou art LORD of all thinges, therfore art thou grauous unto all. Whan men theise yf me-of o full strength, thou declarst yf power boldly & dyest thou them: as yf thou not. But thou LORD of power, thy eely, and dyest thou with greates wooll: yf thou mayest do as thou wilt.

For so moche as thou hast theise yf thy people, theise a mō also: yf thou hast louynge: and hast made thy child to be a good hope: for thou hast theise yf thou geuest romme to amende from synne, yf so moche as thou hast punished, and yf diligence destroyed yf enemies of thy people, which were worthy to dye: yf thou hast gauest theise yf place of amende yf they might come fro the wickednes: yf how greates diligence thou punishedst thyne owne child, unto whōst father thou hast sworn to make conuersion of good multe: So where as thou dost haue theise, thou punishedst yf enemies by theise to yf in the yf thou punishedst, yf thou bist yf goodnest: & whan not so fleshe as thyse, so put ouer trust in thy mercy.

Wherefore where as men haue synned rallye & unrighteously, thou hast punished theise, as thou hast yf theise yf they were shipped, for they were after thy gein yf waye of art, & yf beastes which en their enemies distressed: for goodnes as a child: as yf no understanding. Therfore hast thou sent a sinnerfull punishment amonge them, as amonge the dyde of to aince. As for soch as were not be-famed by theise seueres of rebuke, theise moche by punishment of God. For yf they suffred, they bare the punishment not content in them but unwillynge. And whan they perished by yf same thinges theise theye for goodnes, theise knowledg theise there was but one true God, whō fore theye would not knowe a perisheant ende of their dampnation upon them.

The XIII. Chapter.

Ayme are all men, which haue knowledge of God: as we theise one of the good thinges which seue, theise not him, theise of himself is to suffringe. Neither toke they so moche of the woode theise are made, as to know who was the crucifixion of them: but toke the fyre, some the wynde as yf, some yf course of yf starres, some yf water, some theise Sonne and yf loone, as the lightes of theise rule yf earth, for goodnes. Therfore they had soch pleasure in their beuty, that they thoughte them to haue bene good.

The boke of wysdome.

ys shuld they have knowen, how much mo re payne is that made them. For the mater of bray hath euiden all thesē chāges.
Of yf they mardred at the power and wea-ke of chē, they shulde have perceaved ther by, yf they had thesē chinges, is myght over thei chē.

B yf by the greuousse t beuys of the crea-tur, yf mater therof maye playnly be known. For thei sonynge they are the lesse to be named, that fought God & wolde have souded him, and yett myssid. And why? for as much as they were abente in his woordes and sought after cheyn, is a cokē, that they nagarded and halde moch of his woordes yf anyne yf howbeit they are not wholly to be creafin. For yf their understandinge and knowlege was so greuous, yf they coude discern the wolde and yf creature, whyd yd they is rather synbe out of LOWE therof?

But in thappte are they, and amenge the two is ther hope, that call the God which that the woordes of memo. hūdes: golde, silver and the chinges, that is founde end by connyng, the similitude of beastes, or any manne thinge that hath bene made by han-dys. Oo as when a carpenter cutteth out of the wood, and parash of the hard offe connyngly: and so with the out prync mathe a vessell to be used, and hycheth meate with the residu. As for the other part, that is left, which is profitable for nothinge: for it is a croked pece of wood and full of knobbes, he carrieth it diligently thowm his waste, and a covyngs to the knowlege of his connyng) he reueth it some propoicion, fashioneth it after the simi-litude of a man, or maketh it like some best, first whiche ever with reed and payment he, and the whor soule spaci in it, he casteth sume labour upon it. Then maketh he a counait tabernacle for it, setteth it in the wall and maketh it fast with yon. pryncynges so for yf it happed to fall: for it is well known, that it can not helpe it self: And why? it is an ymage, and must of necessity be helped.

B Then cometh he and offerech of his goo-des to god for his children and for his wife: he seeketh helpe at it, he seareth counsell at it: he is not ashamed to speake vnto it yf heeth hath: for health, he maketh this periculous man him that is sick: for he prayeth vnto him that is dead: he calleth upon him for helpe: that is not able to helpe him self: to sende him a good sentent ye, he prayeth him that maye not go. And in all the chinges a yf he seth in hande, whether it be to prayne any thinge or to worke, he prayeth vnto him that can do maner of good.

The XIII. Chapter.

A s yf, another mā purposinge to saye he z begynnynge to take his iourney thow-to a stock, yf is farre weaker, the yf he be-teth him. For as for it, couerousness of moneye hach founde is oue, & z creaftin made it to his connyng. But yf pryncynges (O far-tho) yf cometh all chinges fro yf begynnynge, for thou hast made a waye in yf see, & a fare path in the myddes of yf mannes dedarg t herby, yf thou hast power to helpe in all chinges, yett thoug a man write to the sce without shippe. Letteth selfe, yf yf woordes of yf wysdome shulde not be vaine, thou hast caused an arte to be made: & therefore do thou committeth their lyues to a small pece of ropassinge ouer the sea in a shyppe, & are lande.

For in the olde tyme also whā the proude guyntes perished, he (in whiche the hope was left to increasē yf wolde) wrote into the ship-pe, which was governed the now thy hande, z so left side behinde him vnto yf wolde. For happie is yf re where: thowm righte woful cōmich: but cursed is the ymage of wood, yf made w hādes, yett deeth it & he yf made it: the, because he made it: it, because it was callid God, where as it is but a fragile chinge. For the vngodly & his vngodlynes are both like abominable vnto God, & thus is yf worke he yf made it also shal be punysshed together.

Therefore shal there a plage come vpon the ymages of the heithen: for vnto the crea-tur of God they are become an abhomincion, a transgression vnto the sunles of men, and a snare for the feet of the vnyse. And why? the stinging out of mayne is the beginnyng of inuidome, and the bringinge ap of thā is the bestirment of life. For they roue not from the begynnynge, therby shal they euerme for euer. The wichey vnyles of men hath so aduethen one vpon carech, that for shal they come shoudly to an ende. Whā a sycher mounted for his soune yf was taken awaye fro him, he made him an ymage in all yf kass of his dech souner: he began to wor-shipe him as God, which was but a dech mā z dithen his seruantes to offe vnto him.
Then by process of tyme z thowm lōge cas-tane, this erd was kepte as a lawe, z reynid ma cōpelled mā by violence of bond ymagin.
As for those yf were so fure of yf mā myght not re shippe them pryncly, their pleasure: nor brought fro fure, like the ymage of a kyngs which are most miserable: for compare this ge that can not see into them, & they are worse then those. For as thei are one of the sisterhood, thus with his sight as beholde in y good thinge, neither haue they greuen prayse nor thanks unto God.

The xvi. Chapter.

In these and soch other thinges haue the yssu ch wrought by punishment, that thou maye see multitude of besties are theye out. In steade of which punishmentes thou hast graciously ordered thinge afore people, & geuen them then desyre the theye loyde for a newe & strange cause. perpetuate them quiles so be their meate: so the same & theye thinges which were shewed achone unto them, the y were so greedy of meat, might be withid in euery siem. The bestie was necessary. But these which shew the meate were brought unto powerte, and killed a new meate. For it was requisite & (without any cause) destruction shoulde come vnto those which used euill, & so shoulde theye be destroyed, how their enemies were destroyed. For when the cruell woodnesse of the bestie came upon them, theye perished thou the strengthe of the cruell serpente.

Before the bestie & wasch endured not personally, but theye were put in feare for a late helde, & theye might be in feare, havinge a token of saluacion, to remembre the chauncement of thy lame. For he & couer was not dealed by the thinge & he sawe, but by the & said of all. So in this thou shouldest see enemies, & in the & which destroyed all well. For the when theye were byen w grethoppers and flies, theye died, for the were worthy to perish by such:
And neither the teeth of dragons nor of euery mome cometh ouer come & children, for thy meat was eate by them & helped the. After sometime theye punished to remembre thy merits, but helpe theye were heale agayne: lest they shoulde fall in so so hope forgetful-ly, that they might use the helpe.

It was neither herbe nor plaster & restored the to health, but thy word (O LORDE) which healeth all thinges. For thou (O LOR-DE) hast the power of life & death: thou se-dest into deathes doore, & bringest man agayne. When man theore wickednes slayeth his owne soule, & when his spere goeth forth, it cometh not agayne, neither maye be calla-gaine & soule is take awaye: For it is not possible to escape & hands. For & ungodly & uel denot knowe & were punished by & strenght of thine arme: & strange water, & halles and raynes were theye persecuted, & thowen fye were theye consumed. For it was a wonderous thinge that fye might do more then water which quencheth all thinges: but it would be if augea of the righteome. Some tyme was fye so come, & the besties which were sent to punish & vngodly, were not: & because thy shoulde & knowe, & theye were perished in the punishment of God. And sometime were the fye in the water on euery syde, & it might destroye & vngodlynes nacio of the earth. Agayne, then hast thou thine arme people & angels fode, & sent the best ready from heauen: without their labo: & theye very pleasant & well gusted. And so shew thy riches & sweetnesse unto thy childer, the & gauest one then desyre, so & euery man might eate what liked him best. But the shewe & yf abode the nolice of the fye, & made not: & thy might knowe, & the fye burninge in the hale & raynes, destroyed & fure of & enemies: & fye also forgate his strenght agayne, & & righteous might be nourished. For & creature fye (which are & male) is feare in punishment & vngodlynes, but it is easy & gette to do good, into such as put their trust in the. Thei fore vnto all thinges aler at the same tyme, & were all obedient unto thy grace, which is & work of all thinges, a confession to & desyre of the & had made thereof: & thy childer (O LORDE) who thou lovest, might knowe, & it is not nature & the growinge of frees & feche me, but & it is & words, which prestaeth the & put their trust in the. For to be what might not be destroyed & the fye, as soone as it was named & a hile. Some beame, it might: & all men might knowe, & chanke ought to be geuen vnto & before & Somertise, & thou oughtest to be worshipped be foue & dayes spryng. For & hope of & vntant fall shal meate auaile as the wyne yff, & perishe as water, & it is not necessary.

The xviij. Chapter.

Rence are thy iudgements (O LORDE) & thy counsels can not be expressed: theye fore men do erre, & will not be reformid by thy wysdome. For when the vngodly thought to haue thy holy people in subiects, theye were bounde w the bandes of barres & longe night, shew vnder & nose, thin longe to escape & cruellye might knowe. And why to theye thought to be hyd in & darcknesse of their synnes, theye were scattered abroad in very myddell of the barde conuenge of for-getfulnes, put to horrible feare & wonderous ly reped. For the corner where theye were, might not hope them from feare: because & 2 Then laye there one here, another there half dead half a quere, and shewed the cause of their death. For the wylons that vered the shewd that these changes a fure, so that they were not ignoant, wherfor they perished.

The execution of death eched the right me to nill, and manage the multitude in the wyfdom, for that was in the execution, but they were not longe. For the foulesse 11 was men in all the dust, and so the bac will upon him, brought forth the weapen of the ministration: even prayer and yf cōfession of each change, for himself a garyst yf wynch, and so brought the misery to an ende: declaring that by that he was thy trauaunt. For he was not the multitude with bodily power, but with weapen of might: but with the weapen the labour of him that vered him, was the in the remembrance of the oore yf conscience made onto the fathers. For when the dead were fallen downe by heapen one upon another, he stood in the myddest, pac-12 if he was, and passed yf waye into the heret. And why in his longe garnet man all the way, and in the four corners of the same was the glory of the fardern graue, and why many man were in the crowne of his head. Vmo these the destroye gaue place, and was a praye of them: for it was in the execution worthy of wach.

The XIX. Chapter.

1 Was for the wylody, the wylody came up to them without mercy into the erde. For he knew before whyn shulde heppen two chem: how that when they had departed to leese them go, and had sent them to wch grace diligence they wold repent and follow upon them. In whan they re-

11 turned in the morninge and makinge larned by the grames of the dead, they desired in no the foolishness: so that they persecuted them in their flange, whom they had cast out afore in prayer. Worthy necessity also brought them to this erde, for they had cleane forgotten the changes yf happened onto them afre. Due the thinge that was wantynge of their punishment, was requyrite so to be fulfilled upon them with conscience: when they people might have a maruelous passage throug, and that these wylodye fynde a strean of wylody.

2 The was every creature fashioned agayn of the newe coadings to the wyl of their maker, obeyng the commandementes, yf thy children might be bryng without harte.

In the cloude overshadowed their senses, the dyerant appeared, where a fow was water: so yf in the reed see there was a waye without impediment, and the grace wepe becarnen grene felde: where the wylodye yf people comes that were befered with thy hand-de, singe thy wonderous & maruelous rotes. For as yf hoise, so were they fed, & leape like labe, prayng the LORD, which had vnderdelivered them. And why they were yet in the full of the changes, that happened: whyle they dwelt in the lode: how the grounde brought forth fyles in the cloude of ca-ell, and how yf rynt scaraled with the multitude of frogges in the cloude of fylls.

But at the last they founde a newe creation of bydes, what tyme as they were disce-ved with lust, and desired delicate meate.

For when they were speakinge of their appetite, the quail came up vnto them from the see, and punishmentes came upon yf synner, not without the tyme which came to pass: nesc by the vehemence of yf streames for they suffred wretchedly a coodng to the wylodye, they dealt so abominably & charlessly with streames. Some receaued an unknowne gestes, some brought yf streamges in to bondage: that by the tyme the syde all these changes there were fow, that not only receaued no streamges with their wylodye, but persecuted those also, and vnd the moch euill, that receaued the wylodye. Therfore were they punished with bymesses, like an they that were covered with sedans bar dresse at the doore of the righteous: so yf every one sought yf intiance of his doer.

Then the elements turned in to them silues like a a whan one tyme in changinge upon an castume of mydd, and yet all the residue kepte their melody: which maye easily be perceined, by the sighte of the thinges that are come to passe. The daye lode was turned in to a murey, & yf thinge that a fow stream me in the water, wente now upon the drye grounde. The syn had power in the water, (theary to his aone veres) and the wylodye forgotte his aone fyndes quens. Agayne, the flimmer in the wylodye beastes herre not the flesch of them that wylodye with them, neither mured they the yf, which the melodyes lighly. In all thinges hasten promoted thy people (LORD) and broughte them to honoure thou hast not despyed them, but allwaye and in all places hast thou stonde by them.

Ecclesiasticus called Iesus Syrac

The prologe of Iesus the sonne of Syrac unto his booke.

Many and great men haue declared wysdome vnto vs out of 3 lawes, out of 3 prophetes, out of other that folowed the. In this which thinges I haue sought to be commended, by the reason of doctrine and wysdome: Therefore they that haue written it, shalbe not onely the fathers be wise therethrough, but truste other also may learn by it and byninge.

After that my graund father Iesus had given diligent laboure to write the lawe, the prophetes and other booke that were left vs of our fathers, and had not exercised himself therein: he purposed also to write some thinge of wysdome and good maners, to the intent that they which were willinge to learne and to be wise, might haue the more understandinge, and be the more apte to lide a good conuersation.

Wherefore I wrote you to receaue it lowingly, to reade it with diligence, and to take it in good maner: though our wordes be not so eloquent as the famous orators. For the thinge that is written in the hebrewe tongue, I haue not so well when it is translated in many other speache. For onely this booke of myne, but also the lawe, the prophetes, and other booke founde farre other wise, then they be, when they are spoken in their owne language.

Now in the XXXVIII. yere when I came in to Egypte in the tyme of Ptolomee Emperour, and continued there all my life, I gaue libertie to reade and write many good thinges. Wherefore I thought it good and necessary, to bestow my diligence and manerly to instructe this booke. And consideringe that I had myne, I laboured and byd my self to instructe this booke, and to bringe it vnto light: that the strangers also which are disposed to be wise, might applye them selues vnto good maners, & lyue accordinge to 3 lawe of 3 LOUE.

things: Whosome hath bene before all things, and the understanding of prudence from earth stunge. (Gods worde in the heath is the well of wylsome, and the everlasting abundances are the inheritance of her.) Who whom hath y rote of wylsome bene be-hath the doctrine of wylsome bene discovered and shewed: and who hath understande the manyfolde creature of her.

There is one of the myght, the maker of as a dinge to his gift: he geuech her richely vnto them that loue him. The feare of the LORDE is wisdom: and euery gladnesse is a ioyfull crowne. The feare of the LORDE maketh a merry heart, geuech gladnesse, ioye and longe life. Who so feareth the LORDE, it shal go well with him: and the last, z in the daye of his death he shal be blessed.

E The feare of God is honorable wisdom: take vnto whom it appeareth, they loue it, for they se what wondrous thinges it doeth. The feare of LORDE is the begynnyng of wisdom, and was made with the fathfull is the mothers wombe: it shal go with the choyse women, and shal be knowne of y righte and fathfull. The feare of the LORDE is y righte Gods seruyce, that pfectueth and iustifieth the here, and geuech myght z gladnesse. Who so feareth the LORDE shal be happye: and when he hath neede of comforte, he shal be blessed. To feare God is the wisdom that maketh rich, and bringeth all good with her. She filleth the whole house with his giftes, z she garneth with her treasure. The feare of the LORDE is the crowne of wisdom, and gruech plenteous peace z healt. He hath sent her z nombred her: knowlege and vnderstandinge of wisdom hath he pouerd out as raync: and them that helde her fast, hath he brought vnto hono^r.

D The feare of the LORDE is the root of wisdom, and his branches are longe life. (In the treasures of wisdom is vnderstandinge and deuotion of knowlege, but wisdom is abhorred of synners.) The feare of the LORDE by which our synne, for he hath is without feare, can not be made righteous, z his wellfull boldnes is his owne destruction. A pacite man wyl suffre vnto the cyme, and th: shal he haue y reward of ioye. A good vnderstandinge wyl hyde his wordes for a cyme, and many melle lippes shal speake of his wisdom. In the treasures of wisdom is the declaration of doctrine, but the synner abhorreth the worship of God. My sonne, yf thou desire wisdom, kepe the commandement, and God shal geue her vnto the: for the feare of the LORDE is wisdom: z nureth her, he hath pleasure in such and louyng mekenesse, and he shal fill the treasures ther of. He not obfcurate and vnfathfull to the feare of the LORDE, and come as of vnto him with a double heart. He not an hypocrite in the sight of men, and take good hebe what thou speakest. Ward well these thinges, lest thou happen to fall and bringe thy soule to dishonour, and so God discouer thy secretes, and cast the downe in the myddest of the congregation: because thou woldest not reuerence the feare of God, and because thy heart is full of fawnes and disceate.

The ii. Chapter.

MY sonne, yf thou wilt come in to the seruyce of God, stande fast in faith, continence and feare, z armeth thy heart to contention: sturle thine here, and be patient to me downe thine eare, receaue the wordes of vnderstandinge, and sheweth thee away, when thou art entysed. Solde the salt spye God, ioyne thy self vnto him z suffice, that thy life maye encrease to the last. What euil happeneth vnto the, receaue in thy benygnesse, and be patient in thy tribulacion: he like as golde and syluer are tryed in the fire, even so are acceptable men in the furnace of aduersite. Beleeue in God, and be faithful: heber the thy waie a righte, and purcheth in him. Solde fast his feare, and groweth in. O ye y feare the LORDE take frechth of his mercye: sheweth a good man freth, that ye full not. O ye that feare y LORDE, beleue him, and your rewardes shal not be emptye. O ye that feare y LORDE, put your trust in him, z mercye shal come vnto you for pleasure. O ye y feare y LORDE, he y leaue him, z ye heres shal be lighten.

Confide the olde generacione of wise y ye children) and marce them well: men that neuer say one confounded, that put his trust in the LORDE. Who euer commeth in the feare, and was so iust: Oe whom dyt euer despyse, that called fathfully upon me. For God is gracious and mercifull, he fegeueth synners in y cyme of reuente, and a vnder for all them y sike him in y cyme. Who euer him that hath a double heart, and he lippes and well occupied handes, to the synner y geueth two manner of wate. Who be vnto them that are loue of hat, which put not their trust in God, and thei re shal they not be defendid of him. Who vnto them that haue a lost patience, sturle in the righte wayes, and as turne back in a frowarde wayes. What wyl they do when the LORDE shal begynne to vste the?

They that feare y LORDE, and not trust his wordes: and they that loue him, and kepe his commandement. They that put the LORDE, wyl sturle one y thinges that are pleasant vnto him, and they that kepe him, shal fulfill his lawes. They that feare y LORDE wyl prepare their herres, and shal be sturled in his sight. They that feare the LORDE, kepe his commandement, and shal

11 ¹¹ rather, till they see him self) sayenge: better 12 ¹² is it for me to fall in the hands of γ LORD 13 ¹³ then in the hands of man: for he will mar-14 ¹⁴ me as grasse as he will kill.

The II. Chapter.

3 ³ The children of wisdom are as a cogre-4 ⁴ gation of the righteous, and their 5 ⁵ speech is in obedience and love. These 6 ⁶ are like father to my dear children) and do 7 ⁷ that after that ye may be safe. For the LORD 8 ⁸ will have the father honoured of the chil-9 ⁹ dren, and let it be as a mother commendeth 10 ¹⁰ her children so do he will have it kept. Who 11 ¹¹ so honoureth his father, his sinnes shall be 12 ¹² forgiven him: and he that honoureth his mo-13 ¹³ ther, in like one that gathereth treasure toge-14 ¹⁴ ther. Who so honoureth his father shall ha-15 ¹⁵ ve the life of his own children: when he ma-16 ¹⁶ keth his prayer, he shall be heard. He that ho-17 ¹⁷ noureth his father, shall have a long life: & 18 ¹⁸ he that is obedient for γ LORD & father, his 19 ¹⁹ mother shall have joye of him.

20 ²⁰ He that feareth the LORD, honoureth 21 ²¹ his father and mother, and both them ser-22 ²² ve, as it were unto the LORD himself. Ho-23 ²³ noure thy father in deed, in word and in all 24 ²⁴ patience: that thou mayest have his blessin-25 ²⁵ g. For the blessing of γ father buyeth up 26 ²⁶ the bodies of the children, but the mothers 27 ²⁷ wrath smiteth on the foundations. As a yoke 28 ²⁸ is hard for father in requison, so it is no 29 ²⁹ shame unto the, but a shame. For the roo-30 ³⁰ tinge of a mans father is his own wisdom: 31 ³¹ and where the father is without honou-32 ³² r, is the dishonesty of the sonne. If thy son-33 ³³ ne, make much of thy father in his age, and 34 ³⁴ from him not as long as he liveth. And if 35 ³⁵ he understande thy sayle, have patience to 36 ³⁶ him, & despise him not in thy strength. For 37 ³⁷ the good deed that thou shewest unto thy fa-38 ³⁸ ther, shall not be forgotten: and when thou 39 ³⁹ thy self wastest, it shall be rewarded the 40 ⁴⁰ (even) in thy mothers offence thou shalt be 41 ⁴¹ recompensed with good, yet it shall be found-42 ⁴² ned in the iniquities of men) and in the daye 43 ⁴³ of trouble thou shalt be remembered: thy sy-44 ⁴⁴ nne also shall make a waye, like as the eye in γ 45 ⁴⁵ face maketh a waye.

46 ⁴⁶ He that respecteth his father, shall come to 47 ⁴⁷ honour: & he that respecteth his mother, is cur-48 ⁴⁸ sed of God. If thy sonne, performe γ wordes 49 ⁴⁹ of longme: meken self, so shall thou be loved 50 ⁵⁰ above other men. The greater thou art, the 51 ⁵¹ more humble thy self (in all things) and thou 52 ⁵² shalt synne saved in the sight of God. For 53 ⁵³ grace power belongeth onely unto God, & 54 ⁵⁴ he is the lord of the lowly.

Take not out the things that are above thy capacity, and search not the grounds of such things as are too mighty for thee: but loke what God hath commanded thee, & thinke wpo that alwaye, and be not curious in many of his wordes. For it is not meet full for thee, to see thine eyes, & things that are secret. Make not thou too much search in superfluous things, and be not curious in many of his wordes: for many things are shewed unto the already, which be above γ capacity of men. The meetings with such hard be-gyes many a man, and tangled these wytes in vanitie. To woe that loveth parrell, shall perishe therein.

In hardes heres shall saye much at γ last (and here that groweth too waye, shall use po-sperity: he that is forward of heart, will eneebe the worse and worse.) As much as here shall be laid to γ sonnes, and γ vngodly sinne will beape one sinne upon another. The counsell of the pious hard no health for γ planet of γ sinne shall be reed out in that. The heart of γ hard understanding, shall perceive by things, and a good care will gladly betake unto wisdom. As here that is in γ re-hard understanding, will alwaies from syn-ne, and increase in the wordes of righteousnes. Woe that groweth burninge (ye, & mercy recondeth synne). God hath respect to to him that is charit full: he that setteth upon him against the cyme to come: so that when he shall, he shall finde a stronger holde.

The III. Chapter.

1 ¹ In some, bestrawde not the poore of γ 2 ² his almes, and turne not awaye thy 3 ³ eyes from him that hath need.
4 ⁴ Despise not an hungry soule, and desye not 5 ⁵ the poore in his necessity: yet use the here 6 ⁶ as if he is helpeless, and mischance not 7 ⁷ the eye from γ needfull. It is not the pray-8 ⁸ er of one that is in trouble, and turne not a-9 ⁹ waye thy face from the needy. Cast not thine 10 ¹⁰ eyes after γ poore, & thou shalt find him not 11 ¹¹ occasion to speak a word of thee. See if he com-12 ¹² playne of γ in the bitterness of his soule, his 13 ¹³ prayer shall be heard: but he that is proud, shall 14 ¹⁴ beare him. Be courteous unto γ company of 15 ¹⁵ the poore, humble thy soule unto the elder, & 16 ¹⁶ lower downe: & be as a man of wisdom.
17 ¹⁷ Let it not grieve thee to be as a man of wisdom, 18 ¹⁸ unto the poore, but paye thy debt, and ge-19 ¹⁹ ne them a friendly answer, and γ will enee.
20 ²⁰ Delaye him γ suffereth woe: for γ have 21 ²¹ of γ oppressor, & be not faint hearted: and be 22 ²² free in ending. Be merciful unto γ father-23 ²³ les as a father, & be in stead of an husband.

^a in the portion of the ungodly. A fence was in manspeth fences, and pacifieth the heart in assurance, and a charit full conge will be plentiful in a good man. Godde friends shipe to many, whertheles have but one counsellor of the thowfande.

^b If thou gessist a frende, pacie him first, and be meke as to geue him reverence. For some man is a frende but for a tyme, and to syllocatbe in the daye of srewble. And there is some frende that turneth to enemye, and whith parte agaynst the: and yf he trowne my hart by the, he calleth it out. Agayne, some frende is but a companion at the table, and in the daye of neede he conyrmeth not. But a sure frende will be vnto y asen as thyne councell, and deale faithfully with thy goodde folke. If thou suffer trouble and shuffie, be with the, and yf whith not him fill from the. Departe frō thine enemye, yee and beware of thy frende.

^c A faithfull frende is a strange defence: whō so toucheth such on, findeth a noble treasure. A faithfull frende hath no peare, the might of golde and siluer is not to be compared to the goodnesse of his faith. A faithfull frende is a merchandise of life, and they that seeketh the LORD, shall praise with frende: and as he is himself, so shall his frende be althow some, because doctryne frō thy youth up, shalbe thou fynde wysdome yll thou be old. Go to her as one that plometh, and search, and wyse pacitly for her good fruit. For then shalt thoue but litle labour in hir woode, but thou shalt eate of his frutes right soon. How exceeding sheepe is wysdome to mislead men: an unstedfast body is not to remaine in her. Unto such she is as a leane a touchstone, she casteth her from him in all the heart: for wysdome in thim her name, there be but few that haue knowla of her. (Doe with them that knowe her, the whiche eat vnto y appearinge of God.)

^d One saie (my some) receaue my doctryne, and praye me my counsell. Put thy face in to his lawes, and take his yod upon thy neck: hence beware thy shynoe under her, hear in his pacitly, and be not weery of hir ban. Come vnto her with y whole hart, and kepe her wordes with all thy power. Seke as to her, and she shalbe shewed the: and whā thou hast her, soue te her not. For at the last thou shalt fynde rest in her, and that shal be much to thy greate ioy. When shal his secret be a stronge defence for the, thū yod a fustion layment. For the defence of life is in her, and his bandes are the couplinge together of solaciacion. It is a glorious tyme in it: thou shalt put it on, and the same crowne of glorye shalbe thou weare.

^e My forme, yf thou wilt take hebe, thou shalt haue vnderstande geand yf thou wilt applye y mynde, thou shalt be wise. If thou wilt be me doctore thine eare, thou shalt receaue doctryne: and yf thou daye in hearm ge, thou shalt be wise. Seconde with y multitude of such elocutōs as haue vnderstandunge, and confornt vnto their wysdome with thine heart: thā thou mayest heare all godly sermons, and that the worthy sentence of the peone. And yf thou iust a man o fustite vnderstandinge, geue the soone vnto him, and let thy face create vpon the steppes of his daime. Let thy mynde be vpon the commandementes of God, and because yf o caput is his lawe: so shal he stablish y hart, and geue y wysdome as thine owne desire.

The VII. Chapter.

^a O so euell, so shall there no harme happen vnto the. Departe awaye from the thinge that is wicked, and no my fortune shal meke with the. My sake, some so euell thinge is the fouore of vnihteousnes, so shalt thou not reape the frutes felde. Labo not vnto man for any lord shipe, neither vnto the kynge for the cause of honoure. Justifie not thy self before God: for he knoweth the hart: and desyre so to be reputed to yf in the presence of the kynge. It is a labour to be made a wge, excepte it so were, yf thou couldest mightely put downe wickednes: for yf thou shouldest sidd in aue of y presence of the mugherie, thou shouldest faule in geuynge sentence. Offende not in y multitude of the cite, and put not thy self amonge the people. Wyde a or two synes to geiher, for in one synne shalt thou not be purgished. Saye a or twissh, God will loke vpon the multitude of my obediens, and when y offere to the hyest God, he will accepte it.

^b Doe not sayne hatred whā thou makest y prayer, neither shal y geainge of solmesse. Lough so man so come in the heuynesse of his soule, for God which seeth all thinges: so he that can bunge downe, and see vpo gayne. Accepte not his ynge and yf thy brother, neither do he same agaynst thy frende. Wfene not to make any manner of yf. For the custome therof is not good. Make not many wordes, when thou art amonge the chere: and when thou prayest, make not much baklinge. Let thy laboure be to be to no man the, neither the pigg bandes which the fil-mightie hath created. Make not thy haile in the multitude of thy wisdom, but humble thy selfe from thine hart: and remember that the weath shall not be longe in tattering, and that the vengeance of the flesh of þy vngodly is a very fyre and worme. Be not ouer thy femye for any good, nor thy faithfull brother for the best golde.

C Departe not from a discreete and good man, because he is fallen into the for thy portion in the feare of the LORDE, for þy gift of his honesty is aboute golde. Where as thy seruus am weete thy truly, increase him not euill, nor thy wyllynge that is faithfull vnto the. Loue a discreete seruus as thine owne soule, be fraide him not of his libertie, neither lette him a poore man. If thou haue carell, loke well to thine: and if thy be for thy profit, kepe them. If thou haue sonnes, bringe them vp in mure and lempage, & holde the in a me from their youth up. If thou haue daughters, kepe their body, & shew not thy face to them full towards the. Marry þy daughter, and so shalte thou perfume a weightie matter: be geue he to a man of vnderstanding. If thou haue a wele after thine comynge, forsake her not: (but committe not thy selfe to the harte full.)

Honoure thy father from thy whole herte, and forgette not the: for full trauaile that thy mother had w the: remember that thou wast borne thoro them, and how cost thou recompens them the thinges that they haue done for the: feare the LORDE with all þy soule, & honour his ministers. Done thy matter with all thy strenght, and forsake not his seruantes. Feare the LORDE with all thy soule, & honour his prestes. Seuer the thy portion of the first frutes and increase of þy carth, like as it is commaunded the: geue the of shulders, and that a ppointed offering, and firstlings. Kisse thine hande vnto the poore, that God maye blisse the with plenteousnes. Deliberat vnto all men thy iuge, yett le not but do good euen so them that are deede.

Let not thine thre wepe without cause, but meane with such a manner. Let it not grieue the to wyse thy selfe, for that shal make the to be lowed. What so wur thou rather in hande, committe the ende, and thou shalte neuer do amysse.

The VII. Chapter.

Strye not with a mightie man, lest thou thouseto fall in to his hande. Make no variance w a riche man, lest he happen to bringe vp an hoerde quail against þy. For golde & siluer hath vnderwonne as a man, yett euil þe herde of byng abashe made to fall. Strye not with a man chary of wordes, & laye no fildes upon his feare: he no company with the vndered, lest he use thy eyered an euell reporte. Strife with a man that turneth himselfe away from fyre, and cast him not in the reth withall: he remember þy we are fragile creature. Kysse the scoine of no man in his olde age, for he may olde also. Be not glad of the death of thine enemye, but remember that we must be all the force of us (and sayne wolde we come in to ioye.) Despyse not the seruons of rich men, as thou vnderstandinge, but accompanie thy selfe the myse seruons of them: for if them thou shalt seue wyssdom and the science of vnderstandinge, and how to be greater men with our contemplance.

Go not from þy doctrine of the chere, for they haue larned it of their fathers. For them thou shalt lerne vnderstandinge, so þy thou mayest make answer in þy time of neede. Ryde not þy coales of synners, lest thou be burnt in the fyre: flammes of thei synne. Be sile not the face of the blasphemers, that he laye not wayte for thy mouth. Committe vnto him that to myghtier then thyselfe. If thou sendest him, counte it but leste. Be not sacrilegious þy power: if thou be, then thou ke sile to paye it. Do not co lerne the chere, for he myl indge a cording to his owne honoure. Trauaile not by the wayes þy þy in diuile lesse, lest he do the euill: for he shal loweth his awne misfunes, & so shal the perissh thoro his foly.

Strye not with him that is angry and cruel, and go not with him in euil: for thou shalt be bloude in nothinge in his sight, and where there is no helpe, he shal moue þy. Take no counsell at foolen, for they know nothinge but the thinges that please thair selfe: take no coucell before a stranger, for he canste not tell what thyll come of it. Delyte thine herte in the company of a wode man, lest thou perissh thoro his cursing. Be not full to the, and put the to repose.

The IX. Chapter.

Be not glous over þy wyse of thy lyf some, & she shew not him thine paymer of unchere doctrine: vnto the. Seue not the power of thy lyf vnto a woman, lest she come in þy strenght, and shal be con founde. Loke not vpon a woman that is desirous of many men, lest thou fall into her snare. Ofte not the company of a wode man that is a pharise and blasfeme, for he shal, lest thou perissh thoro his cursing. Be not man mayd, that thou be not hurt in his bonye. Lasse not thy mynde upon harlotrye in any manner of thinge, lest thou destroye both thy self and thine heritage. Go not about gasing in enery layne of the cite, ne ther make thou abode in the streets thereof.

Lasse away thy face from a beaytiful woman, and lode not upon the saynesse of other.

Many a man hath perished thorow the tyme of women, for thow in the daye in tybles thou seest a fyne. An aduercous woman shall be trodden vnder foote as myx, of any one that goeth by the waye. Many a man remembereth the bewtye of a stralige woman, haue bene cast out, for his woordes haued as a fyre. Yett not to another mans wyfe by any meanes, lye not with her open treason, make no woodea rich bye at y^e my wickett thart coust vnto her, y^e for thou with thy bloude fall in to destruction. For saker an olde frinde, for the newe shal no be leuyn.

A new fure to newe women let him be olde, thou shalt dwyne him with pleasure. Wylly not y^e honoure and riches of a wyner, for thou shalt not what bestreccion is for to come vpon him. Delaye moethou in the chon perth the vngedly haue pleasure in: be-liefing that the vngedly shal soe be accepted vnto their graue.

As the stronger man that hath power to slay, fearest thou not to be afraied of death. And yf thou comest vnto him, make no fence, lest he happento take awaye thy life. Remember that thou goest in the myddest of sinners, and vpon the hulme of a y^e cite. Beware of thy neyghbour as myx as thou canst, and meele with soch an beery flood haue vnderstandinge. Lett iust men be thy gette, for thy mych be in the feare of God, let the remembrance of God be in thy mynde, and let all thy talkynge be in the com-mendment of the wyse. In the han-de of a rascall shall the wyse be commendyd, so shal the prynces of the people in the wyse: of their talkynge. A man full of woe is pelson in his cite: and he hath vngenerous and pass shame in his talkyn-ge to be abelid.

The X. Chapter.

Wylle iudge me out by people with discrecion, and where a man of vnderstandinge beareth rule, there goeth he well. The wyse of the people is hys self, wylle he is offi: and let what man of man the ruler of the cite is, such are they that dwell therein also. In many a thinge des-troyth his people, but where they that be in auerence are men of vnderstandinge, there the cite prospereth.

The power of the earth is in the hande of God, and whan his tyme is, he shal see a profurable rule vpon it. In the hande of God is the power of man, and vpon the scythes shal he laye his honoure. A man maye no wronge of thy neyghbour, and meele thou be no unrighteous wykes. Pryde is harte full before God and men, and all wickednes of the earth is to be abhoyred. Because of vngedyeous dealinge, wronge, blasphemies and deuysers disceate, a realme shal be traslared fro one people to another.

There is nothinge moost then a curiouse man. What prydest thou the, o thou curious man, and askest: There is not a more wicked thinge, then to leue moneye. And why? such one hath his soule to sell: yet he be not synche dege thyle he synche.

And though the physician shew his helpe nether so longe, yet in conclusion he goeth after this maner: he daye a yinge, to moun-deed. For whan a man dyeth, he is the byes of prynces, of brastes and wykes. The begynnyng of manye pryde, as to fall awaye from God: and why? his hert is gone from his maker, for pryde is the original of all synne. Who so taketh holde thereof, shal be sylled rich curiouse, and at y^e laste shal ouerthrowe him. Therefore hath the LORDE broughte the congregacions of the wycked to dishonour, and destroyed them vnto the ende.

God hath destroyed the faces of proude prynces, and set vpon the meke in their steade.
God hath withered the rees of the prou-de scythens, and plantyd the lowlye amonge them. God hath ouerthrowne the lordes of the scythens, and destroyed them out of the grounde. The hath caused them to wyther awaye, he hath broughte them to nauyge, and made the memoriall of them to cease from out of the earth. (God hath destroyed the name of the proude, and left the name of y^e humble of synne. Pryde was no meade for mea, neyther moethfulness for meke dwyllers.
The fede of man that seareth God, shal be broughte to honoure: but y^e fede which transgresseth the commandmentes of y^e LORDE shal be shamed. As y^e is the caler amonge bretheren, so holde in honoure amonge them, and be regarded as a fiare the LORDE.

The glory of the rich, of the honorable and of the poore to the feare of God.

Ier. 17. 2

Despyse not thou the iust poore man, and magnifie not þe rich vngodly. Greace is the iudge and vngodly in bond, yet in chere none greater, then he þe faweth God. Vnto þe fawner þat is discrete, shal the frede serue. He that in wyse and well marcoured, wyl not graue to hanbe is reformed, 2 an igne raise body shal not come to honoure. De not proude to do thy woulde, and disparage in the cyme of aduersite. Better to be þe labourer, and hath pleasure in men of all thinges, then he þe is glorious, and wanteth bread.

My sonne, kepe thy soule in meeknes, and geue her hir due honoure. Who shal iustifie him, that synneth agaynst himself: Who and honoure him, hee dishonoureth his owne life: The poore in honour is for his faulshines and wretch, but 2 rich is had in respect because of his gooden. He that rebuketh himself honestly in pouerte, hee much more shal he beuote himself honestly in riches: And who so rebuketh himself vnhonestly in riches, how much more shal he beuote himself vnhonestly in pouerte.

The XI. Chapter.

He wyrdome of him þe in broughte lowe, shal lift up his heade, and shal make him to sye amonge greace men. Commende not a man in his berweye, nether despyse a man in his utter apperance. The Deu is but a small beast amonge the foules, yet in his strength exceedinge. De not proude of thy myghte, and exalte not thyself in the daye of thy honoure: for þe workes of the hystorye enely are wonderfull: yee glorious, secretes and unknowne are his workes. Many tyrannies haue bene sayne to sye downe vpon the earth, 2 vniuersally hath wome 2 crowne. Many a yinghe me haue bene broughte lowe, and the honorable haue bene dyscreet in 10 other mens handes. Condemne no man, before thou haue tryed out the matter: and when thou hast made enquisition, then reforme righteously. Geue no sentence before thou hast herde the cause, but first let men tell out their tales.

Steyne not for a matter that cometh not thy self, and stonde not in the iudgement of synners. Wyllyonnable not much many matters: 2 yf thou wylt be rich, thou shalt not gete it: and though thou canst 4 waye a soue, yet shalt thou not escape. There is some man that laboureth, and the more he meritieth himselfe, he lesse he hath. Agayne, some man in sleuth shall hynne be of helpe, wretch stryde, and hath greace pouerte, and Gods eye looketh vpon him to good, si tress him vpon from his true estate, and liffeth up his heade, so that many men maye see his honoure before vnto God.

Prosperite and aduersite, list and banke, pouerte and riches come all of the Lord. Wyrdome, marcoure and knowledge of his lawe are with God: and 2 some of god are with him. Greace and banke are made for synners: and they that graue themselves in euill, waye olde in euill. The gift of God remaineth for the righteous, and is good wyl shal geue prosperite for euer. Some man is rich by wynges myghte, and in the portion of his reward, and the hystorye: now haue I geuen rest and none of it: see and bynt of my goodes myselfe. And yet hee conserueth not, that the me dwelleth nye, þe he must leaue all that he gotten vnto other men, and by himselfe. Some thou fast in thy conseruance, and exalt thyselfe, and remaine in the wretchednes age. Contrayne not in the wretchednes of synne, but pue thy trust in God, and byt in thine estate: for it is but an easy thinge to fyght with God, to make a poore man rich, and that bynt. The blessing of God heareth in the worde of the righteous, and maketh his ten founte in floushy and prosperite. Seie we what helpe it me: and what shal I haue of myghte? Agayne, seie not: I haue weete how can I wanne? When thou art in miserie, forget not a duersite: and when thou art not well with the, haue a good hope, that shal be better. For it is but a small thinge to God, in the daye of death to remember a mans condyng to his waye. The wretchednes of an houre maketh one to forsake all asure, and when a man dyeth, his wretchednes is decreased. Prayse no body before his death, for a man shal be knowne in his doctour. Burye not euery man in the bone hole: for the discreetfull layeth awaye himselfe as an party in a maunde, so is the moste he proude: and life as a spyte that cometh vpon the fall of his neigbbo. For he wyl good vnto euill, and shal stande the dyle. Of one spate is made a greace fyre, 2 in godly man layeth awaye for blame. Beware of the discreetfull, for he maye be wretched thinges, to bringe þe in to a personall shame. If thou to fast an alittle vnto 2 þe hystorye: the in vniuersall men, and byt the firste thinge more waye.

The XII. Chapter.

Can thou wylt do good, then when thou bestir, 2 so shal thou be greatly thanked for thy benefite.

¹² ¹³ Do goe vnto the righteous, and thou shalt finde grate reward: though not of him, yet of him that the LORD him self shall reward thee. He fiddeth not in a good cause, that is alway occupied in well, & geueth no almes: for the self hatred the sinners, and hath mercy vpon them that shew the wordes of repentance. Goe thou vnto such as feare God, and receaue not a synner: As a fute the vngodly and synners, he shall accompanie thou geest vnto them, and kepe them to the daye of wrath. Goe thou vnto the good, and receaue not the synner: do well vnto him that is lowly, but geue not to the vngodly. Let not the bird be gien him, that he is not myghter then thy self thetyn. For so shal thou receaue thy self as much enell, in all the good that thou dost vnto him. And whyt the self hatred synners, and shal receaue vengeance to the vngodly.

¹⁵ Dync not two synnes together, for the one shal not be unpunished. Who wil haue pence of the charmer, that is stunged of a serpent, or of all such as come nye a beast? Let sit to be him that keepeth company with a wicked man, a lappeth him self in his synnes. A season wil be byde to the, but yf thou fumble, betwixt not. An enemy is swete in his lips, he can make many wordes & speake many good thinges: Yet he can wepe to his eye, but in his heart he ymagyneth, how to thorne the in to the pyre: & yf he maye finde oportunitie, he wil not be satisfied w blabbe. If aduersite come vpon the, thou shalt fynde him there firste though he pteueth to do yf helpe, yet shal he not come to thee. He shal shake his heade, & clape his handes out: for very gadence, & while he maketh many wordes, he shall dysguyse his countenance.

¹⁶ ¹⁷ So so deureth pitch, shal be fylled with ball, and he that is simple of yf proude, shal clothe himself with

preye. He catcheth a borthen vpon him, that accompaneth a more honorable man then him self. Therefore kepe no familiarity with one that is richer then thy self. How agree the beell the poore together: for yf a one be synner in a gaynst the other, it shal be too late. The rich dealeth vnrighteously, & the teacher withall: one that poore thinge o passifed and vngraciously deale withall, fasteneth fear censure, & geureth fawne wordes. If thou be so: his poore, he wyl the bar yf thou haue nothinge, he shal forsake the. So longe as thou hast any thinge of thine owne, he shal be a good fellowe with the: Yet he shal make the a bare man, and not be fery to the. If he haue neede of the, he shal desirde the: (with a pteuyn mod) shal he put the in an hope, and geure the all good wordes, and saye not at wnter the: Thou shal be shame in his meate, wntill he haue suppe the cleane ap tyme or thyse, and at the last shal be lough the to soone. Afterwarde, whan he seeth that thou hast nothinge, he shal forsake the, and shake his heade at the.

¹⁹ (How much thou hearest his wordes, make the as though thou wast in a dream, & wake vp. Love God all thy life longe, & call vpon him in thy neede.) Every beast leueth his life, even so let every man leue his myghthoure. All flesh, wyl reforme to their life, and every man wyl kepe company with such as he is himself. Be as a wolf agaynst with the lambe, so doth the vngodly with a righte one. What fellowship shal an holy man haue with a dogg? How can the ryght and the poore agree together? The wode asse is the hyane pray in the wilderness, even so are poore men the meate of the ryght. Life as the prede maye not agree with lowlynes, even so doth the riche adhoue the poore. If a rich man fall, his friends see him up again: but when the poore falleth, his friends forsake him. If a rich man fall in to an straits, he hath many helpers: he speaketh proudly, and yet men justify him.

But if a poore man go wronge, he is punished: yet though he speak wisely, yet can he have no place. When the rich man speaketh, every body holdeth him in awe: and loke what he sayeth, every man paye is unto the cloud. But if a poore man speak, they say: What selow is thou? and if he do amysse, they shal beate hym. Riches are good unto him that hath no synne in his conscience, and pouerte is a reueling thinge in the mouth of the ungodly. The heart of man chaungeth his countenance, whether it be in good or euill. A chearfull countenance is a robe of a good bett, for he do it an hardy thinge to knowe the thought.

Asked is the man, what he hath not fulfill with 3 wordes of his mouth, and is not paided with the conscience of synne. Happie is he that hath had no heurmes in his mynde, and is not fallen from his hope. He becommeth woe a carcerous man and a mygarde, to be requered what shulde a mygarde be woth golde? He chat with all his carefulnes hea peth together unrighteously, rathereth for other folk, and another man shal make good there with his good. He 3 is wised unto him self, how shal he be good unto other men? Some can saye one haue any pleasure of his goodnes: There is no chynne woth, then when one dissaouret himself, 2 this is a reward of his wickednes. If he do any good, he doeth it not knowinge thereof, and so gaynst his will, and at the last he beclareth his ungraciousnes. A mygarde hath a wicked eye, he turneth away his face, and despiseth his owne soule. A carcerous mans eye hath neuer tyngh in the prison of wickednes, untill the tyme that he wyth away, and haue lost his owne soule.

But a wicked eye sparath bred, 2 there is scarcenesse vnto his table. If thy sonne do goeth to 3 self, as if thou hast 2 gaue 3. L O R D E his doe offerings. Remember 3 death cariet not, 2 how 3 the countenance of the graue is shewed vnto thee: for the countenance of this world shal bye the death. Doe good vnto 3 friends before thou bye, and so cominge to thy obliue reach not thine hande, and geue vnto 3 poore. Be not dispaured of 3 good daye, 2 let not 3 pious of 3 good daie enurpae the. Shale thou not leaue thy treasure and labours vnto other men? In the daye of the heretage geue and take, and leaue thy soule. Wote thou righteousnes before thy death, for in 3 hell there is no mercede synne. All synners shal face a wage like grass, 2 like a flouthinge leafe in a grone, and when growe, some are cast downe: euen so in 3 generation of flesh and blood: one cometh to an ende, another is borne.

All transitory thinges shal faile with last, and the worker thereof shal go weale. Every chosen worke shal be iustified, and in 3 meekly man shal haue honoure. In 3 blessed is the man 3 respect him in wisdom, and respecteth himself in understandinge, 2 with discretion shal he be rich: wote the secret knowledge of God. Which consisteth of wayes of wisdom in his heart, hath understandinge in his creature, goeth after her: as one that seeketh her oyle, 2 cometh in his wayes. He looth in ac his wisdom, 2 harkeneth at his doos: he catcheth his net beside his house. 2 strengtheneth his state in his walle: he shal pitch his tent nye vnto his hande, and in his tent shal good things rest for euermore: he shal see his dynon bet her coneringe, 2 shal dwell vnder his barmes. Under his coneringe shal he be defended from the heate, and in his glory shal he rest.

The XV. Chapter.

God that seareth God, will be good: and 3 who so respecteth the 3, shal open 3 wisdom. As an honorable mother shal she mate him, and as a wyfe shal she receaue him. With 3 head of life and wisdom standinge shal she se 3, and geue him the water of thy oldome wisdom to drinke. If he be constant in her, he shall not be annoyed: and if he holde him fast by her, he shall not come to confusion. She shall tynge him to honoure amonge his neighbours, and in the myddest of the congregation shal she open his mouth. With the spere of wisdom and understandinge shal she fill him, and clothe him with the garment of glory. She shal breake the treasure of myrrour vnto 3, and geue him an everlastinge name in heretage. 3 foolish men will not take iohs vpon her, but such as haue understandinge, will receiue her: for she is farr from pride and disceate. If thou shal geue aboute with 3, and wote remember her: (but men of woth shal be founde in her, men vnto the beholdinge of God.) prouise is not farr in the mouth of 3 ungodly, for he is not farr of 3 L O R D E son of God commeth wisdom, & the prayer shall please by the wisdom of God, and shall be precious in a faithfull mouth, and the LORDE shall geue her vnto him.

- B Saye not thou: It is the LORDES fauour that I am gone by, for thou shalt not do y things that God hateth. Sin ye not thou: he hateth such me to go wronge, for he hateth no more of the vngodly. God hateth all abhominacion of errorre, & the which feare God will not so do. God made man from the beginnyng, & left him in the hande of his counsell. He gaue him his commaundmentes and preceptes: yf thou wilt obserue the commaundmentes, & kepe a ceptable such things forever, they shall preserue y. He hateth in man and fyre before the reach out thine hande vnto which thou wilt. Before man is left in weath, good and euill: loke what him pleaseth, shall be geuen him. For the wisdom of God is grace and mightie in power, and it becometh all men continually. The eyes of the LORDE are vpon them that feare him, and he knoweth all the workes of man. He hateth commaund no man to do vngodly, nether hath he geuen any man leue to synne.

The XVII. Chapter.

- Asketh not thou in the multitude of vngodly children, and haue no pleasure in them, yf they feare not God.
Trust not thou in their life, and regard not their labour: for one same y feareth God is better, the a thousande vngodly. And better is for a man to dye with out chylde, the to leaue behynde him such children as are un-godly. For by one y hath vnderstandinge, maye a whole cite be upholden, but though the vngodly be many, yete shall it be wasted throughe them. Many such thinges hath my-ne eyes seen, and greater thinges then these have I herde with myne eares. In the congregation of the vngodly shall a fyre burne, to consume vnfaythfull people shall the wrath be kindled.

- The old bygginges opyned no grace for their synne, which were destroyed, trustyn-g to their owne strength. Neither spared he them, among whom loth was a straunge man: more than an abhorred them because of the pride of their workes. He had no pite vnto them, but destroyed all the people, that were so stout in synne. And for so much an he destroyed, more the fyre hardeneth them: sinners gathered them selues together in y hardnesse of their heart: it were marvell yf one bygginge hardneded, shulde he fyre. For more & more is with hym: in doeth mygtie to forsake, and ce poore our discomfite.

Like as his mercy is greace, and so is his panyshment also, he indurgeth a man according to his workes. The vngodly shall not escape in his spayle, and the longe patience of him the: the which mercy, shall not byde long.
All mercy shall make place in euery man according to the deservynge of his workes, (and after the vnderstandinge of his pynge manage.)

Saye not thou: I will hyde my self from God, for who will thinke vpon me from abo-uer? I shall not be knowne in so greace a be-ge of people, for what is my soule amonge so many creatures? Beholde the heauen, yete the heauen of heauens, the depe, the earth and all that therein is, shall be moued at his presence: the mountains, the hilles and the foundacions of the earth shall shake for feare, when God wynteth them. These thinges both no here vnderfonde, but he vnderstandeth euery hart, and who vnderstandeth his workes? No man seeth his forme, and the most parte of his workes are secret. Who will declare the workes of his righte consilio?
Or: who shall be able to abyde them? for the covenant is farre from some, and the cryn-ge out of men is in the fulfillingge. He that is in trouble of heart, trusteth vpon such thing-es, but an vnwyse and enuious man cast-eth his mynde vnto so silly thinges.

My sonne, herken thou vnto me, & let me vnderstandinge, and marke my wordes with thine here: I will geue the a sure doctrine, & plainly shall I instructe the. God hath set his workes in good order from the beginn-ge, and parte of them hath he shewed from the other. He hath garnished his workes from euery synge, and their bygginges ac-cordinge to their generacions. None of the hyndered another, rather was any of them disobedient vnto his worde. I feer this, God looked vnto the earth, and fylled it with his goodnes. With all maner of synge beasten hath he covered the grounde, and they all shall be turned vnto earth agayne.

The XVII. Chapter.

Ad shepeman of the earth, and the ned him vnto earth agayne. He gane hym the nombre of dayes and certaine tyme, yete and gaue him power of the thinges that are vnto earth. He clothed him with strength, and made him a fter his owne liknesse. He made all fleshy to stande in awe of him, so that he had the domynion of all beastes & foules. He made out of him an helper like vnto himself, and gaue them discrecion and tonge, eyes and eares, and a heart to vnderstande, and fylled them with vnderstandinge. He created for them also the knowledge of the space, fylled their hearts with vnderstandinge, and shewed them good and euill. He set his eye vpon their hee ad, bestowing vnto them his greatesse and noble woorde: that they shoulde prayse his hie name together, reioyse of his wondrous, & be willinge of his noble ocea. Before this, he gaue them instruction, and the lawe of li fe for an heritage. He made an euelllastinge covenante with them, and shewed them his raghesnesse & indignance. They saw his glory with their eyes, and his care heards the maiesty of his voyce. And he saide vnto them: Beware of all mightie chinges, for great euerie man also a commaundment concerninge his neighbour.

B Their wails are euer before him, and are not hid from his eyes. He hath set a ruler vpon euerie people, but Israel is of LORDES position. All their wails are as the Soune in y sight of God, & his eyes are alwayes lo kyng vpon their wayes. All their vni ghteousnesse are manifest vnto him, & all their wickednesse are open in his sight. The mercy of a man there is as he were a pearsle in him, and a mans good oede preferreth him as the apple of an eye. A chelast shall he awake, & remember euerie man vpon his heade as he hath deserued, and shal turne them to greebe in to the nechermoste partes of the earth. But vnto them that wil repent, he hath gent the wayes of righteousness. As for such as be weake, he comforteth the, suffreth them, and fildeth them the poison of y ve ene. He turne them vnto the LORD, for he the yfynne, make thy prayer before the LORD, do the leste offence, come agayne vnto the LORD, forsaith thine vnghteousnesse, be an euer enemy to abhominacion for to knowe the righteousness and indignance of God, stonke in the poison that is set forth for the z en the prayer of the most hye God. As in to the poison of the holy word, with such as be lyinge and geue thanks vnto God.)

A Who wil prayse the LORD in the hell: Although thou me the euer of the vngodly, but geue him thanks before death. As for y deeth, and fulnesse passeth from him as nothinge. Geue thou thanks in thy life, for while thou art lyinge & noble shal thou geue thanks, and prayse God and reioyse in his mercy. O how grate is the loyngs & pson offe of the LORD, and his mercifull goodnes vnto such as come vnto him: In all thinges maye we be in maner whyle the sonne of man is not immortal, and he had pleasure in the vantage of wickednesse. What is more cleareth the Soune yet shal a se le. O what a more woful, the more they that sly and bloude hath ymagined: as that same shall be repored. The LORD seeth the power of the hye heaues, and setteth the earth and all thinges.

The xviii. Chapter.

E He hath such for euer, made all chinges together. God only is righte, & euerie man a wickednesse for euer. Who shalbe able to expelle the wroites of him? Who hath fought out the ground of his noble actus? Who shal deale the power of his greatnesse? Who shal take vpon him to tell out his mercy: As in the wroite of his wroite of y LORD, then maye nothinge be taken from them, whiche maye be put vnto them, neither maye the ground of them be founde out. As when a man hath done his best, he must beginne agayne, and when he hath done his best, he must beginne an ende, he must be agayne to his labour. What is man? What is he worth? What good or euill can be do? The number of his maines dayes be almost an hundred years, is moe.

Like as the droppe of rays are vnto the se, and as a grauel stone is in comparison of the sonne: so are the few years vnto the dayes euelllastinge. Therefore is of LORD paciencie much vnto them, and pouerth out his mercy vpon them. He saue and preserue the thoughtles and ymaginacions of their heart, that they were euill: then for heaue vp his mercifull goodnes vpon them, and sheweth them the waye of righteousness. The mercy that a ma hath, reacheth to his neybour: but y mercy of God is vpon all flesh. He chastiseth, he teacheth and nurtureth thee as a shepherde turneth agayne his flock, so doth he all them that are vnto the tenyng, nurture and becomen. Who shal be vnto them, that stande in awe of his indignance.

Why some, when they see good, maketh no geadinge at it: on what se can the grass, speake no discomfutable wroite. Shal not the dew coole the heat? Shal not the water better then a gift? Is not a goodly wroite a good honest gift? But a gracefull man geareth them both. A foie shal out of man in the reche, and that conghly, & a gift of the hye god putteth out y eye. With gent warrynge and to reproue, then to heare well wyl: for he that knowlegeth him self openly, shalbe preserved from hurt and destruction. Like so when a cham be layne the rove desyre and lust do fylle a man then, such so is it with him that useth violence and unrighteousnes in y^e lawe: (How good a thing is it, a man y^e is reproued, to styre open by his repentance: for so shal he then escape wylfull synne.)

Some man keepeth silence, and is fouthe wyl: but he that is not ashamed what he sayeth, is hatefull. Some man holdeh his tongue, because he hath not the understandinge of the language: and some man keepeth silence, to wyng a commendement tyme. A wyse man wyl helde his tongue tyl he se oportunitie, but a wanton and an vn discrete body shal regrete no tyme. He that useth many wordes, shal haue his erone soule: and he that taketh an otheate vps him vnrighteous ly, shalbe hated.

Some man hath ofte tymes prosperite in wicked chaunge: Agayne some man getteth moche and dath harme and losse. There is some gift that is nothinge worth: Againe, there is some gift, w^{ch} oft remaue is bubble. To some man getteth a fall for boyng to proude, and some cometh to walships from lawe estate. Some man bieth moche for a litle payce, and most paye for ie siuenfolde.

A wyse man with his warden maketh him self to be loued, but the fame of foolles shalbe pouced out. The gift of the enuyse shal do the no good, for his eyes are senten folde. He shal geue lye, and saye he gaue moche. He openeth his mouth and crieth out, as it were one that crieth out wyne. To daye he lendeth, tomorrow he axeth it agayne, and such a man is to be hated. The fool sayeth: I haue no frende, I haue no chaunce for all my good dedes: yet when they that race my bierd, speake of good of me. How oft, and of how many shal he be laughed to scorn. He taketh a moue perous fall by such wordes, that yf he fell upon the grounde: euen so shal the fallen of wicked men come haile ly. In the mouth of him that is vnauaighr, are many vncomentment and vntime wordes. A wyse sentence shall not be alourd at the mouth of the fool, for he speaketh it not in due season.

Some man smyth me, because he hath not wherewithall, and in his self he shal be stynged. Some man there is that desireth his owne soule with shame, and for an vnwylle bodye saide desireth he it, and with acceptinge of personnes shal he mislike himself. Some man prometh his frendship for very shame, and getteth an enemy of him for naught. A lyer is a mischief to a man, yet shal he be euer in the mouth of the enuyse. A thefe is better, then a man that is a castomid to synne, but they both shal haue destruction to heritage. The condicions of lyers are to themselves, and they haue to euer with them.

A wyse man shal byngre himselfe by more with his wordes, and he that hath no understandinge shal be seer by amonge great men. He that sylleth his londe, shal inuade his heape of come: he that worketh not as a sinner, shall be rebuked, and he that playeth great man, shal escape moche euill. A wanton and gyses bynne the eyes of the wyse, and make him denime, that he can not see their fauours. Wyddome be wylle, and treasure that is hoorded up, what profit is in them both? Better is he that keepeth his ignorance secrete, then a man that sheweth his wysdome.

Men, yf thou be afflicted, be it not more: but praye for thy synners, that they maye be for geuen thee. Ye from synne, euen as from a serpent for yf thou comest to nye her, she will bite thee. The wrath ther of aee as the ray of a lyon, to slaye the foules of men. The midde men of man is an a sharpe two edged sword, which maketh such woundes that they can not be healed.

Strife and wrongeous dealinge shall waile awaye a mans goodnes, and thou mayest a rich house shalbe brought to nought for the riches of the proude shal be reuoced out. The prayer of the poore geeth one of the mouth, and cometh vnto the earne, and his righteousness (or defence) shall come, and yf hailely. Who is a barer to be reuoced, it is a token of an vnweethly person: but he that feareth God, wyl remane his frend. A myghtie man is knowne a farre of by his courage, but he that hath understandinge, praueth that he shal haue a fall.

Who so buyleth his house with stone and cofe, is like one that gathereth flour in a wynter. The congregacion of the vnweethly is like stubble gathered together, that vnto is a flame of fyre. The wrath of the goddly is faste much storme, but in their owne is hell, backnes, and payne, he that keepeth the lawe, wyl be faste the true hinge thereof, and the ende of the feare of God is wysdome. He that is not wyse, wyll not be caught in goodde: the unwyse man knoweth is not of chace: and wherby eter-nall life is, there is no understandinge. The know-lage of the wyse shall flowe like water that runneth over, and his counsell is like a fountayne of life.

C The hert of a foole is like a broken vessel, he can kepe no wysdome. When a man of understandinge heareth a wyse worde, he shal commende it, and make much of it. But if an unskilful man heare it, he shall have no pleasure therein, but cast it behynde his backe. The callynge of a foole is like as he is bidden by the waye: but to heare a wyse man speak, it is a pleasure. Where a donke is in the congregation, it is ased at the mouth of the wyse, and they shal ponde his wordes in their hertes. Like as a house that is destroyed, euen so is wysdome unto a foole: As for the knowledge of the unwyse, it is like a broken vessel. Do curreme into him that hath no understandinge, euen as a scarer a beere his see, and like a manacles vpon his right hande. A foole listeth vp his voyce as a lute, but a wyse man shall scarce laugh at him.

D A curreme is unto a wyse man as Terrell of golde, and like an armylet vpon his right arme. A foolish mans force is to one as his neighbour house, but one that hath experience, shall be ashamed at the personne of his mightie. A foole wyll pepe is at of myndoun to the house, but he that is well inward, wyll stande with out. A foolish man standeth hert in synde at the doore, but he that is wyse, wyll be ashamed.

The toppes of the unwyse wyll be callynge foolish chynge, but of wordes of such as haue understandinge, shal be weyed in the balance. The hert of fooles is in their mouth, but the mouth of the wyse is in their hert.
When the ungodly cuseth the blasphemer, he is cuseth his awne soule. A pious accuser of other men shal be fyre his owne soole, and be hated of euery man: (but he that repress his tongue and is discrete, shall come to ho-noure.)

The xxxij. Chapter.

A Sheweth full body is moulded of a stone of clauie: that toucheth him, must make him bad as agayne. A mystrye and science is the dishonoure of the father.
A foolish daughter shal be little regarded. A wyse daughter is an heretie unto her husband: she that curremeth to by honesty, hathgeth hir father in heuynes. A daughter that is past shame, dishonoureth both hir father & hir husband: she ungodly shal regard to her, but they both shal despise her. The playeigne of a mystrye is not more where beuynes is, euen so is the curreme to curreme of wyse dome euer unpleasant unto foole.

Who so teacheth a foole, is euen as one that gleweth a posserbe together: as one that telleth a taylor to him that heareth him not, and as one that sayeth a man out of an heavy slepe. Who so telleth a foole of wysdome, is euen as a man, which speaketh to one that is a slepe. Who he hath tolde his taylor, he is as a man in the matter: Who one byeth, lamentacion is made for him, because the highe sayeth him: and so let me mourne ouer a foole, for he wanteth understandinge. What is but little weeping because of the deede, for he is come to rest: but the life of the foole is worse then the deathe. Seven dayes do men mourne for him that is dead, but the lamentacion ouer the unwyse and ungodly shal be euen all the dayes of thier life.

Take not much with a foole, and go not with him that hath no understandinge. Beware of him, lest it turne the to cruellite, & thou shalt not be defiled with his synne. Depart from him, and thou shalt fynde rest. & thou shalt not be drawe back in to his foolishnes.
What is heavier then lead? And what shal be a foole he called els, but lead? Gode, saith that a lype of yron is easier to beare, then an unwyse, foolish, and ungodly man. Like as the band of woodd bounde together in the foundacion of the house can not be loosened, euen so saith: with y here y is established in y thoughte of good cell. The thoughte of the wyse, shal na-ther feare nor be offended at any curreme.

Like as a fayre playstred wall in a winter house, & an hye buyldinge, maye not abyde y winde & storme: euen so is a foole here as a ston in his ymaginacion: he feareth at euery thing that cometh agaynste him. He that nyppeth at mans eye, by nyppeth forth teares: and he that pouerteth the hert, bringeth forth y meanyng of thoughte. Who so cuseth a ston at the bynde, prayeth them a newe: he y blaspheme meth his frende, heareth y frende: though thou bearest a swerde at thy frende, yet thou partest not: for thou mayest come agayne to y frende. If he speaketh secretly, feare not, for ye maye be agreed together agayne: excepte it be so that thou blaspheme him, bypdayne him, open his secretes, and woe to him that reareth: for all such chynge shal dye a newe a frende.

E The faithfull unto & neyghbs in his power re, that thou mayest reioyse with him also in his prosperite. And he shal fast vnto him in tyme of his trouble, that thou mayest be hey-erth him in his heretage. Like as the vapor vnto smoke goeth out at the oven before & sy-re, euen so smelle woode, rebekes and thea-renyng go before bloodsheddinge. Be not ashamed to defende & frende as for me, I wyl not hyde my face from him, though he shoul-de be my harme. Who so euer heareth it, shal be wote of him. Who shal see a watch before my mouth, & a sine scale vpon my lippen, & I fall not vnto the. & I my tonge destroye me not.

The xxxij. Chapter.

LORDE, father and gouernour of my life, leave me not in thair ymagi-nacion & counsell. Oh leeme not fall in soch reprofe. Who wyl kepe my thought with & George, and the doctrine of wysdome in myne herte, that he spare not myne ignorance, that I fall not with them, lest my re ignoraunce in case, that myne offences be not many in nombre, and that my synnes exceede a count. I fall before myne offences, and so my aduersary reioyse. O LORD, thou father & God of my life, leave me not in thair ynginacion. O let me not be as a proude loke, but turne a waye all vnlapennesses from me. Take for me the lustice of the body, let not the desires of unclennes take hold vpon me, and geue me not ouer into an vnshame-fast and obsequious mynde.

Hearke me o ye children. I will geue you a doctrine, how ye shal ordeine y^e mouth: who so spech it, shal not perishe, thow his lip-pen, nor be hurt thow is wretched woordes (As for the synner, he shal be taken in his owne wordes, he that is proude and carful, shal fall therin.) Let not thy mouth be accustomed with swearing, for in it there are many falles. Let not the naminge of God be comen vnto in y^e mouth: for like as a seruante which is oft porsweth can not be without some sore, euen so who so euer he be y^e sweareth and nামে God, shal not be cleane poured frō synne. As man that vsch much swearing, shal be filled with wickednes, and the plague shall neuer go from his house. If he begye his brother, his fader shal be vpon him: yf he be wote in his synne, he maketh a bubble offence: and yf he sweare in vayne, he shall not be founde righteous, for his house shal be full of plagues.

The woordes of y^e swearer bringeth death (God graunte y^e it be not founde in the house of Jacob.) But they y^e feare God, eschue all soch and lye not twelinge in synne. Thow y^e mouth to vnbonde and flychye talke, for it is the woode of synne. Remember father and thy mother, who thow art in amonge greates men, lest God forgiue y^e in sight, and lest y^e doinge in thy custom, suffer rebuke, and myghte not to haue bennyng, and so ease the daye of thy namour. The man that is accustomed with the woode of blasphemy, wyl neuer be reformed all y^e dayes of his life. To synne wyse is to moche, he the churche bringeth wraoth and displeasure.

In whiche synne cannot be quenched (as like a burninge fyre) tyl it be consumed wth sunshyne: and so an vnchaste man hath rest in his flesh, tyl he haue synned a fyre.

All bled is swete to an whoremonger, he wyl not leaue of, tyl he haue his purpose. A man that breakech wedlocke, & regardeth his soule, but sayeth: Tush, who seeth me, am compassed, aboute with badnes, he wyl leaue me, no body seeth me: when necesse I so feare. The y^e yet wyl not remember his synne. (He understandeth not his eyes shal all thynge, for all synners are doynted & woe the feare of God, from whiche for he feareth onely the eyes of man, and considereth not that the eyes of the LORD are cleaue then the Sonne, beholding all y^e wayes of men and the grombe of the depe, and loyng euen mennes hertes in some places. The LORD God knoweth all thynge euer they were made, and after they it becometh to passe, as he be looke vpon them all. The same man shal be openly punished y^e serues of y^e cite, and shal be chafed alwaies like a yonge hoise foale: and when he be toucht vpon it, he shal beate. Thow shal be put to shame of fevry man, becaus he wol be not vnderstande the feare of the LORD.
And thow shal it go also wth every wylde wch his husbande, & geareth charyte as by a strange marriage. First, she hath in synfull wth to the one of y^e synners dily, she hath forsaken hir owne husbande thowly, she hath playd y^e whoremonger tray, & geareth hit childe by another man, she shal be broughte out of y^e cōgregation, and hit childe shal be leted up. If hit childe shal later out as for synne, hit husbande shal geue synne. As synners fall repute, shal leave behynde her, & hit husbande shal put out. And they y^e commaune, shal knowe there is nochyng better, the y^e feare of God y^e there is nochyng sweeter, then to take hit vnto the commandementes of the LORD.
A greates worshippe is it to folowe the LORD.

for longe life shalbe receaved of him.
The XXXIII. Chapter.

When shall pro ye herself, & be ho-meared in God, & euerie in y myn-dest of his people. In the congrega-cion of the chylde shal the open her mouth, to triumph in y beholynge of his power: In y myndest of hir people shal she be called, & mentid on in the holy subscryp. In the myndest of the doctyn she shalbe commended, & amonge such as be blessed she shalbe praised, & shal saye: I am come out of the mouth of y chylde, first borne before all creaures. I caused y light y sayeth noon, & ary-se in the heauen, & couered all the earth as a dome. My dwellinge is as house is y chylde, & my laces in the piler of the cloude. I my self alone haue gone rounde aboute the compasse of heauen, & penevred the grounde of y depe. I haue walkid in the feldes of y fe, these feldes in all landes: my demynion is in every people and in every nacoon, & with my power haue I crodded downe the herdes of all best byre and lome.

In al these thynges also I songhe rest, & dwellinge in some theretauntes. So y creaid of all thynges gaue me a commaundement to be as made me, & ppoynced me a tisherade, and fild me: Let thy dwellin ge be in Jacob, and thy inheritaunce is y Israhel: thou thyself omoge my chesen. I was a man from the begynnyng, and before the worlde, & shal not leaue of vnto the worlde to come. Jo the holy habitacion haue I ser-ued before him, and so was I stablished in Bos. In y holy cite rested I in like maner, & in Jerusalem was my power. I caused to be an honorable people, even in the porton of y LORDE: is his heretage, & keppe me in y fildes of the sayntes. I am set up an hyl like a Cedar vpo Libanus, & as a Cypress tre in the portonment Hermon: I am exalted like a palm tre in Aboes, & as a rose plant in Jerusalem: I am as a sycke olyue tre in the fildes, & as a calash plant in a plantayne tre by the water fildes. I haue geuen a smell in the fildes, no y Cinnamon and Balsam, that hath so good a savor: yet a fildes odore haue I geuen, as it were Myrrour of the best.

I haue made my dwellinge so smell as in wrecce of ysfyn Balsamum, of Clowes and Jacinth, & as Libanus when it is not beate downe, & thus odore is as the pure Balsam.
As the Tree byme haue I stretched out my bunches, and my bunches as are the brome of honoure and lounge souers. As y pne haue I broughte forth y fildes of a sweete sauour, & as my floures are y fildes of bond and edgys. I am the mother of banyer, of flous, of fildes, of knowlege, & of holy hope. In me is all grace of life and tract: In me is all hope of life and wrecce. O come vnto me, all ye that be despoiled & fild, and fill your selues with my frutes: for my frutes is sweet when bonny, & so is my inheritaunce more than the hony comberthe: remembrance of me in dwellinge is as euermore. They that are my shal haue the more hangar: and they that are dwyn-ke me, shal chylde the more. Who so herkeneth vnto me, shal not come to confusyon and they that make in me, shal not offend.

They that make me to be knowne, shal haue euerlastinge life.

All these thynges are the boke of Isai, the couennance of the chylde, & the knowlege of the trouth. In those commaundes the same in the peccates of synners: for in the exange vnto the house of Jacob, and comitred y prouerbes vnto Israhel. Out of Iouda his fr wrote. He ordered to traile up a most myght kinge, ymynge is the fildes of heuene for euermore. The fildes with wysdome like as the fildes of Philon, & as y fildes of E-gris, when the new frutes be a growynge.

The bringeth a pleneuous underfoun-ge, like a Superture: shalch is up, no Iouda in the rime of harach. This matter namd beate forth as the hyge, & as the water Gi-han in y baruch. The fildes hath not knowen her perfectly, nor more shal she laste out y grounde of her. For in thought is full the the see, and her counsell is y profounder then the greates depe.

I wysdome haue cast out floures, I am as a greates waterbroke out of y ruer. I am as the ruer Doni, & as a water condyte om I come out of the garden of pleasure.
I saye: I wy water the gardes of my yonge plantes, and fill the fildes of my bych. So my waterbroke became exceddinge greates, and my ruer appoched vnto the see. For I made doctryne to be vnto all me as hyge as the saye monynge, and I shal made as be vnto the cleare. I will pearse thow all the lower partes of the earth. I will lode vpon all such as be a slepe, and lighten all the theaunt: their anst in the LORDE. I shal yet poure out doctryne, like a prophete, and leane it vnto such as be a fildes of myssome, and their generacions shal I neuer fild, vnto the holy euerlastinge worlde. Bewolde, hore that I haue not laboured for my self onely, but for all them y like a fildes y trusty.

And this thinge there are, y my speec fa women, which be also a loved bestie, as the Lord and men: The wyse of erection, the love of neighbours, and man & wyfe that agree well together.

The thynge there be which my soule ha-teth, and I utterly abhorre the life of them: A poore man that is pious, A rich man that cc li. b.
 is a liar, and an olde body that deceiveth and is unchaste.

If thou hast gathered nothyng in thy youth, what wyse thou syndest in thine age: How pleasaunt a thinge is it, what gray headed men are of councell, & what a the eldres can geve good counsell: How costly a thin-ge is wyddome unto aged men: yee understandinge and counsell is a glorious thynge.
 The crowne of olde men is to have moch experience, & y feare of God in eche mans hye.

There be ix. thynges, which I have indged in my hert to be happie, and the tenth wil I tell such ones men with my songe. A man y myghte he frucht, hath ioye of his chylde, and seith y fall of his enemye. Well is him, that dwelleth with an honeste of vnderst-andinge, and that hath not fallen with his con-ge, and y hath not bene faule to serue such an one more for him. Wel is him, y synndereth a faithfull friend: & wel is him, which waiteth a friende to an eare y heareth him. How greuous is he, y synndereth wyddome & knowledge: yet is he not about him, that feareth the LORDE. The feare of God hath sette it self aboute all thynges. Blessed is y man, unto whos it is graunted to have the feare of God. Dare whos shal he bechewen, y terepeth it fast.
 The feare of God is the begynnyng of his loue, and the begynnyng of faith is to cleare fast unto it. The heuyns of the hert is all the purgament, and the wickednes of a woman geeth aboute all. All purgament & pla-ge is nothyng in comparison of the plage of the hert, and so all wickednes is nothyng to the wickednes of a woman.

What is euer happeneth unto a man, is nothyng in comparison of it, y his ennyll wil lare do unto him: and all vengeance is nothyng to the vengeance of the enemye. The reis not a more wicked heade then the heade of the serpent, and there is no woe about y woech of a woman. I wyll rather dwell with a lyon and a dragon, then to kepe house with a wicked wyfe. The wickednesse of a woman chaungeth her face, she shal moouell hir contenaunce as it were a Deer, & as a fowle shal the shewe it amonge the neighbours. A lyfbande is brought to shame amonge his neighbours, & whos he heareth it, it maketh him in synge. All wickednes is but lye to the wickednes of a woman, y portion of the wyse is shal fall upon her.

Like as a clymme up a stony way is y y fere of the aged, and so is a wyfe full of woe to a shal quene man. A olde man marriedly upon the beryng of a woman, letteth in pained in desyre to marie her. The maye of a woman is of honour and grace infect. If a woman geeth the maye, then is the contrary to hir husbunde. A wichese maketh a fery hert, an herry countenaunce and a deede wounde. Of the woman came y begynnyng of synne, and theowen heren all are deede. Woe thy woeer no passage, nor a lide, neyther geeth a wiche to man bewill. If she wolde not seure thy hande, she shal confounde the in the synge of thy minie. Cuthet of synne from thy flesh, that she do not allwaye abuse the.

The xxvi. Chapter.

Appie is the man that hath a ver-nous wyfe, for the noblesse of his shalbe double. An honest woman hath her husbunde a ioyfull man, & she shal fyll y yeares of his life in peace. A woman woman is a noble gift, which shalbe geue for a good portion unto such as feare God.
 Whether a man be rich or poore, he maye be euer a merry hert, & a chearful countenaunce. There be thre thinges y my hert syn-dereth, and my face is afrayed of the synch. The son in a care, a sedicious people, and wyse tongues, all these are heuier then the deeth.
 Doe when one is gettens ower his wyfe, it bringeth payne and sorrow unto the hert and a woman that calleth out all thynges, is a scourge of the tongue. When one buyeth a wiche wyfe, it is euen as when an unwise man of osen must dwelle together: he that ge-teth her, geueth a scorpion. A wicked woman is a greates plage, for she cannot con-taine hir owne shame.

The wickednesse of a woman maye be knowen in the payde of hir eyes and eyslyddes. If thy daughter be not honeste, helde her fixely, lest she abuse hir synch row ower much liberte. Beware of all the dishonesty of hir eyes, and marvell not if she do agaynst the. Lik as one that geeth by the waye and is chynise, so shal she perhir mouth, and bynde of every myn-der that she maye geet.

Euery begger shal she see her deere, ope hir quene against every arrowe. A wiche ge wyfe reioyseth hir husbunde, and such his bones with her wysdome. A wo man of fornicate is a gife of God, and to a small narrow mynde maye nothinge be compared.

An honest and manerly woman is a gife above other gifes, and there is no waighe to be compared, unto a mynde that contributes. Like as the Sonne when it aryseth, and enlumines in the hye beames of THE LORD.
Like as a waruous wyse & bewte of all hir houshold, like as the cleare light is upon & holy, and last, so is the bewte of the sece upon her body. Like as the golde pulers are upon the secces of sytuer, so are the sayre legges upon a woman that hath a constant mynde. Perpetuall is the foudacionis that is laide upon a mynde stonys rocks, so are y uncommensurables of God upon his holy soules.

There be two thynges & greue my heart, and in the tyme is a displeasure come upon me. When an expecte man of traute suffreth surlines and poutte, When men of wynde surlines and wysdome are noftr by. When an one departs from the causes unwilling. When so both sedy, the LORDE hath pared him into the sword. There be two mynde of thynges, which me thynde to be harm and peryllous. A marchant can not lyde kepe him from wronge, neether a warrior him self from synne.

The xxvij. Chapter.

Confessors of powerte have many one of fynedon. be ther seck to be rich, turneth his eyes asyde. Like as a nation the wall fletcher so fast betwixt two sto-mans. so much synne flecte betwixt y byer and the seller. If he holde him not diligene his & fate of the LORDE, his house shall be a wrethynome. Like as a whan one is thy, the fletcheres manyeth in the syde. his, and muche there fore in cleane thinge in the thought of man. The ome powerte the powere of god, so both censation of eron the righte way. The ore of the fide at home by his frize, so in the thought of an one be didome by his wynde. prysit no a corper then have he berde him, for a man is bewte by his wynde. If thou solest fletcheres, thou shalt get her, and put her upon y as a sayre garment. And thou shalt will with her, and she shall defende the for one, and in & daye of knowlege thou shalt fide (shall be) (the) bynde a refectio unto the sece so both the erone and the that be occupied withall. The hym wayeth for y prapose do the synne litle upon the moites of evidences. The callings of him that seareth God is nothyng but wysdome: so for a fool, he chaungeth as y thou ne. If then be amonge the wyddesces, kepe thy wynde to a convenient tyme, but a mengeth as he wyse, speake on hardely. The callings of feoles is abhominacion, and their spore is volupuousness and mynstrante.

Noddy swearinge maketh the bynde to stoube up, and to styne with soch, floppeth the eare.

The stryfe of the proude is bloushedyng, & their blaspheminge is heavy to hear-re. Who so discovereth secces, secketh his credence, and fyndeth no fynde o fter his will.
Love thy frende, and bynde thyself in such fynis as with him: but yf thou be a yest his secces, thou shalt not get him a gayne: so like as the mai that destroyeth his enemye so to be alle that dealeth falsly in the frendship of his neighbour.

Like as one that letteth n byrde go out of his honde, can not take her agayne: when se thou, yf thou greue over thy frende, thou canst not get him agayne. Yet thou canst not come by him, for he is to farr of. He is mothe as a LORDE escaped out of the snare, for his foule is wounde. As for woundes, they maye be bounde up agayne, and an euill wounde maye be reconciled: but who so bewrayeth the secces of a frende, there is no more hope to be had unto him.

He that wyndeth with the eyes, ymagineth some euill, and no man shal take him from it. When thou are persure, he shal by-he commende and prysit thy wordes: but at and 27

Pro. 16

Eccl. 27. 6

and 29

E that seeketh vengeance, shall finde an vengeance of the LORD, which shall suddenly take him his synnes. For geue thy neighbour the harme that he hath done thee, and so shall thy synne be forgiven thee also, when thou payest. A man that beareth harme agaynst another, how durst he desire forgiveness of God? he that sheweth no mercy to a man which is like himself, how durst he aske forgiveness of his synne? If he eat in his flesh, beareth hatred and keepeth it, when wyl increase for his synne? Remember thee the erde, let enemyes passe, which seeketh death and destruction, and a dyer thou in. In commandement. Remember that thou shalt not be ravenous over thy neighbour. Thyne vpon the countenance of thy self, and forgive thy neighbour ignoraunce.

Beware of strife, and thou shalt make thy synne fewer. For an angry man humblyeth variance, and the ungodly disquieteth his friends, and putteth disorder amonge them that be at peace. The more modd there is, the more weberne is the fire; and the mightier men be, the greater is the wrath: and the less get the strife embowch, the more it burneth.

C In hisse beaunge dyndlech a fyre, and an haire fire shodder bloude. If thou blowest the spark it shall burne: if thou speyest vpon it, it shall go forth, and both these go out of thy mouth. The slanderer and double deceit is custid, for many one that be friends stretch he at variance. The childe tongue hath disquieted many one, and dryen them from one londe to another. Stronge cause hath it broken downe, and averted the house of greace men. The childe tongue hath caused many an honest woman, and rebeld them of their labour. Who so, hartely nurtur to such, shall never fynde rest, and never dwell safely. The stroke of a redmaketh yellowe, but the stroke of the tongue syncret the bones in sinde. There be many that haue perished with the sword, but many more choyced the tongue.

D Will to him that is kepte from an euill tongue, a commeth more in anger therof: which doeth much more the yoke of such, and is not holde in the bones of it. For the yoke therof is of yam, and y donde as it is of steel. The death therof is a very euill death: hell were better for one, then such a tongue. But the fyre of it maye not expresse them that feare God, as if flame therof maye not burne the. Such as forsake the LORD, shall fall therein: and in that burne them, and no man shall be able to quench it. It shall fall upon the as a fyre, and deuoure them as a leprade. The best gift of goodes is thorne: which doeth harme rather make thorns, and barre from them.

Thou wilt thy golde and syluer, which thou hast not weye thy wordes also upon thy launce. Remember, that thou shalt not sing songs, and so fall before thine enemyes, the laye was yet for the.

The XXX. Chapter.

So for will shewe mercy, he shall be vnto his neighbour: which is able, let him kepe the commandement. Lendeth vnto thy neighbour of his need, and paye thou thy neighbour in due season. As thy wordes be the faithfull with him, so thou shalt alway fynde the thinge that is necessary for the. Thou hast bene many, that when a thinge was lent them, refused it to be some cause therof: in thynale and in leure, that hath led them. Whyle they receaue any thinge, they tye the handes of such as geue them, and for their neighbour good they hold the voyle. But when the y shalde paye againe the y kepe it back, and geue all neede, as make many excuses by reason of the yoke: though he be able, yet geue he half half agayne, and receaue y other in his de. And yf he withelde not his money, he hath he an enemye of him, and that is set.

If he payeth him with cursinge and rebeld and greeth him euill wordes for his good de. There be many one which are not for to lende, not because of euill, but for to leste the thinge that they lende. He hath thou patience with the simple, and holde not mercy from him. Help the poore for the commandement sake, and he not go emptye from the because of his sister. Lest thy money for y brother and be not safe, and hurte is not vnto a man, wher it rusteth and corrupteth. Wher there is a fter the commandement of the best, and so shall it bunge the more golde. Laye up the almes in the bones of the poore, and it shall kepe the from all need. A mans almes is as a purse with him: shall kepe a mans sinne as the apert an eye: and as the sinne shall it paye man his rewardes upon his death. He shall fight for the agaynst him: remember then the stroke of a glasse, as the
the night.

A good honest man is better for his house, but a wicked personne better for me to shewe. Forget not the friendship thy beauty, for he hath given his soule for y.

 The wofull despayre of good dede of his partye, the wofull full and ignominious leasure his soule in daunger. (Some man promysseth for his neyghboure: & to him he hath sold his honesty, he shall forsake him.) Swer-dyng hath destroyed many a ryche man, & consumed them as the waves in y. sea. Many in people hath it dryuen awaye, and caused the to wandre in straunge countries. An un-godly man transgressynge the commaunde-mentes of the LORD, shall fall into an well furnished: and though he force himself to get out, yet shall he fall in to iudgment. Hel-peth neyghboure out after thy power, and beware, ychou thy self shall not in such doo.
 The chiefe thinge that keepeth in the life, is meate and drinke, clothinge and lobyngge, to cover the shame.

Water is it to haue a poore lymynge in a mans owne house, the delicate sayre amonge the straunge. Be it lide or moche ychou hast, ychou the comelye man shall (z thou shalt not be blamed as a vagabonder) for a miserable liffe is it to go from house to house: and where and us frome, he darre not open his mouth.
 Though one be lobyed, and haue meate and honye, yet shall he be taken on envye, & honye many wyter couth wordes, namely thow the thy waye thou stranger, and prepare a table (for thy self) and febe me also of that thou hast. Awaye thou stranger (so, that he regardeth his honoure nomore) my luyber commeth in to my house, & so he telleth him the necessity of his house. These thinges are heavy to a man that hath under-standynge, namely, the forbydyng of y. house that the lorde casteth him in the tceh.

The XXX. Chapter.

So so loveth his childe, holdeth him still under correction, that he maye haue loye of him o fearmarket, and that he propenoe after his neygh-bours dooe. For y. churche his soune, shall haue loye in him, & nede not be ashamed of his amynge his acquaintaunce. Who so es four times teacheth his soune, gretheth y. enemye, and before his frende he maye haue loye of him. Though the father dye, yet in he no though he were not dead: for he hath leste to churche him that lo like him. In his life he shall haue y. had loye in him, & was a not sory in his death. In ever was he a shamed before y. enemye. For he leste behinde him an enemye against his enemyes, and a good one towards his frende. For the life of childe shall binde the woundes together, and his here is greued at every crye. An unmead house wybe haarde, and a wanton childe wy-be wofull. If thou drynge up thy soune be hearty, he shall make y. asayed: and yf thou playe with him, he shall drynge the co. heuy. me. Laugh not with him, lest thou wepe w-him also, and lest thy tceh be fet on edge at the last.

Beware him not liberte in his youth, & er-si not his foly. Bow downe his necke whyle he is yonge, hyer him upon the syde whyle he is yet but a childe, lest he wate stubburne, & geue no mete force of y. (and so shall thou haue heuyness of soule.) Teach thy childe, & be diligent toward, lest it be to thy shame. Werre is the poore beyng whole & stronge, the a man to be rich, & not to haue his healeth, healeth and well fare in above all golde, and a n whole bodye aboute all treasure. There is no riches aboute a soune a bodye, & no rye abowe the loye of the hert. Death in tence chon a wretched life, or contynual sickness. The good thinges y. are put in a clost mouth, are like an whan meate is layed upon y. grate.

What good doeth the offeringe ones an Idoll: for he can nether care, east ner shall se ne so in it also with the rich, rethem God maketh sit the searce with his eyes, & growneth thereafter, and in euen as a golde man, that leeth wate a wygine and fygheth. Gene not over thy mynde in es heuyness, & we-net thy self in chine owne counsell. The loye & chearfulness of the hert is the life of man, and a mans gladnes is the prolonginge of his dayes. Love thine owne soule, and console thine hert: for souerayn and heuyness, drue it farre from y, for heuyness shall slay ne many a man, and bringeeth no profit. Zele and anger shorten the dayes of the life: care-fulnes and sorow bringe age before the eyme. Woe a mery hert every thinge hath a good cause, that he careth.

The XXXI. Chapter.

Reuyle and carefulness for riches taketh a waye the slepe, and maketh the fleshy co. consume. Whan one lyeth and taketh care, he waketh eue up, like a greave sickness breaketh the slepe. The rich hath greave labo' in gatheringe his riches together, and then wate the pleasure of his riches he taketh his rest & no refresheth. For who so laboureth and prospereth not, he is poore: and though he leaue of, yet is he a beg-ger. He that loveth riches, shall not be iusti-fied: and who so soloweth compass, shall haue enough thereof. Many one are come in grante my sorrowe by the reason of golde, & hane founde their destruction be fore them. Thus a tre of fallinge vnto them that offere vp, and all such as be foolish fall therein.

Blessed is the rich, which is founde without blimyssh, and hath not gone after golde, ne hoped in money and treasure. Where is the re such one and we shal commend him, and call him blessed, for greace thinges both be amonge his people. Who so is exalted, & founde perfection in such thinges, shal be commended and praised. Who mighte offende, & hath not offended: Who coude do euill, and hath not done it. & that thou shal his good be stablished, and the whole congregation shal be-clare his almightie. If thou see a greace mans table, open not thy mouth nor vpon it, and make not many wordes. Remember, that an euill eye is a theere.

B What thinge created is worse then a mic-ke eye: that fore maketh it before every mā face. Laye not thine hand vpon euery thinge charitable eye seeth, and seerue not vnder him in the bysse. Prouer by thy self what thyneighbour wolde sayne haue, & be descei-ue in every poynt. Eate thoe thinge that ce-se before thee, inwardly, as it becommeth a mans hand case not to much, lest thou be abhorred. Leave thou of first of all because of mine court, lest thou be he whom no man maye sa-tisfie, which maye turne to thy decaye. Whā thou steepest amonge many men, reach not thine hande out first of all. O how well cometh to a wise man to a like wyne: & so if in slepe thou shalt not be sette there, nor sele any pay-me. As swete wholesome slepe shal such one haue, and sele no inward greife. Be caryful vpon by thyne in y morninge, and euell at ease in him self. Be an vnassurable carer leste vngately, and hath ache and payne of the body. If thou sittest that thou hast care to much, arise, go thy waye, cast it of thy shoulders, and take thy rest.

E My sonne, heare me, and despyse me not:
and at the last thou shalt fynde as I haue tolde the. In all thy woorkes be diligene and quyte, so shal thy no sicnes happen vnto the. Who so is libeall in dealinge one his neare, many men shal blesse him and prayse him with their lippes: and the same is a sure eode n of his lone and faithfulness. But he is vnfaithfull in meate, the whole cite shall complayne of him: and that is a sure portion of his lasteth and wretchednes. Be not thou a worse debter, for wyne hath defreyed many a man. The fyre proueth y hard yron, euens so doth wyne proue the herte of the proude, when they be drunken.

Wyne sorely drunken, goodlyeth the list of mā. If thou drydeste thyne mouth, thou shalt be temperate. What list is it, maye come vnto without wyne: & wyne made stom the begynnyng to make man glad: and not for drunkennes. Wyne moste reasonablye is a reuysing of the soules body. But yf it be drunken with craft, a makeeth byrme and foule vnto the be. Drunkenesse fylleth the mynde of the foolish with shame and ruine, mynnysh the strength, and makeeth woundes. Abuse thyneighbour as y wyne, and despyse him not in his mynde. Wene thou no despyse wordes, and please not vpon him with euery sayenge.

The XXXij. Chapter.

If thou be made a ruler, pauer not thy self therein, but be thou as one of the people. Take bilygence care for them, and lode well thre: and when thou hast bene all thy deuyse, se the domes, that thou mayest be wry with them, and receive a cecaine of honours. Take wisely & bound-ly, for wysdome be cometh the night wyllynder not must. Speake not, where there is no audyence: and pauer not such domes out of tyme, as an impudencie. As as the Caribule some shyne, that is in in golde, so doeth a songe wysly the wyne feast: and as y smart agde that is in de, so is the sweetness of a must by y of wyne.

Thou yongemā, speake that becommeth the: & that is profitable, and yett careles thou are wyse as a. Comperthe not with few wordes. In many thinges be one that is ignorant, y care, and he thyneinge withall. If thou be amonge of hye ancedence, despyse not to company thy self vnto them: and whā as eler spake, make not thou many wordes there. Be thee thonder good lightenyng, and be nurtoure and home sustenisse growe and pasture. Seede vpon byrme, and be the last: but get the homesom, & there thy pasture, & do what thou wilst do no euill, and despyse no mā. But in all ges geue thanks, vnto him that hath the, and replenished the with his goodnes.

Who so feareth the LORD, yett his doctrine: and they that get them by thyne, shall fynde grace. The charite-the same, shall be fylled withall. As is but sayned, he wyl be offred They that feare the LORD, shall fynde ingement, & their righteouesnes shall be let as a light. An ungodly man will not be reformed, but can helpe him self with the example of other in his purpose. A man of understanding is despyed no good counsellor: but a wylde and proud body hath no share. My stone do nothinge withoute aduysment, for shal I not reue the after I dede. So not in the day where thou mayest fall, nei the reyn mayest stonde agaynst the stone. We are not y self in a labourous slippery waye, and beware of chine awne children. In all thy wordes put thy trust in God from thy whole hart, for that is the beginninge of the commandementes. Who so belongeth to God will be set ab hede to the commandementes: for he that putteth his trust in y LORD E shal want nothinge.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

I have shall no well happen unto him that feareth God: but when he is in correction, the LORD E shall deliuer him. A wise man hateth not y lawe, but an yperbo is as a shyp in a raginge water. A man of understandinge gathereth credence in the lawe of God, and y lawe to faithfull men. Before of the matter, then saile the chiefe: for I will instructe, the maistest thou can answer. The heart of y foolish is like a carthie, and his thoughtes remne aboute like azale. But as a wylde horse that wythoute anye cur y stretch upon him, so is it with a scornfull frende. Why doeth one daie recall another, sayinge all the dayes of the year come af the Sonne: The wysdom of the LORD E hath so parted them asunder, and so hath be ordered the tymes and seasons fraile. Some of them hath he chosen and halowed before other dayes. Not all men are made of the grounde, and one of the earth of Adams.

In the multitude of science hath y LORD E shewed them, and made their wayes of their wisdoms. Some of them hath he blessed, made much of them, halowed them, & claymed them to himself. But some of the hath he cursed, brought che lawe, & put che one of their curse. Like as y claye to the potters hande, so all the ordynge thereof at his pleasure: so are men also in the hande of him y made che, so that he maye geue them as he liketh him best. A waynt euil is good, and agaynst death is lifeso in the ungodly agaynst such as feare God. Beholde thou all the wordes of che wyse, for there are curer: agaynst euil, and one for agaynst and thet. I am wnted up last of all, as one that lasteth after in daies. In the gifte of God and in his blessinge I am increasid, & have filled my wyne presse, like a grape gatherer. Beholde, how I have not laboured only for my self, but for all such as love me: to me as to wyse dome.

Iocate me O ye graue men of che people, &arken ye ye eares ye rulers of y congregation. Be not y sonne y wyse, y brother y frende pouer ouer che, whyle thou lyest: & geue not a waye thy substantiaunce and goodes another, lest it repene che, & thou be saynt to begg che for che thy self. As longe as thou lyest y hast breth, see no man chaunge che: for better it is thy children to praye che, then y thou shouldest be saynt to lode in their hande. In all thy wordes be careful, that chey haue not be neuer stained. Be the wyse when thou shal ende thy dayes, and finish thy lyfe, distibute thine inheritance. The fodder, the whyppe, and che burden belongeth vnto che distibute. Seate, correction, and wote vnto the seruants.

If thou se thy seruante to labour, thou shalt fynde rest. But yf thou lode him go ydell, he shal seke libertye. The ydell y whyppe boue bewme the need, but tame cheu thyself seruante with bidden correction. Send him to labour, that he go not ydell: for ydellnesse bringeth much euil. Set him to wote, for that belongeth vnto him and becometh him well. If he be not obedient, bryn de his face: but do not e much vnto him in anye wyse, & with out discrecion be nothinge. If thou have a faithfull seruante, let him be vnto che as thine owne soule, for in blowe hast thou gotten him. If thou haue a seruante, holde him as thy self, for thou hast me de of him as of thy self. If thou increasest him euil, and depast him hard, and maist him to be proud, and to come a waye from y, thou canst not tell, what waye thou shalt seke him.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Seeke people begyle them selves wth vayne and vnclean full heare, and for least trust in dreames. Who so regardeth dreames, as like him that mistaketh holdes of a shadowe, and foloweth after the vayne. Euen so is it with che apperaynges of dreames. Before the face in the lid men of a face. Who can be clensed of y vnclean: Or what ereth can be spoken of y lyar? Or what yagge, with ydell, forcery and dreaminge to but vayne: like as when a woman dreameth she childe, and hath many fantasies in his heart. Where as such visions come ne of God, for not thine bette vpon them. For because hauē diseased many a mā, and they sayled, that put thei cruell chertē.

B The lawe shalbe fulfilled without lyes, & wysdome is sufficiant to a faultfull man.
A right man y^e is well instructe, vnderstondereth mody: & he y^e hath good exerceise, careful of wysdome, he y^e hath no cōfusion, knoweth liker he y^e erret, cansteth mody wickednes. When I was yet in erroure, I learned mody alth^o yet I was so learned, that I coud not expresse it: all, and came so in pa-rell of death therouer, yll I was belyuerd from it. Now I se, that they which feare God, haue the right sperte: for thei hope so verly in him, that can helpe the. Who so feareth the LORDE, shalbe in awe of no man, and is not a frowde, for the LORDE is his hope and comfort.

C Blessed is the soule of him y^e feareth the LORDE: Ju mōd pūerth he his trust in horō his strength. For the eye of the LORDE haue respect vnto them, that loue him. He is that mightie pōuwer, & stronge grounde: He defende for the heare, a refuge for the breast moone daye, a sicore for somlanger, & an helpe for sallynge. He setteth vp the soule, and liqhteneth y^e eyes: He groweth healeful, and blessing, he that groweth an offerin-ge of vniuersal good, his offeringe is refused: and the fouerfull healinge of the vniuersal please not God, God hath no be-lyue in the offeringe of y^e vniuersal, neither maye synne be reconciled in the multitude of oblacions. Who so bringeth an offerin-ge out of y^e goodes of y^e poore, doth eate a one y^e byllers of somē before y^e fathers eyes.

D The bue of the needfull is the life of the poore: he y^e doth touch him therof, as a man, of bloude. Who so robbeth his neyghb^r of his lyinge, doth as greates synne as though he slew him to death. He that defendeth y^e laboure of his hye, is a blisful shadder. Whā one buyeth, and another killeth downe, what profit haue they then the labourer?
Whā one prayeth, & another curseth, whose voyce wyl the LORDE heare? He that wasteth himself because of a deed body, & then toucheth the deed agayne, what doth his wastfulnes? So I saw much a man that fasteth for his synnes, and doth them agayne: who wil heare his prayer? Or what doth his fastynge helpe him?

The xxxv. Chapter.

E So feareth the lawe, bringeth of ferynges ynough. He that hauech fulfild the commandment, offereth the right healethoffrynges, he y^e is thantfull & recompensthe, offereth fyny flowers. Who is mercifull & groweth allmice, y^e is thantful thant offrynges. God hath pleasure, whā he be pacified fro synne: & so forsaite synne. oulines recedeth wth him. The good synne is done because of y^e commandment. The offeringe of y^e righteous maketh y^e soule pure, & a sweet smell is it before y^e synne. The of-frynges of the righteous is acceptable vnto God, & shal neuer be forgouen. When God hath much a chearfull eye, & sepe noteth the fisynges of y^e deuote, In all thynges shew a mercy cōuenance, & haue the then vnto God wth gladnes. Graunte the acōdinge as he hath comendeth y^e pūerth ther like vnto thine handes able, y^e grow wth a chearfull eye: for the LORDE receiuefeth, & groweth y^e fūl of grace as a meadow.

Beue no vniuersal goodes, for thei wot herce as a deuour of vniuersal offrynges, for y^e LORDE is a righteous. He gardeth no mans personne: he accepteth not the personne of the poore, but he heareth y^e prayer of y^e oppressed. He despyseth y^e belye of y^e sacherles, not y^e worship, when the pouerth eate his prayer before him. And not God is y^e reuerse, y^e come downe y^e deof the wyrdome: Or heareth he not the playner, ouer such as make herre wep?
So sturth God after his pleasure, for he cepeth, & his prayer reacheth vnto the dewes. The prayer of him y^e humbly prayeth, goeth thorow y^e dewes, yll he come.
The wyl not be confuted, nor goe away. yll y^e synne: God haue respect vnto his true senten, & personne y^e iudgment. But y^e LORDE wil not be slack in comynge y^e longer: yll he haue synne in sonde y^e sin-nes of y^e vniuersal, & awenged himself of y^e synners: yll he haue eate a waye y^e iudtude of y^e cruell, & blot the capte of the righteous: yll he geue every man after his workes, & remove them as they haue de-uoted: yll he haue belyuerd his people, mē-teened their cause, & reconciled them in his eye. O how farre a thinge is mercifulnes me of anguyshe & trouble: He is like a of royne, y^e cometh in y^e tyme of aduyshe.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

G The mercy vpon me O LORDE, the God of all thinges. Haue respect to me y^e shew as the light of thymercies, & sende y^e fere amonge y^e synners gera, which sette me after thei: y^e synners knowe, how y^e there is no God but thou:
y^e they maye shew thy wordes in me.

Aske up thine hands ouer the outsidish deitem, & they maye seeme to knowe thy might & power. Like as thou art halowed in wo be fore them, so bringe us passe, & thou mayest be magnified alse in them before vs: & they maye knowe the, like as we knowe the. For there is none other God, but onely thou O LORD. Keme the colosse, & dooinge the wonderous workes. Shewe thine hande and thy might amonge gloriously. Rayse thy iudge-ment, & pouer out thy wrath. Take awaye the aduersary, & sinne the enemy. Make of them shewe, remember thy covenante, that thou hast made with thy covenante. Let the wrath of the fyr consume them, that they be as ashes: and let them perish, that do & people hate. Synne in fowder the heade of the pyra, thine be cure enemies, and saye: there is none other but we.

B Other all of cryes of Jacob rege her againe, & they maye knowe, how & there is none other God but onely thou, & they maye shew thy wonderous workes, and be thy people & seruants, like as from the begynninge.
 O LORD haue mercy vpon the people & thy name, & vpon Israel, whom thou hast chosen to a first borne soane. O be merciful vnto Israel, the chiefe of thy Sanctuary, & one of thy rest. Fill Zion with thy iusperable vertues, & & people & thy glory. Ge-ue wynde vnto & creature, whom thou maye lift from the begynninge, and raise vp the pophete, & haue beate shewed in thy name.
 Knowe them & maye te for the, & thy pro-phete maye be souaie faithful. O LORD heare the prayer & thy seruantes, accordinge to & blessinge of Aaron ouer thy people.
 And all they which dwell vpon earth, maye knowe, that thou art the LORD the eter-nall God, which is from euerslastinge.

C The bely denoureth all meates, yet is one meate better than another. Like as the cen-ge is in flesh very soe, so both an hert of understandinge maye be false wordes. As for me be hert reate heyrnes, but a man of experiens lieth him vpon agayne. The woman reuouch every man, yet is one daughter better than another. & saye wife reioysish her husbande, and a ma loueth a change better. As for the leuyng & vertuous wihall, there is no her husbande like other men. He that hath goten a vertuous woman, hath a goodly possession: she is vnto him an helpe and piler wher vpon he resteth. Where no helpe is, there the goodes are spoyled: a w-man no housewife is, there & fidelles moue awy. Like as there is no credence geuent to a soder, & goeth from one cite to another: So is not & man beloued, that hath none helpe, and must tarme in, wher he maye abyde in

 the night.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

E Very stonde aspech: I will be frenchly vnto him also. But there is some ston-de, which is onely a stonde in name.
 As many as there not heyrnes vnto deach, wher a compayson and stonde is turned to an enemye: O most used to presumption: For whence art thou spunge up, to couer the earth with falsete & deice: There is some compayson, which in prosperite reioysish with his frend: but in the tyme of trouble, he taketh parte agaynst him. There is some of payson, that murthereth with his frende for the bely sake: he wher treuible cometh, he taketh holde of the shyld. Forge not thy frende in thy mynde, & thyme vpon him in riches. Every counceiler dryngeth forth his counsell: & leaue thes there is some, & coun-ciler but for his owne profit. Beware of counceiler, & be aduysed afore wher thou wilt vnto him, for he will geue counsell for his self. Lett he cast the lott vpon the, & saye vnto the: Thy waye and purpose is good, and afterwarde he stande agaynst the, and lott that shal become of the.

As no counsell at him, & suspect thy & for a new me, & hyde & counsell from such as hate &. As no counsell at a woman, & counceiler & thynge & she ligher forner at a fea-ful & faymharred body, in matters of matre: or at a marchaunte, how deare he will cheape thy wares towards him: or at a byer, a selflinge: Or at an enuious man, of chautifgeuyng: Or at the vnnmercifull, of leuyng fyndes: Or at & flouthfull, of mouinge: Or at an hyellinge which hath no house, of poe-sic or wraile. (A nyble body wolde not gladly heare (pate of much labo.) Take no such folkes to counsell, but be diliget to sele counsell at a vertuous man, & feareth God, such one as thou knowest to be a keeper of & comandements, which hath a minde after thine owne minde, & is so for & wher thou stibbest.

And helpe thy counsell fast in thine hert for there is no man more faithful to kepe it, then thou thy self. For a man mynde in som tyme more dispised to ill one, then ston marchmen that fyre aboue is an hye place leuyng above them. And above all this praye the & saye, that he will lede thy waye in faithfulnes & trouth. Before all thy workes

The life of man sonder byn y nobbe of the dayes, but the dayes of Israel are innumerable. A wyse man shal eptyne sonshynesse z ordene amonge his people, z his name shal be perrenall. My sonne, prouethy sonle in thy life: z yf thou se any euell chynge, gene it noe vnto her. For all chynge is not profitable for all men, nerther hath euery soule pleasure in euery chynge. Be not greby in euery catynge, and be not to hastye vps all newes. For celes of meates bringeth synesse, and glory cometh at the last to an vnamurable heate. Those y glocony haue many one perished: but he that dyeth him self temperately, perdureth his life.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

21 Honour the Physician: honour him because of necessity. God hath created him: for of the hyge commeth me decay: and he shal receiue gifte of the kynge. The wysdome of the physician bringeth him to greute worshippe, z in the sighe of the greute men of this worlde, he shal be honorably taken. The LORD hath created me decaye of the earth, and he that is wyse, wyl not abyowre. Wanne y bytter water may be sweete with a tre: z that men mighte lerne to knowe the vertue therof. The LORD hath gyven men wysdome z vnderstandyng. y he mighte be honoured in his nobbeus woorkes. With such doeth he heale men, z teachowen theyr paynes: Of such doeth the Apotecary make a confession, yet can no man perfourme all his woorkes. For yf LORD cometh prosperen wealch euer all y earth.

synes flour for a colten of semmence: cometh the offynge face, as one that groweth in first frutes. z geue vnto me the Physician. For yf LORD hath created him: let him go from the, for thou hast receyved of him. The hour maye come, y the fte maye be his chynge: when they playe vnto yf LORD. y he maye recouer, z geue heale to his ger. y that synneth before his maister, shal fall in to the handes of the Physician.

My sonne, bringe forth thy synnes to the deede: and begynne to moue, as yf thou haddest suffred greute harme thy self: the couer his body a fter a contrarye man, z despyse not his buryall. Let thy self to wepe, z prouethy self to moue: with lamentacion expedyently, and yf thou be two, lest thou be well spoken of: z then shalte thy self because of the heuynes. For he synneth decaye, the heuynes of yf him beareth strength. Synne and pouer maye cheere here in mortacion of offence. Take heuynes to here, by yf it is a waye, and remembre the last chynge. Forget not, synne is no runnyng agayn. Thou shal be no good, but hurte thy self. Remember the iudgement, chynge also shal be left vnto us yesterday, vnto the daye. Let the remembrance of the deede craffe in his rest, and before thy self agayn: euer him, synne in synne is departed from him.

The wysdome of the scribe is as a dyntent tyme of rest: he yf caaseth from weyfe z labo, shalbe wyse. He that holdeth yf plough, z hath pleasure in pioddyng: wyfynge yf oxe, z goeth aboute wth shoules, he can speake of open. He seethy him to make forewea, z is diligente to giue yf he ne foddre. Soe euery carpenter alth yf he muste, that labourer shal myghte dop: yf carmeth, graue: z cutteth out yf he is in sondry conynge chynge, and he wyl ymagyneth, how he maye conynge euery ymagynage, his diligence also z wordyng: yf he seumeth the woork. The yonnyng synneth byde by his synne, z doeth byde yf he synneth by his synne, and he muste synne with the heate of the furnace. The nyght of the summer foundeth euer in his carm, and his eyes let: still upon the chynge yf he wylte. He hath fte his mynde here upon: the wyl mal: out his woork, and the fte watch: yf he maye fte it out, and he wylte it can end.

So doeth the porter fte by his woork, he carmeth yf whole aboute with his syn, z beginne to carefull in all his doynges, & his laboure and waite to without nombre. He subdueth the claye with his arme, and do his free be elpeth it. His free ymagineth how he maye make pleasure, & his diligence to denie the euen. All these hope in their hido, & euerie one thinketh to be conserued in his worke. With out these maye not the clauis be maneyned, in which euer man occupeth come they not hie in the congregacion they understande the conseruation of lawe: they can not declare equite & iudgement: they can not synne one the day & sene such as those whom thou shalt the creature of y make be maneyned: the prayer cometh only the woe & labour of sininge.

The XXXij. Chapter.

And he applyeth his mynde to vnderstande the lawe of God, doth build gently sette out of wysdome of them of the othe tyme, & euerie yeth him self in the prophete. He teacheth of famous men, and perseth to the vnderstandinge of hard sentences of wysdome. He setteth one of the myre of secret saynges, and euerie yeth him self therein continually. He doth serue amonge greates men, & appeareth before the prince. He goeth in to a strange countre, & maneth his name in it: he hath good or euell in onye men, he prooueth it & setteth it out. He passeth in his hert to rest early in to the LORD & he made him to praye before the myghty God. He openeth his mouth in prayer, & prayeth for his synnes.

When the greates LORD & he shall be filled with the spere of vnderstandinge, & he make them poore and mysse sentences, & geue them the waye the LORD & he in his prayer. He shall vnder his deuyte, and lode his knowledge aright. & geue him vnderstandinge of secret things. He shall shew forth the secretes of his mynde, & reueale in the conuente of the wise of the LORD. The whole congregacion shall conuente his wysdome, & he shall be praised. The reuerend beames of him shall be sought, & his name shall come from one generation to another. His wysdome shall be spoken of, & the whole congregacion shall openly declare his prayse. While he luyeth, he hath a greater name than erasme beynde: & after his deathe, the fame is more than anye into him. Yet will I speake of mo men of vnderstandinge, for I am full as the yuone.

Give vnto me (ye holy men as children) byng forth frute, as be rose that is planted by the brooke of the felder, and geue ye a floure smell as Libanus. Blossom as the rose garden, synge a songe of prayse. O geue childe vnto God over all his worke. Geue glory and honoure vnto the LORD. Shew his prayse with youre lippes. Reueale with the stenge of youre lippes, with harpe & playnge, and in geaunge shewen vnto him, saye after this maner: All y wote of the LORD are exceedinge good, and all his commandmentes are meet and conuenient in true so son.

A man neede not to sater what is y what is char: for at tyme cometh in they shal all be sought. As his commandment & more man as a wall, & at the worde of his mouth y wote is stode still. In his commandment is euery thinge acceptable and reconciled, and his heath can not be misfith. The woeles of all flesch are before him, & there is nothinge hid from his eyes. He seeth from euery thinge to euery thinge, and there is no thinge to wonderfull as he vnto him. A man neede not to saye then, what is this, or what: for he hath made all thinges to be good vnto man. His blessinge shall reueale ouer as the streame, and his myghte the earth like a floure of water. Like as he maketh the water for drouth, so shall his wrath fall upon the heathen.

His wayes are playne and right vnto y iust, but the vngodly stonde at them. For the good are good thinges created from the begynnyng, and euell thinges for the vngodly. All thinges necessary for the life of man are created from the begynnyng: & honey, fyer, yron and sale, med, robeate, and manye myles and wyne, oyle and clothyng. All these thinges are created for the best to the soules full. But to the vngodly shal all these thinges be turned to hurt and harme. There be spites that are created for vengeance, and in their rigourousnes haue they siftered their countenance. In the tyme of the ende they shal poure out their strenght, and pacifye y worthy of him that make them. Yee, haile, honoure and deathe: all these thinges are created for vengeance.

The reth of wynde noysse beastes, the scorpions, serpentes, and the furre are created also for vengeance, to the destruction of the vngodly. They shall be glad to be his commandmentes: and when he be in, they shal be ready upon earth: and when their home is come, they shal not ouerpass the commandment of the LORD.

Thee see howe I taken a good courage vnto me from the begynnyng, and thought to put these thinges in wrytinge, and to leaue the behynde me. All þe wordes of the LORDE are good, and he geaeth euer y one in due season, and whan he de is. So that a man ne be nere saychis in woult then that. For in due season they are all pleasaunt and good: And therefore praye the LORDE with whote heere and mouth, to geue thantke vnto his name.

The XL. Chapter.

¶ Grete trouaile is created for all me, and an hevy yocke upon all mens children, from the daye that they go out of their mothers wombe, till they be buried in (the earth) the mother of all thinges: namely, their thoughtes and ymaginacions, fyre of the hert, counsell, meditations, longing and desyre, the daye of death: from the which that fyreth upon the glansous face, woe the is most and most symple upon the earth: from him that is gorgeously arrayed, and weareth a crowne, vntill him that is bare homely and symple clothed. There is nothinge but woe, yel, fearfulness, unquietnes, and feare of death, rigorous anger and stryfe. And in the night whan one shalde rest and slepe upon his bedde, he shalde chaunge his vnderstandinge and knowledge. As litle as nothinge is in his rest, in þe slepe he well as in the daye of gladoure.

¶ He fureth and is disquyred in this wyse of his hert, as one that renneth out of a bataylle: and in the tyme of healt he awaith, and maruelous that the feare was nothinge. Eoch thinge happen vnto all flesch, both man and best: but feare shal be to the vngodly. Therefore death, bloodsheddinge, stryfe, fure, oppression, hunger, destruction and punishment: these thinges are all created agaynste the vngodly, and for their siknes came the flood also. All that is of the earth, shal runne to earth agayne: and all moeres rbb agayne in to the see. All byrdes and vngodly creatures shal be put awaye, but faithfulness and watch shal endure for ever. The substantiunce and goodes of þe vngodly shal be buid up and syncke awaye as a water flood, and they shal make a founte like a greates chynel in the tyme.

Gradyntes and liberalites in the world as a blessinge of God, is like a passetyme: geuent of pleasaunt mercy also: a tyme in which for ever to labe to be contented: that a man hath, is a tyme pleasaunt: that is to fynde a treasure above all treasures. To begger children and to respect the needy, maketh a perpetual name: but an honest woman is more worth than they both. Woe and mystriferye vnto the hert, but the name of wrydom is above them both.

Pynging and harpinge make a tyme: but a frendly tonge geeth beyond the boche. Thine eye is as a fyre: as a fyre and a tyme: but a grete syde tyme: rather than they both. A frende and compayny come together oportynly, but above them both is a tyme: that agreeth with his husband. One brother helpeth another in the tyme of trouble, but a tyme shal deliuer more than they both. Golde and silver susteyn the face, but a god counsell is more pleasaunt than they both. Temporall substantiunce and strength lyf up the mynde: but the face of the LORDE more than they both. The feare of the LORDE wanteth nothinge, and maketh no lye. The feare of þe LORDE is as a pleasaunt game of blessinge, and nothinge so beuysful as in this founte, lye not a beggers life, for it is more to dye than to begge. Who so lotteth in his owne lyvinge he woe to upbilde his lif: for he fedyth himself with other mans meate. But a wyse and well measured man will beware thereof. Begginge is for the mouth of the vngodly, but in his lif there burneth a fyre.

The XL. Chapter.

¶ Death, how bytter is the murther of the, to a man that is rich and comfite in his substantiunce and riches, vnto the man that hath nothinge to reue him, and that hath preserue all thinges, yet vnto him that is a lye: because heate. O death, how acceptable and good is thy indgement vnto the wofull, and vnto him that is fureth: for that is new in his last age, and that in all thinges is full of care and fearfulness: woe him also that is in his paye, and hath no hope nor patience. Be not thou ashy of death: remember when þe was born before thou and þe come after: this is the murther of þe LORDE over all flesch. And why should thou be agayne this pleasure of þe LORDE: rather than, as a tyme, to be contented.

man's death as yet nor how longe one shall live.

- 2 The children of the ungodly are abominable children, and so are they that kepe company with the ungodly. The wherecouce 145 of ungodly children shall come to naught, and their posterite shall have perpetual shame and confusion. The children complaine of an ungodly father and say: for his sake they are hated and despised. We be unto 150 god (O ye ungodly) which have forsake the lawe of thy father: If ye be borne, ye shall be borne to cursing: yf ye dye, ye curse shall be your portion.

- 155 All that is of thy earth, shall turne to earth againe: so the ungodly also out of thy curse to destruction. The sorrow of men is in their death: but thy name of the ungodly shall be put out, for it is nothing worth. And 160 to get the good name, for that shall continue for ever, then a thousande greater measure of golde. A good life hath a nobilitie of dayes, but a good name endureth ever.

- My children, kepe wysdom in peace: for wisdom that is hye and a treasure that is 165 infinite, what profit is in the both? A man that hath his foolishnes, is better then a man that hath his wisdom. That few be counted as my words: for it is not good in all things, and all waise to be ashamed. True faith must prove and measure it.

- Be ashamed of wisdom, before father and mother: Be ashamed of lesynge before the prymer and men of answere: Of synne, before the iudge and ruler: Of offence, before the congregation and people: Of unrighteousnes, before a companion and frider: Of the lawe, before thy neighbours. As for the service of God and his commandment, be not ashamed 170 thereof.

- Be ashamed to lye with thyne clothes upon the bed: Be ashamed to lye upb bare feet: Be ashamed to rylene awaye thy face from thy friends: Be ashamed to take a mate to geue: Be ashamed also to lye upon another mans wyse, and to make many tryfling wordes with his mayden, or to stonde by his bedside. Be ashamed to upbraid thy frider: and when thou geuest any thinge, call him not in the tech word hall.

The xliij. Chapter.

- 175 Be aske not a thinge awyse, and biddest not the worder, that thou hast harde in secret. Be shamesfast, & well mannered in bedde, so shall every man fauoure the. Of these thinges be not shamed, and accept no person to offende. Name ly, of these thinges be not ashamed: Of the lawe of God, of the commandment, of indignitee: bringe the ungodly from his ungodlines into righteousness, and to make him a good man: to deale faithfully wth his neighbours: to compaign: to distribute the heritage: and to frabbe: to be diligent to kepe true measure and weight: to be content, whether thou gettest much or little: to deale truly wth a morall good man in byng and selling: to bringe up children with diligence: to correcte an euill seruante: kepe that thine is fit an euill wiser to see a locke where many handes are: what thou deluerekest and geuist out to be kepte, to sell it, and to weye it to weye up all the ewe geuynge and receauynge: to enquire wth reason and wryte: Of the age, that are two good of the yonge. If thou be diligent in these thinges, truly thou shalt be learned and wise and accepted of all men.

The daughter maketh thy father to marry secretly: and she carefulnes that he hath for her, taketh awaye his sleep: yet in the youth, lest she shoulde ouer growe him: And when she hath an husband, lest she shoulde be hated: lest she shoulde be out of syde or tany: she hath wth her virginnes, or gotten with child in her fathers house: Or when she cometh to the man: lest she be hated for her firstnes: no, or to continue vntill full. If thy daughter be wth her, kepe her straitly, lest she cause thee 180 amiche laugh the to scorne: the wyde cleue to geue thy an euill repore, and so thou be sayne to heare thy shame of every man, and be downfownde before all thy people. Beholde not euery boye to enuey, & his meane: much dwellinge amonge women. For like as the women and much cometh out of clotheinge, so doeth wisdom come of women.

It is better to be with an euill man, then 185 to a frendly wife: & rather one to shame and rebate. I wyl remembre the woordes of the LORD, and declare the thinges of thy name. In thy woordes of thy LORD are his woordes. The wyse euil looketh all things in his shewe, & all his woordes are full of thy cleaues thereof. Hath not the LORD broughte to passe, that his sayntes shoulde tell out all his wonderous woordes, which the almighty LORD hath sheweth: All thinges endure in his glory. He stretcheth out the ground of the deserts and the hert, and he knoweth all their imagine: won't wisdom, for thy LORD knoweth all maye try we be hyd from him. He hath garnished the hye excellent weates of his royall robe, and he is so enlashinge to enlashinge. Unde him maye nothinge be added neither can he be mynished, he hath no robe also of any countell. O how amiable are all his workes, & as a spacke to lode upon. They lode all, and endure for ever: and when so ever robe is, they are all obedient unto him. They are all dubble, one against another: the hath made nothinge that hath faile or blemish. He hath stablished the gooddes of eternychent: and who maye be satisfied with his glory, when he saith it:

The XLiii. Chapter.

The glory of the heyl, is the foye and cleare firmament, the beauty of the heaven in his glorious clearenes. The forme when it appeareth, beareth the dayes in y goinge out of it, a marvelous wote of the hyest. At noone it burneth y earth, and who maye abyde for the heate therof? Who so looketh in even when it is here, the tymes most deeth the Sonne burne upon y mountaynes, when it beareth out the fyre beames and shyneth with the brightnes of it, it blindeth the yee. Greake is the LORD that made it, and in his commandment he caused it to rene hastily.

The Moone also is in all, and at convenient season is he with the tymes, and is a token of the tyme. The taken of the solempne feast is taken of the Moone, a light that mynished and increased againe. The Moone is called a fier the Moone, is groweth wonderously in her changinge.

The armye of heaven also is in the heyl, in the firmament of heauen it giveth a cleare and glorious shyne. This is the clearenes of the starres, the beautifull apparell of heauen the apparell that the LORD hath given in the heyl. In his holy wote they continue in their orde, and not one of them faileth in his watch. He lode upon y rayne beere, and prayse him that made it: very beautifull is it in his shyne. He compasseth the heauen above with his clearenes & glory, the handes of the hyest have bedded it. Therefore his commandment he maketh the fyre to fall, & the thunder of his indgment to synne hastily. Therefore his commandment the treasures are opened, and the cloudes sit as the foules. In his power hath he strengthened the cloudes, and bedded the heyl stones. The mountaynes mele at y sight of him, the wynde bloweth accordinge to his will.

The sounde of his thunder beareth yach, and so doth the storme of the weathers: he is wynde also: he beareth downe as a scheyn foule, casteth out and scattereth the fowles: he is as the greif of the fowles: he is as the faller of downe. The heyl maketh it betwene of the wynter: he is as the heyl is as the rain of it. He is as the heyl is as the frost upon earth, like salt, and when it is frozen, it is as sharp as the pyn of the thistle.

When the colde northwynde bloweth, harde Christall cometh of the moun, he lighteth downe upon all the gatheringe together of water, and putteth on y moun as a tress plate. He beareth the mountaynes, and burneth the wynter: he lode when it is here, he is as the heyl is. The medycine of all these is, when a de cometh hastily: and when a de cometh upon the heate, it shall be refreight y a yne.

In his wote he stylieth the wote, in his counsell he stylieth the wote, in his DE, Jesus planteth it. They that are the fey, tell of his parables and domes: in when we hear it with our eares, we shall therof. For there be strange wondrous workes, yf we maye a fyre beames and whell shyneth. Therefore he is all thinge in good orde and pfecture, & in his wote all thinge is done.

I speake much, but I can not sufficientlye as yet unto it, for he himselfe only is the perfection of all we knowe. We shall see the LORD a fier all y power, for he is great in all his workes. The LORD is to be praised very greatly to be, and marvellous in power. Prayse the LORD, and magnify him as much as ye maye, yet doth he farre exceede all prayse. O magnify him all yore power, and laboure enough, yet ye in no wyse able sufficientlye to praise him. Who hath seen him, that he might say: Who can magnify him so greatly as he is? For there is no yore yet greater thinge than these be: as for us, we have seen him in his workes. For the LORD I have much thinge, and given word to us as he is God.

The XLiii. Chapter.

A commendation of the olde vertuous fathers.

As we commend the nobil fathers men, and the generation of our fathers and fathers. Many plaine access hath the LORD bene, and hath his grece power encreased yf beginning. The noble famous men aigned in this kyngdome, and bare excellent rule. In their wyldome and vnderstandyng, they so lauded the counsell shewed in the prophecia. They led the folke thow the counsell and wyldome of the scriven of the people.

 Wherby they were founde in their instrucion. They taught the lawces and melody of Israel, and became forth the pleasaunt songs in scripture. They were rich also, & made comfite and pacifie these that dwelle with them. All these were very noble and honourable men in their generacions, and were respected of in their tymes. These have left a name behynde them, so that their prayer shal alwaye be spok of. A fether may be chit in wote fane, whose remembrance is gain. They came to waughe and persheved, as though they had neuer bene: and became as though they had neuer bene borne, yet & thus children alid with them.

¶ These also these are fouryng men, who fenghed as if a shal neuer be forgotten, but conspue by their posterite. Their children in an holy good herage: Their seide orde no fust in yf couenaunt. For their sake shal the children & seide conyng for euer, & their curse shal neuer be put downe. Their bodis are buried in peace, but their name lyueth for euer. The people can speake of their wyldome, & the congregation can talke of their praye. Enoch walked right & acceptably for him the LORD: therfore was he tras-lured for aye, a myle of auentemēt to yf a wayes. For was a stedfast & righteous man in the tyme of noach he became a re-dwelling. Therfore was he left a remnant in the earth, when the floude came. An everlasting couenaunt was made w him, that all flesch shalbe perishe: none more rich yf were.

¶ Abraham was a greates father of many people, in aglor was there none like vnto him. He receyved the lawe of the dyest, & came into a conuall with him. He seche a cou-enant in his flesch, and when he was tempted he was founde rich full. Therfore shoo-weth vnto him such an eue, that he wolbe blessed all people in his seide, that he wolde multiply and increse him as the dust of the earth, and to exalte his seide as the star-res; yet and that his seide shalbe haue yf possible and inheritaunce as the londe from the east, and from the eue vnto yf borders of the londe.

Which Isaac was bestabish yf same cou-enant, for Abraham his father: sake. Yet yf gracious blessing and healeth of all men, and couenaunt was bestabish with Isaac, and made it to rest upon the heere of Jacob. He knew him, in that he profen d him so well and richely, and gave him an heretage, and furtheren his portion by it self, and parced it amonge the twelue trybes. These full men brought he age of him, which sounde & saue before all flesch.

The xlv. Chapter.

¶ These beloned of God and me, who se remembrance is in hys praye: he hath the LORD made like in the glory of the sayntes, and magnified him so that the enemies shode in a we of him: he couis his worde: he was grece wonder. He made him greates in the sight of yfuges, gave him commaundment before his people, and strowed him his glorious power. He flabified him with faithfulness and mekenes, and chose him out of all men. For he herde his voyce, and led him in the darke cloude, and there he gave him the commaundmentes, yet the lawe of life and wyldome, that he might teach Jacob the couenaunt, and Israel his lawes.

¶ These Aaron his brother also out of yf trybe of Leui, exalted him, & made him such like. An everlasting couenaunt made he w him, and gave him the presthode in the people. He made him glorious in bewellfull a-raye, and clothed him with the garment of honour. He put perfect sove up him, and gyved him with strength. He bested him with syde clache and a tuncyle, with an o-verbody coue also and gyrdle. A coude aboteemede he him belles of golde, and that many: that when he wente in, the sounde mighte be herde, that they mighte make a noyse in the Sanctuary, and geue the people wa-ringe. The holy garment was wrought & brydded with golde, yallow sylk and purple. And in the dyslappe there was a good ly wote, wherein was a fastened light and pur-festresse.

¶ Upon yf same also there was a wote fastened and set with costly precious stones, all bounde with golde: and this he brought in him mysfracon. The stoness also were fastened for a remembrance, after the twelue trybes of Israel. Upon his myre there was a place of pure golde, a grauen ymage of dolynce, a famous and noble wote, gat-nished, and pleasaunt to lode upon. Beside him were these ene no foch for ornaments,

D This was now confirmed him with an everlasting covenant, and so his seed, so 3 dayes of burnt: namely, that his children shoulde all waye run after before him, and performe the office of the priesthood, and with the people good in his name. Before all men lyngs those he him, that he shoulde offre before the LORD, and make odours for a sweet savour and remembrance, that he shoulde reconcile the people of the LORD with him a gayne. He gave him a covenant also in his covenant unities and in 3 covenant, that he shoulde teach Jacob the statutes and testimonies, and to esfourme Israel in his lawe.

E Therefore there stode a pertaines against him, and had envye at him in the wilderness: namely, they that were of Dauid and Abiram's yoke, and the furious congregacion of Choe. This the LORD saw, and he displeased him, and in his wrathfull indignacion were they consumed. A greates word be did he upon them, and consumed them with the fyre. Besides this, he made Aaron yet more honorable and glorious: he gaue him an heritage, and parted the first fruites unto him. Unto him specially he appointed the bech for sustenance: for the priests are of 3 offerings of the LORD: his gaue he unto him 3 his seed. Ein had he a heritage neer paterne is 3 londe and with the people. For the LORD E himself is his portion and his raiment.

For when the people were turned back, he put himself forth right soone, 2 that with a good will, to pacifie the wrath of the LORD towards Israel. Therefore was there a covenant of peace made with him, 3 he shoulde be the pacifier amonge the righteoun and the people, that he and his posterite shoulde have the office of the priesthood for ever. The xlii. Chapter.

N And 3 strange in Israel was this 3 some of Isaac, which was be of Moses 3 prophet was gaue to be captaine of the people: which was he when his name was a greates name to the clere of God: so punish the crime, that rose up against Israel. 3 When he offered their inheritance. 3 When he was noble and excellent was he, when he filled his hands, and drew out his sword against the cizen: Who stode so manly before him. For the LORD himself brought he in the armies. So be not the forme still at his commandment, and one daye was as long as two: the called upon the syefft most mightie, who 3 enemies pleased upon him in array: and the LORD heard him with his bayle stones. They more 3 they mightie mightly, 2 is full of dew: they he all 3 answered, so that the haue him his boote, so all his defence, that the LORD himself fought against them, for he fought upon the mightie men of them.

In the tyme of Moses also he and labo the forme of Joseph, and a good man, which stode against the enemies, which the people from synne, and killed 3 men murdering. And a siffe hand he had, the people of force, they two were punish: when they were brought in to the heretage, namely, a londe that synners with might hony. The LORD E gave strength also to Caleb, which remained with him until age: so that he went up in to the hye place of the londe, and his seed conquered the same: for as heretage: that all the children of Israel might see, how good a change it is, who obeyed unto the LORD. And the mightie ruler: every one after his name: which he wrote not a rebouing, nor departed from the LORD, and that stode the LORD E faithfully, whose remembrance hath a good report: For their bones stode out of the place, and their name shal never be blotted.

Samuel the prophet belored of the LORD, ordeined a king, and anointed the princes over the people. In the lame of the LORD E ruled he, and iudged the congregacion: the LORD E had respect unto Jacob. The prophet was blame blame in his synne: yet is his faithfulness was the faithfulness of the chosen Ennemie. He called upon the LORD the mightie, who the enemies pleased upon him in array: yet, who the enemies he herke the punishment, & upon Jacob the sub ginte of the vengeance. He prophesied recompensacion unto Bynges, and ordeyned prophets after him. He was taken up in the streiten of syne, in a charere of house of the LORDE. He was ordeyned in the reproboun-ce in synne, to pacifie the earth, to turne y-ferten of the sychern into the chyldeyn, to set up the trydes of Jacob agayne. Blisfed were they that saw the, and were garnished in lounes for me lyue in life.

B Elias was conered in the storme, but helicus was selled with him mouth. Why he lyub he was astrayed of no prync, and no man might be ower come him. There coude no woorde disceuse him, & after his deathe his body prophesied. He dyd wonderes in his life, & in deathe were his werkis maruelous. For all this, the people amended not, neither departed they from thur synnes: yll they were caried awaye pfectors out of the londe, and were scattered abroad in all countreys, so that of them there remayned but a very little people, and a peynce unto y house of Da-uid. Some be some of them by right, & so me bened up vngodlymen.

C Ezechian made his cistern stronge, conueyed water in to it, bygged chaine in the stony rock with yon, & made up a well by the water sy-de. Jus his ryme came Sennacherib up, and saw Babyladon, lift up his banke agaynst Sion, & besyged them with greace pyde. The trymbled their hertee and bandes, so y they drowed like a woman trauaylinge with childe. So they called vpon the LORDE, which is meroyfull, & lift up them hāden before him.
Immediately the LORDE herde the crie of heauen, and deliuered them by the bande of Isay. He smote the host of the Assirians, & his angell destroyed the. For Ezechias had done the thinge that pleased the LORDE, & remayned fyd fastly in the wayes of Dauid his father. Which Isay was a greate & faith-full in his vision. In his ryme of Sennacherib he was warde, & he lengthened the Byngis life. With a righe spere punched he Byngis life. Halde comen to passe in the last: & soch an woce soothfull in synn he gave consolacion, wherewith they might comforte thim silue for euermore. He shewed thinges y were sit-te com to secrete, & ceter they came to passe.

The XLIX. Chapter.

A The remembrance of Josu in life as when the Apocary maketh many pe cious scrette smellynge thinges to recher. His remembrance shalbe scrette in heuy in all mounten, and in the playenge of Israhel by the ryme. He was appoynted to carie the people agayne, & to take com-at hominacions of y vngodly. He turned his hert unto the LORDE, & in the ryme of the vngodly he set vpon the worship of the agayne. All Bynges & ceter Dauid, & ceter as y Josias & ceter. And ceter. For they gave their herte unto the, & they had y worship also to a strange people.

Therefore was the cleare crie of the tuary bent with fyre, and the strete laye desolace & wast: for they were remy euill, which neuer helpe was a people ordeyned from his mothers wombe, that might rete out, breake of, & destreyte he might byde up, & plant agayne. He did sawe the glory of the LORDE in vision, which was lyched him upon a der of the Cherubim. For he thynke the enemies in y ryme, & so god was in his owerd ther was a myght. And then of the rymolpe prophesie shew him out of thur place: for they gave comfort consolacion unto Jacob, and dyluthe faithfully. So y shall we persyue which was as a ringe in the right hand.

So was Jesu also the forme of Josias these men in their rymes byde the y set up the Sanctuary of y LORDE ric, which man prepared for an unclasp worshippe. And y Iehosias in all his comended, which set up fyre to the molle were broken downe, made the pones & h-res agayne, and byde our house of new. But upon earth is there no man ted like Iehosias, for he was taken up carch. And Josias, which was lorde of bushien, & the vpholder of his people: his bones were couered & reposed. And y in greace honoure amonge y people so was Adam about all the bestes, wher man created.

prayer bough the LORDE the^y God, that he wolde be mercifull, till the homours of y^e their mynistratione with festyng.

Then went he downe, and stretched out his hands over the whole multitude of the people of Iſſachar, that they should gene praiſe thanks one of their lippen unto of LORD, and to reſtore in his name. So began he to ſing ſay psalms, that he might openly ſhow the thankes givinge before the ſhyſt. namely thus: O gene praiſer & thanks (ye all) unto the LORD our God, which hath done noble and greater things: which hath increaſed our dayes from of mothers wombe, and dealt with us according to his

There be twomanner of people, that I abhorre from my berraman for the churche, whom I hire, it is a no people: They that sye upon the mountayns of Samaria, the philistynes, & the foolish people that dwell in Sichonia.

The LI Chapter.

A play of Jesus the sonne of Sirac.

Thankē the CLORDE and Pynge, 2 and praise the Gōd my Saviour, I trow ye praise pynce vnto f name: for ye are my benefider and helper, 3 I haue pynce my body from defraccion, from y sine of my manye synes, and from the lippes thar are occupied with lyes. Thon haue bene my helper, from such a sote op a galyll me, and haue deliuered me after the multitude of thy myght, and for thy goodly name a sake. Thon haue deliuered me from the rodding of them, that prepared them felouse to occure me, one of y banes of such as soughe from an euillcane cage, from yenge wordes, from the cruel dētyng, and from an myng concomage. My lyf shall praise y LORDE vnto death, for my life shall nye vnto hell.

They despised me without a cause on every side, & there was no man to helpe me. I lifted aboue me, yf there were any man that wol de succore me; but there was none. Then thought I upon his mercy & LORD, and upon thy accesse that thou hast done euer of alke; namely, yf thou bearest it such as puts their trust in thee, and thyselfest thou out of y handes of the heinchen. Thus I lift yf up my prayer from the earth, and prayed for daily uccurance from death. I called upon the LORD my father, that he wolde not leaue me acknowledge and praise the, and magnifie y name of the LORDE.

C What I was yet but yonge, or euer I was as a stray, I beseech y wylde me openly in my prayer. I came therfore before the temple, & I sought her vnto the last. Then flourished she vnto me, as a grape that is borne ripe. My heart reioysed in her, then wente my face the right wayes, yee from youth vp I sought I after her: I bowed downe myne eare and recea-ued her. I founde me meche wylde me, and prospered greatly in her. Therfore wil I ascribe the glory vnto him, that geuech me wylde me: for I am aduysed to do thea after.
I will be gelous to cleue vnto the thinge y is good, so shal I not be eshamed. My son he hath emulged with her, and I haue bene bulgme to be occupied in her. I life vp my-ne hande as an hye, then was my soule lightened thow wylde me, that I knowledged my foolishnes. I aduised my soule a fter her, she & I were one here from the begynninge, and I founde her in cleanness. And therfore shal I not be ashamed.

D My heart longed after her, and I gaue a good creature. Therfore her y LORDE hath geuen me a new tonge, wherewith I wil praise him. O come vnto me ye unlearned, & dwell in y house of wylde me: wherewith I wil praise you from her, but talke & comen of these thinges, for ye are soules are very churche. I opened my mouth, and spake O come & bye wylde me without money, howe dorene ye renew vnder his yod, and youre stule shal receaue wylde me. She is harde at hande, & is a concene so be founde. Beholde with you-re eyes, howe that I haue had but litle laboure, and yet haue founde meche rest. O receaue wylde me, and ye shal haue plenteousnes of silver and golde in possession. Let you-re mynde reioyse in his mercy, & be not ashamed of his pay-se. Wylde hea woold by tyme, & he shal geue
you
your reuerbe in due tyme.

they ruffled in acche backe doore, so se whas the matter was. So when the elders tolde them, the seruantes were greatly ashamed, for whi, there was neuer sode a copone made of Susanna. On the morow after came the people to Iosias his house onbe, and to the doore came also, full of mythe vns purgancies agaynst Susanna, to bange her into death. To pake thus a befor the people. So she sei for Susanna's daughter of Iudah, Iosias wote. And immediately they se for her. So she came w her father & two daughters children & all her kynrede. Tere Susanna was a verbe person, & maruelous fayr dore take of the clothes afrom her face (for she was comely) & ac the cleest, they aughte to be suffred in her house. Then her ferdos, yn all they & her came, begane to wepe.

These two elders stode vp in the myde off the people, & layed eynr bonden vpon y hede of Susanna, which wepte, and blot d yf her face, for hit here had a stre myn in the LORDE. And the elders sayde Ther were moztunges in the otharde alene, this woman came in & hit two mayes whom she leide awaye from her, & sparred y y otharde doores. With chat, a yonge filow (whiche was a may yd) came vnto her, & laye d her. As for we, we stode in a corner of the otharde. And whi we sawe this wylde deamyn to her, percaused, & they had med de together. But we coude not holde him, for he was stronger then we: thus he opened y dore & goe him awaye. Tere whi we had wite this woman, we axed her, wher ydge st-le to this man, so she wolde not tell us. This is y master, & we be witnessen of y same.

The canon fore beloued them, as those y were the elders & widges of the people, & y they condemned her to death. Susanna and ead a leide voyce, & sayde: O mercifull God, when I was a yonge filow, thou y wote all thinges a fore they come to passe: thou wote, & they haue borne false witenes agaynst me: & beholde, I must dye. wher-as I neuer dyd any such thinge, as these men haue maliciously inuened agaynst me.
And y LORDE herde hit voyce. For whi she was befor the doore, y LORDE rader vp y spure of a yonge child, whose name was Daniel, which cryed a loud voice: I am cleme of this blende. The all y people turned the wende him, & saide: Whi meane this wylde, & thou hast spokt Daniel's name in y myde of the, & sayde: There ys such foolen (O ye eldres of Israel) & ye are not wylful: & he we here condemned a daughter of Israel to death, and knowe not the much wylfulnes: O say on indignite agayne, for they haue spokt false witness agaynst her.

Wherfore the people turned a gayne in all the hast. And the elders (chat is, the pricapall heades) sayde vnto him: come hit down here amonge vs, and shewe us this matter, synging God hit y geuen the so greates honoure, as an elder. And Daniel sayde vnto them: Put the two assyde eac from another and then shal I heare them. When they were put a sinder one from another, he called one of them, and sayd vnto him: O thou olde cankered eale, & that hast vnto thy wyldeconesse so longe: thine ungracious deeds which thou hast done afore, are now come to ligthe. For thou hast geuen false iudgmentes, thou hast oppressed the innocent, and leeten the giltles go fre, where as yet the LORDE sheweth: The innocent and eighteous se thou slayest not. Wel than, yf thou hast sone her, tel me, vnder what tre sawest epon them call ynge together? He answered: Vnder a Myldery tre. And Daniel sayde: very wel, Tere thou hast eyn vpon thinre heade. Lo the messenger of the LORDE hath receaved the sentence of him, to cut y in tre.

Then put he him assyde, and called for the other, and sayde vnto him: O thou seer of Canaan, bueno of Iuda: say ynto the yds of Canaan, and luff hath subuerted thine here. Thus deale ye a fore with the daughters of Israel, and they (for feare) consented vnto yoie: but the daughter of Iuda wolde not abyde yowre wyldeconesse. Tere tell me than, vnder what tre didst thou take them spok ynge together? He answered: vnder a pomgranate tre. Then sayde Daniel vnto him: very wel, now thou shalt sone eyn vpon thine heade. The messenger of the LORDE shoneth woytyngs with the fwerre, to cut the in two, and to slaye you both.

With chat, all the noble multitude ga-ue a greates shout, and praysed God, which allwaye deliuereth them: & put the trust in him. And they came vnto the two elders, (whom Daniel had comenc with their owne mouthe: chat they had geuen false iudgmentes) and deale with them, euen as they an they wolde haue done with their neighbours: & they byd a toching to the la-we of Moses, and put them to death. Thus the innocent blende was saved the same daye.

their daughter Susanna, with Joachim his husbande and all 3 desired: that there was no dishoneste founde in her.

From that day forth was Daniel had in greates reputation in the sight of 3
people.

The ende of the story of Susanna.

The story of Bel, which is the xiii. Chapter of Da nid after the Latin.

I Here was at Babiloe an ymage, called Bel: and there were spent upon him every daye, xij. calkes, xl. shepes, and sixe greates peces of meate. And vnder the tympe rooshipe him self, and weate daylie to bond him: but Daniel wooshipe his owne God. And the tympe sayde vnto him: Why dost thou not worshipe me? he answered and sayde: Because I maye not worshipec thinges, that be made of hondes, but the tympye God, which made heaven and earth, and hath power vpo a all fleyth. The tympe sayde vnto him: thinkest thou not, 3 Bel is a tympye God? Or seist thou not, how much he eateth and drynke every daye? Daniel smiled, and sayde: O tympye god, because a or th yll is: This is but made of claye within, and of metall without, nether canst he care any thinge.

2 Then the tympe was wroth, and called for his prestes, and sayde vnto them: If ye call me not into this, that eateth vp these spesies, ye shal dye: For yf ye can certifie me, that Bel eateth them, then Daniel shal dye, for he hath spoken blasphemie agaynst Bel. And Daniel sayde vnto the tympe: let it so be, as thou hast sayde. The prestes of Bel were xij. besyde their toyues and chyldeyn. And the tympe wente with Daniel in to the temple of Bel. So Bel a prestie sayde: Lo, we wil go out, for thou 3 meate the re: O tympe 3 power in the wyne: then shute the doore fast, and stalle 3 with thim owne sig-necant: and remouen when thou comest in, yf thou syndest not, that Bel hath eaten vp all, we wil suffer death: or els Daniel, that hath lyed vpon vs. The prestes thought them sel-ues sure ymough, for whether 3 elceter they made a pertye intermece, 3 there was in euery, and ate up what there was.

So when they were gone forth, the tympye set meates before Bel. Then Daniel his seruaunt was to bringe offe and cheif he sufficed to bringe out all the ple, that the tympe might see. Then went they out, 3 sparre the doore, sealinge it with tympye signet, and so departed. In 3 morng came the prestes with their wyues and chyldien (as they were wonte to do) and at an dronke vp all. In the mornynge betwene the breake of the daye, the tympe awok, the niel wroth him. And the tympe sayde: Daniel are the scales whole, for he hath answered tympye: he be whole. Then as soon as he had opened the doore, the kinge looked in, and cried with a loud voice: where art thou o Bel, and wroth he is no deate.
Then laughed Daniel, and beheld the tympye: that he shulde not go in, and sayde: I shall the paiement, make the null, whose steppes are these? The tympe sayde: I see the steppes of men, women and chyldeyn.

Then for the tympe was angry, and the prestes, with their wyues and chyldien, they shewed him 3 pertye doores, where the tympye came in, 3 ate up such thinges as was 3 elceter. For the which cause 3 tympe them, 3 bel ymaged Bel in to Daniels temple, which destroyed him and his temple.

And in that same place there was a grete dragon, which chere of Bel was kept. And 3 tympe sayde vnto Daniel: I seest thou, yf this is but a god of metall, as thou liwest, he eateth 3 drinketh of 3 thou shalt saye, that he is no tympye God, therefore shipe him. Daniel sayde vnto 3 tympe: I will worshipec the LORD my God, bein 3 tympye God: as for this, he is not the God of life. But geue me leaue: O tympe: I wil teyry this dragon: which thou hast The tympe sayde: I geue 3 leaue. Then Daniel cooke pitch, steele and hair, and feyth them together, and made semper of this he put in 3 dragons mouth, and dragon burst in sunder: and Daniel sayde there is he whom ye worshipped.

When they of Babiloe herde that, they toke greates indignacion, and gathered together agaynst the tympe, saying: The tympye is become a Iew: alfo, he hath yeb Bel, he hath slayne 3 dragon, and the prestes to death. So they sent 3, 3 sayde: let us haue Daniel, or els we deserue the and thine 3 death.

The scope of Bel.

Now when y^e kynge sawe, that the y^engling was in so sore upon him, & that necessity commended him, he desired Daniel unto them: which cast him into the lions denne, where he was fyve dayes. In the denne there were seuen lions, and they had given them every day two bodes and two sheperds which then were great them, that the y^engling he deuour-ed Daniel.

¶ There was in Jewry a prophet called Isaac, which had made potage, and bre-kef had in a depe plaster, and was goinge into the fildes, for to drynge it so y^e moreen.
But the angell of the LORDE sayde vnto Isaac: go carry the meat: that thou hast in to Babilon, vnto Daniel, which is in y^e lyodenne. And Isaac sayde: LORDE, I neuer sawe Babilon: and so for the denne, I home it not. Then the angell of the LORDE told him by the eappe, and bare him by the paye of the heade, and (thorow a myghtie wynde) set him in Babilon vpon the denne.

¶ And Isaac cryed, in yonge: O Daniel thou seruant of God, haue, take the beate fast, y^e God hath sent y^e. And Daniel sadde: O God, best thou thought upon me: wel, thou neuer forst them that loue the. So Daniel arose, tore and the angell of the LORDE set Isaac in his owne place againe immediately.

¶ Upon the sixth daye, the y^engling wente in betwixt Daniel and in him he came so the

The first Chapter.

Great that Alexander the sonne of Philippe, kynge of Macedonie, wrote forth of the londe of Cedron, and sene Darius a kynge of the persians and Medes:

It happened, that he toke greates warres in hande, wanne very many stronge cityes, and slew many kinges of the earth: goinge thowen to the ends of the world, and getting many spoiles of the people: in so much, that he would be slaine in grates awe of him, that he was his paide in his herce. Now whē he had gathered a myghtie stronge host, and subdued the kinges and people with their prynces, so that they became tributaries unto him: he full fled. And whē he perceived that he must needs be called for his noble places, which he had bene brought up with him of children: he parted his kyngdome amonge them, whyle he was yet alive. So Alexander dyed, aged 34. years, and then dyed.

After his death fell the kyngdome into his prynces, and they occupied it every one in his rowme, and caused them selues to be crowned and yunges: and so by their chidren after them many years, and much wickednesse increased in the world. Out of these came ymigracions out, noble Antiochus the sonne of Antiochus the kynge (which had bene a pledge at Rome): he reigned in the xxxviij. years of the reign of the Ptoles.

In those dayes were there out of Israel wicked men, which moved much people to their cosell, sayinge: Let us go and make a covenant with the heathen, for they are round about us: for since we departed from them, we have had much sorrow. So this bewyce pleased them well, and certayne of the people toke upon the for to go into the heathen, and gave them licence to do after the custome of the heathen. Then for they were in Jerusalem of the lawe of the heathen, and were none circumcised: but they holy Testamēt, and signed them selves with the heathen, to be as they were.

So when Antiochus began to be angry in his kyngdome, he wrote sheldes to occupy the londe of Egypte also, that he might have the dominion of two ryaltes. Then thus entred he into Egypte with a strong host, with charrettes, elephants, horses, and a greates nombre of shippes, and began a warre against Ptolemy the kynge of Egypte. But Ptolemy was a strateg of him, and fled: and many of his people were brought to death. Then Antiochus wanne many stronge cityes, and toke awaye great good care of the londe of Egypte.

And a fter that Antiochus had taken Egypte, he turned againe in the day, and went toward Israel, and came up to Jerusalem with a myghtie people, and many proudly into the Sanctuary, and toke awaye the golden altare, the candlestick, and all the ornaments therof: the table of the shewbread, the pouring vessel, the charygers, the golden spoons, the vials, the crownes, and golden apparel of the temple, and built a house all the waye also the silver and golde, the precious Jewels, and the severer treasures that he had. And when he had taken awaye all together, caused a greates murdres of men, and so fulfilled his malicious pryde, he departed in to his owne londe.

Thus there are greates bewysfull shew in all the londe of Israel. The prynces and the elders of the people mourned, the yung men and the maydens wept, the old men and the maydens were in sorrow, and the sayde bewys of women was thought the byrdgrome and the byrdgrome was mourning: the londe and the people that were therein, was in sorrow: for all the house of Jacob was brought to confusion.

The i. booke of the Machabees.

After two yeres the kynge sent his chamberlaine into the cities of Iuda, which came to Jerusalem with a greace multitude of people, speakeinge peaceable wordes unto the people, but all was disceare: for when they had given him credence, he fell suddenly vpon the citie, and smote it sore, as he desired much people of Irael. And when he had spoyled the citie, he set fyre on it, castinge downe houses and walles on every syde. The women & their children toke they captiue, and led away their cattell. Then buylde they the castell of David with a greace and thicke wall, and much mightie rampiers, & made it a strong holde for them. Beside all this they sette much people and vngodly men to kepe it, standinge with weapons and veyles: garbed in the goodes of Jerusalem, and layed the murtherers became it a thersy castell.

And thus was done so laye waies for the people that comen in to the Sanctuary, and for the small destruction of Irael. Thus they shutt innocent bloude on every syde of the Sanctuary, and defiled it: In so much that the citizens were fayne to depaure, and the cite became an habitation of straungers, byng disolate of hir owne syde, for hir inhabitants were fayne to leaue hir. Hir Sanctuary was cleane wastid, hir holy dayes were turned in to mourninge, hir Sabbathes were had in desolation, and hir hono^r broughte in to raghe. And how greace hir glory was thus, so greace was hir confusion, and hir destruction in so sorow.

Antiochus also the kynge sent one commission into all his kyngdome, that alle the people shalbe heare. These they left every man his lawe, asd alle the heathen agreed to the commandement of kynge Antiochus: For many of the Iudaistes consented thereunto, offeringe vnto Iddols, and defylinge the Sabbath. So the kynge Antiochus sent his messengers with his commission vnto Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Iuda: that they shoulde folow the lawes of the heathen, and so shalbe euer in his offeringe, and in his offeringe of peace offeringe: to be made in the temple of God: & that there shalbe no Sabbath ney hye feast daye be kept: but commandeth, that the Sanctuary and the holy people of Irael shalbe defiled.

He commaunded also that there shalbe kept up ocher altars, temples and Iddols: to offer up swyns flesh and other vncleane beastes: that men shoulde leaue their children vncircumcised, to defile their soules with all manner of vncleaneesse & abhominacion:

The ii. Chap. Ho. 17.

that they might so forget the lawe, and charge all the holy ordinance of God: and that who so ever wolde so do a contrary to the commandement of kynge Antiochus, shoulde suffre deathe. In like manner commaunded he thow out all his realm, and sette rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do these thynges, commaunding the cities of Iuda to do sacrifice vnto Iddols.

Then wente the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the LORD, and committed much euell in the landes: yett and charged out the secret Iudaistes, which had hid them selues in corners and praye places. The thirtieth daye of the moneth Caltan, is the xliij. yeres, sic kynge Antiochus an abhominable Iddol of desolation vpon the altare of God, and they buylde altars thow out all the cities of Iuda on every syde, before the doore of the house, asd in the streetes: where they burnt incense, and by sacrifice. And as for the bolles of the lawe of God, they burnt them in the fyre, and rente them in peeces. What for ever, he was that had a bolle of the Testamente of the LORD founde by hym, yett who so ever embored himself to kepe the lawe of the LORD, the kynge's commandement was, that they shoulde put him to deathe. And thow his ancedite they executed these thynges every moneth, vpon the people of Irael that were founde in the citie.

The fyne and twentye dayes of the moneth, what tyme an they by sacrifice vpon the altare (which stode in the steepe of the altare of the LORD) accordinge to the commandement of kynge Antiochus, they put certayne women to deathe, which had caused their children to be circumcised: Yett only that, but they hanged vpon the chylde by the necke thow out all their beastes, and slewe the circumcisers of them.

Yett were there many of the people of Irael, which breemed in them selues, that they wolde not ease vncleane thynges: but chose rather to suffre deathe, then to be defiled with vncleane meates. So because they wolde not breake the blessed lawe of God, they were cruelly slayne. And this greaueynny was executed very sore vpon the people of Irael.

The ii. Chapter.

¶ In those dayes there byd fide up vnto the Machabees the forme of Symeon the priest out of the kyrryd of Ieremo's to Ie Jerusalem, and dwelt upon the mount of Sion, and had v. sonnes: The eldest was Simeon, called Thasi; Judas, other wyse called Machabees; Eleazar, other wyse called Abaton; and Jonathan, whose fir-name was Apphian. These same the emell, & were done amonge the people of Iuda and Jerusalem. And Mattathias saide: Wo is me, alas that ever I was borne, to se this mi-tery of my people, and y^e p^reterna destruction of the holy cite: thus to sit so still, & beynge besygered in to the handes the enemies, Mac. 1. b. the Sanctuary is come in to the power of strawngre, hit temple is, as it were, a men that hath lost his good name. His precious orna-mentes are caried awaye captiue, his olde men are slayn in the streets, and his yonge men are fallen throughe the sweate of the enemies.

What people is it, that hath noe some possession in hit kyngdome? O who hath not gotten some of hit spoiles? All hit glory is taken awaye. He was a Chene, and now he is become an handmaye. Behold oure Sanctuary, oyr be wyte and honore is waisted awaye, and buyld by the Gene-tiles. What helpe it vs then to lyue? And Mattathias rent his clothes, he and his son-nes, and put sack cloth vpon them, & mou-ned very sore.

Then came the men thither which were sent of kynge Antiochus, to compell such a curse fled in to the cite of Iherusalem, for to do sacrifices and to burne incense vnto Idoles, and to forsake the lawe of God. So many of the people of Iherusalem consented and enclyned vnto them, but Mattathias and his sonnes remained stand fast. Then spake the commissioners of kynge Antiochus, & saide vnto Mat-tathias: Thou art a noble man, of hye reparation and greace in this cite, hauinge saye children and brethern. Come thou thither first, and fulfill the kynges commaundment, like as all the Iherusalem haue done, yee and y^e men of Iuda, and such as remaine at Ierusalem: shalke thou and thy children be in y^e kynges fauoure, and enioyed with golde, silver and great rewardes.

Mattathias answered, and spake with a loude voyce: Though all nations obeye the kyng Antiochus, and fall awaye every man fro his kynges & lawe of their fathers: though they consente to his commaundmentes, yet will I & my sonnes and my brethern, not fall from the lawe oure fathers. God seith vs shalbe: what were not good for vs, that we shalde forsake the lawe and commaundment of God, and to geue vnto the commaundment of kynge Antiochus. Therefore we wil be no such sacrifice, neither breake the statute of the lawe, to geue another waye. And whil he had spoke these wordes, there came one of the Ierusalem, which opened in the sight of al by his sacrifice vnto the Idoles vpon the altar in the cite of Iherusalem, a cookinge of the kynges commaundment.

When Mattathias sawe this, he trow-ned him at the harte, so that his tymbre shaked, and his reyns tumbled for very paine of the lawe. With that he gaue a crye forth, and killeth the Iewes by the altar.
And slouge y^e kynges commaundment, he compelleth him to be sacrifice, & destroyeth the altar at the same tyme: soch a yle hath he to the lawe of God, like as Phineas had to Zambri the sonne of Salom. And Mat-tathias cried with a loude voyce thow-ing, sayinge: Who so is frowne in the lawe, wil kepe y^e commaundment, let him slouge make and his sonnes fled in to the Iherusalem, and left all that were they had in y^e cite.
Many other goodly men also departed in to the wilderness: with their children, their wyues and their cattell, and crymyned therr: for tyranny increased so fast vpon them.

Now when the kynges seruantes sawe the host, which was at Ierusalem, the of David herde, that certayne men had taken the kynges commaundment and gone their waye to the wilderness: they came thither, and chaunced with many partes after them: they followed vnto to fight agaynst them in the Sabbathes, and sayde: Will ye yette rebell? Will ye yette do the commaundment of kynge An-tiochus, and ye shall lyue. They answered: We wil not go forth, neither wil we do the kynges commaundmentes, as if y^e Sabbathes.
Then beganne they to fight agaynst the Ierusalem: so they gaue them noce other sweare, neither cast they one stone atther made fast their pynny places, but saye: We wil dye all in oure innocency, because we shal testifie with vs, that ye p^rue we be wrongeously. Thus they fought agaynst them vpon the Sabbathes, & slouge them and cattell, their wyues and their children the enemies of a thewsande people.

When Mattathias and his sonnes sawe this, they mourned for them: they shaked so vnto one to another: so that they were as one brethern haue done, and fighten outr Iherusalem & for oure lawe agaynst the then when shall they the sooner rote vs out of the larch. So they cōcladed amonge the sūnes at the same tyme, sayenge: What shal we be he that cometh to make battayll aboue upon the Sabbath daye, we will fight agaynst him, & neede we all, as o' brethren? we were marthured fo' hyslawfully. Upō this came the Synagoge of the Iewes vnto the: strongemen of Israel, all such as were forsworn at the lawe. And all they that were fled for perfection, came to helpe them, and to stand by them. In so much that they gaue rebau'doof of men, and slawe the wicked doers in their gelloof, and the vngodly men in their wach. Some of the wicked fled vnto the Gethon, and escaped.

Thus Matathias and his frendes were aboute, and destroyed the aulcers, and circumcised the chyliden, that had not yet receaued circumcission: as many as they found within the coofes of Israel: and foirened mightily vpon their chyliden of pryde, and this ake prospered in their bonden: In so much, that they kepte the lawe agaynst the power of the Gentiles and the Kinges, and gaue no countre their dominion vnto wicked doers.

After this when the tyme drew on fast, that Matathias shalde dye, he sayde vnto his sūnes: I know in pryde and perfection increase, now is the tyme of destruction and wachfull displeasure: Wherefore (o my sūnes) be ye feruent in the lawe, and ispeake sometyng for the Testament of the fathers: call for remembrance what a cōtrauention fathers dyd in their tyme, so shall ye receive greate honoure and an euerlasting name.

Remember Abraham, was not he founde faithful in tentacion, and was a recte-ber vnto him for righteousnesse? Joseph in tyme of his trouble kepte the commaundment, and was made a lord of Egypte. Pharaohs sūne was so feruent for the honour of God, that he payned the couer-ninge of an euerlasting praye. Ioseph for fulfilling the word of God, was made the captayne of Israel. Caleb bare recorde before the congregacion, and receaued an heretage. David also in his mercifull kynnesse, obtained the throne of an euerlasting kynge-dome. And he was gellous and feruent in the lawe, was called up in to heauē. Samanias, Morias and Isaiel remayned steadfast in faith, and were deliuered out of the fyre. Jeremias Daniel beyng vngodly, was saved from them by of the L. you.

And thou ye maye conside there is but all ages sene the worde bygame, that who so euer put their trust in God, were not auaer come. Feare not ye then the wordes of an vngodly man, for his glory is budonge and wretched to daye is he set up, and to morrowe is he gone: for he is turned in to earth, and his memoriall is come to nought. Wherefore (o my sūnes) take good herten vnto you, and quyte your selues liuemen in the lawe: for ye do the thynges that are commaunded you in the lawe of the L O R D E your God, ye shal obtayne greate honoure therin.

And beholde, I knowe that your brother Symon is a man of wysdome: that ye geue care vnto him alwaye, he shal be a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus, he hath euer bene mightie and stronge from his yowth: let him be your captayne, and orde the battayll of the people: Thus shall ye bringe vnto you all those that forsake the lawe, and such as avenge the wronge of your people, and recompense the shēthen agayne, and applie your selues whole to the commaundment of the lawe. So he gaue them his blessing, and was layd by his fathers: and dyed in the LXXV. yere, at Iudob, where his sūnes buried him in his fathers sepulchre, & all Israel made greate lamentacion for him.

The iii. Chapter.

Then stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers steade, and all his brether helpe him: and so dyd all they that helde with his father, and sought with desirefulness for Israel. So Judas gaue his people greate honoure. He put on a baste plate as a gaunte, and arrayed him self with his harness, and defended the host with his sword. In his action he was like a lyon, & as a lyon whelp roaringe at his praye. He was an enemy to the wicked, and he dyed them out: and brened op those, that were dy the people: So that his enemies fled for feare of him, and all the workers of vngodlynes were put to trouble: such losse and prosper-tye was in his hand. This greued by the Kinges, but Judas was greatly reioyced therevnto his ake, and he gaue him self a greates name for euer.

So reuente the towne of Iuba, destroyed the vngodly out of them, carryng awaye the wach from Israel, and recou-ryage such as were oppressid: and the same of him wente vnto the uttermost parte of y earth. Then Apollonius (a prince of Syria) gathered a mightie greates host of the Gentiles: out of Samaria, to fight agaynst Israel. Which when Judas perceived, he turned forth to meet him, foughte with him, slayne him, and a greates multitude with him: the remanents fled, and he took their substance. Judas also took Apollonius owne sword, and foughte with it all his life longe.

When Apollonius (another prince of Syria) herbe says, that Judas had gathered unto him the congregation and church of the faithfull, he says: "I will get me a name and a prayse throughout the realme: for I will go fighte with Judas and them that are with him, as many as have despised the Kinges commandement. So he made him ready, and there wente with him a greates mightie host of the mighty, so slonde by him, and to be awaged of the childre of Israel. And when they came nye unto Bethoron, Judas wente forth agaynst them with a small company. And when his people sawe such a greates host before the, they sayde unto Judas: "How are we able, beinge so fewe, to fighte agaynst so greates a multitude and so stronge? I charge mee be so weery, and have fasted all this daye."

But Judas sayde: "It is a small matter for many to be overcome with strength: for there is no difference to the God of heaven, to deliver by a greates multitude or by a small company: for the victory of the humblest is better than the multitude of the host, but the strength cometh from heaven. Therefore, they come agaynst us with a presumptuous and proude multitude to destroye us, our wyves and our children, and to robbe us. But we will fighte for our lyues, and for our lawes, and the LORD himself shall destroye the before our face: therefore be not ye afeared of them."

As soone as he had spoken these wordes, he leaped suddenly upon the. Thus was he conquered, and his host put to flight. Judas followed upon them beyond Bethoron unto the playne below: where he slew eight hundred men of them, as he withdrew himself into the londe of the Philistines. Then all the Gentiles on every side were afeared for Judas and his brethren: the rumoure of him came unto the Emperours, for all the Gentiles made tell of the warre of Judas.

So when King Antiochus herbe that he was angry in his mynde, for he sent forth and gathered an host of his whole realme, very stronge armies: and opened his treasury, and gave his hostes yeares wages in hande, commending them to be ready at all times.

Nevertheless when he sawe, that there was not money ynough in his treasure, and that thow he had force and power, which he made in 3 londes (as perdue ne of lawes that had bene of olde tyme): his customes and tributes of the londe were diminished: he feared that he was not able to beate the cosse and charge any longer, nor to have such grise, so gave he liburly as he dyd afore, more then the Kinges that were before him.

Wherefore he was heavy in his mynde, and thought to go in to Perside, for the tributes of 3 londes, and so to gather much money. So he left Lysias a noble man of the Kinges bloude, to governe the Kinges bestness, from the water Euphrates unto the borders of Egypte: and to kepe with him the Antiochus, till he came agayne.

Moreover, he gave him half of his hoste and elephants, commending unto him every thinge of his mynde, concerninge the which dwelle in Judea, and Jerusalem: that he shoulde finde out an army agaynst them, to destroye and to take away the power of Israel, and the remanent of Jerusalem: to put out their memoriall from that place, to sit stronge for to inhabite all their countre, and to parte their londe amonge them. Then the Kinge took the other partes of the host, and departed from Antioch (the cite of his realme) over the water of Euphrates, into hundred and xlvj. years, and wente thow the byt countre.

And Lysias chose unto him partly the some of Doimirus, Lycaneus and Gauras, with their men, and the Kinges friends. So he sent with xl. thousande foot men, and w. thousande horsemen, for to go in to 3 londes of Judea, and to destroye it, as the Kinge commanded. So they wente forth with all their power, and came to Emmaus in to the playne side. When the machabees her the rumoure of them, they and their seruantes rote very much silver and golde, for to byche the children of Israel to be their bondmen. There came vnto them also yet more men of warre on euery syde, out of Syria & the land from the palestynes.

¶ Now when Judas and his brether sawe that trouble is creased, and that the hoost wene nye vnto their borders: consideringe if they mighte withen which he commanded to be the people namely, that they shoulde reuerly waite and destruye them: They sayde one to another: Let vs reuerly the becaue of oure people, let vs fighte for oure folke and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congregation was fowne ready gathered to fighte, to praye and to make supplication vnto God for mercy and grace.

¶ As for Jerusalem, it laye voyde, and was as it had bene a wyderness. There wene no man in nor out at it, and the Sanctuary was troden do rone. The aleuantes kepte the castell, there was the habitation of the heathen. The mysh of Jacob was taken awaye, the pype & the harpe was gone from amonge them.

The Iherusalem gathered them together, and came to Maspha before Jerusalem: for in Maspha was the place where they praye do fastenyme. So they fasted that daye, and put fast clothes vpon them, cast as shes vpon their heder, rente their clothes, and laye the synthe bodies of the lawe: whereout J. Hieron soughte the lickenesse of char ymagis) and broughte the puffed ornaments, the fastinges and the Tythes. They sit there as if the asseymers (which had fulfilled their dayes) before God, and cried with a loud voyce to waite heauen, sayinge: what shal we do with these? and whither shall we carry them awaye?

¶ For thy Sanctuary is troden downe and desyle, thy prestes are come to heuynesse and dyspoynture: and b: holde, the heathen are come together for to destruye vs. Thon knowe: what thinge the ymagis against vs. howe maye we stonde be fore them, excepte thou O God be oure helpe:

¶ They hieue oute the competes as if with a loud voyce. Then Judas ordered as p: hym ouer the people: ouer thousandes, o: hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. But as for such as buryed them honfes, matied wyues, plantied them vnyngardes, and those that were fearfull: he commaunded them eury man to go home, accordinge to J. lare. So the hoost remoued, and pitched vpon the South syde of Emmaus.

¶ And Judas sayde: Arise youre selues, be stronge (o my children) make you ready to gaynste tomorrow in the morninge, that ye maye fighte with the people, which are agated together to destruye vs & oure Sanctuary. Better is it for vs to dyen batayll, then to se oure people and oure Sanctuary in such a miserable case. I truste this, as I will in is heauen, so be it.

¶ Then rose Gorgias fyne thousande of men of force, and a thousande of the best housmen: and remoued by night, to come nye where J. Jemes hoost laye, and so to slaye them suddenly. Now the men that kepte the castell, were the obeyers of them. Then arose Judas to smyte the cheft and principall of the thiege hoost of Emmaus, for the army was not yet come together. In the meane season came Gorgias by night in to Judas tentes: when he founde no man there, he soughte them in the moystaynes, and thoughte they had bene fled awaye because of hun. But whis it was doie, Judas shewed himself in J. felde with thie thousande men only, which had nerther harnesse nor sweade to their mynbes.

¶ But on the other syde, they sawe that the heathen were myghtie and wel harnessed, and their haufnes aboute them, and all these wel experie in fectes of warre. Then sayde Judas to y men that were with him: Feare not ye the multitude of them, be not affrayed of their violenta rannynge: remember how oure fathers were deliuered in the red see, when Pharaos cheuened them with a greates hoost. 1. Mac. 2 this booke before your face this daye: And all Iudithen shal knowe, that it is God himselfe which deliuereth and saueth Israel.

The i. booke of the Iudithabers.

Then the Iudithen lift up their eyes: and reioyce they sawe that they were commynge agaynst them, they wente out of their tentes in to the battayll: and they that were wth Iudas, bleme up the trompettes. So they dudded to gather, and the Iudithen were discomfited, and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hymn of hymns of them were slayne. For they folowed vpon them vnto Asaremoch, and in to the feldeo of Iudaea towardes Agor and Iammia: so that there were slayne of them vpon a thys choas and ten men. So Iudas turned agayne with his hooff, and sayde vnto the people: Wenee greyde of y^e spoyles, we haue yet a battayll to fighte for: For grian y^e hooff are here by vs in the mountaynes, but stonde ye fast agaynst our enemies, and ouer come them: then maye ye safely eate the spoyles.

As Iudas was speakynge these wordes, there appeared one parte of them vpon the mount. But when Gargian sawe that they of his partie were fled, and the tentes burnt vp: for by the smoke they mighte vnderstande what was done: they perceauinge this, were very sore a frayde: and when they sawe also that Iudas and his hooff were in y^e felde ready to stryke battayll, they fled euerychone in to the londe of the Iudithen.

So Iudas turned agayne to spoyle the tentes: where they gat much golde and syluer, precious stones, purple & greate riches. Thus they wente home, and sung a psalme of thanksgewynge and praysed God in heauen: for he is gracious, and his mercy endureth for euer: And so Israel had a greate vic tory in that daye.

Now all the Iudithen that escaped, came and tolde Lysias euery thinge as it hap pened. Wherefore Lysias was sore a frayde and grieved in his mynde, because Israel had not gored soch myffourne as he wolde they shoulde, as he the kyng commaunded. The nexte yere folowynge, gathered Lysias thys score thousande chosen men of force, and thys thousande horsmen, to fighte agaynst them.

So they came in to Jewry, and picched their tentes at Bethsai, where Iudas came agaynst them with centheusande men. And when he sawe so greate mighte in his hooff, he made his prayer and sayde: Bles sed be thou (o sanctoure of Israel) which diddest destroye the violence power of the giant te, in the bonde of thy seruant Daud, as gaught the hooff of the Iudithen in the londe of Jonathan (the sonne of Saul) and of his rosen beater.

Thus this booke now in to the bonde of y^e people of Israel, and let them be comforted in that mulcitude and horsmen. Make them a frayde, & discomfite the holmes of their strenght, & they maye be made to knowe their destitucion. As se them bene the rowe the sword of thy leones, then shal all they that knowe thy name, praye the much thanksgewynge.

So they stode at the battell, and there was the yue of Lysias hooff, thys thousande men. Then Lysias synged the discomfite of his men, and the manifeste of the Iocoe, howe they were ready, ether to have ouercome life men: he wente vnto Amiche and des troye men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they mighte come appoyne in to Jewry. Then sayde Iudas to his brethren: beholde, our enemies are discomfited: let us now go up, to clepe and to enter the Sanctuary.

Upon this, all the hooff gathered them together, and wente up vnto mount Bethsai: when they sawe the Sanctuary looke waulke the outler besyde, the deus downe the shambles greynge in the cautes, like as in a web or upon moorwaynes, yet so that the priestes Celles were broken downe. They rent their clothes, made great lamentacion, cast asphres vpon their habes, and borne flar to the ground, makinge great noyse with the trompettes, and cryinge be heauen.

Then Iudas apoynted certayne men fighte agaynst those which were in the caute, all they had clensed the Sanctuary. So y^e chose priestes y^e were undefiled, for as had pleasure in the lawe of God: and they des troyed the Sanctuary, & bare out the defilement in to an vncleane place. And so in The i. booke of the Maccabees.

as the altar of burnt offerings was with stand, he took away the same, what he might do withall, so he thought he was best to destroy it, lest it should happen to do them any harm, for the Gentiles had defiled it, & therefore they built it downe. As for the stones, they layed them upon the moun-taine by the house in a convenient place, all where came a prophet to shewe, what should be done with them.

So they took the whole stone, according to the lawe, and buried a new altar such one as was before, and made up the Sanctuary within and without, and hallowed the court againe. They made new ornaments, & brought of candlestick, the altar of incense, and the table in the temple. The incense layed they upon the altar, & lighted the lampes which were upon the candlestick, that they might burne in the temple. They set the shewbread upon the table, and hanged up the vail, and set up the temple, as it was afore. And upon the xx. daye of the ii. month (which is called the moneth of Casleu) in the C. lviij. yea-re, they rose up by tymes in the m. viij. years to be sacrifice (according to the lawe) upon the new burnt offering altar, that they had made, after the tyne and season that y^e Gentiles had defiled it. The same daye was it set up againe, with songes, pipes, harpes and tymbales.

And all the people fell upon their faces, worshipping and thankynge the God of heauen, which had given them the victory.
 So they kept the dedication of the altar viij. dayes, offeringe burnesacrifices and thank offerings with gladness. They decorated the temple also with crownes and steeles of golde, and hallowed the portes and alies, and hanged doores upon them. Thus was there very great gladnes amonge the people, because the blasphemy of the Gentiles was put awaye.

So Judas and his brethren with the whole congregation of Israel, ordered, that the tyne of the dedication of the altar shoul-be kept in his season from yeare to yeare, in the space of viij. dayes, from the xx. daye of the moneth Casleu: yee and that with joy and gladnes.

And at the same tyne buried they up y^e mount Sion with hye walles and stronge towers rounde aboute: lest y^e Gentiles shoul-be come and treade downe, as they dyd afore. Therefore Judas sent men of warre in it, to keep it, and made it stronge, for a defend-inge: that the people might have a refuge agaynst the enemies.

The V. Chapter.

It happened also that when y^e Gentiles rounde aboute herde, how that the altar and the Sanctuary were set up in their owne place, & displeased them very sore, wherefore they thought to destroye the generation of Jacob that was amonge them: In so much that they brigantes to slaye, and to persecute certayne of y^e people.
 Then Judas fought agaynst the children of Esau in Jonnes, and agaynst those which were at Arabathane (for they dwelt rounde aboute y^e Iudasites) where he slew a spoyle a greates multitude of the, & he thought also upon the malice and unfaithfulness of the children of Ben, how they were a snare and snoppe vnto y^e people, and how they layed waite for them in the hye waye: wherefore he shut them up in towres, and came vnto them, & condemned them, and bent up their comens, with all that were therein.

Afterwarde went he agaynst the children of Ammon, whereof he founde a mightie power and a greates multitude of people, with Tymothy by their capteyne. So he strook many battayls with them, which were dismayed to see him. And when he had slay-ne them, he wanne Gazer the cite, with the towres belonginge thereto, and so turned a-gayne in to Jewry. The Gentiles also in Galaad gathered them together, agaynst the Iudasites that were in their quarters, to slaye them, but they fled to the castell of Datheman, and sent letters vnto Judas and his brethren, sayinge: The Gentiles are gathered agaynst vs on every syde, to destroye vs, and now they make the for to come and laye siege to y^e castell, wherunto we are fled, & Tymothy in the capteynshipp of that host: come therfore, and deliuer us out of their han-des: for there is a greates multitude of vs slayne all ready. Yee and our brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne and destroyed: and we a thousande men, and the women, their children and their goodes have the enemies led awaye captyue.

Whyle these letters were yet a readinge, behold, there came other messengers from Galilee, with rente clothes: which tolde them the same tydings, and sayde, that they of presolaima, of Tirus and of Sidon were gathered agaynst them, and that all Galilee was fylled with enemies to destroye Israel. When Judas and y^e people herde this, they came together (a greates congregation) then, that were in trouble and besieged of their enemies. And Judas sayde unto Symon his brother: choyse þy out certayne men, and go deliuer thy brethren in Galilee: As for me and my brother Jomathas, we wyll go into Galasabachim. So he left Josephus & some of Zachary, and Alasias, to be captaynes of the people and to kepe the remnant of the host in Jerusaleme, and commaunded them, sayyng: Take the oversight of this people, and seke that ye make no warre agaynst the heithen, untill the tyme that we come agayne. And when Symon he gaue the thousande men for to go into Galilee, but Judas himselfe had eight thousande into Galasabachim.

C Then wente Symon in to Galilee, and strooke dyuerse barres of the heithen: whom he discomfited, and solomned upon them vnto the porte of Prolomais. And there were slayne of the heithen almost iij. thousande men. So he toke the spoyle of them, and caried awaye the Iudasites (that were in Galilee and Arbasia) with their wyues, their children, and all that they had, and broughte them in to Jerusaleme with greates gladnesse. Judas Maccabees also and his brother Jomathas, wente over Jordan, and trauayled iij. dayes journey in the wylder nesse: Where the Arabians met them, and receaued them loyngly, and tolde the conynginge that had happened vnto their brethren in Galasabachim, and how that many of them were besieged in Darsa, Dofor, Alimin, Casphar, Magasch and Carnow: all these are stronge walled and myghte greates cities: and they were kepte in other cities of Galasabach: and comowen they are appointed to bringe their host vnto these cities, to take them and to wyne them in one daye.

So Judas and his host turned in all the host in the wylder nesse toward Dofor, and wanne this cite, slew all the males with the swerde, toke all their goodes, and set fire vpon the cite. And in the nyght they toke their conynginge from thence, and came to the castell. And by nyght in the morninge when they toke vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearynge labors and other instruments of warre, to take the castell and to ouercome them.

When Judas sawe that the battayll beganne, and that the noysether of wente vp and came in to the heauen, and that there was so greates a crye in the cite: he sayde vnto his host: fighte this daye for your brethren. And so came beynde their enemies in the companie, and blewe vpon trumpets, and cried in their payre to God.

But as soone as Tymothee heere perceiued that Maccabees was there, they fledd from him, and 3 other flewethen were righte fore: so that there were but of them that same daye, almost eight hundred men. Then departed Judas vnto Mithpha, layed siege vnto it and wanne it, slew all the males in it, spoyled it, and set it on fire. From thence wente he and his Calibon, Mithgath, Dofor and the other cities in Galasab.

After this gathered Tymothee another host, which pitched their campe before Bethphon beynde the water. Judas sent to spy the host, and they broughte him wordes againe, sayyng: All the heithen that be rounde aboute us, are gathered vnto him, and the host is very greates: Yet they haue bynde the Arabians to helpe them, & haue packed their tentes beynde the water, and abyde to come and fighte agaynst the. So Judas wente on to come them.

And Tymothee sayde vnto the captaynes of his host: when Judas and his host come nye the ryuer: yf he go ouer first, we shall not be able to withstande him: for why, he will be so stronge for us. But yf he baret we come ouer, so that he pitch his tentes beynde the water: then will we go ouer, for we shal be stronge ynough agaynst him. Now as soone as Judas came to the ryuer, he appointed certayne saryces of the people, and commaunded them, sayyng: Is that place none beynde vpon this syde of the ryuer, but let every man come to the battayll. So he wente first ouer vnto them, and his people after him.

And all the heithen were discomfited before him, and let their weapons fall, and ran in to the temple that was at Gethon. Which cite Judas wanne, and burnt the temple with all that was in it: So was Canaim sabbar, and mighte not withstande Judas. Then Judas gathered all the Iudasites that were in Galasabachim, from 3 left vnto the most, with their wyues and their children (a very greates host) for to come in to the londe of Juda.

So they came vnto Ephron, which was a myghtie, greates and stronge cite, and laye in their waye. For they wende noght by them of the nyghte hounde nor of the left, but must go therow. Yet withoute they were in the cite, wolde not let them go therow, but walled vp the portes with stones.

The booke of the Machabees.

And Judas sent unto the rich peaceable men, sayinge: Let vs passe thorow your lande, that we maye go in to a sure stone, as in there shal no body do you harme, we wil haue only goe thorow. But they wolde not let them in.

Wherefore Judas commanded a proclamation to be made thorow out the booke, that every man shoulde kepe his owne land, and so they dyd their best like valiant men.

And Judas beseged the cite all that daie and all that nyght, and so wonne it: where they slawe as many as were males, and destroyed the cite, and spoyled it, and wote the name of the citie was that they were slayne. Then wente they over Jordan (a to the place that is before Bethsai). And Judas kepeth those that were there come by night, and gave the people good recreation all of myghte, till they were come into the lande of Juda. Thun they wente up vnto the mounte Sion, where they offred with much and chauntynge: because there was none of them slayne, but came home againe peaceably.

Now what tyme as Judas and Jonathan were in the lande of Galaad, and Symon their brother in Galilee before Ptolemas: Then Josephus the sonne of Zacharias and Alisarius the captaines, bearinge of the axen that were bene and of the battell wher they had been slayne: Let us get vs a name also, and go fight agaynst the heathen wher they stande aboute vs.

So they gaue their booke a commande-ment, and wente to the Jammia. Then came Matthias and his men out of the cite, to fight agaynst them: Josephus also and Alisarius were chased into the borders of Jewry, where they layne a daye of the people of Israel. Men so fewe was a greates misfortune for the people, and all because they were not choyce men: Judas and his brethren, but they shoulde quyre them selowman fully. Nevertheless they came not of the sorte of these men, by whom Israel was helped. But the men that were with Judas, were greatly commended in the sight of all Israel and all heathen, where so ever their name was herde of, and the people came to them byddinge them welcome.

Aftir this wente Judas forth with his brethren, and foughte agaynst the children of Esau, in the lande of Sich towards the south where he wonne the cite of Hebron and the towne that lye beside it: and as for the wall and towne rounde aboute it, he bane them up. Then remembred he to go on to the lende of the Philistines, and wente thorow Samaria. At the same tyme were there many iustice slaine in the lende of Sich, withoute a dyscoment wente out for to fight to get them honoure. And when Judas came to Sich in the Philistines lande, he bane downe their altars, he smote the ymagen of their gods, spoyled the citen, and came agayn in to the lande of Juda.

Deut. 7.

The vi. Chapter.

Now when King Antiochus the sonne of Seleucus the hye countrey, he heard that Eliman in Persia was a noble and pienteous cite in silver and golde, that there was in it a very rich temple: he was in clothe, coate armoures and sheldes of golde, which Alexander the forme of philippe King of Macedonia had left behynde him. Wherefore he wente aboute to take the cite and to spoyl it, but he was not able: for the cite was warned of, and foughte with him. And so he fled, and departed with greuous heauynesse, and came agayn in to Babilon. How ever there came one which brought him tidings in Persie, of his heeften which were in the lande of Juda, were brynen awaye, and howe that Lissa wente forth with a greates power, and was brynen awaye of the Jewes: howe they had done the victory, and gonne greates goodes out of the booke the persyshed: howe they had broken downe the abominacion, which he set up upon the altare at Jerusalem, and sende the Sanctuary with hye wallen, like as it was afore: yea and Bethsara his cite also.

for his grete was that more and more, so that he sawe he must needs dye. Therefore he sent for his frendes, and sayde unto them: I slepe is gone from mine eyes, for I may forsaue a sacrifice of heres that I have. For when I confide in my mynde, I greates a sacrifice that I am come unto and the pleasures of myneste which I am in, where an after tyme I was so merry, and so greatly set by (by reason of my power) Against considering that I have done at Jerusalem, from whence I rove all my riches of golde and silver that were in it, I sent so forth always the inhabitants of Jewry without any reason why I knowe, that these troubles are come upon me for the same cause. And behold, I must dye with grate sorrow in a strange londe.

Then called he for one Phylippe a frende of his, whom he made ruler of all his realme and gave him the crowne, his robe and his ringes: that he shoulde call his some Antiochus unto him and bringe him up, till he might raigne himself. So the kynge Antiochus dyed there, in the xlvij. year. When Lysias knewe that the kynge was dead, he ordered Antiochus his sonne (whom he had brought up) to raigne in his fathers steade and called him Eupator. Then they that were in the castell at Jerusalem kept in the Jewes house above the Sanctuary, and sought ever still to do them harme, for the strengthenynge of the Jewes.

Wherefore Judas the right to destroye them, and called all the people together, that they might laye siege unto them. So they came together in the C. lxx. and beseged: he layenge forth their ordnance and instruments of warre. Then certayne of them that were beseged wente forth (unto whom some ungodly men of Israel in yerd the place also) and wente unto the kynge, so theye: how longe will we be, as thou knowest and avenge our brethren: We have bene ever mynided to do thy further service, to walke in his statutes, and to obey his commaundementes: Therefore our people fill from us, and whereto ever they founde any of us, they slawe them: and they have not only medled with us, but with all our countreies: and behold, this daye as they beseginge the castell at Jerusalem, and have made up the strengthen holde in Bethsura: And yf thou dost not pursue them right soone, they will do more then this, and thou shalt not be able to avenge them.

When the kynge herde this, he was very angry, and called all his frendes, the captaines of his fore men and of all his host men together. He bynd men of weareth out of other realmes and out of the Jewes of the sea, which came unto him. And the number of his host was an hundred thousand: he fore men, and twenty thousand horse, and xxiij. Elephants and twelve hundred bowmen. These came thither to Jerusalem into Bethsura, and beseged it a long season, and made diverse instruments of warre against it. Then the Jewes came out and burnt them, and sought like men. Then departed Judas from the castell at Jerusalem, and returned his host to a citie Bethsura over against the Tynges army.

So the kynge arose before the day, and brought the power of his host in to Jerusalem, where the hostes met them to the battayle, blowing the trumpets. And as proud the Elephants in the fight, they showed them the hope of no graven and malice. And heard the Elephants among the hostes, as they brought Elephants there stood a M. men without, and helmentes of stele apent the bodies: And unto every one of the Elephants, were ordered v. C. bowmen of stele, which waited of the Elephants, goinge after them so ever he wente, and departed not from him. Every Elephant was covered with a cover of reed, where upon were xxiij. soldiers with weapons to fight, and that was a man of Jude to take the best.

As for the remnant of the best, he set them upon both the sides in two parties with trumpets, to provoke the host, and to stare up idly as they stood in the army. And when the Sonne shone upon their bodies of golde and stele, the mountaynes glowed againe at them: there was as bright as the brightness of fire. The Tynges host also was decayed, one part upon the hill, the other part upon the hill: they were on the yinge good bette, and keeping them down. And all they that were in the host, were afraid at the noise of their host, and the multitude of men, and when the weapons were together, for the host was broken in pieces, and they were. Judas also with his host entered in to the battayle, and slew v. C. men of the Tynges army.

Then when the Elephants the sonne of Samud stood one of the Elephants before the Tynges badge, and was a more goodly best than the other: he thought that he might strike him, and in per he himself to deliver his people, and to get him a perpetual name.

Wherfore he ranne with a courage vnto the helpance in the myddest of the hooff, sayinge than became of both the sydes, and serue many a soule him. So wente he to the helpance fere, and put him vnder him, and slawe him: then sell the helpance ouer vpon him, and there he dyed. Iudas also and his men fringed the power of the King, and the mightie violence of his hooff, be yured from them. And the kynge armye rose vp agaynst them towardes Jerusalem, and pitched their tentes in Jewry besyde mount Sion. Without the kynge coterne as a man whom they were in Bethsura. Due when they came out of the cite be cause they had no wyales nether, and the kinge was mylled: he kynge toke Bethsura, and furnished to kepe it, & turned his hooff in the place of the Sanctuary and layed siege vnto a greete whyte. Wher he mende all maner ordinaunce: handbowes, fyre bowes, adances to cast stones, scorpions to shoute, arrows, and synges. The Jewes also made a bulwance agaynst them, and foughte a long season.

Due in the cite there were no wyales, so it was the seventh yere of the warre, and those which then remayned in Jerusalem euen vp all their stowe. And on the Sanctuary were six men left, for the hange came vpon them, that they were seaued abode euery man to his owne place.

So when Iudas herde, that Philippe whom Antiochus the kynge whyle he was in synage, had ordered to linge vp Antiochus his sounre, that he might be kynge: we come agayne out of Persia and Media to take the kynge's hooff, and thonghe so spraye the kynge's hooff: the gae him to the kynge in all the pass and to the capesynes of the hooff, and sayde: we beate dayly, and eate wyales are but small: Agayne the cite that we lay siege vnto, in very strait stande: were our parte to se for the realtie. We wold agree wth them men and eate it wth them, and wch all their people, and giue them to hve after their lawe, as they doth a fore. So they be greued and do all the thinges agaynst vs, because we haue besyde their lawe. On the kynge and the princes were content, and sent vnto them to take paye, and they receaued it. Now whyle the kynge and the princes had made an ally vnto them, they came out of the castel, and the kynge wete vp to mount Sion. But when he sawe that a place was wel fenced, he wote the decept that he had made, and com manded to destroye the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the pass, and returned vnto Antioche, where he founde Philippe hauynge dominion of the cite. So he soughte agaynst him, and toke the cite agayne in to his handes.

The vii. Chapter.

¶ The xli. yere came Demetrius, sonne of Seleucus from a cite of Rodas with a small company of men, vnto a cite of the sea coast, and there he bare rule. And is chaunced that when he came to Antioche the cite of his progenitors, his hooff toke Antiochus and Lysias, to bringe them vnto him. But when he was toke him, he said: let me see if they faue. So the hooff put them to death. Now when Demetrius was set vpon the throne of his kyngdome, there came vnto him wisde and valyous men of Israel: whose captyne was Alcimus, that welde haue bene made hys priest. These men accused the people of Israel vnto the kynge, sayinge: Iudas and his brethren haue slayne thy frendes, and dryuen vs out of oure owne londe. Wherfore sende now some man to whom thou giest credence: that he maye go and se all the destruction, which he hath done: vnto vs and to the kynge's londe, and let him be punished wth all his frendes and fauourers.

Then the kynge chose Zacharias a stonde of his, which was a man of greete power in the realme: beyonde the greete water, and sayd full vnto the kynge: I am sent him to se the destruction that Iudas had done. And as for those wicked Alcimus, he made him hys priest, and commaunded him to be a gouernour of the chyldren of Israel. So they stode vp, and came wth a greete hooff in to the londe of Iudas, serbinge messagers to Iudas: his bachelers, & speakinge vnto them wth peaceable wordes: but vnder disceite. Therfore Iudas & his people belened not their sayes, for they sawe: they were come wth a greete hooff.

¶ At this came a scribe together vnto Alcimus & Zacharias, trussinge the best vnto them. And first, Alcimus requyred peace of them, sayinge: Alcimus a priest is come of the side of Iudas, how can be differ vnto? So they gaue them louge wordes, & swore vnto them, and sayde: we wil be you no harme, neither your frendes: and they belated them. But the very same daye toke they the men of them, & slawe them: cording as it was ordeined: they haue cast a fleshy of a sancte, & shed their bloude redde aboute Jerusalem, & there was no man that wold burye the

C So there came a greates feare and drede amonge the people, sayenge: there is nerher trust nor righteousness in them, for they have broke the appoyment and oath that they made. And Bathyas remened his hoost from Jerusalem, and pitched his campe at Bethzach: where he sent forth, and cote many of them that had forsaken him: the flewe many of the people also, and caste them in to a greeke yere. Then committed he the londe vnto Alcimus, and left men of warre with him to helpe him, and Bathyas himself wente vnto the kynge. And thus Alcimus defended his his pasthede, and all such as were of Israel, restored vnto him: In so much that they openyed the libe of Juda, and vnto much well vnto the Israelites.

Now when Judas sawe all the myschefe that Alcimus and his company had done (yet more then the heathen them selues) vnto the Israelites: he wente forth to be abonte all the borderes of Ienny, and punished those vnfaithfull renegates, so that they came no more out in to the countrey. So when Alcimus sawe, that Judas and his people had gotten the upperhande, and that he was not able to abyde them: he wente a gayne to the kynge, and sayde all the worst of them that he coude. Then the kynge sent Ticanor, one of the chiefe paynes which beareth weyl vnto Israel: and commaunded him, that he shoulde utterly destroye the people.

So Ticanor came to Jerusalem with a greates hoost, and came vnto Judas and his brethren with frendly wordes (but under disceate) sayenge: there shal be no warre betwixt me and you: I wil come with a few men, to se how ye do, with frendshipe. Upon this he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but the enemies were appoynted to take Judas by violence. Nevertheless it was tolde Judas, that he came vnto him vnder disceate: wherefore he gat him awile from him, and wolde se his face no more. When Ticanor perceiued that his counsell was betrayed, he wente out to fight agaynst Judas, besyde Copharsalama: Where there were slayne of Ticanors hoost. XL. men: the residue fled vnto the castell of Dami.

After this came Ticanor vnto moste Sion, and the priestes with the elders of the people wente forth to salute him peaceably, to shewe him that borne sacrifices were offered for the kynge. But he laughed the to scorne, mocked the, despyed their offerings, and spake vnbarely, yet and saue in his word, sayenge: If Judas and his brethren be departed now in to my handes, as I am as yet: I come agayne (and sayd) I shal burne vnto this house. With that, were he out in a greates anger. Then the people came in, and stode before the eules of the temple, and purged sayenges: For so me shal we remembre the blasphemies of them, that in name might be called vpon them, why shuld we an house of prayer and peticion to thy people: We aduenged of this man the hoost, and let them be slayne with that remembre the blasphemies of them, and thus them not to continue any longer.

When Ticanor was gone from Jerusalem, he pitched his campe at Bethpennas: there on hoost met he out of Sion. And Judas came to Abasfa with iij. M. men, and his prayer vnto God, sayenge: O Lord, because the messengers of thyng be damned, because they blasphemed the, the angel wente forth, and slewe on Elery. thou shalt be of them: thou shalt destroye thou this hoost before we warre: that other people maye knowe, howe the he hath blasphemed thy Sanctuarie and synneth him, according to his malicie which.

And so the hoostes fought the fild, in thirteenth daye of the month Abis: in Ticanors hoost was discomfited, and himself was first slayne in the battell. When Ticanors men of warre sawe that he was kyled, they cast away their weapons and fled: but the Jewes followed vnto them an whole dayes iourney, from Beze vnto Casara, blowinge with their pikes, and makinge them so flie them. So the Jewes came forth of all the countrey to be aboute, and blew out their homes from them, and turned agaynst them: Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them left.

Then they take their substance for a pay, and smoxe of Licanos heare 2 his right honore (which he helde up so proudly) and broughte it with them, and hanged it up in Jerusalem. When see the people were standingly enuoyed, and possed over that dayen greates glabnesse. And Judas ower-ruled that 3 same daye namelye the xij. daye of the month Adar shoulde be kepte in myghty merye. Thus the honde of Juda was myghty a litle while.

Judas heare also the fame of the Romaynes that they were mightie and valourous men, a grentle to all thinges that are requayred of them, 2 make peace with all men, which come vnto them, and how they were daughtry men of strength. Wherfore he, it was a colde him of their barons 2 noble aces which they byd in Galilee, how they had conquered them and brought them vnder tribute: and what great things they had done in Spayne, how that with that wysdome and sober behauiour they had wonne the allynes of Syluer and golde that are there, and opened all the lande, with ocher places farre from the: how they had discomfited and slayne downe the kynge that came vpon them from the western parte of the earth, and how ocher people gaue them tribute every yeare: how they had slayne and ouercome Philippe and Persia kynge of Cethum and ocher againe in Asia, which had broughte their ouerthrowe against them: how they discomfited grace Antiochus kynge of Asia (that wold neuer fight w them) hauynge an hundred and xx. elephantes, with his men, chere and a very greates host how they set him self alyue, and ordered him (with such as he wold raigne a fyer him) to paye the a greates tribute, yee and to fynde the good honore and ptege: Wherfore all this, how they had sett from him India, Medea and Lybia (the best loundes) and gaue them to trowe their stronge holdes, and subbed the to be their bonde man vnto this daye. After war, how 3 as for ocher kyngdomes 2 Asia, which sent yme with fode the, they destroy wher so came herde of their enemies, was a staye of them: for whom they wold helpe to their kyngdomes, the 3 raigne: 2 wher theyd aoe them to raigne, they put him downe.

And how they were come to greates pre-eminence: hauynge no kyng amonge the, ne ther any man clothed in purple, to be magni-fick there: the 3 wold had ordered the felow a parliament, where in there shoulde, and xx.

they chose a kyllayre, to haue the gouerna-ment of all their londe: to whom every man was obedient, and 3 there was neither warl wold

Then Judas chose Eupolemus the sonne of Ithen the sonne of Jacob, 2 Iason the sonne of Eleazar, 2 sent the vnto Rome for to make frendshipe 2 a bonde of loue w them: 3 they might take frum them the bondage of 3 Greece, for 3 Jewes same 3 the Garkes wold subbed the kyngdom of Israel. So they went vnto Rome, a very greates journey: 2 ca-fil thin charge at the Romaynes pleasure, & take nothing from them therfore. Al gaine yf the people of the Jewes haue first to haue matter, the Romaynes shal stande by the with a good will, accordinge as the tyme wil suffice. After that they came vnto the Jewes enemies, & scales, weapons, & money ner shippes. These are the Romaynes content to do, & shal fulfill their charge without any distaste.

Accordinge to these articles, the Romaynes made the bande with the Jewes. Now after these articles (sayde they) yf any of the parties wil put to them, or take any charge from them they shal do it with the consente of both; and what so ever they abbe them vnto them, or take from them, it shal stande fast. And as touching the euell that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue written vnto him, sayinge: Wherfore layest thou thy heavy yoke vpon the Jewes our frendes and louers? If they made in any complaynte of the agayne vnto vs, we shal defende them, and fight with the by us and by londe.

The xx. Chapter.

ALTHOUGH season when Demetrius harde that Licanor & his host was layne in the felde, he proceeded further to sende Barchides and Alcimus againe in to Jewry, and those that were in the right wyng of his host, with them. So they were forth by the waye that ledeth vnto Galgala, and pitched their tentes before Mesaloch which is in Arbellis, and waunte the ciety, and slew many people. In the first moneth of the Clivyear, they brought their host to Jerusalem, and toke up and came to Berea, with xx. III. force men, and ii. III. horsemen.

Now Judas had pitched his tente at Aisa, with the thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multitude of the chiefe army & it was so greates, they were sore affrayed, & many conveyed them selves out of the host. In so much & there abode no more of them but viij. C. men. When Judas sawe that his hoste failed him, and that he must needs fighte with the herte, & he had no ryng to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extremite trouble. Therwith allest he sayde vnto them, & remayned with him: Up, let vs go agaynst our enemies, peradventure we shal be able to fighte with them. But they wolde haue sleept him, sayinge: we shall not be able, therefore let vs nomynne oure iyaos, and turne agayne to our brethren, and then wil we fighte agaynst the, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayde: God forbid, that we shoulde flee from them. Wherfore yf our tyme be come, let vs be manfully for oure brethren, and let vs slayne our honoure. Then the hoste numbered one of the tentes, & stode agaynst them. The horsemen were decayed in two parties: the syngre casters and the archers were before the hoste, and all the migration was somewhat in the felde. Barchides himself was in the right wyng of the battell, & the hoste were nye in two parties, and blew the trumpettes. They of Judas syde blew the trumpettes also, & the earth shoke at the noise of the hostes, and they stode a fide from morninge vntill hye. And when Judas sawe Barchides hoste was stronger of the right syde, he toke with him all the heavy me, and brake the right wyng of their owne, and so loved vpon them vnto the mount Aza.

Now when they which were of the left wyng, sawe that the right syde was before hande, they persecuted Judas and them that were with him. Then was there a great battell, for many were slayne and wounded of both the parties. Judas also himselfe was byll, and the remnant fled. So Jonathan & Symeon & Judas their brethren, and with him in his fathers sepulchre in the cite of Bethdin. And all the people of Israel made great lamentacion for him, and mourned long, sayinge: Alas, that this worthy man shoulde slayne, which deliuered the people of Iuda. As for other thinges pertainyng to the battell of Judas, the nobles agree that he and o f his worthy men they are not dead, for they were very many.

And after the death of Judas, which came up in all the coastes of Israel, wher he arose all such as wolde vngodly. In these dayes was there a greates battell in londe, and all the countrey gaue earthen to them & theire vnto Barchides. So Judas chose viij. C. men, and made them londe the londe. These song he on and made hunt for Judas frendes, and brought them to Barchides: which answered himselfe upon it with greates displice. And there came fighte to trouble in Israel, as was not seen the man that no prophete was sent then.

Then came all Judas frendes together and fyde vnto Jonathan: for so much in thy brother Judas we deere, there is none left him to go forth agaynst & enemies, agaynst Barchides, and soch as are aduersaries vnto our people. Wherfore this daye we will fighte for him, to be oure paynce and capayne in the first battell. And Jonathan took the garrisons upon him at the same tyme. and ruled in shewe of his brother Judas.

When Achabees gat knowledge thereof, he sought for to slay him: But Jonathan and Symon his brother, perceauinge that, fled into the wilderness of Ephraim with all their company, and pitched their tentes by the water side of Aijalon.

Whiche when Achabees vnderstode, he came ouer Jordan with all his hoste vpon of Sabbath daye. Nowe hnd Jonathan (in his brother) whom a captayne of the people) to paye his frendes the Labubbeas, & they wold leaue them their ordinaunce, for they had much. So the children of Jambai came out of Nababab, & toke them all. & he had, & wente therein wye withall. Then came wreth Jonathan & Symon his brother, & the children of Jambai made a greates marriage: & broughte of hyde from Nababab with great pompe: for he was broughte one of the noblest prynces of Canaan. Wherefore they remembred the bloude of Ithas their brother, and wente a p, and had them selues wreth the shadowes of the monnes yre.

So they liue up their eyes, and lecher: and beholde, there was much a doo, & greates repaye for the byegone came forth, & his frowe and his hit chere met them with cym-pays, instruments of musick, and many muskets. Then Jonathan and they that me with him, rose out of their slouthinge places agaynst them, and slewe many of them.
As for the remnant, they fled into the y mountynes, and they toke all their substance.
Thas the marriage was turned to mourninge, and & none of their melody into lamentation. And so when they had awenged the bloude of their brother, they came agayne into Judah.

Achabees hearinge this, came vnto & retyred into Jordan with a greates power vpon the Sabbath daye. And Jonathan for the his companye: & get up, & fyghte agaynst their enemies: for it stonde not with us to baye, as in tymes past. Beholde, all mennes are in our weye, & wraue of Jo-dane vpon the one syde of vs, with handes frowe and widdes of & other syde, so & the it is no place for us to departe vnto. Wherefore we are now vnto heauen, that ye maye be deliuered from the power of youre enemies.
So they strode the battell. And Jonathan slew out his honde to furee Achabees, but he fled backwarde. Then Jonathan and they that were with him leaped into Jordan, & swymmed ouer Jordan vnto him, & there were slayne of Achabees fyue hundred, & a thousande men.

Thereupon Achabees w his hoste came agayne to Jerusalem, & buylded up y castles stronge holdes that were in Ieremy. Jericho, Elmas, Bethoon, Bethel, & hanna, Pharira & Tapha, & hys walles, & porces & wryth lockes: & set maner tope them, & they mighte use their malice vpon Iherusalem. He wallded vpon Bethsura, & Bazar & the castles at Ierusalem also, & prayded them w men & wyuals: & he toke also the chiefe men somes in the coun-tre for pledges, and put them in the castles at Jerusalem to be kepte.

Afterwards in the Chij. yere in the secenthe moneth, Alcinus commaunded, that y walles of the ynnest Saccada y sholde be destroyed, & the buyldinges of y prophetes also. And when he beganne to destroye this, y thinges & he wote aboute, were hymned for for he was synner in a paltry, & his mouth shute, so & he coude noma speake ner commaunde any of his house concerninge his businesse. Thus dyed Alcinus in greates misery at the same tyme. And when Achabees sawe y Alcinus was deeth, he caught a gayne to y buyld, & for the longe was in rest y yeres.
Then all the vngodly men helde a counsell, sayenge: Beholde, Jonathan and his com-panye are at ease, & dwell without care. What fo-relet vs bringe Achabees hither, & he shall take them all in one night.

So they wote y gaud Achabees this coun-cell, whiche at to come w a greates hoste, & sent letters priuely to his adherentes whiche were in Ieremy, to take Jonathan & those & were with him: but they mighte not, for the other had gotten knowledge of their dooers.
And Jonathan toke L. men of the countrie (whiche were the ryngelers of thair fellowes). Then Jonathan and Symon & their company departed vnto the cite Bethsura, whiche lye in the wilderness, and repayded he decaye thereof, & made it stronge. When Achabees knewe this, he gathered all his hoste, and sent word to them that were of Jeremy. The came he and layd siege to Beth-sura, and song he agaynst it a longe season, and made instruments of warre. Then Jo-athan leste his brother Symon in the cite, and wente forth himself in to the countrie, and came with a certayn number, and slewe Achabees and his brotheres and the children of Phasiron in their tentes: so & he began-ne to be stronge, & to increase in power.

As for Symon and his company, they 111 wente out of the cite, and bilt vp the infranices of walle, and fonght agaynst Bachides, and despoiled him. And Barchides was som vexed, because his counsell and counsaile was so vayne. Wherefore he was wroth at his walden men, that gaue him counsell to come in to their lordes, and slew many of them.

Then purposed he with his company to go awaye in to his owne countie: wherof whē Jonathas had knowledge, he sent ambassisours vnto him, for to make peace betwixt him, and he shoulde deliuer him his prisoners agai-ne. To the which Barchides consented gladly, and dyd accordinge to his desire: yee and made an oeth, that he shoulde neuer do him harme all the dayes of his life. So he restored vnto him all the prisoners that he had taken out of the lande of Iuda, and shēned and wente his waye in to his owne lon-de, necher persecuted he any farther, to come vnto his lordes of Iuda. Thus Ierem had no more warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machmas, and begarne there so gouernie the people, and despoyle the vngodly men out of Ierem.

The X. Chapter.

In the C. li. yere came Alexander of some of noble Anischnos, and eke Ptolemas, whose cinsins receaued him, and there he reigned. When Demetrius had beene there, he gathered an exceddinge greate hoost, and wete south agaynst him to fight. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas with louyng wordes, and prayed him greatly. For he sayde: we will first make peace with him, before he bynde him selfe with Alexander agaynst vs: so he shall remembre the euill that we haue done agaynst him, his brother and his people. And so he gaue Jonathas leue to gather an hoost, to make weapons, and to be confidente to him, and commaunded the pledges that we re in the castell, to be deliuered vnto him.

Then came Jonathas to Ierusalem, and red the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were in the castell. For therefore were they fowle of ayde, because they herde, that the kynge had greeue him to gather an hoost. Thus were the pledges deliuered vnto Jonathas, which restituted them to their elders. Jonathas also went at Ierusalem, and began to bilt vp walle, to repaire the cite: commaunding the write men, to walle it, and the mason shoulde be aboute with fire stone, to be a strengthe-de, and so they dyd. Also for the children that were in the castell, which Barchides had made vp, they sleight that every man left the place, and wete in to his owne countie. So ly at Ierusalem remained caryage of the Iewes, which had forsaken the lande and mentenances of God, for which he their refuge.

Thus when kynge Alexander hadde of promises, he Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when he was to take him of the cels and noble aces, which he and his children had borne, and of the greate trauail that they had taken: the so he wrote him syndersuch a moost, we will make him re friends, and be confederate with him. Vpon this he wrote a letter vnto him, and the desire: kinge Alexander shal reue his knyghte Jonathas. We haue herbe of the, & thou art a valiant man, & mee to be of friends: wherre this daye we ordaine the to be the kynge of thy people, and to be called the kynge of thy people, & a crowne of golde: & thou mayst confide what is for our profit, & the people shoulde reuenge vs.

So in the viij. moneth of the C. li. yere upon the solempne feast daye of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy rayment vpon him. Then gathered he an hoost, & many weapies. Which when Demetrius herde, he was maruelous for, & sayde: Alas, what haue we done. Jonathas hath pacted vs in grazinge the frendshipe of the Iewes, for howe we shal reue the Iewes, & yet we shal reue the Iewes, & yet we shal reue the Iewes, & yet we shal reue the Iewes.
Wherupon he wrote vnto the chiefe men of the Iewes: Where as ye haue be so commaunt towarde vs, & we shal of frendshipe, nee end prynces to cure our are we glad, when we haue the of us.
For we remayne still to be faithful to us: & we shal wel reue the Iewes for the things, & we haue done on of partie: & we shal reue the

of many charges, and gave you rewardes. And now I discharge you all. I Ieremo forewarned. I forgive you the customes of this, and release you of the crowne capen, of the thirde parte of sile, and half of the fure of trees, which is myne owne venery. This I leave for you, from this daye forth: so that they shall not be taken of the londe of Iuda nor of the other cities which are adioyned thereto one of Samaria and Galilee, from this daye forth for evermore. Ierusalem also with all thinges belonginge thereto, shall be holy and see, yee. I either tribute shall payme unto it. Also for the power of y castell which is at Ierusalem, I remytte it unto the hye prest, that he maye see in it his men, as he shall chuse to kepe it. I firste remitteth the Jewes that are prisoners who are out all my realme: so that every one of them shall be free from payenge any tribute, yea even of their cattell.

At the solenne festes, Sabbathes, New moones, the dayes appoynded, the chieftaies before and after the feast shall be free for all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them so man shall have power to do any thinge, or to move any busynesse agaynst any of them in any manner of cause. There shall xxx. M. also of the Jewes be written up in the bygges booke, and have their wagen payed, as all whome of warre of the bygges shalde have neede: if them shal be ordered certayne, to kepe the bygges stronge holdes: yee and some of them shal be set over the bygges busynesse, that they maye faith fully deale with the same. The Jewes also shal have payement of their owne, & walke in their owne lawes, as the bygge hath commaunded in the lawe of Iuda.

And the chieftaies that are fallen unto Iewy from the countre of Samaria and Galilee: shal be taken as Jewy, and be under me neither be subiect to any straunge lorde, but to the hye prest. Also for Ptolomaie and Cleopatra payenge thereof, I geve it unto the Sanctuary at Ierusalem, for the necessary expenses of the holy thinges. Moreover, I will geve every yere xii. M. Syckles of silver out of y bygges chequer which payeth unto me: so the moite of the temple paye to the temple (which they I had curemaetern in honde in tymes past, have now payed) that same shal they geve unto them also. And besides all this, the xl. M. sicles which they take yearly of the ritens of the Sanctuary, shal belonge unto the prest and the doctryne.

The x. Chap. Bo. lxxij.

Item, who so ever they be that fle into the temple at Ierusalem in such a the liberitie thereof: where as they are fallen in to the bygges dawnger for any manner of busynesse, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they have in my realme, shal be free. For the buyldinge also & repaynginge of the walles of the Sanctuary, expenses shal be given out of the bygges Chequer: yee and for the makinge of the walles rounde aboute Ierusalem, for the brekinge downe of the olde, and for the settinge up of the stronge holdes in Jewy, shal y coffres and charges be given out of the bygges Chequer.

But when Jonathan and the people heard these wordes, they gave no credence unto them, neither received them: for they remembered the greates needes that he had done unto Iisrael, and how yet he had repayed them. Wherefore they agreed unto Alexander, for he was a prince that had dealt friendly with them, and so they flocked to him allwaies. He gathered bygge Alexander a greates host, and broughte his armye agaynst Demetrius. So y two bygges flocked battayll together, but Demetrius doct fied, and Alexander followed after and fell upon them. A myghtie fure fyre was it, continuinge till the Sonne was downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same daye.

And Alexander late embassidore unto Ptolomy the bygge of Egypte with these wordes sayenge: For so much as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the crowne of my progenitors, and have gotten the dominion, overcome Demetrius, conquered the londe, and streken a felde with him, so that we have discomfited both him and his host, and sit in the crowne of his byggedome: Let us now make friendship together, geve me thy daughter to wife: so shall I be thy friend for ever, and both geve thee rewardes, and his greates dignite. Ptolomy the bygge gave answer, sayenge: I happy be the daye wherein thou art come agayne to the londe of thy progenitors, and set in the crowne of thy byggedome. And now will I fulfill thy wyllynge: but mete me at Ptolemais, I will maye I one another, and that I maye my daughter unto the accordinge to thy desire. So Ptolomy wrote out of Egypte with his daughter Cleopatra, & came unto Ptolemais in y xiiij. yere: where bygge Alexander met him, & the same Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and married them at Ptolemais with greates worshippe, like as the manner of bygges is to do.

Then more kynge Alexander vnto Jonathan, that he shoulde come and meete him. So he came honourably vnto Ptolomaeus, & there he met the two kynge, and gaue them grate pfectures of golde and syluer, & feare of feruour in their sighte. And there came together agaynst Jonathan certayne wicked men and ungracious persones of Iudea, makinge complaints of him, but the kynge regarded them not. As for Jonathan, the kynge commaunded to take of his garnitures, and so clothe him in purple: and so they dyd. Then the kynge appoynted him to syt by him, and sayde vnto his prynces: So wissh him in to the myddest of the cite, and make a proclamation, that no man complaine agaynst him of any matter, and that no man trouble him for any manner of cause.

So it happened that when his decession came the worshippe which was proclaimed of him, & he was clothed in purple: they fled euerýwhere. And the kynge made moche of him, wrote him amonge his chiefe friends, made him a huse, and partaker of his deminion. Thus Jonathan went agayne to Jerusalem with peace and gladnesse. In the xlvj. yere came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrian from Syria in to his fathers londe: whereof when Alexander herde tell, he was right sorry, and returned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius chose Apollonius (which had the gouernance of Ierusalem): to be his captayne.

So he gathered a greates host and came vnto Iamnia, and sende wordes vnto Jonathan the hie priest, sayinge: Darest thou stande vs thy self alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scorne and shamed, because thou puttest thy strength agaynst vs in the mountaynes. Now therfore if thou trustest in thine owne strength, come downe to vs in to the playne felde, and there let vs proue our strength together: thou shalt fynde, that I haue valourie men of warre with me: and thou shalt knowe who I am, & the other that stande by me.

Whiche saye, that yours self is not able to stande before our face, for thy fathers haue bene truely chased in to their owne londe. And now, how wylt thou be a blyss to abyde so greates an host of hoisemen and footemen in the felde, where as is neither rocke, nor place to fle vnto?

When Jonathan herde the wordes of Apollonius, he was moued in his mynde: wherefore he chose f. thousande men and wente out of Jerusalem, and Symon his brother met him for to helpe him. And they chosed their tentes at Joppa, but the captaine him self, for Joppa was in hande of Apollonius. Then Jonathan layd a gylt on him, and they that were in the cite, for they receiued him in: and so Jonathan wrote Joppa. Apollonius hearinge of this, wrote vnto his lande hoisemen, with a greates host of force, and mente as though he wold goe in to Iamnia, & came immediately in to the playne felde: because he had so many hoisemen, and put his trust in this. So Jonathan stode vpon hurnes of Iyorus, & there they stode the battell. Now had Apollonius left all his hoisemen behynde them prynces in the cite. And when Jonathan sawe that his host wold be layed behynde them, they were not to beate the enemies host, and sheweth at the people from the mountaynes euerýwhere. As for Jonathan, he prayde, they to their owne as he had commaunded them, & the enemies hoisemen were enelabouring.

Then brought Symon forth his host, and set them agaynst the face man. Jorde hoisemen were weery all ready. So he did him selfe them, and they fled. And they that were scattered in the felde, gathered to Iamnia, and came in to the temple of Dagon the Idol, & they might there save their liues. But Jonathan set fyre vpon Iamnia and all the cities rounde aboute it, tooketh the Idols, and burnt up the temple of Dagon with all them that were fled in to it.

Thus were slayne and bette well xviij. thousande men. So Jonathan remoued his host from thence, and brought them to Galon: where he men of the cite came forth, and met him with greates weelshipp. At this tyme Jonathan and his host agayne to Jerusalem, with greates substaunce of good. And when kynge Alexander herde these thinges, he thoughte that Jonathan was weelshipp, & sent him a color of golde, as the use is to be geuen vnto such an arteful kynge as nexte bloodie. He gaue him also the cite of Accaron (with the londe belonging therto) in possession.

At this tyme of Egypte gathered a host (like the Idols) & lieth vpon the sea shore: and many shippes: and were aboute them to disceuse to speake of the name of Alexander, & to iorneye vnto his owne realme. Upon this he toke his iourney in to Syria: & was litten into the ship: and he came forth to meete him: for kynge Alexander had commaunded them so to do, because he was his father in lawe. Now when Peolomy came to any cite, he lefte it of warre to kepe it, and this he dyd chowse out all of cite. And when he came to Alocus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon and Alocus that was borne up, with the other thing which were destroyed, the dead bodies cast abroad, and y graues that they had made by the waye syde, for such as were slayne in the fildes. And tolde the kynge that Jonathan had done all these thinges, so the more they might get him well will. But the kynge sayde not a worde thereto.

And Jonathan met the kynge with great honer at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and took their rest. So when Jonathan had gone with y kynge, vnto the warre that was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem. Now Peolomy had gotten the dominion of the citea vnto Eleutherus upon the sixe coast, yma giuynge wictory conculia agaynst Alexander, & sent ambassadours vnto Demetrius, sayenge: Come, he woteke a bonde betwixt vs, so shall I giue the my daughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt raise me in thy father a kynge. I repecte that I gaue Alexander my daughter, for he goeth aboute to slaye me. And thus he lauded Alexander, because he wolde haue had it a realme.

Thus he tolde his daughter from him, gaue her into Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander, so that his malice was openly knowen. Now Peolomy came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpon his owne heade: the crowne of Egipte and of Asia. In the meane tyme was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, in theyr that dwelle in those places, had rebelled agaynst him. But when Alexander herde of this, he came to warre agaynst him. So kynge Peolomy broughte forth his hoste with him with a mighty power, and dide out him awaye. Then fled Alexander to Antioche to be defended, and kynge Peolomy honoure increased. And Zabbai the Arabian smote of Alexanders heade, and sent it vnto Peolomy. But the thirde daye after, died kynge Peolomy himselfe: and they whom he had set in the stronge holdes, reuolued of those that were within y citea. And Demetrius reigned in y hundred and fouer and sixte year.

At the same tyme gathered Jonathan them that were in Jewry to laye siege vnto the castill whiche was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warre agaynst it. Then wente there certaine mygdy ly performes (which hated their enemy people) vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde him, that Jonathan desired y castill. So when he herde it, he was angry, and immediately came to Prolomais, and wrote vnto Jonathan, that he shoulde not laye siege to the castill, but come and speake with him in all the hast. Therewithale when Jonathan herde this he commaunded to besiege it. He dide also accorde of the alder a pice of Israhel, and put him selfe in the parrall, and toke with him golde, silver, clothinge and diuers preferences: and wente to Prolomais vnto the kynge, and founde him graciouse.

And theaigh certain mygdy men of his owne people made complaynes vpon him, yet the kynge increased him, like as his predecessors had bene before: and promoted him in the sight of all his frendes, comforted him in the bye pishode with all the trouthe y he had afeie, and made him his chiefe frende. Jonathan also desired the kynge that he wolde make Jewry free, with the thre head citea of Samaria and the lordes perrynginge thereto: vpon this dyd Jonathan promyse him the Calentene. Whereto the kynge consented, and gaue Jonathan writinges of the same, concerninge the se wordes: kynge Demetrius sendeth gretinge vnto his brother Jonathan and to the people of y Jewen. We sende you here a copy of the lreter which we dyd write vnto our elder Lathemus, concerninge you, that ye shoulde knowe it.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth gretinge vnto Lathemus his elder. For the whiche thinges that our frendes the people of the Jewen kepe vnto vs, and for the louynge kyndnesse whiche they beare vnto vs: we are determined to do them good. Wherefore we ordeine all y coostles of Jewry with the thre citea, Sydad and Ramatha (which are a wode vnto Jewry from Samaria): all y ides perrynginge there vnto, to be fully separatid for sode as do sacrifices in Jerusalem: both concerninge the paymtes whiche the kynge doth yearly a foue tyme, & y fiftene alle of the earth y trees. As for other tushes & emburges y belongid vnto vs, we discharge the thereof from charytyme forth. In like maner we graunte vnto the all the customes of sale and crome naye-a, which were broughte vnto vs. And this frendome shal they haue firme & steadfast, fro this tyme forth for evermore. Therfore so y ye make a copy of these of letters, and deliuer it vnto Jonathan: that he maye be kept vpon y holy mount in a comen place.

After this, when Demetrius the kynge saw that his londe was in rest, and that no resistance was made him: he sent awaye all his hoste every man to his owne place, excepte an armie of straungers, whom he brought from the Isles of the heathen, wher foure all his fathers hoste had end wyll achim. Now was there one Triphon (that had bene of Alexanders parte afore) which when he sawe that all the hoste murmured against Demetrius: he wrot unto Eumacrus the Arabian (that brought up Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and laye soe upon him, to deluyde him this yonge Antiochus: that he might eigne in his fathers seade.
He tolde him also what greates enill Demetrius had done, & how he aimed of worse lorde him so: & so remayned there a lōge season.

And Jonathas sent unto kynge Demetrius, wold saye them one which was in the castell at Jerusalem and in the other refuge, a for they dyd Jherusalem greates harmes. So Demetrius sent wordes unto Jonathas, sayinge: I will be onely do these thinges for the and thy people, but at anye comenite: I will do bethe the & thy people greates worshippe. But now thou shalt do me a pleasure, if thou wilt sen de me men to helpe me: for all myne armie is lost from me. So Jonathas sent him iiij. M. stronge men unto Antioche, and they came unto the kynge, wherfore the kynge was a very glad at these comynge. And they that were of the citie men on Efr. thousande men gathered them together, & wolde have slay-ne the kynge, which fled into his courtte: & the citifins kepte the stretes of the cite, and beganne to fighthe.

Thus the kynge called for the Jewes helpe, which came unto him all together, & were a lōge tyme in the cite, and slew the same daye an C. M. men: & fere was the cite, gat many spoiles in that daye, and deluyred of kynge. So when the citifins sawe that the Jewes had gotten their trefill of the cite, and they them selves a dyspoynted of their purpose: they make their supplication vnto the kynge, sayinge: Whanne we peace, and see the Jewes cease from troubles: we so do the cite, and upon this they cast awaye their wea-pens. Thus they made peace, and of Jewes gat greates worshippe in the sighte of the kynge, and in the sighte of all that were in his realme, and were spoken of thowow oute the kyngdome: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem with greates goodnes.

So the kynge Demetrius sat in the throne of his kyngdome, and had peace in his lōde

Thereafter he dyssembled in all that he spoke, & much deceit him self from Judah, & much deceit him according to his benefices which he had done for him, and troubled him very sore. After this came Triphon agayne with yonge Antiochus, wher he reigned & was crowned kynge. Then he gathered unto him all y^e men of warre, wher Demetrius had put awaye: the first synge gagynst Demetrius, which fled to Antioche backe. So Triphon toke the Antioche, & wonne Antioche. Now y^ege Antiochus was re unto Jonathas, sayinge: I comenite in thy presthode, & make y^e ruler of all, concrete, & thou mayest be a frende of Syria.

Upon this he sent him golden vessels foure in, and gave him lene to dynto a lar of golde, & made his brother Symon so capayne, fere he cosse a of Syria was the borderes of Egipte. Then Jonathas ke his iourney, & wrot the letter & came to the water (of Jordan) and all the men of warre of Syria gathered the unto helpe to helpe him. So he came unto Antioche, and they of the cite receaved him honorably from chauce: wher he wnto Orase, but they wolde not let him in: wherfore he layd by unto it, turnynge up on & spoylinge the cite that were aboute the cite.

And the citifins of Orase sent wordes unto Jonathas, which were p^{er}son with them, but toke of their sinner to p^{er}son fere, sent the to Jerusalem, & wrot the letter comenite unto Damascus. Now when Judah herbe that Demetrius p^{er}son me in to Laced (which is an Colles) wher greates hoste, p^{er}soning to put Demetrius out from his bling in the realme: he came gagynst them, and leese Symon his bling in the lende: which came to Bethsora, and layd siege to it a lōge season, and dyscomforted them. So they desired to have p^{er}son him, which he gave unto them, & after that put them out from thence, not the vice, and sent to Euse. And Jonathan with his host came to the wazer of Beneser, & by tyne in the morninge gat them to the playne fildes of Aisat.

And besides, the hostes of the Iudasabees were in the fildes, & layed watch for the inshewmanys: so that when Jonathan came agaynst the, the other (which were layed to watch) toke one of their places, & songhe, & they that were of Jonathan syde, fled rury man & there was not one of the leste, except to Manachin the sonne of Abalemus, and Iudas the sonne of Calphi the captayne of the best. The Jonathan reuer his clothes, layed earch ope his heade, made his prayer, turninge againe to the in fildes: where they fought together, and he put them to flight. Now when his owne men were fled, Iudas & they turned agayne vnto him, & helpe him to followe a pon all their enemies vnto thence as of Aisat. So there were slayne of the heathen the same daye, xij. M. men, & Jonathan carried agayne to Jerusalem.

In Jonathan sayge that he tyne wote more for him, chiefe enemies and sent them vnto Rome for to stablish to reuine the frendshipe wch. he sent letters also vnto Sparcia, and to other places in Iudaea. So they wrote vnto Rome and made in so of counsell, & sayde: Jonathan & his people of Iudaea sent to us to you, for to reuine of olde frendshipe & bonde of love. Vp vnto this of Romaynes was the response, & we shoulde lede the home in to the fildes of Iudas peaceably. And this is of the letters that Jonathan wrote vnto the Sparcians:

Jonathan & his people of Iudaea, sende greetynge vnto Sparcia & their brethren. There we reuerence sende lodge agoo vnto Omas & his people, from Arius to which than rigned amonge us: that ye are our brethren, as the maye ingemate thereupon speeche. And Omas increased the embassies: that was sent. honorably, and ceased of letters: wherein the was mentioned made of the bonde of love & frendshipe. But as for us, we were no such thinge: for why, we have the holy booke of scripture in our handes to ouer comfort. Therefore we had rather sende vnto you for the reuynge of & brotherhode and frendshipe: lest we shoulde be strange vnto you, for as long as, so tyne & ye see woe to us. What fore he & his friends & his of first other ceremonies upon & his solempne dayes and other we alwaye remember you without ceasinge (like as reason is, and as it be cometh to to chynke upon our brethren) yet and are right glad, of your profperous honoure.

And though we have had greates troubles and warres, so that the Synges alowde we have foughten agaynst us: yet wote we not be greuous vnto you nor to other of our louers and frendes in these warres. For we have had helpe fro beaul, so that we are deliuered, and our enemies subdued. Wherfore we chose Clemens the sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Iudas, and sent them vnto the Romaynes, for to reuine the olde bonde of frendshipe and leue with them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you, to saluace you, and to deliue you & leue, concerninge the renowne of oboboth. And now ye shal do right well, to geue us an answer there vnto.

And this is the copy of the writinge, which Arius the kynge of Sparcia sente vnto Omas: Arius kynge of the Sparcians sent greetynge vnto Omas & his people. It is founde in my yerynge, that the Sparcians and Jewes are brethren, and come of the generation of Abraham. And now for so muche as this is come to our knowledge, ye shal do well, to write vnto us of your prosperite. As for us, we have wyttne & mynde vnto you: Our call and goodes are yours and yours ours. These thinges haue we commaunded to be shewed vnto you.

When Jonathan herde that Demetrius prices were come forth to fight agaynst him with a greater hoste than before, he wrote fro Jerusalem, & wrote to the lorde of Samath, for he gaue them no space to come in to his owne countre. And he sent spies vnto the rinces, which came agayne and tolde him, that they were appointed to come vnto him in the night season. Wherfore when he sawe that he was alone, Jonathan commaunded his men to watch all night, & to be ready wch weapons for to fight: and he watchmen reuinde a bout the hoste. But when the answer came herbe that Jonathan was ready wch his men to the battayll, they feared & were chastised in their hertes, & bynded fyttes in their centres, brake up, and gat them awaye. Therefore Jonathan and his company knewe it not till the morninge, for they sawe the fyttes burninge.

Then Jonathan followed upon the, but he might not overtake them, for they were gout ouer the water Eleuthera. So Iona-thas departed vnto þe Arabians whiche were called Sababai: he lefte them, & toke other goode.

He preached furthur alld, and came vnto Damascus, & wente thow all that countre.
But Symon his brother toke his iourney and came to Maelon and to the next strong holdes departinge vnto Joppa, and was in it. For he herde, that they wolde stonde of Demetrius parte: neþer for he sent mē of warre in the cite, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, & called the elders of the people togethe: and ben yfild with the for to buyde vpon the strong holdes in Jewry, and the wallis of Ierusalem, to set vp an hys wall betwixte the castell and þe cite, for to separate it from the cite, that it might be alone, and that men shulde neþer bye nor sell in it.

Upō this they came togethe for to buyde vp the cite: and for moche as the wall vpon the biok of the west syde (called Captheta) was fallen downe, they repaired it. And Symon set vp a biok in Sephela, and made it stronge, settinge portes & lockes vpon it.
¶ Now when Triphon purposed to reigne in Alyta, to be crowned, and to slaye the kynge Antiochus: he was affrayed that Jonathas wolde not suffre him, but fight against him.
Wherefor he wrote abouthe to take Jona-thas, and to kyll him.

So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan.
Then wente Jonathas forth against him to the battayle with fourty thousand choyse men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But whē Triphon sawe that Jonathas came with so greute an host to destroye him, he was afraid: and therfore he receaued him honourably, commended him vnto all his fren-des, gaue him rewardes, and commanded his men of warre to be as obediēt vnto him as to himselfe.

And saide vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take soch trouaile, to yn-ge thereto no warre betwixte us: These sent them home agayne. & chose certain to waite vpon the, & come thow they wolde for to: for I will geue it the, & the choyse strong holdes, men of warre, and other thinges.

As for me, I must departe, this is my wille of my conyng. Jonathas beleued him, vnto as he sayde, puttinge awaye his ioy, which was in to þe londe of Jude. He departed. ¶ In by him, wherof he stode, in to Galilee, & one of his wente with him.

¶ Now as soone as Jonathas heard that Protholais, the citifinne spawed the yow of the cite, and toke him, and sette alld with the swerde, that came in with her.
Then sent Triphon an host of fourty thousand men in to Galilee, and in to the same place selde, to destroye all Jonathas company. But when they knewe that Jonathas was taken, and all they slaye that went vpon him: they toke counsell togethe, and came forth readye to the battayle. ¶ When they which folowed vpon them, sawe that was a matter of life, they turned backe agayne. As for the other, they wente in to the londe of Iuda secretly, & betrayed Jona-thas, & them that were with him into the sea. And Iudas made greute lamentacion. ¶ ¶ All the Gentren þe were rounde aboute them, soughte to destroye the. For they sayde: how haue they no capteyne, nor any man to helpe them. Therfore leue ouercome them, and rote out their name from amonge.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ When Symon herde that Iu-dith gathered a greute host, & came in to þe londe of Iuda, and to destroye and save þe people, was in great fearefulnesse and care.
He came vnto Jersalem, and gathered the people togethe, & made the proclamation, sayenge: Ye knowe what greute battayle I and my brethren mys-thens haue foughten for the lorde of the Cōmyn, and what manner of troubles haue sene: the same occasion wherof, all my brethren are slayne for Israels sake, and I am lefte alone. And now let not me spare my owne life in my manner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but will geue my people and the Sanctuary, and the temple and ouer myne: for all the Gentren are gathered togethe, to destroye us of my malice.

¶ These wordes the hartes of the people were dyndled togethe, so that they with a loud voyce, sayenge: When shall we be capteyne in steade of Iudas & Jonathas thy brethren, euen thou our brother, & what fear thou commaundest us, we shall do it.

Sote gathered all the men of warre, making a host to smyth all the walle of Jerusalem, which he made strange round aboute.

¶ Then came Jonathas the sonne of Ahi-samas to a fith host into Iopps, which dwethen one y were in the castell, and comyned them himself. Triphon also remoued from Ptolemas with a greete armie, to come into the londe of Iuda, and Jona-thas with him in warre. And Simon preceded his censes at Addus before the play-nesse.

¶ And when Triphon knewe that Symon sate up in heade of his brother Jonathas, and that he would warre agaynst him: he sent messengers vnto him, (a yonger) Where as he hath receyved Jonathas thy brother, use for money what he is owynge in the ty-nys accompe, concerninge the buyng of yehoshu hounde. When sote stode now an C. calices of silver and his two sennes for suer calices when he is leet forth he shal not for sake vs: and we shal serue him agayne. Tenarhades Symon knewe it, that he dyssem-bled in his wordes to: yet commaunded he the money children to be cheyered wto him left he shoulde be the greater enemye agaynst y people of Iuda. As he sayde cause he sent him the money and the children, therfore Jonathas dect.

¶ So Symon sent him the children and an hundred talents, but he dyssembled, & moldenet Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon into the londe, to destroye it, and dwethen abode by the maye, y lecher two Addus. But where so euer they wene, thither wente Symon and his host also.
Now they that were in the castell sent messengers vnto Triphon, that he shalde make them to come by the wyldernesse, and so for them vnto as And Triphon made readiall his hostmen to come that same night.
When the hoste was a very greateshowe, so that he came not in Gala adithim. And whē he came nye Bafthama, he slew Jonathas and his sennes there, and then turned for to go home into his owne londe.

¶ The sime Symon so to see his brethera dow corse, and buried it in Iobim his fathers ce. So all Irael bewayled him with great lamentacion, and mourned for him very longe. And Symon made upon the sepulchre of his father and his brethren a buy-lyng hye on lode vnto of sic stene behyde and before: and set up seven pylles, one agaynst another (for his father, his mother and sone becham) and set on a place vnde aboue, with armes upon them for a perpetuall memory, and carued shippes beynde the armen: y they might be sene of me saylynge in the see. This sepulchre which he made at I Modin, stoneth yet vnto this daye.

¶ Now as Triphon wente forth to walke th y yonge kynge Antiochus, he slewe him crayterously, and raiged in his londe, & comyned himself kynge of Asia, and byd much well in the londe. Symon also buyde vp the castles in Ienory, makinge them stronge with hye towers, greete walles, portes and lockes, and layd vp vtalles in the stronge holdes. And Symon chofe certa ynement, and sents them to kynge Demetrius to desyre him, y he wol-de discharge the londe from all bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it very sore. Where vpon Demetrius the kynge answered him, & wrote vnto him after this maner:

Demetrius y lye sendeth greet age vnto Symon the hye pash his sennet, which his elders and people of the Jewes. The golden crowns and precious stones y ye sene vnto vs, have we receyued: and a ready to make a fast peace with you, yet and to wryte vnto oure officers, for to release you, concernynge the thinges wheruntoe made you for: and the appoyntment y we made with you, shalbe firme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buyded, shal be youre owne. As for euy oure fight or sance committed vnto this daye, we forgave it, and the armentare that ye oughte us also. And whare as was any other tribute in Ierusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke whate mne ce armoage you to be in oure court, let them be written up, that there maye be peace be-twixte us.

¶ Thus the yock of the Greichen was taken from Irael, in the hundred th and seventie yare. And the people of the Jewes beganne to write in thei letters and actes on this maner: In y first yere of Symon the hye pash, and prynces of the Jewes.

¶ In chofe daye wente Symon vnto Gaza, and beseged it rounde aboute, where he set up entaunce of warre. And waime a cerver, which he colde. So they that gar in ge the corne leapt into the cite, which was in a greete fere: In so much that the people of the cite wente thei clothes, and climmed up upon the walle with thei armes and children, best yng Symon to be an own with them, sayng:

¶ We wende we not after y wolded be, but to gracious vnto vs, and we shal do y^e service.

 3 Then Symon for very pite, wolde fight no more agaynst them, but put them out of the cite, and caused the houses wherein the ymagines were to be clenfed; and so merco the cite with palmes of pease, graunte thanks vnto the LORD E. Wherhen he had cast all abhominacions out of the cite, he set forth men in it as tokens the lawe of God, and made the cite stronge, and builded dwelling place for himselfe.

Now when they in the castell at Ierusalem were kept so straitly, that they coude not come forth nor in to countrie, and might neither buye nor sell: they were very hungry, and many of them famished to death. In so much that they besought Symon to be at one word with them, which he granted them. So he put them out from thence, and clenfed the castell from fylchynesse. And upon the xxiij. daye of the seconde moneth in the xliij. yeare they entred in to it with thankesguynges and burches of palme trees, with harpes, crowdes, cymbals, and lutes, synnginge psalmes and songes of praise vnto God, for that the greute enemy of Ihsid was ouercome.

And Symon aduised that the same daye shulde be kepte every yeare in gladnesse, and made stronge the byll of the temple that was besyde the castell, where he dwelt himself with his company. Symon also perceyvinge that Iohn his sonne was a mightie man of armes, made him captayn of all the hostes, and caused him to dwell at Gaza.

The XIII. Chapter.

21 In the xliij. yeare gathered kynge Demetrius his hoste, and departed vnto Medis, to geue him helpe for to fight agaynst Triphon. Now when Ascleas the kynge of Persia and Medis herbe, that Demetrius was entred within his borders: he sente one of his pynces to take him alyce, and so bringe him vnto him. So he wente and slew Demetrius hoste, toke himselfe, brought him to Ascleas, which kepte him in ward. And all the londe of Iuda was in rest, so longe as Symon luyde: for he soughte the wealth of his people, therefore were they glad to haue him for their ruler, and so doo him worshippe this ye.

Symon made the cite of Joppa also for an haven to them, and made it an inheritance to the Ies of the se. He enlarged the borders of his people, and conquered them more londe: he gathered vp many of his people that were prisoners: he had the bound of Gaza, Bethsur and the castell, which he clenfed from fylchines, and there was no thate refused him: So thus every man in his greunde in peace, the londe of Iuda as the trees geue their fruite and increase. The elders sat all in iudgement, and ordeinede the waye for the wealth of the londe: the yunger men put on worshippe, and barresse vnto them. He prouided wynter for the cite, and made goodly stronge holdes of stone, that the same of his worshippe was spoken vnto the ende of y^e world. For he made peace betweene out the londe, and Ihsid was full of myrth and ioie.

Every man sat vnder his vyne & figgetre and there was no man so stryde them awaye. There was none in y^e londe to fight agaynst them, for then the thinges were ouercome. He helped those that were in tribulacion among his people, he was diligent to see y^e lawe kepte: no for such as were vngodly and with he toke the waye. He set up y^e Sanctuary, and caused the holy vessels of the temple.

When y^e Romans and Spartans had gotten word, y^e Jonathan was dead, they were right fery. But when they heard Iohn his brother was made byr pync of his feilde, and how he had wonne the londe agayn the cite in which they were wont to be in rables of Iaron, to renue the frendshipe bonde of Iew, which they had made with Iudas & Jonathan his brother. With waitinges were red before the congregacion at Ierusalem.

And this is the copy of the lawe, that the Spartans sent. The Senators and cetyns of Sparta sende greetynge vnto you y^e greute pync of the elden, pastes, & y^e other people of the Jewes their brether. Wherby embassidours that were sente vnto y^e people certified us of youre worshippe, honour, and prosperous wealth: we were glad of this message, and haue written the carande whiche they spake before the counsaill of the people, namely, that Clementine the sonne of Antiochus, and Antipater the sonne of Iustin the Jewes embassidours are come vnto us, to runne the olde frendshipe with us. Thus this the people consented, that the multitude be honourably increased, and that the pync of their carande shulde be written in the specciall booke of the people, for a perpetuall memory vnto the Spartans: yet and that we shalbe sente a copy of the same vnto Iohn the greute pync.

After this byd Symon sende Clumenius into Amon, with a golden shylde of a thousand pounde weight, to confirme the friendship with them: which when the Romans receiued, they shewed what chaunce shal-we recompense agayne unto Symon & his children: for he hath stablished his brotherhood with our comers the enemies of Israel. After this they graunted him to be sic. And all this made the Jewes in cables of Iacow, and na-led wroth the rulers upon the mount Sion.
 The rest of the writinge is this:

The first daye of y moeth Elul in the Christe yere in the thirde yere of Symon the hye prest, in the greates congregacion of y iustes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countrie at Hierusalem, were these wordes openly declared:

2 Thus much as there was much warre in our londe, therefore Symon y sonnet of Mathias come of the children of Iacob, and his brethren, put them selues in perill, and assailed the enemies of their people: that their Sanctuary and lawe might be man-aynt, and byd their people greates moystise. Iourneys in this manner, after that he had gathered his people and bene their hye prest byd, and they buried beside his chere.

After that wolde their enemies haue trod in their holy thinges vnder foot, destroyed their londe, and utterly wasted their Sanctuary. Then Symon withstode them, and fought for his people, spent much of his owne wey, weakened the valiant men of his people, gathered wages, made stronge y cities of Iuda, with Bethsura that lieth vpon the borders of Jewry, where the ordinances of their enemies laye for to kepe it.

1 He made fast Joppa also, which lieth vpon the sea, and Gaza that bordereth vpon Idume, (where the enemies dwelle afore) and there he set Jewes to kepe it: and what shew was made for the subduyng of the countries that layed be therein. Now telle the people some the noble actes of Symon. and what moys-tye he purposed to do for them, his goodly behauiours, and faithfulnisse which he kepte vnto them, & how he fought by all waies of wealch of his people. because he byd all this, that fore they chere ben to be their prince & hye prest. And in his time they prospered wel by him, so y the chiefe of a great care of their londe: & they also which were in the cite of David at Ierusalem in the castle, where they were out and besi-led all thinges that were aboute the Sanctuary, and bid greates harme vnto themselues, and Symon put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the londe and the cite, and set vpon the walles of Ierusalem.

And Elyse Demetrius confirmed him in his hye presthode, made him his frende, and byd him greates moys-tye, for he herde that the Romauns called y Jewes their fren-dous, lawers and brethren: how benoially they re-ceaued Symons embassidours: how y Iew-es and iustes confirmed that he shulde be their prince and hye prest perpetually (all God sayed vpon the true prophet) and that he shulde be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to set officers vpon the wal-les thereof: for the londe, ouer the weapons, ouer the houses of defence, to make pious-tyon for the holy thinges, and to be obeyed of every man, and all the writinges of y lawe to be made in his name: that he shul-de be clothed in purple and golde, and that it shulde be lawfull for none of the people no priestes to breake any of these thinges, to withstande his wordes, nor to call any con-gregacion in the londe without him: that he shulde be clothed in purple, and weare a coler of golde: And yf there were any which disobeyed or diake this ordinance, that he shulde be punished.

So all the people consented to alowe Symon, and to do accordyng to these wor-des. Symon also himselfe toke it vpon him, and was contented to be the hye prest, the captayne and prince of the Jewes and presttes, and to gouerne them all. And they commanded to make this writinge in cables of Iacow, and to fasten it vnto the compassse of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vpon a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symon and his posterite might haue it.

The xv. Chapter.

1 NOW, Elyse Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius since leueth from the Ico of the sic, vnto Symon the hye prest and prince of the Jewes, and to all the people, concerninge these wordes:
 And thus the Elyse further greatinge vnto Symon the hye prest and to the people of the Jewes. For so much as errayne wroled men haue gotten the kyngdome of our progenitors, I am purposed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to restore it to the ordinary.

Wherefore I haue gathered a greates host and made shippes of warre: that I may go thowen the countre, and be auenged of them which haue destroyed oure londe, and destroyed many cities in my realme. And therfore now I make the be also from all the tributes wherof all thynges my progenitors haue discharged the, and from other customes (wher from they haue released the) what so euer they be: And I geue the leaue to synke money of thine owne within thy londe. As for Jerusalem, I wil it haue it be holy and free and all the weapens and houses of defence which thou hast buyed and depest in thine handes, shal be thine. Wher so any thinge is as shal be a myge unto the kynge, I forgeue it the, from this tyme forth for euermore.

And when we haue openyd oure kyngdome, we shal do the, thy people and the temple greates worshippe: so that your handes shal be fre from theowen oure y whole world.

In the thirtieth yere wente Antiochus in to his southerne londe, and all the men of war-re came together vnto him, so that fewe were left with Tripbon. So the kynge Antiochus folowed vpon him, but he fled vnto Dora, which lieth by the see side: for he sawe y there was myschaunce comminge vnto him, and that his be est had forsaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora w an hardieth & certaine thousande men of armes vpon fo-te, and righte chousande hoisemen. So he com-passed the cite rounde aboute, and y shippes came by the see. Thir they wered the cite by londe and by water, in so much that they suffered no man to go in nor out.

In the meane season came Tamerlan (y they that had bene with him) from the cite of Rome, hauinge letters witten vnto the kynge and prynces, wherein were conteyned these wordes: Lucius the Maye of Rome sendeth greetinge vnto Ptolomey the kynge. The embassadours of the Jewes are returned being sent from Symon the hye priest and from the people of the Jewes, come vnto us, for to renewe the olde frendshipe and bonde of love, and broughte a shylde of golde weyng a thousande pounde, which we mere contente to receive of them. Wherfore we thought it good to write vnto the kynge y prynces, to do them no harme, nor to take partie agaynst the, their cities nor countreys neither to mayntene their enemies agaynst them. If there be any wicked personnes that flew from their countre vnto you, deli-uer them vnto Symon the hye priest, y he may punyssh them accordinge to their owne lawe.

The same wordes wrote the Romaines also vnto Demetrius the kynge of Syria, Araba, Lusacia and to all regentes in Syria, to them of Sparza, Delia, Ma-don, Curia, Sumen, Pampylia, Aya, Aca massum, and to y Achobeez, Jafin, Ca-sida, Aado, Baryna, Syndus, in Cyren and to Cyren. And of cury letters they compary to Symon the hye priest and to the peple of the Jewes. So Demetrius the kynge broughte his host vnto Dora the thirtieth yere: and heere he made towres and castles of warre, and kept Tripbon in the castell, but he not come forth. Then Symon for Antiochus was chousande chousen to helpe him with golde, silver and other plunage, but Tamerlan helpe he wolde not receive, but broke all y covenant which he made w Symon a fore, & wretchedlye humbled him.

The seer Achenobius also a frind of vnto Symon, for to reason with him, saynge: I withholde fro me Joppa and Gazas the castell that is in Jerusalem, wher is of my realme, whos borders y haue destroyed, and done greates euill in the londe.
I wyng the dominacion in many other plas-es of my kyngdome. Wherfore deliuer now me the which ye haue takē, w y deliuer of places y ye haue takē vpon which the cities of Jewes: Or els graunte frindshipe talentes of syluer, and for the Jewes that ye haue done in the citis and for the mis-do of the same, other fyne hundred talentes. If no, we shal come and fighte agaynst you.

So Achenobius the kynge sent vnto to Jerusalem, and when he sawe y graunt shipe and honoure of Symon in golde, frind-ship and so greates plenty of ammunitions weeldes, and tolde Symon as the kynge commanded him. Then answered Symon and saide vnto him: As for vs, we haue wher to other mans londe, nor withholde them only oure southerne heretage, which our ancestors had wrighteously in possession a many tyme. This heretage a fewe such haue we chalenged in the cite of symon. In wher as thou doleynest conuynge Joppa and Gaza, they dyd greates harme to people and in thonde, yet wyl we graunte talentes for them.

Tamerlan the Achobeez answered the not one word, but turned agayn wright-ly vnto y kynge, and tolde him all the matter, and the greates dignite of Symon all that he had seene, and the kynge was angryed. In the meane tyme fled Tripbon shippe vnto Antiochus. Then the kynge made Antiochus captiue of the seer gathering him on hoost of fore men and housmen, commanding him to remove his hoost toward Jeruſalem, to be readye up the cite of Jeruſalem, to make up his porten, to be readye agaynst the people of the Jewes. As for the kynge his selfe he solowed upon Tripbon. So Cendebe came unto Iamnia, he beganne to vex the people, to create downe the way, to take the people prisoners, to slaye the kinges and to buyde up Iamnia where he set his house and other men of name, that they might come forth and go thence the streets of Jeruſalem, as the kynge had commanded him.

The XVI. Chapter.

Then came Ihon up from Gaza, and tolde Symon his father, what Cendebe had done amonge their people. Upon this called Symon two of his eldest sonnes, Judas and Ihon, and sayde unto them: I and my brethren my fathers house, beate warre from our yowth up vnto this houre, fighten agaynst the enemies of Israel: God gave us good fortune to be victors of our enemies. And now for so much as I am old, he is in steade of me and my brother, to go forth to fight for our people, and the helpe of God be with you. So he chose xx. mightie youngmen of the countrey, with housmen also, which wente forth agaynst Cendebe and rebeld at Ithoda.

In the morninge they arose, and wente in to playnt felde and behold a mightie greathoost came agaynst the, both of foremen and housmen. Now was there a water brooke betwixt them, and Ihon removed the hoost toward them. And when he sawe that the people was afrayed to go over the water brooke, he wente ouer first him selfe: and the men sawe this, solowed him.

Then Ihon set his housmen and foremen in order, the one by the other, for their enemies housmen were very many. But when they sawe the puffed trompettes, Cendebe fled with his hoost, whereof many were slayne, and the remmainge gat them to their stronge holde. Judas also Ihon brother whas wounded as the same tyme. And Ihon solowed still upon his enemies, till he came to Lada which he buyded. The enemies fled also vnto the townes they were in: the felde of Azecus, and the felde by Ihon burne up. Thus they were slayen. Ihon of them, and Ihon turned agayne peaceably in to Jeruſalem.

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolemy the sonne of Abobas made captayne which because he had abundance of siluer and golde, (for he had married the daughter of Symon the hye priest) was set prince in his mynde, and thought to conquer the lorde, makinge false agaynst Symon and his sonnes, to destroye the. Now as Symon was gone aboute toward the citie, he was in the colde of Jeruſalem, and carryinge forth came downe to Jericho, with Machabias and Judas his sonnes, in the thirtieth yeare, in the month called Sabar. Then Ptolemy the sonne of Abobas receaued them (but he discomfited) to a stronge house of his called Doda, which he had buyded, where he made them a banquet.

So when Symon and his sonnes were merry, he had broken well, Ptolemy stole up with his men, who he had byd there, and with their weapons, entred in to the banquet house, and slew Symon and his two sonnes, and carreyed of his seruantes. Such greates unfaithfulness by Ptolemy in Israel, and recompensed all for good. Then wrote this Ptolemy to some of the kynge Antiochus, requyring him that he shoulde sende him an hoost to helpe him: so shoulde he deliuer him the citie, with the citie and tributes of the same. He sent other men also vnto Gaza, for to take Ihon: and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to him, that he shoulde geue them siluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jeruſalem he sent other, to take it and the Sanctuary.

He ranne there on before, to tolde Ihon in Gaza, that his father and his brethren were slayne, and howe that Ptolemy had sent to slay him also. When Ihon heide this, he was for a while, and layed bydes of them that were come to destroye him, and slew them: for he knewe, that they were aboute to kill him.

As for other thinges concernynge Ihon of his warres, of his noble actes (wherin he behaued him selfe manfully) of the buydinge of wallis which he made, and other of his dooers: They are written in the cron-

The first Chapter.

The first Chapter.
 The deathes of the Jewes which be at Jerusalem in the last of Jeremy, with vnto that of the Jewes that are the row our Egypte: good times, health and peace.

And the LORD be gracious vnto thyne upon his commandment: he made Abraham, Isaac Jacob his faithful seruant: and geue you all such as he hath in mercy lone and serue him, you and your me his will with an whole herte and of a willing mynde: he ope youre hertes in his lawe and in his commandmentes, for you peace: heare youre prayres, be at with you, and neuer faile you in mynde trouble. This is heare cure prayer for you.

What tyme as Demetrius was king, the first year, the Jewes were sent you in terrible and violence that came vnto in those years a feith that Jofan departed out of the holy londe and byngone, they bent vnto the portes, and shed uncomble. They made us cure prayer vnto the LORD, and were herde: we offered, and light the candle, set a ge feith calke and bnd.
 And now come ye vnto the feast of tabern-cle in the month Casleu.

In the thirtieth year of the people I was at Jerusalem and in the first, the council and Judas him self, sent this wholsome statuto vnto Antiochus byng prolemy mes-ter, which came of the grienaden in the anoynted prestes: and to the Jewes that were in Egypte: so so much as God hath dy-nard us from greute paine, we therewith byle, so that we resisted so much as we ge. And why? he brought men out of Persia by heapes, to fight agaynst us and the holy cite. I was he was in Persia namely, & captaine of the greute host: he perished in the temple of Elyas, byng the count of the thre of Elyas a prestes. So as he was a prestes to haue bnd the Antiochus & his fildes came thither, to receiue much moneye for a dowry. So the Elyas prestes had lath feith & moneye, he comwith a small company in to the temple of the temple, and so they shut the temple.

Then when Antiochus entered by open-gethe the purty inuance of the temple, & of the feith & captaine to be with, he was in pece that were with him, more of the hades, and thence them out. In the God be playid, which hath bynded the miste in to our pentes.

¶ Tenet helpe we our selves that have molded with this matter for the thousandyngreat diligence, watchynge and study-ng. And so they chaunge a feaf, wolde saye we do other men pleasure. It is so we do (for many mens sake) are very well content so do we also in this maner. And why theþ be synned to wyte a story for the most rich þy entefordoringe godeþ diligentely felle out in every parte: But in the after wote he wyll spouken it, ofþen þen wode, and condempne not the matter as the grief. And this be sufficient for a prologus. wyll we be gnynt to shew the maten for is but a fellych þinge to make a temple holye, and to be spoune in the story itself.

The III. Chapter.

When this time as the holy one was inhabited in all peace and unity, it when the ladies were yet very mil-liped. (For so we is adorned by Onas the bye past and other goodly men, the same mies to midde churche.) It came thare, the even the bynges and pynce the seld by the place greates worship, and gamysht temple wiche greates churche. In so much Seleucus kynge of Asia of his own state, bare all the costes belonging to the sayre ce of the offeringes. Then Syndes of the trybe of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the same laboured to worke some mythe in it to be the hyer selfe estishd him.

Then he said when he might see our come Omas, he gat him to Appolonia in the forme of Thersa (as heich the word is written in Calosyia and Phemoria) and toke him the treasury in Jerusalem was full of inumerable money, and hee the same goodes goodes (which belonged not unto the tith-inges) were ready a ge greater almes to be done were possible, than all the might the vicer the vicer the vicer.

Then when Appollonius had shew the kynge of the moneye, as it was told him: of things called for halibones his time be, and sent him with a commendation to buyng him the sayde money. Iamys his halibones were his moneye, but of colours, as though he were the good of Isyria and Phoenicia to vnder the caitie, his purpose was to fulfill the kynge's wish.
So when he came to Ierusalem, he loosly recited of the byr post in the caitie: he sold what was desired most might the moneye, and shewed the cause of his commynge; he aped also, yf it were so in doct. Then the hye priest tolde him, that the was such money layed up for the upholding of weddinges and fatherlesse childen, and howe that a certayne of it belonged unto Symeon & Tobias a noble man: and that of all the moneye, which that wicthed Symeon had benynged there were iij. hundredth talents of syluer, and iij. hundredth of golde: yet that it were impossible for these men to bringe to be diseased, that had layed up their moneye in the place and temple, which is had in worshippe throum the whole world: for the manye synners and henceure of fiers. Whereupon Heliodorus answered, that the hye priest had commaunded him in any wy to shew hym the moneye.

So at the hye appoynted, Heliodorus went in to the temple to ordeine this matter. But there was no small feare thow out the whole cite. The people full borne before him, in their vestimentes, and called mochaues upon him, which had made a lawe concerninge stuffe given to the pe, that they shoulde be safe y preserved, for soch a cause as theym unto keepynge. Then who so had let the hye priest in the face, it wolde haue giue him better. For his commendaunce a no the changinge of his colour, declared the lawe of godde of his mynde. The man was all braynlesse, so no his be by in feare: nother by they that lated upon him, might perceiue the greif of his harte. The other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the common praye, because the place was like to come in confusion. The women came to gather aboute the steece, which harte darke aboute a their bestes.

The wynges also that were kepte in, as n. in Omias, since the wallen, ether some led out at the wyndowen: yet they all helpe their handes conwarde houre, & prayed. A terrible thinge was it, to lode vpon the cotten people, & the hye priest beinge in such trouble. But they besoughe Almightye God, that the goodes which were committed vnto the, might he kepe whole, for those that had beloued them vnto their keepynge. The wickles the thinge that Heliodorus was demed to do, that performed he in the same place, he him self personally beinge about the treasury with his men of warre. But the force of Almightye God shewed him self openly, so that all they which presumed vpon Heliodorus, full thow of power of God in a greates surseinesse & drede. For there appeared vnto them an host, with a terrible manifestation vpon him, dedre in good. 14 saye, and the hoste smote at Heliodorus with his sore ste. Thow he that lay upon his backe, had himselfe of golde upon him.

Thow there appeared ij. soys and beuifull yonge men in goodly aray, which stode by him, scourged him of both the sydes, & goe him manye stripes withoute ceasinge. With that, fell Heliodorus so fast vnto the grounde. So they toke him up (beinge compassed aboute with greates hardnesse) and bare him out vnto a beare. Thow he that came with so many runners and mes of warre in to the sayde treasury, was borne out, where as no man might helpe him: and so the power of God was manifest and knowne. The hye still downe also by the power of God, because of all hope and life. And they prayed the LORDE, that he had shewed his power vpon his place and temple, which a breake in to a full of feare & troubles, and the thow the reuelacion of the Almightye LORDE it was fylled with wepe and gladnesse.

The certayne of Heliodorus a fether praye Omias, that in all haile he wolde call vpon God, to graunte hym his life, which was giuen vnto the goost. So the hye priest considered the matter, and left the hyngre shoulde suspect that the Jewes had done Heliodorus some good: he offered a heale offeringe for him. Thow who the hye priest had openyed his petition, the same yonge men in the same clothinge appeared, & stode beside Heliodorus, sayenge: Thanks Omias of hye priest, for soch his sake hath y LORDE graunted the a life: therfore praye y God both scourge y, & graue hym praye y thanks, and shewe vnto man his myghte & power. And who they had spoken these wordes, they appeared none.

So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made greates venues vnto him which had graunted him his life, thanked Omias, toke his booke, & wrote a game to y thege. The scriber he entorey m. of y greates wordes of God, & he had stee in his eyes. And who the hyngre aied Heliodorus who were m. to be kepte yet once ago yae to Jerusalem, he sayde: If thou hast any enemy or a durtory vnto thy realme, sende him thither, & then shoulde have him punished, yf he escape & his life for in y place (no doute) there is a special power & workinge of God. For he y traveller in heare, vnto the defendeth y place: & all y cometh to do harme, he punisheth y plague. This is now y matter concerninge Heliodorus, & the keepinge of y treasury of Jerusalem.

The ii. booke of the Machabees.

The III. Chapter.

And Symon now of whom we spake afore beinge a baronier of the monarchy and of his owne naturall countrey reported the worst of Onias as though he had moned Heliodorus into this, and so though he had bene a byrnger up of well. Thus was he not ashamed to call him an enemye of his realme, that reuenge faithfull an enemye to defender of the cite & of his people: yet so fyttem in the laure of God. But when the malice of Symon increased so farre, that he shewd his frendes there were certayne munitione chymised: Onias considered the perill that might come thowen this strife, and here the Apollonius (namely the chiefe lorden of Calpurnia and Phenicea) was all set vpon Symon, and Symon malice increased the same: he gaue him the keye, not as an enemye of the cite, but as one that by him self intened the common wealthe of the whole multitude. For the same was not possible to lyue in peace, neither Symon to leaue off from his foolishness, excepte the keye was loosed there.

But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is called the noble) was of byngdome: Jason the brother of Onias laboured to be chiefe priest: for he came unto the keyne, and promised him the hundred & thirtie talentes of silver, & of the other riches of the caleneo. Desydes this he perswaded him yet an C. L. yf he might haue the scoll of the children, and that he might call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Which when the keyne had granted, & he had gotten the superintendence he beganne immediately to diuine his kind men to the custome of the Grecians, put downe the theologies, that the Jewes had set up of loue, by Ihon the father of Esopolemia (which was sent ambassadour unto Rome, for to make the bonde of friendship and loue.) he put downe all the lawes & the vnder of the lawes, and set up wicked statutes. he durst make a fightinge scoll under a castell, and set fayne yonge men to leane the manner of whores and broddels.

C This was now the begynnyng of the heathenish & strange conuersacion, brought in thowen the vngreuous and vnder the vice of Jason (which shulde not be called a priest, but an vngodly personne.) In so much, that the prestes were now named occupie aboute the seruice of the altar, but despyed the temple, regardeth not the offeringe: yet gaue their dilact to leane to fight, to mylls, to leape, to dance, & to put stone, not sayenge by the bond of a lawe, but by the glory of the Grekes best of all for the which they stroue palestres, and they regred to followe their statutes, yet that lust was in all thinges to be like the, and so were then enemies to the keyne. And here to do wickedly agaynst the lawes of God, shal we see vngodly men of this nation speak here a fewe.

What tyme as the Olympian games were played at Lyons (the Grekes best of all beinge present) the vngreuous Jason was with men, bearinge from them of Jerusalem: which now were called Antiochians. C. diademas of silver for an offeringe to the keynes. These had they then, as they desired vnder such a fast, as though they shulde not haue bene offered, but bestowed on other uses. Therefore he that they sent, sent them to the to tent that they shulde offered vnto Hercules. And because of that that were present, they were given as to the makinge of shippen. And Apollonius the sonne of Nestas was sent in to Egypte, in cause of the noble men of Egypte: Ptolemie Philometer. Now when Antiochus perceived that he was put out from makinge in the realme, he soughte his waye of profit, departed from thence, came to Joppa, thence to Jerusalem: where he was honorably receaued of Jason & the cite, & was brought in wold lighte and with greates paynt: and he turned his host vnto Phenicea.

After iij. yeares Jason sent Menelaus the four sayde Symon a brother he had thence, vnto of the keyne, to be brought in (as of other necessary matters. But he when he was prayd of the keyne for magnifyinge of his power turned the prestes vnto him self, launge vp in C. talentes of silver for the keyne. So wold he had gotten commandment from the keyne, he came, hauinge with him a becommen a prest, but hauinge a sword of a cruel tyrant, & the wealthe of a wyche to be best. Then Jason which had bene his owne brother (sayinge that he him self was begyled also, was fayne to slea in a house of the Ammonites, & Menelaus a gaye & dour. But as for Symon he had permission to the keyne, he had nothinge there, vnto Sotiras the enter of the castell, requyred of him. (For Sotiras was the man.) & thence the custome was put for the keyne to be called before the keyne. Thus was Menelaus put out of the presthood, & a friend of his brother came in his steade. Sotiras so was made lord of the Cyprian.

It happened in a mane season, y^e That faw a Malicioſo made inſurreccō, becauſe they were greeued for a peſcent unto Kyng Anochus concubine. Then came y^e King with y^e hoſt to ſtill them agayne and to pace the matter. Kyng Anochus there to be he behye, as one meeke therfore. Now Melencio ſuppoſing that he had gotten a right convenient tyme, ſtole certeyn reſids of golde out of the temple, and gaue the to Anochus for a preſent: and ſome bi-ſides at Tyne and in the cities therby.

Whiche when Onias knewe of a ſer-vy, he reſponed him: but he kepte him in a ſumary beſide Daſpha, that ſerch by Anochus. Wherefore Melencio gaue him to Anochus, and prayed him that he wold diſtury Onias. So when he came to Onias, he counceiled him craftely to come out of the ſumary, ſearyng him how he had wonch ane ſuch ſhow he ſe he ſuppoſe him a nu the he ſaw Onias, withoute any regard of payſantheſſe. For the which cauſe noe only the Jewes, but other nations alſo col-le in vngacion, and were diſpleaſed for the unſeuen: death of ſo goodly a man.

And when the Kyng was come agayne from Cicia, the Jewes and certeyn of the Gates wente unto him, complayninge for the unrighteous death of Onias. For An-ochus himſelf ſaw ſerch in his mynde for Onias, ſo y^e it pleyed him, and he recei-ued him in ſoberneſſe and manerly he honour. Wherefore he was ſo troubled in his mynde, y^e he comanded Anochus to be ſhip out of his purple clothinge, and ſo to be led thow out all the cite, yea and y^e ungra-cious man to be ſlayne in ſame place, where he comended his wickedneſſe vpon Onias Thus y^e LORD rewarded him his payſe-ment, as he had deſtroyed. Now when Lyſimachus had done many wycked dedes in y^e temple thow the counsell of Melencio, and the wyce came abode: the multitude gathered thither together agaynſt Lyſimachus, for he had caried out now much golde.

So when the people at oſe and were full of diſcord, Lyſimachus armed himſelf with ſhieldes to deſtroye him in certeyn maner byng their capteyne, which was growen both in age and woodneſſe. But when the people in the ſode the purpoſe of Lyſimachus, ſome gaue ſtones, ſome good ſtronge clubbes, and ſome caſt aſſides vpon Lyſimachus. Thus there were many aſſides woodnes, ſome beynd ſtones, and all the other chaunce waye. But as y^e wolded chard and robber himſelf, they ſlaid him beſide the treaſury. Of theſe marcers therfore there was kepte a courſe agaynſt Melencio.

Now when y^e King came to Tyne, they made a cōplaine unto him of Melencio, concerninge this buſyneſſe, and y^e embayſadors were ther. But Melencio wrote a promiſe to ſeek to geue him much money, yf he wold be perſwade the Kyng. So the promiſe wrote the King in to a courtier, where as he was ſo to ſeek him: and brought him out of y^e mynde In ſo much y^e he diſcharged Melencio frō accuſatione, y^e not withſtandinge was cauſe of all myſtificatione: and choſe poore men (which yf they had roide their cauſe, yea before the Scythians, they ſhalde bene be indyged) and choſe he choſe ſo beaſt. Thus were they ſome punyſhed, which followed vpon y^e matter for y^e cite, for y^e people, and for y^e holy m ſell.
 Wherefore they of Tyne were indignacion, & beaſt the honorably. And ſo thow y^e couetouſneſſe of them that were in power, Me-lencio remained ſtill in a ſurpriſe, increaſinge in malice, to the harme of the citeſyne.

The V. Chapter.

At y^e ſame tyme Anochus made him ready to go a gaine into Egipt. The were there ſome a Jeruſalem (ſerch to geue him ſumme to and ſo in the ayre, which had raymes of golde, y^e ſpores. The were ſine alſo whole hoordes of ſiluer weaped, and ſiluer runninge in an obde, how they came together, how they helde ſuch their ſhieldes, how y^e ho meſſed men drew out their ſwarbes, and ſhot their darts. The ſhyn of y^e golde weapes was ſine, and of all manner of armure. Wherefore euery man prayed, y^e choſe tokens might turne to good. Now when the was gone ſuch a ſiluer wind, as thowgh Anochus had bene dead: y^e ſiluer was a ſiluer, and came ſo ſiluer vpon y^e cite. The citeſyne was vnto y^e walls, and y^e laſt was y^e citadell, and Melencio fled in to the caſtell.

As for y^e ſiluer, he ſpared not his owne citeſyne in the ſlaughter, neither conſidered he what greates well it were, to deſtroye y^e pro-perites of his owne kynſmen: but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of his frendes. For all this gate he not the ſuperiorite, but at the laſt recei-ued confuſion for his malice, and fled agayne like a vayne vayne in to the lande of the Ammonites. Finally (for a remembrance of his wickedneſſe) he was accuſed before Archas the Kyng of the Arabians: In ſo much that he was ſynner fle from cite to cite, beyng beſpyed of every man as a ſouler of the lawes, and an abhominable personne. And at 3 last, as an open enemy of his owne naturall countrey and of the ciuitie, he was driven into Egipt.

Thus he 3 a foue put many out of their owne natyue londe, persyshed from home himselfe, he wente to Lacodemon, churginge them to haue gotten succoure by reason of Egipt. And he that afore had taken many one out vnder his, was shewen out himselfe, no man meeneinge for him, nor puttinge him in his grave: so that he neither enioyed 3 buriall of a stranger, neither was he partaker of his fathers sepulchre.

C Now when this was done the kinge suspected, 3 the Jerusalem wolde haue fallen from him: wherfore he came in a greates displeasure out of Egipt, 3 toke the cite by violence. 148. 12 He commanded his men of warre also, that they shulde kill 3 not spare, but slaye downe such as w shode them, or climmed up apouf houses. Thus was there a greates slaughter of yonge men, olde men, women, children and virgins. In iiij. dayes were there slayne 148. 13 xxxij. thousande put in prison, 3 no lesse folde. Ther was he not content w this, but durst go in to the most holy temple (Temple) wher that erastus were to 3 lawes 3 to his owne naturall countrey, beynge his gyde: with his wicked honore robe of holy assell, which other tynges 3 citis had gotten thur for 3 garnishinge 3 honore of y place. the robe he in his hodes vntowely, 3 befyed them.

D So madde was Antiochus, that he considered not, how that God was so litle watch for the synners of them that dwelle in the cite, for the which such confusion came vpon that place. And why? if it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many synners, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had fowenly bene punished, and shode out for his presumptuous life: as Heliodorus was, whom Selenus the kynge sent to robbe 3 treasurie. Jerusalem God had not chosen the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therefore to the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwarde shall it enioye the watch of them. And like as it is now forsaken in the watch of almighty God, so when the greates God is reconcyled, it shall be set vpon his worshippe agayne.

So when Antiochus had taken a Temple city. Leuiticus out of the temple, he got him to Amochus in all the banck, churginge w his pryde, that he might make me sit vpon daye londe, and to go vpon 3 sea, such as he mynde had he. He leste Debalus there to reue the people: the Jerusalem left he thur 3 Phyligion, in maners more cruel the himselfe 3 sit him there. At Sasima he left Antiochus 3 Meneiaus, to which were more gruous to the synners then other. Now as he was thus sit in malice agaynst 3 Jerusalem, he sent Appollonius an hared prynter, w xxxij. thousande him to slaye all those 3 were of perfecte age, and to sell the womes, maydes 3 children. When he came nere to Jerusalem, he fained peace: kepte him still vntill Sabbath daye. And then he commanded his men to take them to their meates: for 3 Jerusalem kepte holy daye) and so he slawe all them 3 were gone forth to the open playe, runninge here and there theow the cite with he not waped, and murdered a greates multitude. But Judas Nachabeca which was the reddy, fled in to the wyldernes, led his life there with his company amonge the wyld beestes and vpon the meynaynes: dwellinge there and eatinge grasse, lest they shode be partakers of the synners.

The Vi. Chap.

N O longe after this, sent the kynge 3 messenger of Antiochus, for to call 3 Jerusalem to aler 3 ordinaunce of 3 fathers 3 the lawe of God, to besyde the temple 3 was at Jerusalem, 3 to call in the idole of Jupiter Olympus: 3 they shode be in Sasima, as those which dwell at 3 place of Jupiter the harterous. This meche didd of 3 wgedly was heuy vpon all 3 people. For 3 temple was full of vntowelynes bebbenge 3 bollenge of 3 seith, of maydes 3 barlones to gether. The womes were in 3 holy place, bare in that was not lawfull. The altar also was full of vntowelynes, gea, which 3 lawe forbiddeth to laye vpon. The Sabbathes were not kepte, the vntowely temple fastes of 3 londe were not requyred. To be plaine, there durst no man be so frowne that he was a Jerusalem.

In the daye of the Iyngea both they wa re compelled perforce to offire: when y^e feast of Iudas was kepte, they were constrained to make garlandes of yorn, and so to go a longe for the honoure of Iudas.

¶ The nexte sheweth the counsell of Podo mesth: where oute a commandement in y^e nexte cause of the Iudas. y^e they shoulde marke the Iewes in like manner: namely, to co pelles for to do sacrifices a fyer y^e lawes of y^e Iudas: and who so wolde not, to put them to death. As p^{re}cedent thinge was it to se. The nexte if women are forced to have circumci sion about the cirk: the Iudas hanginge at their busles: they cast them beames of brayles onto the wallies. Some y^e were crepe in burnes and had kepte the Sabbath, not to beate into Philippe, and burnt in the fire: because that for the feare of God they kept the commandment to fast, and wol de not beate them floure.

¶ Now y^e desire all those which readeth this booke, that they refuse not for these folles of disobey: to wage the thingen (y^e are happe ned) for an offence, but for a chastenyn g of people. And why? Wher God suffreth us synners longe: so sometime their owne syn ne, but shortly punisheth them, it is a reb be to the greates Ioyne Iudas. For him gra tious was of God more then other people, y^e he suffreth not so longe to synne unpun ished like other naciones, that when the daye of iudgement cometh, he maye punish the wylfulnes of their synnes. If we synne, he correcteth us, but he never withdraeth his mercy fro vs: though he punisheth aduer saries, yett both he never forsaketh his people.
Dretheth that we have spokē now: saw ynter, be for a warninge & exhortaciō of y^e hearth. Now thus we comēt to the declaringe of the matter. Eleazar oute of y^e principall Iudas aged māt y^e of a walsacōd cotte red, was constrained to gaze at p^{re}moneth y^e to save his ynea flesh. But he despyngē re sist to byt his doosly thet he lused hyme, of y^e himselfe willigly to y^e martirdome. Now he be sawe y^e he must needs go to it: he dole fully: for he was at a payme wth himselfe, y^e he wolde consent to no unlaful thinge for p^{re}sumptuous of selfe. They y^e stode by be vt p^{re}pared to dye: but not a righte for y^e alde y^e bishop of the mart, toke him asyde p^{re}uie hand and prayd him y^e he wolde let such fleshy letough him an were lawfull to eate, & the make a consecraciō: as though he had ea ten of y^e fleshy of y^e sacrifice like as the Iynge commanded, for so he might be deliuered from death: so for the olde frendshipe of y^e man, they shewed him than kynnes. But he beganne to confute his desire and hono rable age, his nable and worshipfull stode, and how y^e s^{er}ved him youth up he had bene of an honest and good conversacion, yett how constantly he had kepte y^e ordinaunces and lawes commanded by God, rather for he ga nethen this answer, and sayde:

¶ Yet had I rather first be layd in my gra ue. For it becometh noemyne age (saye he) to any wyse to dyssemble, wherby many yonge performe cannghe churke, that Eleazar beinge lxxx. yere olde and con, were now go ing to a straunge lyfe: and so chorom myn y^e p^{re}ncely (for a lile tyme of a transitory lyfe) they might be discomfited: by this meane al so shoulde I despye myne age, & make it abho minable. For though I were now deliuered from the tormentes of men, yett shoulde I not escape the hande of allmightie God, neyther almye not dead. Wherfore I will dye manful ly, & do as it becometh myne age: Wherby I wote peradventure leave an exple of stode fastnesse for such as be yonge, yf I be a ready mynde & manfully byt an honest death, for the most worthy and holy lawes.

¶ When he had sayde these wordes, imme diately he was drawen to the comite. Then they char led him and were mylde a lile a fore, beganne to take displeasure, because of the wordes y^e he sayde: for they thought he had spokē them of an hie mynde. But whē he toke in his martirdome, he mourned and sayde: O LORD, which hast the holy marriage, knowest openly that I here as I might be deliuered fro death, I suffer the fore payne of my body: but in my mynde I am wel content to suffer them, because I feare the. Thus this man dyed, leaving y^e men on all of his death for an exple, not only unto yonge men, but unto all y^e people, to be stedfast and manly.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ It happened also that there were vijth barthen (which that moother) taken, & compelled by the Iynge against the lawes, to take surmyes fleshy: namely to scote ges and lecher whippes. And one of them which was y^e chiefe, sayde: What selfe thou, and what requyrst thou of us? As for us, we are ready rather to suffer death, then to offende the lawes of God and the sa thens. Then was the Iynge angry, and had hoie cauldrens and blasen pottes. Which when they were made hote, immediatly he commaunded þe tongue of him that shal be first, to be cut out, to pull the slayne our his head, to paye of the edges of his handes and feetes: and that in the sight of his mother and the order of his brethren. Now when he was cleane married, he commaunded a fytte to be made, so (whyle there was any breath in him) he be fyt in the cauerne. In the which when he had bene longe payned, the other brethren with their mother comforted him cōdemanfully, sayyng: The LORD God shal rewarde the treach, and comforte vs, like as Moses testifieth and declareth in his song, sayyng: and he wil haue compassion on his seruantes.

As whē the first was deed a fere this manner, they brought the first corse to haue him in deuotion, pulled the slayne with the harte ouer his heade, and aye him, yf he wolde raise hym in flesch, or be more payned in þe other members alse than ouer his body. But he answered boldly, and sayde: I will not do it. And so was he reuerend like a y first. And whē he was awake of geaunging vp of y goest, he sayde: Thou most vngreuous personne puttest vs now to death, but the kynge of þe wolde shall raise vs up (which by his lawes) in y resurrection of euerlastinge life.

After him, was the thurde had in deuotion: and when he was requyred, he putte out his tongue, and that right soone, holdinge sauh his honden manfully, and spake with a fithfast faith: These haue I of beate, but now for the lawe of God I despyse them: for my trust is, that I shall receaue them of him agayne. In so much that the kynge and they which were with him, marvelled at the yonge mans boldnesse, that he not ynge regarded the payne.

Now when he was deed also, they woted the fourth man to mentee in like manner. So when he was nē to his death, he sayde: It is better that we be kynge put to death of me, haue our hope and trust in God, for he shal raise vs up agayne. As for the, thou shalt haue no resurrection to life.

And when they had spoken to the fift, they comforted him. Then lokēd he vnto y kynge, and sayde: Thou hast power amōg vs (for thou art a metell man also y self) to do what thou wilt, but thinke not, y God hath forbidden y generacion. Whyd the, say y still a whyle, to thou shal se the grete power of God, how he wil paynt the y thy fide.

After him they brought the fyre, which he kynge at the poynte of death sayde: It is not discomfited (o kynge) for this will suffre for oure owne sake, because we haue offendid vs God, and therfore marvelous thinges are shewed vpon vs. But thinke not them which cōfess in hōde to stryue agaynst God: thou shalt scape vnpanyshed.

This excellent mother wōt by to be well reported of, and had in remembrance of her senn sinnes dye in one day, and fynyed it pacially, in cause of the hope that she had in God: For she cryed euery one of them in especiall, and that boldly and stoutly, a paffire wysdome, watyng vp his wyssh thōugh he with a manly stemynde, and saye vnto them: I can not tell how ye cōmūny wombe, for I neither gaue you with myracles, nor net life. It is not I y ioynd y meane of y bodie togethr, but y mater of y and of, which fasthōd y bynd of my, and began oill chynge. When he also of thea come may shall gawe you breath and life agayne, like as ye now regarde not youre owne salua in his lawes sake.

Now thōugh he Antichon, that he had despyed him, therfore he let her go with his espouses, and beganne to exorte the yongil sonnet which yet was lesse than only wotes her swote mynde him to an dooth, y he shal make him a rich y euelthy man: yf he wote for ake y lawes of his fathers: yet and y he shulde gawe him, what so ever he nee needful for him. But whē the yonge man wolde not be moored, for all the sedychinges, he callid his mother, and counceled her to saue his sonnet life. And when he had exorted her with many wordes, she promysid him, that she shal speake vnto his sounet. So she wōt to her and to him (laughinge y small ymūte of saue ne) spake w a boldre voyce: O my sounet, be not pite vpon me, y bare y y amōthens in my wombe, that gaue the fytte, now stande as thou ghe the vnto this age. Y bethid (my sounet) lokt vpon heauen and earth and all that is therein, and considre, that God made them and man's generacion of naught shal: thou not feare this hangman, but suffre death fithfastly, like as thy brether haue done: that I maye receaue the agayne the same mercy with thy brether.

Whyle she was yet speake yng the sounet, the yonge man sayde: Whom lokt yest? Wherfore do ye say y? I will not obey the kynge's commaundement, but thy lawe: for God gaue vs oy klasse. As for the the ymagine all my chynge awaynt the fytte, thou shalt not scape the bonde of God: for we suffre these thinges, because of our synnes.

 And God was their helpe, in so much that they slewe above xx. l. mē & compelled 3 more parts of Ticanors hoost to flye, they were so wounded and feble. Thus they toke the money from those that came to buye the, and folowed upon them on every syde. But whē the tyme came upon them, they returned, for it was the Sabbath, and therefore they folowed nomaie upon them. So they toke their weapons and spoyle & kept the Sab bath, geuyng thanks vnto the L O R D E, which had deliuered them that daye, and shewed them his mercy. After the Sabbath they distributed the spoyle to the sick, to 3 fatherlesse, and to wyddowes, and the resi due had they hem selues with ihaire. Whē this was done, and they all had made a ge neral prayer: they besought the mercifull LORDE to be or one with his seruantes.

Of whose also that were with Timotheus and Machabe, which fought agaynst them, they slewe xx. l. manne byt and stronge hol des, and bounde moos spoyle: enen geuyng a n equali part for vnto 3 sick, to 3 fatherles & wyddowes & to aged persons. And when they had diligently gathered their weapons together, they layed them all in convenient places, & the remnant of 3 spoyle brought they to Jerusalem. They slewe Phylarches that wicked person, which was with Ti motheus, and had vnto many Jewes. And when they helde the thankesguyng in Je rusalem for the victory, they went those that had seyn on the poytes of the temple: nam ely Calisthenes, which was fled in to an house: and so they gat a mothy reward for their wickednesse. As for them selfe, mag nificus Ticanor, which had brought a sp ious marchallice, to buye the Jewes, he was the iow 3 helpe of the LORDE brought down ne, euen of them whom he regarded as: in so much that he was of his glorious spall, fled by sea, and came alone to 3 miche & greates shame & dishonour, which he got from the destruction of his hoost. Thus he promysed the Romanyas to paye the tribu tution, when he toke Jerusalem: became now to saye plainly, that God was 3 deli uer of the Jewes, & therefore not possibill to worde them, because they sold such 3 lams which God had made.

The IX. Chapter.

At the same tyme came Antiochus agayne with dishonoure out of Persia.
 For when he came to Persopolis, he undertoke to robbe the temple and to sille the citie, the people rose together and fended them selues, in so much 3 he had more sayne to fle with shame. And so after that flight, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne with dishonour. But when he came to Bethsatha, he gat knowledge what was happened vnto Ticanor & Timotheus.
 There as he was a warninge himselfe in his watch, he thought he was able to stop the injury that was done to them, spake Jewes: and therefore commaunded him to be ready with his charer, haustings on his waye without cessing: the indignite of Gods uolunge him, because he had spelt his iust ly, that he wolde come to Jerusalem, and see a grame of the Jewes. But the LORDE God of Israel, that seith all thinges, sent him with an invisible plague, which was coude heale.

For as soone as he had spent the bee, there came upon him an heauie pain of his bowels, & a sore greife of the thence.
 And 3 was but right: for he had man other mens bowels with dyartre and sin ge commentes, howe be it he wolde in ceasse from his malice. For he was y a pender, and more malicious agaynst Jewes: But while he was commaunded to make haste in the matter, it happened he fell downe violently frome the chare, it himselfe his body, & dyd him greuous paine.

And so he that thought he he might maunde 3 floudes of the sea 3 pade he beynde the censors of men, and to stop the byt meaneymes in a payne of flesh was now brought downe to the ground caried vpon an horse flyeter, his mlegy myself power of God upon him: so that his body of his was full of wisdom, which in his payne fell quyet out of his selfe. In so much that his booke was greued with the smell and stynke of him. Thus he was like a fowle thought he might be ready to the flatter of heauen, him mighte no man nether see nor heare, for the vehemence of fynne.

Therefore he beyng broughte from his paine payne, began first to come to know le of him selfe for the punishment of God ward him, that his payne increased ever more. And when he him self mighte not stop his owne synne, he sayde these wordes.
For reason to be obedient unto God, & that a man beynge not to be like unto him.
This wiche personne payned also vnto the LORD, of whom he shalbe hane obtained mercy. And as for the cite that he came was so hailely, to bringe it downe to the grounde, to make it a grave for dead men and to beynge to destroy it. And so to a dange of Jewes, whom he had subgected not to be buried, but wolde haue cast the soules and wyl kinasles, sayenge, that he wolde haue destroyed both albe and yong: To be promised, to make the life of casuys of Achens, And where as he had destroyed the holy temple also, now he wylde promise to garnish it with greates riches, to increase the holymaniteas, and of his owne remys to be in the cistens and charges belonging to the offeringes: yet and that he wolde also become a Iune him self, to go thowen every place of the world, and to preach the power of God.

When his paynes wolde not cease, the righteuous indgmet of God was come upon him: out of a very despayre he was come to the Jewes a letter of intercession, & bringe the best wordes: The Pyng and pyne of Iudasus wyshten vnto the vntuous cityens of the Jewes, much healeth and good possessione.

As yet and youre children fare well, and if all thynges go after youre mynde: we generate chaunce. In my sicke selfe also do I remember you longynge: for as I came out of Persia, and was taken with sore discase, I thoughte it necessary to care for the common weale. Forther despayre I in my selfe but have a good hope to escape this sicknes.

For consideringe that my father led an honeste lyfe in yf byer places, & he wolde not haue raigne after him, charyf there happened any cheryf, as any hard thinge more declared, they is the lorde mighte to come their cheryf soude. & there shalbe no insurrectione. And ym, when I ponde by my selfe, that all yf mighte men and neighbours rounde aboute, are layde to wate, and lets but for oportynyte to do better. I hane ordered that my soun Amichus shal raigne after me, whom I oft commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer Engdo-mes, and hane written vnto him so as to somewhat better. Therfore I praye you and requeyre you, to remember the benefices that I hane done vnto you generally and in speciall. For I hope that he shal be of sober & le myng behauiour, and yf he selesome my de-wyce, he shal be indifferent vnto you.

Thus that murderer and blasphemour of God was soe synner: and like as he had increased other men, so he dyed a miserable death in a straunge countrey port a moun-

The X. Chapter.

And whereas now & his companye to the helpe of the LORD, man the temple and the cite aga ym, destroyed the altars and chapels that the Jewes had buylded thowen the strete: densified the temple, made another altar of bric-ke stone, and after x. yeres they offered sacrifices, set forth the incense, the lightes and shame died. When that was done, they fell downe flat vpon the grounde, and besought the LORD, that they mighte come agayne into such trouble: but yf they synned any more agaynst him, he him self to chasten them with mercy, and not to come in the bondes of cheryf alacutes and blasphemous men.

Now vpon the same daye that a stranger polluted the temple, it happened that on the very same daye it was clenched agayne namely, the xij. daye of the moneth called Casler. They kepte vij. dayes in glori-fice, like as in the feast of the tabernacles: remembringe that not longe a fow, they had be the feast of yf tabernacles vpon the mountaynes and in denmas like beastes. And do same tyme they were grete honore, ban-dies and palmes before him that had given them good fortune to cleanse his place. They agreed also together, and made a statute, & every yere those dayes shoulde be solemnly kept of all the people of the Jewes.

The ij. booke of the Machabees.

Now Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is sufficiently tolde. Now we speake of Lysanias the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, how it happened with him: and so with few wordes to comprehend the aduersitie that chaunced in y^e warres. When he had taken in the Kingdome, he made one Lysias (which had bene captayne of the hooft in Phenices and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of this realme. For Proxenus that was called Mithacon, begynne ruler for the Jewes: and specially, so yet in indignation for such wronge as was done unto them) undertooke to deale peaceably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frenches before the priests: and when he was suspected to be a traytor: (because he had left Cyprus, that Philometor had committed vnto him: and because he departed from vnto Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he paysoned himself, and dyed.

Now when Gorgias was gouernour of the same places, he tolde straungers and undertooke oft tymes to warre with y^e Jewes. Mithacon the Ioudeians that helde the strong holdes, receaued those that were driven from Ierusalem, and toke in hand to warre also. But they that were with Machabees, besought and prayed vnto the LORD, that he woulde be their helpe: and so they fell in to the strong holdes of the Ioudeians, & wanne many places by strength: So as came agaynst them they slew, and kylled no lesse (of all together) then twentye thousande. & Leue the lesse (no lesse then nyne thousande) were fled in to two strong holdes, hauynge all manner of ordnance to withstande them.

Then Machabees leauynge Symon, Josephus, Zacharias and those that were with them, (which were very many) wente to besiege this, and to fight where most neede was. Now they that were with Symon begynne led with conuersione, were increased for money, thowynge certayne of those that laye in the conuertible lxx. M. drachmes: for some of them escape. But when it was tolde Machabees what had happened, he called y^e captaynes of the people together, accusynge those perfumes, that they had sold the brethren for money, and let their armes go. So he slew those traytours, & immediately wente in hand with the Ioudeians. And when they had ordered them selves wylly with their weapons & handes, they went in y^e two castles moche to the thousande.

Now Lysanias to whom the Jewes had overcome afore, gathered a multitude of straunge people, broughte an hoste after the custom of the Asiatics, to myne Ierusalem strength. But when he sawe nye Machabees and they that were wth him fell to their prayer, spencled ashen upon their heades, beynge gyrded wth hayle cloth aboute their loines, seldomere before y^e anker, & besought the LORD that he woulde be mercifull to them, but an enemy vnto their enemies, and to take parte agaynst their aduersaries, accordinge as it is promysed in the same. So after the prayer, they wente on further from the cite: and when they came nye the enemy, they prepared them selves agaynst them.

And by syncke in the morninge as faste of the daye, both the hostes drew together. The one parte had the LORD for their refuge, which is the greeke of power, strength and victory. The other had a lyment, which is a capeayne of warre. The battayll now beinge greater, there ¹quered vnto the enemies from heauen v. ²surrounde his backe with byrds of golde, ³amonge the Jewes, and two of them haueyn ⁴Machabens betwixte them, & keepe him safe on every syde wth their weapons, but shew hym and his lighte shynynge vpon the enemies. where the more they were confounded with thynesse and so faste as they shal they full vnto. There were slaine of foor men in cithen ande and fye hundreth, and fye hū ⁵thousand men, as for Timotheus him self, he fled into Gazar a very stryge holde, where Maccas was capetayne. But Machabens and his company layed sege to it churfullly ⁶ay dayes. And wher they were within, trustynge to the strenght of the place, enriced & hande greeningly, and made greates cradinge with wth dth wardeo. & twentysse vpon the fift daye in the morninge, x. von gentes of Machabens cōpany, beinge set in fye in their myrthes because of the blasphemy: came manfully vnto the wall, and with bolde stomakes they and their other companyens clymmed vpon the towres, & vnto the most blasphemous persones quere. Two dayes were they destroyenge the wall, whiche when they founde Timotheus that was crept to a corner they kyled him, and steele Cereas his brother in like maner with Appollophanes. When this was done, they sang psalmes, with prayes and thankesguyng to vnto the LORDE. which had done so greates thinges for Israel, & geaunte vnto victory.

The XI. Chapter.

Whe longe after this, Lysias the kynge stewart and a kynsman of his, which had the gouernance of his nacery, toke foue displeasnte for the thinges that had happened: and when he had gathered lxxx. M. men of foor with all the best of the boishens, he came agaynst the Jewes, thynkyng to wynde the eare, to make an habite con for the Genthen, and the temple made he haue to be an house of leare, as an the other goddes houses of the Genthe, and to sell & pusses office every year. After considerenge the power of God, but was wyle in his mynde, crustynge in yth multitude of foor men, in house of boishens, and in his lxxx. Elephanes.

as it. Now when Machabens and his company knewe that the stronge holdes were taken, they full to their prayes with weeping and teares before the LORDE: and all the people in like manner besought him, that he wold sende a good angell to deluyre Israel. Machabens him self was the first that made him ready to the battayll, & fornyng the colles that were with him, as to be the thynsines and to hope their death. And when they were gonne age forth of Ierusalem together with a ready and wyllynge mynde, they appeared before the vpon house of a mi in wher clothynge with harness of golde, shakynge his speare. Then they passed yth LORDE all together, which had shewed thamerrey, and were comforted in their mynde so much that they were ready, not only to fight with men, but with yth most cruell bestes, yet and to raine the wth walls of yon.

That they went on wyllynge hauntyng C on helper from heauē, and the LORDE made a fall vnto them. They full mightily vpon their enemies like yon, brought downe xi. M. foor men, & vi. C. boishens, and all yth other a flight, many of them beinge wounded, and some that were nate. And Lysias him self was fayne to fle shamefully, and so to escape. And the less the man was not with our vnderstandynge, one considered by him self that his power was mynyshed, and poudich how yth Jewes beinge defended by the helpe of Almighty God, were not able to be overcome: wherefore he sent them warde, and promysed, that he wold be content to all thinges which were reasonable, and to make the lymge their frede. To the which praye of Lysias Machabens agreed, sittinge in all thinges the comon wealthe: and wherforer Machabens moue vnto Lysias cōfession the Jewes, the lymge gaunte it. For they were letters wnted vnto yth Jewes from Lysias comynge the wth wth.

Now the Hyng letter contened these matters: Hyng Antiochus sendeth greeting unto his brother Asias. For so much as our father is now dead, our will is, that they which are in our realme, live without any unlesse, and every man to be diligent in his owne matters. We understande also, that the Jewes would not consent to our father, for he brought unto the custome of the Gentiles, but shilly to kepe their owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of us also, to let them remaine still by their owne lawes.

E Wherefore our minde is, that this people shalbe in rest: we have concluded and determined also, to restore them their temple again: that they may live according to the use & custome of their fathers. Then shalbe do us a pleasure therfor, if they (inde) unto them & agree with them: that when they are certified of our mynde, they may be of good cheer, and let to their owne wealth.

And this was the letter, that the Hyng wrote unto the Jewes: Hyng Antiochus sendeth greeting unto the counsell and the other people of the Jewes. As yet now will, we have our desire: as for us, we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde us, how & you by us so come be come to you. It people, which are with us.

Wherefore these that will come, we gave them as free liberty, unto the xij. daye of the month of Aspill, that they may use & measure of the Jewes and their owne lawes, like as afore: and none of them by any manner of waye to have blame, for thinges done in ignorance. Menelaus whom we have sent unto you, shal come with you at large, fare ye well. In the xxij. year, the xv. daye of the month of Aspill.

The Romayns also sent a letter, conveying these wordes: Quintus Mannius & Titus Mannius ambassadors of the Romayns, sendeth greeting unto the people of the Jewes. Let's what Asias the Hyng Asias hath granted you, we granted you the same also. But as concerninge the thinges which he referred unto the Jewes, sende hither some word speche: and please the matter diligently among your selves, that we maye ease & be to your profit, for we must departe now unto Antioch. And therefore write shortly againe, that we may knowe your mynde. Fare well. In the xxij. year, the xv. daye of the month of Aspill.

The XII. Chapter.

When these common men were made, Asias wente unto the Hyng, and Jeremib called their brethren. Timotheus, Appollonius the sonne of Germeus, Jeremias and Demophilus & good friends: & captaynes of Cypres, and they the laye in those places: where they shalbe in rest and peace. They of Joppa also to ever such a home full: they payed & Jewes that were among them, to go with their wyves and children into the shippes which they had prepared, & by such thing as though they had ought them so well as yet. For so much then as there was no such a generall proclamacon by us in regard of peace, they confessed them, and suspected nothing: but when they were gone forth into the ships, they did not knowe what they had done.

When Judas knew of this cruel shew, when his people, he commanded that they were with him to make them ready, to charge them to call upon God the righteous judge: more for his sake, than for the sake of his brethren, for he saw in & have by night burnt up & shippes, and about that time from the syn, he knew much the more. And when he had done this he departed: though he would come againe, and returne all shew of Joppa. But when he had gone, whether the Jamantus were any more, in like manner unto & Jewes which burnt among them, he came upon them Jamantus by night, and for they in the haven burnt shippes so that the light of the fire was seen at Jerusalem, open a. d. c. xli. Then when they were gone from the furionges, in their journey towards Jerusalem: v. thousand men of Jews and hundred hostmen of the Arabians fight with him. So when the battell was earnest, and prospered much Judas thow the helpe of God y^e season of the Arabians boyn gisome come, besought Judas to be nt one with them, and promised to geue him certayn pastures, & to do him good in othe thinges. Judas thynke ynge that they shoulde in such profitable concerninge many thynges, promised them peace: wherupon they hid handes, and so they departed to that mee. Judas wente also vnto a cite, whiche was very safe kepte wth byrdges, fenced round aboute with walles, & byuers. Byndes of people dwellinge therein, called Casput.

They that were with him, put sodr trust in the strenght of the walles, & in their stoutnes of mynde: that they were the flacker in their downyn, cursinge and reuylinge Judas with blaspheemies, and speakinge sodr wordes as it becometh not. But Machabeus callinge vpon the greace prynces of y^e world (whiche withoute anye boterayll rancours or ordinance of warre, byd cast downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Josaphat) fully vpon the walles, toke the ciuill thow the helpe of the L. O R D E yma in an yccouringe greace slaughter: In so muche that a lake of ij. furlonges brode whiche laye thereby, fumed to steme with the blowde of the saynt.

Then departed they from thence wth C. and fiftie men, and came to Tann to wth

y^e Jewes that are called Tabians. But as for Timotheus, they coude not geue him the refuge: nor one manner dispatched. He was departed from thence, and had leftes certayn men in a very stronge hold. But Dositheus and Sosipater whiche were captaynes with Machabeus, slewe those y^e Timotheus had left in the house of defence, xxiij. men. And Machabeus prepared him with y^e vij. men y^e were aboute him, fetchem in vnto by companies, and wente forth a gaynst Timotheus, which had with him an L. and xx. men of force, ij. M. and v. C. horsemen.

When Timotheus had knowlege of Judas commynge, he sent the women, children and the othe baggage vnto a castill called Carmon. (For it coude not be woonne, & was harde to come vnto, the wayes of the same places were so narrow) and when Judas company came first in sight, the enemies were fhytten with feare, thow the presence of God, whiche is y^e all thinges: In so muche y^e they sleynge one here, another there, were rather discomfited of their owne people, & avoided nt the straken of their owne swerdes. Judas also was very earnest in followynge vpon them and panyshinge those vngodly, and slewe xxx. M. men of them. Timotheus also himselfe fell in to the handen of Dositheus & Sosipater, whom he besought with many prayes, to let him go with benifite: because he had many of the Jewes fathers and bretheren in prison, whiche yf they put him to death wth might be disapoynted. So when he had promised faithfull y^e to deliuer them a gayne accordinge to the comicion made, they let him go withoute harme. for the health of y^e bretheren. And when Judas had slayne xxv. M. he wente from Carmon.

Then after y^e he had chosed awaye and slewe his enemies, he remened the hoste towards the phoenicis cite, wherewith many dyuers people of the heathen, and y^e stronge yonge men kepte the walles, besidynge the mightely. In this citie was much ordinance, and prouision of dares. But when Judas and his company had called vpon Allmighty God, (whiche wth his power breaketh the strenght of the monies) they runninge the cite, and slewe xxv. M. of them y^e were within. From thence wente they to the cite of the Scythians, which lieth vj. C. furlonges from Jerusalem. But when y^e Jewes whiche were in the cite testified, that the cite syns deales lowynge wth them, yee and intreated them kynndly in y^e tyme of their aduersitee, Judas and his company geue them him (which made them his people, and were befond his eny poison with cymbert to him) that he wolde pursue them still. So at the commaundement of the capteyne, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Bethsai. And Symon Judas brother fell in honde with Licanor, but when the seldane commynge of the emico, he was a fraie.

Wherefore Licanor bearinge the monynes of them that were with Judas, and y bolde stomaches that they had to fighte for their naturall countrie, darst not pious the matter with bloudsheddynge. Wherefore he sent possibonias, throbacius & tharbas before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken longe aduysment there upon, and the capteyne shewed it unto the multitude they were not in one mynde, to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to fyce upon these matters quyetly amonge them selues, y foles also were broughte and set forth. Wherefore Judas commaunded certayne men of armes to waite in conuente places, lest there shoulde suddenly aryse any euell choise of the enemies. And so they commenede reasonably together.

D Licanor, while he abode at Jerusalem, shewed himself not vnreasonably, but sent aways the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euery much his heere, and fauoured him. He prayed him also to take a wyfe, and to bringe forth children. So he married, lyued in rest, and they led a common life. But Alimus perceauynge the love that was betwixt them, and how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde him that Licanor had taken straunge matters in honde, and abused Judas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynge successe. Then the kynge was sore displeased, and then to the wicked accusations which Alimus made of Licanor, he was so provoked, that he wrote vnto Licanor, sayenge: that he was very angrye for the friendship and agreement, which he had made with Machabeus. Wherefore he commaunded him in all the hast, that he shoulde take Machabeus prisoner, and sende him to Antioche.

E Which letters when Licanor had seene, he was at his wittes ende, and sore grieved, that he shoulde breake the thinge, wherein they had agreed: specially, sayenge Machabeus was the man, that must dyd him harme. But because he myght not wishlyon de the kynge, he soughte oportunitie to fulfill his commaundement. Wherwith he began when Machabeus (since the Licanor began to be charyshly unto him, and that he increased him more roughly then he merited, he perceaued that such was ympossible of good, and therefore he gathered a few of his men, and withdrew himself to Licanor. Which when he knewe that Machabeus had manfully persecuted him, he came in to the great and most holy temple, and commaunded the prestes (which were doinge their vsuall offerings) to departe him the man. And when they sawe that they coude not tell, where the man was, he sought, he stretcht out his hande, and made an ooth, sayenge: If ye will not be lyuer me Judas capteyne, I shall smyte this temple of God in to the pyle me fill. I shall breake downe this altar, and confounde this temple vnto Achana. After these wordes he departed.

Then the prestes lift vp their hands to worde heauen, and besoughte him that neuer the defender of their people, sayenge Theu o LORDE of all, which hast rule of nothinge, wolest that the temple of thy habitation shoulde be amonge vs. Therupon now (omost holy LORDE) receiue this euer vnspotted, which lately was defiled. Now was there a caused vnto Licanor, who was an Alderman of Jerusalem, a leue of the whole cite, and a man of good reputacion, which for the kynde hart that he had toward the people, was called a father of y Jewes. This man oft tyme (when the Jewes were mynbed to kepe them selues vnspotted) had founde and deliuered them, bringe commended to spende his body and his life for his people.

So Licanor to yllingere to declare the hate, that he bare to the Jewes, sent five hundred men to take him: for he thought, if he gat him, he shoulde bringe the Jewes to great decaye. Now when the people began to rushe in at his house, he brake the doore, and to sit yue on it: he bringe newe talen, wolde haue defended himselfe with his sword: chosinge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde himselfe to those wicked doers, and because of his noble steele, he had neuer had bene put to extreme crueltie.

Wherwith standinge what tyme as in myfke of his steele for haile, and the multitude fell in violence to breake the doore: he stode boldly to y wall, & cast him selfe vnto he thoughte with all his power to make a sedit with him upon a Sabbath daye. Wherefore he the Jewes that were compelled to go with him, sayde: O be not Whereupon sayng he might not have his Titiano had demysed with greates pryde to overcome Judas, and to bynge awaye uid are fouente generacions: From Dauid unto the captiuitie of Babylon, are fouete generacions. From the captiuitie of Ba bylon unto Christ, are also fouente genera cions.

The birth of Christ was on this wise:
When his mother Mary was married to Jo seph: before they came together, she was found with chylde by & holy goost. But Jo seph her husbande was a perfect man, and would not bringe her to shame, but was myn ded to put her away secretly. And whyle he thus thought, beholde, the angell of the LORD appered vnto him in a drea me, sayinge: Joseph thou sonne of Dauid, fear not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that which is conceived in her, is of & holy goost. She shall bringe forth a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Iesus. For he shall save his people from their synnes.

All this was done, & the thinge mighte be fulfilled, which was spoken of the LORD by the Prophet, sayinge: Beholde, a mayde shall be with chylde, and shall bringe forth a sonne, and they shall call his name Ema nuel, which is by interpretation, God is vs.

Now when Joseph awoke out of slepe he did as the angell of & LORDE hadde hym, and toke his wyfe vnto hym, and kenne her not, tyll she had broughte forth his first bo ne sonne, and called his name Iesus.

The II. Chapter.

When Iesu was borne at Bethle em in Iury, in the tyme of Ieremie the Prophet. Beholde, there came wyse men from the east to Ierusalem, sayinge: Whe re is the new borne kynge of the Iewes? We have seen his sturre in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herode & his kynge had herbe thys, he was troubled, & all Ierusalem with hym, and he gathered all the hye Pricies and Scribes of & people, & axed of them, wher e Christ shulde be borne. And they sayde vnto him:

At A ij

to hymne Bechleem in Iury. For thus it is written by the Prophet: And thou Bechleem in the londe of Iury. are not the leeste amonge the Princes of Iudia. For out of y shall come unto me the captaynes, that shall gouern my people Istad.

B Then Herod pecauly called the wyse men, and bylygently enquired of them, what tyme the starre appeared, and sent them to Bechleem, saying: Go, and seeche bylygently for the chyld. And when ye haue founde hym, bringe me word agayne, that I maye come and worshippe hym also.

When they had heard the kynge, they be-parted: and lo, the starre which they sawe in the east, went before them, tyl it came, and stode ouer the place where the chyld was.
When they sawe the starre, they were maruelously gladd: and went into the house, and founde the chyld with Mary his mother, and kneded downe, and worshipped hym, & opened their treasures, and offred vnto hym gyfte: gold, frank ynsence and myrrer. And after they were warned of God in a dreame, that they shuld not go agayne to Herod, they returned inee their owne countree another waye.

C When they were departed: beholde, the angell of the LORDE appeared to Joseph in a dreame, sayinge: arise, and take the chyld and his mother, and flye into Egipte, and abide there tyll I bryng the worde. For the rod wyll see the chyld to destroye hym: The be arise, and take chy chyld and his mother by nyght, and departed into Egipte, and was there vnto the deeth of Herod, that the thyng might be fulfilled which was spoke of the LORDE, by the Prophet, which sayeth: of Egipte haue I called my sonne.

Then Herod perceauynge that he was dis-ceined of the wyse men, was exceedinge wroth, and sent forth, and sleue all the chyldren that were in Bechleem, and in all the coastes there of, as many as were two yere olde and vnder, accordynge to the tyme which he had aduysedly searched out of the wyse men.

Then was fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet Jeremy sayinge: On y hills was a voyce herde, greate moanynge, wepyng, & lamentacion: Rachel wepyng for her chyldren, and wolde not be comforted, because they were noe.

D When Herod was deid, beholde, an angell of the LORDE appeared in a dreame to Joseph in Egipte, sayinge: arise and take the chyld and his mother, & go into y londe of Istad. For they are dead, which sought the chyld to sleue. And he arose up, and toke the chyld and his mother, & came into the lan-de of Istad. But whē he herde that Archelaus did raygne in Iury, in the countrey of his father Herode, he was afraid to goe thither.

Lokyngh therefore after he was warned of God in a dreame he turned asyde into the parties of Galile, and went and dwelt in a cite called Nazareth, to fulfill what was spoken by the prophetes: he shall be called a Nazarene.

The II. Chapter.

At those dayes when the Baptyst came and preached in the wilderness of Iury, sayinge: Amide yowes sinner, the kyngdome of heuē is at hand. This he, of whom is spoked by the prophet Isay, which sayeth: The voyce of a cryer in the wildernes, prepare the LORDES waye, and make his pathes straight.

This John had his garments of camels haire, and a leather girdell aboute his loynes, his meate was locustes and wyld hyssop.
Then went out to hym Iherusalem, and all Iury, and all the region rounde aboute Iudan, and were baptised of hym in Iordan fyring thei synnes.

Now when he sawe many of the pharisees and of y Saducees come to hym to be baptised, he sayde vnto them: ye generation of wych, who hath certified you, that ye shal scape withoute to come? Answer, bringe forth the frutes of penitencie. Think not, men, to saye in your synnes, we haue Abraham our father. For I say vnto you, that God is able of these stones to raise vp chyldren vnto Abraham. Ife was now in the apect vnto y roote of the tree: ife were every tre which bringeth not forth good frute, shall be cut downe, and cast into the fyre.

I baptise yow with water to repentance, but he that cometh after me, is myghtier than I, whosē synnes I am not worthy to be baptised. He shall baptise yow with y holy gost & fyre: which hath also his fan in his hand, and will pouge his floore, and gathe the wheate into his garnar, & will burne y chaffe with ynquenchable fyre.

Then came Iesus from Galile to Iordan vnto John, to be baptised of hym. But John forbad hym, sayinge: I haue neede to be baptised of the: and comest thou to me? Jesus answered & sayd vnto hym: Let it be so now. For thus it behoveth vs to fulfill all righteousnes. Then he suffered hym. And Iesus assente as he was baptised, came forth out of the water.

out of the water. And lo, hee was op^d our hymen. Iohn saith the spirit of God descended like a dove, and lyght upon hym. And he, that came a voyce fro^m hea^{ve}n saying: Thys is my beloved sonne, in whom is my belice.

The III. Chapter.

Then was Iesus led awaye of the spirit in to wilderness, to be tempted of the deuyll. And when he had fasted fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes, he was a fastward and hungry. And the tempter came to hym and sayde: yf thou be the sonne of God, commaunde, that these stones be made bread. He answered & sayde: yf is not written: Man shall not lyue by bread onely, but by every worde that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

Then the deuyll toke hym vp into the holy cite, and set hym on a pynacle of the temple, and sayde vnto hym: yf thou be the sonne of God, cast thy selfe downe. For it is written: thou shalt geue thy angels charges vnder thee, and with their handes they shall holde thee up, that thou dost not thy foot vpon a stone.
And Iesus sayde vnto hym: it is written also: Thou shalt not tempt the LORD God.

Agayne, the deuyll toke hym vp and led hym into an exceeding hye mountain, and shewed hym all the kyngdomes of the world in an instant. And he sayde vnto hym: I will geue thee all this, yf thou wilt fall downe and worship me. Then sayde Jesus vnto hym: Awaye said. For it is written: thou shalt worship the LORD thy God, and hym onely shalt thou serue.

Then the deuyll left hym, and behelde, the angels came and ministered vnto hym.
When Iesus had herde that Iohn was in the wilderness, he departed into Galilee, and left Nazareth, and went and dwelt in Capernaum, which is a cite vpon the sea, in the coostes of Zabulon and Nephtali. For thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the prophet sayinge: The lande of zabulon and Nephtali, the waye of the sea beyonde Tiberden, and Galilee of the Gentyles, the people which sit in darkness, haue a greates lyght, and to them which sit in the region of shadowe of death, lyght is begonne to shyne.

From that tyme forth beganne Iesus to preach, and to saye: Repente youre selues, for the kyngdome of heauen is at hande.

As Iesus walked by the se of Galilee, he saw two brethren: Simon which was called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting net net into the sea, for they were fishers, and he sayde vnto them: folow me, & I will make you fishers of men. And they forsooke their nettes, and folowed hym.

And when he was forth from thence, he sawe other two brethren, James the sonne of zebedee, and Iohn his brother, in the ship with zebedee their father, mendinge their nettes, and called them. And they without tarryng lefte the ship and their father, and folowed hym.

And Iesus went aboute all Galilee, teaching in their synagoges, and preachinge the gospel of the kyngdome, and healed all manner of sicknesses, and healed all manner of sicknesses, and healed all manner of sicknesses. And his fame spred abrode through out all Syria. And they brought vnto hym all sick people, that were taken with diuers diseases and gripings, and they that were possessed with deuils, & they which were lunaticke, and those that had the palsye: & he healed the. And ther folowed hym a greates nombre of people, from Galilee, from the ten cities, and from Ierusalem, and from the regions that lye beyonde Jer-dan.

The V. Chapter.

When he sawe the people, he went vp into a mountayne: and when he was sit, his disciples came to hym, and he opened his mouth, and taught them, sayinge: Blessed are the poore in spirit: for theirs is the kyngdome of heuⁿ. Blessed are they that mourne: for they shall be comforted. Blessed are the meke: for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are they which hon-ger & thyrst for rightewesnes: for they shall be filled. Blessed are the mercifull: for they shall obteyne mercy. Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall se God. Blessed are the peace makers: for they shall be called the children of God. Blessed are they which suffre persecution for rightewesnes sake: for theirs is the kyngdome of heuen. Blessed are ye when men reuyle you, and persecute you, and falsly say all manner of euill say-nges against you for my sake. Reioyce and be glad, for greates is youre reward in heuⁿ.

For so persecuted they the prophetes which were before youre dayes.

Ye are the salt of the earth, but if the salt haue lost his saltenes, wher can he be salted? He is thenceforth good for no-thinge, but to be cast out, and to be trodden vnder foot of men. Ye are the lyght of the world. A cite that is set on an hill, can not be hid: neither do men lyght a candle, and put it vnder a bushell, but on a candlestick, and is lighted all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good workes, and glorify youre father which is in heauen.

Think not, that I am come to destroye the lawe, or the Prophetes: no, I am not come to destroye them, but to fulfill them. For truly I saye vnto you: till heauen and earth perishe, one iote or one tytle of the lawe shall not escape, tyll all be fulfilled.

Whosoever breakech one of these least commandementes, and teacheth men so, he shalbe called the least in the Kingdome of heauen. But whosoever obserueth and teacheth the same shalbe called greater in the Kingdome of heauen.

For I saye vnto you: whoso receiue the Seribes and Pharisees, he can not entre in to the Kingdome of heauen.

Ye haue herbe, how it was sayde to the of the elders: Then shalbe not tyll. For whosoever sayeth, shall be in daunger of iudgement. But I saye vnto you: whosoever is angry with his brother, is in daunger of iudgement. Whosoever sayeth vnto his brother: Racha, is in daunger of iudgement. But whosoever sayeth: thou fool, is in daunger of hell fyre.

Therefore when thou offrest thy gift at the altare, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought agaynst thee: leaue there thyne offeringe before the altare, and go thy waye first, and reconyle thy selfe: thy brother: then come and offre thy gift.

Agree with thine aduersary quicly, while thou art in the waye with hym, lest that aduersary deliuer thee to the iudge, and the iudge deliuer thee to the minister, and then thou be cast in prison. I saye vnto the: verily thou shalt not come out thence, till thou haue payed the very last farthinge.

Ye haue herbe, how it was saydet othym of folde tymes: Thou shalt not committe aduouerie. But I saye vnto you, that whosoever looketh on a wite lustinge after her, hath committed aduouerie with hir already in his heart.

Wherefore if thy right eye offendeth thee, plucke hym out, and cast him from thee. Better it is for thee, that one of thy members perishe, then that thy whole body shoulde be cast into hell. And if thy right hand offendeth thee, cut hym off, and cast him from thee. Better it is for thee, that one of thy members perishe, than that all thy body shoulde be cast into hell.

It is sayde: whosoever putteth awaye his wife, let hym geue her a testimonye of the decaye. But I saye vnto you: whosoever putteth awaye his wife, excepte he be for fornicacion: causeth her to beate many mony. And whosoever marryeth her that is denosed, breakech the blood.

Againe, ye haue herbe, how it was saydet to the of elders tymes: Thou shalt not sweare thy selfe, but shalt perforce thy ooth as God. But I saye vnto you: swere not at all, neither by heauē, for it is Gods steare: nor yet by the earth, for it is his footstole: neither by Ierusalem, for it is the citye of the great King: neither shalt thou sweare by thy heed, because thou canst not make one heer whyte or blacke: But your communication shalbe, yee, yee: nay, nay. In what soeuer is more than that, commeth of euil.

Ye haue herbe, how it is sayde: An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. But I saye vnto you: that ye resist not euil. But whosoever smiteth thee on the cheeke on thy right side, turne to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at the lawe, take awaye thy coat, let him haue thy cloake also. And who so compelleth thee to go a myle, go with hym two myles. Goe to hym that asketh of thee, and wold take more, turne not awaye.

Ye haue herbe, how it is saydet: thou shalt loue thyne neighbour, as thy selfe. But I saye vnto you: loue your enemies. Blisse be to that curse you: Do goodes to that hate you: Praye for the which do you wronge and persecute you, that ye maye be the chyldren of your father which is in heauen: for he maketh his sunne to arise on the euil and on the good, and sendeth his raine on the iust and vniuste. For if ye loue them which loue you, what reward shall ye haue? Do not the publicans euil? And if ye be friendly to your brethren only: what is your galter? yngde do ye: Do not the publicans also? I saye vnto you: that he that soe perfect, as he is your father in heauen is perfect.

The VI. Chapter.

After he had sayde almes, that was the first of the sayde of men, to the iherusalem which is in heauen. Whom I saye: thou shalt not be a temple to be blowne downe, as the synagogues and the synagogues, for ye builde it on the synagogues, and the synagogues, for ye builde it on the synagogues.

unto you: they haue their rewardes. But whē thou dost almes, let not thy left hande knowe, what thy right hande doeth, that thine almes may be secreete: and thy father which seeth in secreete, shall rewarde thee openly.

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as hypocrites are. For they lōne to stonde and praye in the synagoges, and in the corners of the streetes, to be seene of men. Verily I say vnto you: they haue their reward. But when thou prayest, entre in to thy chamber, and shut thy doore to thee, & praye to thy father which is in secreete: and thy father which seeth in secreete, shall rewarde thee openly.

And when ye praye, bable not much, as the heathen do: for they thinke that they shall be heard, for their much babylnges sake. Be not ye like them therefore. For your father knoweth where of ye haue neede, befores ye aske of him. After this manner therefore shall ye praye:

O our father which art in heauen, hallowed be thy name. Thy Kingdome come. Thy will be fulfilled vpon earth as it is in heauen. Geue vs this daye our dayly bread. And forgie vs our dettes, as we also forgiue our dettours. And leade vs not in to temptation: but deliuer vs from euill. For thyne is the Kingdome, and the power, and the glorye for euer. Amen. For if ye forgiue other men their trespasses, your heavenly father shall also forgiue you. But and ye will not forgiue men their trespasses, neither shall your father forgiue you your trespasses.

Moreover when ye fast, be not sad as hypocrites are. For they disfigure their faces, that they may be seene of men to fast. Verily I say vnto you: they haue their reward. But thou, when thou fastest, annoynt thine heed, and wash thy face, that it appere not vnto men, that thou fastest: but vnto thy father which is in secreete: and thy father which seeth in secreete, shall rewarde thee openly.

Whāt ye gather you not treasure vpon the earth, where rust and moethes corrupte, and where thieves make throughe and steale. But gather you treasure together in heauen, where neither rust nor moethes corrupte, and where thieves neither beale vp nor yet steale. For where your treasure is, there is your heart also.

The eye is the lighte of the body. If thy right eye be single, all thy body shall be full of lighte: But and if thyne eye be mycheyed, all thy body shall be full of darkness. Wherefore if the lighte that is in thee, be darkness, how greate then shall that darkness be?

To mā can serue two masters. For either he shall haue the one and lose the other: or he shall keene to the one, and despise the other: he can not serue God and man. Therefore I say vnto you: benot ye carefull for your lyfe, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drinke: nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. For all these thinges shall mince meate, and the body more of value than they are. Beholde the fowles of the ayer: for they sowe not, neither reape, nor yet carry in to the barnes: and yet your heavenly father feedeth they. Are ye not much better than they?

Which of you (though he take thoughte therfore) coulde putte one cubicke into his shewe: or buy care for his forrayment? Confidethelphes of the silder, how they growe. They labour not, neither spinne. And yet for all that I saye vnto you, that euen Solomon in all his royales was not arrayed like vnto one of these. Wherefore if God so clothe the grasse, which is to daye in the fild, and to morrowe shall be cast in to the fowner: shall he not much more do the same vnto you, o ye of litle fayth?

Therfore take no thoughte, sayinge: what shall we eat, or what shall we drinke: or wherewith shall we be clothed? After all such thinges do the heathen seeke. For your heavenly father knoweth, that ye haue neede of all these thinges. Seke ye first the Kingdome of heauen and the righte conuincion therof: so shall all these thinges be ministred vnto you.

Care not then for the morrow, for the morrow shall care for it self: Every daye hath ynough of his owne trauayll.

The vii. Chapter.

Whe nat, that ye be not troubled For as yerubabe, so shall ye be troubled. And much more shall it be ministred to you againe. Why trustest thou a moue in thy brotheres eye, and perceauest not the beam in thine owne eye? Or why pluckest thou out a heather in thine eye, and beholdest, a beam in thyne owne eye? Hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine owne eye, and then shalt thou see clearly, to plucke out the moue out of thy brothers eye.

to you in shepes clothinge, but inwardly

But a corrupte tree, byngeth forth euyl frute. A good tree can not bring forth bad frute: neither can a rotten tree bring forth good frute. Every tre that byngeth not forth good frute, shalbe hewen downe, and cast into the fre. Wherefore by their frutes ye shall knowe them.

And he came to passe, that when Iesus had ended this saynges, the people were astonished at his doctrine. For he taught them as one hauynge power, and not as the scribes.

When Iesus was entred into Cape-naum, there came vnto him a Capteyne, & besought hym, (sayng: I say, my seruant lyeth sick at home of the palsey, and ys genuelly payned. Iesus sayd vnto hym: I wil come & heale him. The Capteyne answered and sayde: Syr, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come vnder my roofe, but if thou shouldest, I saye to one, go: he goeth: & to another: come, he cometh: & to my seruant: do this, he doeth it. When Iesus hadde heard that, he marvelled, and sayd to them that followed hym: Verely I say vnto you: I haue not found so grate sayth: no not in Israel. And I say vnto you, Many shall come from the east and west, and shall rest with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kyngdome of heauen: and the chyldren of the kyngdome of heauen shal be cast out to utter barthenes: there shalbe weeping & mashynge of teth. And Iesus sayd vnto the Capteyne: go thy way, and as thou be-west, so be it vnto thee. And his seruant was healed the same houre.

And Iesus went in to Peters house, and sawe his wyke moether synging sick of a feuer: so he touched her hande, and the feuer left hir: and she arose, and ministered vnto them.

When the even was come, they brought vnto unto him many that were possessed with devils. And he cast out of spirits unclean with a voice. And he healed all that were sick. And he charged them that they might be faithful, which was spoken by the prophet, saying he rode on him as on a cloud, and bare our sins.

¶ When Jesus saw much people about him, he commanded to go over the water. And there came a scribe and sayde unto him, master, I will follow the, whither so ever thou wilt. And Jesus sayde unto him: the foxes have holes, and the birds of the ayre have nests, but the sonne of man hath not where to rest his head. Another that was one of his disciples, sayde a mo hym: Sy, geve me leave first, so ga I wyl go my father. But Jesus sayde unto him: followe thou me, and the dead burye the dead.

¶ And when he was come to y ether syde, in the countrey of the Gergesenes, there met him two possessed with devils, which came out of the graves, and were out of measure franticke, so that no man myght go by that waye. And beholde, they cryed out, sayinge: Oh Jesus, thou sonne of God, what have we to do with thee? And thou come hyther to torment us, before the tyme be come? And there was a grevouse waye off from them a grevouse heerd of swine feeding. Then he denyen besought them, sayinge: yf thou castest out, suffice vnto us, so that we maye vnto the heerd of swine. And he sayde vnto them: your waye. Then they ran out, and departed in to the heerd of swine. And beholde, yf whole heerd of swine was carryed with violence headlonge in to the sea, and perished in the water. The heerd of swine fled, and wente their waye in to the cye, and colde every thinge, & that he had summed vnto the possessed of the devils. And beholde, alle the cye came out and met Jesus. And when they sawe hym, they beganne hym, for to departe out of their wylle.

The ix. Chapter.

¶ Then entered he in to a shyppe, and passed over, and came in to his owne ci- ty. And lo, they brought vnto him a man sicke of a palsy, lying in his bed. And when Jesus sawe the faith of the, he sayde to the sicke of a palsy, some, be of good cheere, thy sinnes are forgiven thee. And beholde, certeyne of the scribes sayde in them selves: this man blasphemeth. But when Jesus sawe their thoughtes, he sayde: whether shalke ye call in your heartes? Whether ys it easier to saye: thy sinnes be forgiven, yf, or to saye: arise and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of man hath power to forgive sinnes in earth, the sayde he vnto the sicke of a palsy: arise, take up thy bed, and go home. And he arose and wente home. ¶ When yf people sawe this, they marvelled, & glorified God, which had geve such power vnto man.

¶ And as Jesus passed south from thence, he sawe a man sye a receyvinge of custome, named Mattheu, & sayde a mo him: followe me. And he arose, and folowed him. And as he came to pass, as he sat at meate in the house, beholde, many publicans and synners came and sat downe also with Jesus and his disciples.

¶ When the Pharisees sawe that, they sayde to hym disciples: why eatest thoue meate with publicans and synners? When Jesus heard that, he sayde vnto them: The whole neede not a physician, but they that are sicke. Go and learne, what that meaneth: I have pleasure in mercy, and not in offeringe. For I am not come to call the righteous, but yf synners to repentance.

¶ Then came the disciples of Iohn to hym sayinge: why do we & y Pharisees fast so often, and thy disciples fast not? And Jesus sayde vnto the: Can the weddinge be kept so long, as the bridegrome is with them? The tyme will come, when the bridegrome shall be taken from them, and the shall they fast. No man putteth an olde garment with a peece of newe dothe. For when eateth he awaye the peece agayne from the garment, & the rent ys made greater. Neither doinen anye newe into olde vessels, for than the vessels breake, and the newe runneth out, & y vessels perishe. But they pour newe into newe vessels, and so are both saved together.

¶ While he thus spake vnto them, beholde there came a certeyne ruler, and worshipped hym, sayinge: My daughter is now dead, because I, but come and lay yf hande on her, and she shall live. Jesus arose and solowed hym with hye disciples. And beholde, a woman which was dyseased by an issue of blood yee, came & thynke hym, and touched the hem of hye vesture. For she sayde in her selfe, yf I maye touche dar: even his vestime only, I shalbe safe. Then Jesus turned hym about, & behelde her, sayinge: Doughter be of good comforte, thy faith hath made thee safe. And she rose up whole, then that sit me home.

And when Jesus came into the rulers house, and sawe the minstrels and the people raging, he sayde unto them: For you here, for ye maye be in not deed, but slepe. And they laughyd hym to scorn. But when the people were put forth, he went in, and toke her by the hande, and she mayde arose. And then was no yf thynge out all that londe.

And as Jesus departed thence, two blynde came solowed hym, cryinge and sayinge: O thou sonne of David, have mercy upon us. And when he was come home, the blynde came to hym. And Jesus sayde unto them: Beholde ye, that I am able to do thyn. And they sayde unto hym: yee, LORD. Then touched he their eyes, sayinge: as cordings to your faith, be it unto you. And their eyes were opened. And Jesus charged the, sayinge: Se that no man knowe of it. But they departed, & spred abroad his name thynge out all the londe.

When they were gone out, beholde, they broughte to hym a downe man possessed of a devyll. And when the devyll was cast out, the multitude spake: And the people marvelled sayinge: it was answered so sent in Israel. But J pharisee sayde he casteth out devylls, the name of the cheste devyll.

And Jesus wente aboute in all cities and townes, teachinge in their synagoges & prechynge J gospel of J kyngdome, & healinge all manner sicknesses & all manner distaill amonge the people. And when he sawe the people, he had compassion on the, because they were pyned awaye, and scattered abroad, as shepe havinge no shepherde.

Then sayde he to hye disciples: J hersef is greute, but J laborers are fewe. Wherefore praye ye the. ORDE of the hymnest, to sende forth laborers into hye harvest.

The Chapter.

It was called his xii. disciples unto hym, & gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, & to heale all manner of sicknesses, and all manner of distaill.

The names of the xii. Apostles are these. The first, Simon called Peter: & Andrew his brother. James the sonne of Zebedee, and John his brother. phylip and bartholomew. Thomas, and Matthew the publican. Matthe the sonne of Alpha, and Lebbus the wyfe called Tabbeus. Simon of Cana, and Judas Iscariot, which also betrayeth hym.

These twelve sent Jesus, and commaunded thyn, sayinge: Go not into the waye to leade to the Genten, and in to the cities of the Samaritanes enter ye not. But go rather to the last shepe of the house of Israel. Go and preach, sayinge: The kyngdome of heave is ne hande. Heale the sicke, cleane the leper, raise the dead, cast out the devils. And yf ye have remaned, frely gave againe. Possesse golde, nor silver, nor basse yn your girdle, nor yet scarp to wardes your toney: neke two coates, neither shurt, nor yet shaffe. And yf the house be meete for you, let peace shall come upon it. And yf it be not meete for you, yet peace shall turne to you againe.

And yf no man will receave you, nor hear your preachinge, departe out of that house, & shake the dust of your feet. Truly I saye unto you, it shall be as if ye had cast upon the stones of Sodom and Gomorrah, & sayde: O Sodom, thou shalt be as they are. Beholde, I sende you forth as shepe, withoute geve. Beware therefore wyse as serpents, and innocent as doves. Beware of men, in they shall delivere you up to the cōfession, & shall scourge you in their synagoges. And ye shall be broughte before princes and kynge for my sake, in witness to them and to the gentyle.

But when they delivere you up, take ye thought how or what ye shall saye, for ye shall be given you, even in that same houre, what ye shall saye. For it is not ye that speake, but the spere of your father which shal be with you.

The brother shall delivere the brother, & the father the sonne. And the brethren shall aryse against their brethren, & shall helpe them to beareth & shall be hated of all men for my names sake. But he J endureth to the ende, shalbe saved.

of E. Mathew, Esq. M.

WHEN it came to passe, when Iesus had made an ende of commanding his euangelist disciples, he departed thence, to teach and to preach in their cities.

When Iohn being in prison hearde of the wonders of his baptise sent one of his disciples, and sayde unto him: Art thou the which comest, or shal I waite for another? Iesus answered and sayde unto thei: Doe youre waye and call Iohn agayne, what ye will heare. The blinde se, and the lame goe: the peris are cleand, and of beaustie becom agayne agayne, and the deaf heares: but the popp: and blessed is he, that is not offendeth me.

When they wente their waye, Iesus be-bene shewed in Sidon, they had remained vnto this daye. ¶ Memorabell I say unto you: Ye shalbe sayfor for the lordis of Sodom: in the daye of iudgement, the faulte.

The 3 same ryme I tell you anwer, and say be: I praye the (O father and LORDE of heauen and earth) that thou hast hid the chinges from the wyse and prudent, and opened the mynde babes. O thou so father, for so it pleaseth the. All chinges are geuen ouer vnto me of my father: and a none knoweth the sonne, but the father: neither knoweth any man the father, I out be forme, and be with him the sonne wil open it. Come vnto me all ye that laboure and are laden, and I will ease you. Take my yoke vpon you, and lerne of me, for I am meke and lowly of heere, y ye shall fynde rest vnto your soules: for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

The XII. Chapter.

And the same tyme wrote Iesus choord the came vpon the Sabbath, and his disciples were hongrie, and beganne to plucke of the eares of the coine, and to eate. When y^e phariseas met the, they say de vnice him: Beholde, he by disciples doth eat, which is not lawfull to do vpon the Sabbath. The sayde vnto them: haue ye not read what Dauid did, when he was hongrie, & they also y^e were with him? How he entered in to the house of God, & ate the shew bready which were not lawfull for him to eate, neither for the y^e were with him, but onely for the puffed? Whanne ye noted in the lawe how that the prestes in the temple breake the Sabbath, and yet are blamelesse? But I saye vnto you: y^e here is one greater then the temple. But as y^e wytt what this were (I haue pleasure in mercy, and not in offeringe) ye wouldner haue condemned innocents for the sonne of man is LORD of the sabbath.

23 And he departed thence, and wente into their synagoge: and beholde, there was a man which had his hande dried up. And they asked him, sayinge, Is it lawfull to heale, upon the Sabbath? because they might accuse him: But he sayde vnto the: Which of you is it, yf he had a shepe fallen in to a pyre upon the Sabbath, that we be not taking him, and life him out: And how much is a man better then a shepe: Therefore it is full to do good upon the Sabbath. Then saye he to the mā: Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth: and it was whole againe like unto the other.

Then saith the pharisee vnto vs, and bede a counsell agaynst him, how they might destrye him. But whē Iesus sawe that they were departed thence, & moche people folowed him: & he healed them all, and dyscei-pled them, & they hailed not make banymen that the thinge might be fulfilld, which was spoken by Iesay the prophet, which sayeth: Heholde, this is my seruante, which I haue chosen: & my beloued, in whom my soule doeth rest: I will put my spere vpon him, & he shall shewe iudgement vnto the gentyl. he shall not stryue, ne crye, neither shall any man heare his voyce in the street. I haue rebde that he shal be not lineale, & shall begynne to burne that hee shal not quene, he shall beate the thornes out of his waye, and he shall beate the thornes out of his waye,
and he shall beate the thornes out of his waye.

Then was there broughte vnto him one possessed (of a deuill) the which was blind and deeme, and he also him in sonen 3. bynde and deeme both spate and face.
And all the people were amazed, and sayde Is not this the sonne of Daauid? But he the phariseis saide that they sayde by teeth the deuyle our none other myght, therfore sayde he the cheefe of the synne.
Nevertheless Iesus knew their thought, and sayde unto them: Let my Engarde wynd myn in I, I shal be to euery ciu-tyes or house decayded in it self, maye me conuince. So yf one Sathana cast out another, he is be a tyrannome cō withyn himself how maye then his Engarde conuince?
If I cast out deuils thow not deuidest, the conuincem of the yours diuyls cast out me.
There fore shal they be yours iudges. And if I cast out the deuils by the spere of God then is the Engarde of God conuinc-you. Whow eill a man cāste in to a strong mans house, and violently take away his goodes, excepte he first bynde the strong man, & the spere his house be the same me, io a gawny me: & he a gawny not me, I can cast out deuils. To this I saye vnto you. All synne and blasphemie shal be uerynnt men, but the blasphemie agens the spere shal not be fōrgyuen vnto men.
And whosoeuer speaketh a worde agens the sonne of man, it shal be fōrgyuen him.

whoeuer speaketh against the holy goost it shal not be forgiven him, neither in this worlde, nor in the worlde to come.

D. After made the tree good and his fruite good also, so also make the tree and his fruite evil also. For the tree is knowne by the fruite.
O ye generation of hyprocs, how can ye speake good when ye your selves are euill: For of the abundance of y heart y mouth speaketh.
A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth good thinges: an euill man out of his euill treasure, bringeth forth euill thinges. M. I se ye vnto you, that of many wordes that me haue spoken, they shal geue accompt at 3 dayes of iudgment.

Out of thy wordes thou shalt be iustified, & out of thy wordes thou shalt be condemned.

Then answered sayeys of the scribes and pharisees, and sayde: Master, we wolde ferme a cote of feye. And he answered and saide vnto thei: This euill and aduocate of ouer generation seeketh a cote: and where shal no cote be gotten thei, but the cote of y he prophet Jonas. For as Jonas was thre dayes and thre nightes in the Whallom belly, so shal the sonne of man be thre dayes and thre nightes in the berte of the earth. The men of Europe shal rise in the last iudgment with ys the generation, and shal condemne it: for they byd pinawnee according to y preaching of Jonas. And behold, here is one great in the Jonas. The queene of the south shal rise in the last iudgment with this generation, and shal condemne it: for she came from the uttermost partes of the earth, to heare y wisdom of Salomon. And lo, here is one greater then Salomon.

When the unclean spirit is gone out of man, he walketh thorow dry places, seeking to fyndeth none. And he saith he: I wil returne agayne in to my house, fro whence I went out. And when he cometh, he fyndeth it empty, swept, and garnished. Then goeth he in his waye, & seeketh vnto him seven other spites worse then himselfe: and when they are entred in, they dwell there: And the ende of that man is worse then the begynnyng.
Keepe ye shal it go so this euill generation.

Why he ye called vnto the people, behold, his mother & his brethren stand without seeking to speake w him. Then sayde one vnto him: Beholde, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, & wolde speake w the.
He answered he sayd: I sayde vnto him thre wordes: Who is my mother? & who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hande vnto his disciples, & sayde: Beholde my mother and my brethren. For who soeuer doth y will of my father which is in heaue, the same is my brother, sister and mother.

The XIII. Chapter.

The same daye wente Iesus out of y house, and sat by the ffonteyne, & much people resorted vnto him: so y he wolde tein to a shyppe and fise hundred men, and all the people stode a p the shore. And he spake many thinges vnto thei in similitudes, saying: Beholde, The beforer wente forth to sewe: and as he sowed, some fell by the waye side: Then came the foules, & ate it vp. Some fell vpon stony grounde, & as one it shal ge vp, because it had no depth of earth. And when the Sonne arose, it caughte y beate: & and so: so much as it had no roote, it withered awaye. Some fell amonge the thornes, & the thornes grewe a p, and choked it. Some fell vpon good grounde, & gaue fruit: some an hundred fold, some sixtye fold, some thretye fold.
Who so heareth eares to heare, let he heare.

And the disciple came vnto him, & said ye: Why speakest thou to thei by parables?
He answered and sayde vnto thei: Vnto you it is given to knowe the mystry of the kingdome of heauen, but vnto them it is not geuen. For much hath, vnto him shal be geuen, and he shal haue abundance. But who so hath not, from him shal be taken awaye, and that he hath. Therefore speake I vnto thei by parables, for with seyinge eyes they see not, & with hearinge eares they heare not, for they vnderstande it not. And in them is fulfilled y prophesie of ysai, which sayeth: Ye shal heare in dede, and shal not vnderstande: and with seing eyes shal ye se, and not perceiue.
For y berte of this people is rendered grosse, & their eares are thick, & their eyes be closed, lest they shulde once se w y eyes, & heare w the eares, & vnderstande w the hert, & turne, that I mighte heale them.

But blessed are yare eyes, for they see: & your eares, for they heare. Verily I saye vnto you: Many prophetes & righteous men haue desired to se y thinges that ye se, and haue not seene thei: and to heare the thinges that ye heare, and haue not herde thei. Heare ye therefore the parable of the sower. When one beareth y worde of the kyngdome, and vnderstandeth it not, the euill man cometh, and plucketh it awaye: that it forme in his hert: this is he y is sowne by the waye side.
But he y is sowne in the stony grounde, in this: he ha one heareth the worde, & as one neth soye receaith it: he receaith it, but he hath no roote: he endureth for a season: when hate her. And sayne wolde he have put him to death, but he feared the people, because they held him for a prophet.

But when herode hadde his byrth daye, the daughter of herodias daunced before him, and that pleased herode well, wherfore he promysed her with an othe, that he wolde geve her what she wold aske. And she thynke on the name of hir mother in lawe, sayde unto him: Ihon baptisles heaue in a plecter.
And the kynge answered: I wylle geue thee what thou wilt, aske what thou wilt. And she said: I wil that thou geue me this. And he said: I wil geue thee what thou wilt, aske what thou wilt. And she said: I wil that thou geue me this. And he said: I wil geue thee

When Jesus herde that he departed thence by shippe into a deserte place alone.
And when the people herde thereof, they followed him out of the cities. And Jesus went forth, and sawe many people, and had pity upon them, and healed their sickes.

But when his disciples came vnto him, they said: This is a deserte place, and it is nyght now, send us away, that they maye goe into the cities, and buye them victuals.

But Jesus sayde vnto them: They need not goe away, geue ye the to eate.

And they sayde vnto him: We haue here but foure loaves, and two fyshes. And he sayde vnto them: Geue ye the.

Then answered Peter & sayde vnto him: Declare vnto vs this parable. And Iesus sayde vnto thei. Are ye yet of the iherosolym vnderstanding? Perceiue ye not, & what se-uer geteth in ac & i month, & dethedeth downe in & i hely, & is cast out into the banaghe?
But the change that procedeth out of the month, cometh frō i here, & chue befull of mā. So out of i hirt come call thinges moreouer, breakinge of asidde, & wherome theft, falsē iustice, blasphemy. These are y thinges that desyle a man. But to take vs vnto alther horribil defileth not a man.

And Iesus wente out from thence, & departed in to the coastes of Tyre of Sidon. And beholde, a woman of Canaan wote out of y^e same coastes, & crieth after him, sayinge O LORDE, thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercie vpon me. My daughter is foue yered with a deuill. And he answered her neuer a worde. This came his disciples into him, & brought him, sayinge: Siste her awaye, for she crieth after vs. But he answered, & saide: I am not sent hither into the lost shepe of the house of Israhel. I comethithinginge she came & fell downe before him, & saide: O LORDE, helpe me. He answered & saide: It is not good, to take the childrens bread, & to cast it vnto dogges. Ihus wench LORDE (saide she) I am heere the wchelpen eate of the crummes, that fall frō thes lordes cable. Then answered Iesus & saide: vnto her: O woman, greates is thy faith: be it vnto thee, eue as thou desirest. And his daughter was namde hule at y^e same houre.

And Iesus departed thence, and came nye unto the fe of Galile, and wrote yn in to a mountayne, and fac downe there. And there came vnto him many people, hauinge with theim, lambe, blynde, dme, crepell, and other many, and cast e then before at Iesus fete.
And he healed the, in so much that the people wroide a seke the dme fte, the crepell to hoke the haire of his, to the blynde to se. And there was the God of Israel.

And Iesus calleth his disciples vnto him, & sayeth, I haue compassion vpon the people, for they haue euened wth me now these dayes, & haue nothinge to eate, & I w^{ld} not leaue them to departe fastynge, lest they perishe in the waye. And his disciples saye vnto him: Whence shal we geue so much bread in the wilderness, that we might satisfie so many people? And Iesus saye answ^{er}ing^e them, How many loaves haue ye? They sayden vnto him, A fewe little fishes. And he commaunded a people to fyt downe vpon the ground, and rote 3 fag loaves, 2 the folkes, 2 gaue them 27 watels, 2 gaue the to his disciples, 2 3 disciples gaue the vnto the people. And they all ate, and were sufficed. And they rote vp of the wast meate 3 was left, fenen buskettes full. And they 3 are, were foure thousand men, besides women and children. And when he had finished aye the people, he wente in to a shippe, 2 came in to the parties of Asandale.

The XVI. Chapter.

How chone the Pharisae & Saducee unto him, & cleped him, requyring hem to shewe the auctorite from heauē.
But he answered & sayde: Ye erde ye saye: It wil be saye wedder, for it shal be saye. And in y^e meynynge, ye saye: It wil be foule wed-der or daye, for the shal be saye, & gloomye.

Then came Iesus into the confite of the cite Cesarea Philippi, &azed his disciples saide: What do me iudge, & I I haue of mine They sayde: Some saye, I thou art Ihesu Christe. Some I thou art Elias, Some I thou art Ieremy, &c. one of the prophets.
I saide vnto thei: What wylt saye ye? I I answered Synns Dezer and saide: Thou art Christe, the sonne of the liuinge God. And I answered, & I saide vnto the: Blessed art thou Synns I sonne of Ionnas, for hast thou hitherto perceyued I conuert, but my faith is in hysail. And I saide to I: Thou art pi et, & wylt haue roade wylt I build me a tem angel: and y gates of hell shal not prevail agaynst it. And the keyes of heauen wil I geve unto the: Whatsoever thou shalt bryn downe earth, shal be bounde also in heauen: & whatsoever thou shalt loose upon earth, shal be loose also in heave. Then charged he his disciples, that they shulde call no ma in this worlde Jesu a Christ.

From that tyme forth beganne Jesu to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffre many thinges of the elders, and of the hye priestes, and of the scribes, and be put to deathe, and rise againe the thirde daye. But Peter toke him asyde, and he ganne to rebute him, sayenge: LORD, fauoure thy self, for no such hap-pen unto the. Whereby he turned him asyde, & sayde unto Peter: And yet fro me ceaseth, thou hindrest me, for thou fauourest not y thinges that be of God, but of men.

Then sayde Jesu unto his disciples: If any man wil folowe me, let him forsake him self, take up his crosse, and folowe me. For who so wil save his life, shal lose it: but who shall lose his life for my sake, shal fynde it. What helpeth a man though he manur the whole worlde, and yet suffred harme in his soule? Or what can a man geue, to re-buete his soule with all? For it wil come to pas, that the sonne of man shal come in the glo-ry of his father with his angelo, and then shal he reward euer y one according to his doo. Verely I saye unto you: there shal be here tyme, which shal not cease of deathe, yll they be y some of ma come in his kyngdome.

The XVII. Chapter.

And after sixe dayes Jesu toke Peter James, and Iohn his brother, and brought them up in to an hye mountayne out of the waye, and was transfigured before the: & his face shone as y Sonne, and his clothes were as white as the lyght. And beholde, there appeared unto the Moyses and Elias talkinge with him. Then answered Peter, and sayde unto Jesu: LORD, how good beyngs for us. If thou wilt, let us make here thre tabernacles: one for thee, one for Moyses, and one for Elias. Why he spake, beholde, a bryghte cloude ouersha-dowed them: and lo, there came a voyce out of the cloude, sayinge: This is my beare sonne, in whom I deloye, heare him. When y disciples herde this, they fell upon their faces, and were as y fraied. But Jesu came and touched them, and sayde: Arise, and beare a fraied. And when they looke up, they sawe no more, but Jesu onely.

And when they came downe fro y mountayne, Jesu charged them, and sayde: Tell no man of this vision, tyll the sonne of man be ryse agayne from y dead. And his disci-ples asked him, and sayde: Why saye the scribe ben cheser, that Elias must first come? Jesus answered and sayde unto them: Elias shall come first in dede, and brynge all thinges to t. It agayne. But I saye unto you: Elias is come all ready, & they knewe him not, but haue done unto him what they wolde. And so shal also the sonne of man suffer of them. Then the disciples perceaved, that he spake unto them of Iohn the baptist.

And when they were come to the people, there came unto him a certayne num, and kned unto him, and sayde: LORD, haue mercy vpon my sonne, for he is lunaticke, & sicke verely. He fallith oft tyme in to y fyre, & oft in to y water: and I brought him unto thy disciples, and they coude not heale him. Jesu answered, and sayde: O thou faithles and slowe to generacion, how long ge shal I be with you? How longe shal I suffer you? Bringe him hither to me. And Jesu rebuked him, and y deuyll was out of him, and y chyld was healed, then that same houre.

Then came the disciples unto Jesu se-cresly, & sayde: Why couldest thou not cast him out? Jesu sayde unto them: Because of yf thou couldest. For I saye euerly unto you: If ye haue faith as a graine of mustarde sede, ye maye saye unto this mountayne: Remove hence to yonder place, and he shal remo-ue, whether shal any thinge be impossible vnto you. So to bere this kinde goeth not out, but by praye and fastyng.

Whyle they occupied in Galile, Jesus sayde unto them: it wil come to pass, that the sonne of man shal be deluyered in to the handes of men, and they shal kyll him, and the thirde daye shal he arise agayne. And they were very sory. Now wha they were come to Capernaum, they chaunce receaued y tribu-te money, came to Peter, and sayde: Dost thoue master paye tribute? He sayde yee. And when he was come home, Jesu pre-uened him, and sayde: Why cearest thou Symon? Of whom do the kynges of the earth take toll or tribute? Of their chyldren, or of strangers? Then sayde Peter to him: Of strangers. Jesus sayde vnto him: Then art y chyldren fre. Whereby he lest me offen-de them, go thy waye to the see, and cast the net an-gle, and take the fish that first cometh up, and when thou hast opened him mouth,

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ The same tyme came the disciples unto Iesus, and sayde vnto him, O the greatzell in the byngdome of heauen! And Iesus called a childe vnto him, and set him in the myddst amonge them, and sayde: Verely I say vnto you: Excepte ye turne and become as children, ye shal not enter into the byngdome of heauen. Whosoever therfore humbled him self as this childe, y same is the greatzell in y byngdome of heauen. And who so receauech such a childe in my name, receauech me. But who so offendeth one of these litle ones which beleue in me, it were deeter for him, than a myllstone weighe aboue his necke, and he drowned in the deeth of the see.

Take heede, if ye despise not one of these little ones. So I say unto you: their angels do alwaye behold the face of my father which is in heauen: for the sonne of man is come to saue that which is lost. And whome ye will: If a man haue an hundred sheepe, and one of these be gone astray, doth not he leaue the nyntyue and nyne in the mountaynes, and seeth that one which is gone astray? And if it happen that he finde it, verely I saye vnto you: he reioyceth more ouer it, then ouer the nyntyue & nyne which were not astray. And so it is not eue the will of he: for yee father in heauen, that one of these little ones shoulde per. lbe.

I fby the trefpace agaynſt the god and him his faule beneuole and bus alone. I f be heate the, i how half wiche thy brother. Bu yf he heare the noe, then maye theye reioyce the one and thou, that in thy mouth is ſewe of thy wylfulnes, euen in that time he be ſtable. I f he heare not thyn, call it into the congregation. I f he hea- not the congregation, holde him as an ſcithen and publican. Truly I ſaye vnto you: what he yf he ſhall beare theſe ſaynges, ſhalde bothe also in heauen: & what sooner ye loofe upon earth, shall be loosed also in heauē. Agayne, I saye vnto you: What soeuer ye shall saye vpon earth, (for what thinge soeuer it be) it shall be done: if ye shall saye, that thy father rebuike thee in heauen, thou shalt be rebuked: if ye shall saye, that thou be gathered vnto thy father in heauen, thou shalt be gathered vnto thy father. I saye vnto you, that whosoever shall saye these things, and believe, shall haue all that he saith.

Then cometh Peter vnto him, & saith, Lord De, how oft shall I forgie my brother, if he trespasse agaynste me? And he sayeth vnto him, I saie vnto thee, I saye not vnto thee, thou shalt fforgeuen him seuen tymes. Thereafter I kungeone of the said he had an vnwylliche which wolde taken vs his seruance. And when he beganne to telle, one was thought vnto him, he wiche ought him not to forgiue him. And now he had nothyng to paye for his lordes seruance he was to be sold, & the reioyce his childre. all if he had, & payement to be made. Then the seruice was full of we-te, besought him, & sayng: Sir, haue pacifce vnto me, & I will paye the all. Then had the de paye on forthe seruance, & bid charged him, on forthe him the deere.

And the same seruante wrote out a fiftie one of his foliowes, which ought him and dixty piers, and layed hardre vpon him, and told him by the throte, and sayde: paye me that thou owest. This his folowe fled downe, and besought him, saying: haue pacifitie vnto me, and I will paye the all I can. He reioyned, but wroth and cast him in so person, till he shuld cōpaye the debt. When his folowes sawe what was done, they were fory, and came and tolde their lord all that had happened. Then his lord called for him, and sayde vnto him: O thou misseraunt, I forgave thee the all this debt, because thou praydest me: and thou dost not thank me, we had compassion on alia vpon thy folowe, such as I had prync vnto thee: And his folowes wroth, and beueled him vnto the iayles, till he payed all that he ought. So shal my heauenly father do also vnto you, if ye currey one of you ffor vnto heres, for aque not his brother him selfe. And

AND it came to passe, that Iesus had ended these sayenges, he gaue him Galile, & came to yf coastes of Ieruy beyond Jordan, & moche people folow him, and he heales them there.

Then came vnto him the pharisees & tēted him, & sayde vnto him: Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for any cause? he answered & sayde vnto them: Ye saye ye maye see, howe I be which made (man) at the begynnyng, made the ma & woma, & sayde: for this cause I shal a ma leane farther to mych, & cleue unto his wyfe, & they two shal be one fleshe. Now are they not two men, but one fleshe. Let not man therfore put a funder, & wiche God hath coupled together.

Then sayde they: Why doth Moses then commande to geue a reschewyng of marriage, & to put ther awaye? he sayde vnto thei: Moses (because of) y hardness of y heart of man, I suffered you to put awaye your wyues; but from the begynnyng it hath not bene so. But I saye vnto you: Whoso shall putte awaye his wyfe (excepte it be for some occasion) and marrye another, breake th word of God. And who so marryeth her that is bounde, committeth adoultory.

Then sayde his disciples vnto him: If marriage be thus, whye then made thou not good to marry. But he sayde vnto them: Will ye saye that I saye, or saye ye, I saye? they to whiche it is geue. For there be some gelde, & some be some from their mothers wyues; and there be some gelde, & some be some from men: & there be some gelde, which have geuyn thei selues for the Kyngdome of heauen sake. he then cam & couerthe it, let him comprehend it.

Then were brought vnto him yonge children, & he shuld put his handes vpon thei, & praye. And y disciples rebuked them. But Jesus sayde: Suffer y children, & for to let thei come vnto me, for vnto such belongeth the Kyngdome of heauen. And wha he had sayd his handes vpon thei, he departed thence.

And beholde, one came vnto him, and say de: God master, what good shal I do, if I maye haue the euell lastyng lifer? he sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good? there is none good, but God onely. I trowe thou wilt come into lifer, & saye y: conu-ert thee. The sayde, he vnto him: Which?

Jesus sayde: Thou shalt not kill: thou shalt not breake wedlocke: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt beare no false wytnesse: thou shalt honour father and mother: and thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy self. Then sayde the yongman vnto him: All these haue I kepte from my youth vnto this last. I see: Jesus sayde vnto him: If thou wilt be perfecte, go thy waye, and sell the thyng thou hast, & geue it vnto the poore, and thou shalt haue a treasure in heauen, and come and folow me. Whan y yong man herde y word, he went awaye sorrowful: for he had greute possidion.

Jesus sayde vnto his disciples: Verily I saye vnto you: it shal be hard for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauen. And whan ouer I saye vnto you: It is easier for a camel to go thorow the eye of a needle, the for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauen. Whan his disciples herde that, they were exceedingly amysed, and sayde: Who can the be saved? I trowe heles. Jesus beholden them, and sayde vnto them: With men it is impossible, but with God all thing is possible.

Then answered Peter & sayde vnto him:
Beholde, we haue forsake all, and folowed the: What shal we haue therfore? Jesus say de vnto the: Verily I saye vnto you: that whan the sonne of man shal sitte in the flace of his maiesty, ye which haue folowed me in this, I shal sitte also vpon twelve seates, and iudge y twelve trybes of Israel.
And wha so euil forsaketh father or mother, or sisters, or brother, or mother, or wife, or children, or londes, for my names sake, the same shal receaue an hundred fold, and inheret euell lastyng lifer. But many that be the first, shal be the last: and the last shal be the first.

The XX. Chapter.

The Kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a householder, which wente out early in the morninge, to hyre labourers to his vyngarde. And wha he had agreden with the labourers for a peny a daye, before thei wente to his vyngarde. And aboute y thirde houre he wente out, and sawe other stonde yng yole in the markett place, and sayde vnto them: Go ye also in to my vyngarde, & wha so euil is right, I will geue it you. And they wente their waye, & came, he wote oge aboute the furre and mych houes, and they likewise. And aboute the eluenth houre he wote to our, and founde other stonde yng yole, and sayde vnto them: Why stonde ye here all the daye yole? They sayde vnto him: because no man hath hyrd us. he sayde vnto thei: Go ye also in to my vyngarde, and loke wha is right, ye shal haue it. Now when enen was come, the lord of the vyngarde sayde vnto his sturward: Call the labourers, and geue them their hyre, begynnyng from the last vnto y first. Then they that were hyrd aboute the eluenth houre, came and receaued euery man a peny. But when the first came, they supposid that they shuld recea-ue more: and they also receaued euery man a peny. And when they had receaued it, they murmured agaynst the householder, and sayde: We haue laboured harder than they, and we haue receaued lesse than they.

saye: These last haue wroughte but one houre, and thou hast made the equal unco u, which haue borne the burthen and hea te of the daye. He answered and saye unto one of them: friende, I do y no wronge: but differre thou agree with me for a peny: La ke hat thou is, and go thy waye. I wil ge ue unto this last also, like as unto the. O ha ue Inoe power, to do as I will saye with my ne enemy: Jo thine eye well, because I am good: So the last shall be first, & the first the last. For many are called, but few are chosen.

And Iesus wente up to Jerusalem, and teche the twelve disciples aske in the waye, and saye unto them: Beholde, we go up to Jerusalem, and the sonne of man shall be de livered unto the hye prestes and scribes: & they shall condemne him to death, and shall deliuer him unto y heathen, to be mocked to be scourged, and to be crucified. And the thirde daye he shall rise agayne.

Then came unto him the mother of Ze bedee with hir sonnes, fill downe be fore him, and desired a certayne thinge of hi. And he saide unto her: What wilt thou?
She saye unto him: Let these two sonnes of mine sit in thy kyngdome: the one upon thy right hande, the other upon thy lefte hande. But Iesus answered, and saye: Ye wote not what ye aske. Maye ye drynke the cuppe, that I shall drynke: & to be baptised with the baptisme, that I shall be baptised withall? They saye unto him: Yee that we maye. And he saye unto them: My cuppe truly shall ye drynke, & with the baptisme y I shall be baptised withall, & yet ye be bapti sed: & I will geue you my right hande to hold on my left, as nee myne to geue, but un to the for whos it is prepared of my father.

When the ten heard that, they disay ned at the two brethren. But Iesus called them vnto him, and saye: Ye knowe that y prynces of the world haue domynacion of the people, and the greatest y exalte power amonge the. I shall not be so amonge you.
But whos is chief: wil be greates amonge you, let him be your mynister: & who serue wyll be chiefe, let him be your seruaunt: Euen as the sonne of man came, not to be serued, but to do seruyce, and to geue his life for a redem cion for many.

And when they departed from Jericho, much people followed him: and beholde, two blynd men sat by the waye syde. And when they herde that Iesus passed by, they cryed & saye: O LORD, thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon vs. But y people rebuked the, that they shoulde holde their peace. Then they cryed the more, & saye: O LORD, thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon vs. And Iesus stode still, and called them on, and saye: What wil ye, y I shall do vnto you? They saye vnto him: O LORD, that oure eyes maye be opened. And Iesus had compassion vpon them, and reached the eyes: & immediatly the eyes were opened sight.

And they followed him.

The XXI. Chapter.

Now when they were come vnto Jeru salem, and were come to the temple gate vnto mount Olivet, Iesus sent two of his disciples, and saye vnto them: Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, & there ye shall fynde an Asse bounde, and his foale with her: loose them, and bringe the vnto me. And if any man saye ought vnto you, saye ye: the LORD hath neede of the.
And straight waye he will let them go. But all this was done, that the thinge might be fulfylled, which was spoken by the prophet, sayenge: Tell the daughter of Sion: Beholde, thy kynge cometh vnto y mee, & sett ge vpon an Asse and a foale of y I shall ride to the yoc. The disciples wente, and doo as Iesus commaunded them, and brought the Asse and the foale, & layd their clothes vpon them, and set him thereon. & many of the people shod their garments in the waye: ocher cut downe bryanches from the trees, and strowed them in the waye. So in the people that wente before and that came after, they cryed and sayde: Hosanna vnto the sonne of Dauid. Blessed be he that com eth in the name of the LORD. Hosanna in the heighe.

And when he was come into Jerusalem, all the cite was moved, and saye: Whos this? And the people saye: This is Iesus y prophete of Nazareth out of Galilee. So Iesus wente in to the temple of Iesus, and cast out all them that sold and sold in the temple, and ouerthrow the tables of the money chaungers, and the seates of them that sel de boues, and saye vnto them: It is writte te: My house shall be called y house of pray er, but ye haue made it a den of thieues.
The blynde also and y lame came vnto him in the temple, and he healed them.

But when the hye prestes and the scribe saw the wonderes that he doo, and the children crienge in the temple and saying: Hosanna vnto the sonne of Dauid, they dis dayned, and saye vnto him: Hearst thou what these say: Jesus sayde unto them: I have ye never red: Out of the mouth of very babes and sucklings thou hast obeyed paynt: And he leste them there, and went out of the cite unto Bethania, and there abode our night.

But in the morning as he returned in to the cit, he begreved. And in the waye he sawe a figge tre, and came unto it, and founde no figge thereon, but leanes onely, and sayde unto it: Thou frute growe on the from hence forth. And immediately the figge tre withered awaye. And when his disciples sawe that, they marvelled, and sayde: Howe is it that thou canst saye thus so soone? Jesus answered and sayde unto them: Verily I saye unto you: If ye have faith without doubt, ye shall not only do this which the figge tre doth, but ye shall saye unto this mountayn: Be thou removed, and cast thy self into the sea, it shall be done. And whosoever saye it in faith, if ye beleve, ye shall receive it.

And when he was comen in to the temple, the chief priests, and the elders of the people came unto him (as he was teachinge) and sayde: By whose auctorite dost thou these things? And who gave thee this auctorite? Jesus answered and sayde unto them: I will answer of you also, which if ye call me, I will saye unto you, by what auctorite I do these things. The baptisme of Ihs, wher was it: from heave, or of men? Then thought they amonge themselves, and sayde: If we saye it was from heave, then shall he saye unto us: Why dyd ye not then beleve him? But if we saye it was of men, the sea will teeme the people: For every man helde Ihs a his prophet. And they answered Jesus, and sayde: We can not tell. Then sayde he unto them: Neither tell I you, by what auctorite I do these things. But what thinke ye? A certain man had two sonnes, and came to the first, and sayde: Son, my waye in my sonne, I would to daye in my vnywarde. He answered and sayde: I will not, but afterwarde he repented, and wente. He came also unto the second, and sayde likewise. And he answered and sayde: I will go. And when he was come, the first sonne was not there. Then sayde he unto them: Verily I saye unto you: The publicans and harlots shall come in to the kingdom of God before you. For Iohn came unto you, and taught you the right waye, and ye beleved him not: but the publicans and harlots beleved him. As for you, though ye have it, yet will ye not be moved with repentance, that ye might afterwarde have it: leaved him.

There was another parable. There was a certain husbandholder which planted a vnywarde, and began to reede a house, and bygged a wyne presse in it, and build a tower, and let it out unto husbandmen, and wente in to a strange countrey. Now when the tyme of the frute was nere, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, to receive the frutes of it. Then the husbandmen caught his servants: one they beat, another they killed, the third they stoned. A gayne he sent other servants, more then the first, and they dyd vnto them in like manner. At the last he sent his owne sonne unto them, and sayde: they will feare him as awe of my sonne. But when the husbandmen sawe the sonne, they sayde amonge themselves: This is the heyre, come, let us kill hym, and take his inheritance. And they caught him, and thrust him out of the vnywarde, & strew him. Now when the lord of the vnywarde commeth, he will saye he doth these husbandmen: They saye vnto him: He will cruelly destroye these wylde pretences, & let out his vnywarde unto other husbandmen, which shall deliver him the frute at tyme convenient.

Jesus sayde also this: Dyd ye never reade in the scriptures: The stone which the builders refused, is become the head stone in the corner? This was the LORDS doinge, & it is marvelous in our eyes. Therefore I saye unto you: The kingdom of God shall be atted first you, & shall be wente unto the heiche, which shall byinge forth y frutes of it. And who so falleth vpon this stone, shall be drect in peccat: & let vpon whom it falleth, it shall grinde him to powder. And when the chief priests & pharises herde his parables, they perceaved, that he spake of them. And they wente about to take him, but they feared y people, because they helde hi for a prophet.

The XXX. Chapter.

And Jesus answered, and spake vnto the gayne by parables, & sayde: The kingdom of heauen is like vnto a kynge, which married his sonne. And first he sent his servants, to call the ysses vnto the marriage, & they wolde not come. A gayne, he sent forth other servants, and sayde: Tell the gessies: Beholde, I have prepared my dinner, myne oven and my feazell are filled, and all thinges are ready, come to the mariage. But they made light of it, and wente their wayes: one to his husbandry, another to his merchandise. At waye of God truly, and carest for no man's opinion: regardest not the outward appearance of men. Tell narther fore, how thinkest thou: Is it lawfull to geve tribute vnto the

The same daye there came vnto him the Saducees, which holde that there is no resurrection, and axed him, and sayde: Master, Moses sayeth: If a man ye, haue ynglyd his brother shal marry his wyfe, & rayse vp sids vnto his brother. Now were there with vs seuen brethren. The first married a wife, and dyed: & for somuch as he had no sids, beleste his wyfe vnto his brother. & the wyfe the secdde, and thus dyed vnto the sixth. Last of all the woman dyed also. Now in the resurrection, whose wyfe shal she be of the seuent. For they all had her. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Ye erre, and vnderstā denot the scripture, nor the power of God.

In the resurrection they shal neither marry, nor be married, but are as the angels of God in heauen.

After this cometh the resurrection of the bode, I haue ynterced, what is spoken vnto you of God, which sayeth: I am the God of Abraham, and I God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob: yet is not God a God of the dead, but of the liuyng. And when the people herde that, they were astounded at his doctrine.

When the Pharise herde, that he had stopped the mouth of the Saducees, they gathered them selfes together. And one of them, a Scribe, teypted him, and sayde: Master, which is the chiefe commandment in the lawe. Iesus sayde vnto him: Thou hast leue the LORD thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soule, and with all thy myght, this is the principall and greatst commandment. Also for the seconde, is to loue vnto Theu shal loue thy neighbour as thy self.

In these two commandmentes hangeth all the lawe and the prophetes.

Now whyle the Pharise were gathered together, Iesus axed them, and sayde What thinke ye of Christ. Whose sonne is he. They sayde vnto him: Dauides. Iesus vnto them: How then doest Dauid in spirit, call him LORD. sayenge: The LORD sayde vnto my LORD. & yet thou on my ryghte hande, till I make thine enemies thy foote steele. If Dauid now call him LORD, how is he then his sonne. And no man can d answer him one worde, neither durst any man open his mouth, for they were foorth.

The XXIII. Chapter.

Then spake Iesus vnto a people to his disciples, and sayde: They ben 2 Pharise, & a Scribe, come vnto Iesus. They sayd: Whā haue they bidden you observe, that observe and do, but their wordes shal ye not do, for they si-ter do not. For they bynde how and uncomforthen burthens, and laye them vpon manners: But they them selves will not touch them with one of their fyngers. All their workes do they to be seen of men. They abide the 2 Pharisees, and make large bowed vpon their garmentes, and lene the uppermost of the table, and to haue the chefe seat in the synagoges, and to be saluted in the market, and to be called of Rabbi.

But ye shal not suffice yowre selues to be called Rabbi, for one of your master, even Christ, and all ye are butchers. And call no man father: upon earth, for one is your father, which is in heaue. And ye shall not suffer your selues to be called masters, for one is your master, namely, Christ. He that is greater amonge you, shall be your seruante.

 Whoso so willeth him self shal be broughte lowe, and he that humbleth himself, shall be exalted.

Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, that shut out the kyngdome of heauen before men: ye come not in your sel-ues, neither suffer ye them to enter, that wol be in.

Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, that beate out wyddowen house, and that vnder the colour of prayenge for payntes, therefore shal ye receaue y greauer damnation.

Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which compasse sea and lorde to make: ye profolyte: and when he is became one, ye make of him a childe of hell, two fold more then ye your selues are.

Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, which saye: We sweare by the temple, that is a sanctuary: but who so sweareth by the golde of the temple, he is guiltye. Ye foolkes, and blinde, whether is greater: the golde, or the temple that sanctifieth the golde: And who sweareth by the altare, that is ording: but who so sweareth by the offeringe that is vpon it, he is guiltye. Ye fool-kes and blinde, whether is greater: the offeringe, or the altare that sanctifieth the offeringe: Therefore who so sweareth by the altare, sweareth by the same, and by all that is thereon: and who so sweareth by the temple, sweareth by the same, and by him that dwelleth therein. And who so sweareth by heauen, sweareth by the Kate of God, and by him that sitteth thereon.

Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which crie the Myne, Myne and Cummy, and leaue the weightier matters of the lawe behynde: namely, iudgment, meercie, and fayth. These ought ye to haue bene doone, and not to keue the other behynde.
 Ye blinde gydes, which sitte you out a shee: but firste put a Camell.

Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which make cleane the outsyde of the cuppe and platter, but within are full of robbery and exesse. Then blinde Pharisee, cleanse firste the insyde of the cup-pe: and platter, that the out syde maye be cleane also.

Wa vnto you scribes and pharisees, ye hypocrites, which be like vnto paynted Seppulchers, that appeare beautifull outwardly, but within they are full of dead mens bones and all filthines. Therefore are ye also: Outwardly ye appere righteous vnto men, but within ye are full of ypocrisie and iniquitye.

Wa vnto you scribes and pharisees, ye hypocrites, which buyde the corners of the prophetes, and garnyshe the sepulchres of the righteous, and saye: If we had bene in oure fathers tyme, we wolde not haue bene parta-kers with them in the bloude of the prophete.
 Therefore ye be wytnesses vnto your sel-ues, that ye are the children of them, which slew the prophetes. So do, for ye also the measure of your fathers. O ye serpentes, O ye generation of vipers, how wyl ye escarpe the damnacion of hell?

Therefore beholde, I sende vnto you prophetes and wysemen, and scribes, and some of them shal ye kill, and crucifye, and some of them shal ye scourge in your synagoges, and persecute them from cite to cite: that vpon you maye come all the righteous bloude which hath bene shed vpon y earth, from the bloude of righteous Abel, vnto y bloude of Zachary y sonne of Barachias, whom ye slew betwene the temple and the altare. Verily I saye vnto you: All these thinges shal light vpon this generation. O Iherusalem Iherusalem, thou that sleyst the prophetes, and stonest them that are sent vnto the: how oft wolde I haue gathered thy children together, euen as the henne ga-thereth hir chickens vnder her wynges, and ye wolde not: Beholde, youre habitation shall be left vnto you desolate. For I saye vnto you: ye shal not see me hence forth, tyl ye saye: Blessed be he, that commeth in the name of the LORD.

The XXX. Chapter.

AND IESUS wente out and departed from the temple, and his disciples en-me vnto him, so theym him the buy-ding of the temple. But Iesus sayde vnto one stone vpon another, y shal not be cast downe. And as he sit vpon the mount Oli-uete, his disciples came vnto him seuerally, y said: Tell us, what shal these thinges come to and shall deceiue many.

He shall heare of warres, and of 3. noyse

All these thinges must first come to passe, but the ende is not yet. For one people shall rise up a gaynyst another, and one realme a-gaynyst another: and there shall be pestilence, honger, and earthquakes here & there. All these are the begynnynges of troubles.

Then shall they pnc you to trouble, & shall kill you, and ye shall be hated of all people for my names sake. The shall many be despised, and shall betraye one another, and shall hate one the other. And many false prophetes shall arise, and shall deceiue many: and because iniquity shall haue the vpper han-de, the love of many shall abate. But who so endureth vnto yf ende, 3. same shall be saved.

And this gospel of the kyngdome shall be preached in all the weelde for a wynter vnto all people, and then shall the ende come.

When ye therefore shall see the abhomination of desolacion (whereof it is spoke by Da-uid the prophet) stande in the holy place (where so standeth) let him march it well: the let the which be in Jerusaleme vnto yf mo-uement: and let him which is on the hou-set oppe, nor come downe to sit on any thinge one of his house: and let him which is in 3 fildes, nor come back to fetch his clothes.

But wo vnto them that are with childe, and to them that geue suck in those dayes. But praye ye that your flighte be not in 3. wy-nter, nor on the Sabbath. For then shall there be greates trouble, such as was not from the begynnyng of the worlde vnto this tyme, nor shall be. Yee and excepte those dayes shall be shortened, there shalbe no flesh be saued: but for 3. dayes shall those dayes shall be shortened.

Then yf any man shall saye vnto you: lo, here is Christ, or there, beleeue it not. For there shall arise false christes and false prophetes, and shall do greates coler and wonder: 16. 17. 18 for in so much, that yf it were possible, the very choyce shalbe brought in to erreure. Behold, 3. I haue tolde you before. Wherefore yf they shall saye vnto you: Beholde, he is in the wilderness, go not ye forth. Beholde, he is in the chymber, beleeue it not. For like a the lightninge goeth out from the East, and shyneth vnto the west, so shall the commynde of the sonne of man be, for whome euer a deed carcase is, there shall the dogges be gathered together.

Immediately after the trouble of the some tyme, shall the Sonne and Moone lose their light, and the starres shall fall from heauen, and the powers of heauen shall mane: and then shall appeare the sonne of sonne of man in heauen: and then shall all the kyndes of the earth moue, and they shall see the sonne of man come in the cloudes of heauen with greates power and glory. And he shall sende his angells with y. great voyce of a trompe, & they shall gather together his choysen from the four wyndes, from the ende of the heauen to the other.

Let me a hymilande of yf I saye vnto you his brynche is yet tender, and hee hath springe, ye knowe that Sommer is nye. So likewise ye, when yf ye alle together, be ye ye, that it is nye euen at the doore. Vnto yf I saye vnto you: This generation shall not passe, vntill all these be fulfilled. Heauen and earth shall perishe, but my wordes shall not perishe. Wherefore of that daye & houre knoweth no man, nor the angells of heauen, but my father onely. Let me a hymilande of yf I saye vnto you: The tyme of the sonne of man be alle, for as they were in the dayes before 3. flood, they were they diont, they married, and were married, and vnto the daye 3. they were in the ship-pe, and they regarded it not, vntill the flood came and toke them all away: so shall the commynge of the sonne of man be. The shalbe liue in the fildes: the one shall be married, and the other shall be refused. Two shall be gyndings at the mill: the one shall enceue, and the other shall be refused. Two in the bed, the one shall be receiued, and the other refused.)

Watch therefore, for ye knowe not what houre your LORD will come. But be ye of this, that yf the good man of the house knewe what houre the thiefe would come, he would stirre to watch, and not suffice him to be broken vp. Therefore be ye ready alwey, for in the houre that ye thynke not, shall the sonne of man come. Who is nere a fardall and wyse seruante, to whom his lord hath made ruler over his householde, that he may gentle them meate in due season: blessed is that seruante, whom his lord shall finde so shal fynde so do mynde. Vnto yf I saye vnto you: he shall sit him ouer all his goodes.
And yf the euill seruante shall saye in his heart, it will be longe ere my lord come, and

The XXV. Chapter.

¶ Then shal the kyngdome of heauen be like vnto ten virgins, which toke their lampes, and wente forth to meete the bydegome. But fyve of them were foolish, and fyve were wyse. The foolish toke their lampes, rememberes they toke none oyle with them. But the wyse toke oyle in their vessels with their lampes. Now whyle the bydegome came, they slombered all and slept. But at myght there was a crye made: Beholde, the bydegome cometh, go your waye out for to meete him. Then all those virgins arose, and prepared their lam-pes. But the foolish sayde vnto the wyse: Gue us of your oyle, for oure lampes are gone out. Then answered the wyse, and sayde: Neeke, lest there be not ynough for vs and you, but go eache vnto them that sell, and bye for youre selues. And whyle they were to bye, the bydegome came: and they that were ready, wente in with him vnto the ma-riage, and the gate was shut vp. At y last came y oother virgins also, and sayde: LORD-DE LORDE, open vnto vs. But he answered, and sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: I knowe you not. Watch ye therefore, for ye knowe nott the daye nor yett the houre, when y son of man shal come.

¶ Like wyse as a certayne mā ready to take his iourney into a straunge countre, called his seruantes, and deluyered his goodes into the. And vnto one he gaue fyve talentes, and to oother two, and to another one: vnto euery man after his abyltye, and straighte waye departed. Then he that had receaued the fyve talentes, wente and occupied with the same, and wonne oother fyve talentes.
Likewise he that receaued two talentes, wonne oother two also. But he that receaued y one went and digged a pye in the earth, and hys be lodes money. A fter a longe season the lord of those seruantes came, and rekened with them. Then came he that had re-ceaued fyve talentes, and broughte oother fy-ue talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou deluydest me the fyve talente: Beholde, with them have I wonne fyve talentes mo. Then sayde his lord vnto hi: wel thou good & faithfull seruant, thou hast bene faithfull ouer litle, I will set the ouer moche: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lord. The same he also had had receaued two talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou deluydest vnto me two talentes: Beholde, I haue wonne two oother talentes with the.

His lord sayde vnto him: Wel thou good and faithfull seruante, thou hast bene faith-full ouer litle, I will set the ouer moche: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lord.

Then he that had receaued the one talente, came and sayde: Syr, I knowe that thou art an hard man: thou reapest where thou hast not sowne, and gatherest where thou hast not strewed, and so I was afrayd, and we-te and hyd thy talente in the earth: lo, there thou hast thine owne. But his lord answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou swell and sloothfull seruante, knowest thou that I reape where I sowe not, and gather where I strewe not? Thou shuldest therefore haue had my money to the chawngers, and then art my commynge thynke I haue recea-ued myne owne with vantage. Therefore take the talente fro him, and geue it vnto him that hath ten talentes. For who so hath, to him shal be geuen, and he shal haue abundauce. But who so hath not, fro him shal be take awaye euery thinge that he hath. And cast the vnprofitable seruante in to vter darenes: there shalbe waylinge and gnashinge of teeth.

But when the sonne of man shal come in his glory, and all holy angels with him, then shal he syt vpon the seate of his glory.
And all people shalbe gathered before him; and he shal separate them one from another as a shepheard deuydeh the shepe from y goates. And he shal set y shepe on his right honde, and the goates on the lefte. Then shal the kyng saye vnto them that shalbe on his righte honde: Come hither ye blessed of my father, in whose ye kyngdome, which is prepared for you from the begynnyng of the worlde. For I was hungry, and ye ga-ue me meate: I was thursty, and ye gaue me drynke: I was naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visyted me: I was in prison, and ye came vnto me.

Then shal the righteous answer him, & saye: LORD, we haue receyued the same of the: O whilist, and geue the drynke: When sawe we the herbourlesse, and lodged the: O naked, and clothed y: O whilist ye y sick: or in prison, and came vnto the:
And the kyng shal answer and saye vnto them: Verely I sayen unto you: Loke what ye haue done vnto one of the least of these my brethren, the same haue ye done vnto me.

Then shal he saye also vnto them that shalbe on the left hand: Departe fro me ye cursed in to the everlasting fyre, which is prepared for the deuell and his angels. For I was hungry, and ye gaue me no meate: I was thirsty, and ye gaue me no drynke: I was herelesse, and ye lodged me not: I was naked, and ye clothed me not: I was sick, and ye visited me not.

Then shal they also answer him, and saye: LORD, we heare thee we the hungry, or thyrstie, or herelesse, or naked, or sicke, or in paine, and haue not mysfired vnto thee. The shal he answer them, and saye: Verely I saye vnto you: Loke what ye haue not done vnto one of the least of these, the same haue ye not done vnto me. And these shal go in to everlasting paine, but the righteous in to everlasting life.

The XXVI. Chapter.

AND it came to passe what Iesus had finished all these wordes, he sayde vnto his disciples: Ye knowe, that after two dayes shalbe Easter, and the sonne of man shalbe betrayed to be crucified.

Then assembled together the byeprestes and the scribes, and the elders of the people in to the palace of the byeprest which was called Caiphas, and helde a counsell, how they might take Iesus by descent, and kill him. And they sayde: For on the holy dayes, lest there be an uproare in the people.

Now when Iesus was at Bethany in the house of Symon the leper, there came vnto him a woman, which had a boze with precious oymment, and poured it vpon his heade, as he sat at the table. When his disciples sawe that, they disdayned, and sayde: Where to ferntch this waiste? This oymment might haue bene sold, and giue to the poore. When Iesus perceaued that, he sayde vnto them: Why trouble ye the woman? She hath wrought a good worke vpon me for ye haue alwaye the poore with you, but me shal ye not haue alwayes. Where as she hath poured this oymment vpon my body, so to bury me. Verely I saye vnto you: wher so euer this gospell shalbe preached, there shall come out all the wordes, which she hath done, be tolde for a memoriall of her.

Then one of the euoules called Judas (Iscariot) wente vnto the byeprestes, and sayde: What wil ye giue me, and I shal betray him vnto you? And they offered him thirtie syluer pennes. And from that tyme forth, he sought oportunitie to betraye him.

The first daye of ieiune had come the disciples to Iesus, and sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou that we prepare for the to come the Easter lamb? He sayde: Go in to the cite to buy a man, and saye vnto him: The Master sendeth the word: I desire to be as bond. I wil kepe in the Easter by the way my disciples. And the disciples byd as Iesus had appoynted them, and made ready the Easter lamb.

And at euen he sat downe at the table with the euoules. And as they ate, he sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: One of you shal betraye me. And they were exceeding sorrowfull, and beganne every one of them to say vnto him: Syre, is it I? He answered and sayde: He that deppeth his hande with me in the dyshe, the same shal betraye me. The sonne of man goeth forth, as it is written of him: but woe vnto that man which the sonne of man shalbe betrayed: It had bene better for that man, if he had neuer bene borne. This Judas that betrayed him, answered and sayde: Master, is it I? He sayde vnto him: Thou hast sayde.

And as they ate, Iesus toke the bred, and thankte, and brake it, and gaue it to the disciples, and sayde: Take, eat, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, and thankte, and gaue it to the disciples: Drynke ye all thereof, this is my blood of the new testamente, that shalbe shed for many for the remission of synnes. I saye vnto you: I wil not drynke hence forth of this fraye of the vynerie, vntill that daye that I shal drinke it new with you in my fathers kyngdom.

And when they had sayde grace, they wente forth vnto mount Oliuet. Then sayde Iesus vnto them: This night shal ye all be offended in me. For it is written: I will smyte the shepherde, and the sheepe of the flocke shalbe scattered abrode. Before that I rise againe, I wil go before you in to Galile. Peter answered and sayde vnto him: Though all men shulde be offended in y, yet wil I neuer be offended. Iesus sayde vnto him: Verely I saye vnto y: This same night before y coulde asme, shalbe thou denied thrise. Peter saide vnto him: And though I shalbe by with thee, yet wil I not deny the Lictarye also sayde all the disciples.

 Then came Jesus with them into a feilde whiche is called Gethsemane, and sayde unto the disciples: Sye ye here, whyle I go yonder to praye. And he toke with him Peter, and the two sonnes of Zebedee, and be-ganne to weere fassonfull and to be in an a goyng. Then sayde Jesus vnto them: My soule is heuyen vnto the deatch. Lary ye here, and watch with me. And he toke forth a hille, and fall flat vpon his face, and prayed sayenge: O my father, yf it be possible, let this cuppe passe fro me: neuertheles not as I wil but as thou wilt. And he came to his disciples, and fownde the a slepe, & sayde unto Peter: What? coude ye not watch with me one houre? Watch & praye, that ye fall not in to temptation. The sperte is wyllinge, but the flesch is weak.

Agayne, he wote forth the seconde tyme and prayed, sayenge: O my father, yf this cuppe can not passe awaye fro me (excepte Thyngs of us) thy will be fulfilled. And he came, and fownde them a slepe agayne, and therfore wote heuy. And he leste them, and wote forth agayne, and he prayed the thirde tyme, sayenge the same wordes. Then came he to his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Slee on now, and take youre rest. Beholde, the houre is come, & the sonne of man shal be deliuered in to the handes of synners: & they shal be gaynge. Beholde, he is at hys deatch betwixt me.

Whyle he yet spake, lo, Judas one of the twelve came, and with him a greates multitude with swordes and staves, sent fro the hye priestes and elders of the people. And he that betrayed him, had geuen them a toke, sayenge: Whom so ever I kysse, that some he is, he is hodes vps him. And forth withal he came to Jesus, and sayde: Gode master, and kysed him. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Sonne, wherfore comest thou comest? Then came they, and layed hondes vpon Jesus, and toke him. And beholde, one of them that we in with Jesus, stretcheth out his honde, and toke his sword, and strooke a seruaunt of the hye priestes, & smote of his eare: Then sayde Jesus vnto him: Put up & sworde in to his place. For all that take the sworde, shal perish with the swerde. Or cholest thou that I am not praye my father now, to sende me more then twelue legions of angells? Woe thou the shaldest be scrupulous be fulfilled: I saye to thee.

In the same honde sayde Jesus vnto the multitude: Ye are come out as we were to a murderer with swordes and staves to sei-ze me. I see daylie reachyng in to the temple amonge you, and ye toke me not. But all this is done, that the scriptures of the prophetes myght be fulfilled. The all the disciples left him, and fled. But they that were with Jesus, led him to Carphas the hye priest, wher the scribes and the elders were gathered together. As for Peter, he folowed him a farte of vnto the hye priestes palace, & wente in, and sat with the seruaunts, that he might see the ende.

But the hye priestes and the elders, and the whole counceill soughe false wyrtesse agaynst Jesus, that they might put him to deatch, and fownde none. And though many false wyrtesses steepe forth, yet fownde they none. At the last there steepe forth two false wyrtesses, & spake the sayde: I can breke downe the temple of God, and buyld it agayne in thre dayes.

And the hye priest fode up, and sayde unto him: Answerest thou nothinge, what is that these testifie agaynst the? Neuertheles Jesus helde his tonge. And the hye priest answered, and sayde vnto him: I charge the by thy myghte God, that thou tell us, yf thou be Christ the sonne of God. Jesus spake: Thou hast sayde it. I trowthelesse I saye vnto you, from this tyme forth it shal come to passe, that ye shal see the sonne of man sittynge vpon the right hande of the power (of God) and commynge in the cloudes of the heauens.

Then the hye priest rente his clothe, and sayde: he hath blasphemed, whate neede we any mo to witness? Lo, now haue ye herde his blasphemy: What thinke ye? They answered, & sayde: he is gylty of deatch. Then they spreyd they in his face, & smote him with fydes. Some smote him vpon the face, and sayde: Prophecie vnto us thou Christ, who is it, that smote the?

As for Peter, he sat without in the pale-ce. And there came vnto him a damnell, and sayde: And thou wast with Jesus of Galile also. Neuertheles he denyed before the all, and sayde: I can not tell what thou sayest.
 But when he wote out at the doore, another damnell saue him, and sayde vnto him: Thou wast there: This was also with Jesus of Nazareth. And he denyed agayne, and swore also: I knowe nor the man. And ofter a litle whyle, they that stode there, steepe forth, and sayde vnto Peter: Of a crutch thou art one of them also, for thy speache betrayeth the. Then begins he to curse and c c q to swear: I knowe not the man. And imme-diatly the cofd crew. Then thoughte Peter upon the wordes of Iesus, which sayde unto him: before the cofd crew, thou shalt demyne me thyng. And he wente out, and wepte bittarly.

The XXVII. Chapter.

When the morow, all the hye prestes and others of the people helde a coun-cell agaynst Iesus, that they might put hym to deatch, and bounde him, and led him forth, and deliuered him unto pontius pilatus the debtyre.

When Iudas which betrayed him, sawe that he was condemned unto deatch, it repented him, and boughte agayne the ether the syluer pence to the hye prestes and the elders, and sayde: I haue done euill, in that I haue betrayed innocent bloude. They sayde: What haue we to do with y? Se thou thereto. And he cast the syluer pence in the temple, and gat him awaye, and wente and hanged him self.

So the hye prestes toke the syluer pence, and sayde: It is not lawfull to put them in to the temple, for it is bloud money. They therfore helde a counsell, and boughte with the a potters selde, for to burye strangers in. Wherefore the same selde is called the bloudfelde vnto this daye. Then was that fulfilled, which was spoken by Ieremy the prophet sayenge: And they toke thine syluer pence, the paye of him that was solde, whom they bought of the children of israel, and these they gaue for a potters selde, so the L O R D E commaunded me.

23 As for Iesus, he stode before the debtyre, and the debtyre aske him, and sayde: Let thou the kynge of the Iewes? And Iesus sayde vnto him: Thou sayest it. And wha he was asked of the hye prestes and elders, he answered nothing. Then sayde pylate vnto him: What answerest thou her, how sayest thou the kynge of the Iewes? And he answered him not one word: in so much that the debtyre marvelled exceedingly.

As that first, the debtyre was wote to de-liuer a prisoner first vnto the people, whom they wolde. And at the same tyme he had a notable prisoner called Barabbas. And when they were gathered together, pylate sayde vnto them: Whether will ye, that I gaue for the kynge of the Iewes, or Iesus which is called Christ? For he knewe well that they had deliuered him of enuy. And wha he sawe upon the indignitee of the Iewes, sent vnto him, sayenge: What wilt thou that I gaue for the kynge of the Iewes, or Iesus which is called Christ? For he knewe well that they had deliuered him of enuy. And

wha he sawe upon the indignitee of the Iewes,

What the hye prestes and the elders perceiued, that they shoulde aske Barabbas, and deliuer Iesus. Then answered the debtyre, and sayde vnto the: Whether wilt thou, that I gaue for the kynge of the Iewes, or Iesus which is called Christ? For he knewe well that they had deliuered him of enuy. And wha he sawe upon the indignitee of the Iewes,

Then the debtyres subuers toke Iesus and toke him to the common hall, and gathered the whole multitude of the Iewes, and streped him out of his clothes, and put a purple robe vpon him, and placed a crowne of thorne, and set it vpon his head, and a rebe in his hand, and bade before him, and mocked him, and sayde: Hey le kynge of the Iewes. And theye smote him with the rebe, and smote him on the head. And wha they had mocked him, they toke the robe of him agayne, and put his owne clothes vpon him, and led him forth, for they might crucifie him. And as they were goinge out, they founde a man of Egipt called Cyreni: whom they compelled to beare his crosse.
And when they came vnto the place called Golgotha, that is to saye by interpretation a place of death mens skulls: they gaue him to drynke, vngayner myxe of gall. And when he had called there, he wolde not drynke.

So when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, and cast lottes theron: that the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the prophet: They haue parted my garment amonge they, and cast lottes vpon my vestment. And there they sat, and watched him. And above ouer his head, they put up the cause of his deatch in writinge namely: This is the kynge of the Iewes.
Then were there two murderers condemned with him, the one of the right han-de, and the other on the left. They that were by, caught him, and wagged their beards and sayde: These that beateſt down in the temple of God, and buildeſt in methre dayes, helpe thy ſelf. For ſhe is the ſonne of God, come downe from the croſſe. The hye pteſtes alſo in like maner with the ſcribe 2 doers, laughed hym to ſcorne, and ſayde: he hath helped other, and can not helpe him ſelf. If he be the ſonne of Iſrael, let him come downe now from the croſſe, and we will beleue him. He truſted in God, let him deliuer himſelfe, if he will haue him. For he hath ſayde: I am the ſonne of God. The marthare alſa that were crucified with him, cuſt the ſame in his teche.

And from 3 fixe houre there was darke-nes ouer the whole earth vnto the nyeneth houre. And aboute the nyeneth houre, Ieſus and with a loude voyce, and ſayde: Eli, Eli, Lamma ſabebhani: that is, My God, my God, why haſt thou forſaken me. But ſome of the that ſtoode there, when they herde 3 ſayde: he collecteth Elias. And immediately one of them come, and toke a ſponge, and fylled it with vinegar, and put it vpon a rebe, and gaue him to abynde. But 3 other ſayde: heldeſt thou weether Eli as wyl come, and buye him. Ieſus crieth agayne with a loude voyce, and gaue vp the gooſt.

And behold, the vale of the temple was rent in two peces, from aboue vnto beneath, and the earth quaked, and the ſtones rent, and the graues opened, and many bodys of the ſuyntes that ſlept, aroſe, and went out of the graues after his reſurrection, and came into the holy cite, and appeared vnto many.

But the capteyne and they that were with him, and depece Ieſus, when they ſawe the earthquake, and the thinges that were don, they were ſore afrayd, and ſayde: Verily this was Godes ſonne. And there were many women there loſt vnto a ſhorre of, which had folowed Ieſus from Galile, and had mynnyſted vnto him: amonge whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joſes, and the mother of the children of Zebedee.

Then there came a rich man of Arima-¹⁴² thea called Joſeph, which was alſo a diſci-¹⁴³ple of Ieſus. He went vnto pylate, and asked the body of Ieſus. Then commaunded pylate that the body ſhoulde be geuen him. And Joſeph toke the body, and wrapped it in a cleane linnen cloth, and layed it in his owne new ſepulchre, which he had hewen out in a rocke, and rolled a greates ſtone to the dore of the ſepulchre, and wente his waye. And there was Mary Magdalene and 3 other Mary, ſittinge once agaynſt the ſepulchre.

The next daye that foloweth the daye of preparinge, the hye pteſtes and phariſes came together vnto pylate, and ſaide: Sye me haue called to remembraunce, that this diſciple ſayde while he was yett aliove: After the dayes 3 wyl crye agayne. Commaunde therfore that the ſepulchre be depece vnto the thirde daye, leſt peradventure his diſci-¹⁴⁴ples come, and ſeale him awaye, and ſaye vnto the people: he is riſen from the dead, and ſo ſhal the laſt error be moſte the fiſt. Pylate ſayde vnto them: There haue ye watchmen, ga youte waye, and depece anye can. The y wde and depece the ſepulchre w watchmen, and ſealed the ſtone.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

On the eveninge of the Sabbath 2 holy daye, which daunteth 3 morrowe of the fiſt daye of 3 Sabbathes, came Mary Magdalene and 3 other Mary, to ſe 3 ſepulchre. And behold, there was made a greates earthquake: ſoche ſingell of the LORD befel downe from heauen, and came and rolled baſte 3 ſtone from the dore, and ſat vpon it. And him countenance was as 3 lighte yonge, and his clothynges whye as ſnowe. But 3 waid, and were troubled for feare of him, and became as though they were dead.

The angell answered, and ſayde vnto 3 women: Be not ye afrayd, 3 knowe that ye ſe Ieſus that was crucified. he is not here. he is riſen, as he ſayde. Come, and ſee y place, wherethe LORD is layed, and go youte waye ſone, and tell his diſciples, that he is riſen from the dead. And behold, he wyl ga be ſore you into Galile, there ſhal ye ſe him. So, 3 haue tolde you.

And they departed from the grave in all the haſt with feare and greates ioye, 2 ran-¹⁴⁵ to haue his diſciples wode. And as they were goinge to tell his diſciples, behold, Ieſus met them, and ſayde: God ſpede you. And they wente vnto him, and helde his feete, and fell downe before him. The ſayde Ia-¹⁴⁶ſus vnto them: Be not afrayd: go youte waye and tell my brethren, that they gaſt to Galile, there ſhal they ſe me.

And when they were gone, behold, cer-¹⁴⁷tayne of the watchmen came in to the cite, 2 tolde the hye pteſtes every thinge that had happened. And they came together with the doers, and helde a counſell, and gaue y ſoulders money amonge, and ſayde: So ye ye his disciples came by night, and stole him away, while we were asleep. And if thou come to the disciples again, we will kill him, and bring it so to passe, that ye shall be safe. And they ate the money, and sayd as they were caught. And this sayenge is noyful amonge the Jewes unto this daye.

The eleven disciples went unto Galile to a mountayne, where Jesus had appoynted them. And when they came thither, they fell downe before him: but some of them doubted. And Jesus came unto them, called with them, and sayde: Unto me is given all power in heauen and in earth. Go ye your waye therfore, and teach all nacions, and baptise them in the name of the father, and of the sonne, and of the holy goost: and teach them to keepe all thinges, whiche I have commaunded you. And lo, I am with you euer daye vnto the ende of the worlde.

The gospell
The gospell of
S. Marke.

The first Chapter.

In the begynnyng of the gospell of Iesus Christ the sonne of God, as it is written in the prophetes. Beholde, I sende my messinger before thy face, which shal prepare thy way before thee. The voice of a cryer is in the wilderness: Prepare the way of the LORD, make his pathes straight.

John was in the wilderness, and baptysed, and preached the baptisme of amendment, for the remission of synnes. And when many came unto him the whole lande of Iewry, and they of Iherusalem, and were all baptysed of him in Iordan, and knewledged their synnes.

John was clothed with Camels hewe, and with a leathon girdell aboute his loynes, and ate locustes and wyldes berry, and preached, and sayde: There cometh one after me, which is stronger then I: before whom I am not worthy to stoupe downe, and to lowe my selfe before his shoo. I baptise you with water, but he shal baptise you with the holy ghoost.

And it happened at the same tyme, that Iesus came out of Galile from Nazareth, and was baptysed of John in Iordan. And as soon as he was come out of the water, he sawe that the heavens opened, and the rooffe was as a doore conyng downe upon him. And there came a voyce from heave: Thou art my beere sonne, in whom I delecte. And immediatly the spere blew him in the wilderness, and he was in the wilderness forty dayes, and was tempted of Sa-

than, and was with the wyldes bestes. And the angels ministered unto him.

But after that John was taken, Iesus came in to Galile, and preached the gospell of the kyngdome of God, and sayde: the tyme is fulfilled, and the kyngdome of God is at hande: Repente yowre synnes, and beleve the gospell.

So as he walketh by the se of Galile, he sawe Symon and Andrew his brother, casting their nettes in the see, for they were fishers. And Iesus sayde unto the: Followe me, and I wil make you fishers of men. And immediatly they left their nettes, and followed him.

And when he was gone a litle further from thence, he sawe James the sonne of Zebede, and John his brother, as they were in the shyppe mendinge their nettes. And anon he called them. And they left their father Zebede in the shyppe with the hyerd for waumes, and followed him.

And they wente in to Capernaum, and immediatly upon the Sabbathes, he entered in to the synagoge, and taught. And they were astonysed at his doctrine: for he taught them as one havinge power, and not as the Scribes.

And in the synagoge there was a man possessed with a foule spere, which cried and sayde: Wh what have we to do with thee, thou Iesus of Nazareth, Art thou come to destroye us? I knowe that thou art even a holy one of God. And Iesus reproveth him, and sayde: holde thy tounge, and departe out of him. And the foule spere tare him, and cried with a loud voyce, and departed out of him. And they were all astonnyed, in so much that they feared one another amonge the silens, & sayde: What is this? What newe thinge is this? For he cometh with the foule spere with power, and they are obedient unto him. And immediatly the father of him was a noyde rounde aboute in the costes and borders of Galile.

And forthwith they wente out of the synagoge, and came in to the house of Symon and Andrew, & James and John. And Symon and other in lawe laye, & had the fever, and anon they tolde him of her. And he came to her, and sat her up, and took her by the hande, and the fever left her immediatly. And she ministered unto them.

At even when the Sonne was gone downe, they brought unto him all that were sicke and possessed, and the whole cuntry gathered together at the doore, and he healed many that were diseased with dyuells sicknesses, and cast out many deuils, and suffered not the deuils to speake, because they knew him.

And in the meetinge before daye, he arose, and wente out. And Iesus departed in to a deserte place, and prayed there. Peter also and they that were with him, folowed a fter him. And when they had founde him, they sayde vnto him: Master manifeste thee. And he sayde vnto them: Let us go in to the next townes, that I maye preach there also, for thereto am I come. And he preached in their synagoges, in all Galilee, and broue out the deuils.

And there came vnto him a leper, which broughte him, and knelled before him, & sayde vnto him: If thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. And he saide Iesus, and he stretched forth his hande, and touched him, and sayde: I will, be thou cleane. And when he had so spoken, immediately the leprosy departed fro him, and he was cleane.

And Iesus found him secretly, and ferreth with him away, and sayde vnto him: Take heed, what thou saye nothinge to any man, but go thy waye, and shewe thy self vnto the priest, and offre for thy cleansing what Moyses com-mandeth, for a testimony vnto them.

But he when he was departed, beganne to speake much of him, and moche the deede knowe: in so much that Iesus coude no more go into the cites openly, but was richere in deserte places.
So they came vnto him fro all quarters.

The ii. Chapter.

And after certeyne dayes he wente agayne vnto Capernaum, and it was noyised that he was in y^e house. And immediatly there was gathered a greace multitude, in so much that they had no comme, no nor without before the dore. And he spake the same vnto the. And there came vnto him certayne, which broughte one sicke of the palsy: he me of foure. And when they coude not come nye him for y^e people, they were couered wth a rof of y^e house where he was.
And when they had made a hole, they let downe the bed (by coardea) wherein the sicke of y^e palsy laye. But when Iesus sawe their faith, he sayde vnto the sicke of the palsy: Myn synne, thy synnes are forgiven the.

Then whyles there were certayne saydes which he there, & thoughte in their hertes: Some speake thus man sodly blasphemous:
Who can forgive synnes, but onely God?
And immediatly Iesus knew in his spete, that they thoughte so in thei felues, and sayde vnto them: Why thinke ye such thinge in youre hertes? Whether is easier to saye in the sicke of the palsy: Thy synnes are for-gouen the, or to saye: Arise, take vp thy bed and walke. But what ye maye knowe, that y^e sonne of man hath power to forgive synnes upon earth, he sayde vnto the sicke of y^e palsy: I saye vnto the, arise, take vp thy bed, and go home. And immediately he arose, he his bed, and wente forth before them all in so much that they were all astonied, and prayed God, and sayde: We neuer sawe sodly.

And he wente forth agayne vnto the, & all the people came vnto him, and he taughte them. And as Iesus passed by, he sawe Levi the sonne of Alphæus sittyng at the receate of custome, and sayde vnto him: Followe me. And he arose, and folowed him.
And it came to passe as he sat at the table in his house, there sat many publicane synners at the table with Iesus and his disciples: For there were many y^e folowed him.
And when the sarydes and pharisies sawe that he ate with publicans & synners, they sayde vnto his disciples: Why doth he thus and drynke with y^e publicans and synners?
When Iesus herde thes, he sayde vnto the
The whole nede not y^e pharisies, but they that are sycke. I am not come to call the righteous, but the synners to repentance.

And the disciples of Iohn and of y^e pharisees fasted. And there came certayne, which sayde vnto him: Why fast the disciples of y^e Iohn, and of y^e pharisies, and thy disciples fast not? And Iesus sayde vnto them: How can the weddinge children fast, while the bridegrome is with them? So long as y^e bridegrome is with them, they cannot fast.
But the tyme wyl come, that the bridegrome shal be taken from them, and then shal they fast.

It is not lawfull for a man to leaue to an olde garment, for els he tareth awaye the new peece from the olde, and so is ther woyle. And no man patche a new sayment olde & isle, els the new sayment breaketh the weisse, and the sayment is spyle, and y^e wisse perishe: but new sayment must be put in a new sefle.

And it chaunced that upon y^e Sabbath he wente thorow the corn felde, and his disciples beganne to make a waye thorow, and to plucke the eares of y^e corne. And the pharisees sayde vnto him: Sabbath, what thou do, which is not to fall vpon the Sabbath.
And he sayde vnto the: Some ye nd what Dauid dyd, whā he had neede, and was anoynted, both he and they that we in him: how he wente in to the house of Sathane the tyme of Abiathar the hye priest, and ate the shewbread (which was lawfull for no man to eate, but for the priestes) and he gaue them vnto him, and to them that went with him: And he sayde vnto them: The Sabbath was made for mans sake, and not man for the Sabbathes sake. Therfore is the sonne of man LORDIE ouer the Sabbath.

The III. Chapter.

And he wente agayne also in to the synagoge, and there was there a mā that had a withered hand. And they marred him, whether he wolde heale him on the Sabbath, that they might accuse him. And he sayde vnto f of us with the withered hand: Steppe forth here, And he sayde vnto the: Iosua full to do good on the Sabbath: This is lawfull to be well: to save life, wherwill? But they helde their conge. And he loked rounde aboute vpon them with wrath, and was fery for the harde herces of thā, and sayde vnto the man: Stretched out thyne hand. And he stretched it out. And his hand was made whole like as of other.

And the phariseis rode out, and straighte away they helde in counsell with herodes afflicke agaynst him how they might destroy him. But Iesus depared awaye with his disciples vnto the see. And there stode with him moche people out of Galile, and Iudey, and from Ierusalem, and out of Iosania, and from beyonde Iordan, and they that dwelt aboute Tyre and Sydon, a grete multitude which had herde of his noble acts, and came vnto him.

And he spake vnto his disciples f they shoulde kepe a shyppe for him because of the people, lest they shoulde chauge him: for he healed many of them, in so moche, that all they which were plagued, pressed vpon him, that they might touch him. And whan the foule spenes saue him, they fell downe before him, and cried, and sayde: Thou art the sonne of God. And he charged them sorely, that they shoulde not make him kinne.

And he wente vp in to a mountayne, and called vnto him whom he wolde, and they came vnto him. And he ordeyned f twelue, that they shoulde be with him, and that he might sende them out to preache, and that they might haue powere to heale sicknesses, and to cast out deuyles. And vnto Symon he gaue the name Peter, and James the sonne of Zebedee, and Iohn the brother of James, and gaue the name Donages, that is to saye the children of thunder: and Andrew, and Philippe, and Bartholomew, and Mathew, and Thomas, and James the sonne of Alphaeus, and Lebdeus, and Symon of Cana, and Judas Iscariot which betrayed him.

And they came to house. Then assembled the people together agayne in so moche, that they had no leysure to eate. And when they that were aboute him herde of it, they wente out to holde him. For they sayde: he teacheth to moche vpon him. But the scribes that were come downe from Ierusalem, sayde: he hath deyled, and thowen the chiefe dauid casteth he out deuyll. And he called them together, and spake vnto them in synnitudes:

How can one Sathan dryue out another? And ys a realme be deyled in it self, how can it endure? And ys a house be deyled agaynst it self, it can not continue. If Sathan now ryse agaynst him self, and be at variance with him self, he can not endure, but is at an ende. And no man can entere in to a stronges mans house, and take awaye his goodes, except he first hymbe the stronge man, and then spoyle his house.

Verely I saye vnto you: All synnes shalbe forgiven the children of men, and the blasphemy also wherewith they blaspheme. But who so blasphemeth the holy goost, hath neuer forgiveness, but is guilty of the everlasting iudgment. For they sayde: he hath an unclean spire.

And there came his mother and his brethren, and stode without, and sent vnto him, and called him. And the people sat aboute him, and sayde vnto him: Deholde, thy mother and thy brethren are aser the without. And he answered, and sayde: Who is my mother and my brethren? And he loked rounde aboute him vpon his disciples, and sayde: Deholde, my mother and my brethren. For who so ener doth the will of God the same is my brother, and my sister and my mother.

The III. Chapter.

And he begynne agayne to teach by f Ierusalem. And there gathered moche people vnto him, so that he wolde in to a shippe, and sat vpon the water. And all the people stode vpon the londe by the syn syde. And he preached longe vnto the by pa-tables, and sayde vnto the in his doctryne: Hearken to, behold, there cometh one a so war-to some: & it happened whyle he was saying, that some fel by the wayes yde. Then came the foules vnder the heauen, and ate it vp. Some fell vpon stony ground, where it had not much earth: and anone it came vp, because it had not depe earth. And wher the sonne aroft, it canght heate: and in so much as it had no cote, it was with-drawe away. And some fel amonge the thornes, & the thornes grew vp, and choked it, and it gaue no frute. And some fell vpon a good grounde, which gaue frute, that came vp and grew. And some barthurica folde, and some steepe folde, and some an hardy folde.

And he sayde vnto them: Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare.

And when he was alone, they that were about him ab the moles, asked him concey-nyng this parable. And he sayde vnto the: Vnto you it is given, to knowe the mystery of the kyngeome of God: but vnto them that are without, all thinges happen by pa-tables, that with synge eyes they may se, and not discerne: and that with hearinge eares they may heare, and not vnderstande, lest at any tyme they turne, and their synnes be forgotten them. And he sayde vnto them: Vnderstonde ye not this parable? How wyl ye then vnderstande all other parables?

The sower soweth the worde. The se-they that are by the wayes syde: where the worde is sowne, and as soone as they haue herde it, immediately cometh Sathe, and eateth awaye the worde that was sowne in their hertes. And like wyse are they that are sowne on the stony ground: which when they haue herde the worde, receaue it with ioye, and haue no cote in them: but endure for a tyme. When trouble and persecution arise for the wordes sake, immediately they are offended. And these are they that are sowne amonge the thornes: which heare the worde, and y carefullnes of this worlde, and the desire of riches, and many other lustes entre in, and choke the worde, and so it is made vnfurcell. And these are they that are sowne vpon a good ground: which heare the worde, and receaue it, and bringe forth frute some thre fold, and some furre folde, and some an hundred fold.

And he sayde vnto the: Is a candle lighted be put vnder a bushell, or vnder a table? Is it not lighted, to be set vpon a can-delstick? So there is nothinge hyde, that shal not be openly shewed: and what is secrete, shal not be kept. Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare. And he sayde vnto them: Take heed what ye heare. With what measure ye mete, with the se-me shal it be measured vnto you againe.

And vnto you that heare this, shal more be giuen: for who so hath, vnto him shal be giuen: and who so hath not, from him shal be taken awaye, euen that he hath.

And he sayde: The kyngeome of God is after this maner, as when a man casteth seede vpon the londe, and sleepeth, and riseth vp night and daye, and the sode springeth vp, & groweth, he knowethinge of it. (So the earch bringeth forth frute of her se-first the grasse, a afterwarde the eare, then the full wheate in the eare.) And when the harth bloweth the frute, he winneth it of the rest all, because the harvest is come.

And he sayde: Where vnto wyl we liken the kyngeome of God? Wherewith shal we comparate it? It is like a graine of mustarde seede, which whan it is sowne vpon the londe, is the leest amonge all seedes of the earth. And whan it is sowne, it groweth vp, and is greater then all herbes, and geueth grace vnto them, so that the foules vnder the heauen may dwell vnder it, for shadowe thereof.

And by many such parables he spake the worde vnto the, there after as they wyl heare, & without parables spake he not vnto them: but vnto his disciples he expounded all thinges pryuaely. And the si-me daye as euen he sayde vnto them: Let us passe ouer. And they let the people go, and toke him as he was in the shyppe, and there were mo shippes with him. And there arose a greace storme of wynde, and dashed the waves in to the shyppe, so that the shyppe was full. And he was behynde in the shyppe and sleepe vpon a pelow. And they awoke him, & sayde vnto him: Master, carest thou not, that we perishe? And he arose, and rebuted them, and sayde vnto the: sleepe ce, and be still. And the wynde was elaxed, & there folowed a greace calme. And he sayde vnto them: Why are ye so fearefull? How is it, that ye haue no faith? And they feared exceedingly, & sayde one to another: What is he this? For we haue heard and see are obedient vnto him.

of an unclean spere, which had his dwelling in the granes. And no man coude byn chayne nor with cheynes: for he was oft bounde with fetters & cheynes, and placide the cheynes in funder, and brake the fetters aspen, and no man coude same him. And he was alwaye both daye and night upon the mountaynes and in the grunes cryinge, and beatinge him self with stones. But when he sawe Iesus as farre of, he ranne, and fell downe before him, and cried loude, and sayde: What have I to do with thee O Ie-sus? And he sayde vnto him: I charge thee by God, that thou torment me not. Therfore he sayde vnto him: Go out of the man thou soule spere. And he aske him: What is thy name? And he answered and sayde: My name is Legion, for there be many of vs. And he prayed him in fandy, that he wolde not sende them awaye out of that countee.

And when there in the mountaynes there was a greates heere of swyne feedinge, and all the heere passed him, and sayde: Let vs departe in to the swyne. And anon Iesus gaue them leave. Then the foule sperees wor-nout, and entred in to the swyne. And the heere of swyne, ranne heedlong in to the water & fenne. They were aboute a two thousand swyne, and were downe in the sea.

And the swyneherdes fled, and tolde it in the cite, and in the countee. And they went to see to what had happened, and came to Iesus, and sawe hym which was possible, and he had of legion, that he saw, and was deshe, and in his right mynde, and they were afraide. And they that had sene it, tolde them what had happened to the possibill, and of the swyne.

And they beganne to praye him, that he wold departe out of their coastes. And when he came in to the shyppe, the possible prayed him, that he might be with him.

Wherebyes Iesus wolde not suffice hi, he seide vnto hi: Go to thy house & to thine kinne, and tell the how greates benefices the LORD hath done for y, and how he hath had mercy upon the. And he wente by a waye, and beganne to publish in the ten cities how greates benefices Iesus had done for him. And every man marveiled.

And when Iesus passed ouer agayne by shyppe, there gathered much people unto him, and was by the see syde. And he cal-de, there came one of the rulers of the syna-goge, whose name was Jairus. And when he sawe him, he fell downe at his feet, and besoughte him greatly, & sayde: My doughter is at the payme (of death) ife it be thy pleasure to come and laye thine honde vpon her, that she maye be whole and lyue. And he wente with him, and much people followed him, and thronged him.

And there was a woman, which had had the bloudysse twelue yeares, and had suffered much of many physicans, and spent all that she had, and was not helped, but rather in worse case. When she herde of Iesus, she came behynde amonge the people, and touchyd his garment. For she sayde: If I maye but touch his clothes, I shal be whole.

And immediatly of fountayne of his bloode was dryed vp, and she felt in hir body, & she was healed of the plague.

And forth with Iesus sit in himself the power that was gone out of him, and turned him aboute amonge the people, and sayde: Who hath touchyd my clothes? And his disciples syde vnto him: Thou seist that the people thruske the, and sayest: Who hath touchyd me? And he tolde her aboute to sit her, that had done it.

As for the woman, she feared and trembled: for she knew, what was done in her, and came and fell downe before him, and tolde him the whole trouth. And he sayde vnto her: Doughter, thy faith hath made the whole: go thy waye in peace, to be whole of thy plague.

While he yet spake, there came certayne from the ruler of the synagoge house, and sayde: Thy doughter is dead, why troublest thou the master any more? But Iesus her-de right soone the wordes that was spoken, and sayde vnto the ruler of the synagoge: Doe not thou a fraide, beleue onely.

And he suffered no man to followe him, but peter and James and John his brother.
 And he came in to the ruler of the syna-goge house, and sawe the berynes, and them that wepte and wayled greatly: and he wente in, and syde vnto them: Why make ye thus a doo, and wepe? The mayde is not dead, but slepe.

And they laughed him to scorne. And he toke them all out, and toke the father and mother of the mayde, and them that were with him, and wente in to where the mayde laye. And he toke the mayde by the them that they shulde geue her to cate.

And he wente abrode in the countie on tuesday fyfte, and caughte them. And called the two elde, and began to fynde them two and two, and gaue them power ouer the unlesse mynisters. And commaunded the, that they shulde take nothinge with them towardes thei iouenry, thus eny a godden, nor fynge, nor had, no money in the rebble, but shulde be shod with sandales, and that they shulde not paret, nor coates. the dead. This herode had sent forth to slay Iohn, and put him in prison, becau he had married her. I neuertheles Iohn hauy & brotherly wife. But I was dwelley maye for him, and wolde haue slayne Iohn, and coude not. I to muche feydinge & strep feared I shd, for he knewe that he was a right and holy man: and he ceper him, and putt ed vnto him many thinges, and putt him in iayle.

And thence came a convenient bare, the Herode on his birth daye made a suppe the lordes, capaynes and hisle floure of Galile. Then the daughter of Herode meane and daunced, and pleased herode euen that she sat at the table. Then sayde the kynge vnto of dancell: As of me what thou wilt, I will geue it the. And he sate me her: What thou wilt thou shalt see of me.
Then geue it the, meuen vnto of one half of my kingdome. Shee answered fowr, and sayde vnto her mother: What shall I saye? Shee answered: Thou baptisise him. And immediately shee went vnto the kynge with hault, and forde: I will that thou geue me straight waye in a plate the head of Ihon the baptist. Then the kynge was fowr: For for the wordes that shee had sayd at the table, he wolde not refuse her.

And immediately he sent the hangman and commanded his heade to be brought in. So he wote, and beueed him in the prison, and brought him heade in a placcet, and ga ue it vnto the damsell, and the damsell ga ue it vnto his mother. And when blaſt in her cheate, they came and roſe his body, laid it in a genns.

And the Apollone came together new Jesus, and tolde his all, and what they had done and taught. And he sayde vnto them Let us go out of the synagoge to the syna goge, and rasſen leſe. For there were many synagogs and goers, and they had not me ynough to care. And there he passed by ſhe pe out of y^e synagoge to a deserte place, and the people sawe the departing away, and many trowe of it, & saye that he was ſame many people, and had compassion towards them: for they were, as the shepe, that haue vnto them: when the day is no more, pass

2 And they sayde vnto him: What me go then, and bye vnto handred penny worth of beed, and geue them to eate? he sayde vnto them: how many loaves haue ye? So and he And whan they had searcht, they sayde: fyue, and two fyfhes. And he commaunded them all to syt downe by table fulles vpon the grene graske. And they sat downe here and there a souer by handreds and by fyfthes. And he toke the fyue loaves and two fyfhes, and looked vp vnto heauen, and gaue thanks, and brake the loaves, and gaue to the disciples, to set before them. And the two fyfhes perced he amonge them all. And they all ate, and were satysfied. And they toke vp twelve baskets full of fyue hundred and of the fyfhes. And they that are, were aboute fyue thousand men. And none be caused by the disciples to go in to the shyppe, and to passe ouer before him vnto Bethsaida, whyle he sene a waye the people. And at euen was the shyppe in the nyght of the see, and he alone vpon the londe. And he sawe that they were in perill with tempeste, for the nyghte was agognyng them.

3 And aboute the fourth watch of nyght he came vnto them, and walked vpon the see, and wolde haue gone ouer by the. And whan they sawe him walkinge vpon the see, they thoughte it had bene a spight, and cried out, for they sawe him all, and were a frowde. But immediately he called vnto them, and sayde vnto them: Be of good comforte, it is I. And none a frayde. And he wite vnto them to come to the shyppe, and the wynde ceased. And they were aorryed and maruelous crying, sayinge: for they had forgotten the loaves, and their here was blinded.

And whan they were passed ouer, they came in to the lande of Genesareth, and came in to the haven. And whan they were come out of the shyppe, immediately they knewe him, and ranne thowm out all the region aboute, and beganne on every syde to brynge vnto him in beddes such as were sick, where they herde that he was. And whyle he entred in to townes, ciuities or villages, there layde they the sick in the market place, and prayd him, that they mighte but couch the hemme of his garment. And as many as touched him, were made whole.

The vii. Chapter.

41 And there came vnto him the Phariseis, and certayne of the scribes, that were come from Ierusalem. And whan they sawe certayne of his disciples eate beed with comen, that is, with vnwashen handes, they complayned. For the Phariseis and all the Jewes eate not, excepte they wash their handes oft tymes: observinge so the tradicions of the elders. And whan they came from the market, they eate not, excepte they wash. And many other thinges they do, which they have taken vpon them to obserue, as the washinge of cuppes and cruces, and biases, vessels and tables.

Thou the Phariseis and scribes ared him why walke not thy disciples after the tradicions of the elders, but eate beed with vnwashen handes? But he answered & sayde vnto them: Full well hath I say prophesied of you Iherosolymes, as it is wyrted: This people honoureth me with their lippes, but their heart is farre fro me. But as a yowe do they serue me, whyle they teach sode boctaynes as are nothinge but the commandmentes of men. Ye leaue the commandement of God and repecte the tradicions of men, as the washinge of cruces and cuppes, & many sode thinges do ye.

And he salde vnto the: Horn goodly haue ye cast asyde the commandement of God, to make a reyne youre owne tradicions? For thus he sayde: Honoure father & mother. Whoso curseth father and mother, shal dye the death. But ye saye: A mo shal saye to father or mother: Corban, that is, The thinge I shulde helpe the which is geue vnto God. And thus ye suffer him nomore to do ought for his father or his mother, & make Gods worde of none effecte, thowm youre owne tradicions that ye haue set vp. And many sode thinges do ye.

And he called vnto him all the people, and sayde vnto them: Hecken vnto me ye all, and vnderstande me. There is nothinge wythout a man, that can be syle him, whan he entrech is to him. But that which ouer of him, that is, is charuaketh the man vnder. If my man haue eared to heare, let him heare. And whan he came from the people in to y house, his disciples ared him of this synkritube. And he sayde vnto them: Are ye so then without vnderstandinge? Perceauce ye not yet, & euery thinge which is wythout, and goeth into the mā, can not defyle him: For he entereth not in to his heart, but in to y^e defyl, and goeth out in to the draughte, that purgeth all recase.

E And he sayde: The thinge that goeth out of the man, that defyleth the man. For from within one of these here of man proceede euill chenghes, aduocerye, rehouderie, murder, chefte, concouplinges, malice, decaite, uncleannes, & wicked eye, blasphemy, pryde, foolishnes, All these euill thinges go forth from within, and defyle the man.

1452 And he arose, and wente from thence into the borders of Tyre and Sydon, & entered into an house, and rehelde an man knowe of it, and yet coude he not be hyd. For a certayne woman, whos daughter had a foule spytte, herde of him, and came and fell downe at his feete (and it was in the cheft room of Sydonia) and she besought him, that he woulde bynde out the deuill from her daughter. But Iesus sayde unto hir: Let the childen be first: For in no reuerence a fe the childen be, and to cast it out of dogges. She answered and sayde unto him: For LORDE, merchaunce the whelpes also eate vnder y^e table, of y^e childens cormes. And he sayde vnto hir: Because of this saynge go thy waye, the deuill is departed out of thy daughter. And she wente vnto her house, & founde that the deuill was departed: and hir daughter layenge on the bed.

Luc 11 And when he wente out agayne from the coastes of Tyre and Sydon, he came vnto the see of Galile, thow the myddes of y^e coastes of the se cities. And they brought vnto him one that was deaf, and had impediment in his speech. And they prayed him, that he woulde laye his hande vpon him.

Mat 9
and 22 And he toke him a syde from the people, and put his fingers in his eares, and byd spyt, and touched his tongue, and looked vp vnto heauen, sighed, and sayde vnto him: Ephraïm, that is, be opened. And immediately his eares were opened, and the bonde of his tongue was loosed, and he spake right. And he charged them, that they shoulde tell no man.

and 30 But the more he saide them, the more they published it, & maneyed out of iherusalem, and sayde: He hath done all thinges well. The deaf hath he made to heare, and the doome to speake.

The VIII. Chapter.

At the same tyme when there was much people there, and had nothing to eate, Iesus called his disciples to him, and sayde vnto them: I haue compassion vpon the people, for they haue now no meate to eate. And yf I let them go home for to fyttinge, they shalbe fayned by the waye: for some of them were come from farr. And his disciples answered him: Where shal we get meate here in the wilderness, to iustifie them? And he axed thit: How many loaves haue ye? They sayde: Seven. And he commaunded the people to syt downe vnder the grounde. And he toke the seven loaves, and gaue thales, and brake them, and gaue thit vnto his disciples to kepe them before the people. And they set the bread before the people, they had a few small fyshes, and when he had given thankes, he bid set the same before the people. They ate, and were satysfied, & toke vp (saie) halfe a full of y^e broken meate that was lefte. And they gaue, men vnto a foure thousande. And he sent thit awaye.

And forth with he wente in to a shipp with his disciples, and came in to the coastes of Bethsaida. And the Pharisees came out, and began to dispute with him, and tempted him, and desired a verbe of him from heauen. And he sighed in his heart, and sayde: Why doth this generation cease to reuerence? And yf I saye vnto you: Where shal I not be gent vnto this generation. And he left them, and reuerce agayne in to the shipp, and passed over.

And they forgaue to take bread with them, and had no more with them in the shipp but one loaf. And he commaunded them, and sayde: Take heere, and beware of the leuen of the Pharisees, and of the leuen of herode. And when they had wandered here and there, and sayde amonge them felous: This is it, that reherenno bread. And Iesus understode that, and sayde vnto them: Why trouble ye youre felous, that ye haue no bread? Are ye yette withoute understandinge? How manye breads had ye in your house ye saye, & I senow, and haue ye eaten, and haue more? and answered he not, that I brake fure loaves amonge fyue thousande, how manye basketes full of broken meate toke ye then up? They sayde: twelue. And when I brake the same amonge the foure thousande, how manye basketes full of broken meate toke ye then up? They sayde: Si am. And he sayde vnto the: Why are ye then withoute understandinge? And he came to Bethsaida, & they wente and blynde unto him, and prayed him to touch him. And he toke the blynde by the haire, and led him out of the conne, and put in his eyes, and layd his handes upon him, and asked him whether he sawe oughte.

And he lokte up, and sayde: I se men goyn-g as yf I sawe trees. After this he layd his handes upon his eyes agayne, and made him to se. And he was broughte to right againe, and sawe all clearely. And he sent him home, and sayde: Go wet in to y town, and tell alle unto noman therin.

And Jesus wente out and his disciples into the conne of the cite Cesarea Philip.
And in y way he asked his disciples and sayde unto them: What do men say, that I am? They answered: They saye, thou art Jhohannes baptist. Some saye thou art Elias, some thou art one of the prophetes.
And he sayde unto them: But whom saye ye that I am? They answered: Peter and sayde unto him: Thou art very Christ. And he charged them secretly, that they shoulde tell no man of him. And he begynne teach them: The sonne of man must suffre many thynges, and be cast out of the elders & hye priests and scribes, and be put to death, and after thre dayes rise agayne. And that was despise he se openly. And Peter toke him unto him, and begonne to rebuke him. But he turned him aboute, and lokte upon his disciples, and reproveth Peter, and sayde: Wo after me thou Sathan, for thou sawest not the thynges that be of God, but of men.

And he callid unto him the people with his disciples, and sayde unto them: Who so wyl for sake me, let him denye himselfe, and take up his crosse, and followe me. For whosoever wyl save his life, shal lose it: and whosoever leseth his life for my sake and y gospell, y same shal save it. What helpeeth it a man, though he wate the whole worlde, and yete take harme in his soule? Wh, what can a man geve, to redeeme his soule withall?
Who so ever is ashamed of me, and of my wordes amonge the adulterers and synfull generacion, of hum shal the sonne of man also be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his father with the holy angels. And he sayde unto them: Verdy I say unto you: There shal be here some, which shal not taste of death, tyl they se the Kingdome of God come with power.

The IX. Chapter.

After fyve dayes Jesus toke unto him Peter, James and Jhon, and broughte him up in to an hye mountayn out of the waye alone, and was cast gured before them, and his clothes were brigte and very whyte as y snow, so whyte as no fuller can make open: each. And there appeared unto the Elias with Mose, and they talked with Jesus. And Peter answered, and sayde unto Jesus: Rabbi, bet is good beinge for us. For we made this tabernacle: one for the, one for Moise, and one for Elias. For he knewe not what he sayde, and they were very fearfull. And there was a clowde, which overshadowed the.
And one of the clowdes there came a voyce, and sayde: This is my deare sonne, hear him. And immediatly they lokte aboute them, and sawe noman more then Jesus andly with them.

But when they were come from the mountayne, Jesus charged them, that they shoulde tell no man what they had seene, tyl the sonne of man were risen agayne from the dead.

And they kepte that sayenge by them, and aped one another: What shal everyng saye from the dead? And they asked him, and sayde: Why sayest he scribes then, that Elias must first come? he answered and sayde unto them: Elias shal come first in deede, and byngge all thynges to right agayn.
The sonne of man also shal suffre many thynges, and be despised, as it is writen.
But I saye unto you: Elias is come, and they have done unto him what they wol-de, acordinge as it is writen of him.

And he came to his disciples, and stave much people aboute them, and the scribes disputyng with them. And as soone as the people sawe, they were asone yed, and came unto him, and saluted him. And he asked the scribes: What dispute ye with them?
And one of the people answered, and sayde: Master, I have broughte unto the my sonne, which hath a devill that seeth: and whoso ever he catcheth him, he catcheth him, and he seemeth, and gnasheth with the cathy, and pyneth awaye. I have spoken to thy disciples that they shoulde cast him out, and they coude nat.

He answered him, and sayde: O thou unfaithfull generacion, how longe shal I be with you? How longe shal I suffer you?
Whyng hi hitherto. And they broughte him unto him. And as soone as the space sawe him, he tare him, and fell upon the face.

earth, and weared and somed. And he ased his father: how longe is it, sine his happe ned unto him: he sayde: Of a childe, and oft eymes hath he cast him in to the fyre and water, to destraye him: but yf thou canst do enys thing, haue mercy vpon vs, and helpe vs. Iesus sayde vnto him: If thou couldest belene: All thinges are possible vnto him that belenech. And immediatly the father of the childe cried with teares, and sayde: LORDE I beleue: O helpe thou myn vn-belene.

Now when Iesus sawe that the peop's ranne to, he rebuked the foule sprece, and sayde vnto him: Thou domme and deaf spre-ce, I charge the, be patee dase of him, and curre none in to him from hence forth. And he cried, and rent him sore, and depaied.
And he was as though he had bene deed, in somuch that many sayde: he is deed. But Iesus took him by the hande, and set him up. And he arose. And when he came home, his disciples ased him secretly: Why couldest thou not cast him out? And he sayde: Thia kynde ca go oue by no manes, but by prayer and fastyng.

And they depaied thence, and toke their iourney thowen Galile, and he wolde not that any man shoulde knowe of it. But he taughte his disciples, and sayde vnto them: The sonne of ma shal be deliuered in to the handes of men, and they shal put him to death: and when he is put to death, he shal rise agayne the thirde daye. But they understode not that worde, and were afraied to aske him.

And he came to Capernaum. And when he was at home, he ased them: What disputed ye amonge youre selues by y waye? But they helde their iages: for they had disputed by the waye amonge them selues, who shoulde be y greatesst. And he sat downe, and called the croude, and sayde vnto them: If any man wyl be the first, the same shal be the last of all, and the seruante of all. And he toke a childe, and set him in the myddel of them, and toke him in his armes, and sayde vnto them: Who so euereceaueth such a childe in my name, receaueth me: and who so euereceaueth me, receaueth not me, but him that hath sent me.

Then answered him, and sayde: Master, we sawe one dyne out dwelle in thy name, but he followeth not vs, and we forbade him because he followeth vs not. But Iesus sayde: Forby himmed: for there is no ma that doth a mynde in my name, and can soone speake enill of me. For who so euer is aggaynst vs, the same is for vs. And who e-uer greeteth you a cuppe of w ater to drinke in my name, because ye be longeth were I werely I saye vnto you: he shal not lose his rewarde. And who so offendeth one of the sele ones that be leue in me, it were long for him, that a myllstone were hanged aboute his neck, and he cast in to the se. And who offendeth the, cut him of. There it is the o entre in to life lesse, the waye to honde to go in to hell in to the everlasting fyre, where their worme dyeth not, and their fyre goeth not out.

If thy fore offendeth the, cut him of. Because for the o entre in to life etrell, the hauyng two sece to be cast in to hell in to the fyre: euery synge, where their worme dyeth not, and their fyre goeth not out. If thine eye offendeth the, cut it him from the. Better is to for the to entre in to y tynge of de-with one eye, then hauyng two eyes to be cast in to the fyre of hell: where their worme dyeth not, and their fyre goeth not out.
For euery ma must be salted w fyre. Every offerynge shal be seasoned w salt. The salt is good: but yf y sale be vnspury, whereby all shal be salted: thus sale in to your peas amonge yd felmes one with another.

The X. Chapter.

And he rose up, and came from thence in to the places of Ieremy beyond Jordan. And the people were agayne unto him by heapes, and as his maner was he taughte them agayne. And the pharise-s came vnto him, and ased him, yf it were full for a man to sweare by his wife, and temperd him withall. But he answered and sayde: What hath Moses commaunded you?
They sayde: Moses suffered vs wyte a iur-mentiall of deuorment, and to put her aw-ye. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Because of y hardnesse of yd heart: yd wytte you this commaundment. But from the first creation God made the man and woman, for this cause shal a man leue his father & mother, and cleue vnto his wife, and they two shal be one fleish. These are they that receaue the, but one fleish. Let not man therefore put asunder them, which God hath coupled together.

And at home his disciples ased him agayne of y same. And he sayde vnto them: Who so euer putteth awye his righte, & marryeth another, breaketh wedlocke to her that he leueth. And y woman that leueth hir husband, & is married to another, the same breaketh aboue.

The gospel

of S. Marke. Ho. xxi.

And they broughte childen vnto him, that he mighte teach them. But the disciples re-proued those that broughte the. And he said vnto them: Suffer the childen to come vnto me, and forsaue them not, for of such is the Kingdome of God. Verely I saye vnto you: Whoe so receiueth not the Kingdome of God as a child, he shal not enter therein. And he receiued them vpon his armes, and layde his handes vpon them, and blesse them.

And when he was gone saith vpon the way, there came one runninge, and knel-ed vnto him, & aske him: Good Master, what shal I do to beare I maye inheret euerlastinge life. And Jesus saide vnto him: Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but God only. Thou knowest the commaundmentes: Thou shalt not haue redclothe:

thou shalt not kill: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt beare no falsi witness: thou shalt begyle no man: thou shalt reuerence thy father and mother. But he answered, and sayde vnto him: Master, all these haue I kepte frō my youthe. And Jesus behelde him, and loved him. & sayde vnto him: Thou wouldest be a kinge: Wilt thou, and wilt sell all that thou hast, and geue it vnto y poor: so shalt thou haue a treasure in heauen, and come & followe me, and take the crosse vpon y. And he was discomfited at the sayenge, & went awaye sory, for he had greates possessions.

And Jesus toke aboute him, and sayde vnto his disciples: Wher hardy shal the kyngdome of God come into y. And the disciples were astonysed at his wordes, but Jesus answered agayne, and sayde vnto them: Deare childien, how harde is it for them that trust in riches, to come into the kingdome of God: It is easier for a Camell to go thorow the eye of a needle, then for a rich man to entre into y. kingdome of God.

And they aske hym: Howe hardly shal the kingdome of God come into y. And he sayde vnto them: Whoe can the be saved? But Jesus behelde them, and sayde: With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all thinges are possible.

Then sayde Iesus vnto him: Behelde, we have forsaken all, and folowed the. Jesus answered & sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: There is no man that forsaketh house, or brethren, or sisters, or father or mother, or welke childien, or landes for my sake and the gospell, that shal not receiue an hundredfold solace in this tyme, house, and brether, and sisters, and mothers and childien, and landes with persecutions, and in the world to come euerlastinge life. But many that are the first, shal be the last: and the last the first.

They were in the waye goinge vnto Jerusalem, and Iesus wente before them. And they were astonysed, and folowed him, and were afeared. And Iesus toke the twelue agayne, and tolde them what shoulde happen vnto him. Beholde, we go vnto Ierusalem, and the same of man shal be deliuered vnto the hie priestes and scribes, and they shal condemne him to death, and deliuer him vnto the heathen. And they shal mocke hym, and scourge hym, and spye vpon hym, and put him to death, and on the thirde daye shal he rise agayne.

Then toke vnto him James and Iohn of sonnes of Zebedee, and sayde: Master, we desyre, that whoe soeuer we aske of the, thou wilt do it for vs. He sayde vnto the: What desyre ye that I shal do to you? They sayde vnto him: Graunte vs, that we maye sit one at thy righte hande, and one at thy lefte hande in thy glory. And Iesus sayde vnto the: Ye wote not what ye aske. Maye ye buye the cuppe, y I shal drynke, and be baptysed with the baptisme that I shal be baptysed withall? They sayde vnto him: Yee, y we maye. Iesus sayde vnto them: The cuppe that I drynke, shal ye drynke in dede: and be baptysed with the baptisme that I shal be baptysed withall. It can be so for me at my right hande and at my left, so not vnto you to geue you, but vnto them for whom it is prepared.

And whā the ten herde that, they discorded as James and Iohn. But Iesus called them, and sayde vnto them: Ye knowe that the pryests of y woulde haue dominacion of the people, and y mighte exercise auorities amonges them. So shal it not be amonge you: but who so euar wil be greates amonge you, shal be your y myster: and who so wil be chiefe amonge you, shal be seruante of all. For the sonne of man also came to be serued, but to be serued, and to geue his life as a redemption for many.

And the came vnto Jericho. And whā he wente out of Jericho, and his disciples, and much people, there sat one blinde Barthimae the sonne of Thimeus by y waye, and begged. And whā he herde that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he beganne to crye and saye: Iesu thou sonne of David haue mercy vpon me. And many reprimed hym, that he shulde holde his tounge. But he cryed much more: Then some of David haue mer cyph me. And Iesus shode styll, and bad call him. And they called the blynde, and syde vnto him: Whi of good comforte, crye, he calleth the. And he cast awaye his garment from him, and came to Iesus. And Iesus answered, & syde vnto him: What wilt thou that I do vnto the: The blynde syde vnto him: Master, saye I mighte se. Iesus sayde vnto him: Go y waye, thy faith hath helped y. And immediatly he had his sighte and folowed him in the waye.

The XI. Chapter.

AND when they came nye Jerusalem to Bethphage and Bethanye vnto mounte Oliuete, he sent two of his disciples, and they vnto them: Go in to the tounne that lyeth before you, and as soon as ye come in, ye shal fynde a foale bounde, wher upon no man hath sitte: loose it, and bringe it hether. And if any man saye vnto you: wherfore do yethis: Then saye ye. The LORDE hath nede therof, and forth with he shal fynde it hether. They wente their waye and founde the foale tyed by f dore withoute at the petyche of the waye, and loose it. And certayne of these f shode e hore, nroth them: Wher do ye, that ye loose the foale? But they sayde vnto the, like as Iesus had commaunded them. And so they let them alone. And they broughte the foale vnto Iesus, and layde their clothes thereon, and he sat thereon. But many spued theie garments in the waye: some cuc dorens bounches si b the trees, and strowed the in the waye. And theye that wente before, and that folowed after, cried, and sayde: Hosanna, blisid be he, that commeth in the name of the LORDE. blestid be the kyngdome of oure father Dande, which commeth in the name of the LORDE. Hosanna in the heighe.

B And the LORDE entered in to Jerusalem, and entred in to the temple, and looked vpon all. And as euen he wente out vnto Bethanye with the twofoale: and on the morow when they departed from Bethanye, he begreod, and sawe a fygge tre offarte of, which had leaues. Then came he nye, to (h) yf he coude fynde any thinge thereon. And when he came to it, he founde nothinge but leaues (for the tyme of fygges was not yet) And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto it: Lett euere ma este frute of thee for euermore. And his bisphes heide it.

And they came to Jerusalem. And Iesus wente in to the temple, and beganne to teyue oue the fillers and byers in the temple, and ouerthrowe the tables of the moneychangers, and the stoles of the doue sellers, and suffred not any man to carry a vessel throu the temple. And he caughte and sayde vnto them: Iste not my tyme: My house shalbe called a house of prayer for all people: But ye haue made it a denne of merchandise.

And the scriyes and hye priefes hated it. And they soughte how they mighte destroye him, but they were afrayed of him, for all the people marualed at his doctrine. And as euen he wente out of the cite, and on the morow he passed betwixt the fygges tre, that it was withered vnto the roote. And perce thoughte thereon, and sayde vnto him: Master, beholde, the fygge tre f thou curstdest, it is withered awaye. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Haue faith in a God. Verely I saye vnto you: Who soeuer faith vnto this mountayne: Thoue, and cast thy self in to the see, and + dounth not a in his hart, but beleuest that thei thinge shal come to passe which he faith, the shalbe to hae he sayeth, it shal come to passe. Therfore I saye vnto you: Who soeuer desire in youre praye, beleue that ye shal receaue it, and ye shal haue it. And when ye stande and praye, forgiue yf ye haue oughte agaynst any man, that your father also is in heauyn, maye forgiue you youre trespasses.

And they came agayne vnto Jerusalem and reban haunces in the temple, there came vnto him the hye priefes and scriyes and the elders, and sayde vnto him: By what auctorite dost thou these thinges? and who gaue the this auctorite to do soch?

But Iesus answered and sayde vnto thei: I wil nre you a neede also, answer me, and I wil tell you, by what auctorite I do thes. The bypome of Ihon was it stem from Dauid, or of man? Answer me.

And they thoughte in them selues yf they saye, it was from heauyn, then shal be saye: Why dyd ye not then beleue him? But if they saye: It was of men, then shal we de people, for they all helde that Ihon was a true prophete. And they answered, and saie vnto him: We can not tell. And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Lett euerall I you, by what auctorite I do these thinges.

The XII. Chapter.

AND he beganne to speake vnto them by parables: A certayne ma plant at vnygarde, and made n helyge aboute it, at and wygged n wyne presse, and bysided a gate, and let it out unto husbunde men, and wente in to a strange countre. And when the tyme was come, he sente n servant to the husbunde men, that he myght receaue of the husbunden, of the frute of the vyngarde. But they toke him, and beghim, and sent him awaye emptye. Agayne, he sente unto them another seruaunt, whom they stoned, and brake his heade, and sent him awaye shamefully beate with all. Agayne he sente another, whom they slew, and many other; some they beat, and some they passe to death.

Then had he yett one sonne onely, whom he loued, him he sente also vnto them at the last, and sayde: they wyl stonde in nuyse of my sonne. But the same husbunden sayde amonge them selues: This is the heire, Comme, let us kill him, so shal the inheritaunce be oure. And they toke him, and slewe him, and cast him out of the vnygarde. What shal now the lord of the vnygarde do? he shal come, and destroye the husbunde men, and geue this vnygarde vnto othre. haue ye not heard thus saye? The same sonne which the husbunde refused, is become the headstene in the corner. This man the LORDES sonne, and he is maruelous in oure eyes.

 And they wente aboute to take him (but they feared the people) for they perceaued, that he had spoke this parable agynst the.
 And they left him, and wente their waye.

And they sente vnto him certayne of the pharisees and herodes officers to take him in his wordes. And they came, and styde vnder the figgetre, not knowinge that thou wast there. And they soughte for no man. For thou regardest not the outward appearance of men, but wastest by waye of Goddely. To it canst thou geue entree vnto the Emperours, na-not? Oughte we to geue it, or oughte we not to geue it? But he perceaued their spocri-fic, and sayde vnto them: Why temptye me? Bring me a penny, that I maye se it.
 And they brought it him. Then sayde he:
 Whys ymyng and suspition in this?
 They sayde vnto him: The Emperours.
 Then answered Iesus and sayde vnto the:

Wherfore sente nnto the Emperours that which is Gods. And vnto God that which is Gods. And they marvelled at him.

Then came vnto him the Saducees (which holde that there is no resurrection) and they asked him, and sayde: Master, Moses saith vnto vs. If any mans brother dye, and leaue a wife, and leaue no chyldren, his brother shal take him wyfe, and enioyne wth his bruder vnto his brother. Now were there seuen brethren: the first toke a wife, and dyed, and left no sode: and the seconde toke her, and dyed, and left no sode also: the thirde in like maner.

And they all seuen toke her, and left no sode. At the last a seer thyn all, the wyf dyed also. Now in the resurrection whan they shal yse agayne, whose wyfe shal she be of them? For seuen had her to wyfe.

Then answered Iesus, and sayde vnto them: Do not ye erre: because ye knowe not the scripures, ner 3 power of God: Whan they shal yse agayne from the dead, they shal neither mary ner be married, but they are as the angells in heauen. As touching the dead, that they shal yse agayne, haue ye not read in the booke of Moses, how God spake vnto him in the bush, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob: He is not Gods a God of the dead, but of the lyvinge. Therefore ye erre greatly.

And they came vnto him one of the frybes, that had herd and vnto the how they dysputed to gather, and sawe that he had answered them well, and asked him: Which is the cheifest commaundment of all? Iesus answered him: The cheifest commaundment of all commaundmentes is this: I heare O Israel, the LORD our God is one God, and thou shalt loue the LORD thy God with all thy hart, with all thy soule, with all thy mynde, and with all thy strengch. This is the cheifest commaundment, and the seconde is like vnto it: Thou shalt loue thy neigboure as thy self. There is none othre greater commaundment then thes.

And the scribe sayde vnto him: Master, verily thou hast sayde right, for there is one God, and there is none othre wythout him, and to loue him with all the hart, with all the mynde, with all the soule, and with all the strengch, and to loue a mans neigbour as himself, is more then bent sacrifici-es and all offerynges. And whan Iesus sawe that he answered discretely, he sayde vnto him: Thou art not farr from the Kingdome of God. And a fere this daye n o man can aske any more questions.

And Iesus answered, and sayde, whan he was aght in the temple, how saye the scribes, & Christ is the synne of Dauid: Thus Dauid said. Iij

Leuit. 19

himselfe saith of him the holy goost: The LORD sayde unto my LORD: Sit thou on my righte hande, tyll I make thine enemies thy foetebole. There David collecth him his LORD, how is hee the sonne: And many people heere him gladly.

And he taughte the, and sayde unto the: Beware of these saydes, that come to go in longe garments, and love to be saluted in the market, and sitte gladly about in the synagoges, and at the table: they deuoure wyddowes houses, and vnder a coloure they make longe prayes. These shal receaue the emere damnacion.

And Iesus sae ouer agaynst the: Gode cheste, and beholde how the people put money in to the Gode cheste. And many that were rich: put in much. And there came a poore wyddowe, and put in two myces, which make a farthinge. And he called vnto him his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Verily I saye vnto you: this poore wyddowe hath put more in, than they all haue put in of their superfluous, but she of her poverie hath put in all that she had, even her whole lyminge.

The XIII. Chapter.

And when he was out of the temple, one of his disciples sayde vnto him: Master, what stones and what buyldinge is this? And Iesus answered and sayde vnto him: Seest thou all this greate buyldinge? There shal not one stone be left vpon another, yf shal not be broken downe.

And when he sat vpon mount Olives, ouer agaynst the temple, Peter and James, and Iohn, and Andrew aske him pryuaely: Tell vs, when shal all these come to passe? And what shal be the token, whan all these shal be fulfilled? Iesus answered them, and beganne to saye: Take heede, that no man deceaue you, for there shal many come vnder my name, and saye: I am Christ, it shal disceiue many. But when ye shal heare of the noyse of warres, be not ye afraied: for so must it be, but yf ends is not yet. One people shal crie agaynst another, and one realme agaynst another, and there shal be earth quake here and there, and dethe shal there be aboundant. These are the begynnynges of sorowes.

But when ye heere of youre siles, for they shal deluyr you vnto the counceils, and synagoges, and ye shal be beaten, and shal be draught before prynces and kynge for my names sake, for I sende vnto the. And yf gospel must first be preached among all people,

Then when the yshal lide you and deluyr you vp, take ye no thoughte of how ye shal saye: and ymagyn ye nothinge of how ye shal saye: but what sauer shal be graunt youe the same houre, that speake: for it is not ye that speake, but the holy goost. One that shal deluyr another into death, and the father the sonne, the chylde the father agaynst the father, and moche more, and shal helpe them to death, and ye shal be saved of all men for my names sake. But who sendeth to the ende, shal be saved.

When ye shal see the abhominacion of desolacion (whereof it is spoked by David the prophet) stande where it oughte to be: and readeth, let him marce it well) then let him which be in Ierusalem, fflye vnto the mounten: and let him that is on the horse crosse not be ledde into the house, nor come thence, to fetch any thinge out of the house. And let him that is in the fild, not turne backe to fetch his clothes.

But who vnto them that are with childe, and to them that geat suck in the bowen. These shal praye ye, that your flighte not in the wynter, for in those dayes there shal be such trouble as was not from the begynnyng of y creatures which was created, vnto this tyme, neither shal be. And yf LORDE had not shewed these dayes, there shoulde no man be saved. But for the electes sake whom he hath chosen, he hath shewened these dayes.

Now if any man shal saye vnto you at that tyme: lo, here is Christ: lo, here is there, be ye not. For there shal arise false Christs, and false prophetes, which shal do signes and wonders, to disceane even the very chylde, yf it were possible. But take ye heede, be ye not ledde, I haue tolde you all these.

But at the same tyme as this trouble, the Sonne and Mone shal lose their light, and the starres shal fall from heauen, and the powers of the heauens shal moue, and then shal they see some of man commynge in the cloudes with greete power and glory. And this shal he sende his angels, who shal gather together his choyse fro the fyre wyndes, from one ende of the earth to the other.

Let me a similitude of the figge tree: Whan his branch is yettler, and hath brought forth leaues, ye knowe that the Sommer is nye. So lytewise whan ye all these thinges come to passe, be ye sure, that it is my cōmynge to the doores. Verily I saye vnto you: this generation shal not passe, tyll all these be fulfilled.

James and earth shal perishe, but my worde shal not perishe. But of that daye and houre knoweth no man, neither the angels in heauen, no nether knoweth him self, but the father onely.

Take heede, watche, & praye, for ye knowe not when the yemes. Like as a man that went in to a straunge countre, and left his house, and gave his seruantes auctoritee, to watche ouer his house, and commaunded þe peas, that the shoulde watche. Watche ye therfore, for ye knowe not when the master of y house cometh, whether he cometh in the eveninge, or in the myddnight, or aboute the cockcrowinge, or in the morninge, that he cometh suddenly, and fynde you sleepinge. So watche. I saye vnto you, that saye I nnto all watche.

The XIII. Chapter

And after two dayes was Easter, and the dayes of smete lene. And þe hye presides & sitte on the righte howe they might take him with deceite, & put him to deathe.
But they sayde: We in the feast daye, lest there be an uproare in the people.

And when he was at Bethanye in the house of Symon the leper, and sat at the table, there came a woman, which had a boze of oyle and costly. And she put it on his heade.
And she smelt of oyle, & poured it vpon his heade.
Then were there some, þe disbauid and sayde: Where do we smelt this oyle? This oyle might haue bene sold for more then the hundred pence, & bene geue to y poor.
And they grudge agaynst her.

But Jesus sayde: let her be in rest. Why trouble ye her? She hath done a good worke vnto me. Ye haue alwaye the poore with you, and when so euer ye wil, ye maye do the good vnto me. But she hath done this good vnto me, for she coulde not come before, & anointe my body for my buriall. Verely I saye vnto you: Where so euer this goiþ shal be preached in all the worlde, there shal this also be sayde, that she hath bene done, for to remember her.

And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelue apostles, went vnto the hye prieset, to betraye him vnto them. When they herde þe, they were glad, & promysed that they wolde geue him money. And he soughte how he might doone this treachery vnto him.

And upon y first daye of smete bred, when the Easter lambe was offered, his disciples sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou y we go and prepare, for thou mayest eate y Easter lambe? And he sent two of his disciples, & sayde vnto them: Go yowre waye into the cite, and there shal mee you a mā bearinge a picher with water, folow him, & where soever he goeth in, there saye ye to the good man of the house: The master sendeth þe a worde: Where is the guest house, wher in I maye eate the Easter lene, & my disciples?

And he shal shewe you a greete parlour, which is paved & prepared, there make readye for vs. And y disciples went forth, & came in to y cite, & founde it as he had sayde vnto the. And they prepared y Easter lene.

Then he came & the twelue. And as they sat at the table, Jesus sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: One of you þe eateth with me, shal betraye me. And they went forth, & sayde vnto him one after an other: Jesus, art thou? He is not. The answerer & Iste was he: One of the twelue, euen y same, þe betyeth with me in y place. The sone of man truly goeth forth, as it is sayed of hy.
But now knowe that me, by whom the sone of man is betrayed. It were better for the same man, that he had neuer bene borne.

And as they ate, Jesus toke the bred, & gave thanks, & brake it, and gaue it to the disciples. Take, eate, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, thankid, and gaue it the, and they all dranke thereof. And he sayde vnto them: This is my blode of the new testamente, which shalbe shed for many. Verely I saye vnto you, that from hence forth I wil not drinke of the frute of the vyne, till y daye þe I drinke it new in y kyngdome of God. And when they had sayde grace, they toke forth unto mount Olouete.

And Jesus sayde vnto them: This night shal ye all be offended in me, for it is sayed of the sonne of man, that he shal be slayed. I wil smyte the sheperde, & the shepe shal be scattered abrode. Trustethese after þe I am risen agayne, I wil go before you in to Galilee. But Peter sayde vnto him: And though all men shalbe offended, yet wol de I not be offended. And Jesus sayde vnto him: Verely I saye vnto þe: Today in this same night, before þe cock crowe two tymes, shal thou denye me thre tyme. But he saide yet more: Yee though I shalbe denyed y, yet wil I not denie þe. So said they all in like maner.

And they came in to y cite called Bethsemane, and he saide vnto his disciples: Sit ye here, till I go yonder, and praye. And he toke with him Peter & James & John, and began to waite fearefull, & to be in an agony. & sayde vnto the: My soule is heuy vnto deathe: carrye ye here and watch. And he went forth a litle, fell vpon the ground and prayed, & said, (if it were possible) if thou wilt, take this cuppe awaye from me: But thy will be done. And he came unto them, and founde the slepyng, and sayde vnto Peter: Syme, slepe thou? Couldst thou not watch with me an houre? Watch and praye, that ye fall not in to temptation. The sperte is wyllyng, but y^e flesch is weak. And he wote forthe agayne, and sayde, and spake the same wordes, and returned, and founde them slepyng agayne: for e their eyes were heauy, & they knewe not what they shoulde answer him. And he came the third tyme, and sayde vnto them: Slepe on now, and take youre rest, it is ynough, the houre is come: beholde, y^e sonne of man shalbe dyscuered in to the handes of synners, & y^e sonne of man shal be geyge. Beholde, he is at hande, & hat better yeth me.

And immediatly while he yet spake, came Iudas one of the twelve, and with him a greete multitude, with swordes and staves from the hye priestes and scribes and elders. And the traytred had geue a them a kisse, and sayde: Whom so ever I kysse, that same is he, laye handes vpon him, and take him awaye wardy. And whā he was come, he moue straighe waye vnto him, and sayde vnto him: O master, master, and kysed him. Then layed they their handes vpon him, & take him. But one of the that stode by durst not hit his swerde, and smate the hye priestes face, and cut of his care.

And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto the: Ye are come forth as it were to a murder, & with swordes and with staves to take me. I was daylie with you in the temple, and taught, and ye kille me not. But this is do me, that the scripture maye be fulfilled. And all the disciples forsoke him, and fled. And there folowed him a yonge mā, whiche was a clothesial synner vpon the bare hymne, and the yonge mā toke holdes of him. But he let the yansen go, and fled naked from them.

And they led Iesus vnto the hye priest, where all y^e hye priestes, and elders and scribes were come together. As for Peter, he folowed him as farre as he was to the hye priestes palace. And he was there, and sat with the seruantes, and warmed him.

Mat. 26. f
Luc. 22. d

But the hye priestes and the whole counsell soughte to kill Iesus, & they mighte bringe him to death, and they founde none. Many gaue false witness agaynst him, but their witness agreed not together. And some stode vp, and gaue false witness agaynst him, and sayde: We herde him saye: I wil breake downe this temple: that is made with handes, and in thre dayes I wil bueilde it agayne, without handes. But their witness agreed not together.

And the hye priest stode vp amonge them, and ased Iesus, and sayde: Answerest thou nothinge vnto it, that these testifies agaynst thee? But he held his tounge, and answered nothinge. The the hye priest aged him agayne, and sayde vnto him: Art thou a chresty soone of sye blessed? Iesus sayde: Yea. And he shal se the sonne of man sitte at the right hande of power, and come in the cloudes of heauen. Then the hye priest rent his clothes, & sayde: What neede we any mo to witness? We haue herde the blasphemy. What thyng se ye? They all cōdemned him, & sayde: he was gilty of death. Then began to curse some Ipe vnto him, and to cover his face, and to smyte him with fistes, and to saye vnto him prophetic vnto so. And the seruantes smate him on the face.

And Peter was beneth in y^e palace. And came one of the wenches of the hye priest: And whā she sawe Peter warminge him, she looked vnto him, and sayde: And thou wast with Iesus of Nazareth also. But he denied, & sayde: I knowe him not, neither can I tell what thou sayest. And he wente out to the four courts, and the cock crew. And a dancill sawe him, and beganne agayne saye vnto them that stode by: This is one of them. And he denied it agayne. And after a litle while they y^e stode by, sayde agayne vnto him: O a curch thou art one of them for thou art a Galilean, and thy speech sheweth thee even all this. But he beganne to curse and sweare: I knowe nothe man, that ye require of. And the cock crew agayne. Then thought Peter vpon the wordes that Iesus sayde vnto him: Before y^e cock crew twice, I should have denied thee thrise. And he beganne to wepe.

The XV. Chapter.

And some in the morninge the hye priestes and elders and the whole counsell, bounde Iesus, and led him awaye, and bounded him vnto pylate. And pylate asked him: Art thou the kynge of the Iewes? He answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou sayest. And the hye priestes accused him, sayinge: Thou sayest that thou art kynge of the Iewes. But pylate aged him agayne, and sayde: What thyng se ye? They answered, and sayde: We herde him saye: I wil breake downe this temple: that is made with handes, and in thre dayes I wil bueilde it agayne, without handes. But their witness agreed not toge-nd women, in so much that Pilate marvelled.

At that full of Easter he was wonte to wyke unto them a prisoner, whomsoever they wolde desyre. There was a prisioner with the prisioner, a one called Barabas, which the prisioner had committed murder.
And the people went up, and prayed him, that he wolde do, as he was wonte. Pilate answered them: why ye that I geue loose unto you the kynge of the Jewes? For he knew, that if he ye prisioner had deliuered him of myght. Where he ye prisioner moued the people, that he shoulde rather geue Barabas loose unto them.

Pilate answered agayne, and sayde unto them: What wil ye the kynge of the Jewes that I geue loose to be prisioner of the Jewes?
They cried agayne: Crucifie him. Pilate sayde unto them: What euell hath he done? But they cried yet more: Crucifie him. So Pilate thought to satisfie the people, and geue Barabas loose unto them, and deli-uered Iesus, to be scourged & crucified.

And the souldiers led him in to the commune hall, and called the myde mulier wiche coged, and clothed him with purple, and placed a crowne of thorne, and crowned him withall, and beganne to salute him: Hail kinge of the Jewes. And smote him upon the face with a reede, and spytte vpon him, and shalped the cheere, & woshipped him. And when they had mocked him, they toke the purple of him, and put his clothes open him, & left him alone, that he myghte crucifie him.

And they compelled one that passed by, called Symon of Cyren (which came from the cite, and was the father of Alexander and Rufus) to beare his crosse. And they led him to the place Golgatha, which is by interpretation: a place of good men will. And they gaue him raiment myxted with wine, & reede to drinke. And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, & cast lottes therfor, whiche carry one. And when it was aboute the thirde houre, they crucified him. And the cyle of his cote was reueled ouer aboute him (namely) the kynge of the Jewes. And they crucified him with two murderers, one at the right han-de, and one at the left. Then was the scripture fulfilled, which sayeth: he was counted amonge the euill doers.

And they that were by, reuylod him, and maged their heades, and sayde: He was the goodly brathest thou downe the crosse, but thou art agayne in the daye of reuelation, & comest downe fro the crosse.

The hye prestes also in like maner laughed him to scorne amonge the felous, with the saydes: he hath helped other, himselfe can be not helpe. As he is Chastant & kinge of Israel, let him come downe now fro the crosse, if he maye see it, & beleue. And they that were crucified wiche he, derided him also.

And when it was aboute the sixte houre, there was a darkenesse ouer the whole lode, till aboute the nyntieth houre. And aboute the nyntieth houre Iesus cried loude, and sayde: Eli, Eli, lamma sabachani: which is interpreted: My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? And some that stode by, when they herde this, they sayde: Beholde, he calleth Eliha. Then rane there one, & filled a sponge with wyne, & sticte it vpon a reede, & gaue him to drinke. & they sayde: Hold still, lest Eliha wil come, and take him downe. But Iesus cryed loude, and gaue up the goost.
And the wile of the crosse rent in two peces, from aboute the crosse.

The capteyne that stode thereby ouer agaynst him, when he sawe that he gaue up the goost, muche socha cryed he sayde: Truly this man was Gods sonne.

And there were many other there also, which beheld this a signe of a myghte whiche was the kyngdome of the Jewes, & Salome, which had salomed him when he was in Galile, and my sister went with me in my other & were vpon the crosse. And at euen (for so muche as was the daye of preparation, which is the fore Sabbath) there came one Joseph of Arimathea, a iust & iust man, which had also for the kynge of the Jewes, & Salome, in boldly unto Pilate, & ased his body of Iesus.
But Pilate marvelled that he was dead all the day, & called for the capteyne, & ased him, whether he had longe bene dead. And when he had gotten knowledge of the capteyne, he gaue Joseph his body. And he boughte a linnen cloth, & toke him downe, & wrapped him in the linen cloth, & layed him in a sepulchre, which was hewed out of a rocke, & rolled a stone before the mouth of the sepulchre. But Mary Magdalene and Mary the sister of Ioseph beheld, where he was layed.

The xvi. Chapter.

And when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, & Mary the sister of Ioseph, and Salome, boughte spices, & they myght come, & anointe him. And they came to the sepulchre vpon a daye of the Sabbath very early, when the sunne arose, & sayde one to another: Who shall rolle vs a stone fro the mouth of the sepulchre? And when they percyed,

The prologue of S. Luke.

Luce so much as many have taken in hand, to set forth of wordes of the actes that are come to passe amonge us, like as the y deloyed redid unto us, which from the begynnyng sawe them their selues, and were mynistres of the worde, I thought it good, for that I had diligently searched out, all from the begynnyng, to write the same orderly unto the good Theophilus, that thou mightest knowe the certite of wordes, wherof thou art inourmed.

The first Chapter.

In the tyme of Hero. the kynge of Ierory, there was a prest named Zachary of the court of Abrah, and his wife of the house of David, her name Elisabeth. They were both righteous before God, and walked in all the commandmentes and statutes of the LORD unreproucably. And they had no child, for Elisabeth was barren, and they were both well stricken in age.

And it came to passe as he executed the prestes office before God when his course came (according to the custome of the presthood) he fell to his lot to burne incense. And he wente in to the temple of the LORD, and the whole multitude of the people was without in prayer, while the incense was burning. And the angel of the LORD

De appeared vnto him, and stode on the righte syde of the altare of incense. And when Zachary sawe him, he was adashed, & there came a feare vpon him.

But the angell sayde vnto him: Feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is herde. And thy wife Elizabeth shal beare the a sonne, whose name thou shalt call Iohn, & thou shalt haue ioye and gladnesse, and many shal reioyce achin byth, for he shal be greatese before the LORDE. Wyne and stronge drynke shal he not drynke. And he shalbe filled wth the holy goost, euen in his mothers wombe. And many of the children of Israel shal be merue vnto the LORDE their God. And he shal go before him in the sperte and power of Elias, to turne the hartes of f fathers vnto the children, and the vnfaichfull vnto the wysdome of the righteous, to make the people ready for the LORDE.

And Zachary sayde vnto the Angell: Whereby shal I knowe this? For I am olde, and my wyfe well stricken in age. The angell answered, and sayde vnto hem: I am the messias, and thou shalt beare a sonne, and thou shalt speake vnto the, and thou shalt be these glad thinges. And beholde, thou shalt be borne, and not able so speake, vntill the daye that this come to passe, because thou hast not beleued my wordes, which shalbe fulfilled in this instant.

4. Re. 2

And the people wayted for Zachary, and marvelled, that he taried so longe in the temple. And when he wente out, he coulde not speake vnto hem. And they perceaued, that he had sene a vision in the temple. And he became dumb vnto them, and coulde not speake.

And it fortuned wha the tyme of his offit was out, he wente home in to his house. And a fewe dayes Elizabeth his wyfe conceived, and by his full tyme monethes, & sayde: Thus hath the LORDE done vnto me in this daye, when he hath looked vpon me, & to take awaye from my rebuke among men.

Mat. 14

And in the first moneth was the angell Gabriel sent from God in to a cite of Galilee, called Nazareth, vnto a virgin that was spoused vnto a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And the angell came in vnto her, and sayde: Gode thou full of grace, the LORDE is with thee: blessed art thou amonge women.

Wha she sawe him, she was adashed with his sayenge, and thought: What manner of salutation is this? And the angell sayde vnto her: Feare not Mary, for thou hast founde grace with God. Beholde, thou shalt conceiue in thy wombe, & beare a sonne: whose name Iesus: he shalbe gracin, & he shall be called the sonne of the high. And the LORDE God shal geue him a seate of Dauid his father, & he shal be kinge ouer the house of Iacob for ever: & thou shalt haue no ende of thy kingdom. Then sayde Mary vnto the angell: How shal this be, seeinge I knowe not a man? The angell answered, & sayde vnto her: The holy goost shal come vpon thee, & the power of the high shal ouerhadowe thee. Therefore that holy also which shalbe borne of thee shalbe called the sonne of God. And beholde, thy cousin Elizabeth she also hath concieued a sonne in hir olde age, & this is the first fructe of her, which is reported to be borne. For thus sayde the LORDE: Beholde, thou art I the high, and I the LORDE: beate vnto me, as thou hast sayde. And the angell departed fro her.

And Mary seide in these dayes, and was exulting in the wordes which haist, in the cite of Ieremy, and came in to the house of Zachary, & saluted Elizabeth. And it fortuned as Elizabeth herde the salutation of Mary, she bare spynge in her wombe. And Elizabeth was filled with the holy goost, & cried loude, and sayde: Blessed art thou amonge women, and blessed is the fructe of thy womb. And how happeneth this to me, that I mother of my LORDE cometh vnto me? Beholde, when I herde the voyce of thy salutation, the babe spynge in my wombe: & cryed. And blessed art thou that hast beleued, for thinges shalbe performed, which were tolde thee of the LORDE. And Mary sayde: My soule magnifieth the LORDE.

And my sperte reioyseth in God my Sauour. For he hath looked vpon the lowe degree of his hande mayde. Beholde, from hence forth shal all generacions call me blessed.

For he that is mighty, hath done great thinges vnto me, and holy is his name.

And his mercy endureth vnto the end of generations, vpon them that feare him. His strength shal be strenght with his arme, and scattereth the meane: & pouer in the imagination of their hart.

He putteth downe the mighty from the seate, and exalteth them a stone to bege.

He filleth the hungry with good thinges, and lettech the rich go empty.

He remembreth his mercy, and helpeth his seruant Israel.

Euen as he promysed vnto our fathers, Abraham and to his seed forever.

The II. Chapter.

And Mary abode with her aboute the mo neth, and then returned home agayne.

And Elizabeths tyme was come, that she shoulde be deliuered, & she broughte forth a son. And her neighbours and kinsfolke heard, & the LORD had shewed grate mer cy vnto her, & the yrisioyed with her. And in summed upon the eight daye, they came to a circumcise of child, and called him Zachary after his father. And his mother answered, and sayde, No, but he shalbe called Ihon.
And they sayde vnto her: There is none in this land, & so he called, And they made sig nes vnto his father, he wold he wolde haue him called. And he ased for writinge tables, wro te & sayde: His name is Ihon. And they mar uelled all, And immediatly was his mouth and his ege opened, and he spake, & played wch. And there came a feare vpon all their neighbours. And all this acte was noyed abrode throughe oute all the hill countie of Ieremy: And all they that herde thereof, exte nded in heart, and sayde: Whose manner of man wil this childe be: For the hande of the LORD was with him.

And Zachary his father was fylled with the holy goost, and prophesied, and sayde: Blessed be of the LORD God of Israel, for he hath visited and redemed his people.
And hath set up as a home of saluacion in the house of his seruante Dauid.
Quen as he promysed of oler tyme, by the much of the holy prophetes.

That he wolde deliuer vs fro oure enemy all them of house of all fode as here no.

And & he wolde shewe mercy vnto oure fathers, & clynte of his holy & covenante.
Quen the oath & he swore vnto oure fa ther Abraham, for to geue vs.

That we deliuered out of y hande of o manne, mighte serue him withoute feare all the dayes of oure life, in such holynes and righteousnes as to accepter his face him.

And thou childe shalt be called a prophet of the high: for thou shalt go before of the LORD to prepare his waye.

And to geue no reple of saluacion vnto his people, for the remission of their synnes.
To geue the tender mercy of oure God, whiche the daye sprynges from an hye hath synded vs.

That he mighte geue lighte vnto them, & in darkness and shadowe of deach, and wyse our face in to the waye of peace.

And the childe grew, and waxed stronge in spere, and was in the wyldernes, tyl the tyme that he shoulde shewer him self vnto the people of Israel.

It fortuned at the same tyme, that Augustus the Emperoure, that the whole reuoluer shoulde be taxed, And this tax inge was the first that was created, when Cyrinus was leutenant in Siria. And they wente all, every one to his owne cite to be taxed. Then Joseph gat him vp also fro Galile, out of the cite of Nazareth, in to Ieremy, to y cite of Dauid, which is called Bethlem, (because he was of y house and lynage of Dauid) that he might be taxed w Mary his spoused wyfe, which was w childe.
And it fortuned whyle they was there, y tyme was come, that she shoulde be deliue red. And she broughte forth his first begotte sonne, & swaddled him in swaddling clothes, and layed him in a manger: for they had no couene in the tyme.

And there was in y same region shepher des in the silde by the felde, and watching their flocke by nyght. And beholde, y angell of the LORD stode by the, and y brightnes of the LORD shone rounde aboute them, and they were sore afrayed. And the angell sayd vnto them: Drece a frayre, Beholde, I bringe you cytydens of great ioye, which shall happen vnto all people: for vnto you this daye is borne y Sauour, our Christ y LORD, in the cite of Dauid. And take this for a token: Ye shall fynde the babe swaddled, and layed in a manger. And straight waye there was by the angell a multitude of hea uently hoefes, which prayse God, and say be glory be vnto God an hye, & peace vpon earth, and vnto men a good wyll.

And it fortuned whiche angells were go ne from the in to beault, the shepherdes say de one to another: let us go now euen vnto Bethlem, and se this thynge that is happe ned, which y LORD hath shewed vnto vs.
And they came w haist, & founde both Mary and Joseph, & the babe layed in y man ger. And when they had seene, they publi shed abroad the saynges, & was tolde the of this childe. And all they that herde it, won dered at the wordes, which the shepherdes had tolde them. But Mary kepte all these saynges, and pondered them in hir heart. And the shepherdes returned, prayng and la mynge God, for all that they had herd and seene, as it was tolde them.

And when eight dayes were ended, that the childe shoulde be circumcised, his name was called Iesus, which was named of y angell, before he was conceyued in his mo thers wombe.

The gospel

of E. White.

10 And when the dayes of their purification after the lame of Iſaſes, were come, they brought him to Jeruſalem, where they might preſent him unto the LORD: (as it is written in the laſe of the LORD.) And very man-childes that firſt opened the Matern ſhall be called holy unto y LORD: and thus they might ſeene the offering, as it is written in the laſe of the LORD (namely) a paye of turtle doves, and two young pigeons.

And beholde, there was a man at Jerusalem, whose name was Symeon, and the same man was iust, and feared God, and his good report was in all the church. And he desired to see the holy ghost, who was in him. And an answer was given him of the holy ghost, that he shoulde not cease, before he had seene the LORD'S Christ. And he came by spirital way to the temple.

And when the elders brought the child Jesus to the temple, to do his father's will, then said he unto him, in the temple, and prayed God, and sayde: LORD, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy promise.
For my eyes have seen thy Saviour, whom thou hast prepared before all people.
It is for the lightening of the eyes of the people, that thou hast sent him.

And his father and mother marveled at the things that were spoke of him. Then Symeon blessed him, and saye unto his Mary his mother: Beholde, thus (childe) shall be set to a fall, and to an upspringe of many in Israel, and for a token, which shall be spoke agaynst. And the sword shall pierce thy soule, but at the thoughts of many hearts shall be opened.

3 And there was a prophesie, one Anno, the daughter of Spham of the tribe of Asier, which was of a gentle age, and handsome seven yeares much hee had bene from his nativitie, he had bene borne a woman a house four score & three yeares, which came bene for the temple, sayinge God is sittinge and prophesyinge, daye and night: the same came forth also the same houre, and playeth the LORDE, and spake of him unto all the people for the redemption at Iherusalem.

And when they had performed all according to the lawe of the LORD, they returned to Galile, to their owne cite Nazareth. And he dwylde growne, and receyved stronge in spirit, full of wysdome, & the grace of God was with him.

And his elders wente to Jerusalem every yeare at the feaste of Easter. And whan he was thre and threty yeare olde, they went up to Jerusalem, after the custome of the first 20 Sabbath he had fulfilled the dayes, and were gone home againe, the dialer 21 was to stay at Jerusalem. And his eldres there is not, but though he had bene in the company, and they came a dayes journey, and longer he amenge their kynsfolke to continue. And whā they founde him nor they receaue him to Jerusalem, and longer he

And it was after these dayes, that they found him in the temple, sitting among the teachers, hearing them, and opposing them. And all they that heard him; wondered at his understanding and answers. And when they asked him, they were confounded. And he mother said unto him, Thy father hath these things said unto us: Disputing, thy father and I have sought the sayings. And he said unto them: What is that ye have sought me? Will ye not, I must go about my fathers business? And they answered him not the saying: he left unto them. And he went to some with thee, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them. And his mother kept all these things in her heart. And Jesus increased in wisdom, age, and favour, with God and men.

The III. Chapter.

In the fifteenth yeare of the reign of Tiberius the 12th Emperour, in the first Pilate was a Iewishman in Jewry, and herode one of the four principales, and his brother phillippus one of their re prynces in Iudea, & in the coastes of Lu-carnia, and 2 spanias one of the four princes of Galilee, when herman and Caius were by passles, the same 3 yeeres of the reign. Then the sonne of Zachary an widowes. And he came in to all 3 countries to Jordan, and preached the baptysme of repentance for the remission of synnes. And in wynter in 3 booke of 3 sayenges of the prophet, which sayeth: The voyces cryer in the wilderness: prepare the way of the LORDE, and make his pathes straight in the valley (that is) the sicke, and enery man that hath synne brought lowe. And now so in croked synners made straight, and rough is made smooth, and all synners shall be the servants of the LORD.

Then saye he vnto these people, I wote out to be baptised of him: Ye generation vipers, who haue certified you, that yf ye scape I wrath to come: Take heede, leaue forth due frutes of repentance, & begin to saye, We haue Abrahams of^{er} fathers. For saye vnto you: God is able of these stoness use y^e children vnto Abraham. The are is parable the tre allready: so that euery tre which bringeth not forth good fructe, shall be hewen downe, and cast in to the fyre. And the people asked him, and in y^e end what shal we do then? he answered, & sayde vnto the:

 that hath hath two coats, let him parte wth him y^e hath none: and he that hath meate, let him do likewise.

The publicans came n^{ext}, to be baptysed and sayde vnto him: Master, what shal we do? he sayde vnto them: Requyre no more, then is appointed you. Then y^e sent yours and him likewise, and sayde: What shal we do then? And he sayde vnto the: Do no man violence ne receiue, and be content with your wages.

But when the people were in a bouer, & thought all in their hertes, whether he w^{as} Christ. Then answered, and sayde vnto the all: I baptise you with water, but n^{ext} after me there cometh one stronger the I, wh^o shall baptise you with the holy goost, and with fyre. Whose fanne is in his hande, wh^o shall purge his floore, and shal gather y^e wheat in to his barn, and shal burne the chaffe with vnquenchable fyre. And many other thynges more sorted he, & preached vnto the people.

But herode the Tetrarcha (wh^o he was named of him because of herodias his brethers wife, and for all the cackles that herod: dyde) desired all this he layed Ihs in prison.

And it fortuned when all the people celebrated baptisme, and when Iesus also was baptysed and prayed, that heauen opened, and the holy goost came downe in a dovels shappe vnto him. And out of heauen there came a voyce, which sayde: Thou art my beate sonne, in wh^o I delecte.

The fourth Chapter

2 And full of the holy goost, came agayne from Iordane, and was led of 3 spiritus into wilderness, 4 forty dayes he was tempted of 3 beuill. And in those dayes ate he nothinge. And when they were ended, he hungered a great maner.
And the deuill sayde vnto him: If thou be 3 sonne of God, commaunde this stone, 3 it be bread. And Iesus answered 3 sayde vnto hi: It is written: Man shal not lyue by bread only, but by every worde of God. And 3 deuill toke him vp in to an hye molcaia, and shewed him all the kingdome of 3 whole worlde in 3 twinkelinge of an eye. 3 sayde vnto him: All this power wil I geue vnto the, and the glory therof, for it is geue ouer vnto me, and I geue it, to whom I wil. If thou wilt worshippinge me, they shal all be thine. Iesus answered him, and sayde: Awyde fro me thou Satan. It is written:
Thou shalt worshippinge the LORDE thy God, and him only shalt thou serue.

3 And he caried him to Ierusalem, and set him vpon a pynacle of the temple, and sayde vnto him: If thou be 3 sonne of God, cast thy self downe from hence. For it is written: 3 shal geue his angels charge ouer the, to keepe the, and with their handes they shal holde the up, that thou doste not thy foot agaynst a stone. And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: It is sayde: Thou shalt not tempte the LORDE thy God. And when 3 deuill had ended all the temptacions, he departed from him for a season.

And Iesus came agayne in the power of the spirit in to Galilee. And the same of him was noyced throughe out all 3 region rounde about. And he taught in their synagoges, and was commended of every man.

And he came vnto Nazareth where he was brought up, and as his custome was, he went in to the synagoge vpon 3 Sabbath, and stode up for to rede. Then was there deli-uered vnto him the booke of 3 prophet Iesai. And when he had turned ouer the booke, he founde the place where it was written: The spirit of the LORDE is with me, because he hath anointed me to preach the Gospell vnto 3 poore hech. he sent me: to heale the broken hearted: to preach deliuerance to the capty-ue, and to the bynde, and to fre to let at liberty them that are bounde: and to preach the acceptable yere of the LORDE.

And when he had closed the booke, hega-ue it agayne to 3 mynstre, 3 hee hit downe.
And the eyes of all that were in the syna-goge, were fastened on him. And he began to saye vnto them: This daye is this scripture fulfilled in your eares. And they all gave him mynstris, and wadded of the greuous wordes, which proceeded out of his mouth, and they saide: In our this Iespepe seeme.
And he sayde vnto them: Doubtes ye wil saye vnto me this proverbe: Phisician, heale thyself. For howe greace things haue we bede done at Capernaum? Do the same hereall in thine owne countrey. But he saide vnto 3 saye vnto you: There is no prophete accepted in his owne countrey. Where thes of 3 script 3 saye vnto you: There were many wrethens in Iherusalem in the tyme of A-chaz, the heauil was shakyn the yeres, and synnerthes, and when there was a greace vnto all the land, 3 to none of the was it sent, but onely vnto Sarepta of the Sy-nians to a wredome. And many leprous there in Iherusalem in the tyme of A-chaz, and none of the was cured, but onely Achanan of Syria.

And as many as were in the synagoge, beweh they herde 3, were filled with much awe. And they rose up, and toke him out of the cite, and led him vp to the edge of the hill wher apd their cite was builded, that they might cast him downe headlonge. But he rente his mayntens throughe the myddes of them, and came to Capernaum care of Galilee, and taught the vpon the Sabbath.
And they wondered at his doctrine, for his preachinge was with power.

And in the synagoge there was a man possessed with a foule deuill, 3 he cryed loude, and sayde: Let me alone, what haue I to do with thee Ieshe of Nazareth? And then came to destroye me: I knowe 3 who thou art, euen the holly of God. And Iesus rebuted him and sayde: holde thy tounge, and departe out of hym. And the deuill heue in the myddes amonge them, and departe from him, and dyd him no harme. And there came a stare ouer the all, and they spake amonge them selves, and sayde: What manner of thinge is this? the commanouch the foule spakes with auowies and power, and they departe out. And 3 same of him was noyced throughe out all the places of 3 coun-tre rounde aboute.

And he rose up out of the synagoge, and came in to Symeon house. And Symeon ther in lawe was take with a greates force, they praye him for her. And he wote unto her, & commaunded the fruer. And is left her, & immediately she rose up, & myrristred vnto che.

¶ And whan the Sonne was gone downe all theye that had sicke of dyuerse distates, boughe the vnto him. And he layed his hands vpon every one of the, & made the whole the benda also departed out of many, congratulating: Thou art Christ the sonne of God. And he rebuked the, & suffered them not to speake: for theye knewe that he was Christ. But whā it was daye, he wote out in his deserte place. And the people soughte hi, and came vnto him, & keppe him, & he shulde not departe fro the. And he sayde vnto the:
I must preache the Gospell of þe kyngdome of God to ether cities also: for there to am I sent. And he preached in the synagoge of Galile.

The V. Chapter.

¶ I came to passe, & the people preas-sed vpon him to heare his wordes of God, and he stode by the lake of Genenereth, and sawe two shippes stode by þe lake, but þe fishers were gone out of the,
and had washed their nettes. Then wenche he into one of the shippes, which was Symon, and prayed him, & he wolde chynst out a fide fro the lende. And he sat him downe, and taughte the people out of þe shippe.

And whan he had left of talkinge, he sayde vnto Symon & leand: out in to the depere lye shippes yō nettes, to make a draughte.
And Symon answered and sayde vnto him: Master, we have laboured all þe nyght, and taken nothinge. But vps thy worde, I wil leave forth euer nette. And whā they had so done, theye toke a greate mulcater of fishen, & thunders brake. And they made synnes to ther shonnes which were in y ether shippe, theye shuler come, & helpe the. And theye came, & fild bothe the shippes full so þe they sente. Whan Symon Peter sawe þe, he fell downe at Iesus knees, & sayde: LORDE, go frowe, for I am a synfull man: for he was a sinfull man all that were w him, as þe draughte of fishen which theye toke, and so in e re James and Jh on also the sonnes of Zebe-dai, which were Symons companyons. And Jhu sayde vnto Symon: feare not, for fro nowe forth thou shalt take men. And theye boughe the shippes to lende, and left all, and followed him.

¶ And it fortuned as he was in a cite, behel-de there was a man full of leprosy. Whā he sawe Iesus, he fell vps his face, & besoughte him, and sayde: LORDE, if thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. And he stretchyd oue his hande, and touched him, and sayde: I wil be thou cleane. And immediately he leprosy departed from him. And he charged him, & he shulde tell no man, but go thy wyse sayde he, and shewe thyself vnto þe priest, and offre for þe cleansing: as Moyses commaunded, for a witnesse vnto the. But þe fame of hi wote ous flicther vnto the, & there came much people together, to heare him, & to be healed by his frō thei sicknesse. And he departed in to the wyldernes, & gaue him self to prayer.

¶ And it fortuned vps a daye, & he taughte, and here sat þe pharisees and scribes, which were come out of all the countre of Galile, and Jemmy and fro Ierusalem, and the power of the LORDE was fro him, & healed every man. And behelde, certayn men broughte vpon a bed, a man þe had þe palsy, and they soughte how they mighte bryng him in, and laye him before him. And whan they coude not fynde by what waye they mighte bryng him in, for þe people theye clymmed vps to the coppe of the house, & let him downe thow the rylinge of the bed, and geve the before Iesus. And whan he sawe their faith, he sayde vnto hi: Man, þe synnes are forgiven þe. And the scribes and pharisees began to chynre, & saide: What is he thus, & speaketh blasphemie.
Whā can forgive synnes, but only God?

¶ Tere heles whā Iesus perceaued thei thoughtes, he answered, and saide vnto the: Whā hymte ye in yō herres? Wherfor easier to saye: Thy synnes are forgiven þe, ou-to saye: Arise, and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of man hath power to forgiue synnes vpon earth, he sayde vnto þe sicke of the palsy: Arise, take vp þe bed, and go home. And immediately he rose up, before the, & toke ap the bed, & he had lyen vps, and wote home, and prayed God, And they were all astonied, and gaue God þe prayse, and were fylled w feare, and sayde: We haue sene marvellous thynges to daye.

¶ And afterwards he went out, and sawe a publican named Leui, sittinge at y receate as custom, & he sayde vnto him: Follow me.
And he left all, & rose ap, & followed him. And Leui made a greates feaste his house.
And many publicans & other sat w hi at y table.
And the scribes and pharisees murmured against him & his disciples, & saide: Wherfore do ye eate & drynke w publicans & synners? And Iesus answered, & sayde vnto the: The re-ho le uide not þe physician, but theye þe sicker.
I am not come to call þe righteous, but sinners to repentance.

But they sayde vnto him: What for fast þu disciples of Ihsu do, & praye so much, & the disciples of the pharisees likewise, but þu disciples eate and drynke? And he sayde vnto them: Can yemake the needynge childre fast, so lōge as the bydegreme is with the?
But the tyme wil come that the bydegreme shalbe take fro the, then shal they fast.

And he sayde vnto them a synlunde: No man putteth a peece of new cloth in to an olde garment: for els he canereth the newe, and the peece of the newe agreeth not with the olde. And no man putteth new wyne in to olde vessels, for els þe newe wyne bursteth the vessels, and runneth out is iust, and the vessels perishe. But new wyne must be puren to new vessels, and so are they doth perishe. And eche is no man that dryn-keth the olde, and wolde straighe waye haue the new, for he sayeth: the olde is plea-

The VI. Chapter.

It is fortuneth vpon an after preynt pall Sabbath, that he wente thorow the come silde, & his disciples plucked the eares of come, and ate, and rubbed the with their handes. But certayne of the pharisees sayde vnto them: Wherefore do ye that,
which is not lawfull to do vpon the Sabbath? And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto the: Hane ye not red what Dauid do, whā he was hongrie, and they that were with him, how he wente in to the house of God, and take the shewbride, and ate, and gaue also vnto them that were with him, which was lawfull for no man to eate, but for the priestes only? And he sayde vnto them: The sonne of man is LORD Euen ouer the Sabbath.

It came to passe apō another Sabbath, that he wente in to the synagoge, and taught and there was a man, whose right hande was withered. But yf sayden and pharisees marked him, whether he wolde heale apon the Sabbath, that they might synde an occasion agaynst him. And he belede he percea-ued their thoughts, and sayde vnto the man: stretch out thy withered hande. Arise, and stepp forth here. And he arose, and stepped forth.
Then sayde Iesus vnto the: I wil aske you a question: What is lawfull to do vpon the Sabbath? or euell to save life, or to destrye it? And he behelde the all rounde about, and sayde vnto them: Stretch out thyne hande. And he dyd so. Then was his hande restored him to right, euen as whole as the other. But they were filled full of malice, and communed together, what they wolde do to him.

And it fortuneth at the same tyme, that he wente one in to a mountayne to praye, and continued all night in praye to God. And whā he was a daye, he called his disciples, and chose twelue of them, whom he called his apostles. Symon, whom he named Peter; and Andrew his brother, James and Iohn, phylippe and Bartheolome, Mattheu and Thomas, James the sonne of Alpharum, symon called zelote, Judas the sonne of James, and Judas Iscariot, which was the traytoure.

And he wente homewich them, and sade vpon a place in the silde, and the company of his disciples, and a greates multitude of people, from all Ieremy, and Ierusalem, and from Tyre and Sidon by the se coast, which were come to heare him, and to be healed of their diseases, and they that were weped with foule spirits, were healed. And all the people sought to touch him, for that he wente vertue fro him, and healede the all.

And he lise vpon his eyes vpon his disciples, and sayde: Blessed are ye poore, for yours is the kyngdome of God. Blessed are ye that honger here, for ye shalbe satisfied. Blessed are ye that wepe here, for ye shal laugh. Blessed are ye, when men hate you, and put you of as the chylde of men, and reuyle you, and cal-lout your name as an euell thing, for the sonne of man sake. He is to ye then, and be glad: for beholde, your reward is greates in heauen. Euen so do by their fathers vnto the prophetes also.

But he wente vnto you rich, for ye haue your consolation already. Wo vnto you that are full, for ye shal hunger. Wo vnto you that laugh here, for ye shal wepe and woe. Wo vnto you when euery man prayseth you, Euen so do by their fathers vnto the falses pharisees also.

But I saye vnto you that heare: Let your enemies: do good vnto them that hate you: blisse them that curse you: prayse them that wrongfully trouble you. And who so smyteth the on the che one cheek, offe him yf other also. And who so taketh away thy cloake, forby him not yf come also. Who seker asey of the, geue him: and who taketh awaye thyne, are is not agayne.
And as ye wolde that men shulde do vnto you, euen so do ye to other men likewise.

And yf ye loue them that loue you, what thāte haue ye that fore? For synners alioue their louers. And yf ye do good to the the greater, and ye shall be the children of the heghe, for he is kind, clemente the mercifull will and so the endl.

Be ye therefore mercifull, as youre father is mercifull. Judge not, and ye shal not be iudged. Ceasepe not, and ye shal not

The VII. Chapter

So he had ended his sayyng vn to the people, he wente in to Capernaum: in and capernaum streuam laye dead sick, whom he loueth. Whā he her de of Iesus, he sent the elders of the Ierusalem vnto him, and prayed him, that he woulde come, and make his seruants whole. But whā they came to Iesus, they beought him insistently, & sayde: Is it worthy y^e saye thus of Ihesu? he sayde for him, for he loueth our people: & hys buylded vs y^e synagoge. And Iesus wente so them.

¶ Then when they were not farr from þ house, I caught a fens fit be unto þi, finge unto him: þe LORD De, trouble not they þi unto one: Go, 2 be goeth. And to another: Come, 2 be cometh. And to my feruile: Be came home a yre, þe they founde the fittia þe that was fite a thole.

And he said vnto after worde, that he w^old be in a cite called T^haim, and many of his disciples wente with him, and much people.
Whē he came nye to the gate of the cite tolden, there was caried out one deeth, which was the onely sonne of his mother, and hee was a y^oddowre, and much people of the cite wente with her. And when she L^ORDE saide her, he had compassion on her, and saide vnto her: Wepe not. And he came nye, and touched the Coffin. And they that bare him, stood still. And he saide: Young man, I saie vnto thee: Arise. And he tooke his hand, and he arose. And he deli-uered him vnto his mother. And there came a feare on them all, and they praised God, and sayde: A grate prophet is risen among vs, and God hath wysed his people.
And this fame of him was noyed in all Jewry, and in all y^e regions about Iay^e roun de aboute.

And the disciple of Ihs shewed him of all these things. And Ihs called vnto him two of his disciples, and sent the vnto Iudas sarynte: Art thou he that shal come, call?

we loke for another: When the men came to him, they sayde: Thou y baptist hath sent us unto the, sayyng: Art thou he that shal come, or shal we loke for another?

C As the same house healed he many from sicknesses & plagues, and fro euill spirits, and vnto many that were blynde, he gaue sight. And Iesus answered, & sayde vnto the: Go ye wyse, heere Iohn, what ye haue sene & herd. The blynde se, the halde go, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf heare, the deef cryse, the Gospel is preached vnto y poore, and blessed is he, that is not offended or me.

When the messengers of Ihs were departed, Iesus began to speake vnto y people concerning Ihs: What are ye gone out for to se in y wyldernesse? Wolde ye se a rebe, that is to say, in the wynde? Or what are ye gone out for to se? Wolde ye se a man clothed in softes & ymme: Beholde, they haue gone gossylly sayed, & lyue delicately, are in synge & conuers. Or what se ye gone out for to se? Wolde ye se a prophet? I say vnto you: one that is more che a prophet. This is he, of whom it is written: Beholde, I sende my messenger before me, & he shal prepare the way before the. For I say vnto you: I amonge the y are borne of women, there is no greater prophet the: Then the baptist. For with the baptyng he that is left in the byngdome of God, is greater then he.

And all the people that herde him, and y publicans, mislied God, and were baptysed with the baptyne of Iohn. But the pharisees and scribes despyed y counsell of God, & gaue the felowes, & were not baptysed of hi.

D But the LORD said: Where vnto shal I liden the men of this generacion? And whom are they like? They are like vnto chylde which sit in the market, and crye one to another, and saye: We haue pyked vnto you, and ye haue not daunced: we haue moerued vnto you, & ye haue not wept. For Iohn y baptist came, & accobied, and brake no wyne, and ye saye: he hath y deuel. The sonne of man is come, eateth & dryncketh, & ye saye: This man is a gloton & a wyne bebbre, a frende of publicans & synners. And myngdome is insisted of all his children.

And one of the pharisees despyed him, & he wolde race with him. And he wente in to the pharisees house, and sat him downe at y table. And beholde, there was in the cite a woman, which was a synner. When she knewe that Iesus was at the table in the pharisees house, she brought a boxe with oymment, & stode by his feet, and wepte, and be-ganne to water his feet with teares, and dryed the with the haire of hir heade, and dryed his feet, & anoynted the with oymment.

But when the pharisee which had called him sawe this, he spake within himself, & sayde: If this man were a prophet, he wold knowe this, & what manner of woman this is that toucheth him, for he is a synner. Ihs answered, and sayde vnto him: Simen, I haue somethynge to saye vnto the. Why sayest thou thus? A certayn leuier hath two detters, the one oughe to geue him bond, the other lesse: but when he hath charged pay, he forgoueth both. Whiche of the two wyl loue him most? Symen answered, and sayde: the. I suppose, xxiij. he forgaueth most. Then I saye he vnto him: Thou hast iudged right.

And he turned him to the woman, and sayde vnto Symen: Seest thou this woman? I am come in to thine house, thou hast geue me water vnto my feet, but she hath waered my feet with teares, and dryed the with the haire of hir heade: Thou hast geue me no kyss, but she kysse the tymes she came in: hath not caressed to kysse my feet: Thou hast not anointed my head with oyle, but she hath anoynted my heade with oymment. Therefore I saye vnto the: Many synnes are forgiven her, for she hath loued much. But woe to whom lesse is forgiven, the same loueth the lesse.

And he sayde vnto her: Thy synnes are forgiven the. Then the y that was at the table with him, beganne to saye with themselves: What is he this, that forgaueth synnes also? But he sayde vnto the woman: Thy faith hath saved the, go thy way in peace.

The VII. Chapter.

When it was formed afterward, that he wente thowen the cities and townes, and preached, and preached y Gospel of the byngdome of God, and the multitude of the people grew. And certayn women also, whiche he had healed fro euill spirits and infirmities: Mary, which is called Magdalene, out of whom were stuen deuils, and Joanna y wife of Chus, & her syster, and Susanna, and many other, that myghte vnto them of their substance.

Now wha moche people were gathered together, and halled vnto him out of the cities, he spake by a synillitute: There were out a somer to some hynde, & while he was sowynge, some fell wy the waye side, and was trodde vnder foot, and the seedes of the space it up. And some fell on stons, and wher it was spange up, it was ched away: becase it had no mynstre. And some fell among thornes, and the thornes spange up with it, and chod it it. And some fell up a good ground, and spange up, and bare fruit an hundred fold. Wha he sayde this he ayed: Woe so hath eares to heare, see he heare.

And his disciples ased him, and sayde: What simulacra is this? And he sayde: Un-at you is is gude, to knowe the mysteries of the kyngdome of God, but unto the other is parable, & though they see it, they shuldnot see it, and though they heare it, they shuld not vnderstande it.

This is the parable: The sodein the voyce of God: As for those that are by & maye see, they are they that beare it, as for those that are by the deuell, and beate away the robe out of that heret, that they shuld be-lieue, and be sode. But they on & so are, as for as whan they heare it, receiue the robe with ioye, and the robe has no robe they beare: for a myste, and in the tyme of temptation they fall away. As for it that is among the thornes, as for as beare it, and go forth among the thornes, rydes and wher confressio of this life, and are chod and bringe forth no fruit. But that on the good ground, as for it that beare the robe, and be in pure good heart, and bringe forth fruit in pacience.

his brethren, and wold come to him for the people. And it was tolde him. Thy mother and thy brethren stande without, and wold be the. But he answered, & sayde unto the: My mother and my brethren are these, which beare the reide of God, and do it.

¶ And it fortuned upon a certayne daye, & he wente in to a synagoge, and heaucthishim, he sayde unto the: Let vs passe ouer to the other syde of & lake. And they thrust off the lake. And as they sayde, he slepe.
And there came a storme of wynde upon & lake, and the waves fill upon the, and they slepe in greater operty. Then wote they unto him, and waked him up, & sayde: Woe master, we perishe. Then he arose, and re-bald the wynde, and the rypest of waves, and they ceased, and it was calme. But he sayde unto the: Wher is youre faith? For cerchels & they were afrayd, and wrode, and sayde one to another: Wher is he this? For he commaundeth the wyndes and the water, and they are obedient vnto him. And they sayde forth in to the countre of the Gadare-nes, which is ouer agaynst Galile.

¶ And whan he wente out to londe, there met him out of & cetera ma, which had a deuill longe tyme, & wore no clothes, & dwelt in no house, but in the granes. ¶ Then the wha he sawe Jesus, he cryed, and fell down before him, and cryed loude, & sayde: What haue I to do with the Jesus, thou sonne of the hyest God? I beseeche the, that thou wold not commaund me. For he commaunded the fou-le sperte, that he shuld departe out of the ma, for he had plagued hi a lge season. And he arose aboute with chynes, and depce dy-ferres, and he made the bondes in order, and was caried of the deuell in to the wy-tern esse.

¶ And Jesus ased him, and sayde: What is thy name? He sayde: Legion. For there were many demis entred in to him. And they besought him, that he wold not commaund the to go in to the depe. But there was there a greete heere of iherme synginge upon the mountayne, and they besought him, that he wold geue them lawe, & entere in to & same.
And he gaue the lawe. Then departed & de-uils out of the ma, and entred in to the syng-er. And the herd eufshed headlynges wch a flosme in to the lake, and were dyced.
But wha f hermen sawe what had chaunsed, they fled, and tolde it in to the eies and of a village.

¶ Then wente they out, for to se what was done, and came to Jesus, and founde he ma (one of robons) betwixt were departed, syng-inge at Jesus fite, clothed, and in his right mynde, and they were afrayd. And they & had sene, tolde the howe the possid was healed. And the whole multitude of & countres of the Gadarennes besought him, that he wold departe from them, for there was a greete feare come upon the. And he gaue him to & synagoge, & returned a gynn. And the man out of wch the deuil were depared, besought him, & he might be with him.
But Jesus sent him away, and sayde: Go

And Iesus sayde: Who hath touchid me? But whan they all denyed, Peter sayde, and they that were with him: Master, the people thronge the and thrust the, and thou sayest: Who hath touchid me? Iesus saide: Some body hath touchid me, for I fele, that there is vertue gone out from me. But whan the woman sawe that she was not hid, she come trillinge, and fell downe before him, and tolde him before all the people, for what cause she had touchid him, & how she was healed immediatly. But he sayde: Wepe not, for she is not dead, but slepeth. And they laughid at him, knowinge well that she was dead. But he thrust them all out, and tolde her by the hand, and cryed, and sayde: Rise up. And his spere came agayne, & she arose straighe waye. And he commaunded to geue her meate. The XL Chapter.

And he called the twelve together, and gaue them power and auctorite ouer all deuels, and that they myght heale diseases. And he sent the out to preach the kyngdome of God, and to heale y^e sick, and sayde vnto them: Ye shal not receiue with you by the waye, neither staffe, ne scryppe, ne shoo, ne moneye: ne haue two coates. And ined what house soeuer ye enter, there abyde, till ye go thence. And whoe soe receaue you not, departe out of the same cite, and shake of the dust from your feet, for a witnesse ouer them. And they departed, and wente throughout the cuntry, preaching y^e Gospel, & healinge euery where.

Herode the Tetrarche herde of all that was done by him. And he toke care, for he wroth as it was sayde of some: Ihs is risen agayne from the dead of some. Him hath appeared of some. One of the olde prophetes is risen agayne. And he wrote sayde: I haue I beheaded, who is chyn then, if I haue sech thinges? And he desired to see him.

And the Apostles came agayne, and tolde him how greates things they had done. And he toke them to him, and wente asyde into a solitary place by the cite called Bethsaida. Whan the people knew of it, they followed him. And he receaued them, and brake vnto them of the kyngdome of God, and healed such as had the disease. And the daye began to growe. Then came the euoules to him, and sayde vnto him: In such people departe fro the, that they maye go in to the common rounde aboute, and in y^e villages, where they maye fynde lodging & meate, for we are here in y^e wilderness. But he sayde vnto them: Geue ye them to eate. They sayde: We haue nomore but fye loaves and two fysshes. Excepte us shal we go to bye meate for so much people (for they were vpon fye thousand men). But he sayde vnto his disciples: Cansthem to fynde downe by fisydes in a cyparty. And they answered, and made than all to fynde downe. Then he brake the fyue loaves and two fysshes, and felde vp towarde heauyn, and sayde grace ouer them, brake them, and gaue them to the disciples, to seth before the people. And they ate, and were all satisfied. And there was taken vp of that remaine to them, twelue basketes full of broken meate.

And it fortuned whan he was alone at his prayer, and his disciples with him, he axed them, and sayde: Whom saye the people that I am? They answered, and sayde: They saye, thou art Iohn the baptist: Some, that thou art Elias: Some, that thou art one of the olde prophetes is risen agayne. But he

1 he weareth them: Whom saye ye that I am?
Then answered peter and sayde: Thou art the Christ of God. And he charged them secretly, and commaunded them, that they shoulde tell this vnto no man, and sayde: For the sonne of man must suffer many thinges, and be cast out of the iudges, and of hye priests, and saydes, and he put to death, and rise agayne the thirde daye.

2 Then sayde he vnto them all: If any man will followe me, let hi denie himself, & take vp his crosse daylie, & followe me. For who so will save his life, shall lose it. But who so loseth his life for my sake, shall save it. For what advantage hath a man, though he winne the whole worlde, and loseth himself, or turneth in damage of himself? Who shall be ashamed of me and of my sayenges, of whom shall the sonne of man also be ashamed, when he cometh in his glory, and in the glory of his father, and of the holy angels.
3 I saye vnto you of a tenech: there be some of them that stande here, which shall not taste of death, yll they see the kyngdome of God.

4 And it fortuned, that aboute an eight dayes after these wordes, he cōmēto vnto him peter, Iohn and James, and wente vp in to a mounte for to praye. And as he prayed, the shape of his countenance was chaunged and of another fashion, and his garment was white, and shyned: and beholde, two men talked with him, which were Moyses and Eliu, that appeared gloriously, and spoke of his departinge, which he shoulde fulfill at Ierusalem. In for peter and them that were with him, they were full of slepe.
But when they awoke, they saw his glory, and the women standinge with him.

5 And it chaunced, when they departed fro him, peter sayde vnto Iesus: Master, here is good beyng for vs. Let vs make thre tabernacles: one for thee, one for Moyses, and one for Eliu, and telly me what he sayde.
But whyle he thus spake, there came a clowde, and ouershadowed them. And they were afraid, when the clowde covered them.
And out of the clowde there came a voyce, which sayde: This is my beare sonne, heare him. And whyle this voyce came to passe, they founde Iesus alone. And they kept it close, and tolde no man in those dayes any of the thinges which they had seene.

6 And it chaunced on the next daye after, when they came downe from the mount, many people met him, and beholde, a man amonge the people cryed out, and sayd:

Master, I beseeche the, take vpon my sonne, for he is my only sonne: beholde, the spere taketh him, and suddenly he crieth, and he reareth him, that he be sonner, and will pay me departe: he from him, when he hath reuen him. And I desired the thy disciples to cast him out, and they coulde not. Then answered Iesus, and sayde: O thou vnfaithfull and creaked generation, how longe shall I be with you, & suffer you? Whynge hyer thy sonne. And when he came to him, the devill rent him and care him. But Iesus rebuked the solespiter, and healed the chyld, and deliuered him vnto his father agayne.
And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God.

7 And whyle they wondered every one at all thinges which he doo, he sayde vnto his disciples: Comprehende these sayenges in yours cares, for the sonne of man must be deliuered in to the hydes of synners. But they wist not what that worde meane, and it was hyd from them, that they vnderstode it not. And they were afraid to aske him of that worde. There came a thought also amonge them, which of them shoulde be the greatest. But when Iesus sawe the thoughtes of their hert, he toke a childe, & set him beside hy him, and sayde vnto them: Whosoever receauech this childe in my name, ce-lesteeth me: and who so ear receauech me, receauech him that sendeth me. And who so is least amonge you all, & same shal be greater.

8 Then answered Ihesus, and sayde: Master, we sawe one drye out travel to thy name, and we forbad him, for he followed the not with vs. And Iesus saide vnto him: For hyd him not, for he that is not agaynst vs, is for vs.

9 And it fortuned when the tyme was fulfilled that he shoulde be receaued vp from hence, he turned his face to go straight to Ierusalem, and besore him be sene messan-gers, which wente their waye, and came in to a towne of the Samaritanes, to purpose lodginge for him. And they wolde not receiue him, because he had turned his face to go to Ierusalem. But when his disciples James and Iohn sawe that they sayde: LORD, wille thou, that we commaunde that sye fall downe from heauen, and consume them, as Eliu dyd? Iesus rebuked Iesus turned him aboute, and rebuked them, and sayde: How we yet aske, what manner of spere ye aske of? The sonne of man is not come to destroye mens soules, but to save them. And they wente in to another towne.

of E. Lute.

Mat. 2 And it featured as they went by the way, one sayde unto him: I wil folowe thee, whither so euer thou go. And Iesus sayde unto him: The foxes haue holes, and the byrdes vnder the heauē haue nestes: but the sonne of man hath not wher to laye his head.

And he sayde unto another: Follow me.
He sayde: Sir, graue me leave first to go, and burie my father. But Jesus sayde unto him: Let the dead burie their dead. But go thou thy waye, and preache the Kingdome of God.

And another sayde: Sye, I will folowe the, but geue me leaue first, to go by cheere firmele, which are as home in my house. Jesus sayde vnto him: Who so putteth his han-de to the plow, and looketh backe, is not mee-te for the kinngdome of God.

The X Chapter.

¶ Whermaie the LORDE appoynted our other sentence, and sent them two and trow before him in to euery cite and place, whiche he himselfe wolde come, and shewe unto them: The harvest is greates, but the labourers are fewe. Prayeth for the LORDE of the harvest, to sende forth labourers in to his harvest. As youe waye the holde, I sende you forth as the labeis amonge ye wolowe. Beare necher waller, nor strep-per, ne shurmen, and salute no man by the waye.
In to whatso ever house ye entere, first saye peace be to this house. And if the chiefe of peace be there, your peace shal rest upon him. If no, then shal your peace come to youe nygane. And tary ye shall in the same house, eate and drynkeinge such as they haue. For the labourer is worthy of his re-warde.

Go not from house to house. And in to what fo wer cite y entre, and they reeasne you, ease such thinges as are set before you.
And heale the fide that are there, and saye unto them: The kyngdome of God is come unto you. But in to what fo wer cite y e come, and they reeasne you not, go your waye out in to the streetes of the same, and saye: Even the very dust which cleaveth upon us of your cite, wype we of upon you.
But of what fo wer cite y shall be sure, that the kyngdome of God was come unto you. I saye unto you: It shall be easier for Sodom to be built againe, then for that cite.

23 We unto the Chozania, we unto the 24 Bethaida: for yfche miracles whido haue bene done amonge you hnd bene done at Tyer and Sidon, they had bene parrish longe agoe, strange in such doct and in ef fect. Whereheles it shalbe easier for Ty and Sidon at the iudgment, then for you.

 And thou Capernaum which art exalted unto the heauen, shalt be thyself downe to hell. He that heareth you, heareth me and he that despiseth you, despiseth me but who so despiseth me, despiseth him that sent me.

The firste came in graye withi ioyous sayde: LORDE, the deuils also are fownd vnto vs in thy name. But he sayde vnto them: I have seith an foli downe from heunen non leghcenyng. Scholers, I haue men yow pryncer to treake vpon serpents and scorpions, and ouer al poyter of the enemye, and noothing shall hurtte yow. Then- ken, reioyce not ye in this, that the fowles me: Subbeue vnto yow but reioys, for yow re iustice are myten in heauen.

At the same houre reioysed Iesus in his te, and sayde: I praye the O father and LORDE of heauen and earth that thou hast byd these thynges from the myst and purden: and hast opened them vnto habes.
 Amen O father, so so is pleased the. All thyng ge are geuen vnto me of my father: and no man knoweth the sonne (that is, but onely the father) neither who the father is, save onely the sonne, and he to whome the sonne will, open it.

And he turned him vnto his disciples, and sayde in especiall. Blessed are the eyes, which se thesē ye se. For I saye vnto you Many prophetes and kynges, wolde haue seene the thynges that ye se, and haue not sene them: and to haue hearde the thynges that ye heare, and haue not heare them.

And besyde, there stode up nyght temperd him, and sayde : Master, who must I do, to inherite everlasting life? he sayde vnto him : What is thy name? he sayde : I am rabbi thane. And he answered and sayde : Thou shalt loue thy LORD God with all thy heart, with all thy strength, with all thy strength, and with all thy mynde, and thy neighbour as thy self. he sayde vnto him : These haue I kept from my youth to this day, and thou shalst lye. But he replied and sayde vnto Jesus : Why is then myne enuour?

Then answered Iesus, and sayde: A-wayne men wence downe from Ierusalem vnto Iericho, and sell amongst you.

which stryked him out of his clothes, and wounded him, and wente their waye, and left him half dead. And by chauce there came downe a priest the same waye: and when he sawe him, he passed by. And likewise a Leuite, wher he came nye unto the same place, and sawe him, he passed by. But a Samaritan was a dryng his iourney, and came their waye, and when he sawe him, he had compassion upon him, wente with him, banded up his wounds, and poured oyle and wyne thereon, and lifte him up upon his beast, and brought him into the ynn, and made prouision for him. Upon the morninge when he departed, he toke with him two pence, and gaue them to the oost, and sayde vnto him: Take care of him, and what so euer thou spendest more, I will paye it the, when I come agayne. Which of these thinkest thou best to do, my neighbour? He sayde: he that shewed mercy vpon him.
Then sayde Iesus vnto him: Go thy waye then, and do thou likewise.

It fortuned as they were, that he entred into a towne, where there was a woman named Marthea, which receaued him in to her house. And she had a sister, called Marie, which sat by the doore of Iesus seate, and brought vnto him her wounds. But Marthea was herself much to do, for to serue him. And she saide vnto him, and sayde: LORDE, cal-lest thou not, that my sister leaue me to seruice alone? And yett therfore, that she helpe me.
But Iesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Marthea Marthea, thou carest thoughte, and troublest thy self aboute many thin-ges: there is but one thinge needfull. Marie hath chusen a good parte, which shal not be taken awaye from her.

The XI. Chapter.

It is fortuned that he was in a place, and prayed. And when he had ceased, one of his disciples sayde vnto him: LORDE, teach vs to praye, as Thou also taughtest his disciples. He sayde vnto the:
When ye praye, saye: O our father which art in heauen, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdome come. Thy will be fulfilled vpon us, as it is in heauen. Give vs this daye our dailye bread. And forgive vs our syn-nes, for we also forgive all them that are debtors vnto vs. And lede vs not into temptation, but deliuer vs from euill.

And he sayde vnto them: Which of you is it that hath a frende, and shalde gaue him at mydinght, and saye vnto him: sende, sende me thre loaves, for a frende of my neighbour came to me out of the waye, and I haue nothinge to set before him: and he withyn shalbe answered and saye: Dispyce me not, the doer is fure alreedy, and my children are with meen the chamber. I can not refuse, and geue the. I saye vnto you: and though he wold not arise and geue him, because he is his frende. But because of his unshamefast begginge he wold arise, and geue him as many as he needed.

And I saye vnto you also: Ife, and it shal be geuen you: Seke, and ye shal fynde: knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. For whoso euer wille, receaue it: and he that sekech, fyndeth: and to him that knocketh, shal it be opened. If the sonne are lord of eery of you that is a sacher, wyl he geue him a stone therfor? Or if he aske a fyfhe, wyl he for the fish offre him a serpent? Or if he aske an egge, wyl he proffer him a scorpion? If ye then which are euill, can geue youre children good giftes, how much more shal the father of heauen geue the holy spere vnto them that aske him?

And he deuote out a deuill that was abominable: and it came so passe, when the deuill was departed oute, the woman spake, and the people wondered. But some of them sayde: he dryueth oute the deuill, thorow Bel-zebul the cheife of the deuils. The other templed him, and dystned a token of him from heauen. But he knewe their thoughte, and sayde vnto them: Every kyngdome deuyded withyn it self, shal be desolate, and one house shal fall vpon another. If Sachur then be at variannce withyn himself, ho w shal his kyngdome endure? Because ye saye, that I dryue oute deuils thorow Bel-zebul,

And if I dryue oute deuils thorow Bel-zebul, by whom the do youre children dryue them out? Therfore shall they be youre iug-ges. But if I cast oute the deuils by the spy-rite of God, then is the kyngdome of God come vnto you.

Whan a stronge harnessd man trespeth his house, that he possesse it in peace: but when a stronger then he cometh vpon him, and ouercometh him, he taketh from him all his weapons, wherein he trusted, and deuydeth the spoyle, he that is not with me, is agaynst me: and he that ga-th

ther at night with me, scattered all over.

146. 147. What the vnderstander seeth is gone out of a man, he rethert sheweth three places, si-fyng reth, and fynderth none. Then sayeth he, I wil turne agayne in to my house, from whence I yement out. And whan he commeth, he fyndeth it strepte, and garnished.
Then geothpe, he and eareth wiche man seuen oathes spemes, wiche he himself. And whan they are entered in, they dwelle there. And the ende of chat man is wiche then he begyn-neth.

And he fortuned whan he spake such a cer-tayne word amonge the people lyste vp his voyce, and sayde vnto him: Blessed is y wombe that bare the, and the papper that thou hast sucked. But he sayde: Yee blessed are they that heare the worde of God, and kende it.

¶ When the people were gathered thide together, he beganne to saye: This is as euell generation; they befores a set, and the shal no cōte be gwynneth for the toke of the prophet Jonas. For like as Jonas was a toke vnto the Tynnyres, so shal the soune of man be vnto this generation. The queene of the south shal aryse at the iudgment wity the men of this generation, and shal condemne them: for she came from the ende of the worlde, to heare the wysdomme of Salomon. And beholde, here is one more then Salomon. The men of Tynne shal aryse at the iudgment wity this generation, and shal condemne them: for they dyd permaunce after the prauchinge of Ienau; and beholde, here is one more then Ienau.

 ¶ Toman lighteth a candle, and paceth it in a pewy place, neither under a bushell, but vpon a candlestick, that they which come in, may see y^e light. ¶ The eye is the light of the body. If chine eye then be simple, all thy body shal be full of light: but yf chine eye be exteind, then shal all thy body be full of darcknesse. Take heede therefore, that the light which is in the, be not darcknesse. If thy body now be lighte, so that it shew no parte of darcknesse, then shal it be all full of light, and shal lighte the entent as a cleare lightennere.

D But while he yet spake, a certaine pharise prayed him, that he wolde byrie with him. And he wenein, and sat him downe at the table. When the pharise sawe that, he marvelled, that he was had not first besought bymer. But the LORD seide vnto him: How do ye Pharisees make cleane the out syde of the cuppe and platter, but yon inwardes partes are full of robbery and wickednesse. Ye foolles, is a change made cleane within, because the out syde is cleane? The Scribbles geue themselves of that ye haue, and behold, all is cleane vnto you.

But we tinge you pharises, ye charythemyne and reuer, and all manner herbes, and paffonett wogm^{ts} and y^e love of God.
Theſe ought to haue bene done, and not to leave the other undone.

Ye men of Pharisee, ye Jews, who kill the body, and leave the soul alive, ye have refused to come in at the strait gate: ye will enter in at the large gate, that ye may have room to go out, and stand before the king, and say, We have kept all the commandments of the law, and will be accepted of him. Ye shall say, We will be accepted of him, and he will say, I never knew you: depart from me, ye workers of iniquity. Therefore shall ye be cast out, and shall stand before the king, and he will say, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity. Therefore shall ye be cast out, and shall stand before the king, and he will say, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity. Therefore shall ye be cast out, and shall stand before the king, and he will say, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity.

Woe unto you scribes and pharisee, ye hypocrites, for ye are like covered sepulchre, where quer men walke, and are not aware of them.

Their answered one of the scribes, and sayde vnto him: Master, with these wordes thou punishest vs: rebuilde also. But he saide vnto you also ye scribes, for ye delude men with vncollectable butchers, and ye your selfe so teach them nee with one of your fructure.

¶ Wo unto you, for ye buyde the spakem of the prophetes, but youre fathers put them to deatch. Doubtes ye heare mynself, and consente unto the dedes of yo fathen for they slewe them, and ye buyde thar senals/croa.

Therefore sayde the wyf of a Jewe: I red some propheies and Apocryfes unto this and some of them shal they putre us with and persecute, that the bloudes of all the prophetes which hath bene shedd shal be the foundacion of the world: as is layd out, must be requyred of this generation: from the bloud of Abell, unto y bloud of Zachary, which perished betwene the altar and y temple.
Nee I saye unto you: it shalbe requyred of this generation.

Woe unto you scribes, for ye have manned y^e keye of knowlege. Ye are not come in your selves, and have shutt y^e doore: them that wolde haue bene in.

When he spake thus vnto them, the scribes and pharises beganne to p^{ro}uoc seuerpon him, and to stoppe his mouth with man y questions, and layd reys for him, and soughte to hance out some thing out of his mouth, that they mighte saue him.

of S. Luke. Ho. xxxij.

Here were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, in so much that they trode one another: Then beganne he, and sayde first vnto his disciples. Beware of the leuen of the pharisees, which is hypocisie. But there is nothing hid, that shal not be discovered: neither secret, that shal not be knowne. They, for what soeuer ye haue spokt in darknesse, that same shal be heide in light: and that which is spoken in to the eare in the chabers, shal be preached vpon the house toppes.

But I say vnto you my frendes, Let not a frayd of them chaunge you, for they can do nothing: for what nameore that they can do. But I will shewe you, whom ye shal feare. Feare him, which after he hath killed, hath power also to cast in to hell: For I saye vnto you: Feare him. Are not yete sparres bought for twoo farthings? Yet is not one of them forgotten before God. The very haire of youre heade also are numbered euery one. Feare not therefore, for ye are better then many sparres.

I saye vnto you: Who so ever knowlegeth me before men, him shal the fader of heauen also knowlege before the angels of God: But he that denyeth me before men, shal be denyed before the angels of God. And who so ever speaketh a worde agaynst the fader of man, it shalbe forgiven him: But who so blasphemeth the holy gost, it shal not be forgiven him.

When they beganne to singe vnto their synagoges, a vnto the rulers & officers, take ye no thought, how or what ye shal answer, as what ye shal speake: for the holy gost shal teach you in the same houre, what ye ought to saye.

But one of the people sayde vnto him: Master, by my brother denyeth the enticemente meyne. And hee lea he sayde vnto him: Man, who hath se me to be a subper or hereticke? I parter ouer you: And he saye vnto them: Take heede, and beware of contumeliousse, for noman lyeth therof, that he hath abundance of goodes. And hee tolde them a similitude, and sayde: There was an ancherman, whose selue had brought forth much pincenelly, and he thought in himself, and sayde: What shal I do? I haue nothing wher in to gather my frutes. And he sayde: This will I do, I will breake downe my barnes, & buye greater, and therein will I gather all myne increase, & my goodes, and saye vnto my seru: Seule, thou hast much goodes layed up in store for many yeares, take now thine ease, eat, drinke, and be merry. But God sayde vnto him: Thou fool, this night shal they requyre thy soule from the, and whose shal it be that thou hast prepared? Thus saith it with him & gathereth treasure for himself, and is not rich in God.

But he sayde vnto his disciples: Therfore I saye vnto you: Take ye no thought for youre life, what ye shal eat: neither for youre body, what ye shal put on. Therise to me then meate, and the body more then a raiment. Considre the raimens, they neither sow nor receyue, they haue alse neither storehouse nor barnes, and yet God feedeth them. But how much better are ye then the folkes?

Whiche of you (though he take thought) therfore could he put one cubit vnto his stature? Being then ye be not able to do that which is least, why take ye thought for the other? Considre the lilies vnto the felde, how they growe: they labour not, they sowe nor. But I saye vnto you: that euen Salomon in all his royaltie was not clothed like one of these. Wherefore yf God so cloth the grasse, fin to daye in yf felde, and to morrow shalbe cast in to the fowne, how much more shal he clothe you, o ye little faith? Are not ye therefore what ye shal see, or what ye shal buye, and clymme not up an hye? The herchen in the world sate after all such thinges. But sith ye be the Kingdome of God, and all these shal be mynistrer vnto you.

Feare not how bele flocke, for it is youre fathers pleasure to geue you the Kingdome. Sell that ye haue, and geue almeke. Make you bagges, which were not olde: euen a treasure that neuer faileth in heauen, where is a thefe cometh, and a moth corrupteth: for where your treasure is, there wil your heare be also.

Let youre loynes be girded aboute, and youre lightes burnyng, and be ye like vnto men that waiye for their lord, a gawayn he retorne from the marriage, that when he cometh & knocketh, they maye straight waye open vnto him. Blessed are those seruantes, whom the LORD (when he cometh) shal fynde wakynge. Verely I saye vnto you: He shal gyde up him self, and make himselfe downe at the table, and shal go by them, and mynistrer vnto them. And yf he come in the seconde watch, and in the thirde watch, and fynde them so, blessed are those seruantes. But be sure of this, that yf the good man of the house knowe, what heure the thefe wilde come, he wilde surely watch, and not suffice his house to be dooken vp.

Therefore be ye ready also, for at an house may ye chynge a noy, haled be some of man come.

But Peter sayde vnto him. I. ORDE, tel-lest thou this synallende vnto vs, or to all men also? The LORDE sayde: How greate a charge is a faithfull and wyse steward, whom his lord setteth ouer his house olde, to geue the other deuyse in due season? Blef-sed is that seruante, whom his lord (whan he cometh) shal fynde so doynge. Vnely I saye vnto you: he shal see him ouer all his goodes. But yf the same seruante shal saye in his herte: Tylt, it wil be longe er my lord come, and shal begynne to sleepe yf seruantes and maydena, ye x to wate and drynte, x to be dromed: the same seruante a lord shal come in an houre whan he lokech not for him, and in an houre that he is not aware of, x shal hew him in pece, and geue him his re-warde with the vnbelouers.

The seruante that knowe his lordes will and prepared not himself, neyther yd ac-cordinge to his will, shal be beaten with many strypes: But he that knowe it not, and yd yd chynge his waye as stryppes, shal be beaten with few stryppes. For loke vnto whom much is geuen, of him shal much be soughte; and loke to whom much is comynge, of him shal much be requyred.

I am come to pynnele fye vpo earch, and what wolde I rather, the that is were kynd led already. For withstandinge I must first be baptised with a baptyme, and how am I payned tylt be ended: Thynke ye, that I am come to bringe peace vpon earch? I tell you nay, but rather debate. For from hence forth there shal be at varyance in one house: the one agaynst the othe, and two agaynst the thre. The father shal be deuyed agaynst the synne, and the sonne agaynst the father: the moether agaynst the donger, x: the donger er agaynst the moether: the moether in lawe agaynst the donger in lawe, and yf donger in lawe agaynst the moether in lawe.

And he sayde vnto the people: Whan ye see a clowde ryse out of the west, straight waye ye saye: there cometh a shower, and so it is;
and whan ye see the south wynde blowe, ye saye: It wil be hote, and it cometh so cer-teynly. O ye vpo earch, ye can disken the fashion of the skye and of the earch: Why can ye not disken this tyme also? Yee and why longe ye not of your selues, what is right?

While thou goest with thine aduersary vnto the payne, geue diligence by the waye, that thou mayest be quyte of him, lest he bringe the before the iudge, and the iudge deliuer the to the layner, and the layner cast the in to prison. I tell the, thou shalt not come out thence, tylt thou paye the penny myte.

The XIII. Chapter.

There were present at the tyme when I certaine, that shewed him of y. Galileans, whose house was at the place nagled with their owne sacrifice. And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Supposye, that these Galileans were greater from then all the other: Galileans, because they suffred such paynshment? I tell you nay, but excepte ye amende your selues, ye shal al perishe likewise. Wherefore ye that yf agayn-st (vpon whom the cower in Siloe full of steele) were guile aboue all men that dwel at Jerusalem? I tell you nay: but excepte ye amende your selues, ye shal al perishe likewise.

And he tolde them this synnecolde: I or certaine had a figge tre, which was planted in this wyngarde, x he came and soughte fruite thereon, and founde none. Then saye he vnto the wyngardener: Beholde, this thre yere longe haue I come every yere, and soughte fruite vpon this figge tre, and fynde none: cutt it downe, why synnecolde the grounde? But he answered, and sayde vnto him: Let it alone yet this yere, tyl I digge roude aboute it and donger it, yf it wyl ge forth fruite: If no, then cutt it downe afterwarde.

And he taughte in a synagoge vpon the Sabbath: and beholde, there was a man, which had a spere of infirmite althow yeres, and was croked, and coulde not wal-ke vp. Whan Iesus sawe her, he called her to him, and sayde vnto her: Woman, be dy-uared from thy distaste. And he layed his hand vpo her, and immediately she was made straight, and praised God. Then aske the ruler of the synagoge, and reuolue acon: because Iesus healed vpo yf Sabbath-and sayde vnto the people: There is syn-daye, wherein man ought to worke, nether come and be healed, and not on the Sabbath.

Then the LORDE answered him, and sayde: Thou hypocrite, doth not euery one of you wolke his oxe or asse frid the cryll vpo Sabbath, and leade him to the water? Thou bought a ferme, and I must needs go forth and se it. I praye yf haue me excused. And yf seconds sayde: I haue bought fyue yoke of oxen, and now I go to pteue them. I praye the haue me excused. And the thirde sayde: I haue married a wife, therefore can I not come. And the seruante came, and broughte his lord to worde agayne therof.

Then was the good man of the house displeased, and sayde vnto his lord: Wo oue quydly in to the streetes and quarters of yce, and buyng in hither the poore and cypell, and lame and blynde. And the seruante sayde: lord, is it done as thou hast commaunded, and there is a yet more to come. And the lord sayde vnto the seruante: Wo oue into the hye wayes, and to the hedges, and compele hym to come in, that my house maye be filled. But I saye vnto you: that none of these men which were bydden, shall caste of my supper.

There wente much people with him, and he turned him aboute and sayde vnto them: If any man come vnto me, and haue not his father, mother, wife, childe, brether, sisters, yet and his owne selfe also, he can not be my disciple. And whosoever deceith not his crosse, and followeth us, can not be my discipile.

Which of you is it, that wil buyde a tower, and stretch not downe first and counteth yf cost, whether he haue sufficient to perforce it, or lest after he hath layed the foundation, and is not able to perforce it, all theye chace se it, begynne to laugh him to scorne, & to saye: This man beganne to buyde, and is not able to perforce it. What thyng wil go to make battell agaynst another thyng, and stretch not downe first, and councell in his mynde, whether he be able to stande there, or not? Him that commeth to gaynst him with twenty thousande: Wo els, whyle the other is yet a greates waye of his sendeth embassage, and buyeth peace. So likewise every one of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, can not be my disciple.

Sale to a good thinge: but yf the sale be vnswayre, what shalt they season withall? He is neyther good upon the lande, nor in the donge hill, but shal be cast awaye. He that hath eate and drinke, let him heare.

The XV. Chapter.

These referred vnto him all the publicans and synners, that they might heare him. And yf pharisees and serys not mentioned, and sayde: This man receaue synners, and eateth with them. But he tolde the chieffes similitude, and sayde: What man is he amonge you, that hath an hundred shepe, and yf he lose one of the, that searcheth not the nyne and nynetye in the wyldernes, and goeth after that which is lost, yll he fynde it? And when he hath founde it, he layeth it vpon his shuldres with ioye, and when he cometh home, he calleth his frendes and neighbours, and sayeth vnto them: Reioyce with me, for I haue founde my shepe, that was lost. I saye vnto you: that so hal there be ioye in heauen ouer ones synner that doeth penance, more then ouer nyne and nynetye righteous, which neede not repentaunce.

What moronie is that hathenger? yf he lose one of them, that hath not a candle, and stretcheth the house, and searcheth diligently, yll he fynde it? And when he hath founde it, he calleth his frendes and neighbours also, and sayeth: Reioyce with me, for I haue founde my groce, which I had lost. Euen so I tell you: that theye be ioye before the angels of God, ouer ones synner that doeth penance.

And he sayde: A certayne man had two sonnes, and the younger of them sayde vnto the father: Father, geue me this portion off goodes, that becomen vnto me. And he rewarded the good vnto them. And not longe thereafter, gathered the younger sonnes all together, & toke his journey in to a farr countre, and there wasted he his goodes with yecous synginge. Now when he had spent all that he had, there was a greates wante there, and he began to lacke, and wente his waye, and came in to a cresset of that same countre, which saw him in to his felde, to hope synginge. And he wolde haue filled his belly with the coddies, that the swyne ate. And when he saw him thus.

Then came he to him selfe, and sayde: How many hyndes seruantes haue my father, which haue had ynough, and I perishe of hunger? I wil geue vp, and gaue my father, and saye vnto him: Father, I haue synned agaynst heuener and before the, and am now in wrothy to be called thy synner, make me as one of thy hynde seruantes. And he gat him vp, & came vnto his father. And when he was yet a greates waye off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ranne, and fall aboute his neck, and kysed him. Then shewde the sonne vnto him: Father, I haue synned agaynst the, and be foule the. I am now in wrothy to be called thy synner. But thy fader sayde unto his seruantes: Brynge forth the best garment, and putte it upon him, and geue hym a ryng vpon his hande, and shooe on his fete, and brynge hither a fewe calfes, and byllie, let vs eate and be merie: for thus my sonne wanne this, and in a lyne agayne he was lost, and is founde. And they beganne to be merie.

¶ But the elder sonne was in the fildes. And when he came, and drewe nye to the house, he herde by nyghtingale and daunsyng, and called one of the seruantes vnto him, and aske hym what he doeth. He sayde vnto him: Thy brother is come, and thy fader hath slayne a fyd calf, because he hath receaued him safe and sounde. Then was he angry, and woulde not go in. Then wente his fader out, and prayed him. But he answered, and sayde vnto his fader: Lo, thus many yeres haue I done the seruyce, neither haue I yett taken thy commaundement, and thou gauest me neuer one bydd, & I mighte make merry with my frendes. But now that thou art come, which deuoured my goodes with harlots, thou hast slayne a fewe calfes. But he sayde vnto him: My sonne, thou art alwaye with me, and all that is myne, is thine: thou shouldest be merie and glad, for this thy brother was dead, and is alnye agayne: he was lost, and is founde agayne.

The XVI. Chapter.

¶ He sayde also vnto his disciples: There was a certain eiche man, which had a steward, that was accused vnto him, that he had wasted his goodes. And he called hym, and sayde vnto him: How is it, that I heare this of thee? geue a rekenyng of thy stewardshipe, for thou mayest be no longer steward. The steward sayde vnto him: What shal I do? My lordes lacke awaye the stewardshipe fro me. I amne byrgge, and to begge I am ashamed. I wote what I wil do, that whil I am put out of the stewardshipe, they may receaue me into the house.

And he called vnto hy all his lordes heuens, and sayde vnto the first: How much twest thou vnto my lord? He sayde: an hundred measures of oyle. And he sayde: Take & byll, fynde me quyetly, & wyte thyself. Then sayde he vnto another: How much owest thou? He sayde: an hundred quarters of wheat. And he sayde vnto him: Take thy byll, and wyte thyself. And the thirde comended the unrighteous steward, because he had done wylfully. For the children of this world are in this wyse: they seeke to be rich, and they come to poore. And I say vnto you: Make you frendes with the unrighteous Mammon, for whan ye shal haue neede, they may receaue you in to euerylasting Tabernacles.

¶ He that is faithfull in the least, is faithfull also in much: and he that is unrighteous in the least, is unrighteous also in much. If ye then haue not bene faithfull in the unrighteous Mammon, how wil ye be true in that which is true? And if ye haue not bene faithfull in another mans benefite, how wil ye geue you that which is your owne?

¶ A seruant can serue two masters: for either he shal hate the one, and loue the other: or els he shal leane to the one, and despise the other. Ye can not serue God and Mammon.

¶ All these thinges herde the pharisees, which were couetous, and they mocked hy. And he sayde vnto them: Ye are they that iustifie yor selues before men, but God troweth youre herres. For & which is by an ymaginacion, is an abomination before God.

¶ The lame and y prophetes prophesied vnto Ihon, and from that tyme forth in & Matthee the kyngdome of God preached the son of wyllence. But easier is it, for heauen and earth to pershe, then one tittle of & I lamer to fall. Who so ener putteth awaye his wyfe, & marrieth another, breaketh matrimony: and he that emaneth her which is deuorced fro his husbande, breaketh wedlocke also.

¶ There was a certayne eiche man, which clothed him self with purple and costly linnen, and fared deliciously every daye. And there was a poore man named Lazarus, which laye vnder the gate full of sores, and desyred to be fylled with the crommes, that fell from the rich mans table. There came the dogges, and licked his sores. And it fortuned, that the poore man dyed, and was carryed of the angels in co Abrahams bosom. The rich man dyed also, and was buried.

¶ Now when he was in the hell, he lift vp his eyes in the payne, and sawe Abraham a father of, and Lazarus in his bosom: and he cryed, and sayde: Fader Abraham, haue mercy vpon me, and sende Lazarus, that he maye byppe the tippie of his fyngre in water, & coole my tonge: for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham sayde: Remembere thou me, & thou hast receaued good in this life, & com

trary wyse Lazarus receaved well. But now is he comforted, and eþon are comforted. And beside all this, there is a greater hope set between us and you: so þat they which wolde go downe from hence vnto you, can not: neither maye they passe ouer from thence vnto vs.

Then sayde he: I pray the eþen father, that eþon wylt sende him vnto my fathers house, for I haue yett fyne brethren, that he maye warne them, lest they also come in on this place of tōtēment. Abrahams sayde vnto him: They haue I Ioseph and the prophetes, for them heare them. But he sayde: I say father Abrahams, but yf one write vnto them fro the dead, they wolde do permannent. Wherevnto he sayde vnto him: If they heare not I Ioseph & the prophetes, eþen shal they not beleue also, though one rise agayne fro the dead.

The XVII. Chapter.

Ghe sayde vnto his disciples: It is impossible that offences shulde not come: but woe vnto him by whom they come: It were better for him, that a millstone were hangd aboute his neck, and he cast in to the see, then that he shulde offende one of these litle ones. Take heed to your selves. If thy brother trespass agaynst the, rebuke him: and yf he amende, forgive him. And though he trespasse agaynst the seuenth tyme in a daye, and come seuen tymes in a daye to yf agayne, and saye: I reþente my self, forgive him.

And the Apostles sayde vnto yf LORD E: Inuocace aue sayth. The LORD E sayde: If ye haue faith as a grayne of mustarde seed, and saye vnto this Molbergere: Plucke thy self up by the roces, and place thy self in the see, it shalbe obeyed vnto you. Which of you is it, that hath a seruante, which ploweth, or feedeth the cattell? whā he commeth home from yf fildes, that he tūl saye vnto him: Go so ydly, and sit the downe to meate? Is it not thus? that he sayeth vnto him: I tūl be ready, that I maye suppe, gytte up thy self, and serue me, tyl I haue eaten and dronken, a fere vnto: shal eþon ease and drynt also. Thanke he the same seruante also, because he dyd eþat was commaunded him: I trowe not. So like wyse ye, whā ye haue done all eþat is commaunded you, saye: We are vnprofitable seruantes, we haue done eþat we were bounde to do.

And it fortuned, whā he toke his journey towarde Ierusalem, he wente the waye the myddest of Samaria and Galile. And as he came in to a towne, there met him ten leprouous men, which stode a farte of, and lefte up their voyce, and sayde: Iesus master, haue mercy vpon vs. And whā he sawe them, he sayde vnto the: Woe, and shewet you selfe vnto yf pastes. And it came to passe, as they wente, they were cleansed. And one of them whā he sawe that he was cleansed, he tūnd backe agayne, and prayd God much loue to ye, and fell downe on his face at his feet, and gaue him thankes. And the same was a Samaritan. Iesus answered and saide: Woe there not ten cleansed? Woe where are thes nyny? There were cle none founde, that turned agayne, and gaue God the prayse, save onely this stranger. And he sayde vnto him: Arise, go thy waye, thy faith hath made yf whole.

But whā he was demanded of yf pharisees: Whā cometh the kyngdome of God? he answered them, and sayde: The kyngdome of God cometh not much outwardly appearaunce, neither shal it be sayde so, here it is: or thē. It is, I saye to you, þat kyngdome of God is in ward in you.

And he sayde to the disciples: Thereye shal come, whā ye shal desire to se anebye of the sonne of man, and shal see it. And they shal saye vnto you: See here. Se thes. So not ye, neither followe, for as the lighte nynyng syneth aboue a storme the heauen, and lyghteth ouer all eþat is vnder the heauē, so shal the sonne of mā be in his daye. But first must he suffer many thynges, and be despised of this generacion.

And as it came to passe in the tyme of I Ioseph shal it come to passe also in yf daye of the sonne of man. They are, they beareth, they married, and were married, euen vnto yf daye hat I Ioseph wente in to the Arke, and yf fende came, and destroyed them all.

Likewyse also as it came to passe in the tyme of Noe, they are, they beareth, they be bought, they solde, they planned, they builded. But euen the same daye eþat Noe was re out of Sodome, it rained fyny and byrstone from heauē, and destroyed eþen all. Al fix this manner also shal it go, in the daye whā the sonne of man shal appeare.

In eþat daye, who shal sta vpon the roff, and his stuffe in yf howse, let him not come downe to fetch it: Likewise he eþat is in the fildes, let him not turne backe, for it eþat is to hynde him. Remembre, I ower wyse. Woe so euer goeth a home to see his lyste, shal it be: an d woe so euer shal losse it, shal it be.

I saye vnto you: In yf night shal it be he upon one bed, the one shalbe receaved, the other shalbe forsaken. Two shalbe geyned together, the one shalbe receaved, the other shalbe forsaken. And they answered, and sayde unto him: Where is our LORD? He sayd unto them: Where so ever y^e deed carcase is, there wil y^e Eagles be gathered together.

The XVIII. Chapter.

¶ He tolde them a similitude, signifying, y^e men oughte allwayes to praye, for we knowe leaue of, & sayde: There was a cite in a cite, which feared not God, and stood in awe of no man. And in the same cite there was a wetherman, which came vnto him, and sayde: deliuer me fro myne adversary. And he wolden not in grace wth hysle. But afterwards he thoughte within himself: Though I feare not God, & stande in awe of no man, yet feyre this wetherman in so importune upon me. I wil deliuer her, lest she come at the last, and laye vpon me.

Then sayde the LORD: I teache what y^e ungracious widge sayeth. But shall not God also deliuer his choyse, that crye vnto hyde and night, though he differe the? Y^e saye vnto you: he shal deliuer them, and thus shal y^e. Tenetpthes, when the sonne of man cometh, suppose ye, that he shal synchely vpon carter?

¶ And vnto certayne which trusted in the floure, that they were perfecte, and despyed wh^o they spake this synemore: There wente up two men in to the temple, to praye: the one a pharise, the other a publican. The pharise stood, and prayed by himself a fter this maner: I thank the God, that I am not as other men, robbers, vngrateous, adulterers, as this publican. I fast twyse in the weke, I geue the tithes of all that I haue. And the publican stood a farte of, and wolde me lift up his eyes to heauen, but smote vpon his brest, and sayde: God be thou mercifull vnto me sinner. I tell you: This man wente home in to his house iustified in oue of the other. For who so exalteth himself, shalbe broughte lowe: and he that humbly himself, shalbe exalted.

¶ They broughte yonge children also vnto him, that he shoulde touch them. But when the disciples sawe that, they rebuked them. But wh^o Jesus called them vnto him, and sayde: Suffre childre to come vnto me, and forbide the not, for of such is y^e kyngdome of God. Verily I saye vnto you: Whoso receaueth not y^e kyngdome of God as a child, shal not enter therein.

Good master, what must I do, that I maye enherite euersyngle life? But Jesus sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but God only. Thou knowest the commaundementes: Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steale: Thou shalt not beare false te ymself: Thou oost the father and y^e mother. But he sayde: All these haue I kept from my yowthe up. What shal I yette do, that he shal vnto him: Yet lackst thou one thing, sell all that thou hast, and geue it vnto y^e poore, and thou shalt haue a treasure in heauen, and comest folowe me. When he herde that, he was sory, for he was very rich.

¶ When Jesus sawe that he was sory, he sayde: How hardy shal the ryche come in to the kyngdome of God? It is easyer for a camel to go thorow the eye of a needle, the for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of God. Then sayde they y^e herde that: Who can then be saved? But he sayde: Iste whiche is vnpossible with man, is possible with God.

¶ Then sayde Peter: Beholde, we haue forsak all, and folowed the. He sayde vnto this: Verily I saye vnto you: There is no man y^e forsaketh house, & brethren, & sisters, & children, for the kyngdome of God as this, which shal not receaue much more in this tyme, and euersyngle life in the to come.

¶ And it came to passe, when he came nye vnto Iericho, there sat one blynde by the waye, and begged. And when he heide the people passe by, he cryed what it was. Then sayde they vnto him, that Jesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, and sayde: Iesu thou sonne of David haue mercy vpon me. But the people that wente before, rebuked him, that he shoulde holde his tounge. Then thes he cryed moche more: I thou sonne of David haue mercy vpon me. Iesu stood still, & commaunded hi to be broughte vnto hy. And when he was comen naye, he cryed vnto sayde: What wilt thoue that I do vnto the? he sayde: LORD, that I may receiue my sight. And Iesus saye vnto him: Because thy sighte, thy faith hath saued the. And immediately he saued, and folowed him, & praised God. And all the people that sawe it, gaue God the praise.

The XIX. Chapter.

ANd he entered in, and wente thorow Jericho: wholde, there was a man named Zachas, which was a ruler of the publicans, and was riche, and despyed to se Iesus whar he shulde be, and he coulde not for the people, for he was lorde of shacars. And he came before, and clymmed up in to a mylde figge tre, that he might se him, for he shulde come þ waye. And when Iesus came to the same place, he looked vp, and saue him, and sayde vnto him: Zachas, comdome hastily, for today must I come in to thy house. And he came dorent hastily, and receaued him - with ioye. When they saue that, they murmured all, and sayde, þ he was gone in, to a synner.

ad. 1. 1

Mat. 23. 14

For whyle they hardened, he tolde a fable vnto the people, because he was nye vnto Jerusalem, and because theye thought, that the Kyngdome of God shulde appere immediately. And he sayde: A certain noble mā wete in to a farre countre, to receiue hit a kyngdome, and then to come agayne. This man called ten of his seruantes, and deliuered them ten pounde, and sayde vnto them: Occupy, till I come agayne. But his tithyn had him, and sent a message after him, and sayde: We wil not haue this man to raigne ouer vs.

Mat. 23. 14

And he foretold when he came agayne, after that he had receaued the Kyngdome, he shal call fowre seruantes, vnto whom he had geue his money, þ he might knowe, whar every one had done. Then came the first and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath moune ten pounde. And he sayde vnto him: Well thou good seruante, for so much as thou hast bene faithfull in the least, thou shalt haue auenture ouer ten cienes. The seconde came also, and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath moune ten fyue pounde. And to him he sayde: And thou shalt be ouer fyue cienes. And yf thine came, and sayde: Lo syr, here is thy pounde, which I haue kepte in a napkin. I was afrayed of the, for thou art an harde man, thou takest vp þ thou hast not layed downe, and reapest that thou hast not sowne. he sayde vnto him: O thou seruant much to luge I the thou couldest seruante. And the third sayde that I am an harde man, resting vp that I dyd not do mine, and reaping that I dyd not sowe: Wharfor thou hast thou not deliuered my money to the exchange banker? And at my commynge might I haue receyued myne auncient with auncage.

And he sayde vnto them that stode by: Take yf pounde from him, and geue it vnto him that hath ten pounde. And they sayde vnto him: Syr, he hath ten pounde already. But I saye vnto you: Whoeuer hath vnto him shal be geue: but from him that hath not, shal be taken awaye tye ten that he hath. As for those myne enemies, which wolde not that I shulde raigne ouer them, bringe them hither, and slaye them before me. And when he had thus sayde, he wote on fowre and, and rote his iourney up to Jerusalem.

And it foretold when he came nye to Bethphage and Bethany vnto mount Oliuere, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde: Go in to the towne that lyeth ouer against you, and asseue as ye are come in, ye shal fynde a foale cych, wherof you neuer man see, lorde it, and bringe it hither. And yf ye see anye other foale, ye lorde it, saye thus vnto him. The LORD hath nedet herof.

And they that were sent, wete their moye and founde euen as he had sayde. Doe whiche they lorde yf foale, the owners thereof sayde vnto the: Why lorde ye the foale? They sayde: The LORD hath nedet herof. And they broughte it vnto Iesus, and cast the clothes vnto the foale, and set Iesus thereon. And when he wote, they spake the same wordes in the waye.

And when he wote dorent fro mount Oliuere, yf wholde multitude of his disciples began to praye God much loude voice, ouer all the miracles that they had don, and sayde: Blessed be he, that cometh a Kyng in the name of the LORD. Peace be heauen, and praye in the heighe. And som of the pharises amonge the people sayde to him: Master, rebuke thy disciples. And he answered and sayde vnto them: I tel you, yf this holde their peace, ye shal not be able to.

And whan he was come neare, he beheld the cite, and wepte vpon it, and sayde: if thou knowest what were for thy peace, thou shouldest receiue it euermore in this present daye of thine. But now is it hid from thine eyes.
For the tyme shal come vpon thee, that thine enemies shal caste vp a bulke aboute thee, and aboute thy children with thee, and besiege y, and kepe the in an enciryle, and make the cum with the gentiles, and shal not leane make one stone vpon another, because thou hast not knowne thy tyme, wherein thou hast not receiued.

And he wente into the temple, and began to saye vnto them that boughte and solde them, and sayde vnto them: Iesus sayeth vnto y: whye boote is in boote of prayer, but ye ha remembere a beene of mitchers. And he canghe dayle in the temple, but the hye prie stes and the scribes and the chiefe of y^e pro ple wente aboute to destroye him, and founde none, what to do vnto him. For all the peo ple feared y him, and gaue him audience.

The XX. chapter.

And it fortuned one of these dayes, whan he canghe the people in the te mple, and preached the Gospel, the hye prie and scribes came to him with the elders, and spake vnto him, and sayde: Tell vs, by what auctorite dost thou these thin gs: Or wher gaue the this auctorite: But he answered, & sayde vnto the: I will aske you aunswere also, tell me: The baptisme of Ihs was it from heauen, or of men: But they thought in them selues, and sayde: We see hye, from heauen, then shal he saye: Why do ye not the beloue him: And yf we saye, of men, then shal all the people stone vs, for they be perswaded, that Ihs is a prophet.
And they answered, that they coulde not tell, whence it was. And Iesus sayde vnto them: I tell y^e tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thinges.

And he beganne to tell the people his sy mbole: At certayne man planted a vnyar de, and let it out vnto hye admen, and wen thanslyf in to a straunge countre for a grea tynale. And whan his tyme was come, he sent a seruante to the husbandmen, that they might gaue him of the frute of the vnyar de. But the husbandmen ber him, and sent him away emptye. And a gayne he sent yet another seruante, but they ber him also, and meared him shamefully, & sent him awaye emptye. And beyndes this, he sent the thirde to: they tooke him also, and chafed him te. Then sayde the lord of the vnyar de:

What shal I do: I will sende my dearest son, ne, peradventure they will stonde in awe of him, whan they se him.

But whan the husbandmen men sawe the sonne, they thought in the: seke vs, and sayde: This is the heire, come, let vs kill him, for the inheritance maye be oure. And they chast him out of the vnyar de, and strew him.
What shal now the lord of the vnyar de do vnto them: the shal come, and destroye the host husbandmen, and let out his vnyar de vnto othe. Whan they herde that, they sayde: God forbid.

But he beheld the, and sayde: What is this then that in myrten: The same stone which the buylders refused, is become the head corner stone: Whoso ever fallith vpon this stone, shal be broken in smiter. But vpon whoso so ever he falleth, he shal grinde him to powder. And the hye pries and scribes wente aboute to laye handes vpon him the same houre, and they feared the people: for they perceaued, that he had spokt this sym bole ago ynto them.

And they watched hye, & sent forth spyes, which shoulde saye the selues perfecte, that they might take him in his wordes, to deli uer him: and in the pauer, and auctorite of y beles. And they ased him, & sayde: Master, we knowe that thou sayest & teachest righte, and regardest the outwode of people, as if of no man, but teachest the waye of God truly.
In it launfull, that we geue tribute vnto the emperoure, or not: But he perceaued their traferye, and sayde vnto them: Whye aske ye me: Set not mee the peny. Whose ymage and superscripcion hath it: They aswered, and sayde: The emperours. Then sayde he vnto them: Geue the vnto the emperoure, that which is the emperours: & vnto God, that which is Gods. And they coulde not re prieue his wordes before the people, and mar uelled at his answere, and held their peace.

Then came vnto him certayne of the Sa duces (which holde that there is no restitu cion) and ased him, and sayde: Master, I see more vnto vs, yf any man ber bye hauynge a wife, and dyeth withoute childen, then shal his brother take his wife, and ray for seven had her to wife. And Iesus answered and saide unto them: The child of this world marry, & acc marry, but they shall be wo: they can not marry that world and the resurrection from the dead, shall neither marry nor be married, for they can dye nomore. For they are like unto the angels, and are the children of God, in so much as they are children of the resurrection.

But that the dead rise againe, hath Moyses also signified beynde the bush, when he called the LORD, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. But God is not a God of the dead but of the livinge, for they live all unto him. Then answered certaine of the scribes, and sayde: Master, thou haist sayde well. And from that tyme forth they durst aske him no more questions.

But he sayde unto them: How saye they that Christ is David sonne? And David himself sayeth as the booke of the psalmes: The LORD sayde unto my LORD: Sit thou on my ryghte hande, till I make thine enemies thy sore foete. David calleth him LORD, he was he then his sonne?

How whyle all the people gave audience, he sayde unto his disciples: Bewarre of the scribes, which will go in longe garmettes, and love to be saluted upon the market, and desire to be hyght in the synagoges, and at the table. For they desire to be called teachers and that under a colour of longer praynges: These shall receave the greater damnacion.

The XXI. Chapter.

As he was led up, and behalfe of riches, how they put in their offeringes in to the Goddes chest. He sawe also a poore widowe, which put in two mites, and he sayde: Verely I saye unto you. This poore widowe hath put in more the they all. For these all have of their excess put in more the offeringe of God, but she of her poverte hath put in all her livinge that she had.

And whil some spake of the temple, that it was builded with goodly stones and Jewels, he saide: The time shall come, when in of all this that ye see, there shall not be left one stone upon another, which shall not be broken downe. They aske him, and sayde: Master, when shall these be? And what shall be the signes, when these shall come to passe? He sayde: Take heede, that ye be not deceived: For many shall come in my name, and saye, I am he, & the tyme is come nigh by. Selovethem not.

But when ye heare of warres and insurrections, be not ye a frayd, for soch must come to passe, but the ende is not yet there. Then sayde he unto them: For people shall rise & gagest another, and one shall be agaynst another, & shall be great earthquakes here and there, pestilence, and hunger, and fearfull thinges, and great troubles shall there be: but before all these, they shall laye handes upon you, and persecute you, and deliver you up in to their synagoges and persons, and bringe you before thynges & princes for my names sake. But when these shall happen unto you for a wyfenes sake, be not ye afraid in your hearts, that ye take no thinge, how ye shall answer: for I will give you mouth & wisdom, agaynst all the which all your adversaries shall not be able to speake nor to resist. But ye shall be delivered upen of your elders, brethren, & kinsfolkes and friends, and some of you shall they put unto death, and ye shall be hated of every man for my names sake, and yet shall not one haire of your head be perished. Sober fast youre soules with patience.

But when ye shall see Jerusalem besegged with on hooff, when understande, that the desolacion of it wyl be. Then let them which be in Jerusalem, flye into the mountaynes, and let such as be in the myddes thereof depart out: and let such as be in the countrees, not come therein. For these are the dayes of vengeance, that every thinge which is written, maye be fulfilled. But two unto them that are with child, and to them that put sucke in these dayes: for there shall be great trouble upon earth, and wrath over this people, and they shall kill the chosen of the sword, and be led captives among all nations. And Jerusalem shall be trodden downe of the heathen, until the tyme of the end then be fulfilled.

And there shall be tokens in the sunne and moone, and starres, and upon the people shall be in such perplexite, that they shall not cell which waye to turne them selves. And they shall see the warre a shall raise, and men shall pynne awaye for feare, and in lookinge a fere the thinges which shall come uppon earth. For even the very poweres of the airen shall moue.

And then shall they see the sonne of man commynge in the cloudes with power and greates glory. But when these thinges begynne to come to passe, be ye up, and lift up your heades, for your redemption draweth nye.

And he tolde them a synbulode: Behol in the fygge tre, and all the trees, whā they sop shewe fāth chē budbes, yest by them, and perceiue, that Sommes is now at han de, so likewise ye, whā ye se all these thin gs come so passe, be sure that the kyngdome of God is nye. Verely I saye vnto you: that generall shal not passe, tyll all be ful filled, heauen and earth shal passe, but my knedes shal not passe.

But as he had vnto you seuen, that ye haue be not overlade with excess of eatynge and rich dronennes, and with talkynge of things be for bynne, and so this daye co me vnto you vnwares. For as a snare shal come on all them that dwell vpon earth.

Watche therfore cōtynually, and praye, that ye maye be worthy to escape all this that shal come, & to stāde before yf some asmar.

And as the daye tyme be taughte in the temple, but in the night season he went out ababode all night vpon mounte Olīuete.
And all the people gat them vp early vnto him in the temple, to hear hym.

The XXXI. Chapter.

The feast of assize was (which is cal led Easter) nēe nye. And yf hye pīe feste and Scrybes southe hem they ought put him to death, and were afrayed of the people. But Scauntau entered in to Iudas, named Ieremoth (whiche was of yf nombre of yf treuolue) and he wrote his waye, and talked with the hye priestes and with yf officia, how he wolde betraye hym vnto them. And they were glad, and promised to giue hym money. And he consented, & soughte opportunitye, yf he myght betraye hym withoute any innocēce.

Then came yf daye of sette bled, wherein the Easter lambe must be offered. And he sent Peter and Ihan, and sayde: Go youre waye, prepare ye the Easter lambe, that is mye eate. And they sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou, that we prepare it? He saide vnto them: Beholde, whā ye come into yf cite, there shal in eate you a man, bearinge a pic tin of water, folow hym in to the house yf he crotch in, and saye vnto the good man of the house: The master sendeth yf wordet vnto yf: yf nesthouse, wherein I maye eate the Easter lābe with my disciples. And he shal shewe you a greates pailour pained.
Ther wente theyr waye, and founde as he had sayde vnto them, and made ready the pailour lābe.

And whā the houre came, he sat him doun, and the twelue Apostles with hym, and he sayde vnto them: I haue herely de sired to eate this lābe after lābe with you befo re I suffre. For I saye vnto you: that haue sought I wil eate nomore ther of, tyll it be ful filled in the kyngdome of God. And he rote the cuppe, gaue chāntes, and sayde: Take this and deuynge it amonge you. For I saye vnto you: I wil not drynke of the fawce of yf wyne, vntill the kyngdome of God come.

And he rote the bled, gaue chāntes, and drake it, and gaue it them, and sayde: This is my body, which shalbe giuen for you.

This do in the remembrance of me. Like wise also the cuppe, a fter they had supped, and sayde: This cuppe is the new Testa ment in my bloude, which shalbe shed for you.

But lo, the hande of hym that betrayeth me, is with me on the table. And the sonne of man trulye goeth forth, as it is appoynt ed. But wo vnto that man, by whom he is betrayed. And they beganne to aspe amonge them selues, which of them it shalbe, that shalbe do this.

There rose a strife also amonge the, which of them sholde be take for the greatest. But he sayde vnto them: The kynges of yf wold be haue domynion ouer yf people, and they that haue rule ouer the, are also graciously lordes.

But ye shal not be so: But the grea test amonge you, shalbe as the yongest, and the chiefe, as a seruant. For whiche is the greatest: he that syteth at the table, or he that stureth? Ia not he that syteth at the table? But I am amonge you as a mynister.

So for you, ye are they, that haue byood of me in my temptacions. And I wil appoynt e the kyngdome vnto you, even as my fa ther hath appoynted me, that ye maye eate and drynke at my table in my kyngdome, and ye uparfaices, and indige the emulsi tyes of Ihsac.

But the LORDE sayde: Simon Simon, beholde, Sathan hath desired a fter you, that he might suffre you euen as hebeate: but I haue prayed for yf, that thou fāth fāth not.
And whā thou art conuerted, strength thy knechten. And he sayde vnto him: LORDE, I am readye to go with thee in to prison, and in to death. I testifye he sayde: Peter, I saye vnto thee: The cock shal not crowe this daye, tyll thou haue thrise denyed, yf thou knowest me.

And he sayde vnto them: Whā I fast you with oute wallet, withoute scryppe, and withoute shoes, ledde ye any thinge? They sayde: No. Then sayde he vnto them: But now, he that hath a wallet, let him take it op, likewise also the scrpye. But he that hath receyved him ill his coat, & bre a swee de. For I saye unto you: Ye must yet be fulfilled on me, that is sayde. He was count ed a monge the euill doers. For soke what is myen of me, & he hath an ende. But they sayde: LORDE, beholde, here are two foot des. He sayde vnto the: Ye sa ymough.

And he wente que (as he was wonte) vnto moote of Olney. But his disciples folowed him vnto the same place. And when he came thither, he sayde vnto the: Pray, that ye fall not in to temptation. And he gat him from thence aboute a stone cast, and knyled doune, prayyng, & sayde: Father, if thou wilt, take awaye this cuppe fro me: Yettuer- lesse, not my wyll, but thyn be fulfilled.

And there appeared vnto him an angell fro heauen, and comforted him. And it came so, that he was led with beaue, and prayed the longer. And his sweate was like dropes of a stone, cominge downe to the grounde. And he rose up fro praye, and came to his disciples, and founde them sleepinge for troy- ness, and sayde vnto them: What slepe ye? rise up and praye, that ye fall not in to tem- ptation.

But whyle he yet spake, beholde, the mul- titude, and one of the twelue called Judas came before them, and he came nye vnto Jesus, to kysse him. But Jesus sayde vnto him: Judas, betrayest thou the sonne of ma- nyth a kysse? Whan they that were aboute him, sawe what wolde folowe, they sayde vnto him: LORDE, shal we smyte with the swerde? And one of thei strok a ieruaite of y hye prestes, & smote of his eare. But Jesus answered, and sayde: Suffre the thus farre soch. And he touched his eare, & healed him.

But Jesus sayde vnto the prestes and rulers of the temple, and to the elders that were come vnto him: Ye are come soch as it were to a murderer with swerdes, & with staves. I was a daye with you in the tem- ple, and ye layed no handes vpon me. But this is youre home, and the power of daut- ness. I tuerthelisse they toke him, and led him, and brought him in to the hye prestes house. An for Peter, he folowed hya farre of.

Then knyled they a fyne in the myddes of the palace, and sat them doune together. And Peter for him doune amonge them. Then a damselfe sawe him sittinge by the light, and behelde him well, and sayde vnto him: This same was also with him. But he denyed him, and sayde: Woman, I knowe him not. And a fere o hile whyle, another sawe him, and sayde: Thou art one of them also. But Peter sayde: Man, I am not.

And aboute the space of an houre, see, another affirmed, & sayde: Verely this was with him also, for he is a Galilean. But Peter said: Woe is me now what thou sayest. And immediatly whyle he yet spake, & cod crome. And the LORDE turned him about, and loked vpon Peter. And Peter remembred the wordes of J LORDE, how he sayde vnto him: Before the cocke crome, thou shalt deny me thrise. And Peter wente out, and wepte bitterly.

The men that helde Jesus, mocke him, and stroke him, & byndfolded him, and smote him on the face, and ached him, and saye: Prophecie, who is it that smote thee? And many other blasphemies sayde they vnto him.

And when it was daye, they gathered together the elders of the people, the hye prestes and scribes, and led him up before, their counsell, and sayde: Art thou Christ? Tell vs. But he sayde vnto them: If I tell you, ye wyl not beleue: But if I asse you, ye wyl not answer me, neither wyl ye let me go. From this tyme forth shal the sonne of man sit at the right hande of the power of God. Then sayde they all: Art thou then y sonne of God? He sayde vnto them: He saye it, for I am. They sayde: What nedet at anye farther witness? We ome selues haue herde it of his owne mouth.

And the whole multitude of the ar- gis, and led him vnto Pilate, and legi- ne to accus him, and sayde: We haue founde this felow peruerfing the people, and forbydyng to geue tribute vnto the Emperoure, and sayeth, that he is Christa kynge. But Pilate ased him, and sayde: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? He answered him, and sayde: Thou sayest it. Pilate saye vnto y hye prestes and to the people: I fynde no faute in this man. But they cryed more loude, and sayde: He hath moued the people, in that he hath sayd he is the kynge of the sonde of Jewey, and hath begone at Galile vnto this place.

Whan Pilate herde mencion of Galile, he ased n farther he were of Galile. And when he perceaued that he was vnto the coten iurisdiction, he sent him to Cayphas, which was also at Jerusale in those dayes. When Cayphas sawe Jesus, he was excedyng glad, for he had longe bene desirous to take him: because he had herde moche of him, & hoped to see a miracle of hy. And Cayphas many things. Whereupon he answered nothing. The hye priefte and scribes 10 the: He haue broughte this man vnto me, as one that peruertereth the people, and be-11 heide, I haue examyned him before you, & synen the ma none of the causes, wherof ye accus him: Yet yet herode: for I sent 12 you to him, and beholde, there is broughte vpon hi nothing, that is worthy of death.

 13 Therfore wil I chaspen him, and let him 14 leue: for he must haue let one loose vnto them after the custome of the feast.

15 Then crieth the whole multitude, and say 16 be: A waye with him, and deliuer vnto vs Barabas, which for insurrectione made in the cite, and because of a murder, was cast into prison. Then called Pilate vnto them agayne, & wolde haue let Iesus loose. But they cried, and sayde: Crucifye him, Crucifye him. He sayde he vnto them, the thurde 17 was: What enill the hath he done? I fynde no cause of death in hi, therfore wil I ches-18 pen him, and let him go. But they laye still vpon him with greates crye, and requyred 19 he might be crucified. And the voyce of the and of the hye priefte peruailed.

20 And Pilate gaue sentence, that he shoulde 21 be as they requyred, and let loose vnto the, him, that for insurrectione and murder was 22 set into prison, whom they desired, but gaue Iesus ouer vnto their will. And as they 23 led him awaye, they rote one Simon of Cy-24 ren a tithy came from the felde: and layed 25 of crosse vpon him, so braye it after Iesus.

26 And there folowed him a greates multitude of people and of women, which bewayled and lamented him. But Iesus turned 27 him aboute vnto the, and sayde: Ye broughte of Iherusalem, wepe not ouer me: but wepe 28 ouer yow selues, and ouer yowre chylde. for beholde, the tyme wil come, when it shal be sayde: Blessed are the barren, and the 29 wembes that haue not borne, and the pap-30 ples that haue not conceived sucke. Then shal 31 they begynne to saye vnto the mountaynes, 32 fall vpon vs. And to the hylls: Come vs. for yf this be done to a grene tre, what shal 33 be done to the trefe?

34 And two ocher (which were myddlers) were led out also, to be put to death with him. And whā they came to y place, which is called Caluery, they crucified him with there, and therewith a myddler with him, the 35 one on the righte hande, the other on y lefte.

 But Iesus sayde: Father, for geue them, for they wote not what they do. And they par-36 ted his garmentes, and cast lottes therupon.
 And the people stode and beholde.

37 And the ierles mocked him with them, and sayde: He hath helped other, let him helpe 38 him self now, yf he be Chast of chosen of God. The ierles also mocked him, with 39 vnto him, & brought him vineger, and sayde: If thou be the kynge of the Iewes, then helpe thy self. And a booke ouer him was this 40 inscription written in the letters of Greke, Latyn, and Hebrew: This is the kynge of the Iewes.

41 And one of the myddlers that hanged there, blasphemed him, and sayde: If thou 42 be Chast, then helpe thy self and vs. Then answered the ocher, rebuked him, and sayde: 43 And thou fearest nat God also, which art yet in like dauncacion. And truly we are ches-44 in be righte, for we reuenge accordinge to oure dedes. As for this man, he hath done na-45 thinge a wyse. And he sayde vnto Iesus: LORD, remembre me, when thou commest 46 in to thy kyngdome. And Iesus sayde vnto him: Verely I saye vnto the: To daye shalt 47 thou be with me in Paradyse. And it was 48 aboute the sixth houre, and there was a dark-49 nesse ouer y whole lande vntill the nyeth 50 houre. And the Sonne was darkened, and the wayle of the temple wrote in two euen 51 echowen the myddes.

52 And Iesus cryed loude, & sayde: Father, 53 in to thy hande I commende my spere.
 And when he had so sayde, he gaue up the 54 gooff. But when the Captayne sawe what had happened, he prayed God, and sayde: 55 Verely this was a iust ma. And all the people that stode by beholde, when they sawe 56 what was done, since vpon their wifes, & turned backe agayne. But all his acqan-57 tance, and the women that had folowed him out of Galile, stode a farr of, and beholde 58 all these thinges.

59 And beholde, a mā named Ioseph, a So-60 naret, in hich was a good iust man, the 61 same had not consented vnto their coucell, and bede, which was of Arimatechia a cite of the Iewes, which same also was ayed for the 62 kyngdome of God: he wete vnto Pilate, and 63 ased the body of Iesus. And the clothe him 64 downe, wrapped him in a linnen cloth, and layed him in a common sepulchre, wherein never man was layed. And it was the daye of pre-paringe, and the Sabbath daye on.

The women that were come with him out of Galile, followed him, and beheld the Sepulchre, & how his body was layd. But they returned, and made ready the spyes & ointments. And upon the Sabbath they rested, according to the lawe.

The XIII. Chapter.

2 B Upon one of the Sabbathes very early in the morning, they came unto the Sepulchre, and brought spices which they had prepared, and carry-ng them in with the: I knowe thes they took the stone rolled away from the sepulchre, and went in: and found not the body of I ORDE Jeſu, and it happened as they were amazed therat, beholde, there ſtoode by them two men in ſpynge garments. And they were aſtayed, and ſaid downe their fear to the earth. Then ſayde they vnto the:
What ſeek ye? theſe things ſayde the brether: it is not here, he is riſen up. Remember, how he ſelde you mōt a he was ye in Gal-lee, and ſayde: The ſonne of man muſt be cruſified in ſo the fathers of Iſraell, and be crucified, and the third day riſe agayne.

And they remembred his wordes, and went to the sepulchre, and tolde all this vnto the deuen, and to all the other. Iewma the wyf Magdalene, and Iohanna, and Mary Iames, and the other with them, tolde this vnto the Apostles. And they mooued sented vnto them, as though they had bene but fablers, and they belied them too. But Peter arose, and to me to the sepulchre, and stepped in, and sawe the linnen clothes layed by themselues, and departed. And he recounted nothing himselfe that which he had haunted

23 And beholde, two of them wente the firste 24 one daye, on a conuene which was thre foute 25 furlonges from Jerusalem, whose name was 26 called efraime. And they called together 27 of all their changes, & had happened. And 28 it chaunced as they were thus late in ge 29 reasoning together, Iesus himselfe drewe 30 nye, and mette with them. And their eyes 31 were holden, that they shoulde not knowe hi 32 And he saide vnto them: Whate manner of 33 communications are these that ye haue one 34 to another as ye walk, and are asid? Then 35 answered the one, whose name was Cleo 36 phas, and he saide vnto him: We then onely 37 saie vnto at Jerusalem, not knowinge what 38 it coms to passe there in these dayes: And he sayde vnto the Whore: They saye thus hath: That of Iesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet, myghte in dede and word, before God and all y^e people, haue recey-ued a new ruler doo vnto him to the condemnation of Ierusalem, and crucified him. Now we hoped that he shulde haue deliuered Ierusalem, and by these all this, todaye is the thirde daye has this be done. And certeyn certaine women also of our company which were early at the Sepulchre, and founde no his body, came and tolde they had seene a vision of angels, which sayde be was alive.

And certeyn of them saye more truely, went vnto the sepulchre, and founde it euen as y^e women saye, but he founde they not.

And he sayde vnto thei: O ye foles and stones of herte to beleue all that the prophets haue spoken: Whyge not Chylde to dance suffred thet he ingines, and to enere in to his glorie: And he beganne at Mosis and at all the prophetas, and expounded vnto them all the scripture, that were spoken of him, And they drewe nye vnto the towne, to rechey they nede vnto, and he made so theoughly he tolde haue gone farther, And they compelled him, and sayde: A litle wyth vs, for be word comendeth nyght, and the daye is farre passed. And he wente in to tary with thei, And he cam to passe: when he came at the cable wiche he, he tolde thei thei, gaue thei eas, brake it, and gaue it them. Then men thei eyes opened, and they knewe him. And he vntyghed out of thei sight. And thei sayde, he wene thei fithes: Why now we haue burne with vs, when he called with vs by the maye, why he opened thei scripture vnto vs: And they toke vp the same howe, turned agayne to Jerusalem, and founde y cleue gathered together, and thei came to were with them, which is yode: The LORD is rysen of a crosch, and hath appeared vnto Symon. And they tolde thei he had happened by y mine, and how they founde him in hiekyng of thei bech,

But whyle they were talkinge thus, Yhesu himselfe stode in the myddes o-mong they, and sayde: Peace be wch you. But they were naffrayd, nifrayd, lepping forth they bare him a spere. And he saide vnto the Why are ye so affrayd? Is he before you? I sayd thoughten in yo' hearts: Destroyer my baddes? nay fere, it is euyn I may say. I come, and nide, for a spere bare not flesh and bones, as ye me haue. And when he thus spak, he shewed thei his hodes and his feet. And whyle they were beholdinge him, he said vnto them: be not fere, for I

There was a sent from God a man, whose name was Iohn. The same came for a wit-nesse, to beare wytnesse of y^e light, that the world might beleeve. He was not that light, but that he might beare wytnesse of y^e light. That was the true light, which lighteth all men, that come in to this wor-made by him, and y^e world knewe him not.

He came in to his owne, and his owne reme by Iesus Christ. No man hath seen God at any tyme. The onely begottne sonne which is in the bosome of the father, he hath declared the same unto us.

And this is the recorde of Iohn, when the Jewes sent pnyers and Leuites to Jerusalem, to aske him: Who art thou? And he confessed and denyed not. And he confessed, and sayde: I am not Christ. And they aske him: What then? Art thou Elias? He sayde: I am not. Art thou the prophet? And he answered: No. Then sayde they unto him: What art thou then, that we may here answer to them that send us? What sayest thou of thyself? He sayde: I am y^e voyce of a cryer in the wilderness. Make straight the way of the LORD. As a prophet he sayde.

And the yehus were sent, more of y^e pheriser. And they aske him, and sayde unto him: Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not Christ, nor Elias, nor a prophet? Iohn answered them, and sayde: I baptize with water, but there is one come in the mydd of you, whom ye knowe not. He is he that cometh after me, which was before me: whose shoe latchet I am not worthy to unloose. This was done at Bethabara beyonde Iudaea, where Iohn did baptize.

The next daye after, Iohn sawe Iesus commynge vnto him, and sayde: Beholde the labe of God, which taketh away the synne of the world. This is he, of whom I sayde unto you: Affer me cometh a man, which was before me. For he was oie eue I, and I knewe him not: but that he shal be declared in Iherusalem, therefore am I come to baptize with water.

And Iohn bare recorde, and sayde: I sawe the spere descende from heauen like unto a dove, and abode upon him. I knewe him not. But he that sent me to baptize with water, y^e same sayde unto me: Upon whom thou shalt se the spere descende, and tary still on him, the same is he, that baptizeth with the holy goost. And I sawe it, and be-re recorde, that this is the sonne of God.

The next daye after, Iohn stode agayne, and two of his disciples. And when he sawe Iesus walkynge, he sayde: Beholde the la-be of God. And two of his disciples begynned to speake, and folowed Iesus. And Iohn turned him aboute, and sawe them folowyn-ge, and sayde unto them: What see ye? They sayde unto him: Rabbi, (which is to saye, in interpretacion, Master.) Where art thou?
Iohn sayde unto them: Come and see it. They came and sawe it, and abode with him the same daye. It was aboute the tenth parte.

One of the two, which herde Iohn speake, and followed Iesus, was Andrew the brother of Symon Peter: the same founde first his brother Symon, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde Messias (which is by interpretation, a King): and brought him vnto Iesus. When Iesus behelde him, he sayde: Thou art Symon the sonne of Ionas, for thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a stone.

The next daye after, wolde Iesus go agayne into Galilee, and founde Philippe, and sayde vnto him: Follow me. Philippe was of Bethsaida the cite of Andrew and Peter. Philippe founde Tachanad, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde him, of whom Moses saith in the lawe, and the prophetes haue sayed: In whom Iesus the sonne of Joseph of Nazareth. And Tachanadell sayde vnto him: What good can come out of Nazareth? Philippe sayde vnto him: Come, and se.

Iesus saide Tachanad conynges to him, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, a righte Iacobite in whom is no guyle. Tachanad sayde vnto him: How can I come with thee? Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Before I Philippe called the, when thou wast vnder the figgetre, I saide the. Tachanad answered, and sayde vnto him: Rabbi, thou art the sonne of God, thou art the King of Israel. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Because I sayde vnto the, that I saide the vnder the figgetre, thou believest: thou shalt se yet greater thinges the these. And he sayde vnto him: Verely verely I saye vnto you, from this tyme forth shal ye se the heauen open, and the angels of God shal goe up & come downe vnto the sonne of man.

The II. Chapter.

And upon the third daye there was a marriage at Cana in Galilee, and the mother of Iesus was there. Iesus also and his disciples was called vnto the marriage. And when the wyne faileth, the mother of Iesus saide vnto him: They haue no wyne. Iesus sayde vnto her: Woman, what haue I to do with thee? My tyme cometh, and not yet. His mother sayde vnto the 3 in quillere: Whatsoeuer he sayeth vnto you, do it. There were there six water pottes of stone, that were of the purifyinge of the Iewes, every one containinge two or thre measures. Iesus sayde vnto the: Fill the water pottes with water. And they filled the vnto the brim. And he sayde vnto the: Drawe out now, & bringe vnto the Master of the feaste. And they bare it. When the master of the feaste had tasted the wyne which had bene water, and knewe not whence it came (but the mynsters that drew the water, knewe the Master of the feaste called the hyegreene, and sayde vnto him: O be ye may as the first geue us the good wyne: & when they sayd: We knowe not, the that which is waste. But thou hast kepte backe the good wyne when thou comest.

This is the first token which Iesus dyd at Cana in Galilee, and shewed his glory, and his disciples beloued on him. Afterwardes went he downe to Capernaum, he, his mother, his brethren, and his disciples, and taried not longe there.

And the Iewes Easter was at hande. And Iesus went vp to Jerusalem, and founde sycamore in the temple, those that sold oxen, shepe, and doves, and changinge of monney. And he made a scourge of small cordes, and drewe them all out of the temple with the steeple and oxen, and poured out the changinge monney, and ouerthrew the tables, and sayde vnto them that sold the doves: Take these thinges hence, and make not my fathers house an house of merchandise. His disciples remembered it, that it was written: The table of the house hath euen eatenme.

Then answered the Iewes, and sayde vnto him: What token shewest thou vnto us, that thou mayest do these thinges? Iesus answered & sayde vnto the: Destroye this temple, and in three dayes wil I see it againe. Then sayde the Iewes: Sixty & two foure yeare was this temple a buyldinge, and wilt thou see it up in three dayes? But he spake of the temple of his body. For whan he was risen againe from the dead, his disciples remembered that he thus sayde, and they beloued the scripture, and the wordes which Iesus spake.

When he was at Jerusalem at Easter in the feast, many beloued on his name, when they sawe the tokens that he dyd. But Iesus conynges not himself vnto the, so that he knewe the all, & needed not the any mans testyfyng of man, for he knewe well what was in man.

The III. Chapter.

There was a man of the pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler amonge the Iewes. The same came vnto Iesus by night, & sayde vnto him: Rabbi, we knowe not thou art come a teacher fro God: for no man can be these tokens that thou doest, except God be with him. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Verely verely I saye vnto the,

Except a man be borne a new, he can not see the kyngdome of God. Nicodemus sayde unto him, how can a man be borne, when he is olde? Can he entre into his mothers wombe, and be borne agayne? Iesus answered: Verely verely I saye unto the: Except a man be borne of water and of the spere, he can not come in to the kyngdome of God.

That which is borne of flesh, is flesh: & that which is borne of the spere, is spere. Nicodemus saide: I saye unto the: How can these things be? Iesus answered: Verely verely I saye unto the: Whosoever receiveth these things, shall not see death, but shall have life everlasting. And whosoever receiveth these things, shall not see death, but shall have life everlasting.

Nicodemus answered, and sayde unto him: How may these things be? Iesus answered, & sayde unto him: Art thou a Master in Israel, & knowest not these things? We speak of things we knowe, and thou sayest that we have sene, and yet receivest not our witness. If ye believe not when I tell you of earthly things, how shall ye believe when I speak of heavenly things?

And now a man ascendeth up in to heaven, but he that is come down from heaven (namely, the sonne of man which is in heaven). And like as Moyses lift up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the sonne of man be lift up, that whosoever believeth in him, shall not perish, but shall have everlasting life.

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only sonne, that whosoever believeth in him, shall not perish, but shall have everlasting life. For God sent not his sonne in to the world to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved by him. He that believeth on him, shall not be condemned. But he that believeth not, is condemned already, because he believeth not on the name of the only sonne of God. But this is the condemnation, that the light is come into the world, but men love darkness more than the light: for their works were evil. Whosoever doeth well, hateth the light, and cometh not to the light, that his works should not be reposed. But he that doeth the truth, cometh to the light, that his works may be knowne: for they are done in God.

Afterward came Iesus & his disciples to the founteyne of Sychar, and had his bringe there with them, and baptised. Iohn baptised also in Enon beside Salem: for there was much water there. And they came thither, and were baptised: for Iohn was not yet put in prison.

Then arose there a question among the disciples of Iohn with the Jewes about the purifying, and they came unto Iohn, and sayde unto him: Master, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, of whom thou hast witnessed, behold, he baptiseth, and many men cometh unto him. Iohn answered and sayde: A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven. Ye yourselves know, that I saye, I am not Christ, but am sent before him. He that hath the bride, is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom standeth by him, and heareth unto him, and rejoiceth greatly, that he hearth the voice of the bridegroom. This same joy of mine is now fulfilled. He must increase, but I must decrease.

He that cometh from above, is above all. He that is of the earth, is earthly, and speaketh of the earth. He that cometh from heaven, is above all, and testifieth what he hath sene & heard, and no man receiveth his witness. But he that receiveth it, hath life to his scale. That God is true. For he who God hath sent, speaketh of the word of God: for God giveth not the spere unto him, but the measure. The father loveth the sonne, and hath given him all things in to his hand. He that believeth on the sonne, hath everlasting life: he that believeth not on the sonne, shall not see the life, but the wrath of God shall come upon him.

The III. Chapter.

Now when Iesus had knowledge, that it was come to the eares of the pharisees, that Iesus made and baptised many disciples, Iohn (who before Iesus himself baptised not, but his disciples) he left the londe of Ieremy, and departed againe to Bethsai. But he must needs go thither to Samaria. Then came he in to a cite of Samaria, called Sichar, nye unto a peece of well. Iacob gave unto Joseph his sonne, that there was Jacobs well. Then when Iesus was weary of his journey, he sat by the well. And it was about the sixth houre. Then came there a woman of Samaria to drawe water. Iesus sayde unto her: Give me to drinke. For his disciples were gone their way in to a cite, nye unto there. The woman of Samaria sayde unto him: How is it that thou askest drinke of me, for thou art a Iewe, and I am a woman of Samaria? For the Iewe cometh not with the Samaritanes.

Iesus answered, and sayde unto her: I knowe the well of God, and which that sayeth unto the, geue me drynke, thou knowest as a Jew, and he wolde geue the, the water of life. The woman sayde vnto him: Sy, thou hast nothing to drawe withall, and the well is depe, from whence shalt thou then drawe water of life? Yet thou greater then our father Jacob, which gaue vs this well. And he him self saide vnto her, and his chyldeuen, and his cattell. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Who soeuer drinketh of this water, shal thurst agayne: But whosoever shal drinke of the water that I shal geue him, shal neuer be thirstie: but the water that I shal geue him, shal be in him a well of water, which springeth vp in to everlastinge life.

The woman sayde vnto him: Sy, geue me that same water, that I drinke not, wher neede to come hither to drawe. Iesus sayde vnto her: So, call chy husband, and come hither. The woman answered, and sayde vnto him: I haue no husband.

Iesus sayde vnto her: Thou hast sayde well. I haue no husband: for thou hast had fyue husbandes, and he wher thou hast now, is no chyne husband: there hast thou righte. The woman sayde vnto him: Sy, I feele that thou art a prophet. Our fathers worshipped vpon this mountayne, and, as I saye, that as Jerusalem is the place, wher men ought to worshippinge. Iesus sayde vnto her: Woman, beleue me, the tyme cometh, that ye shal neither vpon this mountayne nor at Jerusalem worshippinge the father. Ye wote not what ye worshippinge, for ye knowe what ye worshippinge, for Salouacion cometh of the Jewes. But the tyme cometh, and is now alle ready, that the true worshippes shal worshippinge the father in spirit, and in the truth: for the father will haue such so to worshippinge him. God is a spirit, and they that worshippinge him, must worshippinge in spirit and in the truth.

The woman sayde vnto him: I wote that Messias shal come, which is called Christ. When he cometh, he shal tell vs all thinges. Iesus sayde vnto her: I thee speake vnto the, art he. And in the meane season came the disciples, and they marueyled at her be talke with the woman. Yet sayde no man: What sayest thou, or what toldest thou vnto her? Then the woman let her pot stonde, and wente in to the cite, and sayde vnto the people: Come, se a man, which hath tolde me all that euer I dyd, is not he Christ?

Then wente they out of the cite, and came vnto him: In the meane whyle his disciples pursued him, and sayed: Master, rate. But he sayde vnto them: I haue meat to eate, wher ye knowe not of. Then sayde the disciples amonge them selues: Hath eny man brought him meate? Iesus sayde vnto the: My meat is this, that I do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his worke. Saye not ye yowre selues: There are yet foure monethes, and then cometh the harvest. Behold now, I saye vnto you: Iste up yowre eyes, and loke vpon the felde, for it is now ripe alle ready vnto the harvest.

And he that reapeth, receaueth remembrance, and gathereth frute to everlastinge life, that both he that soweth and he that reapeth, maye reioyce together. For hein is the prouerbe true: One soweth, another reapeth. I haue sent you to reape that, wher-on ye bestowed no laboure. Other haue laboured, and ye are come in to their laboure.

Many Samaritans of the same cite beleued in him, for the sayenge of the woman, which testified: she hath tolde me all that euer I dyd. Nowe when the Samaritans came to him, they besought him, that he wolde tary with them. And he abode there two dayes, and many mo beleued because of his wordes, and sayde vnto the woman: We beleue now hence forth, not because of thy sayenge, as we haue herde him ones els, and knowe, that this of a trouth is Christ the Sauour of the worlde.

After two dayes he departed thence, and wente in to Galile. For Iesus himself testified, that a prophet is no thinge seyd by at home. Nowe wha he came in to Galile, the Cananites receaued him, which had sent all that he dyd at Jerusalem in the feast: for they also were comethither in the feast. And Iesus came agayne vnto Cana in Galile, wher he had done the water vnto wyne.

And there was a certaine sauer, whose sonne laye sicke at Capernaum. This herde that Iesus come out of Jewry in to Galile, and wente vnto him, and besought him, that he wolde come downe, and helpe his sonne, for he laye bred sicke. And Iesus sayde vnto him: Except ye see signes and wonders, ye beleue not. The sauer sayde vnto him: Come downe sy, or eate my chylde dy. Iesus sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, thy sonne lyeth. The man beleued the wordes, that Iesus sayde vnto him, and wente his waye. And as he was goinge downe; his seruantes met him, and tolde him, and sayde: Thy childer search. Then enquired he of them the house, wherein he beganne to attende. And they sayde vnto him: Yestern-day about the ninth houre the frater left him. Then the father persecuted, that it was about the same house, wherein Iesus sayde vnto him: Thy sonne search. And he belieued with his whole house. This is now the seconde token that Iesus dyd, when he came from Ierusalem to Galilee.

The V. Chapter.

¶ Furthermore, there was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. There is at Jerusalem by the slaughter house a pole, which in Hebrew is called Bethpaze, & hath five porches, wherein laye many cattle, byrds, lambe, waterbeeds, which was ayed, when the water shoulde be used. For the angell went downe at his tyme to the pole, and stored the water. Who so ever went downe to drawe fass, after that the water was stored, if lame man made wbole, he was sooner healed: he had. And there was a man, which had beene sicke eight and thirtie yeres. When Jesus sawe him lye, & knewe that he had lye so longe, he saide unto him While thou be made wbole: Thise I amfear ed him to saye: I have no man, where the water is moved, & see me in the pole. And when I come, another steppeth downe in his steed.

Jesus sayde vnto him: Arise, take vp thy bed, and go thy waye. And in immediat the man was made whole, and toke vp his bed and wente his waye. But upon the same daye it was the Sabbath. Then sayde the Iewes vnto him that was made whole: To daye is a Sabbath, it is not lawfull for the to cary the bed. He answered them: I he that made me whole, I saye vnto me: Take vp thy bed, and go thy waye. Then said they vnto him: What man is that, which sayde vnto thee: Take vp thy bed, and go thy waye? But he that was healed, my self knowe he was for Iesus: had god him self awaie, because there was nooht people.

After wards founde Iesus him in the temple, and saide vnto him. Debedoe, eponat made whole, thyne wmo is, lest a worse thing happen vnto thee. The ma departed, and tolde the Ieu es, that it was Iesus, which had made him whole. Therefore dyd Ierres persecute Iesus, and sought to slay him, becaus he had done this tps of Sabbath.

But Jesus answered them: 'My father worketh hitherto, and I work also. Ther-for sought he the Jewes the more to slay: he saith all, that God was his father, and made him his fellow with God. The answered Jesus, and sayde vnto them: Truly saye I saye vnto you: The sonne can do nothing of himself, but that he seeth the father do.

For as muche he seeth, that he doeth of his owne. The father looueth the sonne, & hath giuen him all that he doeth, and will show him yet greater works, so that ye shall marvle. For as the father rayseth vp the dead, and maketh them liue, eue so the sonne also maketh liuing whom he will. For the father iudgeth no man: but hath giuen all iudgment vnto the sonne, that they all might honore the sonne, euen as they honour of father. Who so honoureth not the sonne, the same dishonoureth not the father, in which both sinne him.

Verily verily I say unto you: Whoso heareth my voice, and believeth on me, shall have eternal life, and shall not come into damnation, but shall have passed from death unto life.

Verely verely I have vnto youe The soure of cometh, in now al ready, yfse vnto hearts of voyce of f sonnes of Godd: and they that heare it, shall lyue. for as the feith hath life in him selfe, so life it selfe hath become vnto the sonne, so haue life in him selfe hath geue him power also to create in others because he is the sonne of God. Whanne please ye anther, for f soure of cometh, in y what all that are in f graces shall heare his voyce, and shal go forth, they that haue don good, vnto the resurrection of life: but they that haue done euill, vnto the resurrection of damnation.

I can do nothinge of my selfe. As I haue, so I iudge: my iudgement is iust. For I haue not mine owne will, but the will of the father which beareth witness. And I beare wit-nesse of my selfe, my witness is not true.
There is another that beareth witness of me, and I am sure, that the witness which he beareth of me, is true.

¶ These were Iohn, and he bare witness of the truth. As for me, I haue no record of me, but these things I say, that ye might be said: he was a burning and shynynge light, but ye wolde haue reioysed a litle in his light. ¶ These things I haue writtenne then the wynter of Iohn.
¶ See the wordes which the father hath said to synners, the same he saith which I haue writtenne of me, that the father say and growth (if not the world).

at-4 b The fader they into him: "Sy, geue us allwaye soch byt. But Iesus sayde unto thei: "I am yf dyeb of this. But that cometh not from me, but from the fader whiche me, thus neuer byt. But I haue sayde unto you, yf ye haue ferme, and yet ye beleue not. All that my fader geueth me, cometh unto me, and noth of cometh unto me, him wyll not I cast out: for I am come downe from heauyn, not to do myne awyne wyll, but the wyll of them that haue sent me.

☞ Thise is þe will of the father, which hath sense me, that of all that he hath geue me, I shulde loſt nothinge, but shalde myſe it vp again in the laſt daye. This is the wyll of him in which hath ſene me, that, who ſomer ſeyth the ſonne and beleueþ on him, haue eternaſſinge life, and I ſhal rayſe him vp

The multitude the Jewes therefore, that he sayde: I am þe bryd which is come downe from heauen, and they sayde: Is not this Jesus, Josephes sonne, whose father and mother we knowe? Howe sayeth he that, I am come downe from heauen? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: IN TRUTH NOT A MONge your selves. No man can come unto me, excepte the father which hath sent me, draw him. And I shall raise him up at the last day. It is written in the prophetes: They shall all be taught of God. Who so ever now heareth is of the father, and leaneth it, cometh unto me. For that any man hath sent the father, sure he which is of the father the same hath sent the father.

S Worthy worthy I pray unto you: he that belongeth to me, haeth euell things life. I am that bird of life. I am your fathers sin in man in this world, and ore dead. This is the bird which cometh from heauen, thine who so catcheth thereof, shalde not dye. I am that luringe bird, which came downe from heauen: Who so catcheth of this bird, shal live for ever. And the bird that I will give is my fleshy which I will geue for life of the world.

Then shewe the Jewes amonge them fellows, and sayde: How can this fellowe geue us his fleshe to eate? Iesus sayde unto thei: Verily verily I saye unto you: Whosoever eateth of this fleshe of the sonne of man and drynke his bloode, ye shall live for ever. Who so eateth my fleshe, and drynke my bloude, shall have lastinge life: and I will raise him up at the laste daye. For my fleshe is the verye flesh, and my bloude is the verye wyne. Who so eateth my flesh, and beate with my bloude, abowen all in me, and I in him. So the luywinge father bath sene me, and I lye for the fathers sake: Tensof he that catch me, shall lye for my sake. This is yf beed which is come frō heaven: Not as youre fathers ate of manna, and are deed. Gethint eateth of this beed, shall lye for ever.

The VI. Chapter.

Wherfor weente Iesus aboute in this lile, for he wolde not go aboute in Jermy, because the Jewes soughte to kill him. But the Jewes feast of Tabernacles was at hande. Therfore he his brether unto him: Come hede, and go intoe Jermy, that thy disciples also maye se thy worke, that thou doest. He answered to he openly knowe, with nothyng in secret. If they do such thinges, let them vltur for the woulde. So his auncie bretheren also beloued not in hert.

Then sayde Iesus vnto them : My tyme is not yet come, but youtre tyme is allwaye ready. The worlde can not hate you, but me it hateth : because I telle of it, that the worlde of it are enuous.

The gospell

So ye up vnto this feast, I wylI not go up yet vnto this feast, for my tyme is not yet fulfilled. When he sayde this vnto them, he deide still in Galile. But so soone as his disciples were gone up, then wente he up also vnto the feast, not openly, but as it were secretly.
Then sought he him J^herusalem at y^e feast, and sayde: Where is he? And there was a great murmur of hym amonge the people.
Some sayde: He is good. But ocher sayde: N^o he doth but discease the people. Sometimes man spake frely of him, for fcare of the Iewes.

¶ Due in the myddes of the feaste were J^he-sus up in the temple, and taughte. And the Iewes maruylled and sayde: How can he teach, seinge he hath not lerned it? J^he-sus answered them, and sayde: My doctrine is not mine, but his that hath sent me.
If any man wylI be my will, he shal knowe, whether this doctrine be of God, or no: he shal I speake of my self. He that speaketh of himself, seeketh his owne pryde: but he that seeketh the pryde of hym that sent him, the same is true, & there is no unrighteousnes in him. Thus not Moses genevy on the lawe.

¶ And none of you feareth the lawe. Why go ye aboute to kyll me? The people answered, and sayde: Thou hast the dewell, who goest aboute to kyll us? J^hesus answered and sayde: One worke have I done, and ye all murder. Moses gaue you the circumcision, (not because it cometh of Moses, but of J^he-sus).

¶ The fathers: Were do ye circumsyse a man vpon the Sabbath? If a man receiue circumcision vpon the Sabbath, that the lawe of Moses shoulde not be broken, dysdayne yethen or me, because I haue made a man every whyle whole on the Sabbath? Judge not after the vther apparenses, but iudge righteously after me.

¶ Then sayde some of them of Ierusalem:
Is not this he, who they go aboute to kyll?
And he tolde, he speaketh boldly, and they spurne hym on him. Do we not knowe indee, that he is very Christ? He rebeyde them, whence this is. But what Christ cometh, no man shal knowe: whence he is.

¶ Thus sayde J^hesus in the temple as he taughte, and sayde: Ye knowe me, and knowe I am ye knowe, and of myself I saye come, but he that sent me, is true, whom I knowenot. But I knowe him, for J^he of hym, and he hath sent me. Then sought they to take him, but no man layde handes vpon him, for his houre was not yet come.
¶ And many of the people belied on him, of S. Iohn. Ho. xliiii.

and sayde: When Christ cometh, shall he do moe tokens, then this doeth?

¶ And it came on the Pharisees eares, that y^e people murmured such thinges of him.
And the Pharisees and hye priestes sent out seruauntes, to take him. Then sayde J^hesus vnto them: I am yet a litle while with you, and then go I vnto him that hath sent me.
I shal see me, & not fynde me: and where I am, thither can ye not come. Then sayde the Iewes amonge the pharisees: Whyether wil he go, that we shal not fynde him?
Wyl he go amonge the Grekes that are scattered abrode, and teach the Grekes? Whose manner of sayings is this, that he sayeth: ye shal see me, and not fynde me: and where I am, thither can not ye come?

¶ But in the last daye which was y^e moost solempne daye of the feast, J^hesus stode up, cried, and sayde: Who so thyrsteth, let hym come vnto me, and drynke. He that believeth on me, as the scripture sayeth, out of his body shal flowe ryuers of the water of life.
(But this spake he of the spryte, which they that belied on him, shoulde receaue. Yet the holy goste so not yet there, because J^he-sus was not yet glorified.) Many of the people now when they herde this, yenge, sayde: This is a very prophet. Ocher sayde: He is Christ. But some sayde: What Christ come out of Galilee? Sayeth not the scripture, that Christ shal come of the kynde of Da-uid, and one of the towne of Bethleem, where David was? Thus was there dissension amonge the people for his sake. Some of them wolde haue taken him, but no man layde handes on him.

¶ The seruauntes came to the hye priestes and pharisees, and they sayde vnto them: Why haue ye not brought him? The seruauntes answered: Neuer man spake a such man doeth. Then answered them the pharisees: Are ye also disceaved? Doth any of the rulers or pharisees beleue on him? But the comon people, which knowe not the lawe, are cursed. Nicodemus sayde vnto them, he that came to him by nyght, which was one of them: Doth one lawe iudge any man, before it heare him, and knowe what he hath done? They answered and sayde vnto him: Art thou a Galilean also?
Search and loke, our of Galile any such no prophet. And so every man wente home.

The VIII. Chapter.

Jesus wente vnto mount Oliuete, and early in the morninge came he agayne into the temple, and all the people came vnto him. And he sat downe, and taughte them. And 3 scribes and pharisees brought vnto him a woman taken in adoultorie, and set her there openly, and sayde vnto him a lasser, this woman was taken maadourte, as the dede was doynge. Moses in the lawe commaunded vs to stone her. What sayest thou? This they sayde, to tempte him, that they might haue wherof to accuse him. But Iesus stooped downe, and wrote with his fygger vps the grounde. When whyle they continued asyngge him, he lift him self vp, and sayde vnto them: Whether is amongst you without synne, let him cast the first stone at her. And he stooped downe agayne, and wrote vpon the grounde. But when they herde that, they wente one, one after another, the eldest first, and lest Iesus alone, and the woman standinge before him. Iesus lift himself vp, and when he sawe a woman but the woman, he sayde vnto her: Woman, where are thine accusers? hath noman condemned thee? She sayde: LORD, no man. Iesus sayde: Neither do I condemne the, Go thy waye, and synne no more.

Then spake Iesus agayne vnto them, and sayde: I am the lighte of the wolde, he that followeth me, shal not walke in darknesse, but shal haue the lighte of life. Then sayde the pharisees vnto him: Thou bearest recorde of thy self, thy recorde is not true.

Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Though I beare recorde of my self, yet my recorde is true: for I knowe whence I come, and whither I go: but ye can not tell whence I come, and whither I go. Ye indyge a fater the flesh, I indyge no man: but yf I iudge, my iudgement is true: for I am not alone, but I am the father that hath sent me. Ieis myeten also in youre lawe, *chose the testimony of two men is true. I am one that beare witness of my self. And the father that sent me, beareth witness of me also. Then sayde they vnto him: Where is thy father? Iesus answered: Ye neither knowe me nor yet my father. If ye knewe me, ye shulde knowe my father also. These wordes spake Iesus vpon the Woodcheste, as he taughte in the temple. And no man este him, for his house was not yet come.

Then sayde Iesus agayne vnto them: I go my waye, and ye shal see me, and shal bye in youre synnes: whether I go, whether can mee ye come. Then sayde 3 Iewen: Whiche tyll him self then, that he sayde whether I go, whether can mee ye come? And he sayde vnto them: Ye are from beneath, I am from above: Ye are of this wolde, I am not of this wolde. Therefore haue I sayde vnto you, that ye shal dye in youre synnes. For yf ye beleue not that I am he, ye shal dye in youre synnes.

Then sayde they vnto him: Who are thou then? And Iesus sayde vnto the: That the very same thinge that I saye vnto you. I haue many thinges to saye and to wyde of you. But he that sent me, is true: and dole what I haue herde of him, that spake I before the wolde, & ombe that they vnderstonde not, that he spake of the father.

Then sayde Iesus vnto them: When ye haue life vpon anye the sonne of in an, then shal ye knowe that I am he, and that I do nothinge of my self: but as my father hath taughte me, euen so I spake. And he that sent me, is with me. The father beareth me not alone, for I do alwaies that please him. When he thus spake, many beleued on him. Then sayde Iesus vnto the Iewes, that beleued on him: If ye continue in my word, then are ye my very disciples, and ye shal knowe the truthe, and the truthe shal make you free.

Then answered they him: We are Abrahames seds, we were neuer bond to any man, how sayest thou then: Ye shal be free? Iesus answered them, and sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: Who so euer doth synne, is the seruant of synne: As for the seruant, he abydeth not in the house forever, but the sonne abydeth ever. If the sonne therefore make you free, then are ye free in dede. I knowe that ye are Abrahames seds, but ye sette vs tyll me. For my worde beareth me amongst you. I speake that I haue sene of my father, & ye do that ye haue sene of your father.

They answered, and sayde vnto him: Abraham is our father. Iesus sayde vnto them: If ye were Abrahames children, ye wolde do the dedes of Abraham. But now ye go aboute to kyll me, a man, that heuere tolde you the truthe, which I haue herde of God, this doo not Abraham. And the dedes of youre father. Then sayde they vnto him: We are not borne of fornicacion, we haue one father, euen God. Iesus sayde vnto them: If God were youre father, then wolde ye loue me. For I am preached forth, and come from God. For I am none of my self, but he hath sent me. Why knowe ye not the my speech? But because ye can not abide the hearinge of my words.

Ye are of the father the deuell, and as for the luste of your father wil ye do. The father was a murderer from the begynnyng, and abode not in the trueth: for the true thynge in him. When he speaketh a lyer, then speaketh he of his owne: for he is a lyar, and a father of the same. But because I saye the truth, ye believe me not.

Which of you can rebuke me of one synne? If I saye the trueth, why do ye not believe me? He that is of God, heareth Gods word. They that here ye not, because ye are not of God.

Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto him. Saye we not right, that thou art a Samaritan, and hast the deuell? Jesus answered. I haue no deuell, but I honour my father, and ye haue dishonoured me. I seek not my wille, but there is one that seeketh it, and indgeth. Verily verily I saye vnto you: If any man kepe my word, he shal neuer see death.

Then sayde the Jewes vnto him: Thou knowest, that thou hast the deuell. And he answered and the pharisees, and thou sayest: If any man kepe my word, he shal neuer taste of death. Art thou greater then our father Abraham: which is dead, and the pharisees are dead? Whom makest thou thy self? Jesus answered: If I prayse my self, that is my prayse nothinge. But it is my father that prayseth me, which ye saye is your God, and ye knowe he is not: but I knowe him. And if I shulde saye, I knowe him not, I shulde be a lyar, like vnto you. But I knowe him, and kepe his word.

Abraham your father was glad, that he shulde see my daye. And he sawe it, and rejoiced. Then sayde the Jewes vnto him: Thou art not yet fiftye years olde, and hast thou said Abraham? Jesus sayde vnto the: Verily verily I saye vnto you: Of enee Abraham was. I am. Then toke they up stoness to cast at him. But Jesus hyd himself, and wente one of the temple.

The ix. Chapter.

And Jesus passed by, and sawe a man that was borne blinde. And his disciples aske him, and sayde: Master, who hath synned: this, or his elders, that he was borne blinde? Jesus answered: Neither hath this synned, nor his elders, but that of God shulde be shewed on him. I must worke the workes of him that hath sent me, while it is daye. The night cometh, when no man can worke. As longe as I am in the worlde, I am the light of the worlde.

When he had thus sayde, he spat on the ground, and made claye of the spittle, and rubbed the claye on the eyes of the blinde, and sayde vnto him: Go thy waye to the pole of Syloha (which is interpreted, sent) and wash the. Then wethe he his waye and washed him, and came synging. The neighbours and they that had sene him before, that he was a begger, sayde: Is not this he that sat, and begged? Some sayde: It is he. Other sayde: he is like him. But he himself sayde: I am euen he. Then sayde they vnto him: How are thine eyes opened? He answered, and sayde: The man that is called Jesus, made claye, and anoynted myne eyes, and sayde: Go thy waye to the pole of Syloha, and wash the. I wente my waye, and washed me, and receaued my sight. Then sayde they vnto him: Where is he? He sayde: I can not tell.

Then brought they vnto the pharisees, him that a litle before was blinde. He was the Sabbath, when Jesus made the claye, and opened his eyes. Then agayne the pharisees also aske him, how he had receaued his sight. He sayde vnto the: He put claye vpon my eyes, and I washed me, and now I see.

Then sayde some of the pharisees: This man is not of God, for he keepeth not the Sabbath. But the other sayde: How can a synfull man do such tokens? And there was a strife amonge the. They sayde agayne vnto the blinde: What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He sayde: he is a prophet.

The Jewes believed not he, that he was blinde, and had receaued his sight, till they called the elders of him, that had receaued his sight, and they aske them, and sayde: Is this youre sonne, whom ye saye, was borne blinde? How doth he now? Then the elders answered them, and sayde: We knowe, that this is our sonne, in that he was borne blinde. But how he now seeth, we can not tell: or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tell. He is olde enough himself, and hath him selfe for his selfe.

Then sayde his elders, because they feared the people, they

Ch. 4

Then called they the mā agayne & was blynde, and sayde vnto him: «Great God & praye, we knowe that this man is a synner.
He answered, & sayde: Whether he be a synner or no, I can not tell: one thinge am I sure of, that I was blynde, and now I see. The sayd they vnto him agayne: What byd he vnto the: how opened he thine eyes? He answered them: I tolde you right now, he ordeyed me: What, wil ye heare it agayne? Will ye also be his disciples? Then sayed they vnto him, and sayde: Thou art his disciple. We are iurors that God shalke it. As for this fellowe, we knowe not wher he is.

Then an answerd, and sayde vnto the:
This is a marvellous thinge, that ye were not before he is, and he hath opened mine eyes. For we knowe that God heareth not synners: but yf any mā be a feare of God, and doth his will, him heareth he. Sens & weelde beganne to see he not herbe, that any man opened the eyes of one that was borne blynde. Yf this man were not of God, he could haue done nothinge. They answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou art altogether bovnt in synne, and teachest thou vs? And they thrust him out.

Jesus herbe, & they had thrust him out, and whā he had founde him, he sayde vnto him: Delicte thou ones be some of Gods answerd, and sayde: LORD, who is it, & I mighte beleue on him? Jesus sayde vnto him: Thou hast sene him, and here is, that tolde us wiche he sayde: LORD, I beleue. And he worshipped him.

And Jesus sayde: I am come to indigne in to this world, that they which see not, might see: and that they which see, might be made blynde. And some of the pharisees & iudees which him, herdetus, and sayde vnto him: We are then blynde also? Jesus sayde vnto the: Yf ye were blynde, ye shalbe haue no synne. But now that ye see, we see, therfore your synne remaineth.

The X. Chapter.

Especially saye vnto you: he & corrected: in as the dore in to the sheepfold, but synners in to the other waye, the same is a shepe & a murderer. But he that goeth in at the dore, is the shepherd of the shepe: so him of power openeth, and the shepe heare his voyce, and he calleceth his a name shepe by name, and ledeth them out. And when he heareth his name, he cometh to him, and he is voyce.

As for a stranger, they folow him not, but flye from him: for they knowe not the voyce of strangers. This pious he spake Iohn vnto them, but they understood not what he was, that he sayde vnto them.

Then sayde Jesus vnto them agayne Verily verily I say vnto you: I am the dore of the shepe. All they that are come fore in, are theye and murderers. And if shepe hardened not vnto them, I am the dore. If any man entre in by me, he shalbe safe, and shal goe in and out, and fynde pas-sure. And these cometh not, but for to steale, & and destroye. I am come, & theye mighte have life, and have it in me abundantly.

I am a good shepherd. A good shepherd searcheth his life for the shepe. And an hired man, which is not the shepherd, neither the shepe are his a name, if he see the wolfe cominge, and leaveth the shepe, and flyeth. And the wolfe catcheth & eateth the shepe. But the hired man, because he is an hired man, and careth not for the shepe. I am a good shepherd, & knowe my shepe, and am knowne of my shepe. And my father knoweth me, and I knowe my father. And I gave my life for my shepe. And I have yet other shepe, which are not of this fold, and those same must I bringe out, and they shal heare my voyce, and then shalbe one flocke and one shepherd.

Therefore both my father love me, because I leave my life, that I maye take it agayne. I knowe that he is for me, but I leave it myself. I have power to laye it, and have power to take it agayne. This commandement have I receaved of my father. That where there is division amonge the Jewes for these sayenges. Many of the sayde: he had the devill, and is madde, why heare ye him?
Other sayde: «These are not wordes of a man that is possibled. Can the devill also open the eyes of the blynde?»

It was at the dedication of the temple in Ierusalem, & was to the Jewes, and Jesus walked in. Salomons porche. The came & Iohn rode by. Iohn saide vnto him: how long dost thou make no denier? Iohn be Christ, will we plainly. Jesus answered the: I tolde you, ye beclene not. The wordes of Iohn in this name, they beare witness of me. And ye beleue not, because ye are not of my shepe. As I sayde vnto you. My shepe heare my voyce, & I knowe the, & they folow me. And I gave the an everlasting life, & they shal not perishe, and none shal take the out of my hande. My father which gave the me, is greater then all: & no man is able to take then out of my fathers hande. And the fathers are one. Then the Iesus take vp stone againe, to stone him. Iesus answered the Iherusalem good workers haue I

The Iewes answered he, and sayde: For the good worke sake thou stone the not, but for the blasphemy: and because thou beyn a man, makest thyself God. Iesus answered the: Is it not wyrtzen in youre lawe: I haue sayde, He are Goddes: If he call them Goddes, vnto whom the worde of God came:
the scripture can not be broken: saye ye the same hi, wher I father hath sanctified him in to: I woulde thou blasphemest God, because I saye: I am I some of God: If I do not: I woulde of my father, beleue me not because I do the, the (if ye beleue not me) ye beleue I woulde, I ye maye knowe: I beleue I the father in me, I in I father.

They were aboute agayne to take him, but he escaped out of thei handes, and went awaye agayne beyode Iordane, into I place where Ihs had baptysed before, and there he abode. And many came to hi, and sayde: Ihs dyd no toke, but all I Iohn spake of this man, is true. And many beleued on him thence.

The XI. Chapter.

Here laye one secte, named Lazarus of Bethania, in I to wme of I Marye his sister I Martha. Ie was I Marye which anoynted I LORD with oymment, and kysed his feete with his heare, whos brother I Lazarus laye sicke. Ihs sent his sisters vnto hi, to saye: LORD, behold he, wher thou louest thy sister. Wher Iesus heide the, he sayde: This sicknesse is not vnto death, but for the paysse of God, I the some of God maye be paysed there the wme. Iesus loved I Martha his sister, I Lazarus. And wher he heide the, he was sicke, he abode two dayes in I place where he was.

After worde sayde he vnto his disciples: Let vs go agayne to I Jherusalem. His disciples sayde vnto him: Master, lately wolde the Iewes haue stoned the, and thou go the-ther agayne. Iesus answered: There there not trouble honore in I daye: he I woulde chyn the daye, stoned the not, for he seeketh I lighte of the worlde. But he that maketh in the nighte, his lighte: for there is no lighte in him.

This he spake, and after worde sayde he vnto the: Lazarus o slepe, slepe, but I go to wake him out of slepe. The sayde his disciples: LORD, if he slepe, he shal not well though he slewe. Iesus spake of his death, but they thought he had spok of I slepe.

by slepe. The sayde Iesus vnto the plaudy: Lazarus is dead, and I am glad for yf sake, I I was not there, that ye maye beleue. The wertheles he go vnto hi. The sayde I Thomas (which is called Didymus) vnto I disciples: Let vs go also, I we maye dye with hi.

The came Iesus, I sonde I he had Iohn in I graue foure dayes alleady. And Iohn was nye vnto Iherusalem, aboute fiftene forth gen. And many of the Iewes were come to I Martha and I Mary, to comfort the ouer their brother. Now wher I Martha herde I Iesus came, she went to meete him. And I Marye sat still at home.

The sayde I Martha vnto Iesus: LORD, if thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene dead. But neuertheles I knowe also, whar thou art of God: that God wyl geuente the. Iesus sayde vnto her: Thy brother shal rise agayne. I Martha sayde vnto hi: I knowe, I he shal rise agayne in the resurreccion at I laste daye. Iesus saide vnto her: I am the resurreccion and the life: he I beleueth on me, shal lyue, though he were dead alleady: and whosomere lyeth and beleueth on me, shal neuer dye. Belueth thou this: The saide vnto him: Yee LORD, I beleue, the thou art I Christ the some of God, which shoulde come in to the worlde. And wher she had sayde this, she wept. Ie maye I called I Marye her sister secret, and saide: I marrye is come, I calleth for the. She whan she herde the, rose vp quodly, and came vnto him: For Iesus was not yet come in to I towne, but was yet in the place, where I Martha met him. The Iewes that were with her in the house and comforted her, when they saw I Marye, that she rose vp hastily, I went out, they seled her, I saide: She goeth to the graue, to wepe there.

Now wher I Marye came, Iesus was I saide him, she fell downe at his feete, I sayde vnto hi: LORD, if thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene dead. Wher Iesus saide: he wepte, I the Iewes wepinge also I came with her, he gaoned in the spere, I was sory in himselfe: sayde: Wher haue ye layed him: They sayde: LORD, he come, I sit. And Iesus wepte. Then sayde I Iesus: And he how beloued him. But some of the saide: Could he not be I which opened the eyes of I blind, haue made also, that this man shoulde not haue dyed: But Iesus groined agayne in himselfe, and came to the graue. It was a raue, and a stone layed on it. Iesus saide: Take awaye I stone. I Martha the sister of him was dead, saide vnto I LORD: I alleady, for I

Jesus sayde vnto her: Saye. I noc vnto the, that yf thou wouldest beleue, thou shouldest see the glory of God:

E Then saide they awaye the stone, where the deede laye. Jesus lift up his eyes, and sayde: Father, I thanke yf, that thou hast hearde me. Howbeit I knowe, that thou hearest not allwaye: but because of yf people that stonde by, I sayde it, that they maye beleue, that thou hast sent me.

When he had sayde this, he cryed louder: Lazarus come forth. And yf hee came forth bounde hande & foot in graue clothes, this saide bounde in a naptyn. Jesus sayde a newe thinge vnto him, let him go. Many now of yf Jewes which were come vnto Iherusalem, and sawe what Jesus dyd, beleued on him. But some of the iewes that wente in their waye vnto the phariseis, and tolde the what Jesus had done.

Then the hye priestes and the pharisees gathered a councell, and sayde: What do we? This man doeth many tokens. Let us let him go thus, all in euyl beleue in him: that shal the Romaynes come, and take awaye our londe and people. But one of them, named Caiphas, which was hye priest that same yere, sayde vnto them: Ye knowe nothinge nether conside yf any thinge at all. It is better for us, that one man dye for the people, than that all the people shoulde perishe.

This spake he not of himself, but for so much as he was hye priest of the same yere, he propheticd. For Jesus was for to dye for the people, and not for the people onely, but that he shoulde gather together the children of God, which were scattered abroad: from that daye forth they toke counsell, how they might put him to death. Jesus willed none openly amonge the Jewes, but wente from thence in to a countrey by the wyldernesse, to a cite called Ephraim, thither he had his beyng: with his disciples.

The Jewes after was nye at hande. And thei wente up many to Iherusalem: of yf that countrey before yf Easter, to pacifye them selves. Then stode they up, and axed after Jesus, and made amonge them sturres in the temple: What thyngs seest thou, that he can do, that he seest? The hye priestes & pharisees had giuen a commaundement, that yf any man entere thither he were, he shoulde dye: that he they might take him.

The xiiij. Chapter.

S In the daye before Easter came Jesus vnto Bethanias, where Lazarus was, which was dead, whom Jesus had from the dead. There they made him a supper, and Martha stonde. But Lazarus was one of them, that sayd acerbable vnto him. Then toke Mary a pounde of an oymment of pure and costly Nardus, and anoynted Jesus feet, & dryed his feet with her heer. The house was full of the salue of the oymment. This sayde one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot Symons sone, which afterwarde betrayed him: Why was not this oymment solde for the hundred pennes, and giuen to the poore? This sayde he not that he cared for the poore, but because he was a thefe, and had the bagges, and bare that which was gerd. Then sayde Jesus: Let her alone, this hath she kepte agaynst the daye of my buryenge. For she poore haue ye allwaye with you, but me haue ye not allwaye.

Then much people of the Jewes had knowledge, that he was there, and they came not for Jesus sake onely, but also for they might se Lazarus, whom he had raysed from the dead. But yf hye priestes were aduersed to put Lazarus to death also because yf for his sake many of the Jewes wold come, and beleue on Jesus.

Opon the next daye much people which were come vnto the feast, when they had that Jesus came towardes Iherusalem, they toke brennynges of palme trees, and wente to meete him, and cryed: Hosanna. Blessed be he, that cometh in the name of the LORDE. Synge of Ihsid. Jesus gat a yonge asse, and rode theron, so as it was wyte: for he nor chon boughten of Alon, beholde, synge cometh rydinge op on an asse. Iherusalem his disciples understood not these thinges at the first, but when Jesus was glorified, then remembred they that schid thinges were wyte of him, and that they had done such thinges vnto him.

The people that was with him when he called Lazarus out of yf graue and raysed him from the dead, commended the same. Therfore the people met him, because they heard, that he had done such a miracle. But the pharisees sayde amonge them selves: We se, that we praye nothinge, he beloued, yf woulde runneth a fier him.

There were certayne Greeks (amonge which there were come up to Iherusalem to worshippe) of the feast: the same came vnto philippe, which was of Bethsaida out of Galilee, and payed him, and sayde: Sir, we wold see the. Then philippe came, & tolde andrew. And agayne, philippe and andrew tolde Jesus. Jesus answered the, and sayde: Ye

Verdy verely I saye unto you: Excepte this worlde, shal kepe it unto life everlasting.

He that wyl serue me, let him folow me, and where I am, there shal my seruante be

How is my soule heavy, and what shal I say? Father, helpe me out of this honte.
 But therefore am I come in to this houre.
 Father, gloufy thy name.

Then came there a voyce from heauen:
I haue glorified it, and wil glorifie it againe.
Then sayde the people that stood by and herde: It thundereth. Other sayde: An angell speaketh vnto him. Iesus answered, and sayde: This voyce came not because of me but for yours sakes.

Now groweth the indignation over the world. Now shall the prince of this world be consumed. And I knowe I am life vs from the earth, wyl be recalled unto me. And that he sayde, do signefye, what beareth he shalbe vs. Then answered him the people: We haue heard in the lawe, that Christe endurth our forme: and how sayest thou then, that the sonne of man must be lift vs? Who is this sonne of man?

Then sayde Iesus vnto them: The lighte is at a litle whyle with you, walke whyle ye haue the lighte, that the darthnesse full not

The XII. Chapter.

But for the first of sic after whan Ie sus knewe that his tyme was come, that he shoulde departe out of this worlde unto of farther, as he loked in which were in the worlde, thus I loked he them vnto the ende. And after supper, whan the deuill had alreadye paynted 3 heart of Iudas Scauoth Symons sonne, to betraye him, Iesus knowinge that the farther had geuen all thinges in to his handes, & that he was come from God, and wenevnto to God, he rose from supper, and layd asyde his upper garmentes, and tooke a towell, and gyide it aboute him. After that he poured he water in to a bason, and begonne to washe the dys-ples feet, and dryed them with the towell, & he was cryed to shal.

Then came he unto Symon Peter, and of ſame ſayde unto him: LORD, ſhale thou goe with me in my fiſhe: Jeſus answered him ſaying unto him: What I do, thou knoweſt not now, but thou ſhale knowe it hereafter. The ſayde Peter unto him: Thou ſhale ſee me a fiſher. Jeſus answered him: If I will if not, thou ſhale haue no part with me. Symon Peter ſayde unto him: LORD, not the ſeet onely, but the handes alſo and the heede.

Jesus sayde vnto him: He that is cleane, & nederh not, fane to washe y fore, but is clea ne eury whyt: And ye are cleane: but not all. For he tenev him be a pex, chet fore say de he: ye a re not all cleane.

Now when he had washen their feet, and taken his clothes, he sat him downe againe, and sayde unto the: Woce ye what I haue done vnto you? Ye call me master and LORDE, and ye saye right therein, for so I am. If I then, youre LORDE and master haue washen your feet, ye oughte also to washe one anothers feet. I haue geue you an example, that ye shulde do as I haue done vnto you. Verely verely I saye vnto you: the seruante is not greater then his lord: neither is the Apostoll greater then he that sent him. If ye knowe these thinges, blessed are ye if ye do them. I speake noe of you all, I knowe to whom I haue chosen, but that the scripture might be fulfilled: he that catch my beed, hath lift up his heale against me. I tell ite you now, before it come, that when it is come to passe, ye maye beleue, that I am he.

C Verely verely I saye vnto you: he that receaueth me, so euer I sende, receaueth me: and he that receaueth me, receaueth him that sent me. When Iesus had thus sayde, he was heuy in spirite, and casteth, and sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: One souldier you shal betraye me. Then the disciples looked one vpon another, & were in doute, of in whom he spake. But there was one among his disciples, that leane a the table on Iesus bosome, whos Iesus loued: he had be trayed Symon Peter, that he shulde aye, who is was, of whom he spake. For the same leane vps Iesus kiste, and sayde vnto him: LORDE, who is it? Iesus answered: It is he, vnto whom I vypp the soppes & gaue it. And he vypp in the soppes, and gaue it vnto Iudas Icarioth Symons sonne. And after I soppes the diuall entred in to him.

Then sayde Iesus vnto him: What thou dost, do quickly. But I sarme wyll no man as the table, for what intent he sayde it vnto him. Some thought: for so much as Iudas had the bagges that Iesus had sayde vnto him: Whye this is necessary for me agaynst the sayll: Or that he shulde geue some thinge vnto the poore. When he had receaued the soppes, he went out immediately, and it was nyght.

When he was gone forth, Iesus sayde: Now is the sonne of man glorified, and God is glorified in him. If God be glorified in him, the shal glorifye him also in his self, & they that see him shal be gloufyed in him. And I am yet a litle while with you. Ye shal like me, and as I sayde vnto Iudas: as he sayd I go, yet he can ye not come. And now I saye vnto you, as he cometh, he will geue I you, that ye loue together as I haue loued you. I geue you yellow one another. Whiche shal euer: man knowe that ye are my disciples, if ye haue loue one to another. Symon Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, whiche goest thou? Iesus answered him: Whiche I go, thou canst not folow me now, but thou shalt folow me hereafter. Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, whye sayest thou these wordes? I will geue my life for thy sake. Iesus answered him: Wilt thou geue thy life for my sake? Verely verely I saye vnto thee: The cocke shal not crowe, vntill thou haue denyed me thrise.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ Now he sayde vnto his disciples: Let I not youre hearts be a frayd. If ye beleue on God, the beleue also on me. In my fathers house are many dwellinges. Ife were not so, I woulde haue tolde you: I go to prepare the place for you. And though I go to prepare the place for you, yet will I come againe, and receaue you vnto my self. Ye maye be where I am. And whiche I saye, ye knowe, and the waye ye knowe ye shall.

Thomas sayde vnto him: LORDE, we knowe not whiche thou goest, & howe we knowe the waye. Iesus sayde vnto him: I am the waye, and the truth, and the life. No man cometh to the father but by me. If ye knowe me, ye knowe my father also. And so he sayde: for ye knowe him, & haue sene him. Philippe sayde vnto him: LORDE, shew vs the father, and it sufficeth vs. Iesus sayde vnto him: Who longer am I with you, and haue thou not knowne me? Philippe, he that seyth me, seyth the father. And howe sayest thou then: Shewe vs the father? Belieue thou not that I am in the father, and the father is in me? The wordes that I haue sayde vnto you, those speake not of my self: but the father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the wordes. Belieue me, that I am in the father, and that the father is in me: Or else howe can I the lesse for the world sake.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: he that hath leueth on me, shal do the wordes that I do, and shal do greater then these: for I go to the father. And what soeuer ye aske of the father in my name, the father will geue ite you. I saye vnto you, that the father maye be praiued in the sonne. If ye aske any thinge in my name, I will do it.

If ye loue me, keepe my commandmentes. And I will praye the father, and he shal geue you another comforter, that he maye abide with you for euer: that ye maye see the

The XV. Chapter.

In a true wyne, and my father is as husbande man. Every bud that bringeth not forth fruite in me, shall be cut: and every one that bringeth forth fruite, shall he poure, & it maye bring forth more fruite. How are ye cleane, because of the woide, that I haue spokt vnto you. Wyne ye haue, and I in you. But as a limbeck can not bringe forth fruite of it self that is wyne in the wyne. Even so nether we also expect to absorb in me.

I am the wyne, ye are the bransches. He that abydeth in me, and I in him, he shall brynge forth much fruite: for without me can ye do nothing. He that abydeth not in me, is cast out as a wyne bransche, and is withered, and men gather it up, and cast it a feithers lene, and it burneth. If ye shall abide in me, and my wordes abode in you, ye shall ape what ye wyl, & it shall be done vnto you.
Ascia is my father puffed, that ye brynge forth much fruite, and become my disciples.
Like as my father hath loved me, and so haue I loved you. Continue in my love. If ye keepe my commaundmentes, ye shall continue in my love: like as I haue kepte my fathers commaundmentes, and continue in his love.

These things haue I spoken vnto you, B that my loue mightemaue in you, and y your loye might be perfect. This is my Ioh: 14 commandement, that ye loue one another, as I. 14. 21 I haue loued you. To manthou (greater lo uer) to geue his life for his friende. Ye are my friends, if ye do that I commaunde y you. Hence forth call I you all seruantes, for a seruante knoweth not what his lord doeth. But I haue saide that ye are friends for all that I haue herofore of my father, haue I shewed vnto you. Ye haue ad chosen me, but I haue chosen you, and obeyed ye, that ye go, and bring forth fruit, I. 15. 16 and that at your fruite continuing, that wh soever ye as the father in my name, he shal be sent to you.

This I commaunde you, that ye lose one another. If the moule hate you, then knowe, that it hath hated me before you. If ye met of the woulde, the moule moule loue his, mme. howebeit because ye are not of the worlde, but I haue chose you from the woulde, therefore the moule hateth you. He murther my moule, that I saye unto you.
The Iuanant is more greater then his lord.
If they haue persecuted me, they shal persecute you also: If they haue despised my body, they shal despise you also.

But all this shal they do unto you for my names sake. Because they knowe not what I sent me. Ie. I had not come to spoyle a house. But to builde it. They haue no ymme. But now haue they nothing to claime their frams I shall. Ie. I haue them. I haue my father also. Ie. I had not bene alone. Ie. I haue more with me. Ie. I haue my father. Ie. I haue no ymme. But now haue they sent me. and ye haue they hated both me & my father.
Ie. I haue them. Ie. I haue my father. Ie. I haue no ymme. But now haue they sent me. and ye haue they hated both me & my father.

 I shall send you from the father, and he shall be with you for ever, which is of the father, with me, for ye have heard with me from the beginning.

The XVI. Chapter.

21. Exseſtinghes haue I ſayde vnto you, that ye ſhulde not be offended. If they ſhal excommunicate you. The excommunicat, that is whoe ſeuer purſueth you to death. ſhal thynke that ye do beſt ſeruyce vnto God. I ſhal not ſuch thinges ſay. If they do enco-ure you, becauſe they haue neither knowe of faſayde vnto you, that whan the ſonne ſhall come he may reſtifie that on, that I ſaide you.

But theſe thinges haue I not ſayde vnto you from the begynnyng: for I was with you.

But now I go vnto him that sent me, & none of you shall me. Whither goest thou then? because I haue sayde these things vnto you, ye will hate in full of sorrowe. I tell you, I tell you the truth, It is better for you that I go awaye. For if I goe not awaye, this comforter cometh not vnto you: but if I departe, I will sende him vnto you. And when he cometh, he shall rebuke the world, of synne, and of lightnes of sinne, & of iudgment. Of synne, because they belize noe crime. Of lightnes of sinne, because I go to the father, and yett heauen nomore. Of iudgment, because the prince of this world is iudged alreadye.

¶ I haue geue much to saye vnto you, but ye can not now hear it: for a tyme cometh when he (the spirite of truthe) cometh: he shall te-lede you in to all truthe. For he shall not speake of himself, but what soeuer he shall heare, that shall he speake: and he shall shewe you what is yet to come. & he shall glorifie me: for he shall receiue of myne, and shall shewe it to you. All that the father hath, is myne.
Therefore haue I sayde: he shall receiue of myne, and shewe vnto you.

After a little while, and ye shall not see me: and againe after a little while, and ye shall see me: for I go not to the father. The Iewes said some of his disciples amonge them selves: What is this that he saith vnto vs, after a little while, and ye shall not see me: againe after a little while, & ye shall see me: for I go not to the father. Then sayde they: What is this, that he saith: After a little while, we can not see him.

disciple which was knowen unto the hye prest, wente on, and spake to the damsell & kepte the doore, and broughte in Peter. Then the damsell that kepte the doore, sayde unto Peter: Art not thou also one of this mans disciples? he sayde: I am not.

C The seruantes & officers stode, and had made a fyre of coles; for it was colde: & warmed the iulues. Peter also stode with them, and warmed him self. The hye prest aske Iesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine.

Ioh. 18 Iesus answered him: I haue spoken openly before the world, I haue neuer taught in the synagoge, and in the temple, whiche all the Jewes frequente, & in secret haue I spokē no thynge. Whyaarest thou me? And he that haue herde, what I haue spoken vnto the beholde, they can tell what I haue sayde. But when he had thus spokē, one of the officers that stode by, smote Iesus on the face, and sayde: Answerest thoue the hye prest for? Iesus answered him: If I haue well spokē, the deute wytnesse of me: but yf I haue well spoken, why smyttest thou me? And Anna sent him bounde vnto Caipha the hye prest.

Ioh. 18 Mat. 26 Luce 22 Spoke Peter stode and warmed him self. The sayde they vnto him: Art not thou one of this disciples? he denyed, and sayde: I am not. I feare of the hye prestes, & I mislike this, whose cause Peter had myghten of, sayde vnto him: Dyd not I see the in the garde with him?

Ioh. 18 Mat. 26 Luce 22 Then Peter denyed agayne. And immediately the cock crew. Then led they Iesus from Caiphas in to the common hall. And it was early in the morninge. And they which iulues were not in to the comon hall, lest they shoulde be defyled, but that they myghte eate & passe a lumbre. Then came Pilate out vnto the, and sayde: What accusation bringest thou agaynst this man? They answered, and sayde vnto him: If he were not an enuell doer, we had not deliuered him vnto the. Then sayde Pilate vnto the: Take ye him, and iudge him after ye lawe. Then sayde of Jewes vnto him: He is not lawfull for vs to put myn to death. That of Iesus mighte be fulfilled, which he spake, when he signified, what he should be. And he stode by.

Ioh. 18 Mat. 26 Luce 22 Then entered Pilate in to the common hall agayne, and called Iesus, & sayde vnto him: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? Iesus answered: Sayest thou that of thy self, or haue other tolde it the of me?

Ioh. 18 Mat. 26 Luce 22 Pilate answered: Am I a Jewe? Thy people and the hye prestes haue deliuered the vnto me. What hast thou done? Iesus answered:

I saye: My kynngdome is not of this world. If my kynngdome were of this world, my mynisters wolde fighte thet for me, & I shoulde not be deliuered vnto the Jewes. But now is my kynngdome not from hence. The sayde Pilate vnto him: Art thou a kynng? Iesus answered: Thou sayest it, for I am kynge. For this cause was I borne, and came in to the world, that I shoulde witness the trouth. Whoso is of the trouth, heareth my voyce. Pilate sayde vnto him: What is the trouth? And he sayde not, for he knewe that he was out agayne to the Jewes, and sayde vnto them: I fynde no guylt in him.

But ye haue a custome, that I shoulde geue one vnto you loose at the after. Wyl ye haue Ioseph vnto you the kynge of the Jewes? He cryed they agayne alle together, and sayde: Let him be. But Barabbas. He was Barabbas a murdherer.

The XIX. Chapter.

Ioh. 19 Mat. 27 Luce 23 Then Pilate toke Iesus, and sent Igeob him. And the Iudyeas plant a crowne of thornes, and fasten vnto his heade, and put a purple garment vnto him, and sayde: Hail kynge of the Jewes. And they smote him on the face. Then wente Pilate forth agayne, and sayde vnto the Beholde, I bringe him forth vnto you, if ye maye knowe, & I fynde no fauour in him. So Iesus wente out, & wore a crowne of thornes and a purple robe, and he sayde vnto the Beholde, the man. When the hye presther the mynisters of same him, they cryed, I save Crucifye, crucifye. Pilate sayde vnto the: Let ye him, and crucifye him, for I fynde no guylt in him. The Jewes answered him: We haue a lawe, & after our lawe he ought to dye, because he made him self the sonne of God. When Pilate herde that word, he wente him out & asayed, and wente agayne in to the common hall, and sayde vnto Iesus: Whence art thou? But Iesus gaue him no answer. The sayde Pilate vnto him: Spakest thou not vnto me? A now I see thou hast power to crucifye, & haue power to loose. Iesus answered: Thou shouldst haue no power vnto me, yf it were not geue the from above. Therefore the that deliuered me vnto the, haue the more synne. From the tyme forth Pilate soughte meane to loose him. But the Jewes cryed, & sayde: If thou let him go, thou art not the Emperours filde. For whosoener maketh himselfe kynge, he is agaynst the Emperoure.

When Pilate herde & wrote, he brought Iesus forth, & set him downe vpon a logg, & set the from above. Therefore the that deliuered me vnto the, haue the more synne. From the tyme forth Pilate soughte meane to loose him. But the Jewes cryed, & sayde: If thou let him go, thou art not the Emperours filde. For whosoener maketh himselfe kynge, he is agaynst the Emperoure.

place in the place which is called the Pannent, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha. It was the day of preparing of the Easter about the first home. And he sayde unto the Jewes: Beholde ye kynge. And they cryed: Where is he, a way to him, crucifye him. Pilate sayde unto the: What crucifye ye kynge? The hye priestes answered: We haue kynge but 3 Emperours. The deynes no he hym unto them to be crucified.

They toke Iesus, and led him amaye. And he bare his crosse, and wente out to the place called y place of deed men (scilicet, which is hebre in named Golgatha, where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either syde one, but Iesus in the myddes. Pilate wrote a superscription, and he upon the crosse. And thus was written: Iesus of Nazareth, kynge of the Jewes. This superscription had many of the Jewes. For y place where Iesus was crucified, was nye unto the cite. And it was written in hebre, Judee & Latin. Then sayde the hye priestes of the Jewes unto Pilate: Write not kynge of the Jewes, but y he sayde, I am kynge of the Jewes. Pilate answered: What I hat wyeten, that haue I wyeten.

The fowthe, when they had crucified Iesus, toke his garments, and made foure partes, to every fowther one parte, and the one alle. As for the cote, it was unsewed fro above, wrought thowen and thowen. They sayde they on to another: Let us not drawe, but cast lottes for it, who shal haue it, that the scripture might be fulfilled, which sayeth: They haue parted my garments amonge them, and on my cote haue they cast lottes. This was the fowther in dede.

There stode by the crosse of Iesus, his mother, and his mocha sister Mary, the wife of cleophas, and Mary Magdalene. Now when Iesus sawe his mother, and the disciple stonde nye by, which he loved, he sayde unto his mother: Woman, beholde, thus doth thy soune. Then sayde he to the disciple: beholde, thus doth thy mother. And from that houre the disciple cote her unto him.

After that when Iesus knewe that all was perfourmed, that the scripture might be fulfilled, he sayde: I am a thyse. There stode a well full of vynerge. They filled a sponge with vynerge and wounde it aboute with yste, and bare it to his mouth. Now when Iesus had receaved the vynerge, he sayde: It is finished, and bowed his heade, and gave up the goost.

The Jewes then, for so much as it was the daye of preparinge, that y bodies shulde not treme ypon the crosse on the Sabbath, for y same Sabbath daye was grete; he brought Pilate, that their legges might be broken, and that they might be taken downe. Then came the fowther, and brake the legges of the first, and of the other that was crucified with him. And when they came to Iesus, and sawe that he was dead already, they brake not his legges, but out of the fowther opened his syde with a swere. And immediately there wente out blode and water.

And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and his recorde is true. And he knoweth that he sayeth true, that ye might beleue also. For this is done, y the scripture might be fulfilled: He shal not beate a bone of him. And agayne, another scripture sayeth: They shal se him, whom they haue crucified.

After that, Ioseph of Arimathia, which was a disciple of Iesus (but secretly for feare of the Jewes) he brought Pilate, y he might take downe the body of Iesus. And Pilate gave him lycence. There came also Nicodemus, (which afore came unto Iesus by night) he brought of Myrrer & Aloe a mingled together, aboute an hundred pounde weight.

They toke they the body of Iesus, & wounde it with linnen clothes, and with y spyce, as the manner of the Jewes is to burye. And by y place where Iesus was crucified, there was a garde, and in the garden a new sepulchre, where in was neuer man layd; there layed they Iesus, because of the preparinge daye of y Jewes, for the sepulchre was nye at hande.

The X. Chapter.

From one daye of the Sabbath, came Mary Magdalene early (while it was yet darke) unto the sepulchre, & sawe that the stone was toke from the sepulchre. Then came she, & came to Symon Peter, and to y other disciple, whom Iesus loved, and sayde unto them: They haue taken awaye the stone out of the sepulchre, & we can not tell y here they haue layed him. The wyte Peter forth and the other disciple, & came to the sepulchre. They sawe both together, and that other disciple overtake Peter, and came first to the sepulchre, and looked in, and sawe the linnen clothes layed. But he wote not it. The came Symon Peter after him, and wente in to the sepulchre, & sawe the linnen clothes ly, and the napkin that was bounde aboute Iesus' heade, not layed with the linnen clothes, but wrapped together in

The XXI. Chapter.

See what shewed Iesus himselfe agayne at the sea of Tiberias. But on the waye shewed he them his. There were together Symon Peter, & Thomas whiche called Didymus, & 2. other named of Cana in Galilee of Galilee, & the sonnes of Zebedee, & two other of his disciples. Symon Peter firste vnto thei I goe a fishing. They saye vnto him: Also will we goe there. They wente out, & entered into a shipp straight waye. And it came to passe that they nothing. But when it was now moore, Iesus stood on the shon, but his disciples knewe not that it was Iesus. Iesus sayde vnto thei: Childe, haue any thinge to eate? They answered him: No. He sayde vnto thei: Cast oue the net on y^e right syde of the shipp, & ye shall fynde. Thei cast oue, & coulde not euen drawe for y^e multitude of fishes. The sayde y^e disciples: myght Iesus leaue, vnto Peter: It is the end. ORDE.

When Simon Peter herde that he was the LORDE, he gaue him mantell about him: for he was naked, and sponged in y^e sea. But other disciples came by shippes: they were not so faste as he, but as it was two hundredth cubytes) and they draweth net with the fishes. To w^{ch} when they were come to lande, they faire coles layd, and fished there, and breth. Iesus saye vnto the. Dunge higher of the fishes, that ye haue taken now. Symon Peter steppeth fowth, and drewe the net to the lande, full of grou fishes, on hundredth and thie and fiftie. And for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

Jesus sayde vnto them: Come, and heere. But none of the disciples durst aske him. Who are thou? for they knewe, that it was the LORDE. Then came Jesus, and tooke a beere, and gaue it the; and they fyghe liues. This is now the thirde tyme that Iesus appeared vnto his disciples, so fear that he was ryen agayn from the deeth.

The gospel

Now whā they had dined, Iesus sayde unto Symon Peter: Symō Johāna, louest thou me more then these do? he sayde unto him: Yee LORDE, thou knowest I I love the. he sayde unto him: Seest thou I love, he sayde unto him a gayne the se cond tyme: Symō Johāna, louest thou me? he sayde unto him: Yee LORDE, thou knowest, I I love y. he sayde unto him: Seest thou I love. he sayde unto him y: I chidee thine: Symon Johāna, louest thou me? Peter roose say, because he sayde unto him, louest thou me? And he sayde unto him: LORDE, thou knowest all things, thou knowest, that I love y. Iesus sayde unto him: Seest thou I love.

¶ Verdy verdy I say unto the: When thou wast yonge, thou gardest thy selfe, and wouldest whether thou wouldest. But when thou art olde, thou shalt stretch forth thy handes, and another shal gyde the, and leade the whither thou wilt olde in nor. But this he sayde, to signifye with what deatch he shoulde glorifye God.

¶ When he had spoken this, he sayde vnto him: Followe me. Peter turned him a bawte, and sawe the disciples followinge, whom Iesus loved, (& rebek also leane up his heade at the supper, and sayde: LORDE, who is it that betrayeth the?) Whā Peter sawe him, he sayde vnto Iesus: LORDE, but what shal he do? Iesus sayde vnto him: If I will that he tary till I come, what is that to the? Followe thou me. Thers wente there out a sponge amonge the brethren: This discipule betch nor. And Iesus sayde not vnto him: He dyeth not, but: If I will that he tary till I come, what is that to the? This is the same discipule, which testifieth of these things, and wote these things, and we knowe that his testimony is true.

There are many other thinges also that Iesus dyd, which, if they shoulde be wrytten every one, I suppose the worlde shoulde not con tayne the.

ye men of Galile, why stand ye gazing up into heauen? This Iesus which is taken up from you in to heauen, shall come again likewise as ye haue seene him go in to heauen.

Then turned they againe from y^e mount that is called Olīue, which waye to Jerusalem, and had a Sabbath dayes iourney.
And when they came in, they wente up in to a parlor, where abode Peter and James, John and Andrew, Phillipps and Thomas, Bartholomew and Mathew, James the sonne of Alphaeus, and Simon Zelotes, and Iudas the sonne of James. These all com-med with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women and Mary the mother of Iesu and with his brethren.

¶ And in those dayes Peter stood up in the synagogue amonge the disciples, and sayde: (The company as if he named together, so as about an hundred and thretye.) Ye men and brethren, this scripture must needs be fulfilled, which y^e holy goost by the mouth of Dauid saith before of Iudas, which was a guyde of the churche: Iesus: for he was numbered with vs, and had opeyned the selationshippe of this mynistration. This same man possessed the felde for the rewarde of synecrisme, and hanged himselfe, and hath a funer in the myddes, and all his benefits gished out. And it is knowne vnto all the that dwell at Jerusalem, in so much that the same felde is called in their moether tongue Acheldram, that is to saye, the bloudy felde.

¶ For it is written in the booke of psalmes: his habitation be voyde, and no man be dwellinge therein. And: his bishopricke another take. Wherefore amonge those men which haue bene gathered together with us all the tyme that the LORDE Iesus was about and in amonge vs, begynne from the buyding of These, untyll y^e dayes that he was taken up from vs: must one be appointed with vs of his resurrection.

¶ And they appointed two (Joseph called Barsabas, whose surname was Justus, and Matthias), makinge their prayer and saying: Thou LORDE, which knowest the hearts of all men, shewe whether of these two thou wilt chuse, that the one maye take the steede of this mynistration and Apostol-shippe, from the which Iudas by answere fell, that he might go awaye from his same place. And they gaue such chelottes concerning them, and the lot fell vpon Matthias.
And he was counted with the eleven Apostles.

The iiij. Chapter.

¶ And when the v^e daye sondaye was fulfilled, they were all with one accord together in one place. And suddenly there came a sonnde from heauen, as it had bene the sounde of a mighty noyse, and it filled the whole house where they sat.
And there appeared vnto them cloven tunges, like as they had bene of fyre. And he sat vpon ech one of them, and they were all filled with the holy goost. And they began-ne to preach with other tongues, as the spyrte gaue them vnderstandinge.

There were dwellinge at Jerusalem Jewes, men that feared God, of every nation that is vnder heauen. Now when this voyce came to passe, the multitude came together, and were astounded: For every one heard, that they spake with his owne tounge. They wondered all and marue-led, and sayde amonge themselves: Behold, we are not all the which speak of Galile: how beare we the every one his owne tunge, wherein we were borne: Parthians and Medes, and Elamites, and we that dwell in Mesopotamia, and in Ieremy and Cappadochia, Pontus, and Asia, Phrygia and Pamphelia, Egypte, and in the partes of Libya by Cyren, and strangers of Rome, Jewes and proselytes, Greeces and Arabians: we here then heare them speake with strange tongues the great workes of God.

They were all amazed, and one another said: What wil this be? But other mocked them, and sayde: They are full of sweet wyne. Then stood Peter up with the deuen, and lift up his voyce, and sayde vnto them:

Ye men of Ieremy, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this knowen vnto you, and let my wordes entere in at your eares. For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, for it is yet but the thirde houre of y^e daye: but this is it, that was spoken before by the prophet Joel: And it shall come to passe in the last dayes, sayeth God, I will poure out of my spyrte vpon all flesh, and yee shall sonnes and daughters shall prophesye, and yee young men shall se visions: and yee olde men shall dreame dreames, and on my seruauntes and on my handmaydens will I poure out of my spyrte in those dayes, & they shall prophesye.

¶ And I will shewe members in heauen aboue, and tokens on the earth beneath, blouds and fyre, and the vapour of smoke. The Sonne shall be turned in to darkness, and the little one in to blinde, before that greate and notable daye of the LORDE come. And it shall come to passe, Who so euer shall call vpon the name of the LORDE, shall liue.

C Remen of Israel, he are these wordes: Ie sue of Nazareth, I man appoynted of God amonge you with miracles, and wonders and tokens, which God doth by him in the myddes amonge you, as ye see these dayes.

also, him (a free that he was delivered by the determinate counsell and foreknowledge of God) have ye taken by the hands of unrighteous persons, and crucified him, 2 slayne him, wher God hath raysed vp, and loosed the poyntes of death, so forme as it was impossible that he shoulde be helde of it. For David speaketh of him: 2 fore borne de hant I see the LORDE all mayes before me. So he is our myghty helpe. Then I pray me, for he is on my right hand, that I shall be not be moved. Therefore byd my heart re-loyse, and my tounge was glad: for my flesh also shall rest in hope. For thou shalt not leaue my soule in hell, neither shalt thou suffer þy holy to be corrupted. Thou hast shewed was made unto you and your children, and out of that are sarme of, whoe sower the good seede of Gods shal call. And so many other words bare he witnesseth, and exhorteth you, and sayde: Same your selues from this vntoward generation. They the which receaued his preachinge, were baptized, & the same day there were added vnto them about thre thousande soules.

They continued in the 2^o of these doctryne, and in the fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayer. And there came up every soule, and many wondrous and notable signes done by the 2^o of these. So all they that believed, were together, and had all things in common. They sold their goodes and possessions, and parted them out amongst all as according as every man had neede. And they continued daily with one accord in the apple, and brake bread in every house: they eat, they drinke rich (yet singleness of heart, praising God, and hauing loue richly all the people. And the LORDE added to the congregation daily such as should be saved.

The III. Chapter.

When Peter and John went up together into the temple to pray about the ninth houre to praye. And there was a certain man borne from his mothers wombe whom they brought and layed dayly at the gate of the temple, which is called, the Beutyfull, so, as he might see almesde of feble that were in to the temple. To whom he said Peter and John, that they wolde in to the temple, be desired to receaue an almesde of Peter because him with John, and sayde, he was on vs. And he saue him vnto them, because he receaue some thinge of them. And Peter saide: Syner and golde haue I recei-ued of thee, I haue receiued thee. In the name of Iesus Christ of Nazareth rise vp walke. And he toke him by the right hand and lifte him vp. Immediately his legges and bones were made strong, and he began go, see, he was well, and he entred with them in to the temple, walkinge, and leaping, and praisinge God.

And all the people saw him walk and praise God. And they knew him, for it was he, which sat for almost eie hundred yea re at the temple. And these yeres filled with mondaye, and was assembly at that which had happened vnto hi. And as he halt why he was healed hee, he saide vnto one Iohn, all the people ranne vnto thou in the porch, which is called Salomon, and rendered.

When Peter sawe that he answered wth the people: The men of Iſrael, by marriage ye are this, as why loke ye ſt at us, as though not by your owne power or deſire ye had made this man to walke: The God of Abraham and of Iſaac, and of Jacob, y^e God of our fathers hath gloriſied his chylde Ieſus, whom ye denyed and denyed in the preſence of Pilate, when he had iudged him to be wiſe. But ye denyed the holy and juſt, and beſied the murderer to be your god, but ye ſawe the prynces of liſt, whom God hath rayſed from the dead, of the which we are witneſſes. And thow y^e ſaith in his name, hath he confirmed his name upon this man, whom yeſt and knowe: as ſaith euen him, huch geueth his man this health beſore your eyes.

Nowe deare brether, I knowe that ye haue done it: euen in ignorance, as dyd alſo your rulers. But God, which by the mouth of all his prophetes had ſhewed beſore, y^e Ieſus Chriſt ſhulde ſuffer, hath ſo fulfilled it. Be penance nowe therfore and turne you, that your ſinnes maye be done away, whar the tyme of reſtreſſinge ſhal come beſore the preſence of the LORDE, and when he ſhall ſende him, which now beſore is praiſed and vnto you, euen: Ieſus Chriſt: which ſhall reſceare heauen untill the tyme that all thinges, which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of his holy prophetes kene y^e will beſeigne, be reſtreſſed agayne.

For Moſes ſayde vnto y^e fathers: A prophet ſhal the LORDE your God raiſe vp vnto you, euen from amonge your brethren, like vnto me: him ſhal ye honour, in all that he ſhal ſaye vnto you. And it ſhal come to paſſe, that ſoule ſouer ſhal not heare the ſame prophet, ſhal be deſtroyed from amonge the people. And all the prophetes from Eſau and thence forth as many as haue ſpoken, ſhall be accompliſhed of theſe dayes.

It are the children of the prophetes and of the promiſe, which God made vnto y^e fathers, when he ſayde vnto Abraham: Thou ſhalt beſeigne ſhal all y^e nationes of earth be bleſſed. Juſt vnto you hath God raiſed up his childe Ieſus, & ſent him vnto you, to bleſſe you y^e everyone ſhulde turne fro his wickedneſſe.

The III. Chapter.

But as they ſpake to y^e people, there came vnto theſe the preſtes and the rulers of the temple, and the Saducees, whoſe groned y^e they caught the people, & proued in Ieſus y^e reſurreccion fro the dead and they layed handes vpon them, and put the in holde vntill the morow: for it was now euentyde. Sombe is many of the which heard the worde, bened, and the nombre of y^e men was aboute five thouſande.

And it chaunced on y^e morow, that the rulers and Elders and ſcribes (as Annas y^e hye preſt and Caſphas, and Iohn y^e Alexander, and as many as were of the hye preſtes councell) gathered them ſilues together at Jeruſalem, and ſet them beſore them, and aſked them: By what auctorite, or in what name haue ye done this?

Peter full of the holy ghoſt, ſayde vnto them: The rulers of the people, and ye Elders of Iſrael. If we this daye be examined concernyng this good deede vpon theſe ſcethers, by what reaſons he is made whole, be it knowne then vnto you and to all the people of Iſrael, that in y^e name of Ieſus Chriſt of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whos God hath raiſed vp from the dead, ſtode this man here beſore you whole. Thus are the ſignifications of you crucified, which is become the head corner ſtone, neither is there ſalvation in any other: For yet alſo is there geue vnto meſt any other name, wherein we maye be ſaved.

They ſawe the boldneſſe of Peter & Iohn, and maruailed, for they were ſimple & they were vnderſtand men and laye people. And they knewe the alſo, that they were in Ieſus. As for the man y^e was made whole, they ſawe hi ſtoding by theſe, & coulde not ſaye agaynſt it. Then commaunded they the coſtable aſſide one of y^e counsell, & commaunded amonge the ſilues, & ſaide: What ſhal we do to theſe men? for a muſyſt token is done by them, and is openly knowne vnto theſe that dwell at Jeruſalem, and we can not denye it. But that it breake out no farther amonge the people, let us threaten them earneſtly, that hence forth they ſpeake of this name vnto no man.

And they called them, and commaunded theſe, that in any wyſe they ſhulde not ſpeake nor teach in the name of Ieſus. But Peter & Iohn answered, and ſayde vnto theſe: Iudge ye your ſelues, whether it be right beſore God, that we ſhulde be more obedient vnto you, then vnto God. We care not theſe, but ſpeake that we haue ſent & herde. But they threatened them, and let them go, and ſought no thinges hom to puniſhe them becauſe of y^e people: for they all praiſed God becauſe of theſe thinges, which was done. For the man, upon whom this token of health was done, was aboute fouretye years olde.

And when they were let go they came to their folowes, and tolde them what y hye puffed, and eldres saye vnto them. Whā they herde that, they lifte vp their voyce w one corde vnto God, and sayde: LORDE, thou that art the God which made heauen and earth, and the sea, and alle that therein is thou that by the mouth of Dauid thy seruant hast sayde: Why do the heathen rage, and y people ymagin vayne thinges: The kingdome of the earth stande vp, and the pry-ces haue gathered them selues together against y LORDE, and against his. Chyl-des of a trech agaynst thy holy childe. Jhu, whom thou hast anointed, both herode & Pontius Pilate with the sycchens and people of Iherusalem haue gathered thei selues together, to do in what seemer thy hande and thy councell deniyned before to be done. And now LORDE, beholde their thei atternynges, and graunte vnto thy seruante a with oyl that he may boldnesse to speake thy worde: and stretch out thine hande, that healinge and saluacion wondrous maye be done by the name of thy holy childe Jhu.

And whā they had prayed, the place moued where they were gathered together, & they were all fylled with y holy goost, & spoke the worde of God boldly. The multitude of them that beloued, were of one hert and of one soule. Also none of them soyd of his goodes, that they were his owne, but had all thinges comen. And with greute power gawe the Apostles witness of the resurreccion of the LORDE Jhu, and greute grace was with them all. There was there crymonge them that lacked. So: as many as were possibill of lonbes or housis, stande and broughe y money of thei goodes that were selde, and layde it at the Apostles feet.
And distribucion was made vnto every mā, accordinge as he had neede.

Josef which was also callid of y Apostles, Barnabas (that is to saye, the sonne of consolation) a Leuite of the countre of Cyprus, had lonbes, and selde it, & broughe the money, and layde it at the Apostles feet.

The V. Chapter.

¶ Whe a cecroyn man namid Ananias with Sapphira his wyfe, selde his possession, and kepte awaye part of the money (his wyfe knowinge of it) and broughte onli parte, & layde it at the Apostles feet. But Petre sayde: Ananias, Whe-fore hast thou fylled thine hert, that thou shouldest lye vnto the holy goost, and withdrawe awaye parte of the money of thelyndes: Mightest thou not haue kepte it, whā thou habdest it: And whā it was selde, the money was also in thy power.

Why hast thou then conceald this thing in thine hert: Thou hast not lye vnto me, but vnto God. Whā Ananias hearde this worde, he fell doونه, & gaue vp the goost.
And there came a greute shawe vpon all the that herde of this. The yonge men that were, and put him asyde, and caried him out, and buried him.

And it fortuned as it were aboute y space of thre houres a fter, his wyfe came in, and knewe not what was done. But Petre discoyered vnto her. Tell me, selde y the land for so much: She sayde yea, for so much.
Petre sayde vnto her: Why haue ye agreed together, to tempte the spirit of the LORDE.
Beholde, the feet of the which haue buryed thy husbande, are at the doore, & shal carie the out. And immediately the fell downe in his feet, and gaue vp the goost. Then came in the yonge men, and founde her dead, and caried her out, and buried her by his husbande. And there came a greute feare vnto the whole congregation, and ouer all the churche herbert.

Many tokens and wonders were don amonge the people by the hande of the Apostles (and they were all together with ou-acoide in Salomons porche: but of the there durst no man to come him self vnto the nether: because the people helde much of them.) The multitude of the men and women that beloued in the LORDE, grew more and more.
) In so much that they broughte out the syde in to the strettes, and layde them vpon beddes and barrowes, that at the lest man the shadewe of Petre (whā he cameth) might overshadowe some of the. Therume many also one of y ciues rounde aboute vnto Iherusalem, and broughe the sick and the that were verid with euylne humors, and they were healed euery one.

But the hye prest rose vp, and all they were with him, which is the hiee of the Saducces, and were full of indignacion, & layd handes on the Apostles, and put them in the common prison. But the angell of y LOR-DE by nyght opened the prison doore, and broughte the out, and sayde: Go your way and steepe vp, and speake in the temple to the people all the wordes of this life. Whā they herde that, they entred in to the temple to ry in the morninge and taught.

But the hye prest came, and they y with him, and called the councell togethe, & all y eldres of the churche of Iherusalem.

for to the prison to set them. The ministers came and founde them not in the prison, & they agayne, and calde, and sayde: The prison stande we shut wth all diligence, and the keepers standinge withoute before the doore: wherunto we had opened, we founde no man therein. When the hye priest, and the rulers of the temple and the other hye priestes here these wordes, they doubted of them, wherunto this wolde growe.

¶ Then came there one, which tolde them: Beholde, the men that ye put in prison, are in the temple, standinge and teachinge the people. Then wth 3 rulers with their mynisters, and searched them withoute violence: for they feared the people, lest they shulde have bene stoned. And when they had broughte them, they sette before the count. And the hye priest asked them, and sayde: Why doe we commande you secretly, that ye shoulde not teache in this name. And beholde, ye have fylled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and ye intend to bringe this man into blame upon us.

But Peter and the Apostles answered, sayinge: We ought more to obeye God than men. The God of our fathers hath raised up Iesus, wh^o ye slawe, and hanged on a tree. Him hath the right hande of God raised, so be a prince and Saviour, to geve repentance and forgiveness of synnes unto I^udael. And we are his recordes of these wordes, and the holy goost, wh^o God hath geuen unto th^{at} abide him. Wh^o heareth that, it rence th^o on the herces of men, and they thought to slaye them.

¶ Then stode th^{at} up in 3 counsell a pharisee named Gamaliel a scribe, had in greete reputation before all 3 people, and had put the Apostles asyde a hile, and sayde unto them: Men of I^udael, take heede to your selves, what ye do as touching these men. Before these dayes rose up one Theudas, boasting himself. (And there drew unto him a number of men, aboute a foure hundred) which was a slayne, and all they 3 enclined unto him, yett they accorded abrode, and broughte none of them. After this stode up Judas of Galilee 3 dayes of rebellion, and drew a waye much people after him, & he also perished, & all they that enclined unto him, are scattered abroad. And now I saye unto you brethren: I have seene these men, and let the go. If it be counsell as moche be of us, it will come in naught: but if it be of God, ye are not able to destroye it, lest yete be founde to be the men, that wil stirre agaynst God. Then they agreed unto him, and called the Apostles, and berchem, and commaundered them, that they shoulde speake nothinge in the name of Iesus, and let them go.

But they departed from the presence of the counsell, reioysinge, that they were worthe to suffer rebute for his names sake. And dayly in the temple and in every house they ceased not, to teache and to preach the Gospell of Iesus Christ.

The VI. Chapter.

¶ In those dayes when the number of 28 the disciples increased, there arose a grudge amonge the Grekes agaynst the Hebrewes, because their synagogues were not filled upon in the dayly heareteachinge. Then the evoules called the malice of the disciples together, and sayde: It is not mete that we shoulde leave the worde of God, and so sitte at the tables. Wherefore brethren, loke out amonge you sent men, wh^o are of honeste power, and full of the holy goost, and wysdome, whom we maye appoynte to this needefull busynes. There will geve oare selues unto prayer, and to the mynstacion of the worde of God. And the sayenge pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Steuen, a man full of faith and a febe holy goost, and philippe, and procorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicias the proscler of Antioche. ¶ Th^{at} they set before 3 Apostles, and they prayed, and layed their handes upon them. And the worde of God increased, and the number of the disciples multiplied greatly at Jerusalem. And there were many pharisees also obedient unto the faith.

Steuen full of faith and power, dyd wonders and greates signes amonge the people. Then arose there certayne of the synagoge, which is called (the synagoge) of Libertines, & of the Cyrenites, and of the Alexandrians, and of the 3 were of Cilicia and Asia, & disputed with Steuen, & they coulde not resist the wysdome and the sperte, one of the which he spake. Then sent they in certayne men, th^{at} sayde: We have here him that speaketh blasphemye our wordes agaynst I^usofe, and agaynst God. And they moved the people, and the Libertines and the scribes, and came upon him, & caught him, and broughte him before the reuerall, and set false witness there, which sayde: This man blasphemeth not so speake blasphemous wordes agaynst this holy place and the lawe. For we herde him saye: Iesus of Nazareth shall destroye this place, and chaunge the which sayde vnto the children of Israel: A prophet shal the LORD your God raise up vnto you euen from amonge youre brethren, like vnto me. Him shal ye heare. This is he, that was in the congregacion in the wilderness with the angell, which talketh with him, vnto mount Sina, and with oure fathers. This man receaued the worde of promise vnto you, vnto whom oure fathers were not doebidit, but thrust him in this, and in their heres tucad. And agayne in the gippe, and sayde vnto Aaron: Take vs goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this Moses, & brought vs out of the lande of Egypt. And they made a calfe at the same tyme, and offered a sacrifice vnto the ymage, and reioysed in the worke of their auncie handes.

But God turned himselfe, & gaue them up, so that they worshipped the boosle of heuene, as it is written in the booke of the prophet: O ye house of Israel, gaue ye me sacrifices and catid thofe fortye yeares in the wilderness: And ye toke vnto you of tabernacle of Moloch, and the starre of your god Chemphar, ymagis which ye your selues made to worshippe the. And I will cast you out beyonde Babylon.

Our fathers had the tabernacle of witness in of wilderness, like as he appointed them: when he spake vnto Moses, that he shuld make it: according to the patrone, & he had sent. Which oure fathers also receiued, and brought it with Iosue into the land, wher the hebreys had in possession, when God deuote oure before the face of oure fathers, vntill the tyme of Dauid, which found fauour with God, and desired that he might fynde a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

But Solomon builded an house. Howbeit of hynde all wellerly not in temples that are made with handes: As he saith by the prophete: Heant is my seate, and the tarch is my feete stole. What house then wil ye build vnto me: sayeth the LORD: Which is the place of my rest: hath not my hande made all these thinges.

As I sturued & of vncircumcised heres and eares, ye all now resist the holy goost: As all ye fathers dyd, so do ye also. Which of the prophetes haue not ye fathers persequed: And they slawe the, which tolde befor of the charynge of synners, whose rayours and murders ye are now become. He receaued the laue by the ministraci of angells, and haue me kepte it.

of the Apostles. The. In.

When they herde this, it wente thowse of heres of the, and they gnashed vpon him with their tethe. But he beyng full of the holy goost, looked vpon towards heauen, & sawe the glory of God, and Iesus sittynge on the righte hande of God, and sayde: He holde, I see the heauen open, and the sonne of man sittynge on the righte hande of God. But they cried out with a loude voyce, & stopped their eares, and rane violently vpon him all at once, and thrust him out of the cite, and stoned him. And of witness layed downe their clothes at the feete of a yonge man, which was called Saul. And they stoned Steven, which cryed, & sayde: LORD Iesus, receaue my sperte. And he knelid downe, & cried with a loude voyce: ORDE, laye as this tyme to their charges. And when he had thus spoken, he fell a slepe.

The VIII. Chapter.

Saul had pleasure in his death. As of the same tyme there was a greates persecucion ouer the congregacion at Ierusalem. And they were all scattered abode in the regions of Iewye & Samaria, except the Apostles. As for Steven, men & feared God, & made greates lamentacion ouer him. But Saul made handes of the congregacion, entred in to every house, and drue out men & women, & deliuered the to prison. They now were scattered abode were aboute & preached the worde. The carme philippe in to a cite of Samaria, and preached Christ vnto them. And the people gaue him with one accorde vnto & thinges that philippe spake, hearing him, and synginge the col is that he dyd. For the violence of the tye he dyd, and departed out of many & were possessed. And many that were sicke of the pallie & lame, were healed. And there was a greates love in the same cite.

One of them was man of samaria, a ce rayne man, called Simon, which was with the craft, and bewitched & people of Samaria, sayng, that he was a man which coulde do greates thinges. And they all regarded him from the lest vnto & greates, & sayde: This is the power of God which is greates. But they regarded him, because that of long tyme he had bewitched them with his sorcery. Howbeit when they beleued philippe preaching of & synging of God, and of the name of Iesu Christ, they were baptized both him & wome. Then Symon himselfe desired also, and was baptized, and cleded vnto philippe. And when he sawe the doctes and tokenes that were done, he wondered.

When the Apostles which were at Jerusalem, heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto the Peter and John. Which, when they were come, prayed for them, so they might receive the holy ghost. For as yet he was come upon a mount of them, because they were baptized only in the name of Christ Jesus. Then layed they their hands on them, and they received the holy ghost.

But when Simoa sawe, that by the laying on of the Apostles handes, the holy ghost was given, he offered the money, and sayde: Give me also this power, that, on whomever I put the handes, he may receive the holy ghost. To whom Peter sayde unto him: Perishe thou with thy money, because thou thinkest that the gifte of God may be bought with money. Thou shalt have neither part nor fellowship in this worde, for thou art not righte before God. Repente therefore of this thy wickednesse, and praye unto God, if happily the thought of thy heart may be forgiven thee. For thou art full of bitter gall, and wrapped in thine own craftynesse.

Then answered Simoa, & sayde: Praye ye unto the LORDE for me, if none of these things which I have spoken, come upon me. And they, when they had testified and spoken the worde of the LORDE, turned againe to Jerusalem, and preached the Gospel in many towncs of the Samaritane.

But the angel of the LORDE spake unto Philippe, and sayde: Arise, & go towards the South, into the waye that goeth downe from Jerusalem into Gaza, which is deserte. And he rose, and went on. And behelde, a man of the Antonians (that is a chamberlayne, and of acquaintance with Candace, the queene of the londe of the Antonians) which had the rule of all his treasures, of some came to Jerusalem to worships. And remained house agayne, and sat upon his chaire, and rebote the people of Isray.

The spirit sayde unto Philippe: Followe me, and I will shew thee things. And he arose, and went forth. Then came Philippe unto him, and herde him reade the prophet Esay, and sayde: Understandest thou what thou readest? He sayde: How can I, excepte some man instruct me?

And he desired Philippe, that he would come up, and sit with him. The teneure of the scripture which he red, was this: He was led as a shepe to be slayne, and as a lambe voycelles before his sheper, so opened he not his mouth. In his humbleness in his judgemente exalted, who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken awaye from the earth. Then answered the chamberlayne unto Philippe, and sayde: I praye thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this of himselfe, or of some other man?

Philippe opened his mouth, and beganne at this scripture, and preached him the Gospel of Jesus. And as they were on the waye, they came to a water. And the chamberlayne sayde: Beholde, here is water, what hindereth me to be baptized? Philippe sayde: I shewen before from thy whole heart, thou mayest be answered, and sayde: I beleve, that Jesus Christ is the sonne of God. And he commaunded to holde fast the chaire, and they wente downe to the water, both Philippe and the chamberlayne. And he baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water, the spirit of the LORDE toke Philippe awaye. And the chamberlayne sware him nomine. And he wente on his waye rejoycinge. As for Philippe, he was founde at Azotus, and walked aboute, and preached the Gospel unto all the cities, till he came to Cesarea.

The XX. Chapter.

And was yet dwellinge at Cesarea, & myages and slaughter against the disciples of the LORDE. And wente unto yfze prest, and desired of him letters to Damascus unto the synagoge, that if he founde any of this waye (whiche they were men of reuerence) he mighte bringe them bounde unto Jerusalem. And as he was goinge on his iourney, it fortuned, that he came unto Damascus, and suddenly he lighted rounde aboute him a lighte from heauen, and he fell to the earth, and herde a voyce, which sayde unto him: Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? He sayde: LORDE, who art thou? The LORDE sayde: I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest. It shall be shortlye agaynst thee, and thou shalt be broughte unto the kinge. And he layd on the grounde, and stood up, and sayde: LORDE, what wilt thou that I shal do? The LORDE sayde unto him: Arise, and gaine thee cleare, for thou shalt be tolde the what thou shal do.

As for yfze that iourneyed with him, he stood and was amazed: for they herde a voyce, but sawe no man. Saul rose from the earth, and when he had opened his eyes, sawe no man. He wente then, and sought him by the hande, & broughte him to Damascus, and he was three dayes without sight, and neither ate nor dranke. In Damascus there was a disciple named Ananias, and when him sayde the LORDE in a vision: Ananias go in the house of Tuda after one called Saul of Tarsus: for he prayde, & hath fast in a vision a man named Ananias charging vnto him, that he might see him, & that he might receive his sight.

Ananias answered: LORD, I have her by many of this man, how much he hath done to thy saymes at Ierusalem. And hath hee the audience of the hyeprestes, to bynde all these? I call vpon thy name. The LORD sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, for this man is a chosen vessel vnto me, that he maye beare my name before the heathen, and before kynges, and before the children of Israel. I will shewe him, howe greace thyng he himselfe suffer for my names sake.

And Ananias wente his waye, and came into the house, and layde the handes vpon him, and sayde: Brother Saul, the LORD which appeared vnto y in the waye as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receiue thy sight, and be filled with the holy gost. And immediatly there fell from his eyes as it had bene scales, and he receaued his sight, and rose, and was baptysed, and ate meate, and was comforted.

Then was Saul a certayne dayes with the disciples that were at Damascus. And sometime waye he preached Christ in the synagoges, howe that he was y sonne of God.
But all they that herde him, were amazed, and sayde: Is not this he, which at Ierusalem spoiled all those that called on his name? and came hither to the intent that he should bringe them bounde vnto the hye priest? But Saul increased in strength, & disowned y James which dwelt at Damascus, and affirmed y this was very Christ.

And after many dayes ache Ierome helde a councell to gether to kill him. But it was told Saul, that the y layd his eyes for him.
And they wayed at y gaze daye & night, that they might kill him. Then the disciples tooke him by night, & put him throu-the wall, and let him downe in a basket.

But when Saul came to Ierusalem, he sought to kille himselfe of y disciples. And they were all a frayd of him, and beleued not, y he was a disciple. Then helde Barnabas take him, and brought him into the synagoges, and tolde them how he had founde the LORD in the waye, and how he spake colon, & how he had done boldly at Damascus in the name of Iesu. And he was with them, and wente out with him to Ierusalem, and quene himselfe boldly in y name of I. LOR-DE Iesu. He spake also, and disputed with y Greekes. But they were aboue to slaye him.

When the brethren knewe y, they brought him to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus.
So the congregacions had rest then out of all Jewry, and Galilee, and Samaria, & were edified, and walked in the feare of the LORDE, and were filled with the comforte of the holy gost.

It chaunced that as Peter walked throough all quarters, he came also vnto y sayn-tes which dwelt at Lydda. There founde he a man named Aeneas, which had layd vpon his bedd eight yeres: sick of y palsy. And Peter sayde vnto him: Aeneas, Iesus Christ make the whole, arise, and make thy bedd for y self. And he arose immediatly. And all they that dwelt at Lydda and at Saronne, sawe him, and turned vnto the LORD.

At Joppa there was a certayne woman that was a disciple, named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Doreas: y same was full of good woikes and almesdeedes, which she dyd. But it chaunced at the same tyme, that she was sicke, and dyed. Then her neighbours gathered her, and layde her in a chamber. But for so much as Lydda was nye vnto Joppa, and the disciples herde that Peter was there, they sent two men vnto him, and beseechd him, y he would take care for some grese to come vnto them.

Peter rose, and came with them. And when he was come, they brought him into the chamber, and all the wyddowes stood rounde about him, weeping, and shewing him the clothes and garnitures, which Doreas made while she was with them. And when peter had put them all forth, he knelt downe, made his prayer, and turned him vnto the body, and sayde: Tabitha, rise vp. And she opened hie eyes: and when she sawe Peter, she sat hir downe agayne. Then he gaue her the hande, and lifte her vp, and called the sayntes and the widowes, and shewed her there alive. And it was knowne throuough all Joppa, & many beleued on y LORD.
And it fortuned, y he carried a luge shoon at Joppa by one Simas, which was a tanner.

The X. Chapter.

There was a man at Cesarea, named Cornelius a captaine of y company, which is called y Italianus: a de-uout man, & one that feared God, & all his house: & gaue much almesse to y people, and prayed God alwaye. The same same in a uision openly (about the eighth home of the day) an angell of God entringe in to him, and sayenge vnto him: Comelun. The loberd upon him, and was a frayeb, and sayde: LORDE, what is it? He sayde vnto him: Thy prayere & thine almeses are come up in to remembrance before God. And now see den vnto Ioppa, & call for Simō, whose synname is Peter, which is at lodgyng with one Symon a carner, whose house I reche by yf se fyve: he shal tell y, what thou oughtest to do. And whā the angell which spake to Comelun, was departed, he called two of his household seruantes, & a beuour shewer, of whiche he rayed upon him: and tolde them all, and sent the to Ioppa.

On the next daye after whan these were goinge on their iourney, and came nye vnto the cite, Peter wente apin to a chamber to praye aboue the sixth house. And whan he was begyn, he wolde haue cast. But whyle they made ready for him, he fell into a trauaile, and sawe heauē open, and a vessel comynge downe vnto him, as it had bene a greatesynne clothe, drye at the foure corners, and was let downe wth yf earth, wherein were all maner of foure footed bestes of the earth, & yf fyve bestes, and womes, and foules of the ayer. And there came a voyce vnto him: Arise Peter, slaye, & eate. But Peter sayde: Whā no, LORDE, for I haue eate eny comment of vncleane thyng. And the voyce spake vnto him agayne yf se dede tyme: What God hath clensed, & make nee thou vncleane. This was done thryf. And yf vessel was receaued up agayne in to heauen.

But whyle Peter was combed in him selfe, what maner of vision thin shoulde be to whiche he had sene, beholde, the men yf receuēt from Cornelus, enquired after Symōs house, and stode before the doore, and called, and cryed: he cher Simon (whose synname was Peter) whiche lodged there. Whyle Peter was makinge of these ashen, the spere sayde vnto him: beholde, the men seke the. Arise therefore, and geue the doore, & go with the, and donee not, for I haue sent them.

Then wente Peter downe to the men, & were sene vnto him from Cornelus, and sayde: I am he whom ye seek: what is yf cause, wherfore ye are come? They sayde: Cornelus the ce prayner, a cust man and one that feared God, and of good reporte amonge all the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holy angell, so sende for the in to his house, and to heare yf wordes of the. Then called he them in, and lodged them.

The nexte daye a fter wente Peter with them, and certayne brethren of Ioppa bare him company. And yf daye foremynge came they to Cesarea, Cornelus was yett seker, and had called to gather his yf fustice and yf speciall frendes. And as it chaunced yf Peter came in, Cornelus a meet him, and fell downe at his feet, & worshippid him. But Peter toke him vp, and sayde: Stande, for I am a man also. And as he called to him, he wente on, and founde many that were come together, and he sayde vnto them: Menne, that it is not lawfull for a man born in ge a Jewe to ioyne him selfe oore comen a stranger. But God hath shewed me, yf I shoulde call no man comen or vncleane. Therefore haue I neede to come, as some as I was sent for. I care yf thou thinkest, for what intent haue ye sent some?

Cornelius sayde: It is now foure dayes agoe, when I fasted, and at the eighth houre I prayed in my house, and beholde, thou stode a mā before me in a drygge clothyng, and sayde: Cornelus, yf praye is here, and thine allmeses dedes are had in remembrance in the sight of God. Stande forth to Ioppa, and call for one Simon (whose synname is Peter) which is at lodgyng in yf house of Simon yf carner, by the seefyde: yf same word he cometh, shal speake vnto yf. Then sent I vnto the immediately, and thou hast bene well, that thou art come. Now are we all here present before God, to heare all thynges that are commaunded the of God.

Peter opened his mouth, & sayde: Menne, perceaue I of a trauer, that God hath respect of personnes, but in all people he sekerth him, and maketh nigh to euery man that feareth him. He knowe of yf preachinge that God sent vnto the children of Israel, preachinge thowm Jesus of Nazareth, which is LORDE (ouer all) which preachinge was published thowm ouer all Jewry, & ambrogaine in Galile after yf baptyme whan John preached how God anoynted the sonne of Iosaf Nazareth with the holy goode and power, which wente abowde, & dyed, and healed all thes that were oppressed of the deuill, for God was with him. And we are witnesses of all that he dyd in the cite of the Jewes, & at Ierusalem. Whan they slew, and hanged on tre.

Sum God rayed up an the thirde daye, and caused him be openly shewed, nedyed the people, butte yf chosen witnesses of the euen ones, which are & dyed: much more after he was risen up from the dead. And

¹ he commaunded vs to prech vnto the people, and to testifie, that it is he which is ordained of God a wage of thei ymage and of the deoth. Of him beare all the prophetez witness, that thouow his name all they that beare in him, shall receaue remission of synne. Whyke Peter was yet speakeyng thes wordes, the holy goost fell vpon all the that were there vnto the woode. And the saith full of the carcleston which came with Peter, were astonnyed, because that the gifte of y holy goost was shed vnto also vpon the theythen. For they herde that they spake wordes wondrous, and magnified God. The answered Peter: Maye any man forsydde water, that thes shalde not be baptysed, which haue receaued the holy goost as well as we? And he commaunded them to be baptysed in the name of the LORDE. The prayed they him, that he wolde saye there certayne dayes.

The XI. Chapter.

² The Apostles and the brethren that were in Jewrye, herde saie, that the theythen also had receaued the worde of God. And when Peter was come vnto Jerusalem, they that were of the carcleston, chode with him, and sayde: Thou wentest into men that are vnclannysed, and hast eaten with them. But Peter began, and recounted the thyngs in order vnto the end wyde: I was in y cite of Joppa prayyng, and in a trance I sawe a vision, o verrill amynge downe, as y had bene a greatesheete clothe wch foure corners, and let dorne from heauen, and came vnto me. In it the which I leked, and considered, and sawe foure footed bestes of the earth, and nyghtes tres, and reumes, and foules of the ayre. And I herde a voyce, which sayde vnto me: Arise Peter, slaye, & eat. But I sayde: Oh nu, LORDE, for there neuer entred any comen or vncleane thyng in to my mouth. Thenceforth the voyce answered me agayne from heauen: What God hath clensyd, that call not thou vncleane. This was done thre tymes, and all was eaten up agayne and beane.

And behold, immediately stode there thre men before the doore of the house that I was in: from Cesarea vnto me. But the spake wyde vnto me, that I shulde go with the and douce me change. Thes sixe brethren also came with me, and we entred in to the man house.

And he shewed vs, how he had sene an myll stouringe in his house, which sayde vnto him: Sende me to Joppa, and call for Simon (whose surname is pete) he shal tell y wordes, whereby thou and all they house shal be saved. But when I began to speake, the holy goost fell vpon them, as it was vnto us at y begynnyng. Then thoughte I vpon the worde of the LORDE, how he sayde: Iohn baptysed with water, but ye shalbe baptysed with y holy goost. Forasmuch thea as God hath gown them the gifte, as vnto vs, in whiche dede vnto the LORDE Iesus Christ, who was I that I shulde be able to withstode God: What they herde this, they helde their peace, and praised God, and sayde: Then hath God also to the theythen graunted repentance vnto life.

They that were seaturd abroad theowt y trouble y refectione Steuen, walked in euerysyde vntyll phenices, and Cipra, and Antioche, and spake the wordes vnto noman but onely vnto y Jewes. Thenceforth some of the more men of Cipra and Cyren, which came to Antioche, and spake alid vnto the Sectes, & preached the Gospell of the LORDE Iesu. And y bande of the LORDE was with thes. And a greates nombre dedene, and turned vnto the LORDE.

The rydges of them came to y cete of the congregacion at Jerusalem. And they sent Barnabas, that he shulde go vnto Antioche. Which when he was come thither, & sawe the grace of God, he was glad, & exouted them all, that with purpof of bent they wolde be continus in the LORDE. For he was a good man, full of the holy goost and faith. And there was a greates multitude of people addid vnto the LORDE. But Barnabas departed vnto Charus, to selle Saul. And wha he had sold he, he broughte hi to Antioche. He chaced, that a whole yere they were there conuersaunt together in the congregaci, & taughte moche people, so that the disciples at Antioche were first called Chresten.

In those dayes came there prophetez fro Jerusalem vnto Antioche. And one of them (whose name was) Agabus yfode vp, and declared by the spate a greates deth, that shulde come ower the whole compace of the earth: which came to passe vnter the Emperoure Claudius. But the disciples consolded (every one a consoling to his abyde) to stande an hand machynges vnto y brethern that were in Jewry: which thyng they also dyd, and stode by the handes of Barnabas and Saul.

The XII. Chapter.

And the same tyme layde theye herode handes vpon certayne of the congregacion, to vexe them. As for James the brother of Ihon, him he slawe with the sword. And when he sawe that it pleased the Jewes, he proceeded farther to take Peter also. But it was Easter. Now when he had taken him, he put him in prison, and beleyned him vnto foure quaternions of souldiers, to kepe him: and thought a sater Easter to bringe him forth to the people. And Peter was kepte in the prison. But prayer was made without ceasinge of the congregacion, vnto God for him. And when herode wolde haue broughte him one onto the people, in the same nighte slepe Peter betwene two souldiers, bounde with two cheynes. And the keepers before the doore kep to the prison.

And beholde, the angell of the LORDE was there present, and a light shyned in the habitacion, and he smote Peter on the syde, and waked him vp, and sayde: Arise vp quickly. And the cheynes fell of from his bondes. And the angell sayde vnto him: Gye thee, and put on thy shoes. And he dyd so. And he sayde vnto him: Cast thy mantle aboute thee, and folowe me. And he wente out, and folowed him, and wist not, that it was trouth that was done by 3 angell. But thought he had sene a vision. And theretwix they wente thorow the first and seconde watch, and came to the yron gate, that ledech vnto the cite, which opened to the by his awne accorde. And they wente out, and passed thorow one street, and immediatly the angell departed from him.

And when Peter was come to himself, he sayde: Now I knowe of a trouth, that if LORDE hath sent his angell, and deliuered me out of the hande of herode, and from all the mayninge for of the people of the Jewes. And as he considered the thinge, he came to the house of Marye the mother of Ihon, which after his synname was called Marthe: where many were gathered togethe, and prayed. As Peter knocked at the entry doore, there came forth a damsell of heret, named Rhoda. And when she knewe Peters voyce, she opened not the dore, for glouerie, but came in, and tolde, that Peter stood before 3 entrye. But they sayde vnto her: Thou art mad. Theretwix she abode by it, that it was so. They sayde it to his angell. But Peter continued knocking. When they opened the doore, they sawe him, and were astonied. But he began to vnto them with the hande, to holde their peace, and tolde them, howe the LORDE had brought him out of the prison. And he sayde: Departe this vnto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and vnto in to another place.

When it was daie, there was not alth a doo amonge the souldiers, what was become of Peter. When herode had called for him, and founde him not, he canfide the keepers to be traynors, and commaunded that he should be caried awaye, and he woude demerit Jewry vnto Cesarea, and there abode. But he was displeased with the of Tyre and Sidon. Theretwix they came vnto him with one accorde, and made intercession to Blaeus the kynges chamberlayne, and desied peace, because their countrie was neyghb by the kynges londe. But vpon a daye appointed, herode put on 3 kingly apparel, sat him downe vpon the indigene seate, and made an oracion vnto them. As for the people, they cried theto: This is a voyce of God, and not of a man. Immediately the angell of the LORDE smote him, because he gaue not God the honoure: And he was eaten up of wormes, and gaue up the goost. But the word of God grewe, and multiplyd. As for Barnabas and Saul, they came agayne to Ierusalem, and departed 3 the handeachinge, and toke with them Ihon, whose synname was Mark.

The XIII. Chapter.

There were at Antioche in the congregacion, prophetes and teachers, 3 Barnabas, and Simon called Niger, and Lucius of Cyren, and Manahes herodes the Tetrarchas wife sclave, and Saul. As they serued if LORDE, and fasted, the holy goost sayd: Separate me out Barnabas and Saul for the worke, whereunto I have called them. Then fasted they and prayed, and layde the handes on them, and let them go. And they byng: sent of the holy goost, came vnto Seleucia, from thence the y sailed vnto Cyprus. And when they were come in to the cite Salamis, they shewed the worde of God in the synagogs of 3 Jewes. And they had 3 Ihonas their minister.

And when they had gone thowse out the yle vnto the cyte of paphos, they founde a certayne Sorcerer and false prophet: a Iewe (whose name was Barjesu) which was with Sergias Paulus the ruler of the countrie, a man of understandinge. When called Barnabas and Saul vnto him, and hush to heare y^e worde of God. Then the

 b. Sacerdote (Elmas for so was his name by interpretation) with sode the, and soughes w^{ch} in a mye the ruler frs the saith. But Saul whis is also called Paul, beinge full of the holy gooslokes upon him, and sayde: O thou dyble of the denell, full of all subtil-tie and all disceitfulnes, and enemye of all righteousnes, thou craftest not to peruerse the straight wayes of y^e LORD. And now behold, the hnde of the LORD cometh upon the, and thou shalt be blynde, and not see the Sonne for a season, And immediately there fell on him a myste and darknesse, and he wente aboute, and soughes then that shalde lede him by the hande. When the releu came to the place, he belynd, and it had the doctrine of the LORD.

What Paul and they that were with him, were departed by shippe frs Paphos. they came to Perga in the londe of Pamphilia. But Iohn departed from them, and wente agayne to Jerusalem. Then the lse they wandred thens from Perga, and came to Antioche in the londe of Syria. and wente in to the synagoge upon the Sabbath daye, and sat doune. But a fter the lse of the laue and of the prophete, the rulers of the synagoge sent unto them, sayinge: Good brother, ys ye have any sermon to cōmēte the people, saye ou. Then stode Paul up, and bēdred with the hande (that they shalde holde their peace) and sayde:

Men of Israel, and yet that feare God, hearken: The God of this people chose our fathers, and exalted the people, when they were strangers in the lode of Egypt, and with a myghtie arme brought he them out of thence. And by the space of fyve years sustained he them in the wyldernes, and destroyed them in the londe of Canaan, and parced their londe amonge them by lot. After that gaue he them iudges by the space of foure hundred and fyfte yeas, vnto the prophet Samuel. And a fter that they desired a kynge, and God gaue vnto them Saul the sonne of Cis, a man of the cryle of Ben Iamin, foure yeares lon-ge. And when he had put him doune, he set up David to be their kynge, of whome it was sayde: "I haue founde David the sonne of Iesse, a man a fter my herte, he shal fulfill all my will."

Of this man sode hath God (accordinge to the promise) brought forth vnto the people of Israel, y^e Sauoure Iesus: whom Iohn had first preached before his cōmynge the baptyeme of repentance vnto Israel.

 But when Iohn had fulfilled his course, he sayde: I am not he, that ye take me for.
 But behold, there cometh one a fter me, whose shoes of his feete I am not worthy to looke. Remen and brethren, ye children of the generacion of Abraham, and the y^e that feare God amonge you, vnto you is y^e word of this saluacion sent. For the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and their rulers, forso-med as they knewe him not, nor yet the voyces of the prophetes (which are reuery Sabbath) haue fulfilled them in condemnyng him. And though they founde no cause of death in him, yet desired they to kill him. And when they had fulfild all that was wyrtten of him, they toke him doune from the tre, and layed him in a sepulchre. But on y^e thirde daye God rayfed him up from the dead, and he appeared many dayes vnto the, that wente up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, whiche are his witnesses vnto the people.

And now I declare vnto you y^e promises, which were made vnto our fathers, how that God hath fulfilled the same vnto their children, in y^e he rayfed up Iesus a kynge. As it is wyrtten in the seconde Psalme: Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten thee. But that he hath rayfed him up frs the dead, none of you to returne to corruption, he sayde on this wyse: The grace promised to David, wyl I surely kepe vnto you. Therefore sayeth he also in another place: Thou shalt not suffre thy holy to cor-ruptiō. For David, when he in his tyme had serued the wyll of God, he fell a slepe, and was layed by his fathers, & sawe cor-ruptiō. But he whos God hath rayfed up agayn-st all sorow without corrupciō.

Hele knowe vnto you that for ye men and brethren, y^e whom this man is preached vnto you y^e forgiveness of synnes, and frs all y^e thinges, whereby ye mighte not be ius-tified in the laue of Moses. But whoseter beleueth on this man, he shal be iustified.
 Therefore, that it come not vpon you, whiche is spoken in the prophetes: Wholde ye despyse, and wonder at it, and perseye, for I be a witte in youre tyme, whiche ys shal not beleue, y^e very man tellis you.

When the Jewes were gone out of the synagoge, they then besought them, y^e they wolde speake y^e worde vnto them be-twene the Sabbath dayes. And whiche the gregacion of the synagoge man bēdren op, many Jewes and proselites & served God, solomed Paul and Barnabas, which saue to them, and & croued them, that they shoul-de continue in the grace of God.

¶ On y Sabbath followinge, came almost the myltitude together, to heare the wordes of God. But when the Jewes sawe the people, they were full of indignacion, and said agaynst that which was spoken of Paul, speakinge agaynst us, & blasphemynge. But Paul and Barnabas waxed bolde, and sayde, I behaue first the wordes of God to ye, as much tyme you: but a case they refused to heare you, and counte them selves prophecies.

The XIII. Chapter.

And forsooke as Iohnum, that they were booke together in the synagoge of the Jewes, and spake so that a great multitude of the Jewes & of the Grekes believed. But the unbelievinge Jewes moted and dispersed the soules of the apostles: so they had thur bekeags there a long season, and yett the silence boldy in the LORDE, which gave testimony vnto the words of his grace, and caused to them and newborn to be done by their handes. Howbeit the multitude of the sinc was decayed, some helde wth the Jewes, and some with the Apostles.

But when these rose up and a succession of the heathen and of y^e Jewes, and of chieftie rulers, to put them to shame, and to stone the, they persecuted it, and fled into Ilyria, and other cities of y^e countrey of Aconica, and unto y^e region that lyeth round about it, and therewith persecuted the Gospel.

25 And among them of Ephraim, there was a man, whose name was Jotham, the youngest son of Jerubbaal: and he was a wise man.

and had neuer realized, the same heere Paul speaks. And when he behelde him, and perceaued that he had faith to be mended, he sayde a londe voyce: Stande vp upon on this plat. And he spake vp with them, But when the people sawe that Paul had done, they lift up their voyces, a noyde in f speech of I. y. accomit. The goodde are becomelike unto men, and are come to us to vs. And they called Barnabas Iupine, and Paul Istercurus, because he was the preacher. But Iupirius prech which dauid before that cile, brought open and gailer before the gate, and wold haue done crifice with the people.

When y^e Apostles Barnabas and Paul had preached, they rent their clothes, and tore in amonge the people, crying and saying thus. We bid you hereinafter, we bid me also bid vnto you, to preach vnto you the Gospell, that y^e shulde turne from thei re sinnes vnto y^e living God, which ma-keth us and earth, and the sea, and all thin-ges therein, to be in y^e waye of saluation.
So they to walke in their amine wayes.
The archdeale he hath not left be his owne waye, and y^e hath drawed his hea-rent, and gottene raine from heauen, and fruitfull seasons, silyngue oure herbes and fode and glabnesse. And wha^t say they this, they feare to sayn to the people, that they dyd not testify vnto them.

But there came thither certain Iews from Antioche and Iconiū, and persuaded the people, and stones paul, and beat him out of the cite, supposing hee to be hades teacher. So theye by 3 disciples fledde to come to him, he stole vnto, & came into the cite.
And on the next daye he departed with Zamabeas vnto Derbe, and preached the Gospell vnto the same cite, and caught many of them. And theye wrote agayne vnto Iudas and Iconium and Antioche, strengthening the soules of 3 disciples, and exhorting to continue in the faith, and that we must much tribulation must endure to to the kingdome of God. And wher they had ordeined them selfe by election thorow all the gregations, they prayed and fasted, and commended them vnto the LORDE, as wher they desired.

And they wente thorow pſidia, and came to Pamphilia, and ſpoke the word a perſon, and were homne to Attalia, and ſo the ſhip departed they by ſhippe into Aſia the: from whence they were deſcended to the grace of God vnto y^e roade, which they had filled. When they came there, they gathered the congregation together, & shewed them, how great things God had done for them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles. And there they abode a long time with the disciples.

The XV. Chapter.

¶ Unto there came certayne frō Jenuy, and taughte the brethren: & receiue ye be curiouse after the maner of Moses, ye can not be faine. For w^{ch} the mosaie thessem, and Paul and Barnabas had frō their selues hardy agaynst them, they obeyed, that Paul and Barnabas and certayne other of them shulde go vnto Iherusalem w^{ch} the Apostles and Elders about this questio. And they were brought in their waye by 3 congregacion, & w^{ch}te theron Phenices and Samaria, and decla reth, a consensation of the heyden, and broughte greates coye vnto all the brethren.
¶ When they came to Iherusalem, they were re ceiued of 3 congregacion, & of the Apostles, and of the Elders, & they tolde howe geate things God had done w^{ch} the. Then rose there vnto certayne of the secte of phariseis (which beloued) and sayde: They must be cir cumcised and commaunded to kepe the lawe of Moses. But the Apostles and Elders came together, to reasyn upon this matter.
¶ Then w^{ch} there was inoch disputinge betweene vs, and sayde vnto the: Ye men and brethren, ye knowe that a good w^{ch}le age, God chose among vs, & the heyden by any myght shulde heare the wordes of the Gospel, and beleue. And God the knowre effectes bare to myselfe ouer the, & gaue the holy gst like as vnto vs. & put no difference betwixte vs & them, and putted ther betwixt thei & vs. For thei soue ney temple ye God, much longer vpon his peoples neckes the yoke, which neither discern nor we were able to beare. But now were to be saved thei w^{ch} the grace of the LORDE Jhu Crist, like as thei also. Thence is multitude helde thei peace, and gaue assistance vnto Paul and Barnabas, w^{ch}lyd w^{ch}thow greater colons and w^{ch}ntens God had done by thei amonge the heyden. After w^{ch} w^{ch} thei ye helde thei peace. James answered, and sayde: Ye men and brethren, heare me. Sinc both tolde, howe God thei frō w^{ch}tyred to receaue a people vnto his name from amonge the heyden. And there is agree 3 wordes of the prophet, as thei sayed: After this w^{ch} I haue and wyłbyłde agayne ꝑ tabernacle of Dauid, that in fallen dome, and that which is fallen because thereof, wyłbyłde agayne, and wył be it nō, that the residue of men may see after the LORD. And also the hope that up to whom my name is named, sayeth the LORD, which both all these things.

And now wote God are all his words from the beginning of ꝑ world. Wherefore my sentence is, that they which from amonge the heathen are turned vnto God, be not queyred, but be my vnto them, that they a bylyne them selfe from synners of Iudea, from synners, and from straung and bloudie. For I tolde haue of him synne in euery cite them preach him and be it in the synagoges euery Sab bath day.

And the Apostles and Elders with the whole congregation thought it good, to choose out: men of them, and to send them unto Antioche with Paul and Barnabas, namely: Judas, whose surname was Barsabas, and Silas (which were the first men among the brethren) and gave the letters in their hands after this manner:

We the Apostles and Elders & brethren, wysly healeth you the hurtful of the Synagoge which are at Antioche, and Syria and Celi-cia. For so much as we have heard how certain of oures are departed, and have troubled you, and combred your mynbes, foreigne ye must be circumcised, and kepe y^e Lawe (as whom we haue soch commendacion) if theye good unto vs, byeing a lathered cogatyng with one accord, to chuse our men, and to confer them vnto you, much as beloved Barnabas and Paul, men that haue to preceid their ynes for y^e names of oure LOR-DE Ihesu Christ. Therfor haue we sent Judas and Syllas, which shal tell you the same much more. For it pleased the hely gost and we, to laye no charge vpon you, more then these necessary ynges: That ye absteyne from the y^e offerings of ydols, and from bloude, and from strangle, and from what euer. From the which y^e absteyne your selues, vs that do well. For aswell

When these were sent forth, they came unto Antioch, and gathered the multitude together, and delivered the epistle. When they had read it, they were glad of that consolation. As for Judas & Silas (which were prophets also) they reported & preached much in many churches, and strengthened them. And when they had varied there for a season, they went for of the brethren in peace.

¶ Unto the Apostles. Notwithstandinge Sy-las thoughte it good to lyde there still.
But Paul and Barnabas cōmyned at Antiodice touching and preachinge the worde of the LORD, with other many.

¶ Therefores after certayne dayes Paul sayde vnto Barnabas: let vs go agayne, and visite our brethren whow all the cities (wherin we haue spred the worde of the LORD) how they do. But Barnabas ga-ue counsell, that they shoulde take with the Ihon, whose surname was Marke. Howbeit Marke thoughte it meete, not to take him with them, which departed from thence in Pamphylia, and wente not with them vnto the worde. And so sharpe was the strife betweene them, that they departed asunder one fro the other, and Barnabas toke Marke vnto him, and sayed vnto Cyprus. But Paul toke Syllas, and departed, beyng comyned of the brethren vnto the grace of God. He wente to Iconium and Celicia, stablishynge the congregacions.

The XVI. Chapter.

Gal. 1.

Act. 14

Rom. 16

1500 11 16

¶ Came vnto Derbe and to Lystra, and beholde, a certayne discipule was there named Tymotheus, the sonne of a Jewissh woman, which beleued, but his father was a Greke. If same had a good repute amonge the brether of Lystra and at Iconium. Paul wolde that the same shoul-de go forth with him, and toke and circumcysed him because of the Jewen that were in those quarters. For they knewe all, that his father was a Greke. But as they wente thowen the cities, they deliuered them the sentence to kepe, which was concluded of the Apostles and Elders at Jerusalem. The more the congregacions stablished in the faith, and increased in nombre daylie.

But as they wente thowen Phrygia and the londe of Galacia, they were forbidden of the holy goost, to preache the worde in Asia. Howbeit as they came in to Mysia, they purposed to take their iourney in to Bi-thinia, and the spere suffered them not.

¶ Therefores when they had passed beyonde Mysia, they came downe to Troade, and there appeared a vision vnto Paul by night, that there was a man of Macedonia which stood and prayed him, and sayde: Come downe to Macedonia, and helpe me.
When he had sent this vision, we soughte immediately to go, vnto Macedonia, beyng certified, that the LORD had called vs thither, to preache the Gospel vnto them. The departed we from Troade, and came the straighte course vnto Samothracia, the nexte daye to Neapolis, and from thence to Philippi, which is the cheefe cite of the lande of Macedonia, and a cite citie. In this cite he bode me certayne dayes.

On the daye of the Sabbathes wente we out of the cite byde the water, wher men were wonte to praye, and we sat downe, and spake vnto the women that resorted thither.
And a deaunte woman (named Lydia) a seller of purple, one of the cite of Thyatira, herkened to, whose heart the LORD opened, that she gaue heede vnto the thinges that Paul spake. When she was baptysed, and her household, she besoughte vs, and sayde: If ye chynke that I becom one of the LORD, then come in to my house, and a lyde then.
And she constrained vs.

¶ It fortuned when we wente to praye, I there met vs a damisell, which had a spere of syrchysage, and broughthe hit master and mastrisse greates wantonage with syrchysa-ge: yf same followed Paul and vs, and cryd, and sayde: These men are the seruantes of the most hye God, which saye we yf men of saluacion. Thus cryd she many dayes. But Paul was not conuincid with it, and toke him adooce, and sayde vnto the master: Ma-ndaunde the in the name of Iesu Christ, she shoulde departe one of her. And he departed at the same houre.

But when hit master and mastrisse saw that the hope of their vantage was gone, they toke Paul and Syllas, and brought them to the maier place before yf rulers, and brought the vnto the officers, and sayde: These men trouble our cite, yf are Jewes, and teach an vnyngance, which is not lawfull for vs to receaue, nor to obserue, syngge we are Antinians. And the people rane on thym, and the officers rente their clothes, and commended them to be beaten with roddes. And when they had beaten them sore, they cast the in prison, and commanded the ierles, not to receaue them diligetly. Whiche when he had receaued such commaundement, he callid in to the ymer prison, and put thar synn the Prysoners.

But a nyght might prayed Paul and Syllas, and prayed God. And the prisoners let de them. Suddenly was there a greates earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken. And immediately were all the doores open, and all their bondes loosed. And the keeper of the prison was adooce of sleep, and same the prison doores open, he was his swerde, and wolde haue kyled him selfe.

first thoughte y prisoners had bene fled.
The Paul cryed loud, and sayde: Do thy self no harme, for we are all here.

He called for a lighte, and sprang in, and numbered, and sell as the first of Paul and Sylas, and broughte them out, and sayde: Sirs, what must I do, to be saved? They sayde: Beloue on the LORDE Iesus, and so shalt thou and thy house be saved. And they preached the worde of the LORDE on him, and so all that were in his house.

And he toke them to him in the same hou se of the night, and washed their strepes.
And immediately was he baptysed, and all his. And he broughte them in to his house, and set them a table, and reioysed with all his household, that he was become a belie uer on God.

And whan it was daye, the officers of the citie sent mynisters, and sayde: Let these men go. And the keeper of the prison tolde the sayenge vnto Paul: The officers haue sent forther, that ye shoulde be loose. Now therefore see ye hies, and go in peace. But Paul sayde vnto them: They haue becom openly waterbaptized where as we are yet Romaines: and haue cast vs in prison, and shoulde they now chaunge vs out proudly?
We so, but let them come them selues, and take vs out. The mynisters tolde these wordes vnto the officers. And they feared, when they herde that they were Romaine, and came and besoughte them, and pured the to departe out of the cite. Then tooke they out of the prison, and entered in to the house of E. Iuda. And whan they had sent the brethren into comforted them, they departed.

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ And they made their iourney thorow Amphipolis and Apollonia, they cam e into Thessalonica, where was a syna goge of the Iewes. And Paul (as his ma nner was) went in unto them, and vpon the Sabbathes he spake vnto them of the scrip ture, opened it vnto the, and alleged, that Christ must needs haue suffered, & rise agayne from the dead: and this Iesus, whom I preach vnto you (in saide he) is of same Christ.
And some of the beloued, and were ioyned vnto Paul and Silas, a greates multitude of other deuoute Gentes, and of the chiefe men not a fewe.

But the synners of the Iewes had indigna tion, and toke vnto them certain euill men whiche were Gabinius, and gathered a company, and set the size in a towne, and pre sed vnto the house of Iason, and soughte to buyne them out vnto the common people.

But whan they founde them not, they beue Iason, and certayne brethren vnto the rulers of the cite, and cryed: These that trou ble all the worlde, are come hither also, whom Iason hath receaued privately. And these all do contrary to the decrees of the Emperours, sayenge, that there is another kyng, one Iesus. They troubled the people, and the rulers of the cite, that herde this.
And whan they had receaued a sufficient answere of Iason and of the other, they let them go.

But the brethren immediately sent a waye Paul and Silas by night vnto Berea.
Whan they came there, they rest in cothe surgogge of the Iewes (for they were the chiefest amonge the at Thessalonica) which receaued the worde maturoly willingly, and searched the scriptures daylie, whether it were enen so. Then beloued many of them, and worshipfull women off the Grekes, and men not a fewe. But whan the Iewes off Thessalonica had knowlege, that the worde off God was preached off Paul at Berea, they came, and moued the people there also. Howbeit the brethren sent Paul awaye then immediately, to go vnto the sea.
As for Silas and Timotheus, they abode there still.

They that conueyed Paul, broughte him vnto Achem. And whan they had recea ued a commaundement vnto Silas and Ti motheus, that they shoulde come vnto him in all the haist, they wente their waye. But whyle Paul wayed for them at Achem, his spere was moued in him, whan he sawe the cite gaue so to the worshippinge of yma ges. And he spake vnto the Iewes and de uoute persones in the synagoge, & in fmar ke daylie vnto the that came to him. But certayne phyllophers of f pictures and bookes disputed with him. And some say de: What wilt this babler saye? But some sayde: he seemeth to be a thinge bringere of newe goddes (that was, because he had preached vnto the the Gospell of Iesus, & of the resurrection.) And they toke him, and broughte him before the counsell house, and sayde: We haue not knowe, what newe doc trine this is that thou teachest. For thou bringest still strange thinges to oure eares: We wolde knowe therefore, what this meaneth.
As for all they of Achem, and strangers & gesles, they gaue the silas to no thinge the,

but either to tell, or to heare some newes.

D Paul stode on the myddes of the comen place, and sayde: Ye men of Aethens, I see that in all thinges ye are to superstitious. I haue gene thowme, & sene youre gods seruyce, and founde an altare, wher vpon was wrytten: To the vngknowen God. Now therfore I vnto you & I same, whom ye worshippe ignorantly. God which made & woulde, and all thynge therein is, for so much as he is L O R D E of heauen and earth, dwelleth not in temple made of handes, neither is he worshipped with mens handes, as though he had neede of eny man, saynge he himselfe greatly li- fe and breath vnto all men every where: and hath made of one blood all the generation of men to dwell vpon all the face of y^e earth: and hath assigned borders appoynted before, how longe and farre they shulde dwell, that they shoulde feele the L O R D E, yf they mighte fele and fynde him.

E And truly he is not farre from every one of us. For in him we liue, moue, and haue our beinge, as certayne of youe are ene poetes also haue sayde: We are his generation, for as much then as we are the generation of God, we oughte not to thinke that the Godheade is like vnto golde or siluer, or ymagery made of the craftes or ymaginations of man. And truly God hath ouersene the vyne of ignorance: But now he com- mandereth all men every where to repent, because he hath appoynted a daye, in the which he wyl iudge the chypasse of the world, with righteousnesse, by that one man in whō he hath appoynted it: and offered faith vnto all men, a fere that he had rayd him vp from the dede.

When they hearde of the resurrection of the dede, some mocked. But some sayde: We wyl heare the agayne of this matter. So Paul departed from amonge them. Howbeit certayne men came vnto him, and beleued: amonge whom was Dionysius, one of the counsell: and a woman named Damaris, and othe with them.

The XVIII. Chapter.

And when Paul had departed from Aethens, and came to Corinth, and founde a Iew named Aquila, borne in p- to- na, which was lately come out of Italy: and his wife Priscilla (because the Emperō Claudius had commaunded all Iewes to departe from Rome) and he dwelt vnto the. And because he was of the same craft, he abode with the, and wrought. Thei were of the same craft. And he preached in the synagoge every Sabbath daye, and ex- horteth the Iewes and the Grekes.

When Silas and Timotheus were come: so at Antiochia, Paul was constrained by the spirit to testify vnto y^e Iewes, that Iesus was very Christ. But when they sayde contrary and blasphemed, he shote his ray- mene, and sayde vnto them: Your blood be vpon youre owne heades. From hence forth I go blaspemy vnto the Gentyles. And he departed thence, and came in to the house of a man named Justus, which feared God, and his house was a nexte vnto the syna- goge. Somewhat Crispus the chiefe ruler of the synagoge, beleued on y^e L O R D E with all his household. And many of the Corinthians that gaue audience, beleued, and were bap- tized.

The L O R D E spake vnto Paul by a vision in y^e nighte: Be not afraid, but speake, and holde on thy peace, for I am with thee, and no man shal inuade thee that shal hurt thee, for I haue much people in this cite. He con- ceyned there a yere and sixe monethes, and taught them the wordes of God.

But when Gallio was ruler of the coun- tre of Achaia, the Iewes made insurrection vnto ene accorde agaynst Paul, & brought him before the iudgement seat, and sayde: This felow conuerteth men to worshippe God contrary to the lawe. When Paul was a doore to open his mouth, Gallio sayde vnto y^e Iewes: If it were a matter of wronge or an euill dede (O ye Iewes) reason with that I shulde heare you: but yf it be a questi- on of wordes, and of names, and of y^e lawe amonge you, loke ye to it yence selues, I thinke not to be indige there ouer. And he drew them from the iudgement seate. The same all the Grekes rote. So the same the ruler of the synagoge, and more than before the iudgement seate. And Gallio cared for none of these thi- ges.

Paul after y^e he had ended a good wy- le, rode his iourne of the brethren, and sayde to Syna, Priscilla & Aquila bearinge him company. And he shote his word at Cor- inth: for he had a vnto y^e came downe to Ephesus, & left them there. But he himselfe went in to the synagoge, and reasoned with the Iewes. And they defied him, that he woulde tary with them a longer season. And he offered not, but bad them farewell, and sayde: I must needs in any wyse deperte, I feele that commeth, at Ierusalem: but I will ceasse agayne vnto you. And he departed from Ephesus, and mete Cafars, and wente up, and saluted y congregacion, and toke his journey downe to Antioche, and taried there a certayne tyme, and departed, and walked throu all y coastes of Galatia and Phrygia by order, and strenghted all the disciples.

There came vnto Ephesus a certayne Jewe named Apollos (borne at Alexandria) an eloquent man, and mighty in the scriptures: the same was instructed in the waye of the LORDE, and spake sternely in the synagoge, and taught diligently the things of the LORDE, and knewe but the baptyne of Iohn onely. The same beganne to speake boldly in the synagoge. When Aquila and Priscilla a herde him, they toke him vnto the, and expounded the waye of God vnto him more perfectly. And when he wolde go in to Asia, the brethren wrote, and warned the disciples to cease him. And when he was come thither, he helped them much which belated throu grace. For he overcame the Jewes mightily, and shewed openly by y scripture, that Iesus was Christ.

The XIX. Chapter.

But it fortuned when Apollos was at Corinthum, that Paul walked throu the upper coastes, and came to Ephesus, and founde certayne disciples, vnto whom he sayde: Hane ye receaved y holy goost? they answered: They sayde vnto him: We haue not heard, whether there be an holy goost. He sayde vnto them: Where with then were ye baptyzed? They sayde: With the baptyne of Iohn. Paul sayde: Iohn baptyzed with the baptyne of repentance, and spake vnto y people, that they shoulde beleue on him, which shalde come a fter him, that is, on Iesus, that the same is Christ. When they herde that, they were baptyzed in the name of the LORDE Iesu. And when Paul layed the handes on the, the holy goost came vpon them, and they spake with euangelia, and prophesied. And all the men were abuntye moued.

So wente into y synagoge, and preached boldly thre monethes longe, teachinge, and strayinge them quotations of the kyngdome of God. But when Iuerys waxed herde, they hated, and belated not, and spake euill of the waye of the LORDE before them: vntill he departed from them, and separated the disciples, and dispued baptye in the scole of one called Trismus. And this was done two yeres lōge, so that all they which dwelt in Asia, herde the word of the LORDE Iesu, both Jewes & Gentiles. And God wroughte no small miracles by the handes of Paul, so that from his body there were broughte nappyns or partecizes vnto the sick, and the disease departed from them, and the euill sperece wente out of them.

But certayne of sepe wylgabounds Jewes which were contumace, understoode no name of name of the LORDE Iesus, oner those that had euill sperece, and sayde: We charge you by Iesus whom Paul preacheth. They were seiden sonnes of one Seras a Jewe the hye priest, which dyd so. The euill sperece answered, and sayde: Iesus I knowe, and Paul I knowe, but who are ye? And the same in whō the euill sperece was, ranne vpon them, and overcame them, and cast them vnder him, so that they fied out of the same house naked and wounded. This was knowne vnto all the Jewes and Gentiles which dwelt at Ephesus, and there fell a feare vpon them. And y name of the LORDE Iesus was magnified. Many of sepe also that belech, came and confessed, and shewed their reuerce. But many of them that had used carious craftes, broughte the heres together, and burne them openly: and they couched the pryce of them, and founde it to some vnto y thousande pena. He mightily grewe y more be of the LORDE, and praye. 14

When this was done, Paul purposed in y sperece to take his journey throu Macedonia and Achaia, and to go to Iersale, and sayde: After that I haue bene there, I must se Rome also. And he sent into Macedonia two that ministered vnto him, Timotheus and Erastus. But he himselfe remayned in Asia for a season. At the same tyme there were no litle doo aboute that waye. For a certayne man named Demetrius a goldsmith, which made silver shrynes for Diana, and broughte them of the crafts no small charge. When he gathered together, and the silu workers of the same occupation, and sayde: Gye, ye knowe that by this crafts we haue our liues, and yete and beare charge not onely at Ephesus, but alme of alse throu out all Asia, this Paul earnestly moue many people with his persuayng, and sayeth: They be not goddesses that are made with handes. Somewhat it shal not onely bringe our occupation to this pointe to best as naughte, but also the temple of greete Diana shal from hence forth be despyed, and her worshippe also shalbe despyed, who neuertheles all Asia and the world worshippeth.

When they herde this, they were full of D with, cried out, and sayde: What is Diana of the Ephesians. And all y^e cite was on a crie, and they ragged in such one effort in to the open place, and take Gaius and Aristarchus of Macedonia, Pauls company as a. When Paul wolde have gone in unto a crie the people, the disciples suffred him not. Certayne also of y^e cite of Asia which were Pauls good frendes, gat unto him, and desired him, that he shoulde not passe in to the open place. Some cried one thinge, some another. And the congregation was out of quyre, and the more parte knewe not wherfore they were come to gether. Some of the people bave forth Alexander, when y^e Jewes thrust him forward. Alexander bekened with the haire, and wolde have greeved the people an answer. But when they knewe that he was a Jewe, there arose a shout of all, and cried the space of two houres: What is Diana of the Ephesians.

E When the roome claute had stilled the people, he sayde: Xemen of Ephesus, what man is it which knoweth not, that the cite of Ephesus is a worshipp of the grea goddess Diana, and of the heavenly ymage: Seing we saw that she can not be sayde agaynst, ye aughte to let contente, and to do nothinge without advisement. We have knowe the better thes men, which accuser churchbuddes are blasphemers off youre goddesse.

But yf Demetrius and they that are crafty men with him, have oughte to saye vnto my ma, the lawe is open, and there are scales, let them accuse one another. But yf ye wil go aboute any other thinge, it maye be determined in a lawfull congregation. For we stande in saperey to be accusid of this as ye upreare: and yet is there no man gylty, as I haue we aughte geue a rekenynge of this upreare. And when he had sayde this, he let the congregation departe.

The XX. Chapter.

A When the uproare was cessid, Paul called the disciples vnto him, and sete his leue of them, and departed to go in to Macedonia. And when he had gone thence these parties, and exhorted them with many wordes, he came in to Grece clonde, and there abode thre monethes. But when the Jewe to laze wayte for him, as he was aboute to sayle in to Syria, he purposed to entre agayne thowen Macedonia. Ther accompanied him in to Asia, Gre-pore of Berrea: and of Thessalonica, Antiochia and Secundus: and Titus of Darda, and Timotheus: but of Asia, Tychus and Trophimus. These wente before, and caried for vs at Troas: but we sayled after the Easter dayes from Ephesus, vnto y^e fifti daye, and came to them vnto Coeada, and caried there seven dayes.

Upon once of the Sabbathes, when the disciples came together to breake bred, Paul preached vnto them, willinge to departe on the morow, and concerned the preachinge vnto nyght. And there were many lightes in the chamber, where they were gathered together. There sat a yonge man named Eutychus, in a wyndow, and fell in to a deepe slepe (whyte Paul was speakinge) and rose ouer come rich slepe, and fell downe from the thirde loft, and was taken up dead. But Paul wente downe, and fell on him, and embraced him, and sayde: Make no thinge a daa, for his soule is in he. Then wente he vp, and battede the back, and ace, and talked much with the, vntill the daye brake, and so departed. As for the ysgent, they beaughte him alaye, and were not a litle comforted.

But we wente asafe in to the shippe, and sayled towards Asson, willinge there to reueue Paul. For he had be appointed, and wolde himselfe go as fore. When he was come to Asson, we take him in, and came to Mitylene, and sayled from thence: and came on the nexte daye ouer agaynst Chios, and on the daye followinge we aryued at Samos, and caried at Tragadia, and on the nexte daye came we to Mitylene: for Paul had decreed to sayle ouer by Ephesus, that he mde a ooe (as he therby me) in Asia: for he hausted be at Jerusalem vnto the Whitsundaye, yf it were possible for him.

But from Mitylene he sent vnto Ephesus, and called for the elders of the congregation. When they were come to him, he sayde vnto them: Ye knowe since the first daye, that I came in to Asia, after what manner I haue bene with you at all tyme, and stretch y^e L O R D E with all humblyltye of mynede, and with many teares a no tyme done, which happened vnto me by y^e laynges of wayte of the Jewes, how y^e I haue kepte backe nothinge frowne profitable, but that I haue shewed you, and taughte you openly, and privately from house to house. And thus refused I vnto the Jewes y^e the Gentiles y^e the repentance to mynede

And saich comaide our LORD Ie-su.

And now beholde, I go bounde in y^e spierit unto Ierusalem, not knowinge what shal happen there unto me, but y^e holy goost witnesseth in every cite, and sayeth, that tribes and troubles shal be me there. But I regard none of them, neither counte I my life deare: then my selfe, that I maye fulfill my charge with joye, and the office y^e I have receaved of the LORD Iesu, to testifie the word of the grace of God.

And now beholde, I knowe that ye shal see my face nomore, all ye, thane whom I have gone, and preached the Kingdome of God. Wherefore I take you to recorde this daye, that I am pure from the bloude of all men: for I have kept nothinge backe, but have shewed you all the counsell of God.
Take heede therefore unto your selves, and to all the flocke amonge the which the holy goost hath set you to be Bishops, to seeke the congregation of God, which he hath purchased with his owne bloude. For this I knowe, - that after my departinge there shal arise in amonge you grevous wolves, which shal not spare the flocke. Neede I have amonge you some shepards shal minister, speakinge perfect doctrine, so that witnesses after them. That sort a walk, and remember, that by the space of thre yeares I ceased not to warne every one off you both nighte and daye with teares.

And now brethren I commend you unto God, and to y^e wordes of his grace, which bringeth to edifie you, and to geve you the abundance aminge all them that are saved. I haue not desirid silver, golde, or ray-ment off any of you. For ye knowe full-well, that y^e these handes have ministered unto my necessities, and them that were with me. I have shewed you all thinges, how that I laboureinge ye ought to receive the weak, and to remember the wordes of the LORD, how he hath sayde: It is more blessed to geve, then to receive.

And when he had sayde this, he knelt before them, and prayed with them all. Where-after was much weeping amonge them all, and they fell aboute Pauls necke, and kysed him, and were very most of all because of the word which he had sayde, that they shal see his face nomore. And they accompanied him unto the shippe.

The XXII. Chapter.

And when it was founde that we had lawded forth and were departed from them, we came with a straight course unto Coon, and on the daye followinge unto the Rhodes, and from thence unto Patro. And when we founde a shippe ready to saile unto Phenicia, we went aboarde and so forth. But when we came within the sighte of Cyprus, we left it on the left han-de, and sayled unto Syria, and came unto Tyre: for there the shippe shalde laye forth the ware. And when we had founde disciples, we taried there seven dayes. And they tolde Paul choron the spere, that he shalde not go up to Ierusalem. And it founde that such had fulfilled those dayes, we departed, and wente our wayes, and they all broughte us on our waye with wives and children, till we were come out of y^e cite, and we knelt downe wps the spere, and prayed.
And when we had taken our leave one off another, we toke shippe, but they turned agayne unto theire. And for we were ended the course from Tyre, and came to Ptolemaida, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one daye.

On the nexte daye we were with Paul, and departed, and came unto Cesarea, & entered into the house of - Philippe the Evangelist (which was one of the seven) and abode with him. The same had four daughters, which were virgins, - and propheticke. And as we taried there mo dayes, there came downe from Ieremy a prophet, named - Agabus.
When he was come unto us, he toke Pauls girdell, and bounde his handes and feet, and sayde: Thus sayeth y^e holy goost in: The man whose girdell this is, shal he Jewes bynde thus at Ierusalem, and shal deliuer him in to the handes of the heathen. When we heard this, both we and they that were of the same place, besought him, that he wold not go up to Ierusalem. Then answered Paul and sayde: What do ye, weeping, and beseeching me here? For I am ready, not only to be bounde, but also to dye at Jerusalem for y^e name of the LORD Iesu. But when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, and sayde: The will of the LORD be fulfilled. And after these dayes we were ready, & went up to Ierusalem: There came with us a discipule of the disciples off Cesarea, and broughte with him one of Cyprus, named - Mnaseas, an olde discipule, with whom we shal be lodged. Now when we came to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly.
But on the nexte daye Paul wente in with na unto James, and all the Elders came together. And when he had saluted them, he tolde by order, what God had done a moe the heyther by his mynistracion.

C When they herde that, they prayde the LORD, and layde vnto him: Brother, thou seest how many thousande Iewes there are which beleue, and are all zelous ouer yf laue. But they are enuoumed agaynst the, whiche thou teachest all the Iewes which are amonge the heyther, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they oughte not to circumcise their chyldren, ner to walke after the same custome. What is it therfore? The multitude must nedes come together, for they shal heare thee: thou art come. Do this therfore that we saye vnto the: We haue foure men, which haue a vowe on them, take them vnto y, and purgfy thyselfe with them, and do the cofte n them, that they maye haue their heades: and they shal knowe, that it is no chynge, ne thei are enuoumed agaynst the, but that thou also walkest and kepest the lawe. For as touching them that beleue amonge the heyther, we haue wyttens, and concluded, that they shulde obserue no such, but onely to kepe them selfes from the offeringes of Idols, from bloude, from strangled, and from vnbewome. Then Paul toke the men vnto him, and was purgfyd with them on the nexte daye, and entred in to the temple, declaringe that he fulfilled the dayes of purification, tyl there was an offeringe offred for euery one of them.

D But when the seven dayes were nill off fulfilled, the Iewes of Asia sawe him in the temple, and moued all the people, layd handes vpon him, and cryed: Xemen of Israel, helpe, this is the man, that teacheth all men euery where agaynst oure people, the lawe, and this place. He hath broughte Greeks also in to the temple, and hath defiled this holy place. For they had sene Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the cite, him theye broughte f. Paul had broughte in to the temple. And all the cite was moued, and the people ranne together. And they toke Paul, and dide him out off the temple, and forch wch the doers were shut so.

But when they were aboute to kill him, tybinges came to the cheif captayne of the company, that all Ierusalem was moued. Which immediately toke souldiers and captaynes vnto him, and ranne in amonge them. When they sawe the captaynes and the souldiers, they left synyng of Paul.

When the captayne came nye, he toke him, and commaunded him: to be downe with two cheynes, and axed what he was, and what he had done. One cried this, another that amonge the people. But when he coulde not knowe the certenes because of the rymoure, he commaunded him to be caried in to the castell. And wha he came to the steepe, it fortuned that he was borne of f souldiers because of the violence of the people. For the multitude off the people folowed after, and cryed: Awaye with him. When Paul was nere to be caried in to the castell, he sayde vnto f captayne: Wtaye f. I shalde vnto the: he sayde: Canst thou Greek? Nor thou the Egiptian, which before this dayes waydest an uproare, tieddest ouer in to the wyldemisse foure thousande purry murtharers? Paul sayde: I am a man which am in Iewe off. Thasie, a citeyn of a famous cite in Cilicia: I besee the, suffre me to speake vnto the people. When he had geuen him licence, Paul stode on the steeple, and besidens with the hande into the people. I knowe than there was made a greates syde, he spak vnto them in hebre, and sayde,

The XXX. Chapter.

Y men, bretheren, and fathers, heare I myne answer which I make vnto you. When they herde that he spak vnto: him in the hebre, they toke the more silence. And he sayde: I am a man which am a Iewe, borne at Tharsia in Cilicia, and broughte vp in this cite at the free off. Damascus, enuoumed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, and was seruent myned to God warde, as ye all are also this dayes. I persecuted this waye vnto the death. I bounde them and deliuered them vnto prison, both men and women, as I bypist also both beate me wyteless, and all f Elders: of whom I receaued letters vnto the bretheren, and wente towarde Damascus, that I mighte brayne them which were there, to bringe to Ierusalem, to be purgfyed.

But it fortuned as I made my iourney, and came nye vnto Damascus, aboute noone, suddenly there shonen greates light aboute me from heauen, and I fell to the earth, and herde a voyce which sayd vnto me: Saul Saul, why persecutest thou me? I answered: Who art thou? I O D E: And he sayde vnto me: I am Iesus of Nazareth whom thou persecutest. He sa then that were with me they sawe of lighte and were o froyed, but they herbe not the wyse of him that spake with me. I sayde: LORD E, what shal I do: The LORD say be come: Arise, and go in to Damascus, there shal be tolde y of all that is appoy-ned to do. And when I sawe nothyng for the byghtnesse of the lighte, I was led by the hande of them that were with me, and came to Damascus.

There was one Ananias, a deuoute man after the same, whiche had a good reporte of all the Jewes that dwelt there, the same came, and steepe vnto me, and sayde: Brother Saul, lorde vp. And I loked vp vpon him the same houre. He sayde: The God of oure fathers hath ordeyned the before, that thou shouldest knowe thisa wyll, and se the thinge y myghtfull, and heare the voyce out of his mouth: for thou shalt be his wyrtesse vnto all men, of those thinges whiche thou hast seene and herde. And now why tarrest thou: Arise, and be baptysed, and wasse away thy syn-ne, and call vpon the name of the LORD.

But it fortuned, that when I was come agayne to Iherusalem, and prayed in the temple, I was in a trance, and sawe him. Then sayde he vnto me: Take heede, and get thee some out of Iherusalem, for they wyl not receiue the wyrtesse that thou bearest a synne.
And I sayde: LORD, they the selfes knowe that I put in purson and deere in euery syna-goge them that beleeued on the. And what the bloud of Steuen thy wyrtesse: as shewth, I stode by al, & consented vnto his deathe, and kepte the clothes of them that steeue him. And he sayde vnto me: Go thy waye.
For I wil sende the sattu amonge the gentyl then.

They gaue him audience vnto this worde, and lifte up their voyce, & sayde: A waynyd such a folowe from the earth, for it is no reason that he shoulde lyue. But as they cried, and cast of their clothes, & threw dust in to the ayre, the capteyne had byngge him in to the castell, and commaunded him to be beaten with roddes and to be examyned, that he myghte knowe, for what cause they cryed so vpon him. And when he bound him with thonges, Paul sayde vnto the upper capteyne that stode by: Ie iustifull for yene scourge a man that is a Romayne, and vnto be damned: What is the vndercap-teyne herbe that, he wene to the upper capteyne, and tolde him, and sayde: What misdeede is this: This man is a Romayne. Then came y upper capteyne, and sayde vnto him Toll me, art thou a Romayne: He sayde Yee. And the upper capteyne answered: With a greates hurme opened I this tre-sone. But Paul sayde: As for me, I am a Romayne borne. The straighe waye depared fram him, they that shoulde haue examyned him. And y these capteynes were cnyyd, when he knewe that he was a Romayne, and because he had bounde him. On the next daye wolde he knowe the certaintye wherefore he was accusid of the Jewes, and he tolde him from the bondes, and commaunded the hye priestes and all their coun-cell to come together, and brought Paul forth, and set him amonge them.

The XXXIIII. Chapter.

As he helde the councell, and sayde: Ye Remen and brethren, I haue lyued with all good conscience before God vnto this daye: But the hye puest Ananias commaunded them that stode aboute him, to smyte hi on the moueth. Then sayde Paul vnto him: God shal smyte the thou synner wall. Syntest thou and iudgest me after the lawe, and commaunist me to be smytten co-trary to y lawe: And they that stode aboute him, sayde: Remytst thou Gods hye puest: And Paul sayde: Direct, I wyll se, that he was the hye puest, for it is my wyll: The ruler of thy people shalt thou not curse.

But when Paul knewe that the one parte was Saducees, and the other parte Pharises, he cried out in y councell: Ye men and brethren, I am a Pharise, and the sonne of a Pharise. Of hope and resurrection of the deed am I iudged. And when he had se y de, there arose a dissencion betwene y Phi-sies and the Saducees, and the multitude was diuided: for the Saducees sayde that there is no resurrection, neither angell, neither spete: but the Pharisees graunteth God.
And there was made a greates crye. And y Saryeas of the Pharisees stode vp, and stro-ue, and sayde: We fynde no euill in this man. But ysa sperte on an angell that spoke vnto him, let vs noe stryue agaynst God.

But when the dissencion was greates, y upper capteyne feared, that Paul shoulde be we bene plucked a sinder of the men, and commaunded the souldyers to go downe, and to take him from them, and to byngge him in to the castell. But in the nyght followinge, the LORD stode by him, and sayde: De of good cheare Paul, for as thou hast testifid of me at Iherusalem: so must thou testifid at Rome also.

Then when it was daye, certayne of the Jewes gathered them selves together, and made a vowe, neither to eate ner drynke, tyll they had kyled Paul. They were mo then fortye, which had made this conspiracion. There came co the hye prestes and Elders, and sayde: We have bounde oure selves w a vowe, that we wil eate nothyng, tyll we haue slayne Paul. From that fore geue ye knowlege to the upper capteyne and to the counsell, that he maye bringe him forth unto you comenly, as though ye wolde heare him yet better: As for us, we are ready to kyll him, or euer he come nye you.

C But when Pauls sisters sonne herbe of their sayenge awaye, he came, and entred in to the castell, and rode Paul. So Paul called onto him one of y under capteynes, and sayde: Wyngte this yonge man to the upper capteyne, for he hath somwhat to saye to him. He roke him, and broughre him to the upper capteyne, and sayde: Paul the presbyter called me unto him, and prayd me to bringe to the this yonge man, which hath somwhat to saye unto the. Then the hye capteyne toke him by the hande, and wente a lyde with him out of the waye, and ased him: What is it, that thou hast to saye unto me? He sayde: The Jewes are agreed together, to desyre the, to kepe Paul be broughre forth comenly before the counsell, as though they wolde yet heare him better. But I solow not thon their mynden, for theye laye waye for him mo then fortye men off them, which have bounde them selves with a vowe, neither to eate ner drynke, tyll they haue slayne Paul: and enen now are they ready, and loke for thy promise.

Then the upper capteyne let the yonge man departe, and charged him to tell no man, that he had shewed him this. And he called unto him two undercapteynes, and sayde: Make redye two hundred soudyers, that they maye go to Cesarea, and thre score and ten boyssmen, and two hundred speare men a the thirde houre of the night, and deliuer the beauste, that they maye kepe Paul theron, and bryng him safe into Cysar the debeyre, and he wrote a letter on this maner:

C Claudia Lysias, unto the most mightie Debeyre Gelyp, greetinge. The Jewes had taken this man, and wolde haue slayne him: then came I with soudyers, and rescued him, and perceaved that he is a Romanie. And when I wolde haue knowen the cause, wherfor they accusid hi, I brough ed him in to their counsell: then perceaved I, that he was accusid aboute questions of their lawe. But there was no accusacion worthy of deathe or of bondes. And when it was shewed me, that certayne Jewes layd waye for him, I sent him straigh waye unto the, and commaunded the officers also, that loke what they had agaynst him, they shulde tell the same before the. Fare well.

The soudyers (as it was commaunded them) roke Paul, and broughre him to And parea. But on the nexte daye, they leste off house men to go with him, and turned agayne to the castell. When the came to Cesarea, they deliuered the letter unto the Debeyre, presented Paul before him also. When the Debeyre had red the letter, he ased off what counte he was. And whil he understode that he was of Calicia, he sayde: I wil heare the, when thine accusers are come also. And he commaunded him to be kept in herodes iudgement house.

The XXIII. Chapter.

After frys dayes the hye prest Ananias came downe to the elders, and the Quorum Tertullus, which appeared before the Debeyre agaynst Paul. When Paul was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, and sayde: Seing that we lyue in greace peace by thy meaneas of y, and that many good thinges are done for this people thorow thy promyces (most myghtie Gelyp) that alowe we ever and in all places with all chantage. To wit with standinge y I be nomore tedious unto the, I praye the, that of thy curtesy thou woldest heare us a fewe wordes.

We haue founde this man a pestilent fellowe, and a steter up of sedicion amonge all the Jewes tharow out all the world, and a maneyner of the secte of the Blasphemy, and hath taken in hande also to suspende the temple, whom we cote, and wolde haue indaged him accordinge to oure lawe. But as yf the hye capteyne came up to us, and with greata violence deliuered him out of our handes, and commaunded us to seeke to come unto the: from yf thou wilt enquire: thou mayest haue knowlege of all these thinges, wherfor we accuse him. The Jewes likewise affirmed and sayde, that it was euens so.

But Paul (when the debeyre had heard vnto him, that he shulde speake) answ ed: Seynge I knowe that thou hast bene age now many yeares amongst his people. I wil not be asayed to answer for my self, because that thou mayest knowe, that there are yett nomore but twelve dayes sence I came up to Jerusalem for to worshippe, and that they neither founde me in the temple disputinge with any man, o small yegany upstume amongst the people, nor in y synagoges, nor in the cite: neither can they prove the thinges, wherof they accuse me.

 But this I confesse vnto the, that after this waye which they call heresy, so worshippe I the God of my fathers, that I be-lieue all that is written in the lawe and in the prophetes, and have hope towardes God, that the same resurrection of the deeth (whiche they them selues loken for also) shal-be, both of the iust and vniust. Therfore let me be I to haue alwaye a cleare conscience towardes God and towardes man.

But after many yeares I came and livinge as lawfullye vnto my people, and offiringes: in wherupon they founde me purified in the temple with twenty manner of remune or unquyetnesse. Somewhat there wote certayne Jewes one of Asia, which shulde beare witness before the, and accuse me, if they had oughte agaynst me: ariels leu-thely same here saye, if they haue founde any unrighteousnes in me, whyle I stonde here before y councill: cepte it be for this on worde, that I cased stonbinge amongst them. Of the residue: curre off the deede am I iudged of yowthe daye.

Whan Felix herde this, he byffered the shute knowe very well of that waye) and sayde: Whan Eliaas the upper captaime cummeth downe, I wil knowe y wote most of yere matter. But the commaundeth the water captaime to kepe Paul, and so let him remaine, and that he shulde faste addes none of his acquaintaunces to mynister vnto him, and come vnto him.

After certayne dayes came Felix an his wife Drusilla, which was a Jewesse, and called for Paul, and herde him of the faith in Christ. Somewhat whan Paul spake off righte iustice, and off chastite, and off the aduantage to come, Felix trembled, and answered: Go thy waye for this tyme. Whan I haue a conuenient tyme, I wil finde soe the: he hoped also, that money shulde haue bene geuen him of Paul, therefore called he th for him, and continued with him. But after two yeares came Porcius Festus in to for tyme. Yet Felix willinge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, left Paul bounde.

The XXXV. Chapter.

Whan Festus was come in to the countrey, ouer the dayes he went up from Cesarea to Jerusalem.
 Then appeared the hye priestes and the elders of the Jewes before him agaynst Paul, and increased him, and desired sentence agaynst him, that he wolde sende for him to Jerusalem, and layed to wyte for him, that they myghte slaye him by the wayes. Then answered Festus, that Paul shulde be kept at Cesarea, but that he himselfe wolde shortly go thither agayne. Let the therfore (sayde he) which are able amongst you, come downe with vs to accuse the man, if there be oughte in him.

Whan he had ended amongst them more then ten dayes, he wente downe to Cesarea.
 And on the next daye he set downe on the iudgemente seate, and commaunded Paul to be brought. Whan he was come, y Jewes which were come downe from Jerusalem, stode rounde aboute him, and broughte up many and greuous quereles agaynst Paul, which they coulde not proue, to whyle he answered for himselfe. I haue neither offered oughte agaynst the lawe of the Jewes, nor agaynst the temple, nor agaynst the Em-peroure.

But Festus willinge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, answered Paul, and sayde: Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be iudged off these thinges before me? But Paul sayde: I stonde at the Emperours iudgement seate, where I oughte to be iudged: to the Jewes haue I done no harme, as thou also knowest very well. If I haue hurte any man, or committed any thinge worthy off death, I refuse not to dye. But if there are no such thinges as they accuse me off, then maye a souldan iudye me vnto them. I ap-peale vnto the Emperoure. Then spake Festus with the Councell, and answered: Thou hast appealed vnto the Emperoure, to the Emperoure shalt thou go.

After certayne dayes came tynges Agrippa and Bernice to Cesarea to welcome Festus.
 And whan they had ended there many dayes, Festus rehearsed Pauls cause vnto the tynges, and sayde: There is a man left bounde of Felix, for whose cause the hye priestes and Elders of the Jewes appeared before me whan I was in Jerusalem, and desired a sentence agaynst him. Vnto whom I answered: It is not the manner off the Romans to deliuer any man, cepte he shal be persue, before that he which is accusid, haue his accusers presene, and receaue li- berie to answer for himselfe to the accusa- tion. Whā they were come thither together, I made no delays, but sae the next daye in iudgement, and commāded the man to be broughte forth. Of whom, when the accu- sers stood up, they broughte no accusations of such thinge as I supposed: But had cer- tayne questions agaynst him of sēbre a more superstitions, and of some Iesus deid, to whom Paul affirmed to be alive. Howbeit becau- se I understode not the question, I aske hi, whether he wolde goe to Ierusalem, and there be iudged of the multitude. But whā Paul had appealed, that he might be heare unto the knowledge of the Emperours, I comma- ded him to be kepte, tyll I mighte sende him to the Emperours.

D Agrippa sayde vnto Iesusa: I wolde fayne heare the moe also. He sayde: To mor- row shalt thou heare him. And on the nexte daye came Agrippa & Bernice with grea- te pompe, and were in to the common hall: whi- ch the captaynes & chiefes of the cite. And at Iesusa's commādemēt, Paul was broughte forth. And Iesus sayde: Agrippa Agrippa, and all ye men which are here with vs, ye se this man, aboue whom all the multitude of the Jewes haue entreated me, both as Ie- rusalem and here also, and cried, that he oughte not to tye any leage. But when I perceaued that he had done nothinge worthy off death, and that he himselfe had appea- led vnto the Emperours, I decerned to sende him, of which I haue no certayne thinge to saye vnto my laide. Therefore haue I caused him to be broughte forth before you, specially before the. O thyng Agrippa, that a fre: & amicitia had, I mighte haue shew- ed at court. For as thyng is an unreason- able thinge to sende a prisoner, and not to shewe the causes which are layed agaynst him.

The XXXI Chapter.

Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou hast lene to speake for thy selfe. The Paul answered thus: I thinke my selfe happye (O thyng Agrippa) because I shal answer the: daye before the, of all the thinges wherof I am accusid of the Jewes: specially for so much as thou art experte in all custome and questions, which are amonge the Jewes. Wherefore I beseeche the, to heare me patiently.

My lyuynge truly from youth vp to now it was led from the begynnyng amonge this people at Ierusalem: I knowe all the Jewes which knewe me afore at the first, whiche wolde testifie, for as fer the most straunge cite of oure Jewishe lande, I lyued a Pharisee. And now I stande here, and am iudged becau- se of the hope of the promise, that was made of God vnto oure fathers, vnto the which (promise) oure euylde trybes hope to come, I say vnto God instantly daye and nyght. In the which hopes I ste (O thyng Agrippa). I am accuseid of the Jewes. Wherefore is this iudged amonge you not to be delayed, that God maye shew vnto the deede?

I also verily thoughte by my selfe, that I mighte do many contrary thinges de- ne agaynst the name off Iesus off Nazareth, which I byd at Ierusalem, when I stode vnto many synners in prison, wherupon I receaued a warrant of the hye priestes. And whā they shoulde be put to death, I broughte the sentence. And thowout all the synners I punished them of, and compelled the to be alip bene, and was exceedinge mad vpon them, and persecuted them euen vnto strange cities. Aboute which thinges as I wente to wards Damascus with a com- mandment, and licence of the hye priestes, euen at this daye (O thyng Agrippa) I stode in the waye, that lighte shone from heauē (clearer then the bright- ness of the Sonne) shyned vnto me aboute me, and then I sawe Iourneyed with me.

But when we were all fallen downe in the earth, I heerde a voyce speakinge vnto me, and sayde in Syriack: Saul Saul, why persecutest thou me? It shalbe harde for the to byde agaynst the pryde. But I sayde: LORD, who art thou? He sayde: I am Iesus, whom thou persecutest. But crye vp and stonde vpon thy face, for thou shalt haue Iap- peared vnto the, that I mighte ordeyne the to be a mynister and witness of it: that thou hast sene, and that I maye see cause to ap- pear vnto the. And I will deliuer the from the people, and from the Synthen, amonge whi- ch I will now sende the, to open their eyes, that they maye turne from the darkness in to the lighte, and from the power of dy- well vnto God, that they maye receaue the geneuesse of synners, and the embreisment with them that are sanctified by faith in me.

Wherefore (O thyng Agrippa) I was not faithlesse vnto ye heauēly vision, but stode in the waye vnto Damascus, and at Ie- rusalem, and in all the coastes of Jewry, and to the Synthen, that they shoulde be per- suaded, and turne vnto God, and to be de-after written of penitence. For this cause the Jewes to be in the temple, and went downe to kill me. But thou hast the helpe of God lent unto me, I shalde vnto this daye, and resistee both vnto small and greates, and saye no other thinge, that that of prophetes hath sayde that it shalde come to passe, and sloke, that Christ shalde suffer, and be the first of the resurrection from the dead, and shal light vnto the people, and so thou seest.

When he thus answered for himselfe, Sent sayde with a loude voyce: Paul, thou art besides thy selfe, much let thyng make thy mad. But Paul sayde: I am not mad, most deare Iesus thou speakest the wordes of sane and sobernesse: for I haue knoweth this well, vnto whom I speake truly. For I wote that none of these thinges is byt from him: for this was not done in a corner.
Defendethou the prophetes, O kynge Agrippa: I knowe that thou belonest Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou perswadest me in apace to become a Christian. Paul sayde: I wote to God, that not only in a parte but altogether, I mighte perswade not the only, but all them that heare me this daye, to be such. I am, thes bonds excepte. And when he had spoken this, the kynge rose vp, and the Debye, and Bernice, and they that saue with them, and wente a syde, and called together, and sayde: This man hath done nothinge that is worthy of death or of bon-den. But Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: This man mighte haue bene letted, yf he had not appealed vnto the Emperoure.

The XXXVII. Chapter.

So haue we concluded that we shal de sayle in to Italy, they deliuered Paul and certayne other prisoners to the vndercaptaine named Julius, of the Emperours souldiers. And when we were went in to a shippe of Adramitium, to sayle by Asia, we loued from londe. And there was with vs one Aristarchus out of Macedonia off The Salonica, and on the next daye we came vnto Sidon. And Julius in-uited Paul carrousy, and gave him libetye to goe to his frendes, and to refresh his selfe. And from thence lawnded we, and sayd hard by Cyprus (because the mynde was a galle) and sayde ouer the see of Cilicia and Pamphilia, and came to Myra in Lycia.

And there the vndercaptaine founde a shippe of Alexandria, ready to sayle in to Italy, and put vs therein. And when we had sayled slowly, and in many dayes were fearfully come ouer agaynst Cyprus (for the wynde be riche stode) we sayled by Candyrys vnto the cite off Salamis, and came fearfully beyond it. Then came we to a place, which is called Troodhanes, nye where vnto was the cite of Asia. There when much tyme was spent, and saylinge was now opene, because that they also had fasted ouerlonge, Paul exhorted them, and sayde vnto them Syr, Ie that this saylinge wyl be with hure and much damage, not onely of the ladinge and of the shippe, but also of ouer lives.

Nevertheless if vndercaptaine beleue B the gouernours of the shippe and of my master, more then it that was spoken of Paul. And for somuch as the house was not comelous to wynter, the more parte off them toke counsell to departe thence, yf by any meanes they mighte come to Rhodes to wynter there, which is an haven of Candyrys, comen-de the South wynde and North wynde.
When the South wynde blew, they sup-posinge to haue had their purpose, letted vnto Asion, and sayled past all Candry.

But not longe a fere, there rose agaynst their purpose a flame of wynde, which is called the North east. And when the ship-pe was caught, and coulde not resist the wynde, we let her go, and draue with the weder. But we came to an Ile named Claudia, where we coulde scarce get a boote.
Which they rose up, and woe helpe, and boughte vnder hard to the shippe, faryng lest they shulde haue fallen in to the Syren, and let downe the vessel, and so were caried. And when we had bydden a greates they off the next daye they made an ouer-castinge. And on the thirde daye with once aunt handes we cast out the cacklinge of the shippe. But when neither Sonne nor star re appeared in many dayes, and no small tempest laye vpon vs, all the hope of ouer life was taken awaye.

And after longe abstinence, Paul stode C forth in the myddes of the, and sayde: Syr, ye shalde haue hardened vnto me, and not to haue lawfed from Candyrys, and not to haue broughte us this harme and losse. And now I exhorte you to be of good cheare, for there shal none of ouer lyue perishe, but the shippe only.

For this night stode by methe angel off God (whose name is Iesus) sayde: Feare not Paul, thou must be broughte before the Emperours. And so, God hath given us to the all the that saye with the. Wherefore saye he of good chaire: for I beleue God, y^e it shal come so to passe, as it was tolde me. Therefore we must be cast in to a caryage yonder.

Now when the fourteenth night came, as we were caryed in Aulis aboute yonight, y^e shipmen demed that there appeared some countre unto them, and they cast out the leade, and soughte to make y^e seddyma: and when they were gone a litle farther, they cast one the leade agayne, and founde fyfene seddyma.

Then fearinge lest they shoulde fall on some rocke, they cast foure anchors one of the stern, and to styed for the daye. When the shipmen were aboute to flye out of the shippe, and let downe the boate in to the see, vnder a coloure as though they wolde cast another one of the fore shippe Paul sayde to y^e water carpiens and to the soudyours: I beseech y^e best hyde in this shippe, ye can not be saved. Then the soudyours cut of the rope from the boate, and let it fall. And when it beganne to be daye, Paul exhorted them all to take meate, and sayde: To daye is the fourteenth daye that ye have taried and contyned fasting, and have receaved nothinge: Wherefore I praye you to take meate: for y^e youre health: for here shal not one beere fall from the beate of any of you. And when he had thus spoken, he toke bread, and gave thanks to God be fore them all, and brake it, and beganne to eate. Then were they all of good chaire, and toke meate also. We were all together in the shippe two hundred and threescore and sixtene soules. And when they had eaten ynough, they lightened the shippe, and cast oute the meate in to the see.

When it was daye, they knewe not the londe: Wherefore they spyed ban hauens with a banke, in to which they were myned (y^e it were possible) so that in the shippe. And when they had cat up the anchors, they commaunded them selue to the see, and lowed the ruder bandes, and hoysed up the mayne sayle to the wynde, and went towarde londe. And when we were drenched on a place which had chese on both the sydes, the shippe dashed upon it. And the fore parte abode fast ennyed, but the hyndre parte brake to pieces by the violence of the waves.

The soudyours counsell was to kill y^e prisoners, lest any of them when he had swummed out, shoulde flye awaye. But the water carpiens willinge to save Paul, kept them from their purpose, and commaunded that they which coulde swimme, shoulde cast them selues first in to the see, and others unto londe: and the other, some on boards, some on broken peces of the shippe. And so it came to passe, that all the soules came safe unto londe.

The XXVIII Chapter.

Now to haue more of escaped, we turne that the Ile was called Melite. As for the people, they shewed vs no kindness: for they tynded a fyre, and reared vs all because of the rayne that was come vpon vs, and because of the colde. When Paul had gathered a bousell of stiches, and layed them on the fyre, there came a wynde out of the heate, and let vs on y^e ash home. When the people sawe the best hangings on his hande, they sayde amonge them selues: This man must needs be a murderer, wh^o vengeance sufficeth not to lyue, though he haue escaped the see. But he shote off y^e best in to the fyre, and so felde no harme. Wherefore they wayted, wh^o he shoulde haue solen, or fallen downe dead suddenly. But when they had lobed a greates while, and sawe y^e there happen, y^e no harme unto him, they chaunged their mynde, and sayde that he was a God.

In the same quarters the chiefe man of the Ile whos name was Publius had a laishipe: the same receaued vs, and lodged vs the dayes curiously. It followed wh^o Publius sauer laye sick of the feuer and of a bloody fluxe, Paul wente in vnto him, and prayed, and layed the handes on him, and healed him.

When this was done, ether also wh^o had distemper in the Ile, came, and were healed. And they dyd vs greates honoure. And when we departed, they labored vs with this good necessary.

After this monethes we sayled in a shippe of Alexandria, which had wynter in the Ile, and had a badger of C^ol^o and polle. And when we came to Syracuse, we taried there three dayes. And when we had sayled aboute, we came to Rhegium: and after one daye when the south wynde blew, we came to P^ortolus, where we founde breche and were despayred of them to carye them safe dayes, and so came we to Rome. And for chauce when the brethren here of us, they came forth to meete vs to A^op^ol^o and in the Ther cauerne. When Paul came thither, he thaled God, and waied bold. And wh^o came to Rome, the vndercarpiens wh^o imprisoned, he had leue to hyde alone with one keeper that kepte hym.

After the dayes is sortened, þ Paul calleth to hyde of þe Jewes together. And whā they were come, he sayde unto thei: I am þe Jewes. I have comitted nothinge agaynst a people, nor agaynst a lawe of my fathers, nor as I bode, deliuered out of Ierusalem by a Romaine a habour which whā they haue examined me, wold haue let me go, for asmuch as there was no cause of death in me.
But whā þe Jewes spake of excery, I was determined to appeale vnto þe Emperour: nor atougħ I had ought to accus my people. If, for this cause haue I called you, and nowe you, so speake ye to me because þe for þe hope of Iherusalem. I am bounde to this cheyne.
They sayde vnto hi: We haue nether vcke-we letter nor of Jewy concerninge the, neither came any of the heretike, þe heretike of þe Jewes. But we wyl heare of þe, for we haue heard of thy name. And whā they had appoynted hi, for a chaunce herbe of this sorte, that every where. it is spoken agaynst. And whā they had appoynted hi aday, there came many vnto hi in to his lodginge: vnto whō he expounded þe kynge-dome of God, z preached vnto the of Ierusalem, and out of the prophetes, and for manynges myghte the euil. And some belated þe change þe he sayde, but some belatede not.

But whā they agreede not amonge thes sils, they departed, whā Paul had spokē one word: I will tell hath the holy goost spokē by þe prophetes say vnto þe fathers, z sayde: Gyuen to this people, and saye: With eares shall he are, z not vnderstode: z with eyes shall he se, z not perceiue. For þe heart of this people is waxed grosse, z they heare hardy thei eares: z their eyes haue they closed, þe they shal not once se with their eyes, z hear with their eares, z vnderstode i their heartes, and be conuerted. z Iougħ he beareth. Be it knowne theforse vnto you, þe this saluacion of God is sent vnto þe Jewes, and they shal heare it, And whā he sayde þe, þe Jewes departed, z had a greates disputacion amonge thei selues. But Paul abode vnto a whole yea-re in his owne hynde dwellinge, z receiued all þe þe came in vnto hi, preachinge þe kynge-dome of God, and teachinge those thinges which concerne the. O RDE Iesus with all holiness, vnto þe dayes.

The first Chapter.

AND the seruants of Iesus Christ, called to be an Apostle, put aparte to preach the Gospell of God (which he promysed a fore by his prophetes in y^e bo ky scriptures) off his sonne, which was begotte of y^e side of Da uid after the fleshy and mightely declared to be the sonne of God at the space which sanctified since the tyme that he costi agay ne from the dead, namely, Iesus Christ oure LORDE, by whom we haue receaved gra ce and Apostelshippe amonge all theytben, to set vp the obedience of faith vnder his na me, of which y^e are partee also, which are called of Iesus Christ.

To all you that beate Rome, belonch of God, and sayntes by callinge. Grace be to you and peace fro God oure father, and the LORDE Iesus Christ.

First, I thanke my God thosom Iesus Christ for you all that your faith is spok en of becom one all the wold. For God is my witness: whom I serue in my sperte in the Gospell of his sonne: that without cessynge I make mencion of you: beseking all wayes in my prayres, that I mighte once haue a prosperous iourney: by the will off God: ye come vnto you. For I longe to se you that I mighte besowe vpon you some spirituall gifte to strenghten you (that is) that I mighte be comforted with you, thosom ye faith myne, which we haue together.

2^d Due I reioyce ye shulde knowe (brethren) howe that I haue often tymes purposed to come vnto you: but haue bene lett hithe to the Romaynes.

to) that I mighte be some good among you, like as amonge other Gentiles. I am dearer both to the Greeks, and to the roma nes, to the wysse and to the vnwysse. I haue re (as much as I maye) I am ready to preach the Gospell vnto you at Rome also.

For I am not ashamed of the Gospell of Christ: for it is the power of God, which worketh all that belonch theron, the Iesus first also the Greeks: for in it y^e righteousnes is made manifest before God as opened, which cometh out of faith to faith. As it is sayde The iust shall lyue by his faith. For y^e myght of God is declared from heauen vpon all y^e godlynes and vntygheousnes of men, which withholde the trouth of God in vntygheous nes: because that is, which maye be knowe of God, is manifest with the. For God hath shewed it vnto the, that the inuisible thinges of God (that is, his eternall strength power and Godhead) by his myghte before mynne they are considered by the woordes from the crea cion of the wold: so that they are without excuse, in as much as they knowe, that ther is a God, and becom not payde him as the ner thankeb him, but becom wayne in their ynginacions, and y^e ther foolish hart was blynded. When they couched them self wysse, they becom foolen: and a reward of y^e the incommensurable God vnto y^e of foolish de of y^e image of a corruptible man, of y^e dea, of y^e soure flesh, of y^e of cringing becom.
Wherefore God likewise gaue them vnto to their hartes lustes in eo vnto men, to fille their vntygheousnes in their felices, which cometh the trouth of God vnto a lye, and shipped and serued the creature more than the maker, which is blessed for euer Amen.

Therefore God gaue the vp vnto them full lustes. For their reason chaunged y^e natural wile in to the vnnatural lustes.
He also se the naturall wile of the woman and diuine in their lustes one an another, as man which man wronge the fleshlynes, and ceased in them felices the reward of that erreare, as it was a condon. And as they regarded not to knowe God, even so, God gaue the vp vnto a lewd mynde, to do the le things which were not comly, but full full of all vntygheousnes, whoredome, v lethnes, couetousnes, mali couetous, full of aye, murder, strife, discorde, enuie, adu ous whisperers, backbiters, despyte of God, doers of wronge, proud, boasters, imagi up of small thinges, disobedient to their doers, without vntygheousnes, couetous backbiters, vnloyng, flatterers, vncomely to the Romanes, Ho. lxxij.

which men, though they knowe the righteness of God, that they which do soch, are worthy of death: yet not only do the same, but also haue pleasure in those that do it.

The II. Chapter.

Therefore canst thou not excuse thy selfe: (O man) who seest thou be that iudgest: for I like not in thee iudging another, thou condemnest thy selfe in as much as thou that iudgest, dost euen the same. For we are sure that the iudgment of God is (accordinge to the trouth) ouer them that do soch. But thou that thou thinkest man, that iudgest them which do soch thinges, and dost euen the very same thy selfe, that thou shalt escape y iudgment of God: O be prynced thou the riches of his goodnes: his patience, and his long suffering. Knowest thou not, that y leuengye by the will of God laboureth to be to our repentance?

But thou after thine hardie and importunant heart, beapest vnto thy selfe a treasure of wrath, against the daye of wrath and of the openinge of the righteous iudgment of God, which shal reward euery man ac-cordinge to his deedes: namely, praise & honoure, and unconcupiscence, vnto them that with patience in doinge good, like vnto lastinge life. But vnto them that are contentious, & obedient vnto the wrath, but obeye no righteousnes, shal come indignacion and wrath, trouble and anguyshe vpon all the sou-les of malice that do endell of the Jewes first and also of the Gentiles: But vnto all that are good (shal come) praise and honoure, and peace, vnto the Jewes first, and also to the Gentiles.

For there is no respecte of personnes before God: Who so euer haue sinned without lawe, shal perish also without lawe: and whosoever haue sinned in the lawe, shal be iudged by the lawe. For be fore God, they are not righteous, which beare y lawe: but they that do the lawe, shal be iustified. For if the Gentiles which haue not the lawe, do of nature the thinges conteyned in the lawe, then they haue no neede of the lawe, are a lawe vnto them selves, in that they shewe, that the worke of y lawe is wrought in their heart: while their conscience beareth witnes vnto the same, and also the thoughtes which either accuse or excuse them amonge them selves, in the daye when God shal iudge the secretes of men by Iesus Christ, accordinge to my Gospel.

But take heed, thou art called a Jewe, and trustest in the lawe, y mayest thy booke of God, and knowest his will: for so much as thou art enformed out of y lawe, thou prouest what in best coo do, and purposist to be a leader of the blinden lightes of them that are in darcknes: an enformer of y truth: a teacher of y simple: which haue the en-sample of knowlege of the trouth in the lawe.

Nowe teachest thou other, and teachest not thy selfe. Thou preachest that a man shulde not steale, and thou stealest. Thou sayest, that a man shulde not breake wedloe fe, and thou breakest wedloe. Thou abhorrest ymage, and robbest God of his honoure. Thou makest thy booke of the lawe, and thou art a breake ymage of the lawe: thou disho-norest God. For thou seest you in the name of God cuell spoken of amonge the Gentiles, as it is written.

The circumcision verely anayleth, yf thou kepest the lawe: but yf thou breakest the lawe, then is thy circumcision become uncircumcision. Therefore yf the uncircumcision kepe the righte thinges conteyned in the lawe, shal not his uncircumcision be counted for circumcision: And so ite that of nature is an uncircumcision, and fulfilleth the lawe shal iudge the, which vnder the lawe and circumcision transgresseth the lawe. For he is not a Jewe which is a Jewe outwarde: nether is that circumcision which is done outwardly in y flesh: But he is a Jewe, which is inwardly within. And, the circumcision of y heart is the circumcision, which is done in the spirit, and not in the letter: Whose play-se is not of men, but of God.

The III. Chapter.

What furtherance then haue the Jewes: Or what a name hath cir-cumsion: Surely very much. First vnto them was conuyned what God spoke. But where as some of them byt not believe thereon, what then shal be their un-blessed state: the promises of God of none effece: God forbid. Let it rather be thus, that God is true, and all men liars. As it is written: That thou mayest be iustified in thy sayenge, and shaldest overcome, whā thou art iudged.

But yf it be so, that our unrighteousnes prynceth y righteousness of God, what shal we saye: In God then unrighteous, that he is angrye therefore: (I speake thus after the maine offmen) God forbid. How mighte God the iudge y would: For yf the iudger of God be the iudge in y the more excusable vnto his prynces, why shulde I be iudged yet as a sinner: y not rather to be iudged as a sinner.

we are well spoken of, and as some repaite, that we shalbe sayd, & so do euill, & good maye come therof. Whose banckis is iust.

B Whae saye we then: We are better then they: No, in no wise: for we haue proved a foie: & both the Jewes and Grekes are all vnder synne. As it is sayed: There is none righteous, no one one. There is none & vnderstandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the waye, they are altogether become unprofitable: there is none that doeth good, no one one. Their throte is an open sepulchre, with their tongues they haue deceiued, the poyson off Aspes is vnder their lippes. Their mouth is full of cursinge and byrenesse. Their feet are swifte to shed bloude. Destruction & wrechidnes is in their wayes, and & waye of peace haue they not knowen. There is no feare of God before their eyes.

But we knowe, & what fouer the lane sayeth, is sayeth vnto them which are vnder the lawe, & neuer ymothe maye be stoppid, & if all the worlde maye be decter vnto God, because & by & beides of the lane no flesh maye be iustified in his sighte. For by the lane cometh but the knowlege of synne, but now without addinge so of & lane is the righteousness which awayleth before God, declared, & prouynge to the & lane and be prophete: but I speake of & righteousness before God, which cometh by the faith on Iesus Christ, vnto all, and vnto all them that beleue.

C For there is no difference, for they are all synners, and vnder the paynt that God shulde haue of the, but we haue decaunged are they made righteous eue by his grace, thowt we be redemption that is done by Christ Iesu, whom God hath set forth for a. After eyen the lawe sayeth in his bloude, to haue the righteousness which awayleth before him, in that he fougeth the fr: me, which were done before vnder the iustification of God, which he iustified, thus at this tyme he mighte haue & righteousness which awayleth before him: & he only mighte be righteous, & the righteous maker of him which is of the faith on Iesus.

Where is now then thy reioysinge: Ie is excluded. By what lane? By the lane of works: Nay, but by the lane of faith. We holde therefore that a man is iustified, by faith, without the works of the lawe. O is God the God of the Jewes onely: Is he not also the God of the heythen also? Yes were by the God of the heythen also, for so much as he is the God onely that iustifieth the circumcision which is of faith, and the uncircumcision the same faith. Destroyer then the lawe thowt sayeth: God sayeth. But we maintayne the same.

The fourth Chapter.

W hat we saye the, that Abraham & father as pertaininge to & faith & byd synner: This we saye: If Abraham were made righteous thowt works, then hath he merite to reioyse, but not before God. But what sayeth & scripture: Abraham beleued God, & he was counted vnto him for righteousness. Vnto he & goeth aboue to works, is the merite not merited of fauoure, but of durye: So he is vnto him, & goeth not aboue with works, but beleued on him & iustified by vngodly, is his faith counted for righteousness. Euen as Dauid sayeth also, that blessednes is onely that man, vnto whis God counteth righteousness without addinge to of works, when he sayeth: Blessed is they, whose vngodlynes is forgiven, and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is the man, vnto whom the LORD imputeth no synne.

Nowe this blessednes, goeth it ouer the circumcision, & ouer the uncircumcision: We must neede graunce, & Abraham faith was couered vnto he for righteousness, & now was it the reckned vnto him: In the circumcision, or in the uncircumcision: Doubtes, not in the circumcision, but in the uncircumcision. As for the toke of circumcision, he receaueth it for a seale off the righteousness off faith, which he had yet in & uncircumcision, & he is called a father of all the & beleue, beinge in & uncircumcision, & it mighte be couered vnto the also for righteousness: & that he mighte be a father of circumcision, not onely of the that are of & circumcision, but of them all that were in the foretelle as of the faith, which was in the uncircumcision of oure father Abraham.

For he promysed that he shoulde be & father of the world: man nor made vnto Abraham or to his seede thowt the lawe, but the world the righteousness of faith. For if they which are of the lawe be by one, this is faith wayne, and the promys of it is effect, so much as the lane cansteth but weath. So whether the lawe is one, there is also no transgression. Therefore was the promys made thowt faith, that it mighte come off fauoure, whereby the promys mighte be made see vnto all the seed: not onely vnto him which is off the lawe, but also vnto him that is of the faith of Adam, which is the father of us all. As it is written: I have made thee a father of many. & yet he be- fore God, whom thou hast belened: which quod one is the deeth, and callist it which is not, that it may be.

And he belened vpon hope where nothing was no hope, that he shuld be a father of many. Accordinge as it was sayd vnto him: Thou shalt thy selfe be. And he was not faunte in faith, neither chide his awne body, which was deeth already, whyle he was almost an hundred year eld, neither the deeth woman of Sara. For he deated not in the pimes of God thoro- undelene, but in a strong faith, and gaue God the praye: & was sure, that he shuld be a father of many. And he was able to make it good. And therfore was he reuened vnto him for a righteousnes. Wherein is not mysall only for his sake, but was counted vnto him, but also for our sake: vnto whiche shal be count- ed, yf we beleue in him, that he shal p- eue. LORDE Jesus from the deeth. Which was geuen for oure synnes, and raysed vp for a re- ghteousnes sake.

The V. Chapter.

Because therfore that we are iustified by faith, we haue peace with God throughe oure LORDE Jesus Christ, by whiche alse we haue an insurance in faith vnto this grace, wherein we stonde, & stoy in the hope of a glorie for to come, which God shal geue. For only f, but we reioyse also in troubles, for so much as we knowe, f. trouble bringeth patience, patience bringeth experience, experience bringeth hope: As for hope is leeteth an anor come to confusion, be- cause the loue of God is shed abroad in oure hertes, by the holy goost which is geuen vnto vs, that when we receyue yet it take acerbis getoche tyme, Christ dyed for vs vngodly. Now deeth there feare any man for the righteous sake: peradventure for a good man darst one dye. Therfore doth God let forth his loue comende as, in f. Christ dyed for vs, when we were yet synners: If soch lye reche shal we be saved from: verily by him synners are now made righteous thoro- undelene.

For yf we were receyved vnto God by y deeth of his sone, whiche we were yet vngodly: no man shal in e be saved by him, now f we are receyved. It is only that, but we maye also in God thoro- undelene. LORDE Jesus Christ, by whom we haue now recea- ded the attemment.

Wherfore as by oure synnes entred in to the world, and deeth by f means off synne: so much we deeth also aucter all men, in so much as they all haue synnes. For syn- ne was in f world vnto the lawe: but where no lawe is, there is not synne regarded. Nevertheless deeth reigned from Adam vnto Moses, euen ouer them also that synned not wiche life transgression as by Adam, which is ymage of him f. who to come.

But it is not with the grise as with the synne: for yf thow the synne of one many be deeth, yet much more plentifully came the grace and grise of God vpon many by the fauour that belongeth vnto one man Jesus Christ.

And the grise is not only ouer our synne, as deeth came thoro- undelene of one that synned. For the iudgement came of one synne vnto condempnacion, but the grise is in- fide f. from many synnes. For yf by synne of one, deeth reigned by the manner of one, much more shal they which receaue the abundance of grace and of the grise vnto righteousnes, reign in life by f. means of one Jesus Christ. Let wyl the as by the synne of one, condemnation came vnto all men, euen so also by the righteousness of one, came the iustifi- cation off h. upon all men. For as by the disobedience of one, many became synners, euen so by the obediens of one shal many be made righteous.

But the lawe in the meane tyme entred, that synne shulde increase. Nevertheless where abundance of synne was, there was yet more plentifulnes of grace: that, like as synne had reigned vnto deeth, eue samigh- ce grace reignet also thoro- undelene to euercastinge life by the means of Jesus Christ.

The VI. Chapter.

What shal we saye then? What we concurre in synne, that there maye be abundance of grace? God for byd. How shal we lyne in synne, f. are deeth from it? Anore ye not, that all we which are baptised vnto Jesus Christ, are baptised in to his deeth: Therfore are we buried w him by baptyme in to deeth, that, like as Christ was raysed vp from the deeth by the glory of the father, & euen so we also shulde walke in a newe life. For yf we be graued w him vnto h. deeth, then shal we be like the resurrection also: for so much as we be like, that oure olde man is crucified wch him, that the synfull body might cease, that hence forth we shoulde sette synne a none.

 For a. So be thaci a dech, is made rightous a fō synne.

B. But yf we be dech with Christ, we beleue, that we shal lyue alfo with him, and are sure, that Christ is ryse from the dech, dyeth nomore. Death shal haue namore power ouer him. For a conchunge that he dyed, he dyed cōcēyng synne on ceibut as touchyng ge thar he luyeth, he luyeth vnto God. Liuer yf ye alfo, cōuince yam silues to be vnto dech cōcēyng synne, and to lyue vnto God thowse Iesus Christ euell O R D E.
 Let a cōlymerigne therfore in yom a mortall bodye. That ye shoulde abyue vnto the luste of it. Ther geue yōuer yōuer members vnto synne to be in apens of vntyghe-rousnes, but geue ouer yōuer selues vnto God, as they that off dech are become luyange, and yōuer members vnto God to be in apens off righteoufnes. For synne shal not haue power ouer you, in so much as ye are not on der the lame, but vnder grace.

How ther? Shal we synne, because we are not vnder yf lawe, but vnder grace? God forbyd. Knowe yeade, that loke vnto whō ye geue ouer yōuer selues as seruantes to obey, his seruantes ye act to whom ye obey, whether it be of synne vnto death, or of righteoufnes vnto righteoufnes. But God be thanked, that though ye haue bene the ser-uantes of synne, ye are now yet obedient of herre to the exēplē off the doctryne, whereto ye are cōmmytted. For now that ye are made fre from synne, ye are become the seruantes off righteoufnes.

C. I wil speake freely, because of the weaknes of yōuer flesh. Like as ye haue geuen ouer yōuer members to the stryce of vntyghe-rousnes, from ouer vntygheoufnes and other. Eu-so adu also geue ouer yōuer members to the stryce of righteoufnes, that they may be holy. For whā ye were the seruantes of synne, ye were lawfe from righteoufnes.
 What stude had ye at that tyme in thōse charyng, more of ye are now ashamed. For the ende of yōch thing is death. But now that ye be fre from synne, and are become the seruantes of God, ye haue yōuer frute that ye shoulde be holy; but the ende is eter-nall lyf. For death is the reward of synne, but the gifte of God is euertylle lyf.

The vii. Chapere.

Howe ye not derther a? For I speake vnto chem that knowe the lame) how that yf lawe hath power vpon a man as longe as he lyueth. For the man yf in in subiection to the lawe, is bound vnto the lawe whyle the man lyueth; but yf the man dye, then is he loosed from the lawe that cōcerneth the man. If she be a son with another man, whyle the man lyueth, she shal be called a wedlocke breake, But yf the man be dech, then is she fre from the lawe, so that she is no wedlocke breake, yf she be with another man.

Euē so in y derther, ye also are dech vnto the lawe by the body of Christ, that ye shoulde be with another (namely w him to whō is rayed op from the dech); that we shoulde byngis forth frute vnto God. For whā we were in the flesh, the synfull lawe (which were fered op by the lawe) was mightie in oure members to byngis forth frute vnto death. But now are we lawfid from the lawe, and derd vnto it, that bidde vs captyue, so that we shoulde serue in a new cōuersacion of the spere, and not in the olde cōuersacion of the fleete.

What shal we saye then? Is the lame y synne? God forbyd. The lawe is lawe not synne, but by yf lawe. For I had knowe no thinge of lust, yf the lawe had not sy-der. Thou shalt not lust. But therfore to syn-ne occasion at the cōmmandement, and fered op in me all manner of lust. For with the lawe synne was dech. As for me, I wold some tyme without lawe. Howbeit not in the cōmmandement came, synne wryth, the I was dech. And the very same cōmmandement that was geuen me vnto lyf, was founde to be vnto me on occasion of death. For synne tot occasion at the cōmmandement, and diseased me, and slewe me by the same cōmmandement. The lawe is debile holy, and the cōmmandement holy, iust and good. In that then which is good, became death vnto me: God forbyd. But syne, that is mightie appear how yf it is synne, hath rought me death thowse good; that synne might be out of me a sure synfull by the cōmmandement. For me knowe, that the lawe is spirituall, but I am carnall, sylde vnder synne because I knowe not what I do. For I do not yf I will, but what I hate, yf do I. If I donow that which I wold not, the grāde is, that the lawe is good.

So thea it is not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me; for I knowe that in me (y in my flesh) there dwelleth no good thinge. To wylis present to me, but to per-formme yf which is good, I synne not. For good that I will, do I not: but the will which I will not, that I do. If I do now that I will not, then is it not I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

Thus synne I am by the lawe, & when I will do good, evil is present with me. For I desire in the lawe of God after the inward man: but I see another lawe in my members, which stryveth against I lawe of my mynde, and catcheth me prisoner (a) I lawe of synne, which is in my members. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God through Iesus Christ our LORD. So then the synne I thank I lawe of God, but with the flesh the lawe of synne.

The VII. Chapter.

Is there now no damnation in us to the thing that are in Christ Iesus, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirit? For I lawe of I spirit (I bringeth life I Christ Iesus hath made me) free from the lawe of synne & death. For what impossible is to us who I lawe (in as much as it was made because of the flesh) & persecuted God, & hate his name in I simulacrum of synfull flesh, & by synne dyed synne in I flesh: that the righteousnes required of the lawe, might be fulfilled in us, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirit. For they that are fleshly, are fleshly mynded: but they that are godly, are godly mynded. To be fleshly mynded, is to be: but to be godly mynded, is life and peace. For to be fleshly mynded is enemie to God, for it is not subdued unto I lawe of God, for it is also. As for the thing that are fleshly, they can not please God. Somewhat ye are not fleshly, but godly, yf ye be the spirit of God dwell in you. But who seeth not the spirit of Christ, the same is not his. Remembered of Christ be in you, then is the body dead because of synne. But the spirit will live for ever because of life.

Wherefore if the spirit of him, that sayeth up Iesus from the dead, dwell in you, then shall even be also that sayeth up Christ from the dead, quicken your mortal bodies, because I his spirit dwelleth in you. Therefore brethren we are now debtors, not to the flesh, but to the spirit: for yf ye live after I flesh, ye must dye: but yf ye mortifie the deeds of the body, ye shall live of the spirit. For the lawe is not made for the spirit, but for the flesh: for ye have not received the spirit of bondage to fear in you me, but ye have received I spirit of adoption, whereby we cry: Abba, be our father. The same spirit certifyeth our spirit, that we are the children of God. If we be children, then are we heires also, namely the heires of God, and heires annexed with Christ, yf so be that we suffer together, that we may be also glorified together.

For I suppose, that the afflictions of this tyme, are not worthy of I glory, which shall be shewed upon us. For the fervent longing of I creatur lotheth for the appearing of the children of God, because the creature is subdued unto vanyte against his will, but for his will that hath subdued her upon hope. For the creature also shall be free from the bondage of corruption, unto the glorious liberty of the children of God. For we knowe, that every creature groweth, and reacheth with us in payne unto the same tyme.

Not they only, but we our selves also, which have the first frutes of the spirit, grow not within in our selves for the chillsippes, and let us for delayance of our bodies. For we are, and I hope, herefor I hope: but I hope that is in us, is no hope: for how can a man hope for that which he seeth? But yf we hope for that which we see not, the do we then patience abyde for it.

Likewise the spirit also helpeth our weakness: for we knowe not what we should desire as we ought: nevertheless I spirit it self maketh intercession mightily for us with words aspeakable groanings, howbeit he seetheth the heart, knoweth what the mynde of the spirit is: for I make intercession for the sayntes according to the pleasure of God. But sure we are, that all things serve for the best unto them that love of God, which are called of purpose. For those whom he knewe before, hath he overruled also before, & they shall be like his children unto I hope of his sonne, & he might be the first begotten among many brethren. As for those whom he hath ordeined before, them hath he called also: and whom he hath called, he hath also made righteous: and whom he hath made righteous, them hath he glorified also.

What shall we say then unto these things? If God be on our side, how can be against us. Which shalbe not his owne sinne, but hath given him for us all: how shall he not with him give us all things also? Who will lay any thing to I charge of God chosen? Here is God that maketh righteous, who will then condemn? Here is Christ that is dead, yet rather which is raised up againe, which is also on the right hand of God, and maketh intercession for vs.

Who will separate vs from the love of God? I tremble at anguish: or persecution: or hunger: or nakedness: or perill: or sword: No it is written: For thy sake are we killed all the daye longe, we are counted as sheepe appointed to be slaine. Truer the selfe in all these things we overcome saith, for his sake that loved vs. For since I am, that neither death nor life, neither angel, nor rule, neither power, neither thinges present, neither thinges to come, neither death, nor lowe, neither any other creature shall be able to separate vs from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. ORDE.

The IX. Chapter.

Saye the church in Christ, and I yet not: whereof my conscience beareth me witness in the holy goospe: that I have greater heavynesse & conynall sorrowe in my heart. I have wished my selfe to be cutt from Christ for my brethren, that are my kynsmen after the flesh, which are off Israell: unto whom pertayneth the childre, and the glory, and the covenantes, and lawe, and the service of God, and the promise: whose are also the fathers, off whom (after the flesh) cometh Christ, which is God over all, blessed for ever. Amen. But I speake not these thinges, as though the wordes of God were of none effecte: for they are not all Iisraelites, which are of Iisrael: neither are they all children because they are the seede of Abraham: but in Isaac shall the seede be called mee the, that is, they which are children after the flesh, are not the children of God, but the children of the promise are counted for the seede, for this is a worde of the promise, whiche he sayeth: Abonte thy name wyl I come, and Sara shall have a sonne.

So cometh it to not so with this onely, but also when Rebecca was such childe by one (namely by our father Isaac) at that the childe was doine, that done neither good nor bad: that the purpose of God might stand according to the election, not by the birth, nor by the workes, but by the grace of the electing: so sayeth thus moche: The greater shall serve the lesse. And it is written: Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated.

What shall we saye then? Is God then unrighteous? God forbid. For he sayeth unto Moses: I shewe mercy, to whom I shewe mercy: and have compassion, on whom I have compassion. So is it not chosen any mans will or runninge, but in the mercy of God. For the scriptures sayeth unto Pharaos: For this cause have I stretched out my hand to shewe my power in thee, that my name might be declared in all the earth. Thus hath he mercy on whom he will: and whom he will, he hardeneth.

Thou wilt saye then unto me: Why blamest he vs yet? For who can resist his will? O thou man, who art thou, that disputest with God? Sayeth the worke to his workman: Why hast thou made me in this fashion? Hath not the potter power, out of one lump of claye to make one vessel unto honour, and another unto dishonour? Therfore when God wolde shewe wrath, and to make his power knowne, he brought forth such great patience the vessels off wrath, which are obeyed to damnacion: that he mighte declare the riches off his glorye on the vessels off mercy, which he hath prepared unto glorye, whom he hath called (namely we) not onely of the Iewes, but also of the Gentyles. So he sayeth also by Osee: I wil call that my people, which is not my people: and my beloved, which is not my beloved. And it shal come to passe in the place, where it was sayd unto them: Ye are not my people, there shal they be called the children of the livinge God. And I saye againe over Israell: Though the number of the children of Israell be as the sande of the sea, yet shal there be a remnant be saved, for there is the worde, that I myselfe and Iherusalem shal be saved: for a house more shal God make upon earth. And as I saye before: Excepte the Lord of Sabaoth had left vs, we shulde have bene as Sodoma, and like unto Gomora.

What shal we saye then? This wil we saye: The heathen which followe us neither reckon, have overtake: righteousnes: but I speake of these righteousnes that cometh off faith. Againe, Iisrael followed the lawe of righteousnes, and attained not unto the lawe of righteousnes. Why so? Even because they soughte it not out of faith, but as it were out of the beseyginge of workes. For they have stumbled at the stumblingstone. As it is written: I saye in Zion a stone to stibble at, and a rocke to be offended at: and who so ever believeth on him, shal not be confounded.

The X. Chapter.

1 B Reheren, my heres desye, & praver unto God for Israel so, that they might be saved. For I beare them record, that they are zelous for Gods cause, but not wth wisdom. For they knowe not the righteousness which shal be by God, and go aboate to nameyne their owne righteousness: and thus they are not subiect unto the righteousness, that is off by faith in Christ. For Christ is the ende of the lawe, a new rightousnes for every one belongeth. Whiche waye of righteousness, which cometh of the lawe, that the man which doeth it, shal live therein. But if righteousnes is to which cometh of faith, speaketh on this waye. Saye not in thine hart: Who wil go up in to heauen: that is nothin ye do then to seeke Christ by name. Or who wil goddome in to I depe: (that is nothin ye do then to seeke Christ from the dead.) But what sayeth the scripture: The more is thy eye, more in thy mouth and in thine hart. This is I wonder of such I we preach.
For yf thou knowest Jesus with thy mouth, that he is the LORDE, and beliest in him, that thou shalt be saved. For yf a man beleeve from the herte, he shal be made righteous: and yf a man knowe with the mouth, he shal be saved. For the scripture saith: Who so ever belongeth on him, shal not be confounded.

There is no difference, neither of the Jewe nor of the Gentyle. For one is LORDE of all, which is true unto all: y call up^{on} him. For who so ever shal call up^{on} the name of the LORDE, shal be saved. But how shal they call up^{on} him, on wh^{om} they beleve not: how shal they beleve on him, of wh^{om} they have not herde: how shal they beare witness to a preacher: But how shal they preach, except as they be sent. As it is written: how beautifull are the feet of the preache peace, & how good tidings: But they are not obedient unto the Gospell. For it saith: sayeth the LORDE, who belongeth to me preaching: So the faith cometh by heareinge, but becometh by the word of God.

But I saye: have they not herde: No doubt they have herde: but not into all hertes, as the word is in the end of the word be. But I saye: have they not Israel knowne: For it saith: I wil punish you to more, by them that are not my people: yf a foolish nation my I anger you. It saith after this bolde, and sayeth: I am founde of them, that sought me not: & have appeared unto them, that aske not after me. But unto Israel he saith: All the daye I have soughted for my handes unto a people: but I have not, but I have soughted agayne.

The XI. Chapter.

Sayeth then: God thrust out his people: God forbyd: for I also am of Israel, as the seed of Abraham out of thy rib of Ben Jamin. God hath not thrust out his people, whom he loveth before. Or were ye not what the scripture saith of Elias, how he match intercession unto God agaynst Israel, and sayeth: LORDE, if thou wilt, they have slayne thy prophets, & dyged downe thine altars, and I am left over onely, and they seeke my lyfe. But what sayeth the answer of God unto him: I have reserved unto me seven thousand men, which have not bowed their knee before Baal. And so getteth in now another: yf thou wilt, thou shalt have election of grace.
If thou wilt have grace, the last note of belyving: do thou have grace no grace. But yf it be of deservynge, then is grace nothin more deservynge and deservynge.

What sayeth: Israel hath not openeth his eyes, but he election hath openeth it. As for y other, they are blinded.
As it is written: God hath given them the spirit of unquyresse, eyes that they shal not see, and eares that they shal not heare, and unto this daye. And David saith: Let their eies be blinded, that they shal not, and evermore becomen their backes.

I saye then: have they then stumbled, y they shal be cleane fall to naught: God forbyd: but thoro their fall is saluacion happened unto I sayeth, that he might proue them to be zelous after them. For yfe they fall be the riches of the world, and the mynistringe of the riches of the hethen: how much more shal be so, yfe saluacion were other: I speake unto you then: for as much as I am yf Apostle of the heathen, I wil praye myn office, yf might please them unto zeale, which are myselfe, and some of them. For yfe the losse of them by the recedynge of the world, which were that els, then as yf life were taken of the dead: If the begynnyng be holy, then is all yf some holy: and yf the roote be holy, then are the branches holy also.

But though some of yf be unbelieve, and be cutt, and thou, what thou wast a wyse of yfe, art graffed in amonge them, and made partaker of the core and sappe of the olyue tree, boost we the selfe agaynst the brounches. If thou boost thy selfe agaynst them, then bearest thou the core, but the core beareth not. Thou wilt saye then: the brounches are broken off, that I might be greifed in. Thou saiest well. They are broken off because off their vndeile, but thou standest thereon beleue. Be not thou bye mynde, but feare, sayinge God hath not spared the naturall brounches, lest he also spare not the.

Beholde therfore the tyndnesse and rigour of God: on them which sell, rigour of God: but towards the tyndnesse, yf thou conseydest in the tyndnesse. What shalst thou beholde of? and they, yf they byde the still to vndeile, shal be greifed in agaynes. For God is of power to graffe the olyue agayne. For yf thou be cut out of the naturall wilde olyue tree, and graffed (contrary to nature) in the good olyue tree, how much more shal they that are naturall, be greifed in their same olyue tree agayne?

I wolde not that this sentence shoulde be hyd from you brethren (lest ye shoulde be wise to your owne consciences) that partly bynd. as this happened vnto Israel, so longe tyll the fulnesse of the heythen be come in, and so all Israel shalbe saved. As it is wyrtene: There shal come one of Sion he that hath deliuered, and shal turne awaye vngodlynesse from Jacob. And this is my covenant with them, whā I shal take awaye: haer synnes. As concerninge the Gospell, I holde them as enemies for youre sakes: but as touchinge the election, I loue them for the fathers sakes.

For verely the gifte of callinge of God are such, that it can not repent him of them. For like wyse as ye also in tyme passed haue not believed, but now haue receyued mercy throughe their vndeile: Euen so now haue they not believed on the mercy which he hath shewed vnto you, but they also maye receyue mercy. For God hath closed up all vnder vndeile, that he mighte haue mercy on all.

O the benepesse of the riches, both of the myshone and endowes of God! how incomprehesible are his iudgements, and his wayes vnderstandeable! For who hath knowen the mynde of the LORD? Or who hath bene his counsell geuer? Or who hath geue him ouer a firm hand, that he mighte be recompensed agayne? For of him, and throughe him, and in him are all thinges. To him be praye for ever, Amen.

The XII. Chapter.

Beside you brethren by the mercifullnesse of God, that ye geue our yette bodies for a sacrifice, it is quyte holy, and acceptable vnto God, which is a reasonable seruyng off God. And sithen not youre selues like vnto this worlde, but be chaunged throughe the reneryng off yf mynde, ye maye proue, what thinge the good is acceptable, a perfecte mil of God. For I saye thow the good is to geue me vnto euery man amonge you: that no man esteeme off him selfe more, than it becometh him to esteeme: but that he discretely mynde of him selfe, accordinge as God hath dealt vnto euery man the measure of fath. For like as we haue manye members in one body, but all the members haue not one manner of operation: Euen so not bringe manye are one body to Christ. But amonge youe selues euery one is the member of another, and haue yue giftes, accordinge to the grace that is geuen vnto vs. If any man haue the gifte of prophecyng, let it be accordinge to the fath.

Let him that hath an office, woeke vnto the office: let him that teacheth, catechise to the doctrine: Let him that exhorteth, geue attendance to the exhortacion. If any man geue, let he geue with singleness. Let him that ruleth, be diligēt. If any man shewe mercy, let him do it with chearfulness. Let loue be without dissimulation. Let charite be as it is: cleare vnto that which is good. Be tynde one to another with brotherly love. In geuyng honoure go one before another. Be not slouthfull in the beneficence that ye haue in honde. Be seruent in the feute. Applye youre selues vnto theyr me. Reioyse in hope, be pacific in troubl. Continue in praye. Distribute vnto the necessaries of the sayntes. Be glad to harbor. Desist the that persecute you. Bless the curse. Be merry with them that are merry and wepe with them that wepe.

Be of one mynde amonge youre selues. Be of one proude in your same consciences, but make youre selues equalles them of a lowlye foote. Be of one mynde in your same opinions. Accomplishe vnto no man euill for euill. Priuatyly benefite afor e haue remembrance vnto my. If it be possible (as much as in you) kepe peace with all men.

Dearely beloved, avenge not youre selues, but geue room vnto the wrath off God. For it is wyrtē: Vengeance is mine, and I wil reuenge. As yet to LORD. Therefore if thou enemy hunger, feed him: If he thirst, give him drinke. For in so doinge thou shalst reape a seed of syn vnto his heade. He nor our come with euill, but ouercome thou euill with good.

The xlii. Chapter.

Be every soule subiecte him selfe to the auctorite of the hyer powere.
For there is no powere but of God.
The powere that be, are ordeyned of God: for that wiche so ever resisteth the powere, resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist, shal receaue to them selfe condempnation.
For rulers are not to be feared for good worke, but for euill. If thou wilt be without fear of the powere, do well then, and thou shalt haue praise of the same: for he is the minister off God for thy weale. But if thou do euill, then feare, for he beareth not the face of the hyer. For he is the mynister of God, a caller of vengeance, to punyssh him that doth euill. Wherefore ye must needs obeye, not onely for punysshment, but also because of conscience. For this cause must ye beare tribuacion also. For they are Gods mynisters, which shall carye y^e same deserte.
Owe to euery man this for his duty: as hate to whom tribute belongeth: as to one, for whom custome is due: feare, to whom fear belongeth: honoure, to whom honoure is due: as to the lord. Owe worshippe to euery man, but to loue our another. For he that loueth his brother, hath fulfilled the lawe. For where is synne? Thou shalt not breake wedlocke withon thou shalt not yll: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt not beare false witness: thou shalt not lust: and yf there be any other commandment, it is comprehended in this worde.
Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. Love doth his neighbour no euill.
Therefore to loue y^e fulfilling of the lawe.
And for so much as we know this, whan the synne: that the houre is now for vs to gete from slepe: for now is our saluacion nearer, then when it was: therefore the night is past, but the day is come nye. Let vs therefore cast away y^e workes of darkness, and put on the armour of lighte. Let vs walke bravely as in the daye. y^e not in excess of drinke and in bountie, nor in chaffe and in rage and in enuie, nor in strife and enuie: but put ye on the LORDE Iesus Christ. and in his precious blood, for y^e flesh, to fulfill the luste of it.

The xliii. Chapter.

In this we reate in the faith, recea-ue vnto you, and be subiecte not to the conscience. One beleueth that he maye eate all thinge: but he that is weak, eateth herbe. Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, iudge him that eateth: for God hath receaued him. Who are thou, that iudgest another man? For he standeth or fallteth vnto his LORDE: Yes he maye well stande, for God is able to make him stande.

Some man putteth difference betweene daye and daye, but another man counteth all dayes alyke. Let euery man be sure of his meanynge.
He that putteth difference in the daye, doth it vnto the LORDE: he that putteth no difference in the daye, doth it vnto y^e LOR-DE also. He y^e eateth, eateth vnto the LOR-DE, for he giveth God thanks: and he that eateth not, eateth not vnto y^e LORDE, and giveth God thanks. For none of vs knoweth to himselfe, nor knowe we to him selfe, if we lyue, nor lyue vnto the LORDE: If we dye, we dye vnto the LORDE. Therefore, whether we lyue or dye, we are the LOR-DES.

For this we dyed Christ, and rose againe, to and reynued, that he mighte be y^e LORDE both of dead and quyet. But why iudgest thou y^e brother? Or thou other, why despisest thou y^e brother? We shal all be brought before y^e iudgement seate of Christ. For it is written: As truly as I lyue, (as y^e sayth the LOR-DE) all knees shal bowe vnto me, all kynges shal knowe vnto God. Thow shal cary one of vs gone accomptes for himselfe vnto God. Let vs not therefore iudge one another any more. But iudge thus rather, y^e none put a stone blinde blocke on occasion to fall in his brothers waye. Iesu, I am full certified in y^e LORDE Iesu, y^e there is nothing common of us selfe, but vnto him y^e iudge-ment to be comen, so him it is comen. But yf y^e brother be greued ouer y^e meate, let it waite thou nor ouer after charite. Destroye not thy meate, him, for whom Christ dyed.

Be therefore that youre treasure be not euill spoile of. For the kyngdome of God is not meate and drynke, but righte iustice, and peace, and ioye in the holy gost. For that in these thinges serueth Christ, pleaseth God, it is comended of him. Let us therfore folowe those thinges which make for peace, and iustice, wherewith one maye chaffe another. Destroye not y^e worke of God for any meate sake.
All thinges truly are cleane, but it is euill for y^e man, which eateth of those of his conscience. It is much better y^e thou eate no flesh, and districte to thyne, not any thinge, whereby thy brother stoneth, or falleth, or is made weake. Ifst euen saich, haueit with y selfe beside God. Happye is he, that euen in nochtum seile in y thinge which he alonely.

But he that maketh conscience of it, and yet euer, is damned: because he doth it not of faith. For y haue so euer to not of faith, that same is spaine.

Wherefore receaue ye one another, as Christ hath receaued you to the prayse of God. But I like che Christ Iesus was a commendaunce, for the grace that is geue me of God that I shal be a mynister of Iesu Christ amonge che heythen, to declare the gozell of God, that che heythen might be an acceptable offeringe vnto God, sanc thinge, che detye is to mynister vnto che detye cheynges. Now when I haue performed this, and haue broughte che frute sealed, I wil take in yourney by you in to Spayne. But I am sure when I come vnto you, that I shil come wch y full bl fyng of che gozell of Christ.

I beseeche you brethren eho are oure LOR Corinthians.

1 Cor. 1

16

Paul, called to be an Apostle of Jesus Christ chosen by will of God, and brother. Greeting unto the congregation off God which is at Corinthum, to them thus are sanctified in Christ Jesus, by grace by callinge, with all them that call upon the name of our LORD Jesus Christ, in every place both off the one and others. Grace be with you and peace from God our father, and from the LORD Jesus Christ.

I thank my God alwayes on your behalfe, for the favour of God which is given you in Jesus Christ, that in all poyntes ye are made rich by him, in every woode, and in all manner of knowledge (but as I preachinge of Christ is confirmed in you) so that ye wante nothinge in any wise, and receyve but for the appearinge of our LORD Jesus Christ, which shall strengthen you also unto the ende, that ye maye be blamelesse in the daye of our LORD Jesus Christ. For God is faithfull, by who ye are called unto the fellowship of his sonne Jesus Christ our LORD.

Num. 11
 1 Thes. 1

22

But I beseech you brethren chosow the name of our LORD Jesus Christ, that ye will speak one thinge, and let there be no division amonge you, but that ye be perfect in one meaninge. For it is shewed me (my brethren) of you, by them which are off my household of Cloes, that there is stryfe amonge you. I beseech of that, which every one of you sayeth: I holde of Paul. Another, I holde of, Apollos. The thirde, I holde of Cr.

to the Corinthians.

phas. The fourth, I holde off Christ. For Christ then crucified in paines: What Paul crucified for you: Or were ye baptized in name of Paul: I thank God that I have baptized none of you, but Crispus and Gaius: lest any shalde saye, I in my name have baptized. I baptized alld I have holde of Stephanus. I thank God for me, whether I baptized any other. For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel, not with wisdom of words, lest I should have been made of none effecte.

For the worde of I cross is foolishnesse to them that perishe: but unto us which are saved, it is the power of God. For it is written: I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will cast away the understanding of the prudent. Where are the wise? Where are the scribes? Where are the disputers of this world? hath not God made the wisdom of this world foolishnesse? For in so much as the worde by the wisdom of the world, is not God in his wisdom, he pleased God to choose foolish preaching to save them that believe. For the Jewes require tokens, and the Grekes see after wisdom. But we preach Christ the crucified: to the Jewes an occasion off fallinge, and unto the Grekes foolishnesse. But unto them that are called (both Jewes and Grekes) we preach Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God.

For the foolishnesse of God is wisdom unto men: and the weakness of God is strength unto men. Whereuntoe on your callinge, how that not many wylle after the flesh, not many mightie, not many of hys degree are called: but that foolish is before the world, hath God chosen, that he mighte confound the wise: And that weak is before I and de. hath God chosen, I he mighte confound the mightie. And the wise and the mighty before the world hath God chosen, not that which is nothinge, that he mighte drawe to ye that which is ought, that no flesh shulde rejoyse in his preference. Of the same are ye also in Christ Jesus, which of God is made unto us a wisdom and a strength, and sanctification and redemption, that as it is written: I shall be rejoyce in the LORD.

When I brethren, what I came unto you came not as they would have us to be worshipped, nor to shewe unto you the preaching of Christ. For I shewed not forth myself

The first Epistle to the Corinthians. Chap. Ixiiij.

George you that I knowe any thinge, saue and Iesus Christ, euen the sam that was created. And I knowe amongst you in weaknes, and in feare, and in much trembling: and my wordes and my preaching was not with enflaminge wordes of mans wysdome, but in shewing of the spere and of power: that youre faith shoulde not stande in the wysdome of men, but in the power of God.

That we speake of is wysdome amongst the fowle perfect: not of wysdome of this worlde, neither of the rulers of this worlde which go to naufrage: but we speake of the wysdome of God, which is in secretes and hath byd: which God ordeyned before the worlde vnto ours glorie: which none of y rulers of this worlde knowe. For yf they had knowne it, they had not crucified the O.L.
DE of glorie, but as it is nowe: The eye hath not seene, and the eare hath not heard, neither hath it entered in to the heart of man that God hath prepared for them that loue him.

But God hath opened it vnto vs by his spere. For the spere searcheth out all thin-ges, yet euen the depertes of the Godhead.
For what man knoweth what is in man, saue the spere of man which is in him? Euen so man knoweth what is in God, saue the spere of God. As for vs, we haue not recei-ued the spere of this worlde, but the spere which cometh of God, so that we can knowe what is geue vs of God: which yet also spie hath not wisdome wordes of mans wysdome, but with the conyng wordes of the holy goost, and in dyg spirituall maters spirituall. Howbeit the naturall man percei-ueth nothinge of yf spere of God. Iesu foo-lishnes vnto him, and he can not perceiue it: for it must be spiritually discerned.

But he that is spirituall, discerth all thinges, and he is iudged of no man. For who hath knowen yf myste of the LORDE? Who shall entense him? But we haue the myste of Christ.

The III. Chapter.

NOW I beseeche you, coulde not speake vnto you as vnto spirituall, but as vnto carnall, euen as vnto babes in Christ.

I geue you myste to drynke, and not measure yf myghte not then a myste with all, nether maye ye yet euen now, in so much as ye are yet fleshye. For I spinge there is ennyen distrayte, and discencion amongst you as ye are fleshye, yf ye waite after yf manner of men.
For when one sayeth: I holde of Paul: another, I holde of Apollo, are ye not yet fleshye?

What is Paul? What is Apollo? Are mysters are they, by whom ye are come to the belue, and the same, accordinge as the LORDE hath geuen vnto euery man. I haue planned, Apollo hath watered, but God hath geuen the increase. So then neither is he that planteth, any thinge, neither he that watereth, but God which geueth the increace. As for him that planteth, and he that wa-tereth, yf one is as the other, but yet shall eu-ry one receaue his reward accordinge to his laboure. For we are Gods labourers, ye are Gods husbandry, ye are Gods buildinge.

Accordinge to the grace of God which is geuen vnto me, as a wise buildere haue I layed the foundation, but another buildeth thereon. Let euery man take heed how he buildeth thereon. For other foundation can no man lay, then that which is layed, the which is Iesus Christ. But yf any man buide vpon this foundation, golde, syluer, precious stones, cumber, haye, stubble, euerymans worke shall be shewed. For the daye of the LORDE shall be shewed, which shall be shewed with fyre: and the fyre shall trye euery mans worke what it is. If any mans worke shal be so th burne, he shall receaue his reward. If any mans worke burne, he shall suffer losse: but he shall be saved himself, yet so as he shal be shewed with fyre.

Knowe ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spere of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroye. For the temple of God is holy, which ye are, and let no man defile ne himselfe. If any man churke himselfe wylfullye amongst you, let him become a fool in this worlde, that he maye be wise. For the wysdome of this worlde is foolishnes with God. For it is written: he compasseth the heavens in these craftynesse: and a goynte: The LORDE knoweth the thoughtes of the my-ste, that they are wayne. Therefore let no man reioyse in men. For all is yours, whether it be Paul or Apollo, whether it be Cephas or the worlde, whether it be life or death, whether it be pynne or sooth come. All is yours but ye are Christes, and Christ is Gods.

The III. Chapter.

Euery man this wyse euery man ye not that a lile leuen soweth the whole lump of dough: Pourge out therfore the leuen, that ye maye be new dough, like as ye are sowne seed. For we also have an eternall lamb, which is Christ, that in offere for us. Wherfor leuen - kepe it after, not in olde leuen, nor in the leuen of malicious-nes, and wickednes, but in the sowne seed of puritye and of the truste.

I wrote unto you in the Epistle, that shulde have nothinge to do with whome gers, that means I not at all of the whi-temongers of this worlde, ether of the cous, or of exoracioners, or of the whishippe ymages, for then must ye neede have gone out of the worlde. But now have I wryte unto you, I shal have nothinge to do with them: (I tellyn,) if there be any man that is called a brother, and is an whi-temonger, or covetous, or a worshipp of ymages, ether a ryal, or adonards, or exoracioner, with such shal ye not eate.
For what have I to do with ge though are with them? Do ye not iudge that that within? As for them that are with you, do shal iudge them. Put awaye ye from him that is cruel.

The VI. Chapter.

Now dare one off you sayng that I was with another, goe late before the whighecons, and not before the saynes? Do ye not knowe that the lawe shal iudge the worlde? I febe rector that shal be iudged off you, are ye not good enough to iudge small matters? Answer not that we shal iudge the angels: how much more things e chat pertaineto the impossibill: Therefore yf ye haue iudgemente of unpossibill matters, take them chat are despyed in the congregacion, and sic them to be iudges. This I saye to youre shame. Ye chere verely no wyle man amoge you: What not one a call, chat can iudge betwene brother & brother: but one roether goeth in lare with another, and chat before the whelers:

¶ Then therefore is there wretly a saute audge you, chat ye goe laue one with another. Why eather sasse ye not wronge: Why sasse ye not youre selues rather to be defrauded: but ye youre selues do waige and fraude, and chat euen the bieth. None ye not chat yf unrighteous shal not inherite the kyngdome of God: Benot discorde. Neher whaumongers, ne worshippees off ymagies, ne breakers off wedlocke, ne makinges, neher abusers a of them selues with many othe, ne thems, ne there be come, ne be do fordes, ne curse speakers, ne enuicousers shal inherite the kyngdome of God. And such haue some of you bein, but ye ge washed, ye are sanctified, ye are made ryghteous by the name of the LORD Iesus, and by the sperte of oure God.

¶ I saye do all thinges, but a all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but I wil be broughte under no man power. Meece are ordeyned for y bely, & the bely for meates. But God shal destroye both ie and them. The body belongeth not vnto whosome, but vnto the LORD, and the LORD vnto the body. God hath rayssed up the LORD, and shal eayse wa up also by his power. Know ye not chat youre bodies are the members of Christ: Shal I now use the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot: God forbid. Ye do ye not knowe, chat he which cleueth vnto an harlot, is a one body: For they shal be eno (sayeth he) in one fleshe. But he chat cleueth vnto the LORD, is one sperte.

¶ Ye whosome. All hymes y a man doth, are vnto the body. But he chat commyeth whosome, synneth agaynst his own body. On knowe ye not chat youre body is the temple of the holy goost: Whome ye haue of God, and are not youte ownes. For ye are dearly boughte. Paye ye God therfor in y body & in y sperte, which are Gods.

The VII. Chapter.

¶ Concernynge the churges wherof ye were wnto me, I answe: It is good for a man not to touch a woman. The uerchles to auoyde whordome, let eury man haue his owne wife, and let eury woman haue his owne husbande. & let them geue vnto the wise one beneuolence, liberte yf also the wise vnto y man. The wise hath not power ouer his owne body, but the husbande: yf he wyl the man hath not power ouer his owne body, but the wife. Withdane not yf selues one fro another, excepte it be with the consente of both for a tyme, chat ye maye geue youre selues vnto fastinge and prayre, and the come together agayne, let eathan tempte you for yf inconyng. But this I saye of sauoure, and not of commaundment. Howbeit I wol be rather y all me were as I am. Therefore eury one hath his proper gifte of God: is one thus, another so. To them verely y are unmarried and to wedomes I saye: It is good for the chat they abyde also as I do. But yf they cannot abyde ye, let them marry. For it is better to marry, than to burne.

But vnto them chat are married, commaund not I, but the LORD, chat the wife separate not herselfe from the husbande: but yf he separate herselfe, yf she maye remaine, or be reconcyled to her husbande: and let one of the husbande put on a ye his wife from him.

As for the other, vnto the I saye, I not y LORD: If any brother haue an unbelyngge wife, and she is consente to dwell with him, let him not put her awaye. And yf a woman haue an unbelyngge husbande, and he is consente to dwell with her, let her not put him awaye. For the unbelyngge husbande is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelyngge wife is sanctified by the husbande: so receiue youre children vnto me, but now are they holy. But yf the unbelyngge departe, let him departe. A brother or a sister is not bounde in such cases, but: God hath called vs in peace. For what knowest thou of me, whether thou shalke saye: Or what knowest thou of man, whether thou shalke saye: But euen as God hath distributed vnto eury one, so let him walke: and so orden I in all congregacions.

¶ If any man be called bynne circumcysed let him take no heyrdenhippe vpon him. If any man be called in the heyrdenhippe, let him not be circumcysed. Circumcission is nothinge, and uncircumcission is nothinge, but the keepynge of the commaundmentes of God. Let eury one abyde in the callinge.

The first Epistle

to the Corinthians.

1. Tim. 5. 11 1. Cor. 6. 13 as wherein he is called. Art thou called a servant, care not for it: neuertheless yf thou mayest be free, use it rather: for he that is col-led in the LORD be ymge a servant, is a servant of the LORD. Likewise he that is called boyeys fre, is a servant of Christ: he is deady boyeys fre, be not ye the servants of men. Brethren let every one wherein he is called, therein abyde with God.

1. Cor. 6. 13
 As concerninge virgins, I have no commandement of the LORD, ne receyveln I saye my good advysinge, na I have opra-ned mercy of the LORD to be faithfull. I suppose it is good for y present necessite: for it is good for a man to be, & thou bound to a wife, sike not to be loosed: Art thou loosed fr a wife, seker not a wife. But yf thou take a wife, thou synnest not. And yf a virgin marry, she synneth not. It was the lawe soch shal have trouble in the fleshe. But I favour you,

1. Cor. 6. 13
 Howbeit this I saye brethren: that yme is short. Furthermore this is the meanynge, yf they which have wyves, be as though they had none: and they that wepe, be as though they wepte not: and they that re-joyce, be as though they rejoyced not: they that bye, be as though they possided not: they that use this worlde, be as though they used it not. For the fashion off this worlde passeth awaye. But I wolde that ye shoulde be without care. That is synge, careth for the thinges of the LORD, how he maye please the LORD. But he that is married, careth for the thinges of the worl-de, how he maye please his wyfe, and so de-vied. A woman and a virgin that is synge, careth for the thinges of the LORD, that sh: maye be holy boch in body & also in speeche. But she that is married, careth for y thin-ges of the worlde, how she maye please hir husbanne.

1. Cor. 6. 13
 Thus I saye for youre profit, not that I wille unke you in a snare, but for that which is honest and comly to you, that ye maye obeynally cleave unto the LORD without hyndrance. But yf any man thynke that he is uncomly for his virgin yf he possit the yme of marriage, and yf he so requyre, let him do what he lyst, he synneth not, let he be coupled in marriage. Nevertheless he that purpouseth surely in his heart, to abyde no ne-ce, but hath power of his owne wyll, and deterneth to kepe his virgin, let him kepe his virgin, both well. Synally, he that is married, doeth well: but he that is married not his virgin in marriage, doeth beter. The wife is bound to the husbanne, as the LORD is bound to the church, as he ge as his husbanne I saye. But yf his husbanne slepe, she is at liberty to marry whom she wille, only that it be done in the LORD. But she that happen yf she be a sinner, she is bound to the LORD. I also have the spere of God.

The VIII. Chapter.

1. Cor. 8. 1
 As touchinge things offered unto Idoles, we are sure yf we all have knowledge. A knowledge passeth a man up into love charyte. Therefore yf any man thinke yf he knoweth any thinges, he knoweth not yet how he ought to knowe. But yf any man love God, the same is knowinge of him.

So are not sure now concerninge the matters offered unto Idols, that an Idol is a thinge in the worlde, and that there is no other God but one. And though eche that are called gooden, whether in heaven or in earth (as there be gooden many and den neany) yet have we but one God, and the father, of which are all thinges, and with him is the LORD Jesus Christ, by whiche are all thinges, and we by him.

But every man hath not knowledge: for we make yet confidence over the Idols, and care it as a thinge offered unto Idols: and so their conscience beynge weaked, is defiled.
 Therefore meate sacrificeth not unto God. If it care, we shal not therefore be better: yf it care not, we shal not therefore be the less. Wherefore bye that this weak-berie be not an occasion off fallunge unto weakes. For yf any man se the (which hath knowlege) se at the table in the Idols house, shal not his conscience be defiled, as he be occasioned to care of the Idols offer-inge. And so the same thy knowlege shal be made to his profit, for whi Christ dyed.
 But thou yf thou so agaynst the brethren, and wounde their weaked conscience, yf thou agaynst Christ. Wherefore yf meate offend my brother, I wille never eate flesh, lest I offend my brether.

The IX. Chapter.

1. Cor. 9. 1
 I am I not an Apostle? Am I not free?
 I have I not sene Jesus Christ our LORD? Art not ye my worke in the LORD? If I be not an Apostle woe be to me, yet am I your Apostle: for the sake of my ne Apostleshippe are ye in the LORD. My ne answer is woe to them that are me, in whi I have me not power to eate and drinke: for we are not power to eate and drinke as the co wife, as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the LORD, and as Cap-

Shamefully I and Barnabas nor power can do: Who goeth a war face at my ty me upon his own wages? Who planteth any yarde, and eateth not of the fruite ther of? Who seeth a flock, and eateth not of the meates of the flocke?

Saye I these thinges after the maner of men: Sayeth not the lawe the same also?

For it is written in the lawe off Moyses:

Thou shalt not moule the mawch of the ore that treadeth out the coine. Doth God take thought for the ore? Or sayeth he is not altogether for our sake? For no doubt it is requyte for our sake. For he that careth, shulde care upon hope: and he that hopeheth, shulde troste upon hope, & he might be paraker of this hope. If we haue foune vn to you spiritual thinges, is it a greater thinge vs then paye yf bodily thinges? But yf other be paraker of this power as you, wherfor are not we rather? Nevertheless we haue not used this power, but iustice all thinges

, lest we shulde hynder the Gospell off Christ. Knowe ye not that they which labo re in the temple, haue their hyuige of y temple: and they that waite on the altare, enioye the healtre: euen thus also hath y LORDE ordeyned, that they which preach the Gospell, shulde eate of y Gospell. But I haue used none of these thinges.

Further saye I herof, that it shulde be do ne vnto me: for I had rather dye, then that any man shulde buynge my reioysinge to naughte. For in that I preach the Gospell, I neede not booste my selfe, for I must neede do it. And now vnto me, yff I preach not the Gospell. If I do it with a good will, I shall haue my reward: but yff I do it against my will, yet is the office comynge vnto me. What therefore shal I bereaue my selfe? (I amayd therfore) that I preach the Gospell, and do the same freely for naughte, that I abusi not my libertye in y Gospell.

In the which I am free from all men, yet haue I made my selfe every mans seruant, y I mighte mynne y moo. Vnto the Jewes

I am become as a Jewe, to wyne y Jewe.

To them that are vnder the lawe, I am become as though I were vnder the lawe, to wynne them which are vnder the lawe.

Vnto them that are without lawe, I am become as though I were without lawe (where as yet I am not without the lawe of God, but am in y lawe of Christ) to wyne the which are without lawe. To the reuer be, am I become as a reuerbe, to wyne the weakes. I am become of all fashion a vni every man, to saue some at y lest. But this I do for the Gospell sake, that I mighte be partaker therof.

And now ye not, that they which runne in a course, runne all, yet one on receauech the reward: Runne ye so, that ye maye opeyne ne. Enuie ye not that pious mastre, abstei neth from alle thinges, and they do it, that they maye opeayne a corruptible crowne, but we to opeayne an vncorruptible crow ne. I herfore so runne, not as at an vn cer taine charge: So fighte I, not as one y bea teeth y aye: but I tame my body, and bryn ge it into subiection, lest whan I preach to the other, I myselfe be a cast awaye.

The X. Chapter.

Brethren, I wolde not that ye shul be ignorant of this, that our fathers were all vnder the cloudes, and all passed therow in the see, yett all bap tized vnder Moyses in the cloudes and in the see, and dyd all eate of one spiritual mea te, and dyd all drynke of one spiritual dryn ke: but they dronke of the spiritual, & drake that folowed the, which drake was Christ.

Nevertheless in many of them had God no deylet, for they were slayen downe in the wyldecnesse.

These are ensamples vnto us, & we shul be not lust after euill thinges, as they lust.

Neither be ye worshippers off ymages, as were some of them. Accordynge as it is reue l: The people sat downe to eate and dryn twenty thousande. Neither let vs tempte Christ, as some of them tempted him, and were destroyed of serpentes. Neither murde re, as some of them murdered, and were destroyd wherow the destroyd.

All these thinges happenen vnto the for ensamples, but they are to wyne vs, to te, vpon whom the ende of y woerde is come.

Therfore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed, lest he fall. There hath yet no tri stacious ouertaken you, but such as foloweth the nature of man. Nevertheless God is faithfull, whiche shal not suffer you to be tempted aboue youre strengthe, but shal in the myddes of y temptacion make a waye as come out, that ye maye beare it. Wherfo

Christ. The bodye that we beate, is not of partakinge of y bodye of Christ. For re many, are one bodye & one bodye, in as much as we all are partakers of one bodye.

C Beholde I shal aske the flesh. They saye it be sacrificie, as they not partakers of the altar. What shal I now saye then? 1 Cor. 10 Shal I saye that the I dole is any thinge? Or that it which is offered vnto the I dole is any thinge? Nay. But this I saye, that loke what the I dole then offer, that offer they vnto deuils, and not vnto God. Now wolde I not that ye shulde be in the fellowshipe of deuils. Ye can not drynke of the cuppe of the LORD and of the cuppe of the deuils. Ye can not be partakers of the LORDES table, and of the table of deuils. Or wil ye prouoke the LORDES. I maye do all thinges, but all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but all thinges edifie not. Let none seeke his owne profit, but let every man seeke anothers welch.

What I seek in this fleshly matter, that eats, and ate no question for conscience sake. For the carth is the LORDES, and all that therein is. Xpny of the flesh becomen, byd you to a feast, and yf ye be disposed to go, what I seek is sit before you, that eats, and I have no question for conscience sake.

D But yf any man so ye vnto you. This is offered vnto I dole, that eate not of it, for his sake that sheweth it, and for buyinge of conscience. (The earth is the LORDES and all that therein is.) I trustethes I speake of a conscience, not chine, but of y dole. For why shulde my liberty be widge of another mans conscience? For yf I take my parte w thankefegnyng, why am I euell spoken of for thinge wherefore I geue thanke?

Therefore whether ye eate or drynke, or what so euer ye do, do all to y prayse of God. Be not ye an occasion of fallinge, neither to the Jewes, ner to the Gentiles, ner to the congregation of God, such as I also please all men in all thinges, not seekinge myne owne profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saved. I followe ye me, as I do Christ.

The XI. Chapter.

2 Commende you brethren, that ye remember me in all poyntes, and kepe the ordinances, such as I deliuered them vnto you. But I certifie you, that Christ is the head of e every man. As for y man, he is the head of y woman, but God is Christes head. Lett y man that prayeth w propheticke, and hold any thinge on his head, sheweth his head. But every man that prayeth w propheticke wth uncouered head, dishonoureth his head. For it is euen a lyke much as yf he were shaven. Xpny womā be not couered, let his head also be cut of. But yf he w consensly for woman to haue her head cut of to be shaven, then let his couer his head. I trustethes the man oughte not to couer his head, for so much as he is the ymage and glory of God: but the womā to the glory of the man. For the man is noe of the woman, but the woman of the man. Whether was the man created for the womans sake, but the woman for the mans sake.

Then for oughte the woman to haue a power vpon his head, for the angels sake. I trustethes neither is the man wch as y woman, neither the woman is the man in the LORDES. For as the woman is of the man, euen so cometh the man also by the woman, but all of God, Judge ye by yf I do, whether it be comly, y woman pray before God bare headed: w dole not nede teach you. y it is a shame for a man yf he were lōge head, & a prayse of y womā, yf he were lōge head. For his head is gude head to couer her withall. But yf there be any man a mōge you that haue lōch to stryue, let him knowe, that we haue no such custome, nede the congregacions of God. But this I warte you of: I comende it not, that we come together noe ofter a better mane but a fecti worse. First, when ye come together in the congregacion, y heart, that there be discussions amonge you, and I partly beueit. For there must be feces amonge you, that they wch as are perfect amonge you, mighte be knowne.

Now when ye come together, the LORDES supper can not be kept. For whan shulde be kept, eury man eateth his owne supper a fox. And one is hōgrie, another is dronke, some ye not hurte to eate and drinke in: w despyse ye y congregacion of God, and shame chime that haue not. What shal I saye vnto you? Shal I prayse you in this prayse I you not. That which I deliuered vnto you, receaued I of the LORDES. For the LORDES Jesu the same night that he wch he was betrayed, eate the last of the passover, and drinke it, and saye: Take ye, eate ye, this is my body, wch is taken for you. This do in the remembrance of me. After the same maner also he drinke of the cuppe when supper was done, and saye: This cuppe is the new testament in my

The first Epistle to the Corinthians. Ho. lxxvi.

Woe, this do (as if a ye drinke) in the same name of me. For as oft as ye shall eat of this bread, & drinke of this cuppe, ye shall shewe the LORDS death, untill he come.

Wherefore who soever shall eat of this bread, and drinke of this cuppe of the LORD unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the LORD. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of this bread, and drinke of this cuppe. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth & drinketh his own damnation, because he taketh not the difference of the LORDS body.

Wherefore are there so many weakes and sickes among you, and many sleepe? For if we indure ourselves, we should not be weighed. But when we are thus, we are chastened of the LORD, that we should not be blamed with the world. Wherefore my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tary one for another. But if any man hunger, let him eat at home, that ye come not together unto confusion. As for other things, I will tell them in other when I come.

The XII. Chapter.

Concerning spiritual gifts (brethren) I would not that ye were ignorant. Ye knowe that ye were they that were your wayes unto divine Iohel, as if ye were led. Wherefore I declare unto you, that no man speaketh of the spirit of God, but by the word of Jesus. And no man can say that Jesus is the LORD, but by the holy ghost.

There are diverse gifts, yet but one spirit: and there are diverse offices, yet but one LORD: and diverse operations: yet there but one God, which will keep all in all. The gifts of the spirit are given unto every man to profit the congregation. To one is given through the spirit the utterance of wisdom: to another so given the utterance of knowledge according to the same spirit: to another, faith in the same spirit: to another, the gift of healing in the same spirit: to another, power to do miracles: to another, prophecy: to another, judgement to discern spirits: to another, diverse tongues: to another, the interpretation of tongues. These all doth of the same one spirit will, and distributeth unto every man, according as he will.

For as the body is one, and hath yet many members, nevertheless all the members of the body though they be many, are yet but one body: even so Christ also. For we are all baptized in one spirit to be one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bonds or free, and have all of one spirit. For the body also is not one member, but many. As the face saith: I am not of the body, is he therfore not a member of the body? And the face saith: I am not the eye, therfore am I not a member of the body, is he therfore not a member of the body? As all the body were an eye, where were then the hearing? As all were hearing, where then the smelling? But now hath God fit the members, every one severally in the body, as it hath pleased him. Nevertheless if all the members were one member, where were then the body? But now are the members many, yet is the body but one.

The eye can not see with the hand: I have need of the: so againe the head needeth the feet, I have need of you: but rather a greater beale the members of the body which seeme to be most feeble, are most necessary: and upon these members of the body which we thinke least honest, put we most honest: and sure uncomely partes have most beauty on. So are honest members needed: not. But God hath so measured of the body, and given most honour to no other member which had need, that there should be no strife in the body, but that the members should indifferently care one for another. And if one member suffer, all the members suffer with him: and if one member be had in honour, all the members are glad with him also. But ye are the body of Christ, and members, every one of another.

And God hath ordeyned in the congregation, first the Apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly teachers, then doers of miracles, after that the gifts of healing, helpers, governors, diverse tongues. Are they all Apostles? Are they all prophets? Are they all teachers? Are they all doers of miracles? Have they all the gift of healing? Speaketh they all with tongues? Can they all interpret? But covet ye the best gifts. And yet shewe I you a more excellent way.

I coulde moue mekesaynes out of cheir places, and yet had not loue. I were nothinge. And though I bestowed all my goodes as febe I poore, and though I gaue my body wherethat I burned, and yet had not loue, it profiteth me nothinge.

Whoe is patient & courteous, loue enuyeth not, loue doth not proudly, is not puffed up, dealeth not dishonestly, is not hidde amonge, is not prouoked vnto anger, thyntereth not well, reioysch not ouer talquyrs, but reioyscheth in the truth, beareth all thynges, beareth all thynges, beareth all thynges, suffereth all thynges.

B Though prophesyinge sayle, ocutunges crosse, or knowldege perishe, yet loue folleth neuer awaye. For oure knowldege is vnperfected, and oure prophesyinge is vnperfected. But what that whiche is perfect, cometh, then shal the vnperfected be done awaye. When I was a childe, I spake o o childe, I vnderstode as a childe, I ymagined as a childe. But as soon as I was a man, I put awaye childishnes. Now we se this now a glasse in a darke speakinge, but the shal see face to face. Now I knowe vnperfectedly: but the shal I knowe as I am knowne. Now abideth hope, loue, lone, these three be the greatest of these is lone.

The XIII. Chapter.

E Aboure for lone. Couet spiritual giftes, but specially that ye maye prophete. For he that speaketh with tunge, speaketh not vnto men, but vnto God: for no man heareth him. Howbeit in that spere he speaketh misterio. But he that prophesieth, speaketh vnto men to edifyinge, & to exhortacion, and so comfort. He that speaketh with tunge, edifyeth himselfe: but he that prophesieth, edifyeth the congregacion. I wote that ye all speak with tunge, but rather that ye prophesie. For greater is he that prophesieth, then he that speaketh: edifies: excepte he also expounde it, that the congregacion maye haue edifyinge. But now brethren yf I come vnto you, and speake with tonges, what shal I profite you, excepte I speake vnto you eche by reuelacion or by knowldege, or by prophesyinge, or by doctrine?

B Lett vs se it also in that thynges that geue founde, and yet tyenoe: whether it be a pyper or an harpe, excepte they geue distynctioun founden from echem, how shal it be knowne what is piped or harped. And yf the trumpet geue an vncertaine sounde, who wil prepare him selfe to the battaill? When so ye ke wyse, when ye speake with tunge, excepte ye speake playne wordes, how shal it be knowne what is spoken? For ye shal be speake in that ayre. So many kyndes of voyces are in the worlde, and none of them is without signification. If I knowe no maner what voyce meaneth, I shal be an alecume vnto him that speaketh: he that speaketh, shal be an alecume vnto me. And so ye (for so much as ye couet spiritual giftes) se that ye maye haue plentye to the edifyinge of the congregacion. Wherefore let him that speaketh with tunge, praye, that he maye interpret alle. If I praye with tunge, my praye prayeth, but my vnderstondinge dryngeth no manne. How shal it be then? I earnestly chuse: I wil praye with that spere, and wil praye with the vnderstondinge also: I wil synge psalms in the spere, and wil synge psalms with that vnderstondinge also.

But when thou givest thanks with that spere, how shal he that occupieth the same o right vnderstande? Ye am I as they geue of childe, sayinge: he knoweth not what thou sayest: Thou givest well thy thanks, but the other is not edified. I thank my God, eche that I speak with tunge more then ye. Yet ha I chosen in the congregacion to vspeke fytte wordes with my vnderstonding: I maye enforme other also, rather then to chuse many wordes with tunge. Brethren be not chidden in vnderstonding, howbeit as concerninge maliciouse be chidden in vnderstonding be perfecter. Inche lawe is to myte: With other tunge and with other lippes wyll I speake vnto this people, and yet shal they not heare me, sayeth the LORD. Therfore are tunge a for a toke, not to the that beleue, but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophesyinge, not to them that beleue not, but to them that beleue.

If the whole congregacion now came together into one place, & spake all with tunge, and there came in they that are vnlearned, or they which beleue not, shal the theynt saye, that ye were out of your wits: But yf all prophesied, and there came in one that beleue not, or one vnlearned, he shal be instructed of them all, and iudge of all, and so shal be the secretes of his heart be opened, and so shal he fall downe vpon his face, worshippinge God, and knowldeginge, that it is truely God is in you. How is it then brethren? When ye come together, euey hath a psalme, hath doctrine, hath a songe, hath a reuelacion, hath an interpretation.

The first Epistle to the Corinthians. No. lxxvij.

that all be done to edifyinge. If any man speake such things, let him do it him selfe beyng the speaker, and let the most him selfe beyng of church, and one of feet another, and let one interpret it. But if there be not an interpreter, then let him keepe silence in the congregation, howbeit let him speake to himselfe and to God. As for the prophetes, let two or three speake: and let the other iudge. But if any revelation be made unto another that syeth, then let the first holde his peace.

It maye all prophesye one after another that they all maye learne, and that all maye haue comfort. And the spirit of the prophetes are subiecte vnto the prophetes. For God is not a God of confusion, but of peace, like as in all congregations of the iudges. Let your voyces keepe silence in the congregation, for it shal not be permittet into the to speake, but to be under obedience, as if I haue sayed also. But if they will learne any thinge, let them be cheifly bidden at home. For it becometh not rounde to speake in the congregation. O strange the word of God from amonge you: Ouis it come vnto you onely? If any man thynke himselfe to be a prophet, as particularly, let him knowe what I write vnto you for they are the commandementes of the L O R D E. But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant. When he is at church, come to prophesye, and send not to speake such things. Let all thinges be done honestly and in order.

The XV. Chapter.

I Declare vnto you brethren, the Gospel that I haue preached vnto you (which ye haue also accepted, and in the which ye stode, by the which also ye are saved) after what manner I preached it vnto you, if ye haue receiued it, receiue ye haue beloued in wayne. For first of all I deliuered vnto you that which I also receiued, how that Christ dyed for our synnes a corbidge to the scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he rose againe if church daye accordinge to the scriptures, and that he was seene of Cephas, then of the twelve: after that he went the first of them frue hundred brethren at once, whereof there are yet many city, but some are fallen a slepe. After that he was seene of James, then of all the Apostles. Last of all ronne he seene of me also, as if one borne out of due time. For I am of last of the Apostles, which am not worthy to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the congregation of God. But by the grace of God I am what I am. And his grace in me hath not bene vayne, but I haue laboured more then they all: howbeit not I but the grace of God which in us me. I knowe whether I be I or they, thus haue me persecuted, and thus haue ye beloued.

But if Christ be preached, that he is risen from the dead, how saye then some amonge you, that there is no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen. If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching in vayne, and your faith is also in vayne: yet and we are founde false witnesses of God, because we haue testified against God, that he hath raised vp Christ, whom he hath not raised ap, if the dead rise not againe. For if the dead rise not againe, then is Christ also not risen againe. But if Christ be not risen againe, then is your faith in vayne, and ye are yet in your synnes: they also that are false a scripture in Christ, are perished. If in this life only we hope on Christ, then are we of all men the most miserable.

But now is Christ risen from the dead, and is become: if first frons of them that slepe. For by one man cometh death, and by one man the resurrection of the dead. For as they all dye in Adam, so shal they all be made alijue in Christ, but every one in his order. The first is Christ, then they that be liued vnto Christ, when he cometh. Then the end, which he shal deliuer vnto the Kingdom vnto God the father, when he shal put downe all rule, and all superiouritie, & power. So he must raygne, till he haue put all his enemies vnder his feet. The last enemy that shal be destroyed, is death, for he hath put all thinges vnder his feet. But we haue beleeued, that all thinges are put vnder him, it is manifest that he is exalted, which put all thinges vnder him. When all thinges shal be subdued vnto him, then shal the sonne himselfe also be subiecte vnto him, which put all thinges vnder him, that God maye be all in all.

O what do they which are baptised out of death, if the dead rise not at all? Why are they then baptised out of the dead? And why stonde we in jeopardy every hour? By our religion which I haue in Christ Jesus & LORDS, I dye daily. That I haue fought much because of Ephesus of fear of man of man, what helpeth it me, if the dead rise not againe? Let vs case and burne, for we are now as they that dye. Be not ye deceived,

1 Cor. 15. 11-12

The first Epistle

to the Corinthians.

Well speakinges corrupte good maners, Awakenight up, and syne not: for some haue nee y knowlege of God. This I saye to yourt shame.

But some man mighte saye: How shal the deed arise? And with this manner off body shal they come? Thou fool, & which the is foryet is not clayed, except it dye.
And wher somer thou: thou seest not y body that shalbe, but a bare come, namely of whence, or of forme ether. But God geueth it a body as he wil, and vnto eury one of y kinds his owne body.

All fleshe is not osmaner of fleshe, but there is one maner fleshe of men, another of beastes, another of fishes, another of byr des. And there are heauenty bodies, and there are earthy bodies: but the heauenty haue one glory, and y earthly another. The Son hath one clearenes, the Moone hath ano ther clearenes, and the starres haue another clearenes, for one starre excelleth another in clearenes. Euen so the resurrection of the deed. It is sowne in corruption, and shal ry se in incorruption: It is sowne in dishonour re, & shal ryse in glory: It is sowne in weak nesse, and shal ryse in power: It is sowne a natural body, & shal ryse a spirituall body.

It is sowne a natural body, there is a spi rituall body also. As is written: The first man Adam was made in to a natural life, and the last Adm in to a spirituall life. Howe beit the spirituall body is not the first, but y natural, and then the spirituall. The first man is of the earth, earthy: y seconde man is of heauē, heavenly. As the earthy, soch are they also that are earthy: and as y heauen ly, soch are they also y are heavenly. And as we haue borne the ymage of the earthy, so shal we beare the ymage of the heavenly also. This I saye brethien, that flesh & blood can not inherite y kyngdome of God: nei ther shal corruption inherite incorruption.

Beholde, I saye vnto you a mystery: We shal not all sleepe, but we shal all be chaun ged, and that sodainly and in the twinklynge of an eye, at the cyme of the last trompe. For the trompe shal blowe, and the deed shal ry se incorruptible, and we shal be chaunged.
For this corruptable must put on incorrup tion, and this mortall must put on immorta lity. Where as this corruptible shal put on incorruption, and this mortall shal put on immortality, the shal the word be fulfilled that is written: Death is swallowed up in vic tory. Death, where is thy synge? Hell, whe re is y victory? The synge of death is syn ne: The strengthe of synne is the lame. But thanks be vnto God, which hath great me the victory throug oure LORDE Iesu Christ. Therefore my brethren, be ye fast fast, unmovable, & alwaye rich in the wor ke of the LORDE, for as much as ye labour, that youre laboure is not in vayne in the LORDE.

The XVI. Chapter.

Concernynge the gadderynge that is made for the saynes, as I haue be dyced on the congregacions of Judea and so do ye also. Upon some Sabbath daye let eury one of you put asyde by hym self, and laye up what so euer he thynketh meet, that the collection be not to gather than I come. When I am come, wher euer ye shal aske by your letters, the I sende to buyngs yonre liberallite, vnto Je rusalem. Therefore yf ye desire that I go thither also, they shal go with me. The I wil come vnto you, whan I go throug Macedonia: for throug Macedonia wil I take my iourney. With you peradventure I abyde, or els wyther, that ye maye bytyme me on my waye, whither so euer I go.

Why not for ye now in my passynge, yf I hope to abyde a whyle with you, yf the LORDE shal suffer me. But I wil tarie in Ephesus vntill whitsontide. For a greut and fructuall dooe is opened vnto me, and there are many aduersaries. Yf Tymothee come, se that he be without feare with you, for he wottech y wotce of the LORDE as I do. Let no man therfore despise him, he connaie him faith in peace, that he may come vnto me, for I loke for him with the brethien.

As for brother Apollos, be ye sure, that I greatly desired him to come vnto you with the brethie. And his mynde was not at al to come as this cyme, but he wil come whi he hath oportunitie. Watch ye, stande fast in the faith, quyte youle men, and be free ge: see all youre thynges be done in loue.

But brethien (ye knowe the house off) Stephana, that they are the first fructes in Macedonia, and that they haue appoynted seles to minister vnto the saynes) I wish e to you to be obedient vnto soche, and to al that helpe and labour. I am glab of the ymage of Stephana and Fortunatus, and Achaicus. For lette what was lacking vnto me on your parte, y haue they supplied they haue refilled my sprae and yours.
Knowe them therefore that are soch.

The congregacions of Asia salute you.

 mynde.

The seconde Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul, to the Corinthians.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle of Jesu Christ, by the will of God, and brother Ti-motheus. Unto the congregation of God which is at Corinth, with all the sayntes which are all Asia.

Grace be with you, and peace fro God our father, and from the LORDE Jesus Christ.

Blessed be God the father of our LOR-DE Jesus Christ, the father of mercy and of God of all comforte, which comforteth us in all our trouble: in so much that we are able to comfort them that are in any manner of trouble, with the same comforte wherewith we are comforted of God, for as the afflictions of Christ are plentiful in us, even so is his consolation plentiful by Christ.
 And whether we have trouble or comforte, it is done for your wele. If it be trouble, it is done for your comforte and health, which health sheweth by power, in that ye suffer the same afflictions which we suffer. If it be comforte, it is done also for your comforte and health. Therefore is our hope false for you, in as much as we knowe, that, like as ye are partakers of the afflictions, so shal ye be partakers also of the consolation.

Wherein we wolde not have you ignorant of our trouble, which happened unto us in Asia, for we were struck one off measure passing strength, so that we were disposed of life, and had concluded in our selves that we must needs dye. But this was done, because we shoulde not put our trust in oure felues, but in God, which rayseth vp the dead to life agayne: which deliuereth vs from so greate a death, and yet deliuereth daylie, On whom we trust, that he wil deliuer us hereafter also, by the helpe of yonre prayer for vs: that as oure behalfe many thanks may be gyven by many persones, for the gifte that is geven vs.

a. Cor. c. c.
For oure reioysinge is this, when the testi mony of oure conscience, that in synninge & godly purpasse, not in fleshye wysdome, but in the grace of God, we haue had oure conuersion in the worlde, but most of all with you. For we wryte nothinge els vnto you, then that ye receiue and also knowe. Rec t I trust that ye shal synde vs vnto the ende, euen as ye haue founde us partly.

For we are youre reioysinge, eue as ye also are oure - reioysinge in y daye of the L. O R D E Iesus. And in this confidence was I mynded the other tyme to come vnto you (that ye mighte haue yet another pleasure more) to passe by you. (as to Macedonia, & to come againe out of Macedonia vnto you & to be led forth to Ieremye marke of you.

When I thus wyse was mynded, by I Iust lightnesse: - Or are my thoughtes fleshy? No lo - but with me yee to yee, and wryte say, that full God, that oure more vnto you hath not bene yee and naye. For Gods sunne Iesus Christ, which was preached amonge you by vs (namely, by me and Siluas and Timotheus) was not yee and naye, but in him it was yee. For all the promyses of God are yet in him, & are fulfilled in him, as the playe of God by vs. But it is God which stablisheth vs in you in Christ, and hath a noynted vs, and sealed vs, and geuen the earnest of the spirit in oure hertes.

Rom. a. a.
b. For. 3. a.

Q Of I call God to recorde vnto my soule, that to fauoure you with all I came not agayne vnto Corinthum. Not that we are - lordes oure youre faith, but we are helpers of youre loye, for ye stonde in faith. But I determined this to my selfe, that I wolde not come agayne to you in heynous. For yf I make you ioy, who is it that shal make me glad, but the same which is made ioy by me? And the same haue I wrytten vnto you, lest when I come, I shal be to the basynes of them, of whom I oughte to reioyse: forasmuch as I haue this confidence in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in greuous trouble and angurish others wroote I and you with many teares: not yf I shoulde be ioy, but that ye mighte perceiue the loue, which I haue manifested allynne you.

But yf any man haue caused some, the same hath not made me ioy, but sorrowe. I shoulde grieve you all. It is sufficient, that the same man is so rebuted a smyrted, that from hence forth ye oughte the more to iuge him and to comfort him, lest he be swallowed up in ouer much heynousnesse. Wherfor I exhorte you, that ye shewe loue vnto him. Fortherfore dyd I reioyse vnto you so, that I mighte knowe the proofe of you, whether ye were obedient in all thinges. And loke vnto whos ye forgiue any thinge, I forgiue he also. For I also, yf I forgiue any vnto any man, that he forgiue I forgiue you: in the name of Christ I lest we shal be benighted of Satans. For his thoughtes are not unknowne vnto vs.

But whos I named to. Troas to prech of Gospel of Christ (and a boie was opened in it in J. LODRE) I had not as yet in my spirit, because I founde not Titus my brother: but I toke my leaue of them, and went awaie in to Macedonia. And thanks be to God, which allwaye geureth vs cheynty in Christ, and openeth yf fauours of the knowlege by vs in every place. For we vnto God the good fauours of Christ had amonge this yere saued, & amonge this past yere, & to cheynte, & fauours of death, but vnto yf other, the fauours of death vnto life. And who is meete therfor? Fewe are not as many are, which choppe at the word of God, but euil out of our nest, and out of God in yf sighte of Gods speake we in Christ.

The ii. Chapter.

Q Euenne we then agayne to pury felues? We dede not (as some othe) of pistles of commendacion vnto you as letters of commendacion from you. In oure epistle wrytten in oure hertes withoute stonde and reb of all me, necht ye in knowynge, howe that ye are yf epistle of Iust manifested by vs, and myrre, not with yee, but with the spirit of the synner. So as in salua of stone, but in fle by tables of the heet. Soch trust haue we thowm that to God warde, not that we are sufficient oure felues to thynke any thinge, as of oure felues, - but oure ableness cometh of God, which hath made vs able, to be mynist of the new Testament: not of the lawe, of the spere. For the letters fleshy, but the spirit geureth life.

But yf the mynistacion yf fleshye

1000 the letter, and was signed in stone, 1001 was glorious, so that the child of Israel might not behold the face of Moses, for clearness of his countenance, (which glory nevertheless is done away) how shall not 1002 manifestation of the spirit be much more glorious? For if the office that preacheth damnation be glorious, much more doth the office that preacheth righteousness excede in glory. For by other parts that was glorified is nothing glorified in respect of this exceeding glory. For if that which is done away, be glorious, much more shall that which remaineth be glorious.

1003 C Seinge then that we have such trust, we are of great boldnes, and be not as Moses, 1004 which put a vail before his face, so that he durst not see the face of his Lord, the end of it, that is done away. But their myn-1005 dres are blinded. For unto this day remaineth the same covering untill this day in the olde Testament, when they receiue it, which in Christ is put away. But euen vnto this day when Moses receiued the vail, he saith 1006 before the people: I cannot see the face of my Lord, because the vail is there. But when they turne to the LORD, the vail shall be taken away. For the LORD is a spirit: where the spirit of the LORD is, there is liberty. But now the glory of the LORD appeareth in 1007 an all way open face, and we are chaunged into the same image, from one cleannesse to another, and as of the spirit of the LORD.

The III. Chapter.

1008 Therfore seinge we have such an office (euen as mercy is come vpon vs) we sayme not, but euen from vs the doles asen homely, and walke not in crassities: neither couer we thee with the robe of God but open be couth, and repute oure selues to euery mans conuenience in the sighte of God.

1009 As oure Gospell be yet hyd, it is hyd in them that are lost: among whom the God of this world hath blinded the myn-1010 dres of them which beleue not, that the light of the Gospell of the glory of Christ (which is the image of God) shulde not shine vnto them.
1011 For we preach not selues, but Jesus Christ by the LORD, and oure selues your ser-uantes for Jesus sake.

1012 In God, that commaunded the light to shine out of darkness, hath given a clea-re light in oure hearts, by vs the light of the 1013 knowledge of the glory of God might come forth in the face of Jesus Christ.

1014 As the treasure haue we in earth 1015 velle, that by power which excheleth might be of God, and not of vs. We are troubled on every syde, yet are we not without hope.

We are in power, but not utterly without fear. We are persecuted, but we are not forsaken. We are afflicted, nevertheless we perish not. We alwayes beare aboute in 1016 oure body the dyinge of the LORD Jesus for the life also of the LORD Jesus might appeare in oure body. For we which lyue, 1017 are alwayes deliuered vnto death for Jesus sake, that the life also of Jesus might ap-peare in oure mortall fleshe.

1018 Therfore is death now mightie in vs, but life in you. But seinge that we haue the same spirit of faith (accordinge as it is wry-1019 ten: I beleue, and therefore haue) I speake, we also beleue, and therefore we speake, for we knowe that he, which is rised up for the LORD Jesus, shall rase vs up also by the means of Jesus, and shall sit with you. For all thin-1020 ges by vs for youre sakes, that the plene grace by the death of Jesus of many, maye redounde to the praife of God. Therefore are we not weary, but though of our wordes maye be corrupte, yet the inward is renewed by 1021 by daye. For our trouble, which is but carnal perill and lighte, worketh an exceeding 1022 and an excellant weight of glory vnto vs, which loseth not on the thinges that are seene, but on them which are not seene. For the 1023 thinges which are seene, are temporal: but the thinges that are not seene, are eternall.

The V. Chapter.

1024 We knowe surely, that yf oure earthly house of this dwellinge were des-1025 troied, we haue a buildinge ordeyned of God, an house not made with han-des, but eternall in heauen. And in the 1026 same sighte we also fear our nation, which is from heauen: and longe to be clothed ther-with, so yea, yf that we be founde clothed, 1027 and not naked. For as long as we are in this tabernacle, we sigh and are grieved, for we had rather not be clothed, but to be 1028 clothed vpon that mortallitie might be swallowed up of life. But he that hath ordeyned vs for this, is God, which hath given vs 1029 the earnest of the spirit. Therefore are we alwaye of good cheare, and knowe, that as longe as we dwell here in the body, we are not at home with the LORD: for we wal-1030 ke in such, and so haue not. Therefore we are of good comforte, and had leuer to be 1031 absent from the body, to be at home with the LORD.

1032 Wherfore, whether we be at home or sit home, we endeavour oure selues to please him. For we must all appeare before the iudgment seate of Christ, & every one maye receaue in his body, accordinge to & he hath done, whether ye be good or bad. Scryme then thus we knowe, howe that the LORD is to be feared, & we sure saye with men, but we are knowne well ynough unto God: I trust also, that we are knowne in your consciences. We pynne not oure selues naye unto you, but geue you an occasion to reioyse of vs, & ye maye haue to reioyse agaynst them, which reioyse after the outward appearance, and not after the hart. For yf we do to much, we do it unto God: yf we kepe measure, we do it for youre sakes. For the loue of Christ constraineth vs, in as much as we thus subge, that yf one be dead for all, then are all dead. And therefore dyd he for all, that they which lyue, shoulde not hence forth lyue unto them selues, but vnto him, which dyed for them and rose agayne.

C We desire hence knowe we none other of fleshy: and though we haue knowe Christ also after the fleshy, yet knowe we him now so none ore. Therfore yf any man bein Christ, he is a new creature. Noe thinge we thus subge, beholde, all are become new. Whereby all thinges are off God, which hath reconciled vs vnto himselfe by Iesus Christ, and hath giuen vs the office to preache the atonement. For God was in Christ, and reconcyled the world vnto himselfe, and counted not ther synne vnto them, and amonge vs hath he set vp the woode of yf atonement. Nowe these are we messenger in the reuolue of Christ, even as though God exhorteth by vs. We beseech you now therfore in Christes steade, that ye be at one with God: for he hath made him which: hence no synne, to be synne for vs, & we by his meanes shulde be the righteousnes, which before God is a lawe.

The vi. Chapter.

21 E as helpers therfore exhorta you, that ye reuolue of yf feare of God in vayne. For he sayeth: I haue herde the in the eyne accepted, and in the daye of saluacion haue I succoured the. Beholde, now in the accepted eyne, now in the daye of saluacion. Let wagne no man occasion of euill, that oure office be not euell spoken of: but in all thinges let us behaue oure selues as the mynstere of God in much patience, in troubles, in necessities, in anguishes, in stryppes, in pericamentes, in vpraires, in laboures, in watchynges, in fastynges, in penitencie, in knowledge, in longe sufferynges, in tribulacions in the hely goost, in the power of God, by the armours of righteoussnes on the righte hande and on the left, by honoure and dishonoure, by euill repaies and good repaies: as differances, & yet thus as vniuersall, and yet knowne as a dyng, and beholde, we lyne as chastised, and as kylled: as for coryng, and yet alwaye meyn a poore, & yet make many richenes howe we ge nothinge, & yet possesseinge all thinges.

O ye Corinthians, oure meate is open vnto you, oure hart is made large. We are no strayner in oure behaue but where as ye are in straitnesse, we do ye of youre name herely meynyng. I speake to you, as in sheweth that haue like reuolue wryt vs. So youre selues therfore at large.

22 Where no is a straungay of with the beleuers. For what fullnesse hath righteoussnes with vniuersall beuities: What compenry hath lighte with darkness: So or agaynst Christ with Bilal: Can he putte the beleuer with the infidels: So or acerbitye of God with ymagin: We are the temple of the lyuynge God, as sayeth God: I wold well in them, and make in them, and wyl be the God, & they shal be my people. Wherefore come out from amonge them, and separe youre selues. (so sayeth the LORD) and couche no uncleane thinge, & wyl I craue you, to be youre father, & ye shal be sonnes and daughter, as sayeth yf Allmightie LORD.

The vii. Chapter.

S ynne is now hie meane soch pay myslas (dearly beloued) let vs doff coreiencye from all synchynge of the fleshy and of the flesh, and growe vnto full pynne in yf stare of God. Vnderstande as yet. We haue harte no man, in the same compassian, we haue destruyed no man. I speake not this to cōdemne you, for I haue heard you be so, that ye are in oure bettes, to be and to lyue to you. I am very bolde comen to you, I make much booff of you, I am full with comforte, I am exceedinge ioyous in all retribulacion. For why am ioyous in the retribulacion, oure fleshy had not: but we were troubled on every syde, because of many synchynge, inuade was feare. Whereby God hath comforted the shyn, comforted waby the conyng of Teas.

23 Not onely by his conyng, but also by the consolacion wherewith he was comforted you, whyn he tolde vs yf bestr, your pyng, so faste mynde for me, so þat I now saye if more. For here as I made you so by the letter, as repenteth me not, though Ib yncapex. For I se, that the same epistle made you sorry (though it were but for a season). But now I reioyce, not that ye were sorry, but that ye were sorry to repentance.

For ye followed godly so that in nothinge ye were hurt by us. For godly sorrow causeth repentance unto saluacion, not to be repented of: but worldly sorrow causeth death.
Scholre, where as ye haue had godly so-rowe, what diligence hath it wroughte in you: And a sufficient answer, displeasure, feare, desire, a fruite mynde, purgation. For in all payntes ye haue shewed youre felow-shipp, that ye are cleare in that matter.

¶ Wherefore though I wrote unto you, yet I am not sorry for this cause that byd haue, nether for his cause that was hurt, but that your diligence (which ye haue for us in the sight of God) might be manifest to you.
Therefore are we comforted, because ye are comforted; but exceeding the more I re-ioyce, for the ioye of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed of you all. I am therfore not now ashamed, though I boasted myselfe unto him of you: but like as all is true that I haue spoked unto you, namely in our besting unto Titus founde true also. And his inward affection is more abundant to-wardes you, when he remembere the obedience of you all, how ye receaued him with fear and trembling. I reioyce, that I maye be bold ouer you in all thinges.

The viii. Chapter.

¶ Do you to me (brethren) the grace of God, which is grace in the congregacion of Macedonia. For their reuolunt was most abundant, when they were tryed by much trouble: & though they were ready to be poor, yet haue they grown exceeding richly, and that in synclenisse.
For to their power I haue receouered you and beyond their power, they were willinge of their owne accord, and praied us with great influence, that we shoulde receaue their benefit and fellowship of the habundance that is done for the sayntes: And not as we loke for, but gaue ouer themselves first to the L O R D E, and afterwarde unto us by þe will of God, so that we coulde not but desyre Titus, that like as he had begonne afore he wolde euen so accomplish the same benefit amonge you. Now as ye are rich in all payntes, in faith and in word, and in knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your loue towardes us, cureso se that ye be plentious also in this benyuelence. This I saye not as commaunding, but reioyce, rather as so diligent, I proue your loue also, whether it be perfect or no. For ye knowe the libera-litye of oure L O R D E Iesus Christ, which though he be rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, so that your by power might be made rich.

¶ And my counsell herin I geue, for this is profitable for you, which haue begonne a yeare ago, not only to do, but also to will.
But now perseuerme the dede also, that like as there is a ready mynde to will, there maye be a ready mynde also to perseuerme the dede. of that which ye haue. For yf there be a willinge mynde, it is accepted accordage to that a man hath, not needinge so that he hath not. This is not to accept the intent, that other shalbe haue ease, and yet abundant, but that he be a lyke. Let your abundant (whether their lacke in this tyme off bethyng) that their abundaunce also be a farther maye supplye your lacke, that there maye be equa-litye. As it is written: he y gathered moche, had not the more: and he that gathered little, wanted nothinge. That to be vnto God, which put in the hart of Titus, the same diligence towardes you. For he accepted the request in dede, yet he was rather so wellwillinge, that of his owne accord, he came unto you.

¶ We haue sent with him that brother, C whose paynt is in the Gospel the more out all the congregacions. Not only that, but he was chosen also of the congregacions, to be a fellowe with us in our journey, for this benevolence that is ministered by us unto the poore of the L O R D E, and to streyve your poore mynde, and to be a further supplye repose euill of a benefite of this plenteous-ness, which is ministered by us: and therefore make not provision for housekeeping, not only before the L O R D E, but also before
men.

¶ We haue sent with them also a brother of ours, whom we haue offrequed diliget-lye in manye thinges, but now moche more diligent. And thus haue we done in great hopoure towardes you, whether it be for Titus like (which is my felowship and helper amonge you) or for our brother (which is a benefite of the congregacions, & the paynt of the gift).
Shewe now the proofe of your loue at off once dooing of you, unto the gift, and to the in the sight of the congregacions.

 es, it is no nebe for me to wyce vnto you for I knowe youre redymse of mynde, wherof I boast my selfe amonge them of Macedonia, and saye. Achala was ready a yere agoe. And youre seruantes hath promysed many. Wherofeles yet ha we not sene these brethren, lest oure reioysing ouer you shulde be in wayne in this behalf. that ye mighte be ready, as I haue repo red of youdest whan they of Macedonia co me with me, and frnde you wapitpared, we I wyl not saye yet shulde be ashamed in this presumption of boasting.

B Wherefore I thoughte it necessary to re hounde the brethren, to come before hande vnto you, for to prepare this blessinge promys ed afore, that it mighte be ready, so that it bea blessinge, and not a desirandinge. Thus I thynke that he which someth litle, shal reape litle also: and he y someth plenteously, shal likewise reape plenteously, every one accordyng as he hath purposed in his herte, not grudgynge, as of compulsion. For God loueth a cheerefull giver, God is able to ma ke you rich in all graces, yf ye in all thinges haue yngel sufficent to the riches, maye be rich to all maner of good werkes. As it is mynde: the hath spard abroad & geue to y posses, his righteousness remaineth for ever.

C So that geueth sube vnto the brother, shal mynysse beed also for sode, and shal multi plye youre sode, and increase the frutes of y righteousness, that in all thinges ye maye be made rich vnto all shaplenesse, wherby cau sath thorow vs, that achinge vnto God.
 For the hande achinge of this collection not onely suppleth the nebe off the sayntes, but also in aboundance herin, that for this lau dable mynistracion many mighte geue cha re vnto God, and payse God for y obedi ent professyng of the Gospall of Christ, & for yf ynglenesse in distributyng vnto ch, & and to all men, and ea cher prayer for you, which longe after you, for the aboundance grace of God in you. Thanks be vnto God for his enoumberable gifte.

The X. Chapter.

A I haal my selfe besite you by the me ness, and sofenesse off Christ, which when I am present amonge you, am of small reputacion, but am bolde towarde you beyng absent. I besite you that I nebe not be bolde whan I am present, & to vs y boldnesse wherwith I am supposed to be bolde, agaynst some, which reput vs as though we wold as after y flesch: for though we walke in the flesch, yet fighte we not after a fleschly maner. For the weapons of oure warre are not fleschly, but mightie before God to cast downe strong holdes, wherwith we ouerthowe ymaginacions, & every hye thinge y exalteth itselfe agaynst the know ledge of God, and bringe ita to captiuitee all vnderstandyng to the obedienc of Christ: are ready to take vengeance on all vobedi encie, whan youre obediece is fulfilled. So be ye on thinges after y water appear adier.

A I say man trust of himselfe yf he in Christ tes, let him thinke also by himselfe, y like as he is in Christ, and so are we. Chasles also. And though I shulde boast my selfe somwhat more of oure auctorite. Wherby I ORDE hath geue us to edifie and not to despoyle, shal benot be to my shame. This I saye, lest I shulde seme, as though I wen te aboute to make you afraied with letters.
 For the pistles (saye they) are fore and strin ge, but his bodily presence is meate, and bu speache to de. Let him y is fode, thynke on this wyse, that as we are in words by let ters, whi we are absent, sode are we also in dede whan we are present. For we strunt reke a car compare oure selues, vnto some ch peayse them selues: I haue chide whyle they meate oure chym selues by them selues, and bolde chym of them selues, they vnderstande not sage.

Sowbeit we wil not be aft y selues about measure, but onely accordyng to the meas ure of the rule, wherwith God ha y desired vnto us the measure to reachen vnto you. For we strecthe out of selues as farre as though we had not res ded vnto you. For vnto vnto you haue we come with the Gos pell of Christ, and boast not oure selues out of measure (a other men laboure): yet we hope whan youre faith is increased in you, that we wil come further, accordyng to oure measure: and preach the Gospall vnto them that dwel beyonde you, and not recei soyle in that, which is prepared with an other manne measure.

The XI. Chapter.

Et him that reioyseth, reioys in the LORD: for he y peayseth him selfe se, as nee aloweth, but he wyl y DE prayseth. Wolde God ye coulde suffi me a litle as my folshenes, yet do ye folsh reme. For I am geloue ouer you as godly leusly. For I haue married you vnto onme, to bringe a chaste virgin vnto Christ. But I feare, lest as y serpente begyled Eue in the garden, and so y wyues shulde be conu ee from the synagoge that is in Christ. For ys he that cometh unto you, preach another Jesu's, whom we have not preached, or ys yet because an other spake, & ye have not received, or another Gospel which ye have not accepted, ye might right well have bene cursed. For I suppose that I am no lesse than the hye Apostles are. And though I be invisible in yee, yet am I not rude in knowlege, howbeit among you I am knowne to be the meekest. Or dyd I synne therein because I judmynted my selfe, that ye might be edified?

B For I preached vnto you the Gospel of God, freely, and without other cōgregacions, and toke wages of the, to preach vnto you.
And when I was present with you, & no had neede, I was graciouse to no man: for which was lackinge vnto me, the brethren which came fro Macedonia, supplied. And to all thinges I kepte my selfe so, & I shoulde not be graciouse to you, & so wyl I kepe my selfe. As freely as the church of Christ is in me, this rejoycing shal not becomee forme in the regions of Achia. Wherefore because I shoulde not lone you: God knoweth. We mercede what I do and wyl do, that do I take away occasion, from the which I see occasion, that they might beaste the silence to be lye vnto vs. For such falsc Apostles & byscops full withen falsion them selues like vnto the Apostles of Christ. And that is no marrell: for Satheon himselfe is chaunged into y falsion & an angel of lighthe. Therefore is no greater thinge, though him my mistake falsion euen selues an though they were of a paradyse of righteousnes, whos inde shalbe accordinge to their dedes.

C I saye to you, lest eny man thynke that I am folish: or to take me euen so as a fo-le, & I maye boast my selfe a lile also. That I speake now, that speake I not after the LORDE, but as it were in folishnes, whyle we are now come to boasting: Synginge that many boasts them selues of see of flesch. I wold boast my selfe also. For ye suffere folow glady, in so much as ye your selues are wylle. For ye suffere eny of a man bringe you in to bondage, yf a man put you to dishoneste, yf a man wylt auge he shal you, yf a man exalte him selfe vnto you, yf a man synne you on the soce. I speake concerninge that, as though the were weak.

Wherein so ever now eny man barre be holde, I speake folishly therein barre. I be holde also. They are heauenly, so am I. They are Iherusalem, euen so am I. They are the side of Abraham, so am I. They are the my-nistres of Christ (I speake as a foie) I am more in laboure, a more abundant, in stripes about meafure, in perfonmentes more plenteously, in each othe. Whiche I have recei-ued I fine eynes forty stripes, one lesse.

Thysse was I beaten with rods. I was once stoned. I suffred the yf hyppocrasye: nighe and daye have I bene in the depe of d-cheer: I have oft iourneyed: I have bene oft in perels of rocers, in perels amonge murthurs, in perels amonge the Jewes, in perels amonge the heretikes, in perels in cites, in perels in the wyldernes, in perels vpon the See, in perels amonge falsc bishops, in laboure & trouble, in much to achinge, in hongere & thysse, in much fastinges in colde & nakednesse: Beside those thynges which are ourwarde, namely my bodye combarance, my bodye care for all cōgregacions. Who is weak, and I be not weak: Who is offended, & I burne not: If I must needes make my boast, I wyl boast my selfe myne infirmities. God yf sacker of oure. OR DIE Jesu Christ, which is blessed for ever, knoweth that I ye not. As I was in the gouernoure of y people vnder tynge Areos, tynge y cite of the Damasceus, I wold de hane taken me, & so at a myghte was I let downe in a basket throughe the wall, & so escaped his handes.

The XII. Chapter.

E professeth me nothinge (no doute) & to boast. Therefore I wyl come to y visions and reuelacions of the LORDE. I knowe a man in Christ aboue fourteen yeres a go: whether he was in y body, I can not tell: or whether he was out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth.
The same was take up in to the thirde heauen: & so I knowe the same man (whether he was in y body or out of the body, I can not tell, God knoweth) howe that he was take up in to Paradyse, and herbe woldes not to be spoken, which no man can vnder, there of wyl I boast, but of my selfe wyl I make no boast, exceptie be of myne infirmities.
And though I wold boast my selfe, I dyd not folishly, for I wold soye the truelh.
But I rejoyce in my selfe, lest eny man shalbe thynke of me about y he seyth in me, or heareth of me. And lest I shoulde exalte my selfe out of meafure because of the hye reuelacions, there is a manynge geuen vnto my flesch, euen y messenger of Satan, to buffet me, that I shoulde not exalte in y selfe out of meafure: for y which I boastinge the LOR

DE christe, that it mighte deperte fro me. And he sayde uncomfittly grace is sufficient for the. For my strength is made perfect in thy weaknesse. My glab therfore wil I reioyse in my weaknesse, that the strength of Christ may dwell in me.

C Therefore am I conformed in infirmities, in rebukes, in necessities, in persecutions, in anguythes for Christen sake: for which I am weak, the am I strong. I am become a sole I boasting my selfe: he hath compelled me. For I oughte to be commended of you, in so much as I am in nothinge inferior to hye Apostles. Though I be nothinge, yet are I tokens of an Apostles thought amonge you, with all pacifical, much signes, & with labours & with mightie tobes. For what is it, wherein ye are inferior to the ocher congregacions? excepte it be that I have not bene greuous unto you. For ye mecha misge. Beholde, I am ready the thirde tyme to come unto you, and wyl not be chargeable unto you. For I fele not yowes but you. For I chuld oughte not to gather treasure for the alder, but the alder for the children. I wil very gladly bestowe, and wyl be bestowed for yowre soles: though I move I lose you, the lesse am I loved agayne.

C But lette this be that I feared yee not, ne needeth for so much as I was crafte. I toke you by the. Have I desired yee by any of the, my? I sent unto you: I desired Titus, & with him I sent a brother: dyd Titus desire yee? Heas we not walkid in one spere. Wee we not in the forestept: Agayne, chynke ye that we excuse our selves? We speake in Christ in the sighte off God. But all this (dearly beloved) is done for yee discharge. For I feare lest when I come, I shal not fynde you such as I wolde; and lest ye shal fynde me such as ye wolde not: lest there be amonge you, debaters, envyes, wrathes, strynges, backbitings, whyppings, swellings, uproues: lest when I come agayne, I shal have meles amonge you & lest I be constrained to be awaye many of the that have synned before, I have not expected once that uncleanesse and whoredome, and wantonnes, in which they have consented.

The XIII. Chapter.

When come I the thirde tyme unto you. In the mouth of eno or thre witnesses shal every matere be established. I have tolde you before, I tell you before as presene & seconde tyme, & my next now beinge absent, unto the which in tyme passed have synned, & so all ocher yf I come agayne, I will not spare, sayinge that ye seke opperite of him, which speaketh in me, & can Christ, which amonge you is now made, be in myght amonge you. And though he was crucified in weaknesse, yet myght he in the power of God. And though we are weak in him, yet I wil see with him in the power of God amonge you.

Proue yowr selves, whether ye are in the faith, examine yowr selves. O theow ye not, ye felow, & Jesus Christ in you: Excepte ye be cast awaye. Dye I trust ye knowe, & we are not cast awaye. Ie I see before God that ye do no small: not yet shulde some comendable, but that ye shulde do that which is good, & see us be as cast awaye. For we maye have nothinge agaynst I trust, but for I trust. We are glad when we are reade, & ye strong: & the same also we wyssh for, namely that perfectnesse. Therfore wyte I these things beinge absent, lest when I am presene, I shal be vexed with yee, accordinge to the power, in which the LORD hath geve me to edifye, and not to destroye.

Jynally brethren, excoyse, be perfect, & some of yow, be of one mynde, be peaceable, and the God of peace shal be with you. Salute one another with an holy kysse. All the sayntes salute you. The grace of our LORD Jesus Christ, & the love of God, and the fellowship of y holy ghost be with you all. Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Galatians.

- The summe of this Epistle.
Chap. I. Paul sheweth them, because they were fallen awaye from the gospell, how he hath his own collesion, manifesting his office as apostleshippe, and be clearly bewith to be equal with the hye apostles.
Chap. II. He sheweth them that they are not bound to the lawe and circumcise, and not necessary to saluacion.
Chap. III. He sheweth the gentleness of the Galatians, shewing the impossibility of the lawe, and bewith them that it was not givens for naught.
Chap. IV. Paul sheweth that thowen Christ is the deliverer from the lawe, and rebueth the unthriftfulnesse of the Galatians.
Chap. V. He laboureth to vnder them away from all carnall, sheweth them the better betwixt the flesh and the flesch, and the lawe of Christ.
Chap. VI. He exhorteth them to brotherly love, and to be with meeknesse, and to be with them as to be with meeknesse.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Galatians.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle (not of men, nor by man, but by Jesus Christ & by God the father, which ray- fied him up fro' y dead) & all the brethren which are wth me. Unto the co- gregacions in Galaaa.

Grace be with you, and peace fro' God the father, and our LORD Jesus Christ, which gave him selfe for oure synnes, that he might buye us from this present euill world, according to the will of God our father, to whom be praye for ever and ever. Amen.

I marvell if ye are so soone turned from him that calleth you in the grace of Christ into another Gospell: which is no change at all, but that there be some, which trouble you, and intend to pervert the Gospell of Christ.

Nevertheless though we once felue, as an angell from heave preach unto you any other Gospell, thet y which we have preached unto you, the same be accepted. As we be we saye as you, so saye we now agayne: If any man preach unto you any other thinge, thet y he have receaved, y same be accepted. Preach I men now on God: Or go I aboute to please men: If I shulde yet please men, I were not the servant of Christ.

But I certifie you brethren, y the Gospell which is preached of me, is not of men, for I neither receaved it, nor learned it of man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ. For ye have herde of my conversation afore tyme in the Jeweshippe, how that beyonde measure I persecuted the cōgregation of God, and spoiled it, and praynyed in the Jewe shippe: about many of my companyons in my nation, & was a much more extreme man tyme of the traditions of the fathers.

But when it pleased God which separatē me from my mochaer wombe, and called me: by his grace, for to declare his sonne in me, that I shulde preach him choosen of the Gospell amonge the heathen, immediately I communed not of the matter with flesh and bloude: nether came I too Jerusalem unto them which were Apostles before me: but wente my waye in to Arabia, and came agayne to Damascus. Then after thre yere I came to Jerusalem to se Peter, and abode with him fyfene dayes. As for the other Apostles, I sawe none of them, save James the LORD'S brother.

The thinges that I wrote unto you, be holde. God knoweth. I hence. A first that mente I into the coastes of Syria and Cilicia: but of face I was unknowne to y Churche congregacions in Jewrye. Nevertheless they had herde only, that he that persecuted us in tyme past, preached now y faith which some tyme he destroyed: and they praised God in me.

The II. Chapter.

Then a first fourteen yeres, I wente up agayne to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and toke Titus with me also. But I wente up by revelation, and communed with the of y Gospell, which I preach amonge the heathen: but specially with the which were in reputation, lest I shulde runne or had runne in wayne. But Titus which was also with me, was not compulsed to be circumcised, though he was a Greke: and that because of certayne incommodities beyng: false brethren, which came in amonge other, to spye out oure libertie, whiche we have in Christ Jesus, that they mighte bringe us in to bondage: To whom we gave no reserme, no not for the space of an houre, as can certayne be shewed in to Galatia: for the civill of the Gospell mighte come yue with you.

As for thet that seemed to be greates, what they were in tyme past, it mattere no matter to me: for God lotheth mee on the outward appearance of men. Nevertheless they which seemed greates, taught me nothing: but contrary wyse, what the yfession that the Gospell over the vnicōcession was cōmyned unto me, as y Gospell over y division was a commyned unto Peter. For he y was myghtie with Peter to the Apostles.

have gotten a lawe which coude haue geue the so. But yf scripture hath shew all vnder synne, that yf promys shoulde come by the faith on Iesus Christ, geue vnto the charitable. Therefore sothe come, we were hope and shew vnder the same, vnto the faith which shoulde afterwards be declared.
Thus yf lawe was a scolem after vnto Christ, that we might be made righteous by faith.
But now that faith is come, we are a new vnder the scolemaster. For ye all are the children of God by the faith in Christ Iesus.
For as many of you as are baptysed, haue put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Grieke here is neither bond nor fre, here is neither man nor woman, for ye are all one in Christ Iesus. As ye be Christs, the are ye Abrahams seed and heires according to the promise.

The III. Chapter.

But I saye: As longe as the boye is a childe, there is no difference betwene him and a seruant, though he be kide of all yf goode; but he is vnder tutele and gouernance, as till the tyme appoynted of the father. Thus we also, whiche were children, were in bondage vnder the euer in traditions. But when the tyme was fulfilled, God sent his sonne, borne of a woman, and put vnder the lawe, to redeeme them which were vnder the lawe, that we might be made of childhappe. For so much the as ye are children, God hath sent the spirit of his sonne in to our hertes, which cryeth: Abba, deare father. Wherefore now, thou art not a seruant, but a sonne. If thou be a sonne, then art thou the heire of Gods promise. Nowe with standinge: whan ye heare not God, ye dyd see ye vnto them, which by nature are no Godden. But we knowe ye knowe God (ye rather are knowe of God) how is it? the ye turne you backe to goyne onto the weake and beggerly traditions, wherunto ye desyre agayne a fust to be in bondage?

Ye obiecte dayes and nethes, and tymes and yeares. I am in feare of you, lest I have bestowed laboure on you in vayne. But this I wille you, be ye as I am, for I am as free. Ye haue not hurt me at all. For ye knowe howe that in weakness after yf flesh I preached yf Gospel vnto you at the first: and my cruciacion which I suffered after the flesh, ye despysed mee, as yett obhonorid, but received mee as an angell of God, yett euen as Christ Iesus. So no happy were ye then.
For I beate you receyde, the as yett had bene possible, ye had plucked out your euen eyes, and geue them vnto me. Am I therfore become yo enemy, because I tell you yf trouth?

They are gelous ouer you amysse. And they woulde make you to fall backe, that ye might be serued to the worde. Iesu good co-heirant, so yf it be all in a good thing, ge, and not onely whan I am present to you.
My kide children (of whom I traueyle in birth agayne, vntill Christ be fastned in you) I woulde I were as you now, and coude chaunge my voyce, for I stande vnto of you.

Tell me ye that wylbe vnder the lawe, be ye not herde the lawe? For it is written, that Abraham had two sonnes: the one by a bond maye, the other by a fre woman.
As for him that was of the bond maye, he was borne after yf flesh: but he which was of the fre woman, was borne by promise.
These wordes detoken somwhat, for these women are the two Testamentes: The one sees the mount Sina, that graue vnto bondage, which is Agar. For Agar is called in Arabia yf mount Sina, and as shee vnto Ierusalem which now is, and is in bondage with hir children.

But Ierusalem that is above, is the fre woman, which is the mother of vs all. For it is written: Blesyd thou barren, that bearest no child: bleasyd faith and crye thou travaillest not, for the desolate hath many mo childre, then she which hath an husband.
As for vs (brethren) we are the children of Isaac according to the promise.

But like as at that tyme, be that was borne a fre the flesh, perscuted him yf was borne a fre the spirit, euen so it is now also.
But what sayeth the scripture: put a waye the bonds maydes and hir sonne: for the sonne of yf bond mayde shal not be heire with yf sonne of the fre woman. So now brethren, we are not children of the bond mayde, but of the fre woman.

The V. Chapter.

So be faste therfore in the libertye wherewith Christ hath made vs fre, and be not wrapped agayne in the yoke of bondage. Beholde, I Paul say vnto you: If ye be circumcysed, Christ profiteth you nothinge at all. Testifye aga-ne vnto every man which is circumcysed that he is bounde to kepe the whole lawe.
Ye are gone quyte from Christ, as many ye, as wylbe made righteous by the lawe and are falles from grace. But we are in the space of hope, to be made righteous by faith. So in Christ Iesus that troubleth you, shal beare his iudgment, what so euer he be. Wherupon yf I yet preach circuncision, why do I suffer persecution? then had the slander off the crosse ceased. Wolde God they were reate adde fro amonge you, which trouble you. But bishope, ye are called vnto liberty, onely let not yere liberte be an occasion vnto the flesh, but by loue serue one another. For all the lawe is fulfilled in one worde, namely in this: loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. But if ye byte and deuoure one another, take heed, that ye be not consumed one of another.

Chusay: Walle in the spere, and so shal ye not fulfill the lawe. Iustice off the fleshe. For the flesch lusteth after vntill the spere, and the spere agaynst the flesch. Ther is contrary one to the other, so that ye can not do that which ye wolde: For and yf ye beled of the spere, then are ye not vnder the lawe. The bodes of y flesch are manliſſe, which are the eye: Whowere, whodome, and liues, wantennes, Ioluarie, wechren, harted, variunce, zede, machitrie, yfſidicō, ſtores, enen-gyn, narcher, dyenennes, glocony, and soch lybenſe the which I tell you before, as I haue tolde you in tyme past, that they which commence flesh, shal not inherite the kyngdō me of God. But the fruce of the spere, is loue, ioye, peace, longe sufferenge, gentlenes, goodnesſe, faith, laboure, mekeſynne, temperance. Agaynst ſuch is not y lawe: But they that are Chriſtians, haue crucified their flesch, with the lustes and dryues.

cepted in thee. Beloved, in whom we haue redemption throught his blood (namely) the forgiueness of sinnes, according to y^e riches of his grace, which he hath shed upon us so bountifully in all wylfulness and goodnes and hath opened vnto vs the mystery of his will according to his pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself, f^ro y^e should be preached * wh^o the crime was fulsome, that all thing good should be gathered together by Christ, both the things which are in heauen, and also the things that are, upon earth, euen by him, by whom also we came to the inheritance: we that were thereto predestinate before, according to y^e purpose of him, which monthly all things after y^e counsell of his owne will, that we might be to the praise of his glory, until now as he befor be-lieued on Christ, on wh^o also ye beleeue, a fter that ye herde the word of truthe, namely of Gospell of youre saluacion: wherein when ye beleeued, ye were sealed with the holy spi-rite of promise, which is the earnest of your inheritance to oure redemption, that we might be his owne, to the praise of his aloue.

Wherfore I also, (in so much as I haue hereto of the flesh which ye haue in) I LOR DE Iesus, and of your loue tooe woth all symmet) caasse notre geuee thanks for you, and make a memorie of you in my prayers, that God of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, the father of glory maye graunte youe such spate of mynde, and open vnto you the freewill of hymselfe, and lighten the eyes of your vnderstandinge, that ye maye knowe what is the hope of your callinge, and what the riches of this glorious inheritance (in pors the sayment, what is the exchaunge graueneste of his power to worke vnto, vnto beleuac adoringe) to worshippinge of his mightie power, which he wroughte in Christ, when he rayled him vp fro the dead, and set him on his right hande; and by these thynges, aboue all rule, power, and mighte, and dominacion, and aboue all what he maye be named, to one ly in this world, but also in; I wolde to comme. And hath put all thynges vnder his fete, and hath made him: some all thynges body, and the fulnesse of him that filleth all

The IL Chapter.

Also queneb you also, when ye were dedeborned trespasser and synner in the which in tyme past ye walked acordinge to the course off this worlde.

and after the peace that is in the myr namely, a few y space, which now worketh in the children of vobese, among whom we also had our conversation in tyme past in the lastes of oure flesh, and byd the will of the flesh and of the mynde, and were naturally the children of wrath, even as well as other.

But God which is rich in mercy tho-row his greates love toward us, he loved us and hath us loved in synnes, hath qntened us in Christ (for by grace are y saved) and hath rayed us up with him, and se us with him in heavenly things, whom Christ Jesus, y in tyme to come he may be se the exceeding riches of his grace, in myndness to us made in Christ Jesus, for by grace are ye saved thow sayth, and that not of your selues, for it is y grise of God, not of woordes, lest any man shalbe boast him selfe.

For we are his workman shyppe, created in Christ Iesu, were good woordes, so y which God ordeyned us before, that we shalbe made in them.

Wherefore remember, that ye (which a fore tyme were Gentyles after the flesh), and we were called in circumcision, of the things that are called - circumcision after the flesh, which circumcision is made with the hand: that ye at the same tyme were without Christ, and reported alienates from the comen welch of Israel, and were strangers from the Testamentes of promes, therfore had ye no hope, and were without God in this world. But now ye that be in Christ Iesu, and a fore-tyme were farre off, are now made nye by the bloode of Christ.

For he is y peace, which of both hath made one, and hath broken downe the wall, that was a flappe betwene us, and hath also thow to his flesh put away the cause of hatred (namely the lawe of the commande-mentes contrarye in the lawe mynster) that of twaine he mighte create one new man in him selfe, and make peace, and to reconcile both unto God in one body thow the crosse, and so he slewe y hatred thow his owne selfe, and came - and preached peace ie the Gospell, unto you which were as farre off, and so the things were nye, for thow him we both have inuyned in one space unto the father.

Now therfore ye are no more gentes and strangers, but cithens with the sayntes, z of the household of God, builded upon y foundation of y Apostles and prophetes - where Jesus Christus y head cometh from in whom every building is compled together groweth to one holy temple in the LORD, in whom ye also are builded together in habitation of God in the space.

The III. Chapter.

For this cause I Paul am y prisoner of Jesus Christus for you Gentyles, according as ye have herde of y grace of the grace of God which is shewed unto me, as y mystery shewed unto me, as y treasure in secret hid: to herby I may yet shew my grace in myne understanding y mystery of Christ, which (mystery) in y past was not opened unto the children of as it is now declared to his holy Apostles and prophetes by the spirit, namely, that the Gentyles shalbe beinheritors also, as of the same body, and partakers of his memes in Christ by the Gospell, whereof I am made a mynster according to the grace of the grace of God, which is great mercie unto us, to the workinge of his power.

Unto me y least of all sayntes in the grace given, that I shalbe preached among the Gentyles y most terrible riches of Christ, and to make all men se, what is the full-pe of the mystery, which first the beginning of the worlde hath bene hid in God, which made all things thow Jesus Christ to the intent that now into the rulers of powers in heave mighte be knowne by y congregation the manifestable mynster of God, according to y eternall purpose, which he hath shewed in Christ Iesu our LORD by whom we have redemption, and inuyned in all confidence thow to faith on him. Wherefore I desire that ye saynte not because of my tribulations, y I suffer for you, in this in youre prync.

For this cause I done my knees unto the father of our LORD Jesus Christus, which is the true father, once all that is called father in heave and in earth, that he grace you (according to y riches of his glory) be strengthened with power by his spirit in y inward man, that Christ may dwell in you rehered by faith, that ye be ynge rooted and grounded in love, maye be able to com-de with all sayntes, what is the length, and the largth, and the depth, and the height and to knowe the love of Christ, which love yet passeth all knowledge: that ye maye be filled with all manner of fulnesse of God.

Unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly, above all that we aske or

The III. Chapter.

¶ Therfore we which are prisoners in the LORDE, sheweth you, that ye walke as it becometh y^e callinge wherby ye are called, with all humblenes off mynde and meekenes, and lowe sufferinge, forbear inge one another in loue, and be diligente to keepe the vnitie of the spirite thorow the bon de of peace. One body and one spirite, eue an ye are called in one hope of youre callinge.
One WORDE, one faith, one baptisme, one God and father of vs all, whiche is aboue all, and abideth all, and in you all.

¶ Vnto euery one of vs in geuen grace, according to the measure off the grise off Christ. Therfore sayeth he: he is gone up in hie, and hath led awaye captiuitie capti ue, and hath geue grise vnto men. Tha: he meant, vpon what is it, but that he first came downe in to y^e lowest partes of y^e earth: he that came downe, is euen the same which is gone up aboue all heauens, to fulfill all.

¶ And y^e same hath set some to be Apostles, some to be prophetes, some to be euangelis ts, some to be shepherdes & teachers, to the end that the samyn might be complected toget her thorow comen sancte to the vniuinge of y^e body of Christ, vntill we all come vnto one ma nir of faith and knowlege of the sonne of God, and become a perfecte man in the measure of the perfecte age of Christ: that we be nomas children, without age & carib about with euery wynde of doctryne tho row the medecine of men and craftynce, wherby they laye awaye for vnto disci ple vs.

¶ But let vs folowe the trouth in loue, and in all chenges growe in him. which is the heade, euen Christ, in whom all the body is couplede together, and one membre ha geth er by another thorow one all y^e ioyntes. ¶ Wher by one is mystred vnto another (accordinge to the operacion as euery membre hath his measure) and maketh, that y^e body groweth to the charynge of fir lifse in loue.

¶ Thus I saye, that one, and euery lifse in the LORDE, that ye walke nomas, as y^e other men make in the varietie of their mynde, blinded in their vnderstandinge, beyng strangers fro the lifse whiche is in God tho row the ignorance that is in them, becau se of the blindness of their heere, whiche beyng ye past repentance, haue geue them selues ouer vnto vaneities, to make all maner of vncleannes euen with greynesse.

¶ But ye haue not so learned Christ, yf so be that ye haue herde of him, & are taught in him, eue as the trouth is in Jesus. So then as conceyninge the conuersion in syme past, laye from you that olde man which marred him selfe thorow disceance, lust ice: but he ye reuised in the spere of youre mynde, and put a new man, which is shapen after God, in true righteuousnes and holynes. ¶ Wherfore put awaye lynges, and speake euery man the trouth vnto his neigh boure, for as much as we are membres one of another. Be angry, but fyre not, let not y^e Sonne go downe vnto youre wrath: neither geue place vnto the backbiter. he that hath stolen, let him steale no more: but let him labour rather, and do some good with his handes, that he maye haue to geue vnto him that needeth.

¶ Let no filthy communication procede out of youre mouth, but that which is good and profitable, whiche is, that it be gra cious to heare. And geue not the holy spi rite of God, wherewith ye are sealed vnto y^e daye of redemption. Let all bitterness, and fearnes, and wrath, and rouringe, & cursed speakinge be herte fro you with all malici ousnes. But be ye courteous one to another, mercifull: and forgive one another, as God hath forgiven you in Christ.

The V. Chapter.

¶ Let yethe, foloweth therfore of God as beare children, and walke in loue, euen as Christ loved vs, and himselfe himselke for vs an offeringe and sacrificie of a sweete sauoure vnto God. Alia for wha dome and all vncleannes, let us not be named amonge you, as it becometh sayntes: neither frithenes, nor falslye call yng, nor isauyng (which are not com yd) but rather geuyng of thanks. ¶ For be sure, that no vaine meanger, or vncleane person, or con fused person (which is a worshippere off ymages) hath inheritaunce in the kyngdome of Christ and of God. (Let no man disci pline you with wayne wordes) for becau se of the cometh the wrath of God vpon the children of vncleane. Be not ye therfore companions with them. ¶ For sometyne ye were darknesse, but now are ye light in y^e LORDE.

ne what is pleasing vnto the LORDE, and haue no fellowship with y^e vnfructfull workes of darkness, but rather shewe thy. For it is shame euen to name those thinges, which are done of them in secret. But all thinges are manifest, when they are rebuked of the light. For what so ever is manifest, that same is light. Therefore sayeth he: 'Awake thou that sleepest, and stande vp fro the dead, and Christ shal geue thee light.

Gal. 4. 4
Rom. 13. 12

Take heed therefore how ye walke, circumspectly, not as the unwise, but as if ye were, and reuene the tyme, for it is a miserable tyme. Wherefore be not ye unwise, but vnderstande whose the will of the LORDE is, and be not drunken with wyne, wherein is excess: but be full of the spirit. And talke among your selues of psalmes, and ymnos, and spirituall songes, singing and making melody vnto the LORDE in your heartes.

Let the women submit your selues vnto their husbands, as vnto the LORDE. For the husband is the mynes head, eue as Christ also is the head of the congregation, and he is the Saviour of his body. Therefore as the congregation is in subiection to Christ, likewise let the mynes be in subiection to their husbands in all thinges.

Gal. 3. 4
1. Pet. 3. 6

Ye husbands love your mynes, euen as Christ loved the congregation, and gave himselfe for it, to sanctifie it, and cleanse it in the fontayne of water by the worde, to make it vnto himselfe a glorious congregation, hauynge no spot nor wrinkle, nor any such thinge, but that it shall be holy and without blame.

So ought men also to love their mynes, euen as their owne bodyes. He that loveth his wife, loveth himselfe. For no man euer yet hated his owne flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it, euen as the LORDE both also the congregation. For we are members of his body, of his flesh and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wife, and they two shal be one flesh. This is a great secret: but I speake of Christ and the congregation. Wherefore do ye so, that euery one of you loue his wife euen as himselfe: but as the church.

the VI. Chapter.

Ye children, obey your elders in the LORDE, for that is right. Honour thy father and thy mother: This is the first commandment, that hath a promise: that thou mayest prosper, and be well to it. And ye fathers, proue not your children vnto wrath, but bringe them vp in the nurture and instruction of the LORDE.

Ye seruantes, obey your bodily masters, with feare and trembling, in singleness of your heart, euen as vnto Christ, not with seruice onely in the eye sight, as to please: but as the seruantes of Christ, doinge the will of God from the heart with good will. Think that ye serue the LORDE and not men: and be sure, that what good sever a man doth, he shal receaue againe of the LORDE, whether he be bond or free.

And ye masters, do euen the same vnto the, puttyng awaye the threatenings, and knowinge: that euen your master aliove in heaven, neither is there any respect of persons with him.

I finally my brethren, be stronge in the LORDE, and in the power of his might: put on the arms of God, that ye may stand fast agaynst the craftie assautes of the devill. For we walke not agaynst flesh and bloud, but agaynst principalities, agaynst the rulers of the world, of the darkness of this world, agaynst Iherusalem of wickednes vnder the heaven. For this cause take ye the armour of God, if ye may be able to resist in the euill dayes, and stand perfect in all thinges.

Second therefore, and your mynes, be aboute with the truth, hauynge on the breast plate of righteousness, and shod vpon with the gospel of peace, that ye may be prepared: Above all thinges take hold of the shield of faith, wherewith ye may quench all the fyre darts of the wicked. And take the helme of saluation, and the sword of the spirit, which is the worde of God.

And praye alwayes with all manner of prayer and supplication in the spirit, and watche vnto with all instant care, supplication for all sayntes and for me, that my word may be greuen me, that I maye open my mouth boldly, to utter the secret of the Gospel, wherof I am a minister in bonds, that I maye speake therein freely, as it becometh me to speake.

But that ye maye also knowe, what I am in, and what I do, I write vnto you.

The Epistle to the Philippians. No. lxxxvi.

brother and faithfull mynister in the LORDE. shal shewe you all to whom I have sent unto you for the same cause, that ye might knowe what case I stande in, and that he mighte comforte your hartes.

Peace be vnto the brethren, and loue with faith, from God the father, & from the LORDE Iesu Christ whiche be with all them that loue you. LORD Iesu Christ vnsaynably. Amen.

Sent from Rome vnto the Ephesians, by Titician.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the philippians.

The summe of this epistle.

- Chap. i. He exhorteth them to increase in loue, in knowledge, and experience of godly ad-uancement, and of his passion, and to be glad to heare Christ preached, as content themselves to dye for him, and payeth them to let a godly conversation, to be of one mynde, and to seeke no perfection.
- Chap. ii. He exhorteth them to write and to their loue, and to beware of strife and voyage glory, and for a sure ensample he layeth down his before them.
- Chap. iii. He warneth the to beware of false teachers, whom he calleth dogges and canners of Christ, and exhorteth with a name in glyteousness.
- Chap. iii. He saitheth certayne of them, that they may be of honest conversation, and that they may be because of the promise that they make for him by night in prison.

The first Chapter.

Paul and Timotheus
the seruantes of Iesu Christ. Vnto all the saintes in Iesu Christ, which are at Philip-pos, with the Bishop-pes and mynisters.

Grace be with you and peace from God our father, and from the LORD Iesu Christ.

I thank my God, as oft as I remember you (which I alwayes do in all my prayes) for you all, and praye with gladnesse because of youre fellowship which ye haue in the Gospeill from the first daye vnto now, and am surely certified of this, that ye which haue begonne that good worke in you, shal goe on with it vntill of daye of Iesu Christ as it becometh me to iudge of you all, because I haue you in my hart, so that they are partakers with me of grace in my bon-des, as of sharbisge and stablyshinge of the Gospeill.

For God in my recorde, how I lye after you all euen for the very here roote in Jesu Christ. And for the same I praye, that ye loue maye increase more in all maner of knowledge and in all experience, that ye maye knowe what is best, that ye maye be pure, & such as haue no mans conscience, vnto the daye of Christ, filled with the fruites of right-eousnes, to which come by Iesu Christ vnto the glorye and prayse of God.

I wolde ye understode brethren, that my business is happened vnto the greater sur-therance of the Gospeill, so that my bonds in Christ are manifeste vnto all, if indy-cible hall, and in all other places. So much that many brethren in the LORDE are bel-liedeth vnto my bonds, and darre moue largely speake the worde withoute feare. Some (no doute) preache Christ of enuye and stryfe, but some of good wil. The one parte preache eth Christ off stryfe and not purely, sup-posinge to adde more aduantage vnto my bonds. The other parte of loue, for they knowe that I lye here for the besynce of the Gospeill.

What then? So that Christ be preached all maner of wayes, whether it be done by occasion or of enuie, angye, I reioyce therein, and will reioyce. For I knowe that the same shal chaunce to my saluacion, & thow your prayes and mynistringe of the spere of Iesu Christ, as I lye for a hope, that is nothinge. I shal be ashamed, but yet with all confidence, as alwayes in tyme past, so nowe I shal be magnified in my body whether it be theiorn life or thoworn death.
For Christ is to me life, & death is to me an-age. But in as much as to ipe in it fructfull to me for the worke, I reioyce. I shal shewe, for both the harde vpon me. I desire to be with Christ, which shall be (for me) but to abyde nedefull for you.

D And this am I sure of, that I shall abyde, and conynne with you all, for the sur-thurance and love of youre faith, that ye maye abundantly reioyce in Christ Iesu throume me, by my conynge to you agayne.
Only let your conversation be as it becommeth the Gospell of Christ, that wherever I come I see you, as also be absent. I maye yet heare of you that ye conynne in one speeche and one soule, labourynge (as we do) to magnifie the faith of the Gospell, and in nothinge staininge youre adversaries, which we see them a token off perdition, but unto you a saluation, and that of God. For unto you it is given, not onely that ye shoulde believe on Christ, but also suffre for his sake, and so have euen the same fighte, which ye haue bene in me, and now bene of me.

The II. Chapter.

If there be amonge you any consolation in Christ, if there be any comforte of love, if there be any fellowshipe off the spere, if there be any compassion and mercy, fulfill my love, that ye dwelle one waye, hauninge one loue, bringe of one accorde, and of one mynde: that there be no-thinge done throume us, and vayne glory, but that throume mettwesse of mynde every man esteeme another better then himselfe, and let every man loke not for his awne profit, but for the profite of other.

Let the same mynde be in you, that was in Christ Iesu: which beinge in the shappe of God, thought it not robbery to be equall with God, but made himselfe of no reputation, and toke upon him the shappe of a seruant, became like another man, and was founde in his apparell as a man: he humbled himselfe, and became obedient unto the death, euen unto the death of the crosse.

Therefore hath God also exalted him, and given him a name, which is above all names: that in the name of Iesus every knee shoulde bowe, both of thinges in heaven of thinges vpon earth, and oft thinges vnder the earth, and that all tongues shoulde con-fesse, that Iesuus Christ is the LORD vnto the glory of God the father.

Therefore my dearly belovde, as ye have obeyed (not onely in my presence, so much more in my absence) euen your awne saluation rich-lyge. For it is God which he will and he doeth, euen of his owne good will. Do all thinges without murmuringe and disputinge, that ye maye be faultles and pure, and the childre of God: without rebuke, in the which dea of y^e crooked and peruerse nation, amonge ge wherin Iechar ye shyne as lighte in the world, holdinge fast the worde of life, vnto my reioysinge in the daye of Christ, that I have not runne in vayne, neither laboure in vayne. And though I be offered vnto the offeringe of sacrifices of your faith, I am glad, and reioyce with you all: be ye glad also, and reioyce with me.

I trust in the LORD Iesus, to sende Ti-motheus shortly vnto you, that I also maye be of good comfort, when I knowe wher case ye shoulde sit. For I have no man that is so like mynde to me, which much so part of secretly careth for you: for all other see the awne, not that which is Iesus Christ.
But ye knowe the proofe of him: which I shal de unto the father, so hath he mynistered vnto me in the Gospell. Him I hope to finde, as soone as I knowe howe it will go with me. But I trust in the LORD, that I shal my selfe shal come shortly.

Teuerdiles I thoughte it necessary sende vnto you the brother Elphidius, which is my companyon in labours and lowe souldier, and your Apostell, and my mynister at mynede, for so much as he lo-ged after you all, and was full of heavyness, because y^e had heerd that he was sicke. So neshoure he was sicke, and that nye vnto death, but God had mercy on him, and on him onely, but on me also, lest I shoulde we had sorrowe vpon sorrowe.

I have sent him therefore the more hally, that ye might see him, and reioyce agayne, and that I also mighte have the lesse sorrowe. Receaue him therfore in the LORD with all gladnes, and make much of him for because of the worte of Christ, he was so farre, that he came nye vnto death, and regeed not his life, so fully that souerayn which was launges on your parte com-de me.

The III. Chapter.

OVER my brethren, reioyce in the LORD. Where as I reioyce ever one thinge vnto you it greeveth me not, and maketh you the fret. Beware off dogges, beware off workers, beware off disputation: for we are the circumcision, euen we that are in the spere, and reioyce in Christ Iesu.

The Epistle to the Philippians. No. lxxxvij.

and haue no confidence in the flesh, though I haue nobel of I mighte reioyce in y^e flesh. In any other me I mighte than he hath nobel of he mighte reioyce in the flesh, much more I which was circelyt in the eight daye, one of the people of Israel, of the trybe off Ben Iamin, an hebrus of the hebrues: a conceyninge chesilame: a Pharis: a conceyninge seruantes. I persecuted the congregacion and so a condoninge the righteousness which is in the lawe, I was unrebutable.

But the thinges that were vaunmage unto me, haue I counted losse for Christus sake. And I thinke all thinges but losse, for the excellencie. Knowledge sake of Christus. In my LORD: for whom I haue counted all thinges losse, and do ludge them but donge, that I mighte mynne Christus, & be founde in him, not hauyng myne awne righteousness which cometh of the lawe, but by the faith of Christus (namely) the righteousness which cometh of God in faith, to knowe him and the vertue of his resurrection, and the fillyllyppe of his passion, that I maye be conformable vnto his death, yff by my meanes I mighte attayne to the resurrection from the dead. To what I haue attayned vnto all ready, or what I am already perfecte: but I folowe, yf I maye compashe that, wherein I am comprehended off Christus Iesu. Wherein, I counte not my self yet what I haue gotten is but one thinge: I forgoe: I forgoe that which is behynde, and stretch my self vnto that which is before, & pursue vnto y^e marke I purseyne, to obtayne the remarde of the hie callinge of God in Christus Iesu.

Let vs ether fore (as many as be perfecte) be thus wylly mynde: and yf ye be otheer wylly mynde, I praye God open euery this vnto you. Wherefore in that nobel vnto we are come, let vs proceede by one rule, that we maye be of one accorde. Brethren, be ye of like mende, and lichte on this which wyllet us so as ye haue vs for an ensample. For many walke (off reborn I haue tolde ye a them, but new I tell you wepyng) euery enemies of the crosse of Christus, whos ende is damnacion, whos God in the belly, & whos glory shalbe to their shame, which are secretly mynde. But our conuersacion is in heauen, from whence we loke for the glorie Iesu Christi y^e LORD, which shal deliuer o^r wyle body, & it maye be like his body and vnto his glorious body, accordinge to y^e workinge whereby he is able to subdue all thinges vnto himselfe.

Therefore my brethren dearly belored & longed for my ioye & my crowne conynue so in the LORD ye beloved. I praye Euodias, & besite Symeonides, that they be of one mynde in the LORD. And I besite the my faithfull yow^e fellows, helpe the women, which haue laboured with me in the Gospell, with Clement & with my otheer helpers, whose names are in the booke of life. Reioyce in the LORD Eulimaie, & a gayne I saye, Reioyce. Let your soymes be knowne vnto all men. The LORD is euen at hand. Be not careful, but in all thinges let y^e petitions in prayer and supplicacion, with geyng of thanks be knowne before God. And y^e peace of God, which passeth all vnderstandinge, kepe your hertes and mynbes in Christus Iesu.

Furthermore brethren, whatsoeuer thinges are true, whatsoeuer thinges are honest, whatsoeuer thinges are iust, whatsoeuer thinges are pure, whatsoeuer thinges are vertuous to loue, whatsoeuer thinges are of honest report: yf there be any vertuous thinge, yf there be any laudable thinge, haue those same in y^e mynde, which ye haue both lerned and receiued, and herde and sene in me: what thinges do, and the God of peace shal be with you. Reioyce greatly in y^e LORD, that now at the last ye are in mynde agayne to care for me, as ye cared sometime ago, but ye loosed operant ye. I speake not this because of necessity: for I haue lerned in what soeuer estate I am, euer with to be content. I can be lowe, and I can be hye. Every where and in all thinges I am meane, both to be full, and to be hongry: to haue plenty, and to suffice neede. I can be all thinges to the LORD, which I set together me. I denie y^e thinge ye haue done well, that ye haue parte with me in my tribulacion.

But ye of Philippos knowe, that in the beginninge of the Gospell when I departed fro Macedonia, no congregacion bare parte with me concernyng geyng and receyuinge, but ye only. For vnto Tessalonica y^e sent once and after warde agayne vnto me necessary. Vnto that I like giftes, but I like the frute, that it be abidant in y^e reioyng. For I haue all, and haue plenty. I was euen fulled with I reioiced of Epaphroditus, that which came from you, an odour of suuencie, a sacrifice accepted & pleasant vnto God. My God fulfyll all y^e neede, accordinge to his riches in glory in Christus Iesu.

The Epistle

to the Colossians.

Unto God and our Father be praise for ever and ever Amen.

Salute all y^e sayntes in Christ Jesu. The bretheren shal be with me, salute you. All the sayntes salute you, but specially they that are of the Emperours house. The grace of our LORDE Jesu Christ be with you all, Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Colossians.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. I. He geueth thanks vnto God for the faith, love, and hope prayeth for their increase and for wech how we are the Evangelists of God, appointed by Christ, which is the heade of the congregation.

Chap. II. What greace our Paul toke for all congregacions he exhorteth them to be steadfast in Christ, to beware of false teachers and to wote by his blood and to keep the faith pure.

Chap. III. He prayeth them in remembrance of the spiritual warfare, to kepe off the all manner of corrupting paynge, to be fruitful in all goodnes and to be true and to shewe all be- lievers there duty.

Chap. IIII. He exhorteth them to be fervent in prayer, to walke mystely vnto them that are not yet come to the true knowledge of Christ, and so to salueth them.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle of Je-
su Christ by the will of God, and brother Ti-motheus.

To y^e sayntes which are at Colossa and bretheren that beleue in Christ.

Grace be with you and peace from God our father & his the LORDE Jesu Christ.

We geue thanks vnto God and the father of our LORDE Jesu Christ, pray-ge alwayes for you (since we heare of your faith in Christ Jesu, and of y^e source love to all sayntes) for y^e hopee salueth which is layed in store for you in heauen: of the which ye haue herbe before by the word of trouth in the Gospell, which is come vnto you, and as it is in euery ordownd and is fruitful, as it is in you, since y^e daye y^e herbe and haue the grace of God in y^e trouth, as ye learned of Epaphras our deare fellowe seruaunt which is a faithfull mynister of Christ for you, which also declared vnto vs your love in the prece.

For this cause also, since the daye y^e we herbe of it, cease not to praye for you, & desyre that ye might be fulfilled with the knowledge of his will in all wysdome and spirituall vnderstandinge, that ye might walke worthy off the LORDE, to plese him in all thinges, and to be fruitful in all good workes, and growe in the knowledge of God: to be strenghted wth all power ac-cordinge to the mighte of his glory, wth all po-ciencie and longiuffer myge wth ioyfullnes, and geue thanks vnto the father, which hath made v^s meete for the inheritance of sayntes in lyghte.

Which hath deliuered vs fro the power of darkness, & translated vs in to the kingdome of his deare sonne (in whom we haue our redemption throughe his blood, namely the forgiveness of synnes.) Which is the ymage of the vniuersyble God, susteyned before all creatures. For by him were all thinges created, that are in heauen and earth, thinges visyble and thinges inuisyble, whether they be maisties or lordshippes, or rules or powers: All thinges are created by him and in him, and he is before all thinges, and in him all thinges haue their beginninge.

And he is the heade of the body, member of the congregacion, he is the begynninge and first begotten from the dead, that all thinges he might haue the promys-ce. For it pleased the father, that in him shul-de dwell all fulnesse, and that by him all thinges shulde be reconciled vnto himself, whether they be thinges upon earth in heauen, that throughe the blood on the crosse he might make peace vnto them his owne selfe. And you (which were tyme past straungers and enemies, because your myndes were in euill wth the he now reconciled in the body of his flesh show death, to make you holy, and vinda meable with our faces in his a more sight, ye ye consume ground and established in the faith, and be not moved away from hope of the Gospel, whereof ye have heard: which is preached among all creatures: he are under heaven, whereof I Paul am made a minister.

• Now I say in my sufferings, which I suffer for you, and fulfill that which is beyonde of the passions of Christ in my flesh, for his bodies sake, which in the congregation, whereof I am made a minister, according to my Godly office of preaching, which is given unto me among you. • But I should richly preach the word of God, namely that: mystery which hath bene hid since the world began, and since the begynnyng of asyenes: but now is opened unto his synners, to whom God wolde make knowne the glorious riches of this mystery amongst theyr synners: which (riches) is Christ in you, as he that is the hope of glory. wher-in we preach, and waite all men, and teach all men in all wysdome, to make every man perfect in Christ Jesu: wherein I also labour, and strye according to the rule of the word which reacheth might in me.

The II. Chapter.

¶ Wele ye knowe what sightinge I have for youe sake, and for them of Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my persons in the flesh, that therhereto might be comforted and broughte ther in love, to all riches of full understandinge, which is in the knowledge of the mystery of God the father and of Christ, in whom are hid all the treasures of wysdome and knowledge.

• This I saye, lest any man shoulde begyle you with emptying wordes. • For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I present with you in the spirit: I saye, and be-holdinge youe order and the stedfastnes of your faith in Christ. • As ye have therfore re-ceaved Christ Jesu the LORDE, even so wal-ke in him, and be roched & buylded in him, and be stedfast in faith, as ye have learned: & be planted in the same in the newe and rowe.

• Beware lest any man spoyle you through philosophy and deceitfull waies after the traditions of men, and after the ordinances of the world, and not after Christ. • For in him dwelleth all the fulnes of the Godhead bodily, and ye are complete in him, which is the head of all rule and power: in whom also ye are circumcised with circumcison without handes, by puttinge of the stiff body of the flesh: (namely) with the circumcysion of Christ, in that ye are buried with him in his baptism: in whom ye are also risen agayne to newe faith, which is wrought by the operation of God, which hath raised him up from the dead.

• And with him he quickned you, when ye were dead in synnes, and in the uncircum-cysion of your flesh, and hath forgiven us all synnes, and put on the hand of the seal as a agaynst us (circumcised in the lawe written) and that hath he taken one of the waies, and fastened it to the crosse: • And hath spoiled rule and power, and hath made a shewe of them openly, and triumphed over them in his own persons.

• Let no man therefore trouble youe conscience aboute meate or drynke, as for a vice of an holy daye, as the holy daye of s^r s^r Moses, or of the Sabbath daye, which are the shadowe of the thinges that were for to come: but the body selfe is in Christ. • Let no man make you shoke at a meyne man, which after his owne charynge walketh in humblenes, and spiritualltye of angels, thyn-ges which he neuer sawe, and is wayne, and putt up in his owne fleshy mynde: and holdeth not himselfe to the brade, whereof the whole body by synnes and complex receameth nonshame, and in wyse together, and so groweth to the greatnes that cometh of God.

Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the ordinances of the world, why are ye holde on the with such traditions, as though ye lynch after the world: • As when they saye: Touch not this, taste not that, handle not that. All these thinges do hurt unto men, because of the abusi of them, which abuse cometh outly of the commandmentes and doctrynes of men: • which thin-ges have a shyn of wysdome thow they be spirituallie and humblenes, and in that they spare not the body, and do the flesh no weithie unto his neede.

The III. Chapter.

¶ If ye be risen now with Christ, like those thinges then which are above where Christ is, sitting on the right hande of God. • See your mynde on the thinges which are above, not on thinges that are upon earth. For ye are dead, your life is hid with Christ in God.
• When Christ of us shal raise him selfe, that shal ye also appeare with him in glory.

The Epistle

to the Colossians.

• Manifeste therefore your meenes which are upon earth, wch do seme, wch are in, vnto all last, wch all conceale, aod couerupme, which is a wchippynge of Iobels: for wch things se to the wch of God commeth vpon the chuldren of vnbelleu: in the wch things ye walked some tyme, when ye lyncd in them,
• But now put all awaye fro you: wach, feare, enesse, maliciousnes, caufed speakyng, fytlye wordes out of youre mouth. & ye noe one to another, Part of y adoma reeth his weites, and put on y newe, which is renued in the wge after y ymage of him that made him: where there is no Gacke, Iewe, circumcision, vncircumcision, Barbarenes, Sithian, dooe, fre: but Christ is all and in all.

• To wch purpose as the cleere of God, holy and beloued, pac on tender mercye, byndes, humbles of mynde, and enesse, longe suffe-ryng. forbearinge one another, and forgewryng one another, yf any man haue a quarell agaynst another. Like an Christ hath forgiuen you, enen so do ye also. But adoue all things put on love, which is the bonde of perfectnesse. And the peace of God rule in your hertes, to the which (peace) ye are called also in one body: and se y be than-
full.

Let y worde of Christ dwell in you plentifully in all tyme. Teach and exhort your one selfes wch psalmen and ymnies, and spirituall songes which haue sauoure with chym, synginge in youre hertes to the LORDE. And whate soeuer ye do in worde or deede, do all in the name of the LORDE Jesu. And gree thanke vnto God the father by hym.

• Ye wyues, febowe your selues vnto your husbannes, as it is comly in the LOR-DE.

Ye husbannes, love your wyues, and be not bitter vnto them.

• Ye chuldren, obeye your elders in all thynges, for that is wellpleasynge vnto the LORDE.

Ye fathers, rate not y chuldren, lest they be of a despayre mynde.

• Ye seruantes, be obediēt vnto your hobyl masters in all thynges, not wch eye seruey: as men please, but in singleness of heert, fearing God. Whate soeuer ye do, doe truly, as if vnto the LORDE and not men. And beware, that of the LORDE cease not: remembre of y enueryng the LORDE Christ. But be thar delyt. Ye shal receaue for the reason ge that he hath done, for there is no spe-ce of persons (with God.)

• Ye masters, do vnto your seruantes thar which is iust and equall, and knowe, y ye also haue a master in heauen.

The III. Chapter.

• One ymag in prayer, and watch in the same wch thanksgyuyng, and praye also together for vs, that God open vnto vs the doore of the wiche, so speake the in ystery of Christ (wherfore I am also mis-de) wher I maye utter y same, as it becommeth me to speake. Walke wykly cometh them thar are without, and redeme y cyne.
Let your speach be allwaye sauourable, se-senced with salt, that ye maye knowe howe to answer eury man.

Tychicus the deare brother and faithfull my nister & fellowe seruaunt in y LORDE, shal tell you whate case I am in, whome I haue sent vnto you for the same purpose, thar he might knowe howe ye do, & thar he might comforte your hertes, wch one. Onesimus a faithfull and beloued brother, which is one of you: the y shal theme you of all thy-nges, which are adouynge here. Aristarchus my pryon fellowe salueth you, and Eu-stachius Barnabas his sister some, & some whome ye receaued commendaunties: & if he come vnto you, receaue him, and Titius, which is called Justus, wch are of the ar-cuncian. These onely are my helpours wch kyngdome of God, which were to my confacion.

• Epaphras a seruaunt of Christ, which is one of you, salueth you, & allwaye laboureth seruently for you in prayer, & y maye stande perfecte and full on all thar is the wylde of God. I beare him recorde, thar he hath a seruaunt mynde for you, and for thes of Lodicea, and of Hierapoles. Deare Lucas the physician salueth you, and so doth Demas.
Salute the brether, which are at Laodicea, and salare Tymothee, and the congregacion which is in his hous. And whan the epistle is red of you, cause it to be red also in the cogregacion at Laodicea, & thar ye likewise be the epistle of Laodicea. And syngre whippus. Take heere the office which thou hast receaued in the LORDE, thar thou shal tell it. My salutation wch the brether of me

The first Epistle of the Apostle S.

paul to the Thessalonians.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. I. He thanketh God for them, that they are so faithful in faith and good works, and receaue the gospel with ioye and rest.

Chap. II. He praiseth them in mynde of the godly commendation that he lea among them when he preache the gospel unto them, than falschou that they receaue the word so freely, and without his absence.

Chap. III. He sheweth how greatly he was comforted, whil Timothy toles him of their faith and love.

Chap. IIII. He comforteth them to stand fast, to kepe themselves from synne and vncleyn affection, to loue one another, and to be patient, and speake of the resurrection.

Chap. V. He comforteth them of the daye of come and aduynge of the L O R D E, and sheweth them to marce, and to regard such as peacefully be worke amonge them.

The first Chapter.

PAUL and Silas and Timothy.

Unto the congregation of the Thessalonians, in God the father and in the L O R D E J E S U S C H R I S T.

Grace be with you, and peace from God our father and from the L O R D E J E S U S C H R I S T.

We geue thanks vnto God alwaye for you all, makinge mention of you in o prayres without ceasinge, and call to remembrance at your worke in the faith, and your labour in love, and your patience in hope, which is our L O R D E J E S U S C H R I S T before God our father. Because we knowe (brethren, vnto us and of God) howe that ye are electe: for our Gospel hath not bene with you in word only, but both in power and in the holy ghost, and in vnto certaintye, as ye knowe of our what manner we were amonge you for your sake.

And ye became the seruantes of us and of the L O R D E: and receaue the word in much affliction with ioye of the holy ghost, so that ye were an example to all that beloued in Macedonia and Achaia. For first you was the worde of the L O R D E noyde out, not onely in Macedonia and Achaia, but all quarters also in yd faith: i God stand abode so that it needeth not us to speake any thinge at all, for they them selues shewe of you, in what manner of entrynge in we had vnto you, and how ye are turned vnto God from ymagines, for to serue the livinge and true God, and to loke for his sonne: from heaue vnto whom he is yde op from the dead, even Jesus, which hath deliuered vs fro the vniuersitye to come.

The II. Chapter.

For ye your selues (brethren) knowe of our exhortacion vnto you, how that it was not in vaine, but so we had suffered a foire, and were shamefully treated at Philippios (as ye knowe) we were bolde in our God, to speake vnto you the Gospel of God with much stryvinge. For our exhortacion was not to bringe you to vncertaintye: yete vnderstand, neither was it with gyll: but as we are allowed of God, that the Gospel shulde be commytted vnto us to preache, euen so we speake, not as though we wolde please me, but God, which tryeth our hartes.

For we haue not gone about with flatteryng wordes (as ye knowe) neither mayed for our owne profit: God is recorde: neither thought we playe of men, neither of you nor of any other, when we might haue bene charitable vnto you as the Apostles off Christ, but we were tender amonge you.

Like as a nurse cherisheth her children, so had we hartely affection comarthe you, and wolde rich good wyl haue deales vnto you, not onely the Gospel of God, but ouer lyues also, because ye were deare vnto vs.

We remember brethren our laboure and trauaile. For daye and nyght trounghe we (because we wolde not be chargeable vnto any of you) and preached the Gospel of God amonge you. We are witness, and so is God, howe holy and iustly and blameable we behaue our selues amonge you that beleue: as ye knowe, howe that as a his children, euen so we cherishe and deliuereth eueryone that wolde make worthy before God, which hath called you vnto his eternall glorie.

The first Epistle

For this cause thanke we God without ceasinge, because that whā ye receaved of us the woordes of the preachinge of God, ye receaved it not as if woordes of men, but (and as it is of a true) the woordes of God, which woordes in you shal be done.

Heb. xii. d For ye brethren are become the followers off the congregacions off God which in Jewry are in Christ Jesu, so that ye have suffered even like thinges of your brethren, as they have suffered of the Jewes. Which as they pursue the LORDE Jesu so dear, and their owne prophetes, even so have they persecuted us also, and please not God, and are contrary to all men.

Mat. x. d Forbyddinge us to speake unto the Jewes, that they might be saved, but to fulfill their synnes allwaye: for the wrath is come upon them already unto forevermore.

But we (brethren) for as much as we have bene kepte from you for a season, as concerninge the bodily presence, but not in the here, we have missed the more with greave desire to see you personally. Therfore wolde we have come unto you, (Paul) two tymes, but Sathan withstode us, for who is our hope, as I saye, or crowne of glory, if we see not yet in sight of our LORDE Jesu Christ at his cominge? For ye are our paynt and joye.

2 Cor. x. b

The III. Chapter.

1 Therefore since we coude no longer forbear, we thought it good to remayne at Athens alone, & sende Timotheus our brother and mynister of God, and our helper in the gospel of Christ, to stablish you and to comforte you in your faith, that no man shoulde be moved in these troubles: for ye your selves knowe, that we are everre appoynted there unto. And whan we retorne with you, we tolde you before, that we shoulde suffice recompensation, even as it is come to passe, & as ye knowe. For this cause saynge I coude no longer forbear, I sint, that I might have knowledge of your faith, if it haply the emptie had tempted you, and lest our laboure had bene in vayne.

But now that Timotheus is come see you unto us, and hath shewed us of your faith and love, & how that ye have alwaye good remembrance of us, desiringe to see us. I have to see you: that for brethren tomin you in all our travailles, I maye shewe your faith. For as I saye, if ye stande stedfast in it.

... De. For whā thanke can we receivto the Thessalonians.

pieces God give you for you, because of this joye that we have conceyvinge you before our God: We praye exceedingly for you night and day, that we might see you presently, and fulfill that which is lacking in us.

God himselfe of father & of LORDE Jesu Christ give our journey unto you. But the LORDE increace you, & make you flowe on in love one towards another, and towards all men (even as we do towards you) that ye heretofore maye be stable and unblamable in holynes before God our father, at the cominge of our LORDE Jesu Christ with all his sayntes.

The III. Chapter.

1 Wherefore we beseech you brethren, and exhort you in the LORDE Jesu, that ye increase more and more, even as ye have receaved of us how ye oughte to walke and to please God. For ye knowe what commandmentes we give you by our LORDE Jesu Christ, in this is the will of God, when your fructuall thinge, that ye shalde absteyne from whoredome, & every one of you shalde knowe how to kepe his vessel in holynes and honesty, not in the lust of concupiscence, as the Genten which knowe not God. And that no man go to farre, nor defraude his brother by bargayninge. For the LORDE is the anger of all such thinges, as we have before testified unto you afore tyme. For God hath not called us to vengeance, but unto holynes. Therefore that despisech, despise not man, but God, to which hath given us holy spirit in us.

But as touchinge brotherly love, remember that I wrote unto you, for ye yourselves are caring of God & love one another yet and this thinge ye do unto all the brethren, which are shewen us all this while. But we beseech you brethren that ye increase yet more and more, and that ye stande in it quyet, and so meble with your own patience, and to waite with your own labours, as we commanded you, that ye maye be honestly rewarded the that are worthy, and that nothinge be lackinge unto you.

We wolde not deceyve you, ye shal be ignorant concerninge them to which we shal be a slepe, that ye knowe not as others which have no hope. For if we beleve that Jesu shal come agayne, even so shal all which slepe by Jesu, that God bringe to him. For this we saye unto you in the word of the LORDE, that we which live and are yet livinge in the cominge of the LORDE, shal not come yet they which sleepe. For the LORD himselfe shal come downe first hea- ven with a shoute and voyce of 3 Arch- angell and with the trompe of God, and the dead in Christ shal arise first: then shal we which lyue and remaine, be caught up wth them also in the cloudes, to meete the LORD in the ayre, and so shal we ever be with the LORD. Wherefore comforte youre sel- ues one another with these wordes.

The first Epistle

The V. Chapter.

BYe of y tymes and seasons (brether) it is no neede so wyte vnto you. For ye your selues knowe perfectly, that the daye of the LORD shal come euen as a thefe in the nyghte. For whan they shal saye: Peace, is in peace, there is no daunger, then shall sudden destruction come vpo the, men as the payne of a woman trauaylinge with childe, and they shal not escape. But ye bretheren are not in baden, that that daye shal come on you as a thefe. Ye are altogether children of lighte, and children of the daye. We are not of the nyght, neche of darknesse.

Therefore let vs not sleepe as do other, lette vs wake, and be sober. For they that sleepe, sleepe in the nyghte: and they that be drunken, are drunken in the nyghte. But let vs which are of the daye, be sober, armed wth the breastplate of faith and loue, and with 3 helme of hope to saluacion.

For God hath not appoynted vs vnto wrath, but to obtayne saluacion by 3 meanes of oure LORD Iesu Christ, which bye by vs: that whether we wake or sleepe, we shalbe lyue together with him. Wherefore comfote youre selues together, and edifye one another, euen as ye do.

We beseeke you bretheren, that ye knowe them which laboure amonge you, and haue the outshyne of youm the LORD, and ge praye for them as on, that ye haue the me- rit loue for their workes sake, and be at pea- ce with them. We desire you bretheren, that ye knowe that are worldly, to softe the feeble in ydell, for beare the weak, be patient towardes all men. So that none recompence euill for mek vnto any man: but euer foloweth that which is good, both amonge youre selues and to all men.

Reioyse alwaye, praye continually, in all thynges be thankfull: for this is the will of God in Christ Iesu towardes you. And whiche ye of freene. Despayse not prophete's geasp- o: all thynges, & kepe yn. which is good. With- out ye all iuspicious thynges, The very God peace sanctifie you throug out. And I praye God, that youre whole spere, soules, body be kepte blameles vnto 3 comynge of oure LORD Iesu Christ. Faithfull is he which hath called you, which will also do it. Bretheren, praye for us. Grete all the bretheren with an holy kysse. I charge you by 3 LORD, that this epistle be red vnto all 3 holy bretheren. The grace of oure LORD Iesu Christ be with you, Amen.

To the congregation of 3 Thessalonian in God oure father and in the LORD Iesu
Christ.

Grace be with you, and peace from God our father, and from the LORD Iesu Christ.
We are bounde to thank God alwayes for you bretheren, as it is meete: because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the loue of euery one of you increaseth towardes another amonge youre selues, so that we oure selues make oure boast of you (in the congregacions of God) of youre pacifce and faith in all youre persecucions and troublen that ye suffre, which is a token of the righteous iudgment of God, that ye are counted worthy of the kyngdome of God, for the which, ye also suffre.

For it is a righteous thyng with God, the LORDE Iesus Christ.

The II. Chapter.

21 WE beseech you brethren by the com myng of LORDE Iesus Christ, and in that we shal assemble vnto him, that ye be not suddenly in ouer of your mynde, and be not troubled, neither by spise, either by wordes, nor yet by letter, which shoulde seme to be sent from vs, as though of daye of Christ were be hande. Les no man distract you by any meane, for the LOR DE cometh not, excepte the departinge come first, and that that Man of synne be opened, in the forme of perdition, which is an aduersary, and is exalted above all that is called God or Gods seruyce, so that he stretch as God in the temple of God, and boasteth himselfe to be God.

Remember ye now, that when I was yet with you, I tolde you these thinges: And now ye knowe what I haue written, and that it might be receyued at his tyme. For the mystery of the iniquyte was alreedy, it will be which now and yet leteth, be take out of the waye. And then shal that which be erred, whom the LORDE shal consume with the space of an mouth, and shal destroye with the appearance of his commyng:

22 When him whose commyng is a fire the mo st kyng of Sathan. which all kyngs power, and signes and wonderis, and which all decea nableness of unrighteousnes amonge them that perishe, because they receaved not the love of the crueltie, that they might haue bene saues. Therefore shal God send them strong demonstracion, that they shoulde beleue in vs, all they might be damed, which beleue the truce, but had pleasure in unrighte ousnes.

23 What we are bounde to geue thanks al wayes vnto God for you, brethren be leue of the LORDE, because that God hath the begynnynge chosen you to saluacion in the sanctification of the spirit and in belon ge of the truce, wherunto he hath called you by oure Gospell, so as praye the glory of oure LORDE Iesus Christ.

24 Wherefore brethren stande fast, and keepe the ordinances which ye haue lerne, wher ether it were by oure preachinge or by epistle.
But oure LORDE Iesus Christ himselfe, and God oure father, which hath leued us and given us everlastinge consolacion, an a good hope of eternall grace, comforte you heretofore, and stablish you in all doctrine good doyng.

The III. Chapter.

25 Wherefore brethren persevere in that the worke of God now hat the passage and be glorified as with you, and that we maye be deliuered from unreasonable and euill men. For sayn is not every man. But the LORDE is full full, which shal stablish the you and keepe from euill. We haue confidence in the LOR DE to your wards, that ye be doo and do that which we commaunde you. The G D gyde youe heretofore vnto the love of vs we had auerones, but to geue oure selues for an example vnto you to followe us. But when we were with you, this we would not of, that ye shoulde be any which in olden workes, if same shoulde be ease. For we haue saye, that there are some which walke ge you inordinately, and worse now as all are busy bodies. Wherefore that are so we commaunde and exhorte by oure LORDE Iesus Christ, that they worke with quietnes, and eateth their owne bread.

The first Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to Timothy.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. He exhorteth Timothy to wayte vpon his office manfully, so far that nothinge he taughte he had of othe men. He sheweth also wherfore the line is good, and telleth these swete and glad sayenges, that Christ Jesus came in to the world to save sinners, as an example of himselfe.

Chap. II. He exhorteth to praye for all men. He will not haue women to be ecclesiasticallye taughte, nor to teach in the congregation, but to be chaste, and obeye their husbands.

Chap. III. What manner of man a byshoppe or pastor ought to be, and what conuitions him selfe and his church should haue. The prosperities also requyred in a deacons enuyler, and in his wife.

Chap. IIII. He prophesieth of the latter dayes, and exhorteth Timothy to the diligent studye of the holy scriptures.

Chap. V. He rebuketh him how he should behaue himselfe in rebulyng the yonger Anoyntes against synners.

Chap. VI. The booke of sermannes towarde the shepheard. Against such as are not satisfie with the worde of God. Against carnal men, and good lesion for cupemans.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ according to the commaundement of God our Saviour, and of the LORDE Jesus Christ, which is our hope.

Unto Timothy my natural sonne in the faith.

Grace, mercy, and peace from God our father, and oure LORDE Jesus Christ.

As I besought thee to abyde still at Ephesus, when I departed thence to Macedonia.

ent so do, that thou commaunde some, that they teach none other waye, neither graue be to fables and genealogies, which are endlesse, and breed debates more then godly edifyinge, which is by faith.

For if these summe of the commaundement is lone of a pure here, and of a good conscience, and of such unfeyned, from the which some haue erred, & haue turned into wayne saynges, wyllinge to be doctours of the scripture, and vnderstande not what they speake, neither wherof they assure.

But we knowe that the same is good, if a man use it lawfully, vnderstandynge this, that the same is not geuen vnto the righeous, but to the vngodly & to synners, to the vnbelye uncleane, to murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, to manslayers, to who,

remongers, to the that be false churche felous with manyngs, to mercenaires, to colars, to peruers, & to such yficers be any other thinge yf contrary to yf emboldenede, & to dyngs to yf Gospel of yf glory of the blessed God, which (Gospel) is comyned vnto me.

And I thankes Christ Jesus of LORDE, which hath made me stronge, for he commaunde me faithfull, & put me in afflic, in wher before I was a blasphemour, & a persecutor, & a cruel: but I obtained mercy, because I dyd not knowe what I do.

Therefore I desire thee, that thou praye for me, that I maye obtaine mercy, because I dyd not knowe what I do. Therefore I desire thee, that thou praye for me, that I maye obtaine mercy, because I dyd not knowe what I do.

unto Timothy.

C For this is a true sayinge, and by all mea-nes worthy to be receaued, that Christ Jesus came in to y^e worlde to saue synners, of whom I am chiefe. To witthstandynge for this cause opressed I mercy, that Iesus Christ mighte principally shewe in me all longe patience, to the ensample of them which shal be beleue in him vnto eternall life. So then as God bringe euery thinge, immortall and vnsyngeable, and wysse onely, be honoure and prayse for ever and ever sions and gearynge of that to be had for all men: for Kinges, and for all that are in autorite, that we maye lyue a quiet & peaceable life in all godynes and honestie.

For that is good and accepted in y^e sighte of God oure Sauoure, which wold haue all men sanct, and to come vnto the knowlege of y^e truth: for there is one God, and one mediator betwene God and men, (namely) the man Christ Iesus, which gaue him selfe a ransom for all men, that at his tyme reshulde be preached, wherunto I am ordeyned a preacher & an Apostoll (I will y^e serue in Christ and in y^e nor a teacher of the heithen in faith and in the truth).

23 I wil that thou shouldest paye, in all places, bribe up pure harten without warb or bowynge. Likewise also the women, that they arraye themselues in comly apparell with shynsines and discreit behauior, not with byrded heere, or golde, or perles, or costly aray: but with such as is becomely women that possesse godlynes shewyn good doctee. Let the woman ornelle in selfe with all subuocion. I asseue not a womā to teache a man to be in science, for Adam was first sancted, and the ewe: Adam also was not deceived, but the woman was deceiued, and hath brought in the euill passion. To witthstandynge thou to dearynge of children she shal be sanct, yf she comynge in faith and in love in the sancte frange with discrecion.

The III. Chapter.

This is a true sayinge: If a mā come y^e office of a Bishoppe, he deserveth a good worke. But a Bishoppe must be blamelesse, & the husbande of one wife, sober, discrete, manly, hartynesse, apte to teach: Thee given to much wyne, no fith, nor geue to schyller: but gentle, abhorrynge stryfe, abhorrynge contencion: & one that euery daye arneth honeste by ynge obedient children with all honestie.
(But yf a man can not rale his owne house, how shal he care for the congregacion of God?) he maye not be a yoge scholar, lest he be past up, and fall in as the iudgment of euill speaker. he must also haue a good repote of them which are without, lest he fall in to the rebuke and share of the euill speaker.

Likewyse must the minister be honest, not double tongued, not given to much wyne, neither unto filchis lucre, but hauynge the mystery of faith in pure conscience. And is them first be proued, and then let them pre-mister, yf they be blamelesse.

Let also must thei be honest, not euill speaker, but sober and faithfull in all thinge. Let the ministers be euery one the husbande of one wyfe, and such an rule the children well, and their owne house well.
For thei y^e that minister well, get them sel-ues a good degree and greates liberte in the faith which is in Christ Iesu.

Thise thinges teyde I vnto the, that thou shouldest come vnto the: but yf I may lenger, that thou the a mayest yett haue knowlege, how thou oughtest to behaue thy selfe in Gods house, which is the congregacion of the laynge God, the pillar and ground of the truth: and withouten me, greates is the mystery of godlynes. & God was shewen in the flesh: was in flesh in the space: manifest of angels: was preachid vnto the: he was beleued on in the worlde: was creamed up in glory.

The III. Chapter.

The spirit speaketh evidently, that in y^e latter tymes some shal de-ceiue from the faith, and shal greiue many spirites of men, and shall bearyne of them which shall falsly shewe criste, and haue cheie conscience marked with an heere: y^e forbiddinge to marry, and certaine bynynge to abstayne fro the meat,

The first Epistle

unto Timothy. Ho. xxiij.

which God hath created to be received as guyng thankes to f his which bene and move the truth. For every creature off God is good, and nothinge to be refused. y is received with thankesguyng: for as sanctified by the worde of God and prayer.
If thou shalt see the bishop in contin uance of these thinges, thou shalt be a good minister of Iesus Christ, which hath been manifested up in the wordes of faith and of good doctrine, which thou hast followed hitherto.

• As for virginity and olde womanly sa tisfaction, cast them away, but exercise thy selfe unto godlines. For bodily exercise profiteth little, but godlyne is profitable unto all thinges, as a thinge in which hath plenty of the life that is now, and of the life that is to come. This is a sure sayinge, of all patrons worthy to be received. For therfore we laboure and suffer these, because we hope in the livinge God, which is the Saviour of all men, but specially of those that beleve.
Such thinges commaunde thou and teach.
• Let no man despise yoweth, but bespou se them that beleve, on example in wood in the church, in love, in ffaith, in faith, in patience.

• Give attention to readyng, to exhort ation, to doctrine, untill I come. Be not negligent in the gift that is given the two prophete, with layng on of the han des of the Elders. These thinges exercise the, and give thy selfe unto them, that shine in peace may be manifest unto every man.
Take heede unto thy selfe, and to learninge, circumstances these thinges. For if thou do so, thou shalt save thy selfe, and them that hea re thee.

The V. Chapter.

• Rebuke not an Elder, but exhort him as a father: and the younger men as brethren: the elder women as mo thers: the younger as sisters with all purenes.
And the widows, which are true widows, If any widow have children or nieces, let them learne first to rule their own house goodly, and to recompence their elders. For it is good to be receivable before God. But she that is a right widow, and desolate, partly by reason of God, and partly in prayer and supplication night and day. But she that from pleasure, is dead, even yet a livinge.
And these thinges commaunde, that they may be without blame. • But if there be any man that pouteth not for his work, and specially for them of his household, the same hath denyed the faith, and is worse then an infydele.

• Let no widow be chosen under threesco re years olde, and such ones as was y wife of one man, and well reported of in good wor kes, if she have brought up children well, if she have bene hardy, if she have not wash ed the shame of the face, if she have mystified unto the which were in adversity, if she were continually given to all manner of good works. But if younger widows refuse, for whom they have begonne to waste wanton against Christ, then will the many, buy get their damnation, because they have be lieved y first faith. Beside this they yett sell, and learne to canne aboute fithouse to how le. For only are they sold, but also crysin ge y busybodies, great ynges thinges which are not comely.

• I will therefore that the younger women marry, beate children, gyde the house, to geve y adversary no occasion to speake euill. For some are turned backe alreedy after Christ.
If any man or woman that belongeth has widowhood, let them make provision for the,
and let not the congregation be charged that they which are right widows, may have yough.

The Elders that rule well are worthy of double honour, most specially they which laboure in the worde in teachinge. For y scripture sayeth: Thou shalt not moulde the mouth of y ore y treadeth out y same. And
• The labourer is worthy of his rewarde.

• Against an Elder receive none accusa tion, but under two or three witness. The that sheweth in the presence of all, that other also may seare.

I testifie before God and the LORD Jesus Christ, and y deere angels, that thou art in these thinges without blame in judg ment, and do nothinge partially. Laye hon des suddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other mens synnes. Bepe y selfe pure. • Decei te no longer man, but also like wyne for y stomackes sake, and because thou art of y synnes sick. Some mens synnes are open, that they may be rebuked afore hand: but some mens synnes shall be manifest hereafter. Li berally also good works are manifest a few hath: and they that are of other wyse can not be hyde.

The VI. Chapter.

• Let as many servants as are un der the yocke, counte their m. Lords worthy of all honour, that the na me of God and his doctrine be not blasph med.

Pen of. Se that they which haue beleynge masters, despye them not because they are bought, but rather do seruaice, for some daye they are belouynge, and beloued, and partakers of the benefite.

These thinges teach and exhort. If any man teach other wyse, and agreeeth not vnto the wholesome wordes of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, and to the doctrine of godlynes, he is putt vp, and knoweth nothyng, but maye flyte his buyne aboute questions and strynges of wordes: wherof spryngge enuie, stryfe, sayllages, euell fermysinges, vayne disputacions of such men as haue corrupted mynde, and are robbed of the tithes, which chynte that godlynes is laic: from such separate thy selfe. Howbeit it is a greaue voyage whoso is godly, and heldech him content with that he hath. For we brought nothyng in to the worlde, therefore is it a playne case y we can carry nothyng out. When we haue fode and cayment, let vs therewith be content. For they that wyll be rich, fall in to the temptation and snare, and in to many folyshe & noysome lustes, which diuene men in destruction and damnacion. For Couetousnes is the roote of all euill, which to hyle some lusts a fee, they erre from the faith, and rangled them selues with many sorowes.

¶ Hæ thou man of God, flye suche thinges: folde re: eight countres, godlynes, faith, looue, patience, meeknes: fighte a good fighte of faith: laye honde on eternall life, whereto thou art called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnessers.

I geue the charge before God, which quyteth all thinges, & before Iesus Christ, which vnder Pontius Pilate witnessed a good witnessinge, that thou kepe the commandement, without spot, vnréprouable, vntill the apperaynge of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, which apperayge (as he saye) he shal shewe that a blessed, and mightie oync, the kyng of all kynges, and LORDE of all lordes: which onely hath immortallite, and dwelleth in a lighte, that no man can see: wherof no man hath sene, neither can se. Vnto whom be honoure and euer praye euerlastyng, Amen.

Charge the which are riche in this worlde, that they be not proude, ne trust in the vncertaine riches, but in the helyng God (which geuech vs abundantly all thinges to eate & theye them:) That they do good: that they be rich in good reioyses: that they geue and distribute with a good will: gatherynge unto Timothy.

ge up treasure for them selues, a good foundation, a geynt of conyng, that they maye laye honde on eternall life.

O Timothy, kepe that which is committed vnto the, and abyde vngoslyly among wordes, and oppositions of science falsly called, which to hyle some professed, they be erected as concernyng the faith. Vnto which the, Amen.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle of Iesus Christ, by the will of God, to preach the promises of life which is in Iesus Christ.

To my beloved sonne Timothy,

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the father and from Iesus Christ our LORDE.

I thanketh God, to whome I serue fro my fore alders in a pure conscience, that without cessyng I make mention of them in prayers night and daye: and longe so I praye (whan I remember thy eares) so that I am filled with coye, whan I call to remembrance the vnkyng faith that is in the, which dwelleth first in thy grandmother, the Lois, and in thy mother Eunice: and am assured, that it dwelleth in y^e alse. Wherefore I warne the, that thou steepe up y^e gifte of God which is in the by puttinge on of my handes. For God hath a care gentles to the spirit of feare, love of power, and of leue, and of righte iudgemente.

¶ Deuotion is ashamed therefore of y^e testimonies of the LORDE, neither of me, which am his purifier: but suffer thou aduersite alld of the Gospell, accordinge to the power of God, which hath fauored in, and called to with an holy calling: not accordinge to our rebedes, but accordinge to his owne purpose and grace, which was geuen vs in Christ Iesu before the tyme of the worlde, but is now declared openly by the apperuyng of oure

Sanctiue Ihu Christ. Which hath taken away y^e power of death, and hath brought life and immortallite vnto light, throughe the Gospell: wherunto I am appointed a preacher and an Apostell, and a teacher of the heathen: for the which cause I also suffer these thinges, notwithstandinge I am not ashamed. For I knowe whom I haue beleued, and am sure that he is able to keepe that which I haue committed vnto his keepinge agaynst that daye.

¶ I holde the after y^e ensample of the whol faine wordes, which thou hearest of me, concerninge faith and love in Christ Iesu. This bychargeth the thou thow the holy gost, which dwelleth in vs. This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia, ha turned fro me, of which sorte are Phigelus and Hermogenes. The LORDE geue mercy vnto the house of Onesiphorus: for he oft refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my decaye: but when he was at Rome he soughte me out very diligently, and founde me. The LORDE graunte vnto him, that he maye fynde mercy with the LORDE in that daye. And howe much he mynistered vnto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

The iij. Chapter.

¶ Thou therefore my sonne, be stronge thowest the grace to which is in Christ Iesu. And what thinges thou hast herd of me by many witnesses, the same committe thou vnto faithful men, which are apte to teach other. Thou therefore suffer affliction as a good soldier of Christ Iesu. To that thou art wretched, angeltly humilite with weedy busshes, & that because he wold please him, which hath chosen him to be a martyr, yet is he not crowned, excepte he suffer lawfully. The husbandman that laboureth, must first enioye the fruite. Consider what I saye. The LORDE shall geue the vnderstandinge in all thinges.

Remember that Iesus Christ beinge of the seede of Dauid, rose agayne fro the dead, accordinge to my Gospell, wher in I suffer as an enell deer euen vnto bandes: but the worde of God is not bounde. Therefore suffer I all for the electes sakes, that they also mighte obtayne the saluacion in Christ Iesu with eternall glory.

This is a true sayinge. If we be dead with him, we shall lyue with him also. If we be patient, we shall also reigne with him: If we denye him, he also shall denye vs: If we be false, he can not be true with us. Of these thinges put thou them in remembrance now, and resist before the LORDE, that they styue not aboute wordes, which is to no profite, but to peruerbe the hearers.

Study to shewe thy selfe vnto God a lawfull man, that neither not to be ashamed, denyng the worde of truth fully. As for vngodly and vayne talkynges, eschue them: for they helpe much to vngodlynes, and they woulde brent as doth a canker: Of whose nombre is Symeon the pharisee, which as concerninge the truth haue erred, sayinge, that the resurrection is past already, and haue beleue the faith of ymagine persones.

But y^e sure grounde of God stoneth fast, and hath be seale. The LORDE knoweth them that are his, and let every man that calleth apon the name of Christ, departe from unquyte. For with standinge in a greates house are not onely vessels of golde and of syluer, but also of wood and of earth, some for honoure, and some to dishonoure. But yf a man purge himselfe from such seluice, he shal be a vessel sanctified vnto be more mete for the LORDE, and purpary vnto all good works. If thou the suffer of yonch be solowe righteousnes, faith, love, peace with all them that call vpon the LORDE, with pure hart. As for folish questions and such an teachyng, put them fro the: for thou knowest that they do but geue stryfe. The seruante of the LORDE oughte not to stryue, but to be gentle vnto every man: apte to teach, one that can forbear the euill, one yf can with meeknesse in foume. Beware yf God at any tyme wyl geue thee fauour: so that thou maye the truth agayne from the snare of the deuel in prison of him

The ii. Epistle

unto Timothy.

The III. Chapter.

WHAT thou shalt know, that in the last dayes shall come perilous tymes. For there shall be men which shall holde of the selues, conceited, boisterous, proud, caried speakers, disobedient to their elders, with and full, ungodly, unkind, cruel, detestable, false consciences, fierce, without pity of them which are good, they are proud, they are greedy upon voluptuousness in such things as the elders of God, having a hymn off godly livinge, but they change the power thereof. And such awaye. • Of this sort are they which raine first house to house, & bringe in to bondage men in synne, which (women) are led with dyables lusts, ever learninge, and are never able to come unto the knowledge of the truth.

• But like as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, even so these also resist the truth: me they are of corrupt myndes, and leave as concerninge I faith: but they shall paye no longer. For their foolishnes shall be manifest unto all men, as theirs was.

But thou hast seen this experience of my doctrine, my fashion of livinge, my purpose, my faith, my long sufferinge, my love, my patience, my persecutions, my afflictions, which happened unto me • at Antioche, at Iconium, at Lystra, which persecutions I suffered patiently, and from the all the LORD delivered me. • And all they that will have god in Christe, must suffer persecution. But the evil men and deceivers shall waxe worse and worse, deceavinge and beinge deceived.

• But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned, which also were commended unto thee, sayinge thou knowest of whome thou hast learned them. And for so much as thou hast knowne holy scripture of a child, the same is able to make thee wise unto salvation through the faith in Christe Jesu. • For all scripture is given by inspiration of God, is profitable to teach, to reprove, to correct, and to instruct in righteousness, that a man of God may be perfect, and prepared unto all good works.

The IIII. Chapter.

Tessifie thee now before God & before the LORD Jesus Christ, which shall come to judge the livinge and the dead, as he is appearinge in his kingdom: each of them shall be judged, be silent, be it out of silence: Impious, rebuke, in all longe sufferinge and doctrine until cometh, when they shall not suffer wholesome doctrine, but after their own desires shall they (whose ears yethe) get them an heap of teachers, and shall turne their eares from the truth, and shall be given unto fables. But watch thou in all things, suffer adversarie, do the work of a preacher of the Gospel, fulfill thine office unto the uttermost.

• For I am now ready to be offered, and as the ryme is nigh departinge in at bond. I have sought a good fight. I have kept the course: I have kept the faith. From hence forth there is layd up for me a crowne of righteousness, which the LORD shall give me in that daye: howbeit not unto me only, but unto all them that love his cominge. Make speede to come visit me anon.

For Demas hath forsaken me, and leaveth this present world, and is departed unto Thessalonica, Crescens in to Galacia, Titus unto Dalmacia, Onesimus is with me. Take Mark, & bringe him with thee: for he is profitable unto me to the ministry. Tychicus have I sent to thee by this, the clothe that I left at Troas with Carpus bringe with thee when thou comest, & the eboles, but specially the parchment. • And consider the coppernymph which I have sold, the LORD delivered him according to his deed, of whom he thou wast also. For he hath saved our wordes also.

In my first answeringe no man assisted me, but all forsake me. I praye God that he be not layd to their charges. I commend younge the LORD deliver me, & strengthen me, that by me the preachinge should be fulfilled to the uttermost, and that all they which shoulde heare. And I was delivered out of the mouth of the Lyon. And the LORD shall deliver me from all evil doinge, and shall kepe me unto his heavenly kingdom. To whom be praye for ever and ever Amen.

Salute Pallas and Aquila, and of those which hold of Onesiphorus. • Greetinge abode at Corinth. • But Trophimus left I sick at Miletus. Make speede to come before winter. Eubolus, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren salute thee. The LORD Jesus Christ be with thy spirit. Soce be with you. Amen.

The seconde epistle unto Timothy, written from Rome, which Paul was presented the second tyme before the Emperour Nero.

The Epistle The Epistle of of the Apostle S. Paul unto Titus.

The summe of this epistle.

- Chap. I. Paul exhorteth Titus to endure persecution with patience in every case, declaring what manner of men they ought to be that are chosen to that office, and charging Titus to rebuke such as withstande the gospel.
Chap. II. He relecth how behouers all degrees to be without exception.
Chap. III. Of obedience to God as best becometh the members of Titus to be aware of all such and impossible questions.

The first Chapter.

- TITUS the seruante of God, and an Apostle off Jesus Christ, to preach the faith off Gods electe, and the knowledge off trouth, which ledeth vnto god-lynes, vpon the hope of eternall life: which God, that can not lye hath promysed before the nyghtes of the worlde: but at his tyme hath opened his worde thorow preachinge, which is commytted vnto me according to the commaundment of Gods our Saviour.
- ¶ Vnto Titus my naturall sonne or siter of comen faith.
- Grace, mercy, and peace from God the father, and fre che LORDE Iesu Christ our Saviour.
- ¶ For this cause left I the in Crete, that thou shouldest performe that which was ladyng, and shouldest rebukeye Elders in curye, as I appointed þ. If any be blameles, the husbandes of one wyfe, hauinge fayllfull children, which are not standied of fleshye fact: but hartbarene, one that lo-ueth goodnes, sober mynde, righteouse, holy, temperate, and such one as cleueth vnto the true worde of doctryne: that he maye be able to exhorte with wholsome learyng, & to improue them that saye agaynst it.

¶ For there are many disobedient, and talkers of anate, and distourers of mynde: namely they of the circucion, whose mou-thes must be stopp'd: which persecute whole houses, teachinge thinges which they oughte not, because off fleshye lare. One of them selues euen their owne prophet sayeth ¶ The Cretians are all wayes lyars, euill betes, and slow belien. This witness is true.
Wherefore rebuke them sharply, þ. they maye be founde in the faith, and not to take peder vnto Iewes fables and commaundmentes of men, which turne them awaye from the trouth. ¶ Vnto þ. cleane are all thinges clea-ne: but to the vnclane & vnbelieners, there is nothinge cleane, but both their mynde & conscience in defiled. They saye that they knowe God, but with the dedes they denye him: for so much as they are abhominable and disobedient, and contrarye to all good works,

The II. Chapter.

WE speake then that which becometh wholsome learyng. That þ. elder men be sober, honest, discrete, founde in the faith, in loue, in patience. And the elder women likewise that they shew them selues as it becometh holynes, that they be no false accusers, nor gaine comode wyne, that they teach honest thinges, that they answeare the yonge women to be sober mynde, to loue their husbandes, to loue their childre, to be discrete, chaste, busy, yf good, to obey vnto their lordes husbandes, that the worde of God be not euill spoken of. ¶ Wherof the yonge men likewise that they be sober mynde. Whose all thinge shewe thy selfe. ¶ an ensample off good works, with vncompt doctryne, with honestie, with the wholsome worde which can not be rebuked: that be which with sturthy maye be ashamed, hauinge nothinge in you that he maye dispraye.

¶ Wherof the seruantes, to be obedient vnto their masters, to please in all thinges, not in sighte of eyne, neither to be py-lers, but to shewe all good faithfull in all thinges they maye do to the doctryne off God our of the Apostle S. Peter.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. I. He sheweth that holiness the abundance of mercy of God are as good as a goodly seed: and how faith maketh a creature to be the fulcrum in Christ (a new man, but a thing prophesied of afore. He exhorteth us to a goodly conversation, for so many as they are now holiness by the words of God.

Chap. II. Each brethren com to lay offe all Chap. III. So exhorteth men to exche from sins, to spende no more tyme in vices, so be it become opes to prayer, to loue, and charitee, an be patient in trouble, and so beware, that no man suffer as an enuell doer, but as a Christian man, and not to be ashamed.

Chap. V A special exhortation for all believers to persevere to the end of their lives, and to be faithful to the Lord, and to be diligent in the study of the Word, and to be obedient to the commandments of God, and to be patient in tribulation, and to be faithful in the face of death.

the foreknowledge of God the father chorois sanctification of the spirit, unto obedience and . spirituality of the blood of Jesus Christ.

Grace and peace be multiplied with you.
Blessed be God and the father of our LORD Jesus Christ, which according to his great mercy hath begotten us again new as a lively hope - by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an incorruptible and undefiled inheritance, which never shall fade away, but is reserved in heaven for you that are kept by the power of God through faith to salvation, which is prepared all ready to be shewed in the last time: in the which ye shall receive, thought now for a little season, (yff neede require) ye are in bondage to them manifestly impossible; that your faith once trusted (as a much more perfect) than the corruptible gold that (in the thousand and five) might be founde unto laude, glory and honour as the appearance of Jesus Christ whom ye have not seen, and yet love him: in no man now ye believe, though ye see him not. But ye shall ye receive also with unspotable and glorious joye, receivinge the end of your faith, even the salvation of your soules.

For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man is as the floure of grass. The grass withereth: but the floure is withered away: but the worde of the LORD endureth for ever. Thus in the worde, that is preached amonge you.

Wherefore laye asyde all malicioussnes and all gyle, and ypocrisie, and envye, and all backbitinge, & as new borne babes desire that reasonabill mylke, which is withoute corruption, that ye may growe therein, yf so be that ye have. tasted the good frendlye of the LORD. Unto whom ye are come, as to the livinge stone, which is disallowed of men, but chosen of God and precious. And ye also as livinge stones are made a spiritual house, and as holy priests by the office of spiritus sanctus, offeringe up sacrifices unto God by Iesus Christ. Wherefore in euery waye in the scripture: Beholde, I put in Zion a pebble corner stone, elect & precious, and he that belongeth on him, shall not be confounded. Unto you therefore which be so precious: doe unto them that in yf some stone which the holy made the heaste stone in the corner so stonble as, and a roof to be offered me, namely in the which stonble as yf worde, and belone not that ye be so chry n are fit.

• Doe ye see that chosen generation, that is bynglyp: sibode, that holy nation, that is calder people, yf ye shalde here the wordes of him, which hath called you out of darkness into to his marvelous light: when ye, which in tyme past were not a people, but now are the people of God: which were not under men, but now have a praymyness.

Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, to absteyne from the fleshly lusts, which fighten against the soules, and to lede an honest conuersation amonge the Gentethen, that they which backbite you as euill doers, may see youre good worke, and may praise God in the daye of visitacion.

Submytte youre selues vnto all maner ordinaunce of men for the LORDES sake: whether it be vnto the kynges as vnto yf the se heade, or vnto rulers, as vnto them that are set of him, for the punishment of euill doers, but for the peace of they that do well. For so the will of God, that ye wish not to be ynter shulde put to silence the ignorance of foolish men: in so, and not as bynging the libertie of the clothe of wisdom, but as the seruantes of God. Honour all men. Love brotherly fellowshipe. Feare God. Honour the kyng.

• Ye seruantes, obey youre masters with all feare: not onely yf they be good and righteous, but also though they be frowarde. For that is grace, yf a man for conscience toward God endure griefe, and suffer wronge. For he that payeth is it, yf whi ye be behested for yf sake, ye take it patiently. Doe yf whan ye do well, ye suffer wronge, and be patient, because grace muche doth. For hereunto are ye called, for so much as Christ also suffered for us, leavinge us an example, that ye shalde folowe his footsteps, which dyed for synne, neither was he retyrlye founde in his mouth: which when he was retyrlye, retyrlye not agayn: to whi he suffered, he cheereth us not: but to comforte the cause vnto him, that we might bringe out synne: which his owne selfe bare out synne in his body upon the tree, that we shalde be deliuered from synne, & shalbe lyas vnto righteausnes: by whose stripes ye were healed. For ye were in synne goynge astraye, but now are ye turned vnto the shepheard and Bishoppe of youre soules.

The II. Chapter.

Blessed be they which be in subiection to their husbands, that men they which be like not the world, maye much more the world be wonne by of conversion of the wyomen, when they beholde the pure conversation in sear. Whose apparel. That not be ornaments of broided heere, hangings on of golde, or of puerpynge out of gorgeous array, but lette in inward man of the heart be uncorrupted with a quiete spirit, which be for God is much set by. For after this maner in the olde tyme, by the holy women which trusted in God, tye the seales, were obedient unto their husbands: Even as Sara obeyed Abrahama, and called him lord: whose daughters ye are, as long as ye do will, not be yoked after yed for any trouble. Let wyfye ye men, dwell with them as churches unto knowledge, geuyng a bond unto the wife, as to the weaker vessel: and into the which are heiden with you of the grace of like that your piety be not let.

But in conclusion be ye all of one mynde, one suffire with another, lone as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous. Receyve not euill for euill, neither rebaite for rebait: but contrary in wyse, blessing and knowinge that ye are called thereto, even if ye shoulde be heya of y. blessing. For which shal liffen to lyne, and wolde fayne be good dayen. Let him be fraye: his conge from euill, and his lippes if they speake no gyle. Let him be fraye well, to do good: let him be peace and enyue. For if ye see if the LORD be our the righterous, a hitares are open vnder their prayers. But if sa as of the LORD be holde the which do euill. And it is in that can harme you, if ye followe the which is good. For which shal be blessed: blessed are ye, if ye suffice for righte cause sake. Feare not ye their threatenynge, neither be troubled, but sanctifie the LORD God in your heartes. Be ready alwayes to geue an answer to every man, who askech you a reason of the hope that is in you, and that with mekenesse feare, hauynge a good conscience. That they which be charye you as euill doers, maye be ashamed, that they haue falsely accused your good conversation in Christ.

For it is better if the will of God be forth: ye suffice for well domine, the fouerth bynynge. For as much as Christ hath once suffered for our synnes, if thus for the minis, for to be yoke to God: it was slayne after the flesh, but quickened after the spirit.

In the which spirit he also receyue, and preached vnto y spirit which were in purgation, which in purgation past be yoke not, when God once a bodie as suffered poctid in the tyme of this, whyle the like man a perpetrate. Wherein tyme (that is to saye ye aigne rules) were saved by water. Which signifieth a baptysme of newe lawe: not of purgation, as was of the flesch of the flesch, but in a good conscience comforted vnto God by the resurrection of Iesus Christ, which is on the right hande of God, and is gone in to heaue, angels, power and mighte subdorned into him.

The IIII Chapter.

If as much then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesch, seme youre selues likewise with the same mynde. For he which sufficeth in the flesch, as sufficeth his synne, if hee forth as much tyme as yet remaineth in of flesch, he shal do no tyme of the suffer of sin, but a suffer the will of God. For it is ynough, if ye haue spent: it tyme past of the life, after the will of the which, which we walked in wantonnesse, lustes, diuelkenes, glotonie, riotous daynyng, to obnoxious, innumerable. And in synne to the strange thinge, if ye turne not also with them into the same excess of synne, if speake enill of you. Which shal geue a compass vnto the which we can by of quyte: if deed. For as to this purpose also was Christ preached vnto the dead, if they shoulde be in yoke like other men in flesch, but shal be lyue vnto God in the spirit. The ende of all thinges is at hande.

Be ye cher for euer watch vnto prayer: but about all thinges haue sentent: lone amonge you one to another. For loue couereth the multitude of synnes. Be ye herberons one to another with out grudginge, if minister one to another, euery one with the gifte which he hath receyued, as good stewards of the manifest grace of God. If any man speaketh, let hi speake as if wordes of God. If any man haue an office, let him exerce it as one of the power of God ministered vnto hi, if God maye be proued in all thinges throughe Iesus Christ. To whiche be yoke and domynion for euer and euer Amen.

Derly beloved, maruall not at this a heere (which is come amonge you to trye you) as though some strange thinge happened vnto you: but reioyce, in as much as ye are partakers of Christen passio, which is wha his glory appeareth, ye maye be merry & glab. If ye be tryed for a name of Christ, blessed are ye if spere (which is a spirit of glory) reflect vpon you. On their parte spoken of, but on y parte be if. Wherof is that none of you is ce so melle yowre callinge and deccion sure: for yf ye do such thinges, ye shal not fail, and by this meane shal there be plentifully multiplied vnto you an enteringe in vnto the everlasting kyngdome of oure LORDS and Sauoure Iesus Christ.

Therefore now I doe medigit to put you all wayes in remembraunce of such thinges: though ye knowe them yowre selues, and be established vnto the present tyme. To witte the thinges I thinke me, na lye as I am in this tabernacle, to stee you vp by puttinge you in remembraunce. For I am sure that I must shortly pise of my tabernacle, euen as oure LORD Iesus Christ hath steemed vnto me. Yet reys I do my diligence, that allwaye after my departinge ye maye haue reue with the sepe these thinges in re-membraunce.

For we folowed not deceaueable fables, whan we declined vnto you the power and commynge of oure LORD Iesus Christ: but with oure eyes we sawe his maner, whan he receaued of God the father honoure and praise, by a voyce that came vnto him from the excellent glory, after this manere: This is my beate sonne, in whom I haue beloued. And this voyce had bene bellowed downe firs heauen, whan he receueth with him the holy mount.

We haue also a sure worde of prophecie, and ye do well that ye eake hebe thereto, as vnto a light: that shyneth in a darke place vntill the daye dawne, and the daye sheweth a light in yowre heeren. And thus shal ye knowe first, that no prophecie in the scripture is done of eny pynace interpretation.
For the prophecie was neuer broughte by the myll of man, but the holy men of God spake, as they were moued of y^e holy goost.

The ii. Chapter.

BE there were false prophetes also amonge the people: euen so there shal be false teachers amonge you li-berly, which cruelly shal bringe in damnable sores, euen denyng the LORD that hath bought them, and shal bringe vpon them sines a swift damnation: and many shal folowe their damnable wayes, by wh^o the waye of the truth shal be euell spoke of, and thowen can becomen shal they much fayre wordes make matchauntyse of you, w^ho the iudgment is not medigit in tyme of olde, and their damnation they seeke not.

For yf God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them downe w^hich they were of dauntles in to hell, and deliuered the ouer to be kepte vnto iudgment: Neither spared the olde world, but saved it by the preacher of righteousnes himselfe beinge right, and brought the flood vnto the world of the vngodly: And turned the cities of Sodom and Gomor into ashes, ouerthrew them, damned them, and made on them an ensample, vnto those that after shal be lyke vngodly: And deliuered iust Lot, w^hich was vexed with the vngodly conversation of y^e wicked. For in so much as he was righteous, and dwelt amonge them, so that he must needs se it and heare it, his righteous soule was grieved from daye to daye with their vnlawfull dedes. The LORD knoweth how to deliuer the godly out of temptation, and how to restore the vniust vnto the daye of iudgment: soe to be punished: and specially them that walke after the flesh in y^e lust of sensuallnes, and despyse the elders: beinge presumptuous, stubborne, and feare not to speake euell of the y^e are in auerouse: w^hich the angels yet: w^hich are greater both in power and might, beare not that blasphemous iudgment agaynst them of the LORD.

And these are as y^e brutes bestes, w^hich naturally are broughte forth to be eat and destroyed: speakyng mell of y^e they knowe not, and shal perishe in their owne destruction, and shewe of y^e rewardes of unrighteousnes.

They couete to please to lyue belicious-ly for a season: Spoken as they and foly-men: lyuyng in a plesure and in disceuable myces: fastyng in that which is yowres, hauyng eyes full of adouryng, and as not ceasse from synne, entyng a vastable soules hauyng an here: ceryfied w^h couerouise: they are curst children, and haue forsaken the righte waye, and are gone after y^e: fol-lowyng the waye of Balaam the sonne of Bosor, w^hich sold the rewarde of unrighteousnes: but was rebuked of his iniquyte.
There came and domme best spake with his voyce, and forbad the foolishnes of y^e prophete.

These are welles without water, & cloudes caried aboute of a tempest: w^hich y^e myll of darkness is refreth for ever. For they speake y^e pious wordes of vanity, vnto y^e error, and entyng thowen wandringes vnto y^e luste of the flesh, euen them that were cleane escaped, and now walke in error: and prom-ysing them liberty, w^here as they them sel-ues are seruantes off conuulsion. For off whom so ever a man is overcome, vnto the same he is in bondage. For yf they after they haue escaped from the falschynes of the would, chorow the knowledge of y^e LORD and Saviours Jesus Christ) are yettangled agayn therein and overcome. when is the lastt ende woise unto them then the begynnyng. For it had bene better for them, not to haue knowen the waye of righteousnes, then after they haue knowen it, to euene from the holy commaundment, that was geuen vnto them. It is happened vnto them according vnto their impietie: y^e dogg is turned to his vnto a gayme and y^e swine that was washed, vnto his wallowyng in the myre.

In the seconde Epistle that I now wyte vnto you (ye dearely beloved) wherein I stirre up and waken your pure mynde, that ye maye remember the woide, which were tolde before of the holy prophetes: and also the commaundment of vs, that be the Apostles of the LORD and Saviour.

This first vnderstande, that in the last dayes there shal come moders, which will walke after that awne luste, & saye. Where is the pience of his commyng? For since the fathers fell on slepe, every thinge conyng much as it was from the begynnyng of y^e creature. This they knowe not (and that wilfully) howe that the heuens were afire etyme also, and the earth out of the water, & was in the waters by the woide of God, yet was the woide at that tyme destroyed by the same with the flouds. But the heuens which are yet, and y^e earth, are kepte in store by his woide, to be refused vnto fyre agaynst the daye of iudgment and damnacion of vngodly men.

Dearely beloved, be not ignorant of this one thinge, howe that one daye is with the LORD as a thousande yere: and a thousande yere as one daye. The LORD is not slacke to fulfill his pience (as some haue coume slacknesse) but is patient to you that be, and wyl not that any man shal be losse, but that euery man shal be amende himselfe. Therfore, the daye of the LORD shal come euen as a thefe in the night: in the which daye the heuens shal perishe with a greate noyse, and the Elementes shal melt with heate, and the earth and y^e woide that are therein, shal burne.

If all these thinges shal perishe, what manner persons shoulde ye to be in holy conuersacion and godlynes, loyng for and hastyng vnto the commyng of the LORD. In the which the heuens shal perishe.

with fyre, and the elementes shal melt with heate. Therfore, be not slothfull as a newe woman and a newe earth, according to his pience, wherein dwelleth righteousnes.

When for dearely beloved, synging that ye loke for such thinges, be diligent, y^e ye maye be founde before him in peace without spotte and vndefyle: and counte the long sufferinge of oure LORD your saluacion, & as our dearely beloved brother Paul (according to the wysdome geaue vnto him) wryte vnto you: yee speakinge thereof almost in all Epistles, wherein are many thinges hard to be vnderstande, which they that are vnderstande and vnsable, peruse, as they the other scriptures also, to their auerhation.

Ye therfore beloved, synging ye knowe before hande, beware, lest ye also be plawed awaye thorow the erreure of y^e unchristen fall from y^e owne slacknesse. But waite in grace, and in the knowlege of oure LORD and Saviour Jesus Christ. To which prayse now and for ever, Amen.

The first Epistle of the Apostle and Euangelist S. Iohn.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. True wyrtshipp of the carnall woide of God. The bloud of Christ is purgatorie from synne. No man is without synne.

Chap. II. Christ is oure advocate. Of his love and howe it is tryed.

Chap. III. The synners love of God to him and howe we agayne oughte to love another.

Chap. IIII. Difference of spires, and howe spirit of God maye be knowen from the lawe of man. Of the love of God and of his neighbours.

Chap. V. Caloune God, in the Pope his name. Of the synners love of God and of his neighbours. Of the synners love of God and of his neighbours.

The first Chapter.

that which was from of begynnynge, which we haue herde, which we haue sene with e eyes, which we haue looked vpon, and of handes hane handled of the word of life and the life hath appeared, and we haue sene, and beare witness, and shewe vnto you of life that is euerlasting, which was with the father, and hath appeared vnto vs. That which we haue sene & herde, declare we vnto you, that ye also may haue fullshippe with vs, and that our fullshippe maye be with the father, and with his sonne Iesus Christ.

And this wyse we vnto you, that your joy maye be full.

And this is the thynges which we haue herde of him, & declare vnto you, that God is light, and in him is no darknes at all.
If we saye that we haue fullshippe with him, and yet walke in darknes, we lye, and do not the trouth. But if we walke in lighte, euen so he is in lighte, then haue we fellshippe together, and the blood of Iesus Christ haue forgiuen vs from all synne.

If we saye that we haue no synne, we deceiue our selues, and the trouth is not in vs. And if we knowelege our synnes, he is faithfull and iust to forgiue vs our synnes, to cleaue vs from all vniuersitie. If we saye, we haue not synned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in vs.

The II. Chapter.

In little children, these thinges wyte I vnto you, that ye shalde not syn-ne: and if any man synne, we haue an advocate with the father, euen Iesus Christ which is righteous and he is that opposeth grace for our synnes: not for our synnes onely, but also for the synners of all the world. And hereby are we sure that we knowe him, if we keepe his commandmentes tes, & that synners. I knowe him, and he peth not his commandmentes, is a liar, and the trouth is not in him. And who so keepeth his word, in him is the love of God perfect in deede. & hereby knowe we, that we are in loved him. & if sayeth he a byrd in him, on the to walke euen so he walke.

Dearthen, I wyte no new commandement vnto you, but that olde commandement, which ye haue herde from the begyn-nyng: The olde commandment is the love of, which ye haue herde from the begyn-nyng. And ye, a new commandment wyte I vnto you, a thinge that is true in him & also in ynn: for the darknes is past, and the true lighte now shyneth.

He that sayeth he is in lighte, and hateth his brother, is yet in darknes. He that loveth his brother, abydeth in the lighte, and there is none occasion of fell in him. And he that hateth his brother, is in darknes, and walketh in darknes, and can not tell whither he goeth, for his darknes hath blinded his eyes.

Beloe, I wyte vnto you, that yf synners are forgiuen you for his name sake. I wyte vnto you fathers, howe that ye haue knowne him which is from I begynnynge.
I wyte vnto you yongemen, howe that ye haue overcome the world. I wyte vnto you little children, howe that ye haue knowe the father. I haue wytten vnto you fathers, howe that ye haue knowe him, which is fro the begynnynge. I haue wytten vnto you yongemen, howe that ye are stronge, and the word of God abydeth in you, and ye haue overcome that world.

Se howe ye loue not the world, neither of thinges that are in the world. If any man loue the world, the love of the father is not in him: for all that are in the world (namely the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pryde of life) is not of the father, but of the world. And the world passeth awaye and the lust thereof. But he that fulfilleth the will of God, abydeth for ever.

Little children, it is the last houre, and (in ye haue herde that Antichrist shal come) euen now are there many become Antichrist tes already: wherby we knowe, that it is last houre. They went out fro vs, but they were not of vs: for if they had bene of vs, they would no doute haue continued with vs. But that they maye be knowne, howe that they are not all of vs.

But ye haue the anoyntinge of holie, ye knowe all thinges. I haue wrote vnto you, as though ye knewe me & tract but ye knowe it, & are sure, & no lye cometh of f' truth. Who is a lyar, but he y denyet y Iesus is Christ. The same is y Antichrist, y denyet the father & y some. Whosoever denyet the sonne, the same hath not the father. A lye whar ye haue heard now from y begynnyng. Ieche sime abyde in you. If y which be herde from the begynnyng shal remaine in you, then shal ye also abyde in y sonne and in the father. And this is the promise y haue promysed vs. and eternall life.

This haue I wrytten vnto you concerninge the chatelesse you. And the anoyntinge which ye haue receaued of him, dwelleth in you: & yende not y eny m' teach you, but as the somthinge teacheth you all thynges, euen so is it true, & is no lye. And as it hath taughte you, and so abide ye therein. And now babes, abyde in h' y whi he shal appeare, we maye be holde, & not be made ashamed of him at his commyng. If ye knowe y he is righteousnes, knowe also that he which doth righteousnes, is borne of him.

The III. Chapter.

Behold what lone the father hath shewed on vs, y we shalbe de called the childre of God. Therefore y woulde knowe that you not, because it knoweth not him. Dearely beloved, we are now y y childre of God, and yet hath it not appeared whar we shalbe. But we knowe y when he shal appeare, we shal be like him: for we shal se him as he is. And euery man y hath this hope in him, pougeth him selfe, euen as he is pure. Who so ever comyteth synne, comyteth vnto righteounesse also, and synne to unrighteounesse. And ye knowe that he appeared to take awaye oure synnes: and in him is no synne. Who so ever abydeth in him, synneth not: he soouer synneth, both not sene him neither knowe him.

Babes, let no man deceaue you. He that doeth righteounesse, is righteous, euen as he is righteous. He that comyteth synne, is of the deuell: for the deuell synneth since y begynnyng. For this purpose appeared the sonne of God, so longe as he would of the deuell. And he ever is borne of God synneth not: for his s'be remaineth in him, & he is not synne, because he is borne of God.
These are the childre of God knowne: & the childre of the deuell. Who so ever doeth not righteounesse, is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother.

This is the spynges wher ye haue countenayned the begynnyng. That ye shalbe happye, neither, not as Cain, which was of the wicked, and slewe his brother. And wherfore slewe he him? euen because his owne workes were euill, and his brother righteous. Maruayle not (my brethren) i-though the world haue you. We knowe y we are trallaced from deeth vnto life, because we loue the brethren. He that loveth not his brother, abydeth in death. Who soeuer hateth his brother, is a manslayer. And ye knowe that a manslayer hath not eternall life abyding in him.

Hereth haue we perceaued lone, that he gaue his life for vs, and therefore ought we also to geue oure lyues for the brethren. But he y hath this worldes good, & yett he hath none, and y turned vnto his brethren him, how dwelleth the loue of God in him?
My litle childre, let vs not loue with word, but rather with worke, but with y dede, and with the truth. Herby knowe we, that we are of the verite, and can quyte oure hate fore him. But yf oure herte condemne vs, God is greater the oure herte, and knoweth all thynges. Dearely beloved, yf oure herte condemne vs not, then haue we a fre boldnes to God wordes. And what soeuer we aske, we shal receaue it: because we kepe his co-mmandmentes, and do those thinges, wher as is pleasaunt in his sighte.

And this is his commaundment, that we believe on y name of his sonne Iesus Christ and loue one another, as he gaue commaundment. And he that keepeth his comaundmentes, dwelleth in him, and in him. And hereby knowe we that he ab-deth in us, euen by the space which he hath geuen vs.

The III. Chapter.

Early beloved, beleue not ye any spere, but prece the spere, whi-cher they be of God. For many fase prophetes are gone out in the world.
Herby shal ye knowe the spere of God.
Euery spere which confesseth, that Iesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God. And euery spere which confesseth not that Ie-sus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God. And this is that spere of Antechrist, off whom ye haue heard, how that he shal come, and euen now already y he is in the world. Litle childre, ye are off God, & haue overcome them: for greater is the that is in you, then he that is in the world.
They are off the world, therefore shal they off the world, and the world he keneth vnto them. We are of God, and he that knoweth God, he knoweth vnto us he that is not of God, heareth us not. Here by knowe we the spirit of truth, and y^e spirit of error.

2 Dearly beloved, let us love one another, for love cometh of God. And every one y^e loveth, is borne of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God: for God is love. By this appeared the love of God to us, because that God sent his only begotten sonne in to this worlde, that we might see him, and know him. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his sonne to make a propitius for our finnes.

3 Dearly beloved, if God so loved us, we oughte also to love one another. If a man hath sine God at any tyme. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfect in us. Hereby knowe we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his spirit. And we have sene, & testifie that the father sent the sonne to be the Redeemer of the worlde. Who knowe we are comforted y^e Jesus in the sonne of God in him dwelleth God, and he in us: and we have knowen and beloved the love that God be to us.

4 God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him. Herein is the love perfect with us, that we shoulde have a full boldnesse in the daye of judgement: for as he is, so are we in this worlde. Herein is not in love, but perfect love casteth out feare: for feare becometh paynesfullnes, he that feareth, is not perfect in love.

5 Let us love him, for he loved us first. If any man saye: I love God, & yet hateth his brother, he is a liar. For he that loveth not his brother whom he seeth, how can he love God, whom he seeth not? And this commandment have we of him, that he which loveth God, shoulde love his brother also.

The V. Chapter.

6 So is our beloveth that Jesus is Christ, is borne of God. And who knoweth loveth him that began, to love him also which was begotten of him. By this we knowe that we love Gods children, when we love God, and kepe his commandmentes. For this is the love of God, that we kepe his commandmentes, and his commandmentes are not grievous. For all that is borne of God, overcometh the worlde, and this is the victory that overcometh the worlde, and our faith. Who is it that overcometh the worlde, but he which believeth that Jesus is the sonne of God?

of S. John. Bo. xiv.

This is he that cometh with water and bloud, even Jesus Christ: not with water only, but with water and bloud. And this is the spirit that beareth witness: for the spirit is in the truth. (For there are three which beare record in heaven: the father, the sonne, and the holy ghost, & these three are one.) And there are three which beare record on earth: the spirit, water and bloud, and these three are one.

7 If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God, which he testifieth of his sonne. He that believeth on y^e sonne of God, hath the witness in him self. He that believeth not God, he hath made him a liar. And this is that record, when y^e God hath given us everlasting life. And this life is in his sonne. He that hath the sonne of God, hath life: he that hath not the sonne of God, hath not life.

8 These things have I written unto you, which beleeve on the name of the sonne of God, that ye may knowe, how that ye have eternall life, and that ye may beleeve on y^e name of the sonne of God. And this is the fre beloveth which we have comarde him, that yf we are any thinge according to his will, he heareth us. And yf we knowe that he heareth us, what so ever we aske, then are we sure that we have y^e petitions, which we have desired of him.

9 If any man see his brother synne a synne not unto death, let him aske, and he shall give him life, for this y^e synne not unto death. There is a synne unto death, for the which I saye I nor that a man shoulde praye. All synne which is not a synne, and there is synne not unto death.

10 Well now, that whosoever is borne of God, synneth not: because he that is begotten of God, keepeth himselfe, & y^e wicked toucheth him not. We knowe who come out of God, & the worlde is set altogether on wickednes. But we knowe, that the sonne of God is come, and hath given us a witness, so knowe him which is true: and we are in him y^e is true, in his sonne Jesus Christ.

This is the true God, and ever lasting life. Whoe kepe you from synning?

The summe of this epistle.

As we wrote unto a certaine lady, exhorting her bee diligent walke in the truth, wherewith she was lone, and wrote them to beware of fals doctrine an heretike that Iesus Christ came in the flesh, writing them to continue in the doctrine of Christ, and to have nothing to do with them that bringe not this teaching.

Grace, mercy, and peace be with you fro ther in the truth and in loue.

I am greatly exioysed, that I haue found de amongesthy childe men, them that walke in y^e truth, as we haue receaued a commaun dement of the father. And now lady I be maundement vnto the, but the same which we haue had from the begynnyng: that we loue one another. And this is the loue, that we walke after his commaundementes.

23

This is the commaundement (as ye haue herde fro the begynnyng) that we shulde walke therein. For many bifcausers are come in to the world, which confesse not J^e Iesus Christ is come in the flesh: this is a discauer and an Antichrist. Take heede to your selues, that ye lasse not that which we haue receaued, but that we maye receaue a full reward. Whoso euer transgresseth, and obeyeth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God: he that obeyeth in J^e doctrine of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne.

As every man come vnto you, and bringe

The summe of this epistle.

Selfe glorie of Caius, that he willeth in the truth and writeth him to be ioyning vnto the com munion in their perfectioun, shewing the re fyned doctrine of Antiochen, and the good report of Demetrius.

In the Elder. To the beloued Caius, whom I loue in the truth. My beloued, I wth shew all thynges, that thy prosperite and sau^e wth l^eu as thy soule prospereth. I reioysed greatly, when the bishopp came, and testifed of the truth that is in J^e. Now thou walkest in the truth. I haue no gra uer ioye, the to heare that my chylde walke in the truth.

My beloued, thou dost faithfully what so euer thou dost to the bishopp and to straungers, which haue bene witness of thy loue before the congregacion: and thou hast done well that thou bydest bringe them forward on their iourney, worthy before God. For because of his name lest they wente forth, and took nothing of the heathen. We therfore oughte to receaue such, that we mighte be helpe to vnto the truth.

I wrote to the congregacion, but Diot phes, which loveth to haue the preeminence amongest them, receaued us not. Wherfore yf I come, I wil declare his dedes which he doeth, leafige vnto you with malicious wit nesse: neither is he thowith comen. Nor o ly he himselfe receaue not the bishopp, but also he forbyddeth them that wthle, and christeneth them out of the congregacion.

My beloued, I loue not J^e which is euill but that which is good. He that doeth wil la of God: but he that doeth euill, syeth no God. Demetrius hath good report of al men, and of the truth: yett and we are si

The Epistle

The II. Chapter.

Wherfore we oughte to geue the more hede vnto the thinges which we haue herd, lest we perishe. For yf the wordes which we as spake by angelo, was fleshyll, and euery trasgression and disobedience to stande a gylt re-compence of freward, how shal we scape, yf we despyre so greates a saluacion: which after that it beganne to be preached by the LORDE him selfe, was confirmed vpon vs, by hem that her beie, God bearynge witness thereto, with tokens, mondes and dyuise powers, and gyses of the holy goost & cooings to his owne wyll.

For vnto the angelo hath he not subdued the wynde to come, wherof we speake. But one in a certayne place witnesseth & sayeth: What is man, that thou art mynde full of him? What is the soune of man, that thou vyldest him? What is thou a hardy for a litle season mo be him lower the angels, thou crownest him with honoure and glory, and hast set him aboue the wordes of chy handes. Thou hast put all thinges in subiection vnder his feete. In that he subdued all thinges vnto him, he left nothinge that is not put vnder him. I trowe thes a now I can not all thinges yet subdued vnto him. Dem him, which for a litle season was made lesse then the angelo, we se that it is Ihus: which is, crowned with honoure and glory for the sufferynge of deach, that he by the grace of God, shulde taste of deach for all men. For it became him, for whom are all thinges, and by whiche are all thinges (after that he had brought in many chyldren vnto glory) that he shulde make the LORDE of thei saluacion perfect choiue sufferynge, for so much as they all come to some, both he that sanctifyeth, & they which are sanctified.

For the which cause sake, he is not ashamed to call them brethren, sayynge: I will declare thy name vnto my brethren, and in the myddes of the congregacion will I praye the. And agayne: I wyl put my crose in him. And agayne, beholde, here am I and my chyldren, which God hath given me.

For as much then as the chyldren haue fleshy and bloude, he also him selfe likewise toke part with them, that he choiue deach, mighte take awaye the power of him, which by hardshippes ouer deach, that is to saye, yf deach: that he mighte deliuer the which dyed, from the power of deach, wherall their liues tyme in dai.

ham eatech be on him. Wherfore in all this geat it became him to be made like vnto his brethren, that he mighte be mercifull and a faithfull hye priest in thinges concerninge God, to make agrement: for the synnes of y people. For in that he himselfe offered and was reaped, he is able to sacrifice them that are redeemed.

The III. Chapter.

Wherfore holy brethren, yet that we partakers of the heavenly calling, comforte the Embassatour and hye priest of profession, Christ Ihus, which is faithfull to him that ordeyned him, thus as was, Moses in all his house. For this man is worthy of greater honour then Moses, in as much as he which prepareth the house, hath greater honour in it then the house it selfe. For euery house is prepared of some man: but he that ordeyned all thinges, is God. And Moses surely was a faithfull in all his house as a minister, to beate witness of those thinges which were to be spoken afterwarde: But Christ as a sonne hath made ouer his house, whose house are we, yet as he be the fast the confidence and redempcion of that hope vnto the ende.

Wherfore, as y holy goost sayeth: To daye yf ye shal heare his voyce, harden not youre hartes, as in the prouerys in the daye of temptation in the wilderness, when youre fathers tempted me, proued me, as some my mouthes foure yeares longe. Wherfore I was grieved that generation, and sayde: They are euer in their hartes. But they knewe not my voyce, so that I sware in my wrath, that they shulde not enter in my rest.

Take hede brethren, that there be not any of you an euell heart of unbelieve, to departe from the hymnes of the hart: that ye shal selue daylie, whyle it is called so daye, lest any of you were harde harted choiue yf of certaynes of synne. For we are become partakers of Christ, yf we kepe fast vnto yf into the begynnyng of the substaunce, so longe as it is sayde: To daye, yf ye shal heare his voyce, harden not youre hartes, as in the prouerys. For some whan they herbe, pioushe, somber not all they yf came out of it by the by Moses. But which whom we so he dispensed foure yeares longer: Was he not displeased with them yf synned, whose carcases were ouerthromene in yf wilderness? To whom I sware he, yf they shulde not enter in to his rest, but vnto the yf beloued not: And we se yf they coulde not enter in because of unbelieve.

The Epistle

The III. Chapter.

Let vs feare the foue, lest any of on forsaunge the promise of eternall in to his rest, shoulde seme to come again: for it is declared unto vs as well as unto the. But the worde of preachinge helped not the, wher they that herde it, beleued it not. (For we which haue beleued, euen in this his rest) accordinge as he sayde: Euen on I haue stood in to my rest. They shal not come on to my rest. And he that shal be: verely saye after that the moone is the begyn-nyng of a febe worlde were made. For he spake in a certayne place of the feble daye, on this wyse: And God rested on the siuenth daye from all his worles. And in this place agayne: They shal not come in to my rest.

Whyge it foloweth the, that some must enter there in to it and they, to whom it was first preached, entered no other in for unbelieuers sake, therfore appoynteth he: a daye agayne after so longe tyme, and sayeth: To-daye (as it is rehearsed by Dauid) To daye ys he shal heare his voyce, then harden not your heares. For ys Iosua had geuen them rest, he wolde be not afterwarde haue spoken, of another daye. This fore remyneth there yet a rest vnto the pe ople of God. Yet he that is entered in to his rest, ceaseth from his worles, as God doth from his Let vs make hast therfore to enter in to that rest lest any man fall after the same example of unbeliue. For y worke of God is quyte, and myghte in operacion, and harper the any two edged sword, and euen thow, euen to the denyng of the soule the spere, and of y wymer and the mary, and is a subget of the thoughtes and intellect of the heart, neyther is there any creature in visible y sighe of him. But all thinges are naked and bare vnto y eye as the of whome we speake.

The V. Chapter.

Lymge then that we haue a grete hys pte, euen Iust in y soune of God, which is entered in to heauen, let vs holde our profession. For we haue not an hys pte which can haue compassion on of infirmities, but was in all poyntes dep-re as we are, but without synne. Let vs therfore go boldly vnto the seate of grace that we may receaue mercy and fynde grace to helpe in the tyme of neede.

For euer hys prest whiche cald a settemen, is aduyned for men in thinges per-taininge to God, to offer gyses and sacrifices for synne: which can haue compassion on the waye, for so much as he himselfe also is compassed aboute with infirmities. Therfore in he haunde to offer for synne, as well for him selfe as for y people. And now as touching y honoure vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

Euen so Christ glorified not himselfe to be made hys prest, but he y saide vnto him: Thou art my soane, this daye haue I begotten the. And he sayeth also in another place: Thou art a prest for euer after y order of Melchisedech. And in y daye of his fleshe, he offered vp prayes and supplications, as first ge arange receaue unto him y was able to saue him fro deathe: and was herde also, because he had God in his aduocate. And though he was Gods sonne, yet learned he obedience, by those thinges which he suffered. And he beynge made perficte, became the cause of eternal saluacion, vnto all the y obeye him, and is called of God an hys prest after the order of Melchisedech. Wherof we haue many charges to saye, to which are hard to be recorded, because ye are dull of hearinge. For where as concerninge the tyme ye oughte to be teachers, ye haue ye made agayne, y we teach you the first principles of the reu-elation of God, and are become such as haue nee-de of schollers, and not stronge of meate. For eu-ery one that is so yd with myte, is on ex-ce in the worde of righteousness, for he is but a babe. But stronge meate belongeth vnto them y are perfect, which thei can custome haue their wyces exercysed to iudge iach good and euill.

The VI. Chapter.

Herfore let vs leaue the doctrine pertaininge to the begynnyng of a Christen life, and let vs go vnto perfection: and now nomore laye y foundacion of repentance from dead worles, and of fauour towarde God, of baptisme, of socer-acy, of layes geon of hades, of resurreccion of the deeth, of eternal indymnity. And so wil we be: ys God permitte. For it is not possible, that they which were once lighted, and hath tasted of the heavenly gyses, and are become partakers of the holy goost, t' haue cast off of y good worde of God, and of the power of the wordes come, ys they fall awaye: as concerninge them felices gratifies the soune of God afresh, and maketh off him: that they shoulde be re-agayne vnto y. Iudas.

the same diligence, to the stablyshinge of hope enue into the ende, that ye saynte not, but soluer them which the othe saith and pacie ce inheret the promyse. For when God made promes to Abraham, because he had no greater to succore by, he swore by himselfe, and sayde: Surely I will blasse the ome and multiplye y^e in dede. And so he abode pacie ly, and openyng the promes,

As for men, they sweare by him that is greater then they selues: and the oath is the ende of all stryfe to confirme the thinge amonge them. But God, wyllyng very abundantly to shewe vnto the byesse of promes the stablesse of his counsell, addeth an oath y^e by two immutable thinges (in the which it is impossible y^e God shalde lyewe) thus haue a stronge conclusion: euen we, which are fied to holde fast the hope: for it is set before vs, which (hope) we haue as a sure and stedfast anker of oure soule. Which (hope) is an anchor in, in to those thinges whiche are within y^e wayle, whiche the soueraine is for us catred in, in Iesus, which is made on hye priest for euer after y^e order of Melchisedech.

The VII. Chapter.

His Melchisedech. Byng of Salem (which beynge priest of the most hye God, met Abraham as he returned o gayne from the slaughter of the bynges, & blessed him, vnto whom Abraham also gaue tithes of all the goodes: first is by interpreta-cion byng of sighte: then after that is he byng of Salem old (that is to saye, byng of peace) without father, without mother, without byrme, and hath neither begynnyng of dayes, nor ende of tyme: he is likened vnto the substance of God, and comyng as a priest for euer.

But consider howe great a man this was, to whom the Patriacke Abraham gaue tithes of the spoyle. And vnto the dysonen all, when they receaue the priesthode, mynnymyng accordyng to the desires of the people, that they beareth, though they also came out of the loynes of Abraham,

But he whose byrme was not comend and geyren, receaued tithes of Abraham, and blesse him that had the promes. Now is it so without all sayfynge, that the lesse priestly blessinge of y^e better. And here cometh that bye, receaued tithes. But there be tithes with tithes, of whom it is written that the lynerch. And so saye the church, And himselfe also which receaueth tithes, payeth tithes in Abraham: for he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham, when Melchisedech met him.

If now the fore perfection came by the priesthode of Ihesus: for vnder the same (priesthode) the people receaued the lawe: what neede is then furthermone, that another priest shalde vnto the order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Aaaron?

For y^e the priesthode be reassured, that if necessite must the lawe be trasladed also.
For y^e of whom these thinges are spoken of another trybe, of the which neuer magnified at the altare.

For it is euiden, that oure LORD Ihesus of the trybe of Iuda, to the which tithes Ihesus spake nothinge of any priesthode.
And it is yet a more euiden thinge, y^e after the symilitude of Melchisedech: he is another priest, which is not made after y^e lawe of the carnall commandmentes, but after the power of the endless lyfe. For he testifyeth: That he is a priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech: when the commandement that wente before, is disannul-led: for his weaknesse, and vnprofitableness.
For the lawe made nothinge perfect, les-was an ungodly occasion of a better hope, by which hope we haue nye vnto God. And for this cause is it a better hope, y^e it was not promysed vnto our on ooth. Those priests were made without an ooth, but the priest with an ooth, by him that sayde vnto him: The LORD Ihesus, and wyl not re-pente: That he is a priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. Thus is Iesus become a stablyshinge of so much a better Testament.

And amonge them many were made priests, because they were not sufficed to byrme by the reason of deaeth. But this man, because he is without deaeth, hath an everlastinge priesthode. Wherefore he is able also to saue them, that come vnto God by him in faith: that he make intercession for vs.

For it became vs to haue sode an hye priest as is holy, innocent, vnspotted, free from synne, and more byrme then the which meeth not daylie: as yonder hye priestes do offer vp sacrifice first for his owne synnes, and then for the peoples synnes. For that byd be once for all, when he is offered up hum selfe. For the same maketh men priestes which haue infirmities: but the worde of the ooth, that came from the lorde, maketh the some priest, which is perfecte for euermore.

The VII. Chapter.

In the thinges which we haue spoken, this is the pith. We haue such an hye priest, that is set on yf right hande of the seate of maiestie in heauen: and is amynistrer of holy thinges, and of the etne Tabernacle, which God pitched, & not man. For every hye priest is bounden to offer giftes and sacrifices: wherefore it is of necessity, yf this man haue somwhat also to offer. For he were not a priest, yf he were vpon earth, where are priestes yf accordyng to the lawe offer giftes: (which priests serue vnto the example and shadow of heauy thinges, men also the authors of Gods lawe a gentyl vnto Moses, whas he was aboute to synnise the Tabernacle. The hebreis saye) he that thou make all thinges acobiage to the person shewed the in the mount. But now hath he openyd a more excellent office, in so much as he is the mediator of a better Testament, which was made for better promysse. For yf that first Testament had bene faultles, then shoulde no place haue bene sought for the seconde. For in redynginge childe he saith: Beholde, the dayes will come (saith the LORDE) that I will synnise vnto the house of Israel, and open the house off Iuda, a new Testament: not a the Testament which I made with their fathers, in that daye when I toke them by the handes, to lberthem out of the lande of Egypt: for they conspured not in my Testament, and I regarded them not, saith the LORDE.

For this is the Testament, that I will make w the house of Israel after those dayes, saith the LORDE. I will geue my lawes in their mynde, and in their herten will I wyte them: And I will be their God, and they shal be my people: and they shal not teach euery man his neighbours, and euery man his brother, sayinge none of the LORDE, for they shal not me from the least to the most of them: for I will be in mercifull over their vngiftednesse: And on their synnes I will iniquaytie myl. And they shal eny more. In that he saith: A new, he noteth out yf olde. Now yf which is come out and washt olde, is ready to vanishe awaye.

The IX. Chapter.

The first Tabernacle vnto which had ordinaunces, and saynges off God and ouer the holynes. For there was made a fouertabernacle, wherein was yf candlestick, and the table, and the shence bier: and this is called yf holy. But beynde the seconde wayle was the Tabernacle which is called holier of all, which had the golden ceasor, and the Arke of the Testament onslayed rounde aboute with golde, wheriu was the golden port with Manna, and Aaron rodd: that stonished, and the tables of the Testament: Above wheriu were the Cherubins off glory ouershadomyage the Mercyseate: Of which thinges it is not now to speake periculary.

Where these thinges were this odyer, the priestes wente alwaye in to the first Tabernacle, and executed yf seruyce of God. But in to the seconde wente the hye priest alone once in the yeare, not withoute blood, which he offered for himselfe and for the ignorauce of the people. Wherein the holy goost this signifieth, that the waye of holynes was not yet opened, whyle as yet the first Tabernacle was stonishing. Which was a similitude for the tyme then present, in the which were offered giftes and sacrifices, and coude not make perfecte (a partaynyng to the conscience) him, that byd the Gode seruyce onely with meates and drynkes, and byuers washinges, and iustifications of the flesh, which were odyered vnto the tyme of reformation.

But Christ beyng a hye priest of good thinges to come, came by a greater and a more perfecte Tabernacle, not made with handes, that is to saye, not of this maner wyldoyng: acether by the bloude of goates or calues: but by his owne bloude shedd he once for all in to the holy place, and hath founde eternall redemption. For yf the bloude off open and off goates, and this ashen off the come when it is spemled, halloweth the vncleane as conuynge the purificacion of the flesh, how much more shal the bloude of Christ (which thowre the eternall spere offed him selfe withoute spot vnto God) poure oute conscience from deeth worldis, for to serue it: sayng God: And for this cause it is, I poure oute of the new Testament, whiche the word teacheth which shal be done, redemption of those thinges: thus (that were vnder the first Testament) they which were called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance. For wheresoever is a Testament, there must also be the death of him that ma-keth the testament.

Ca_{1.0}C

For a Testament taketh away the law, men are dead: for it is of no sale, as hanging as the tree made it is alone. For the which causeth as first Testament as a man not could with our blood. For men all the circumstances (as ording to the law) were of bloods unto all the people, be to of blood of calves and of goats, with maner and purple wool and hyacinth, and of the blood of the Testaments, which God hath appointed unto you. And the Testament and all the vessels of the Law (as the Law) were with blood of many things. And all things are purged with blood after the law: and without shedding of blood is no remission. It is necessary then, that the Similitude of heavenly things be purified with such sort of heavenly things: as themselves are purified with better sacrifices, then are those.

For Christ is not entered into the holy places: for he made our bodies (which are but similitudes of other things); but in to the very beauen, for to appeare now before the face of God for us: For to offer himselfe often as the yere purf cometh into the holy place: euen yearly with fuch aunge blood: for the same be often haue suffered since the world began. But now in the ende of the world: he hath appeared once, to purfyme to flayght, by the offeringe of himselfe. And so it is appointed vnto mee, that they shal once dye, and then cometh the iudgement: where Christ was once offered, to take awaye the finnes of many. And vnto them that loke for him, shal he appeare agayne with ourfynne into saluacion.

The X. Chapter.

On the same which hath but the shadowe off good thinges to come, and nea the thinges in their own fashion, can neuer by the sacrifices which they offer year by year continually, make the conuerter there vnto perfect: As he shal be they haue ceas'd to haue bene offered, because that the offerings are continued. But your haue not maner conscience of synnes, as in those sacrifices there is made a remembrance of synnes every year. For Appollas saith the blood of armen is of greater seruitude among synnes.

Wherefore when he cometh in to the world, he saith: "Sacrifice z offeringe thou woldest not haue, but a body hast thou deuied me. Burnsofferinges and synnofferinges hast thou not alowed. Then saide I to Ihu, I come. I haue begun myne of the booke it is my wey of me, that I should be my selfe O God. Above this he had sayde: Sacrifice and offeringe, and burnsofferinge: synnofferinge thou woldest not haue, neither hast alowed (which yet are offered as if of lawe). The sayde he: I, I come to do will of my O God: there each he among the first, to stablysh the lawe: In the which will we are sanctified by the offeringe of the body of Iesu Christ once for all.

And every puffed is ready to lay my life for me, and so many offereth one manner of offerings, which can increase the strange sinne.
For this man when he had offered for sin-nes, and the sacrifice which is of value for sin-ne, for him to come on their right hand of God, and so come hence forth easily, "Elyhu ha he made his face field, for with one offering he hath he made perfect for sinnes, the sacrifice are sanctified, and the holy gods also have recorded of this, when he is here before." This is the Testament, that I make unto them after those dayes, sayeth THE LORD: "I will give my lawes in their bores, and I will write upon my heart, I will write them, and their sinnes and iniquities will I remember none." And where remission of these things is, there is no more offering for sin-ne.

Saying more brethre, that we haue a fre fire inurance in to that holy place, by the bloode of Iesu (which he hath prepared for us for a new and liuing waye, throu-

The XI. Chapter.

Which is a sure confidence of thinges which are hoped for, and a certay-n of thinges which are not sene. By y^e which were well reported of. Therefore saith we vnderstande, that the worldes and all the thinges which are sene, were made of naught by the worde of God.

By faith he offered Abell vnto God a more precious sacrifice by the which he opeayned mynesse, that he was righteous: God testifyng of his gifte, by the which also he byng deede, yet spake.

By faith was Iacob called awaye, that he shoulde forsake beaie: and was not found-de, because God had taken him an aye. For eue he was taken awaye, he had receiued that he pleased God. But without faith it is impossible to please God. For he that commeth vnto God, must beleue that God is, & y^e he is a rewarder of them that sike him.

By faith he honoured God, after y^e he was warned of changes which were not sene, & prepared the Ark: & sauinge of his houe sholde: euen so the which Ark he condemned the world, and became heire of the righteousnes, which cometh by faith.
By faith Abraham which he was called, becroyed, to go out in to the place, which he shoulde afterwarde receaue to inheritaunce: and he went out, not knowinge whither he shoulde go.

By faith he was a stranger in the lode of promise as in a strange countre, & dwelle in tabernacles: and so dyd Isaac Jacob, heire which him of the same promise: for he looked for a cite which hath a foundacion, whose builder and maker is God.

By faith Sara also receaued strength to be with child, and was deliuered of a child when she was past age, because she was aged him to be faithfull which hee promysed.
And therefore there of one (ye then off one which was as good as deede concei-nyng the body) so many in multitude: as the starrs off the sle, and as the sande off the se. Which is an incredible.

All these dyed accordyng to faith, and re-ceasde not the promise, but sawe the aspe-re off, and beleued them, and saluted them: and confessed, that they were strangers & pilgrims vpon earth. For they that saye such thinges, be sure, that they see a naturall countre. And doubtles yf they had bene in the full off that countre from whence they came out, they had lefte it: but haue rememb-red agayne. But now they desyre a better, that is to saye, a heauely. Wherefore God is not ashamed of the, and to be called theyr God: for he hath prepared a cite for them.

By faith Abraham offered up Isaac, which he was tempted, and gaue ouer his only begotten sonne, in whom he had receaued the promise, of whom it was sayde: In Isaac shal thy seed be called: For he considered, y^e God was able to raise up agayne from the deed. Therefore receaued he him for an en-sample.

By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concernyng thinges to come.

By faith Jacob, when he was a byrnyng, blessed both the sinners off Joseph, & benedicted himselfe amonge the crowde of his people.

By faith Joseph when he dyed, recommended y^e departinge of the child of Israel, &

The Epistle The Epistle of S. James.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. Who exhorteth us chiefly to trouble, to be fervent in prayer with steadfast believe, to let small good things grow from above, to forsake all vice, and especially to excuse the weak of God, but not only heavenly it is and speedy, as given, but to do the office in due. True religion is without spot or stain.

Chap. II. Who exhorteth us to have no respect of persons, but to regard the poor as well as the rich, to be lowly and merciful, and not to boast of faith where no deed is: for it is but a dead faith, where good works follow not.

Chap. III. Who good and evil cometh the tongue. The way of life as he teacheth. The difference between the wisdom of the gospel and the wisdom of the world.

Chap. IV. Who and fighting cometh of unbelief. The friendship of the world is enemy to love God. Ambition to live in sin and the waste of this life.

Chap. V. Who exhorteth the wicked rich men, to leave their riches, to be as of themselves, one to another, and one to labourers, to be as of themselves.

James the servant of God and of the LORD Jesus Christ, sendeth greeting to the elect, to whom which are scattered here & there. My brethren, count it exhorting to you who ye fall in to divers temptations, for as much as ye know, how & the suffering of your faith bringeth patience: and let patience have her perfect work, & ye may be perfect and whole, lacking nothing.

My brethren, if any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, which giveth to all men liberally, and without rebuke: and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, and without doubting, is like the waves of the sea, tossed of the wind, and cannot stand. Where let & man think that he shall receive any thing of the LORD. A wandering mind is unstable in all his ways.

Let the brother of low degree rejoice, in that he is exalted: and the rich, in that he is made low. For as the stub of the grass shall be wither away. The Sonner ye shall be as the grass withereth, & his flower shall wither away, and the beauty of the fashion as it of S. James.

perisheth: even so shall the rich man perish with his abundance.

Happy is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the LORD hath promised to them that love him.

Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God. For God tempteth not the good, neither receiveth he any man. Every man is tempted, when he is enticed, tempted of his own concupiscence. The while lust hath conceived, she bringeth forth sin, & sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death.

Let not my dear brethren, let every good gift, & every perfect gift, so from above, and cometh down from the Father of light, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. Of his own will begat he us with the word of life, that we should have the first fruits of his creatures.

Wherefore dear brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath. For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.

Wherefore lay apart all filthiness, all superfluities of malice, cunning, & recede with meekness & lowly & is grafted in you, which is able to save your souls. And if that ye be doers of the word, & not hearers only, deceiveth your own selves. For if any be of the world, and do it not, he is like unto a man that beholder his bodily face in a glass. For as soon as he hath looked on himself, he goeth his way, and forgetteth immediately what his fashion was. But who so looketh in the perfect law of liberty, and continually therein, if he be not a forgetful hearer, but do as of the word, the same shall be happy in his doings.

If any man among you seeme devout, & refraineth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this mannes devotion is in vaine. Pure devotion and undefiled before God the Father, is this: to visit the fatherless and widow, men in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted of the world.

The II. Chapter.

My brethren, have not the faith of our LORD Jesus Christ of the LORD of glory in respect of persons. If there come in to you a brother, a man is a goldsmith, and in goodly apparel, & there cometh a poor man in vile raiment, & ye have respect to him, & not as the grace clothing, & say unto him: Sit thou here in a good place, & say unto the poor, Stand thou here outside under my footstool: are ye not partial 137 Harkem ye beate beloved brethe. • Hath not God chosen the poore of this worlde, which are ryche in faith, and heyaue of the kingdom which he petysshed to the chacele wghim? But ye haue despised the poore. And not the ryche which oppresse you: they which beate you before wghen? Do not they speake well of that good name a few which ye be named.

138 As ye fulfill the royal lawe according to the scripture which sayth: Thou shalt loue thyneighbour as thyselfe, ye do well. But ye regard one person more then another, ye do it synne, and are rebuked of the lawe as transgressors. • Whosoever shal kepe the whole lawe, and yet faile in one point, he is gylty in all. For he that sayde: Thou shalt not commit adultery, sayed also: thou shalt not kill. Though thou do none adulterie, yet yf thou kill, thou art a transgressor of the lawe. So speake ye, and so do as they that shalbe iudged by the lawe of libertie. • For ether shalbe iudgement made to him that sheweth so mercy, or mercy reioiceth against wghement.

139 Whae a wayleth it my brethe, though a man saye he hath faith, when he hath no dedes? 140 Ne a man mighte saye: Thou hast faith, and I haue dedes: Shewe me thy faith by thy dedes: and I will shewe the my faith by my dedes. • Wdest thou? heere is the God: • Thou doest well. • The deuils also beleeue and tremble.

141 Wille thou vnderstode o thou wayne man that faith which our dedes is dead? Was aoe Abraham ouer further iustified ehooum more? heba he offered Isaac his sonne upon the onll: Thou stit how? faith wough the with him dedes, and through? dedes was as the faith made perfect: the scripture was fulfilled in that faith. • Abraham beleeued God and it was reputed vnto him for righte wghness: and he was called a frunde of God. • To it then how that of dedes a man is iustified, and nee a faith only? • Let euill alid was nec And the hartoe iustified ehooum wghen, when she receaued the messengers, and sent

The III. Chapter.

Brethe, be not every man a master, but he that wyllynge hoer that we shall receaue the more domination: for in many thynges we synne all. • If a man synne aoe is worde, the same is a perfecte man, able to tame all the body. • Beholde, we put brutes vnto the hofse moor: the? they shalbe obeye vs, and we come aboute all the body. • Beholde also yf synners, which though they be so grete, and are dyquens of scarce wghen, yet are they turned about vnto a very synale helme, whiche forer the violence of the gouernour wghen. • Euen so the eage is a lytell member, and besteth greatchynges.

Beholde how grete a thyng a lytell fyre kndeth, and the tonge is fire, and a worde of wyrdednes. • So is the tonge set amonge our members, that is to saye the whole body, and it tareth a fyre all that heere haue of nature, and is it selfe set a fyre euen of bill.

142 All the naturas of bestes, and of byrdes, and of serpentes, and thynges of the se, are meked and tamed of the nature of ma. • But chardege canne man tame. • It is an vntuall enell full of deadly poison. • Therwith blisre God the father, and therwith curse we men which. • are made a fete the similitude of God. • Out of one mouth proceedeth blessing and cursyng. • Wycher the? the? thynges oughe not so to be. • Doeth a fountayne sende forth at our place sweete water, and bytter also? • Can the fygge tree, my Brethen, beare olue beries: ether a wyne beate fygge? • So canne no fountayne geue bothe salt water and frethe also. • If any man be wyse and embued with learninge amonge you, let him shewe the wghes of his good conuersacion in meeknes that is coupled with wisdom.

143 Whe yf ye haue bitter enuygense and stryfe in yd herce, reioyce not: neether is lyra agaynst the trouth. • This wisdom becometh aoe from above: but is eerty, and natuall, and bytyllche. • For where enuygense and stryfe is, there is vnstableness, and all maner of enell wghen. • But the wisdom that is fr above, is frst pure, che peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good frutes, without iudgyng, and without parcialia: yet, and the frutes of righte wghness is for to be peace, of the chee mynne peace.

From whence cometh warre and fightinge amonge you? come they no here hence: men of y^e voluptuousnesse that are in youre members: lust and hare not. Ye enue and haue indignacion, and can not obeyne. Ye fight & warre, and haue not, because ye are not. Ye are & reuenge not because ye are amysse: and so chisme it up yo^r voluptuousnesse. Ye aboue care, & we me that die in matrimonie: knowe ye not. haue that the friendship of y^e woulde is ermine to godward. Whosome will be a frende of the woulde, is made y^e enemye of god. Alther do ye thinke: y^e the scripture sayth in wayne.

The spirit y^e dwelleth in you, lusteth euen contrary to enue: but geuech more grace.

Submie youre selues to God, and resist the deuill, & he wil styke fro you. Drame nye to God & he wil draue nye to you. Clefse yo^r bodies ye synners, and purge youre hearts ye waieringe myneds. Suffre afflictionnes for ioye and wepe. Let youre laughter be turned to mourning, and youre ioye to he-uynes. Cast downe youre kynges before the LORDE, and he shal lifte you up. Backbete not one another, bretheren. Is that hat byeeth his brother, and he y^e indgeth his brother, backbetech the same, and indgeth the same. Doe and yf thou indgeth the same, thou art not an obftrake of the same: but a iudge.
There is one lawe geue, to which is able to sa-pe and to dystroye. What art thou that indgett another man?

Go to now ye that saye: to daye & to mo-rowe I wil go into such a cite and continue there a yere, and bye and sell, and wyne: & ye coⁿ not tell what shal happen to moine.
For what thinge is a yowle? It is euen a vapour that a pereth for a lytell tyme, and the vanysheth awaye. For that ye ang here say: yf the LORDE wil, and yf we line, let vs do this or that. But nowe ye reioyce in yowre bestunges. All soche reioysynge is euill.
Therefore to him that knoweth how to do good, and doeth it not, so him it is synne.

The V. Chapter.

Go to now ye rich men, Wepe, and howle an yo wretchednes that shal come upon you. Youre riches is courupte, yowre garnices are moth eaten. You-re golde & y^e siluer are canered, & the rust of them shalbe a worme unto you, & shal eate yowre fleische, as it were fyre. Ye haue heaped treasures together in the last dayes. Beholde, the hye of the labourers which haue reped downe youre selues (which byer in of you kepe backe by shande) sayeth: and the crye of the which haue reped, are entered in to the ears of the LORDE Sabaoth. Ye haue lined in pleasure on the earth and in man-tanee. Ye haue noryshed youre bodies, as in dayes of slaughter. Ye haue eodem puch and haue talied the rust, and he hath norefisted you.

Ye patient therfore bretheren, warte the comyng of the LORDE. Beholde, the iudge de manneth for the precious frute of y^e earth, and hath longe patience ther upon, untill he reueale the ery and the latter raine. Be ye also patient therfore, and kepe youre herce, for the comynge of the LOR-DE. Doe not one agaynst another bretheren, lest ye be damned. Beholde, the iudge stondech before the dore. Take my bretheren: he prophesie for an ensample of sufferynge abemerie, and of longe pacier, which spake in the name of the LORDE.
Beholde now cometh them happy which cu-bure. Ye haue heard: of y^e pacier of Job, and haue knowen what ende the LORDE made. For the LORDE is very pitifull and mercifull.

But aboute all thinges my bretheren fore-noe, nether by dea al, nether by earth, nether by eny other oche. Ye are yowre ye bye, and y^e na ye naye: lest ye faule in to yppocrysy.
If eny of you be euill weged, let hi praye. If eny of you be merry, let him singe plaines. If eny be defiled amonge you, let him call for the elders of the congregacion, & let the praye ouer him, and anoynte him with oyle in the name of the LORDE: and yf purpo^r of synch shal saue the sicke, and the LORDE shal re-fite him up: and yf he haue comitted synne, the y^e shalbe foigeyuen him.

Knowlege youre synnes one to another and praye one for another, that ye maye be healed. The prayer of a righteous man may much moche, yf it be frute. As Elias was an iust man: euen as we are, and he prayd in his prayer, that it mighte raine: & it rained not on the earth by the space of thre yeres and sixe monethes. And he prayd agayne, and y^e heaut raine came, & y^e each man foryth her frute.

Bretheren, yf eny of you erre fro the truth and another cometh him, let y^e saue him that he which cometh out the synne from goynge astraye out off his waye, shal saue a soule fro death, and shal haye the melle of synne ree.

The Epistle The Epistle of S. Jude.

The same of this epistle.

He sheweth such as beinge dyceyved with these worse lutes, wylth the weryth, & that we maye knowe the true herye, & the fowlye they be lute as fowlye heagly agaynst nature, and besyde nature etc. He exhorteth vs to conuince one another, to praye in the holy goost, to conuince us loue, to be fowlye besyde of the LORD, & anones helpe anones out of the fyre.

Whas the seruante of Jesus Christ, the brother off Ianna. To the which are called, as ad iustified in God the father, and pacie wed in Jesu Christ.
Mercy unto you, and peace and loue be multiplied.

Beloued, when I gaue all diligence to wyte vnto you of the commensalacione was nede full for me so wyte vnto you, comport you, that ye shulde continually laboure in the faith which was once geue to the fynes. For there are certayne craftily crept in, of which it was wyte a fow-lye vnto soule in dyement. They are un-godly, and curat the great of oure God vnto romance, and denye God be onely LORD DE, and are LORDE Jesu Christ.

My mynde is cherfous to put you in remebrance, for as moche as ye once knowe this, howe has J. LORDE (after that he had re-liuied) the people out of (Egipte) destroyed them which a fowlye beloued not. The angels also which kept not their first estate, but leste their owne habitation, be herye reserued in euerylastyng chaynes vnder dore-as vnto the iudgement of the great daye: euen as Godom and Gomor, and the cities aboute them (which in lyke maner vsed them selues with fornicacion and folowed strange fleshs) are set forth for an example, and iustice the vengeance of eternall fy-re. Lett wyte these names besyde the fleshe besyde nature, and speake euell of them that are in accorde.

Yes Michaell the archangell when he frowe agaynst the deuill, & dyspued aboute the body of Moses, durst not generallys sentence, but sayde: the LORDE rebuffe the.
Dne these speake euell of those thinges which they knowe not: and what thinges of S. Jude. Ho. cxi.

they knowe naturally, as bestes which are without reason, in the thinges they corrup-to them selues. Wo be vnto the, for they haue folowed the waye of Cain, and are enter-ly geue to the seruice of Balaam for lute fate, and perishe in the trefen of Con.

These are spores which of youre kindnes fast togedder, without feare, sedyng the selues. Cloudes they are withouten water, cast about of wyndes, and trees without frute as gadyinge tyme, wyte dead and placed up by the trees. They are the taggyng waves of the see, somyng eue their owne shame. They are wanderynge starres, as wds is refuted the myst of darkness for euer.

Each the seventh from Adam proph-etie before of iude, saynge: I shal holde, the LORDE shal come with rebouderes of fownes, so geue the gentis agaynst all men, and to rebuffe all that are ungodly amonge the,
of all their vngodly dedes, which they haue ungodly committed, and of all their cruell speakinges, which ungodly synners haue spoke agaynst him.

These are minemours, complainers, walkyng a stre thet owne luste, whose mon-thes speake proude thynges. They haue min greute reverence because of awaiteage.
But ye beloued, remembre the wordes which were spoken before of the Apostles of oure LORDE Jesu Christ, howe has theye olde you J. they shulde be begyled in the last tyme, which shulde walke a stre thet owne un-godly luste. These are makers off seces fleshe, buyng no spere.

But ye deulye beloued, edifie youre selues in youre most hely faith, praye in the holy goost, and kepe youre selues in the loue of God, lettynge for: do mercy of oure LORDE Jesu Christ, vnto eternall lyfe. And haue co-passion on some, separatinge thes and other soue with feare, pullinge them out of the fy-re, and haue the fleshy nature of the fleshe.

Vnto him that is able to kepe you, that ye faule not, and to present you faultlesse before the face of his glory with ioye.

J. is to saye, so God eue sauere wholy only in wyse, be glory, maiesty, dominion, & power,

nowe and for eternall Amen.

what the spere saith unto the congregaciō.
The IIII. Chapter.

And this I saw, and beholde, a boke was open in heauē, and the style voyce which I herde, was as it were of a troupe callinge with me, which sayde: come up hither, and I wil shewe the thinges which muste be fulfilled her a fter. And unmaistly I was in the spere: beholde, a seate was in heauen, and one sat on the seate. And he that sat, was to lode open like unto a glass stone, and as a saphire stone. And there was a rayne bowe aboute the seate, in sighte like to a Smeragde. And aboute the seate was xxiij. seates. And upon the seates xxiij. elders sittinge clothed in white garment, and had on their heades crownes of golde.

And out of the seate proceeded lightenynges, and thunderinges, & voyces, and there were seven lapes of fyre, burninge before the seate, which are the seven spere of God. And before the seate there was a sea of glasse like unto crystal, and in the myden off the seate, and manye aboute the seate, were four beastes full of eyes before and behynde. And the first best was like a lion, the second best like a calf, and the third best had a face as a man, and the fourth best was like a flyng eagle. And the foure beastes had eche one off them vi. wynges aboute him, and they were full of eyes with in. And they had no rest daye neither night, sayenge: . holy, holy, holy, is the LORD God almyghty, which was, and is, and is to come.

And when these beastes gave glory and honour and thankes to him that sat on the seate, which lyeth for ever and ever: & xxiij. elders fell downe before him that sat on the throne, and worshipped him & luyth for ever, and cast their crownes before & throne sayenge: thou art worthy LORD God to receiue glory, and honour, and power, for thou hast created all thynges, and for thy willes sake they are, and were created.

The V. Chapter.

And I sawe in the righte hande of him, that sat in the throne, a boke written with in & on the backside, sealed with full scales. And I sawe a stronge angel standinge with a loud voice: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to looke the scales thereof? And none in heauē nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the boke, neither to lode thereon. And I wepte much, because no man was founde worthy to open and to lode the boke, neither to lode thereon.

And one of the elders sayde unto me: wepe not: Beholde, the lyon which is off the tribe of Iuda, & rose of David, hath overcome to open the boke, and to louse the scales thereof. And I behelde, & lo, in the myden of the seate, and of the four beastes, and in the myden of the elders, stood a lambe as though he had bene kylled, which had seven haras and seven eyes, which are the full spere of God, sent in to all the world. And he came and toke the boke out of the righte hande of him that sat upon the seate.

And when he had taken the boke, the foure beastes and the xxiij. elders fell downe before the lambe, hauinge harpes and golden wallkes full of odours, which they prayde of the scales: and they singe a newe songe sayenge: thou art worthy to take the boke & to open the scales thereof: for thou wast kylled, and hast redeemed us by thy blood, out of all kynredde, and of ages, and people, and nations, & hast made us unto God, kynge and priestes, and we shall sayne on & earth.

And I behelde, and I herde the voyce of many angyles aboute the throne, and aboute the beastes, & elders, and I herde the sounde of thousandes, sayenge with a loud voice: Worthy is the lambe that was kylled, to receiue power, and riches & wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessinge. And all creatures, which are in heauē, & on the earth, & under the earth, & in the sea, & all that are in the herd, & sayenge: blessinge, honour, glory, & power, be unto him, & ffor ever vpon the seate, and vnto the labe for evermore. And the foure beastes saide: Amen. And the xxiij. elders fell upon their faces, and worshipped him that lyeth for evermore.

The VI. Chapter.

And I sawe when the labe opened one of the scales, & I herde one of the foure beastes saye, as it was the voyce off the thunder: come and se. And I sawe, and beholde: there was a white horse, and he that sat on him had a bowe, and a crown was geuen vnto him, and he went forth conqueringe and for a ouercome. And when he opened the seconde scale, I herde the seconde best saye: come and se. And there went out another white horse, and he that was geuen to him that sat thereon, to take peace from the earth, and that he shoulde kill out another. And there was geuen vnto him a great sword.

And when he opened the thyrde scale, I herde the thyrde best saye: come & se. And I behelde, and lo, a blacke horse, and he that 23 And when he opened the fourth scale, I heroe the voyce of the fourth beaste saye come and sit. And I heerd, and beholde a pñe beaste, and his name that sat on him was deeth, and half folowd a fter him, a power man geue vnto them enen the fowerth part of the earth, to fyl with fire, and he hunger, and with deeth, of the wourmes of the earth.

And when he opened the fyfte feale, I sawe under the ashure, the seales of sehem y were bylled for the wordes of God, and fiv of testimony which they had, and they cryed with a lowde voyce a yste: How longe tarreth thou .LORD Eshol and true, to soege r to nunge one bloud on them that dwell on the earth: And longe wylt thou gnerence us, we geuen unto every one of them: And is now a yde vnto eury one, that they shulde resse for a yste season, vntill the number of their selowen, and buzhe, and of them that shal be bilied as they were, were fulfilled.

¶ And I beheld when he opened the sixth scale, and lo, there was a great earthquake, and of some men as black as a sack cloth made of hair. And the more weered out as klooute: and the starren of heauen fell vnto each earth, euen as a figge tree casteth from her her figges, when she is shaken of a mighty wynde. And heauen was dysshid in wayes, as a scroll was vnto a booke.
And all mountaynes and yles, were moued out of their places. And the thynges of earth, and the greene men, and the redde men, and the deere captiues men, and the myghtie men, and every freemen, had them selues in bewaile, and in rootes of 3 brayles, and iay be de vs frize the presence of him that is the seate on the founteyne, and from the mouth of rebelles

And who can endure it?

The VII Chapter.

After that I sawe foure angels stande on foure corners of the earth holdinge foure wyndes of earth, thi wyndes shalde not blowe on earth, ne ther on yse, neither on any tree. And I sawe a nother angel ascende fro the rygginge of the seawerke, whiche had the steale of synners. God and he cryed with a loud voyce to the foure angelles (to whom power was given to abovehande.

After this I behelde, and lo, a great multitude (which no man could be number of) of all nations and people, and tongues, stood in the sea, and before the Lamb, clothed in long white garments, and palms in their hands, and cryed with a lowde voyce, saying: saluatioe be ascribed to him that sitteth upon the seate of ourre God, and vnto the Lamb. And all the angels stood in the pale of the seate, and of the elders, and of the four beastes, and fell before that seate, and saide, and worshipped God, saying, praise, blessing, and glory, wisdom, and thankes, and honour, and power, and might, be vnto our God for euermore Amen.

[illegible]

The VIII. Chapter.

When he had opened the scale, there was silence in heaven above the space of halfe an houre. And shal reign for evermore. And the four and twenty elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God saying: we give thee thanks LORD God almighty: which art and wast, and are to come, for thou hast received thy great might, and hast reigned. And the sixtyeth were angry, & they roared, saying, come, and the time of the need that they shal be in, and that thou shouldest geve reward unto thy servants the prophetes and sayntes, and to the that feare thy name, small & greates, and shouldest destroye them which destroye the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and there was shewed in his temple the ark of his testament: and there were shewed lightnings, and voyces, and thunders, and such quales, and greates haile.

And there appeared a greates token in heauen. A woman clothed with the Sonne, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve starres. And she was with childe, and cryed travauling in birth, and paynd ready to be deliuered. And there appeared another token in heauen, and beholde a greates red dragon, hauinge seven heades, and ten hornes and was crowned wth his heades: and his taile ouerthrew the thirde parte of the starres, and cast them out of the earth.

And the dragon stode before the womā, which was ready to be deliuered: for to deuoure her childe as soon as it were borne. And she brought forth a man childe, which shoulde misse all nacions with a rod of iron. And her sonne was taken up vnto God, and to his place. And the woman fled in to wilderness, where she had a place prepared off God, that they shoulde fede her there a ti. ii. and lxx. dayes.

And there was a greates battayll in heauen Michael and his angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels, and preuailed not, neither was their place founde any more in heauen. And the greates dragon that olde serpent (called the deuell and Sathanas) was cast out. Which disceiued all the world. And he was cast into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him also.

And I heare a loud voice, which sayde in heauen: Now is saluacion, and strengthe and the Kingdome become ours Gods, and of power his Christes: for he is cast downe, which accused them before God dayes and night. And they ouercame him by the blood of the lambe, and by the wordes of their testimony, and they slayd not their liues vnto the death. Therefore reioyce ye heauens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabers of the earth, and of the sea: for the deuell is come downe vnto you, which hath greates wrath, because he knoweth, that he hath but a short tyme.

And when the dragon sawe, that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted the woman, which brought forth the man childe. And to the woman were geuen two winges of a greates eagle: that she might flye in to the wilderness, in to her place, where she is nourished for a tyme, two tymes, and halffe a tyme, from the presence of the serpent. And the dragon cast out of his mouth water after the woman, as it had bene a ryuer, that he might cause her to be caughte of the flood. And the earth helpe the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the ryuer which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went and made warre with the remnant of hyr seed, which kepe the commandementes of God, and haue the testimony of Iesus Christ. And I stode on the seconde.

The XIII. Chapter.

And I sawe a beest rise out of the sea, hauinge seven heades, and x. hornes, and upon his hornes x. crownes. And vpon his heed, the names of blasphemy. And the beest which I sawe was a lyke in case of the mountayne, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lyon. And the dragon gaue him his power and his seat, and greater exaltacion: and I sawe one of his heades as it were wounded to death, and his deadly wounde was healed. And all the world dwelt at the beest, and they worshipped the dragon which gaue power vnto the beest, and they worshipped the beest, saying: we be liue vnto the beest, who is able to warre with him.

And there was geuen vnto him a mouth to speake greates chinges & blasphemes, and power was geuen vnto him, to doo as much as he willed. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heauen. And it was geuen vnto him to make warre with the sayntes, and to ouercome them. And power was geuen him ouer all kynred, congre, and nacions: and all that dwell upon the earth worship him: whose names are not written in the booke of life of the lambe, which was killed from the beginning of the worlde. If any man have an ear, let him heare. He that leadeth in to captiuitie, shall go in to captiuitie: he that taketh with a sword, must be killed with a sword. Here is the patience, and the faith of the sayntes.

And I behelde another best comynge up out of the earth, and he had two hounes like a lambe, and he spake as he dyd the diuys. And he dyd all that the first best coude do in his presence, and he caused the earth, and them which dwell therein, to worshippe the first best, whose deadly wound was healed. And he dyd grete wonders, so that he made fre come downe from heauē in the sight of men. And deceased them that dwell on the earth by y meanes of fish of signis which he had power to do in the sight of the best, sayenge to them that dwell on the earth: that they shulde make an ymage vnto the best, which had the wounde of a sword, and dyd lute.

And he had power to geue a spere vnto the ymage of the best, and that the ymage of the best shulde speake, and shulde canse, that as many as wolde not worshippe the ymage of the best, shulde be killed. And he made all bothe smale and grete, ryche and poore, fre and bond, to receaue a marke in their right hondes, or in their forehandes. And that no man might by o sell, save he y had y marke, or the name of the best, wher the nombre of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath eye, count the nombre of the best. For in the nombre of a man, and his nombre is like hondred, the foure and sixe.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ And I looked, and lo, a lambe stood on the mount Syon, and with him C. and xliij. thousand hauinge his fathers name written in their forehandes. And I herde a voyce from heauen, as the sounde of many reuerens, and as the voyce of a grete chorde. And the voyce that I herde, was as the harpers that playe upon their harpers. And they songe as it were a newe songe, before the seate, before y some bestes, and the elders, and no man coude learne y songe, but they honoured and shew. The which were redeemed from the earth. These are they, which were not defiled with women, for they are virgins. These folowe the lambe, whether sauer he goeth. These were redeemed from men, beinge: he shall stand in to God and to the lambe, and in their mouth was founde no gyle. For they are my churche: spotlesse before the throne of God.

And I sawe an angel flye in the myddes of heauen bringe an euangelinge. Sayinge, to stande vnto them that sit and dwell in the earth, as to all nacions. Here comen the signes and people, sayenge with a lowde voyce, feare God, and geue honour to him, for the houre of his indignacion is come: and worshippe him: that made heauen and earth, and the see, and the fountaynes of water. And there folowe another angel, sayenge: He is fallen, he is fallen: the Babylon that grete cite, for shee made all nacions to drinke of the wyne of her whoredome.

And the thyrde angel folowed the first, geuynge a lowde voyce. If any man worshippe the best and his ymage, and receaue y marke in his forehead, or on his honde, this man shall drinke of the wyne of the wrath of God, which is poured out in the cuppe of his wrath. And he shalbe penyshed in fyer, brimstone, before the holy Angles, and before the lambe.

And the smoke of their torment ascended up euermore. And they have none daye nor nyght, which worshippe the best and his ymage, and whosoever man receaue the prync of his name. Here is the patience of the sayntes. Here are they that kepe the commaundementes and the faith of Iesu.

And I herde a voyce from heauen, sayinge vnto me: myxt. Blessed are y dead, which hereafter dye in the LORDE. Yee shall liue so verry, that they rest from their laboure, for thei rest folowe them. And I heard and behelde, a white clothe, and vnto y stande one sittinge like vnto the sonne of man, hauinge on his head a golden crowne, and in his right hande a sharpe sylle. And another angel came out of the temple, cryinge with a lowde voyce to him that sat on the clothe: Thinke in thy selfe, and weep: for the tyme is come to reape, for the corne of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on y clothe, shew in his sylle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

And another angel came out of the temple, which is in heauen, hauinge also a sharpe sylle. And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fyer.

ereth with a leade crye unto him that had the sharpe sickle, and sayde thus in thy sharpe sickle, and gather the clusiers of the earth, for his grapes are ripe. And the angell thrust in his sickle on the earth, and cut downe the grapes of the vineyard of the earth, and cast them in to the great wyne-press of the wrath of God: & the wyne was pressed without the cite, and bloude came out of the presse, even unto the horse bytles by the space of a thousande and fye hundred furlonges.

The XV. Chapter.

AND I sawe another signs in heven great & marvellous. vii. angelles havinge the seven laste plagges, for in thei fulfilled the wrath of god. And I sawe as it were a glassse full, mingled with fyre, and them that had gotten victory of the beast, and of his image, and of his marke, and of the nombre of his name, stande on the glassse full, havinge 7 harpes of God: and they singe the songs of Moses the servant of God, and the songs of the lambe, sayinge: Great and marvellous are thy workes LORD & God almighty, left and true are thy wayes, thou kynge of sayntes. Who shal not feare thee O LORD and glorifie thy name: for thou only art holy, for all gentes shall come and worshippe before thee, for thy iudgements are made manifest.

And after that, I looked, and beholde, the temple of the Tabernacle of testimony was open in heauen, and the seven angelles came out of the temple, which had the seven plagges, clothed in pure and brighte linnen, and havinge their hautes girted with golden girdelles. And one of the seven bestowes name unto the seven angelles seven golden vialles, full of the wrath of God which they shew for curmors: And the temple was full of smoke for the glory of God, and for his power, and no man was able to entre in to the temple, tylle the seven plagges of the seven angels were fulfilled.

The XVI. Chapter.

AND I herde a greates voyce out of the temple, sayinge to the seven angels: go your wayes, poure out your vialles of wrath upon the earth. And the first went, and poured out his viall upon the earth, and there fell a noyse, and cold upon the men which had the marke of the beast, and upon them that worshipped his image. And the seconde angell shew out his viall upon the see, and he turned the water in to the blood, and many dead were in the sea, and the thirde angell shew out his viall upon the ryuer, and some ryuers of waters, and they turned to bloude. And I herde an angell saye: LORD which art and makest thou art righteous and holy, because thou hast sent these iudgements, for they shed the bloude of sayntes, and prophetes, and therefore hast thou sent them bloude to drink: for they are worthy. And I herde another angell out of the altar, saye: even so LORD God almighty, true and righteous are thy iudgements.

And the fourth angell poured out his viall on the Sonne, and power was given unto him to vex men with heate of fyre. And the men rayged in great heat, and spake euill of the name of God, which had power over those plagges, and they repented not, to geue him glory. And the fyfte angell poured out his viall upon the face of the beast, and his kyngdome were desolate, and they gathered their tongues for sorrowe, and blasphemed the God of heauen for avarice, and payne of their paines, and repented not of their doings.

And the sixte angell poured out his viall upon the great ryuer Euphrates, and the water dryed up, that the waye of the kynges of the East shoulde be prepared. And I sawe three unclean sprites like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and one off the mouth off the beast, and one off the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the sprites of devils, most myghty mystacles, to go out unto the kynges of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battayle of that great daye of God almighty. And he holdeth, I come as a thefte, happy is he that wardeth and keepeth his garmentes, lest he be founde naked, and men sit his fleshytes. And he gathered them together in to a place, called in the hebrew tongue, Armagedon.

And the seventh angell poured out his viall in to the ayre. And there came a greates voyce out of heaven from the thre saynges: It is done. And there folowed voyces, thundringes, and lightnings, and there was great earthquake, such as was not since were upon the earth, so myghty an quake and so great. And was heard in so this parties. And the cities of nations fell. And greete Babylon as me in remembrance before God, as greete vnto hyt the cupps of wyne of the fiercenes of his wrath. And every flye shal awaye, and the mountaynes were not founde. And thees fell a greete hayle, as it had bene talen, out of heaue vpon the men, and the men blasphemed God, because of the plague of the hayle, for it was greete, and the plague of ison.

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ And there came one of the seuen angels, which had the seven vialles, and called vnto me, sayinge vnto me: Come, I will shewe thee the shewingment of the greete whorde, that steecheth vpon many waters, with whome the tynges of the earth haue commyted whoredome, and the inhabitants of the earth are drunken with the wyne of her fornicacion. And he carryed me awaye into the wilderness in f. iij. And I sawe a woman lye vpon a coler colored beast, full of names of blasphemie, which had seuen heades and ten hornes. And if woman was a city in purple and coler color, and decked with golde, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cuppe of golde in her honde, full of abominacions, and fylled with her wordes. And in her forehead was a name myere, a mystery: greete Babylon the mother of whoredome, and abominacions of the earth. And I sawe the myghty dronke with the bloude of sayntes, and with the bloude of the witnesses of Iesu. And when I sawe her, I woundred with greete meruaile.

And the angell sayde vnto me: wherfore miruayllist thou? I wil shewe thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that beareth her, which hath seuen heades, and ten hornes. The beast that thou seest, is now, and is not, and shall ascende out of the bottomlesse pyre, and shal go in to perucion, and they that dwell on the earth shal worshippe him, whose names are not written in the booke of life from the begynnyng, of the worlde: when they beholde the beast that is now, and is not. And here is a mynde, that hath wisdom.

The seuen heades are seuen mountanes, which the woman steecheth: they are also cities, thees are fallen, and one is, that is not yet come. When he cometh, he continueth a space. And the ten is now, is, and the eyght, and is of the seuen, and shal go in to destruction. And if ten hornes which thees seest, are ten tynges, which haue not yet receaved the tyngdom, but shal receaue it as a tynges as one houre with y. beest. Thees haue one mynde, and shal geue their power and strenght vnto y. beest. Thees shal fight with the lambe, and the labe shal overcome them: for he is. I. O. R. D. E. of all lordes, the kyng of all kynges: and they that are with y. beest, are called, and chosen and faithful.

And he sayde vnto me: The waters which thees seest, where y. whon steech, are people, and folke, and nations, and congre. And the ten hornes, which theon sawest vpon the beest, are they that shal haue the whorde, shal make her desolate, and naked, and shal eate her fleshe, and burne her with fyre. For God hath put in thees hornes, to fall him with, and to do with one confite, to geue her tyngdom vnto the beest, vntill the wordes of God be fulfilled. And the word which theon sawest, is that greete city, which reigneth over the tynges of the earth.

¶ And after that I sawe another angell come downe fro heaue, havinge great power, and y. earth was allyght with his dryghthe. And he cryed mightily with a stronge voyce, sayinge: She is fallen, she is fallen, euergreate Babylon, and become the habitation of devils, and of foule of all foule species, and a cage of all cleane, and here full bydoes: for all nations be drunken of the wyne of the wrath of the whoredome. And the tynges of the earth haue committed fornicacion with her, and her marchauntres are weyrd ryde of the abundance of her pleasures.

And I herde another voyce from heaue saye: come awaye from her my people, that ye be not partakers of her synnes, lest you come of her plagges. For her synnes are gone vnto heaue, and the L. O. R. D. E. hath remembered her wickednes. Remembe her as she rewarded you, and geue her double vnto her as she rewarded you. And poutre in bubbe to her in the same cuppe, whi do she fylle vnto you. And a voyce as the gloryed her self and I yobd wantonly, so much poure vnto her of punysshment, and sorowe, for she synned in her heret: y. beinge a queen, and as no wyddow, and shall be a forore. And thees shal her plagges come as one daye, death and fowes, and boners, and she shalbe hitte with fyre: for wronge is the LORDE God with this iudge her.

And the kynges of the earth shal beweepe her and wayle ouer her, which haue commited fornicacion and lyued wantonly with her, when they shal see the smoke of her burnyng, and shal stonde a farr off for feare of her purgament, sayenge: Alas, alas, that a greete cite and yon, that was hitte, thou art now become a byrde in thy indgement come. And the marchauntes off the earth shal wepe and wayle in them selues, because no man will bye their reare any more, the ware of golde, and syluer, and of precious stenes, off pearle, and sylke, and purple, and scarlet, and all kynde of vnde and all manner vessels of yuery, and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of luffe, and of yon, and syonion, and of aboure, and of omentes, and of frant pynce, and of wyne, and of oyle, and of fyne fleete, and of weaste, and of catell, and of shepe, and of hofes, and of charettes, and of bodys and of soules of men.

And the apples that thy soule lusted after, are departed from the. And all thynges which were vnto it, and had in price, are departed from the, and thou shalt fynde them no more. The marchauntes of these thynges which were used by her, shal stonde a farr off for feare of the purgament of her, wepyng and wayllage, and sayenge: Alas alas, that greete cite, that was clothed in sylke, and purple, and scarlet, and bed with golde, and precious stone, and pearle: for at one houre is greate ryches come to nought.

And euery shippe gouernour, and all they that occupy shippes, and shippmen which wote in the see, stonde a farr off, and cryed, when they sawe the smoke of her burnyng, and sayde: what cite is like vnto this greete cite? And they cast dust on their heades, and cryed wepyng, and wayllage, and sayde: Alas, alas, the greete cite, which was made rych, all that had shopped in the see, by the reason of her warme: for at one houre is she made desolate.

Reioyce ouer her thou beane, and ye holy Apostles, and prophetes: for God hath goren your iugment on her. And a myghty angell toke up a greete stone lyke a myllstone, and cast it in w the see, sayenge: wch such violence shal that greete cite Babylon be cast, and shalbe founde no more. And the voyce of harpers, and musiciens, and of pypers, and trempeters, shalbe there no more in the: and no crafter man, as what fouer craft he be: shalbe founde any more in the: and the sounde of a myll shalbe there no more in the: and the voyce of the dryd egge, and of the hyde, shalbe there no more in the: for thy marchauntes were prynces of the earth. And wch thyne indgement were deceayed all nacions, and in her was founde the blood of the prophetes, and of the sayntes, and of all that were slayne wch the earth.

The XIX. Chapter.

And after that, I herde the voyce of much people in heuyn, sayenge: Alleluia, Saluacion and glory and honour, and power be ascribed to the LORDE of God, for true and righteous are his iugmentes, because he hath iudged the greates whon: which had corrupte the earth with her fornicacion, and hath awenged the blood of his seruantes of her bond. And agayne they sayde: Alleluia. And smoke rose up for euer more. And I saw: elders, and the foure beasts fell downe, and worshipped God that sat on the seate, sayenge: Amen: Alleluia. And a voyce came out of the seate, sayenge: praye for the LORDE God all ye that are his seruantes, that he shal spare him both small and greete.

And I herde the voyce of much people, sayenge: the voyce of many waters, as of a voyce of stronge bondrynges, sayenge: Alleluia, for God omnipotent raigeth. Let vs be glad and reioyce, and geue honour to him: for the mariage of the lambe is come, and his wife made her selfe ready. And to her was graunted, that she shulde be arrayed with pure and good sylke. (As for the sylke, it is the righte wofe, as of sayntes.) And he sayde vnto me: Blessed are they which are called vnto the Lambes supper. And he sayde vnto me: these are the true sayntes of God. And I fell at his feet, to worshippe him. And he sayde vnto me: See thou do it not. For I am thy seloune seruante, and one of thy brethen, and of them that haue the testimoyny of Iesus. Worshippe God. For the testimoyny of Iesus is of spure of prophesie. And I sawe a draught open, and beholde, a whyte horse, and he that sat vpon him, was called faith, and true, and in righte testifies of his word made bawyle. His eyes were fyre, and on his hende were written his name wyzen, that hat him selfe. And he was
